

Irrigation Is The Key

Water is flowing every which way in Briscoe County below the prock from it. In irrigation wells, the majority of which have been drilled to a shallow depth of 23 to 100 feet. Others have gone as deep as 160 feet before finding water. It matters little whether the benefits of these wells are expressed in terms of gallons per minute, or size of pipe, or for that matter—holes of cotton—regardless of how you say it, the wells are indeed a god-send in any language to dry-land farmers who have spent precious time and money trying to wage a winning battle with the drought.

Irrigation is no new business to many farmers, but to those in this area it is relatively new to all except a half-dozen or so. Among the earliest in this vicinity to probe the irrigation program were Ike Reed and E. F. Payne who have been benefiting from their wells since the time they were drilled back in the late '40s.

The '40's were good years, rain came, the drought was broken and all might have been well, except history has a way of repeating itself—drouth set in.

Irrigation caught on fast as farmers viewed the results of good bumper crops while their dry land crops curled up with each progressive day of drouth.

The spring of 1955 found this section of the country in an epidemic stage of deep well irrigation. Test drillers found they had over 100 names on their list waiting their turn to find out if they had water. Most of the wells that have been brought in since that time carry either a 6 or 4 inch casing; a few others were more fortunate, finding water sufficient for an 8 inch well. A few other farmers have replaced that situation because they were six-inch casing with four-inch when sufficient water couldn't be pumped. A few others reversed that situation because they were pumping more water than they had expected.

QUITAQUE, BRISCOE COUNTY, THURSDAY, MARCH 15, 1956

The prolonged drouth keeps forcing the graph-line of irrigation up; just where it will peak, nobody knows.

HYBRID LAMBS OFFER PROSPECT OF MORE EFFICIENT MEAT & WOOL PRODUCTION

Hybrid lambs promote ranchmen increased efficiency in the production of meat and wool. Representing two and three-way crosses of different high-quality purebreds, Beltsville hybrids have far outclassed their parent stock in production and in reduced mortality.

The hybrids are crosses of purebred Hampshires, Shropshires, Southdowns, and Merinos. Commercial growers, however, can produce vigorous hybrid lambs by crossing their own grade flocks with high-quality purebreds of another breed.

Results of tests, showing improvement in production and lower mortality rates, cover two-way crosses observed over a seven-year period and three-way crosses tested for four years.

Comparison was based upon the mortality rate of the lambs, and the "production index" of each ewe. This index indicates the ewe's producing ability in terms of weaned weight of lambs and weight of yearling fleeces.

The average production index of three-way-cross lambing was 74.4, compared with 62.0 for the purebred flocks used in this cross. Crossbreds showed an average increase of 20.6 percent in the total production as compared with the purebreds. The three-way-cross lambs showed 38 percent lower mortality than the purebred lambs in these tests.

During seven years of testing the two-way-cross lambs, the ewes showed an average production index of 67.8 when bred to rams of other breeds. This is compared to an index of 58.1 for similar purebred ewes bred to rams of their own breeds. The hybrids showed an increase of 16.7 percent in the total production as compared with the purebreds. Lamb mortality was 31.4 percent lower in the hybrids of this group.

GRAZING DAMAGE HEAVIEST IN YOUNG PINE PLANTATIONS

Growing numbers of cattle in the South, together with expanding reforestation efforts, mean that farmers are continually faced with the question whether it is profitable to allow grazing in young pine plantations.

G. G. Hoffman, Extension Range specialist, reports the results of some studies of cattle grazing damage to pine seedlings on eight different plantations, undertaken by the Southern Forest Station of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Forest Service, between 1946 and 1954. These studies, according to Hoffman, have uncovered some facts that can help landowners decide how much grazing, if any, to permit on their own plantations.

Here are the principal conclusions reached from these observations in areas where grazing damage was noticeably heavy and for the most part uncontrolled.

Cattle rarely graze pine foliage where other green forage is available, but some trampling and browsing damage can always be expected in young pine plantations. Seedling losses are excessive in any place where cattle concentrate or overgraze.

Losses from trampling are greatest during the first year after planting and the first 2 years after seeding. Longleaf seedlings remain for several years in the vulnerable grass stage, with large terminal buds close to the ground.

If grazing is permitted the first few years after planting, it should not start before May 1 and should be sufficiently moderate so that not more than half of the green forage is used during the entire season. Desirable green forage is sparse in late winter and early spring, and browsing damage increases at this time.

The only positive way to prevent serious grazing damage is to keep cattle and all kinds of livestock out of young plantations until the pines are 6 to 8 feet high, says Hoffman. Where this is impractical, grazing should be very carefully controlled.

The annual Texas Safety Conference, which includes a section on farm and ranch safety, will be held in Dallas at the Baker Hotel on March 26-27. The farm and ranch section meeting is set for 2 p. m. on the 26th. The safety record of agriculture needs a lot of improving and attendance at this meeting can help.

The supply of hybrid grain sorghum for 1956 plantings is very limited. The new hybrids should be bought only from a reliable seed dealer or seed grower.

FARM & RURAL ESTABLISHMENTS RECEIVE BENEFITS OF REA TELEPHONE LOANS

The Rural Electrification Administration made loans in 1955 that will provide new or improved telephone service to about 135 thousand farms and other rural establishments.

REA made 188 long-term, low-interest loans amounting to well over 66 million dollars. Ninety-nine of the loans were made to new borrowers which had not previously used REA financing. The purpose of the loans is to help the telephone companies improve and extend their services in rural areas.

Two-thirds of the total loans were made in the last half of 1955, amounting to a little over 40 million dollars. Additional loan applications promise a sustained loan level of approximately 80 million dollars for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1956.

Since the beginning of the REA program in October, 1949, net loans stands at 273 million dollars. They have provided new or improved service for about 600 thousand subscribers.

"Little Pat", as he was known to his friends, accepted Christ as his Savior on January 23, 1956, and united with the Lone Oak Baptist Church, Sayre, Oklahoma. He soon felt the call to the gospel ministry. Little Pat was a farmer and rancher, but his greatest joy was to tell others that he was a preacher. On February 20, 1956 Pat surrendered to preach the Gospel. He preached his first sermon on Feb. 26, 1956 at the West Baptist Church.

He is survived by his wife Jo, and 3 daughters, of the home, Cheryl Lou, Debra Jo, and Patti Beth; his mother and father, Mr and Mrs Patton Cogbill of Erick; one sister, Marcella Brown of Silverton, Texas; many other relatives and a great host of friends.

Relatives and friends attending the last rites from Quitaque were Mr and Mrs A. C. Barrett, Mr and Mrs Clarence Barrett, Mr and Mrs Emma Burgess, Mr and Mrs Glynn Barrett, Mrs Emma Burgess, Mr Cecil Price and sons, Bruce and Preston, Joe Bedwell, M. L. Roberson, Ray Persons, Mr and Mrs A. B. Ramsey, Mrs Glen Ramsey, Mrs D. C. Duck, Mr and Mrs Charles Gorman and Bro. and Mrs Claude Withrow.

ton, C. E. Anderson Sr., Boone McCracken and Murry Morrison. J. B. Tiffin, farmer in the vicinity of Woodruff's place, found Woodruff's body pinned beneath the tractor which was lying on its top in a bar ditch. The embankment of the country road along which Woodruff was driving the tractor gave away, causing the machine to flip over into the ditch. Woodruff's chest was crushed and one leg was fractured.

Woodruff had been plowing on the Glynn Morrison farm in the vicinity and was on his way home when the accident occurred.

Mr Woodruff was born October 4, 1889 at Nashville, Howard County, Arkansas, to Louis and Mary Woodruff. He passed away at the age of 66 years, 5 months and 4 days. Woodruff came to Quitaque 31 years ago from Arkansas. He was very active in the Church of Christ and in community projects.

He is survived by his wife, Fannie Jo; three daughters, Mrs LeRoy Hamilton of Quitaque, Mrs Clint Hicks of Matador and Mrs Lee Roy McKay of Plainview; three sisters, Mrs Bee Goodson and Miss Minnie Woodruff of Nashville, Ark.; and Mrs Mary Womack of Idabel, Okla.; five brothers, A. J., Jop and Walter Woodruff of Nashville, Ark.

Editor's Speak

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

COVINGTON, TENN., LEADER: "We feel that labor unions have served useful purposes in the past. However, if they are to continue to serve the best interests of the people, labor leaders must realize that restrictive tactics and 'feather-bedding' produce not more jobs, but fewer jobs in this age of mass-production, prefabrication and automation."

OGALLALA, NEBR., NEWS: "Financial statements of the major companies show that the packers, by an almost unbelievable elimination of waste and development of profitable by-products, reflect an efficient job and at a margin of a small fraction of one penny for each dollar volume of business."

NOBLESVILLE, IND., HOUR: "The common economic goal of the free world, to discourage communism, is removing barriers to the flow of capital. The opportunities for achieving a stronger, freer world and at the same time for sound investment are fabulous. By strengthening capitalism abroad, we are strengthening the free enterprise system which is basic to our own way of life."

PLAINFIELD, IND., MESSENGER: "We do not need to look to the federal government for help. Let's learn again the fine art of taking care of ourselves and our own."

"Competition Will Be Tougher Than Ever"

Chain Store age has something significant to say about the prospects of retailing in 1956. "The indications are that retail sales will be bigger than ever. . . . But . . . this does not mean that the increased volume will be evenly distributed. It won't. One reason it won't is the great number of new stores that will be in the picture. In other words, competition will be tougher than ever, and every merchant will have to do his best job even to equal last year's volume—let alone get his share of the additional business which will certainly be available."

A survey indicates that the chains will open 10,000 stores in 1956, as against 8,956 last year. Additional thousands will be opened by independent merchants, who will be competing vigorously both with the chains and among themselves for the fickle favor of the buying public.

What does this mean to you, the consumer? It means that merchants of all kinds and in all fields will be working harder than ever to please you. It means that bigger and more attractive stocks of goods will await your examination. It means that there will be more informative and interesting advertising and other promotion. And it means, price-wise, that you will get the best possible return from your retail dollar.

There are the sure fruits of free and open competition.

YESS, ADVERTISING PAYS

A retail grocers' association reports that of every 100 customers put on the books of any store in any one year, only 19 remain after 10 years. Citing this, the Sandersonville, Georgia, Progress, says: "Merchants who believe 'everyone knows where my store is' might ponder these figures and seek more new customers through planned newspaper advertising in the home town newspaper."

Competition is mighty keen in retailing these days, and the successful merchant must vigorously go after business. The home town newspaper is still the best place to advertise any store's wares and attractions.

From Congressman WALTER ROGERS

WALTER ROGERS Con't. . . . an idea of the control of the many by the few. WALTER ROGERS Member of Congress 18th District of Texas CIVIL RIGHTS

There is an old saying that politics produces strange bedfellows. There is another philosophical gem to the effect that "if you will just wait, that which is unpopular today will soon be popular, and vice versa". Both of these sayings were certainly proven beyond any doubt this week in Washington. There was a "Leadership Conference on Civil Rights" scheduled for March 4th, 5th and 6th. A request was made by the Department of Labor to the General Services Administration that the Interdepartmental Auditorium be provided for this conference. The use of the auditorium is supposed to be restricted by regulations to the following: "a. Agencies of the Federal Government and the Government of the District of Columbia, for official use. b. Officially recognized agencies, clubs, or educational units of the Federal Government or the Government of the District of Columbia." See GSA R3-282-November 1953. Regulations and policies in the past have prohibited the use of this auditorium for "special meetings, meetings of a political, sectarian, fraternal or similar nature". The General Services Administration granted the use of the auditorium to the Civil Rights Conference.

"IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE"

Soil-Water Loans
Total $19,800,000
During First Year

More than $19,800,000 has been borrowed by farmers for soil and water conservation since this type of credit was made available a little more than a year ago. Walter T. McKay, Farmers Home Administration State Director for Texas said today.

Farmers used the loans to improve their farms and increase the efficiency of their operations.

A report recently made by Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taff Benson shows that about 79 percent of the funds were used for irrigation, including the purchase of pumps and piping, the drilling of wells and the construction and repair of irrigation ditches and laterals. Irrigation systems were developed or improved for about 282,000 acres.

In Texas, through December 31, 1955, 85 percent of the $282,000 loaned was used for irrigation. Irrigation systems were developed or improved for more than 24,603 acres. The remainder of the funds was used for such soil conservation measures as terracing and pasture improvement, and developing water systems for household use and farm livestock.

"We expect that during the coming months, and particularly in the Great Plains Area, farmers will use a larger portion of the funds they borrow to finance soil conservation measures," McKay said. "We have held a number of meetings in cooperation with Extension Service, Soil Conservation Service and other agricultural agencies to make certain that all farmers know that funds are available for soil and water conservation loans."

"Increased yields from this type loan are already apparent, but not, of course, to the extent they will be after the change system of farming is in full operation," McKay said. For example, in Dawson County, an $11,200 loan for irrigation was made in May of 1955. This was too late for the farmer to preirrigate much of his cotton land. He irrigated 62 acres and harvested 63 bales of cotton without using any fertilizer this year. Dryland cotton in this area on similar land made about 1/2 of a bale per acre. He pre-watered approximately 60 acres of land planted to milo and applied water on time after planting. It yielded 2500 lbs. where as his dry land milo yielded only 500 lbs. per acre. In addition to watering his row crops, he seeded a 2 acre plot to alfalfa which provided a good hog and cow pasture. He seeded an 8 acre plot to vetch and oats and now has a good pasture. At the time the loan was made, the farmers had 10 head of livestock and 2 brood sows. He now has 30 head of livestock and 21 hogs and has sufficient pasture and feed to take care of them. He has a good poultry program. By having the winter pasture and vetch, this farmer is utilizing his irrigation system year-round, and is successful in his farming operations where other farmers in the area, hard hit by drought, are going deeper into debt to continue their operation."

Private lenders provide most of the funds from which these loans are made. The Farmers Home Administration makes and services the loans and insures repayment of the funds advanced. Farmers pay 4 1/2 percent in interest or in interest and insurance charges for the loans. The loans are scheduled for repayment within the shortest period of time consistent with the ability of the borrower to repay. The maximum repayment period on loans to individuals, is 20 years.

To be eligible for a soil and water conservation loan, a farmer must have reasonable prospects of conducting successful farming operations. He must be able to obtain the necessary credit on reasonable terms from private lending sources.

Applications for soil and water conservation loans may be made at the county office of the Farmers Home Administration. The local County Farmers Home Administration committee determines eligibility for these loans.

FROM OFFICE OF SENATOR PRICE DANIEL

An amendment to the new farm bill sponsored by Senator Price Daniel to relate price support on grain sorghums, barley, oats, and rye to their feed value equivalent to corn has won approval of the Senate.

Providing different formulas for 1956 crops and those produced in succeeding years, the amendment would generally increase 1956 support levels on feed grains recently announced by Secretary of Agriculture Benson and would bring about substantially higher supports thereafter. As to 1956 crops, the amendment contains a provision that support prices would in no event be lower than those established by the Secretary.

"I am quite naturally pleased over this long-delayed recognition of the relationship between corn and other feed grains and their competition in the feed market," Daniel commented. "This amendment will not only reduce the surplus of these commodities, but it will also help to restore the farmer to his fair share of the national income."

To become eligible for price supports, farmers would be required to place in the Soil Bank 15 per cent of their average acreage devoted to feed grains over the past three years. They would receive regular Soil Bank payments for complying with acreage reductions.

Daniel sponsored the amendment for himself and Senators Johnson of Texas, Chavez of New Mexico, Humphrey of Minnesota, and Young of North Dakota.

In reply to questions propounded on the Senate floor by Senator Price Daniel, leading member of the Senator Agriculture Committee gave assurances that drought, flood, and other years of natural disaster will be included in the computation of Soil Bank payments under the new farm bill.

Daniel had offered an amendment for himself and Senator Lyndon B. Johnson to state that "average production" in disaster years would not be considered "normal production" within the meaning of the Soil Bank law. He pointed out that the Southwest had experienced a prolonged and severe drought, making financial condition of farmers "even more precarious than that in other farming areas of the United States."

"At least some of these farmers would like to operate in the acreage reserve program," The Texas Senator continued, "but they will be penalized further if their return is figured on average production in recent years."

Daniel was assured by Senator Ellender, of Louisiana, Agriculture Committee chairman; Aiken of Vermont, ranking Republican member; and Humphrey of Minnesota, a leading Democratic member, that it is the clear intent of the Soil Bank legislation to exclude disaster years and that Agriculture Department officials had agreed to follow this interpretation.

"When we were formulating the bill, the matter was discussed in the committee with the officials of the Department of Agriculture," Senator Aiken, chief spokesman for the Soil Bank plan, reported. "It is thoroughly understood that if a community suffers from drought or other disaster, and if it has a crop failure or almost a crop failure, full allowance will be made, and that year will not be counted in arriving at the average production over a period of years."

Daniel then withdrew his amendment, pointing out that a colloquy with Senator Ellender, Aiken, and Humphrey would be printed in the Congressional Record and would accomplish the same purpose in clarifying the matter.

NEWS FLASH — BURGESS PHARMACY GOING BROKE!

First it was Janella Burgess, who started things off by breaking a bone in her foot; then it was her husband, Roy, who only a couple weeks ago broke his right wrist, and the latest is Reba Bolton who's been doing the breaking.

A week or so ago Reba tripped over an iron pipe which fell on her foot and Saturday the pain became quite severe so she paid a visit to the local clinic. After X-rays were checked, Dr. Black found a bone was broken and he applied a cast to her foot equipped with a heel.

Reba experienced a lot of pain with the injury that evening and the following day. By Tuesday she was reported as "feeling much better" and able to be on her feet enough to go back to work on Wednesday.

Rayburn's planning on going fishing so Lina Van Meter feels she's doomed to be the next in line.

B. L. CHANDLERS RETURN HOME AFTER VISIT HERE

Mr and Mrs Ben Chandler left Tuesday morning for their home at Madill, Okla. after spending the past several days visiting relatives and friends here and in Amarillo. They have sold their interest in the fishing camp on Lake Texome to Ross Conley of Chandler, Oklahoma. Mr and Mrs Chandler still have their lots and cabins and plan to remain there where Ben hopes to be able to spend more time fishing.
