

If a man say, I love God and hateth his brother, he is a liar; for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen? And this commandment we have from Him, That he who loveth God love his brother also.—(1 John 4:20,21.)

Rugged Scenery at Uranium Find

This steep canyon on the Saul Ranch, 5 miles west of Quitaque in the rough Caprock breaks country, is the scene of what is believed to be one of the richest uranium discoveries in Texas. Clyde Saul looks over the steep canyon, the walls of which bear considerable outcroppings, in the above photo, while he and his brother, Doyle Saul, right, inspect a depression in the canyon wall in the lower photo. Note the dark streaks just above Doyle's head and also the wider dark streak in the lower portion of the photo. These streaks are rich uranium ore veins.

Bernice Puckett Bride Wednesday Of Lonnie Thurman

Miss Bernice Puckett of Gainesville, Texas became the bride of Lonnie R. Thurman, also of Gainesville, last Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. The ceremony was held in the parsonage home of Rev. Phillip W. Walker, 426 West McGee street, Sherman district superintendent of the Sherman district of the Methodist church.

The popular couple will be at home at 1302 Truelove street, Gainesville, after a short wedding trip.

The bride is Cooke County's Home Demonstration agent and has been quite active in civic affairs. She is the daughter of Mrs. E. A. Puckett and the late Mr. Puckett, and the sister of Bill Woods of Quitaque.

Mr. Thurman is employed at W. D. Hurley Motor Company in Gainesville.

ATTENDED BROTHERHOOD MEETING AT FLOYDADA

A District Brotherhood meeting was held at the Baptist Youth Camp in Floydada Tuesday during an all day and evening session, with dinner and supper served on the camp grounds. Approximately 1,000 men were in attendance for the occasion.

Dick O'Brien of Big Springs, Texas was the main speaker. His messages were entitled "What Grace Has Done For Man" and "What Grace Will Do For Man."

Those attending from Quitaque were Charles Gowin, Glenn Ramsey, Lynn Rhoderick, Bro. Claude Withrow and his son-in-law, Sam McAllister of Archer City.

Baptist Youth Group Enjoyed A Picnic

Mr. and Mrs. O. V. Johnson were hosts to a group of Baptist Training Union students Tuesday evening when they gathered on the banks of Quitaque Creek for a picnic and wiener roast.

Youngsters who attended the outing were Glenda Juan Hamner, Rhonda Harmon, Lou Nell Burgess, Brenda Gilbert, Mary Ann Lucero, Yvonne Wise, Sondra Browning, Adell Grundy, Janel Woods, Johnny King, Ray Don King, Lucas Lucero, Mike Lucero, Melvin Cobb and James Farley.

In addition to the hot dogs, the group enjoyed cold watermelon, pop and cookies for refreshments.

CORRECTION—

We stand corrected on two different accounts of items published several weeks ago. It was Mr. O. E. Hutcheson instead of Jack who brought in the first cotton sample that was displayed at the bank.

Mrs. C. Redding informed us Wednesday that we received an inaccurate report on the total of contributions the community raised for the Redding family. The correct amount came to $732.50 which was far from the $1,000 report the press received. Our apologies are extended.

Panther's Schedule For Coming Football Season

Light Showers Fell Early Wed. Morning

A slight trace of rain fell over the Quitaque area early Wednesday morning with several of the farmers reporting about an inch of moisture. Although it lasted for only a couple of hours and didn't amount to as much as is needed, it did prove that rain was still around. Many of the crops could use additional moisture to prevent the feed from burning, although the majority of it still looks good, much better than it has for several years. Clouds overhead still look promising so we'll wait and hope.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Gram and family from Pampa visited Mr. and Mrs. Pierce White and Mrs. Pearl Allen over the weekend.

A GIRL PHARMACEUTIST?

Mr. and Mrs. Rayburn Burgess are the proud parents of a new daughter born Thursday, August 18th at the hospital in Plainview. The little Miss weighed 6 lb. 8 oz. upon arrival and she has been named Lynda Ray.

Mrs. Burgess and the little one returned home Monday and are reported to be getting along fine.

R. J. Harmon, manager of the Panhandle Compress at Quitaque received an approval recently to build two additional warehouse buildings in the very near future. The request for more warehouse space has been under consideration for several months, however insurance officials in Austin had not released an O. K. on the order until the present time.

The two structures, each of a 5,000 bale capacity, or a total of 10,000 bales, will be located to the north of the present 1,000 bale warehouse building. Under past and present conditions the need for extra storage has been a dire necessity for quite a period of time.

"Construction work will begin as soon as the materials arrive," Harmon stated, and added "will be completed in time for housing the present cotton crop."

O. E. S. Gave Picnic Honoring the Masons

Members of the Quitaque Eastern Star Chapter, and their families gathered at the City Park in Quitaque Monday evening for a picnic. The affair is held each year in honor of the Masons and their families. Approximately 75 persons were present Monday evening. The menu consisted of fried chicken, beans, salad, cake, ice cream and bottled drinks.

Briscoe Co. Red Cross Needs Total Of $90

The Briscoe County Red Cross issued a plea this week for donations to aid the disaster stricken eastern coastal states that suffered severe hurricane damages last week. The estimated number of families who will register with the Red Cross for rehabilitation assistance exceed 10,000 and continue to mount. This will require funds in excess of eight million dollars and the local county chapter has been notified that they are assigned a rock bottom quota of $90.00. Efforts are being made to raise this amount between now and September 7th. Your financial support is needed, and also give a prayer for those whose lives were lost, leaving many without their loved ones. Give today.

Quitaque's property owners have made it possible for the city to begin work on paving from 8 to 10 blocks of streets. Over $8,200 has been pledged and in checks for the actual paving. Local citizens continue to show lots of interest towards the project and many are being added to the list as time goes by.

Plans are being made to complete the following streets for paving: those running by the Baptist, Methodist and Church of Christ Churches, north from Blenkinship's to Clayton Hams, then west to Bert Grundy's; from the School House east to the pavement; Sid Bogal block west, Joe Bedwell block west and the hospital block.

Logan Construction Company has been contracted to do the paving for a cost of $1.36 1/2 per running foot, which is considerably less than earlier estimated. The company plans to use a base material of crushed caliche, which is the same that is being used on the new highway construction west of the city. Anyone wishing to pave private driveways may do so by contacting the Logan contractor and he will make the necessary arrangements.

Mr. O. V. Johnson of the Texas Highway Department office in Quitaque is overseeing the paving project for the city.

Family Project: Time To Freeze Fresh Fruit For Those Winter Months

PEACHY DANDY: The whole family gets in the act when Grandma prepares to freeze orchard fresh peaches. Mother has briefly scalded another batch of ripe peaches and passes them on to Grandma who slices them and quickly puts them into a container of A*C*M-prepared sugar syrup. Wide-eyed Junior watches with visions of the succulent desserts he will be able to enjoy on those cold winter nights ahead. As Grandma always treats her peaches with an ascorbic citric mixture like A*C*M. She knows that such an expensive preparation prevents browning and off-taste before and during freezing and that it will also afford this double protection during thawing. She knows also that it costs only a penny per pound to freeze the fruit of her choosing and that a 4 1/2 oz. bottle will protect 65 lbs. of fruit. A*C*M, obtainable at drug stores and locker plants, is made by Chas. Pfizer & Co., Inc., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Chicken Dinner in Foil

Each individual serving of Chicken 'n Rice is cooked and then served in its own silvery serving dish. After browning in hot fat, pieces of chicken are sealed in an aluminum foil packet along with browned onions, mushrooms and tender cooked white rice. For a real easy meal, assemble the packets early in the day and store them in the refrigerator. An hour before meal time, place them in a hot oven to bake to a succulent goodness.

CHICKEN DINNER IN FOIL
Tomato and Lettuce Salad
Garlic-Paprika French Bread
Lemon Tarts

INGREDIENTS:
2 cups water
1 cup uncooked white rice
1 teaspoon salt
Fat for frying chicken
1 frying chicken, cut into serving pieces
About 12 small mushrooms
12 small white uncooked onions
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon black pepper
Top milk or cream

METHOD: Put water, rice and salt in a 2-quart saucepan. Bring to a vigorous boil. Turn the heat as low as possible. Cover with a lid and leave over this low heat 14 minutes. While the rice is cooking, brown chicken in the fat. In the same skillet, lightly brown the onions and mushrooms.

From a 12 inch roll of aluminum foil, tear off pieces 16 inches long (one for each person to be served.) In the center of each piece of aluminum foil arrange the chicken, rice, mushrooms and onions. Sprinkle with the salt and pepper. Pour 3 tablespoons of top milk or cream over each arrangement of rice and chicken. Bring the edges of the aluminum foil together and seal with a double fold over the top and the sides. Place these packets on a cookie sheet or other pan and bake in a 425°F. oven for 1 hour.

Open aluminum packets, turn edges back and serve. The delicious rice and chicken dinner can be eaten right out of its own aluminum foil nest.

This is a perfect party dish since it can stay in the oven as long as 2 hours, if the heat is reduced to 250°F. after the first hour. This dish can also be made in the morning and put in the oven at meal time.

This recipe makes 4 to 6 servings.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS —

Q—I understand that if I apply for disability compensation within a year from my discharge and am found eligible, the payments can be made retroactive to the date following my discharge. What happens if that one-year deadline falls on a Saturday, Sunday or Holiday?

A—If it falls on Saturday, Sunday or a holiday, your one-year deadline will be extended to cover the next regular working day.

Q—I am going to school under the Korean GI Bill. Would I also be entitled to a GI loan to buy a house?

A—You would be entitled to a GI loan, even though you are in school under the Korean GI Bill, provided your lender will not prohibit simultaneous use of both benefits.

Q—If I enroll in a correspondence course under the Korean GI Bill before my starting cut-off date, will I be permitted to switch to classroom training in the same field, after that date has passed?

A—No. A correspondence course is considered a program of training within itself. A change from correspondence training to classroom training would be considered a change of program, regardless of the subject of the course. Change of program generally are not permitted after a veteran's starting cut-off date has passed.

Q—I want to change the beneficiaries of my GI Insurance policy. Must I inform the present beneficiaries of my action?

A—No. You have the right to change beneficiaries at any time, without their consent or knowledge.

Q—I have made arrangements for my GI insurance payments to be paid to my beneficiary in a lump sum. In case she doesn't want a lump sum, does she have the right to change the method of payment?

A—Yes. Under your lump sum designation, your beneficiary may elect to receive GI insurance under any of the installment plans available.

Q—I am taking a correspondence course under the Korean GI Bill. What does VA consider as the official beginning and ending dates of my course?

A—The beginning date is the date the school supplies you with your first lesson. The ending date is the date the school services your final lesson.

Q—I am receiving disability compensation payments, and according to a statement by my physician, my condition has become worse. Would that statement alone qualify me for increased payments?

A—The evidence provided by your physician must be verified by an official VA physical examination. If VA finds that your compensation increase may be condition has become worse, the made effective as of the date VA received the evidence from your physician.

Q—I am planning to take flight training under the Korean GI Bill. At what rate will I use up my GI training entitlement?

A—Your entitlement will be used up at the rate of one day for each $1.25 paid to you as a GI training allowance.

SEASON FOR FAIRS AT HAND IN TEXAS

In many a city and town of Texas today, community leaders are making plans for an important annual event which many folks have been eagerly looking forward to all year. During the next several months it will be fair-time throughout Texas—with county and regional fairs and festivals taking place in every section of the state, the culminating event being the State Fair of Texas in Dallas, October 7-23.

Texas possibly has a bigger percentage of large, widely patronized fairs than any other state. Several of Texas' big regional fairs attract more visitors and have more impressive fairgrounds than state fairs in some other sections of the nation.

The State Fair of Texas is, of course, the largest annual fair in the United States in terms of attendance, with over 2 1/2 million visitors from all parts of America, and a magnificent fairgrounds with facilities valued at $35 million.

As with most fairs the country over, Texas events carry a heavy emphasis on livestock and agriculture. Entertainment naturally covers a wide range, from carnival sideshows, rodeos, folk festivals to the Broadway musical comedy "Pajama Game" which will be presented at the State Fair. Competition in making jams and jellies, succulent cakes and pies and other examples of traditional homemaking skills still occupies a big place in the program of most Texas fairs.

Fairs in Texas date back over 100 years. The first fair to be held in the state may well have been one in Corpus Christi in 1852, which featured bullfights, a circus, cockfights and fireworks. During the same decade Dallas County became the first county in the state to organize a fair. The State Fair was founded in 1886.

A good fair regardless of size can be a valuable asset to its community, in the opinion of James H. Stewart, general manager of the State Fair and vice president of the International Association of Fairs and Expositions.

"In addition to providing wholesome and worthwhile recreation and relaxation, fairs serve to stimulate pride in the achievements of the individual, his group and his region," Mr. Stewart said. "They are a stimulus to trade and a unifying medium."

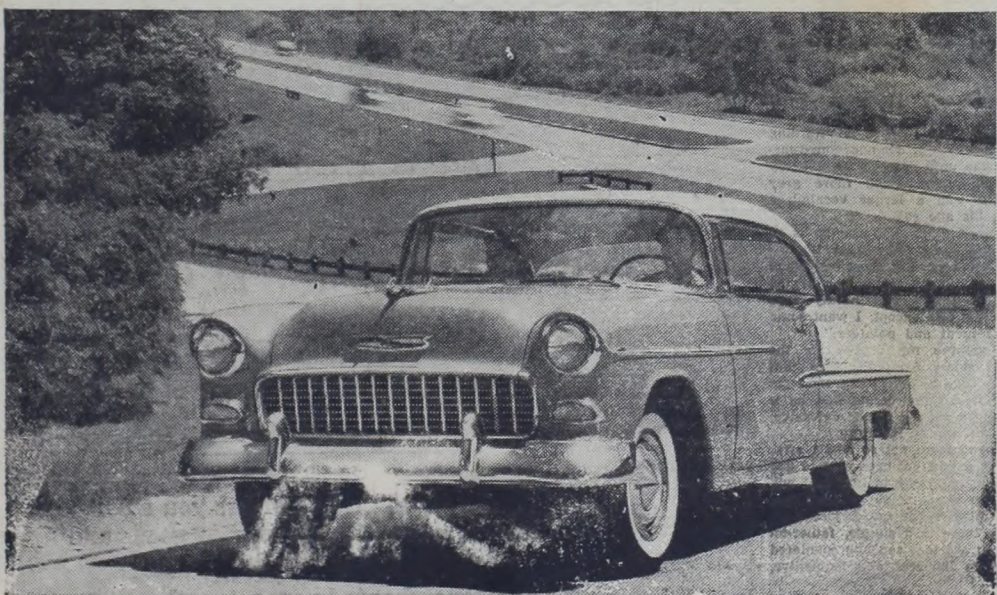

"The various fairs, festivals and livestock shows in Texas have one important thing in common—they are all working to improve our agriculture and livestock industry, to better living conditions generally and to build up our state."

Texas cities which will hold fairs, festivals or similar events during August, September and October—the traditional fair season in Texas—include the following:

Abilene, Alice, Amarillo, Angleton, Baytown, Beaumont, Big Spring, Blanco, Boerne, Bowie, Brenham, Carthage, Center, Centerville, Cleburne, Col Springs, Corsicana, Crockett, Dalhart, Dallas, Denton, Dublin, Edna, Emory, Fairfield, Floresville, Floydada, Fredericksburg, Gainesville, George West, Georgetown, Gilmer, Goliad, Gorman, Haskell, Hempstead, Henderson, Huntsville, Iowa Park, Johnson City, Junction, Kaufman.

La Grange, Levelland, Liberty, Lipscomb, Littlefield, Livingston, Longview, Lubbock, Marshall, McKinney, Mesquite, Mexia, Midland, Nacogdoches, Navasota, New Braunfels, Palestine, Pampa, Paris, Pasadena, Pecos, Perryton, Plainview, Richardson, Roby, Rosenberg, San Angelo, Seguin, Seminole, Stanton, Taboka, Temple, Texarkana, Trinity, Tulla, Tyler, Waco, Wharton, Wheeler.

To the pioneering families who came and settled the wild country known as Quitaque, and to their descendants from whom most of this information came. I dedicate this theme.

QUITAQUE AND QUITAQUE VALLEY

to heat branding irons. A ranch hand once crowded into the furnace and lit a cigarette from the coals. When the cattle saw the glow, they stampeded, and it took several days to round them up again. The F. Ranch had several sections fenced by wire south of the present W. W. Merrell home where they kept their heifers until they became old enough to breed. (34)

In 1884 the headquarters were moved to their present location at the intersection of the Quitaque and Linguish Rivers, eight miles south of Quitaque. The present F. Ranch house was completed in 1882. The lumber came from Dodge City, Kansas. Hand forged nails were used to put the house together. The original rafters and window sills are still in use today. The same corals are in their exact location as when built. The well that is in use today was dug in 1878 (35) The first Post Office in the Quitaque region was at the F. Ranch in 1884 or 1885 (36) The Post Office was known as Quitaque, but some of the mail was simply addressed to the F. Ranch (27)

The mail first began to arrive at the ranch headquarters from Clarendon (38) Later it came from Della Plains two times weekly (39) Then next the mail was brought from Estelline in tow sacks, and dumped into a coffee box. Everybody came around and picked out their own mail (40) The Post Office was moved from the F. Ranch to Jago's Store in Quitaque proper around 1890-1892 (41) The only entertainment that these early pioneers had was dances. The F. Ranch had several of the all-night dances in the old days. "John W. Gates, a traveling hardware salesman, introduced that upon-changing invention into Texas. Next came a long the cotton farmer with his planting

SOME of the Washington politicians, and indeed, the conservative columnists, are attempting to read into the recent elections in Britain in which the Conservative or Tory party won a sweeping victory, as a bitter blow to liberalism in politics, and a trend toward old-fashioned stand-patism.

These politicians, applying the British election returns to the United States, profess to interpret them as a boost for conservative Republicans and a blow at liberal Democratic policies. Or if the shoe is on the other foot, an impending boost for conservative Democrats and a defeat for the liberal element in the Republican party.

However if a person takes the trouble to read some of the campaign promises and campaign boasts of the so-called Conservative party in Britain, the realization will dawn upon him that policies of the British conservative government are more liberal than the wildest dreams of any New Deal Democrat, or of the fondest hopes of any of the so-called liberal Republicans. Here are some of the campaign boasts and slogans in the British election which resulted in a landslide vote for the Tories over the British labor party!

"Our party's pledge to build 300,000 houses a year was derided by our opponents as impossible to fulfill. . . . In fact, almost 350,000 were built last year and the Conservative government has already provided a million new homes." This refers to public low-rent housing. Compare these figures on public housing to the 35,000 asked by the Eisenhower administration and who changed God's landscape from a garden of buttafo grass & beautiful flowers into a broom weed patch. Ranchers and farmers fenced in the land and it eventually turned up its toes to dirt of erosion and choking by sunflowers weeds and wild squashes.

The first settlers came to the Quitaque country in the late 1880 and the 1890's. Among the first people in the territory were the Greggs, Armstrongs, Honeas, Woods, Stroups, Merrells, Dobbs, Hughes, Russells, Hawkins, Jago Potters, Bass, and Tibbetts, among others. The first house built above the ground north of the Quitaque river was owned by the Honeas. The lumber for this house was hauled by wagons from 100,000 asked by the Democrats in the Congress.

The conservatives boasted of a record number of new schools built and of teachers recruited; it increased all social service benefits in its first year in office and again raised pensions and benefits. As a part of "our policy of maintaining full employment, we aim to attract the widest variety of new industrial enterprise". . . . "We intend to increase capital investment in new pits and major construction schemes to four times what it was when we took over in 1951"—this reference was to the government-owned coal mines.

Now hear this—"By support prices, deficiency payments and other means, we shall uphold the principle of the 1947 Agricultural act . . . three out of every four farm cottages will be linked to a main electricity supply . . . we have doubled the amount paid annually in grants for rural water supplies and sewerage; this program will be kept up and further funds made available."

Does this sound like conservative standpatism as we know it in the United States? "Our aim is to ensure that every family has a decent home to live in."

This indicates that the Conservative party in England is willing to go the Socialist Labor party one better and give the British people what they want. There is no indication that the Tory party victory was because of a trend toward conservatism, rather that the victory was because of the party's trend toward liberalism.

It later burned, and lumber had to be transported from Clarendon to build a new one. Scattered herds of buffalo were in the country when the first settlers came and broke out land for farming. These pioneers settled on alternate sections of school and Texas Pacific railroad land. The settlers stayed among the forty foot high mesquites that were as big as a mans body at Cottonwood Springs until their dugouts could be built.

"These early Quitaque people had to haul their supplies from Estelline. They made one trip in the fall and one in the spring. Jago's Store had a few groceries but didn't have a large enough stock to supply the settlers with their needs.

In 1891 a man by the name of Dobbs settled at Quitaque and planted some cotton. He got discouraged and sold his place to J. Henry Hughes. The good crop of cotton was never gathered, but some of the children picked some and took it home for their mother.

to pad quilts with. Along in the middle nineties, cotton was raised and carried to Childress to be ginned. Four or five different farmers would make a wagon train there and back. While there they would stock up on the winters' supply of groceries.

The first store in Quitaque was run by Jose' Piedad Tafaya. He operated a trading post at the site from 1865 to 1867 to trade his goods and ammunition to the Indians for spotted cattle. South of Quitaque on the Linguish River negotiations between the peneside Anglo-Americans, Mexican Indians, and various Indian tribes were common. Hence the name came to be known as Las Tanguas or "The Valley of Many Tongues".

In the late eighties R. A. Jago established a store, the first of a long series to follow. The store was located on the south end of the present football field. In 1890 the location became a stage stop. The post office was moved from the F. Ranch about 1891 to the Jago Store. Most of the mail at that time was coming from Estelline. The Jago Brothers were the mail carriers. They went to Estelline in a buggy and returned the next day. After reaching Quitaque they would go onto Silverton.

After the first stores were established, they were handed down from one person to another. R. A. Jago sold to M. C. Potter who sold to Frank Jerdis. In 1902 Oscar Bass had a blacksmith shop which he bought from Lannie Woods. By 1903 the population was sixty-three and there were several stores in the village. The first gin was established in 1905 and located where the old ice plant was, east of the present power plant. In 1907 W. S. Grege bought the Wilson Dry Goods store. G. Tunnell owned a grocery and drug store. In 1909 John W. Ewing established a hardware store. C. R. McCollum of Lockney owned a store which was bought by A. L. Patterson in 1912.

WHEN the current crisis around my house finally resolves itself one way or another, there is one work that I intend to outlaw forever more.

It's a simple word, probably well intended, and no doubt serving a useful purpose from time to time. But I think it is retarding the progress of our near-four-year-old who until recently gave every indication of having more grey matter and a larger vocabulary than his age called for.

I can't figure out why he is so fond of this word, unless it's because the word is short and quick and easy to say. But he has latched onto it firmly and hardly says anything else except, I want some more meat and potatoes."

I suppose my dislike for the word stems from the idea that every time he tosses it at me I get the distinct impression that he is trying to put me on the defensive, or make me an ignoramus.

Maybe I am, not so smart after all. I haven't yet been able to find something to say to him that will cut the word off so he can't toss it right back at me. I just don't think there is a simple, father-to-son phrase that can't be countered with an innocent and inquisitive, "WHY?"

His mother says its just a "stage" he's going through. I guess so, but if you don't think it's hard on dear ole dad, listen in on this one-sided conversation:

"Son, come in and wash your face and hands."

"Because they're dirty."

"Because you've been playing in the mud."

"I guess you just like to play in the mud."

"Because you're a little boy, and little boys . . ."

"You're a little boy because well because . . ."

RECIPE OF THE WEEK Ginger Apple Crisp (Serves 4)

6 tart apples
Juice and grated rind of 1 lemon
1/4 cup of water
1/2 cup brown sugar
4 ounces gingersnaps, crushed
1 cup chopped almonds
1/4 cup softened butter
Wash and quarter apples. Remove cores and slice, but do not peel. Place in buttered baking dish, sprinkle with lemon juice and rind. Mix sugar, gingersnap crumbs, almonds and butter. Place on top of apple slices. Bake in a moderate (350°F) oven for 30 minutes or until apples are tender.

chilled juice in the living room before dinner begins.

Add a pinch of rosemary to French dressing which is to be served with fruit salads, but use curry powder in the French dressing which is to be served with vegetables for that extra flavor.

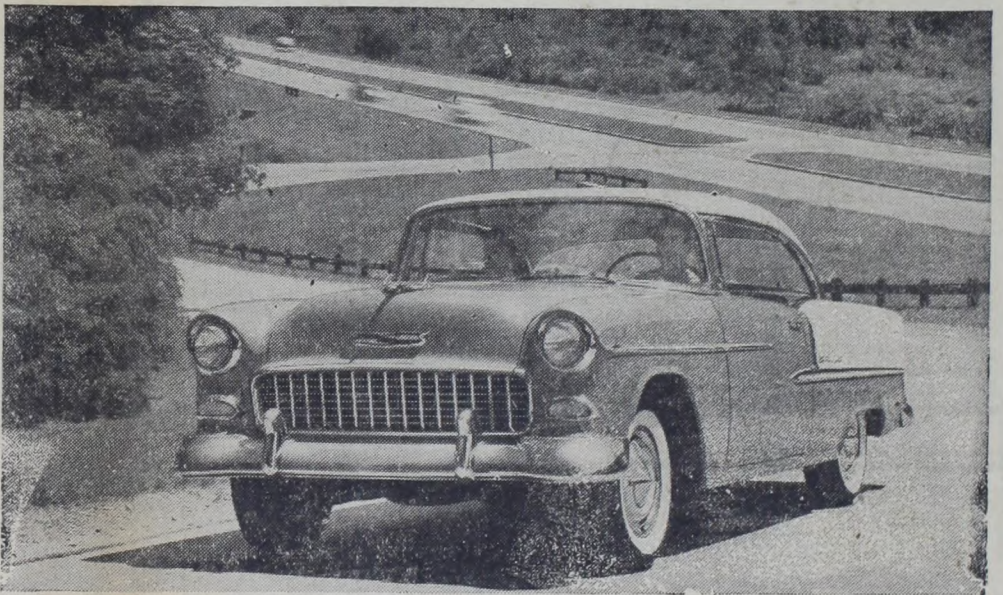

Tie these herbs in a cheesecloth bag to put in with fish that's steamed: chervil, tarragon and marjoram or summer savory. Discard the cheesecloth herb bag after cooking, but you'll have wonderful flavor for the fish.

Colored sugar makes a pretty decoration for simple sugar cookies. Add a drop or two of liquid food coloring to granulated sugar, rub with fingers to spread the coloring, then sprinkle on the cookies before baking.

THAT MID-JULY RAIN —

Just about "made" it for a good many Briscoe County crops. Cotton, especially, will have a tap root that will be protection against any dry weather that may come along. One could almost say, for sure, that the frost date is now the only question mark on cotton production this fall. Early frost, little cotton on many acres; late frost, lots of cotton on many acres. Furthermore, the production of forage feeds is going to be equal, almost if not quite, to that fabulous year of 1949. Of course, there's the insects, but for the purposes of this squib they can be ignored.

MOST HOPEFUL SIGN

In the community's affairs is that a considerable number of people are not just looking at situations that need attention & then walking off to "let George do it". Not only city officials, but city employes, members of civic committees and individuals, keep grinding away at the problems as they arise. It would be wonderful if all hands would become enthusiastic and pitch in, with good words if nothing else, and lay hold of things. Any community, like any individual, can do anything within the orbit of its scope, that it may lay its hand to. Roads, streets, school, parks, community centers, sanitation, drainage, trade and commerce—all the things. Only question is the percentage of the whole community that works at it.

From the Wildwood Independent Record, Wildwood, N.J.: The case for freeing natural gas producers from federal controls recently imposed by a U.S. Supreme Court interpretation of the Natural Gas Act of 1938 is overwhelming.

There is a great and basic difference between gas production, and gas distribution to the ultimate consumer. Each local gas distributing company is a public utility with an exclusive franchise in its territory. Therefore it is regulated as to rates and other matters by local regulatory bodies. The pipeline companies operating in interstate commerce are similarly regulated by the federal government. No one is seeking to change this.

But there are no exclusive franchise in finding gas. More than 8,000 independent producers compete vigorously to find it and then to sell it. No single company produces as much as five per cent of the supply. And the risks are heavy, for the majority of wildcat wells turn out dry and worthless.

So far as consumers are concerned, between 1945 and mid-1954 the costs of household gas rose, on a nation-wide average, by only 12 per cent, as contrasted with a jump of nearly 50 per cent in the cost of living as a whole. And producers get an average of but 10 per cent of the gas bills the householders pay. If they got exactly nothing for their gas, household consumers would save less than two cents a day.

Finally, continued federal regulation of gas at the wellhead would discourage producers, and result in less searching and wildcatting—which means we ultimately would have less gas and more costly gas.

From the Breeze and Saturday Evening News, Berlin, N. J.: Critics of the President's declaration to sit in on the Big Power meetings at the top level will find it hard to find supporters, especially when it's so much less dangerous to toss words over a conference table than bombs over a battlefield. No one ever got killed by a split infinitive but a split atom could be tragic. And an overdose of verbs and adjectives is far less dangerous than the fall-out of the atom bomb. It could be we could be talked to death by the cold-war opponents but even that would be less painful than stopping a bullet. And you never paid a tax on words.

From the Eufala Tribune, Eufala, Alabama: It doesn't take a financial wizard to suggest that this is a good time to pay debts and hold on to the balance of your money, if you have any left.

A WORD TO THE WISE

anna. The crops were wonderful, and I never saw so much corn in my life. It is going to be a record breaker. Too bad we couldn't eat it then. We had more trouble trying to find a place to eat from Zanesville, Ohio, west. Some of you enterprising restaurateurs look that over. They sure need some good eating places all along Highway 40 clear into St. Louis. Part of the road through Ohio is divided into 4 lanes, and most of it through Indiana is the same. The highway goes right through the center of the main cities. I have never been able to understand why highways in the Midwest and East all go right through the towns. While out in this country where the traffic isn't nearly so heavy, millions of dollars are spent to by-pass every little community. Seems rather foolish to cut our towns out completely.

We spent the night about 30 miles east of Indianapolis in an excellent motel. When we got settled, the smallest boy & I decided to drive to the small town & get a few snacks for the children while we were waiting for supper. It was about five miles. As we were driving along, the boy said to me, "Daddy, do they raise camels in Indiana." I said, "Well, I wouldn't think so". He said, "Well, there's some out in that field". I looked up and sure enough four big camels were out in a road side pasture, eating hay. My first thought was that some farmer had really gone into the diversified field in earnest. It turned out, however, that the animals were circus camels. So, far as I now know, Indiana doesn't yet raise this type of animal.

The next night we spent in Rolla, Missouri, which is a town that has been cut completely off the highway. If you are going to spend the night there, you must intend to, nothing accidental about it. The roads through Illinois were not good, but they got much better in Missouri until we neared Oklahoma. The roads narrowed down and traffic was heavy, but they are working on them and will have them in good shape before long. Tulsa was our stop, and we found it growing like most of our West Texas towns. We used the Turner Turnpike to Oklahoma City, then Highway 66 to Elk City where we turned across through Sweetwater and Wheeler. These roads were all in excellent shape. You can sure tell Texas highways when you hit them. They are all in fine shape.

The children were sure glad to get home. They haven't stopped a minute and probably won't until it is time to go back to school. The country and the folks look mighty good to all of us.

THE AMERICAN WAY

Three's A Crowd!

Supporting... Your Town!

Merchants who do not advertise are invited to read the following from the American Bankers Magazine, as it might give you a new slant on business, your own business, as well as the matter of building your town.

"No business man in any town should allow a newspaper published in his town to go without his name and business being mentioned somewhere in its columns. This does not mean you should have a whole, half or even a quarter page ad in each issue of the paper, but your name and business should be mentioned, if you do not use more than a two-line space.

"A stranger picking up a newspaper should be able to tell what business is represented in a town by looking at the paper. This is the best possible town advertising. The man who does not advertise his business does injustice to himself and the town. The man who insists on sharing the business that comes to town, but refuses to advertise his own, is not a valuable addition to any town. The life of a town depends on the live, wide-awake and liberal advertising business man."

News Letters

From Congressman WALTER ROGERS

COMING HOME —

The Rogers family will be headed for the Panhandle of Texas by the time you get this letter and, needless to say, very happy about it.

ACROSS AMERICA —

The Rogers family really travelled across America when we came home. You could almost call it an all-American trip, all things considered. Our plans were all set to leave at 8 a. m. and we left on schedule at 12 noon. We headed northwest through Maryland and into Pennsylvania then turned due west into Ohio. Everything went fine until we reached Washington, Pennsylvania, and found out all of the motels were full, that is all but one, which was the last one in town. I don't know how we do it, but we have never had to sleep in the ditch yet. Washington, Pennsylvania, is an old town. Some of the people out here in our country think we have some narrow streets. Well, to really appreciate ours, all you need to do is to drive around one of the old Eastern towns. Many of the streets are paved with cobble stones, and it is just like riding on a corduroy highway -- shakes your teeth out. You can also appreciate natural gas when you see the soot covered buildings. They were cleaning the statue on top of the court house at Washington, Pennsylvania, and it was a brilliant gold sitting atop what looked like a pile of coal the rest of the court house was so black.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

MARKET NEWS LINGO CAN BE VERY HELPFUL

College Station. — The complicated lingo used in daily livestock marketing reports can vastly increase the efficiency of a farmer's operation if it's interpreted correctly, says John G. McHaney, Extension agricultural economist.

Farmers are faced with such problems as what to produce and how much. When this should be sold, and where? Market news help them decide. The U. S. Department of Agriculture spends more than $10,000,000 annually to obtain market news for general public use, McHaney adds.

Livestock producers who have been in the business long enough can remember when the only source of market information was the incomplete and conflicting reports of trade groups.

Today market news is accurate, timely and usable.

Here are the interpretations of market terms:

- "Market stronger" means prices are advancing.
- "Market firm" means prices are holding or are a shade higher.
- "Market steady" means no immediate change.
- "Market dull" means an inactive market.
- "Market weaker" means price declines are general.
- "Demand slow" means buyers are just looking.
- "Demand good" means buyers have confidence in present prices.
- "Supplies light" means the market could use more.
- "Supplies heavy" means the market is over-supplied and prices are weakening.

GRANDMA GETS THE CHEESE

By Rob E. Mack

WHAT-TO-DO-WITH-GRANDMA was becoming a major problem in the homes of Lu Adams and her close friend, Cora Lane. For several years, the two women had sympathized with each other on the trials and tribulations caused by their elderly in-laws.

"I just can't take any more!" wailed Lu, as they drove home from the Ladies' Guild meeting. "Since Gran came to live with us, she's made the whole family a nervous wreck! If only she wouldn't try to help with the housework and cooking. Yesterday, she broke another cup from my good set and put a jinx on the vacuum cleaner."

"I know—" sighed Cora. "Mother Lane's been slowly driving me mad. If she scorches any more of our clothes, we'll have to adopt the brown triangle for a coat-of-arms."

"Do you suppose it would do any good," Lu said, "to take them both along next week, when we deliver baskets to the Home for the Aged? Just invite them to go along for the ride, and let them see what a lovely place the Home really is. If they like it . . . well, maybe we could arrange something after the holidays."

The day was bright and sunny. Cora and Lu tucked the two old ladies into the rear seat and headed for the turnpike. Gran and Mother Lane chattered about the scenery and their respective ailments. As the car turned into the broad driveway at Shadyhill Home for the Aged, Gran exclaimed: . . .

"My! This is a lovely place, isn't it, Mrs. Lane? Just look at those trees . . . must be beautiful here in the summer!" Mother Lane heartily agreed. Cora and Lu exchanged triumphant glances. Their little plot was working!

Mother Lane nodded agreeably as they inspected each floor, murmuring an occasional "My!" or "Hmm." Gran, on the other hand, was quite vociferous, much to Lu's amazement. The small parade was punctuated by cries of:

"Well, I declare! Such big, cheerful rooms!" and "What an attractive dining room!"

That evening, after dinner, the Adams family were gathered in the living-room, as usual. Lu had told her husband about Gran's favorable reaction to the Home, and they had agreed to discuss matters with her after the children went to bed. About ten o'clock, Lu put down her book and smiled at Gran, who was knitting contentedly in her favorite chair.

The old lady stopped knitting and peered gravely over her bifocals. "Lu," she said gently, "you needn't pretend any longer. I caught on right away, but don't worry—I know Mrs. Lane doesn't suspect a thing."

Lu's mouth dropped open. She looked frantically at Ken, who was quietly strangling behind the sports page.

"I figured," Gran said, "that Cora was taking her mother-in-law to Shadyhill to let her look around and sort of get acquainted with the place. So I did my best to sound enthusiastic and encourage the poor soul. Feel kind of sorry for her in a way, but of course, she is getting up in years—probably be much better off at the Home with people her own age. I'd be glad to go out and visit her now and then—maybe take a batch of my raisin cookies—Why, what's wrong, Lu? You look ill! Indigestion, again? Well, I'll go fix you a dose of bicarbonate . . ."

As Gran left the room, Ken lowered his paper and grinned broadly at Lu, who sat mopping her pink face. "I think," he drily remarked, "the mouse has just walked off with the cheese."

"Darn her!" giggled Lu. "She's kind of cute. I'd miss her if she left."

"Ditto," said Ken. "Oh, Mother!" he called. "Forget the bicarbonate—make it a round of root beer!"

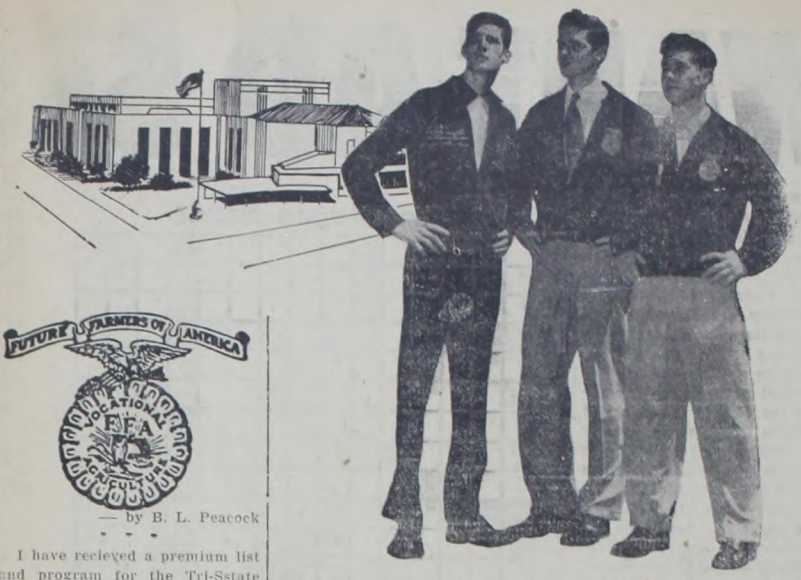

SILAGE FILLS THE BILL FOR LIVESTOCK RAISERS

College Station. — Next to pasture, silage is the cheapest source of succulent feed for livestock, says C. H. Bates, extension farm management specialist.

And it's filling the bill for many Texas producers.

"No other method of storing forage is as economical as the unlined trench type silo," says Bates. Recent studies indicate that such a silo of 200 ton capacity can be constructed & maintained for 93 cents for each ton

I have received a premium list and program for the Tri-State Fair at Amarillo which will take place on Sept. 19 thru 24. Again this year the Ag. Chapter will have an educational booth along with the other schools. The title will be "More Milage from Silage". Last year the chapter brought back a fourth place banner but it has hopes of a first place banner for this year.

— by B. L. Peacock

Silage, Bates continues, provides an excellent source of vitamins and minerals essential to maintenance and growth of livestock. Chances of loss from rodents, fire or weather is negligible and are other silage advantages.

It may be put up in seasons not suited to hay production. And it can be "self-fed," eliminating practically all labor costs in feeding.

Specialized equipment, however, is required for an efficient harvest and silo-filling operation. Field cutters for chopping the material from row or broadcast stands usually are available to farmers on a custom job basis at

I noticed in a letter from the Houston Fat Stock Show that they will again have a Junior Commercial Steer Show. The purpose of the show is to encourage more 4-H Club members and F. F. A. boys to participate in a practical beef production program. Greater use of home grown feeds is recommended in finishing

A sizable labor crew also is needed for harvest of silage, but Bates says many farmers work out this problem with a labor and equipment exchange agreement with neighbors.

ing beef steers to market grades in current greatest demand. Emphasis on economy in the feeding operation is not only recommended but is a prerequisite for entry in this show. This type of feeding is something that the boy can take home with him after he finishes school and put to practice. Something he can really use. I only wish that more of the stock shows would offer something along this line. . . . It has some good common sense to it.

From Doane Agricultural Digest I quote . . . hogs, uneven price with weak undertone. No over-all shortage of hogs from now on. Watch market quotations closely. Cattle, (feeders and stockers) October - November market will be down about 2c from present.

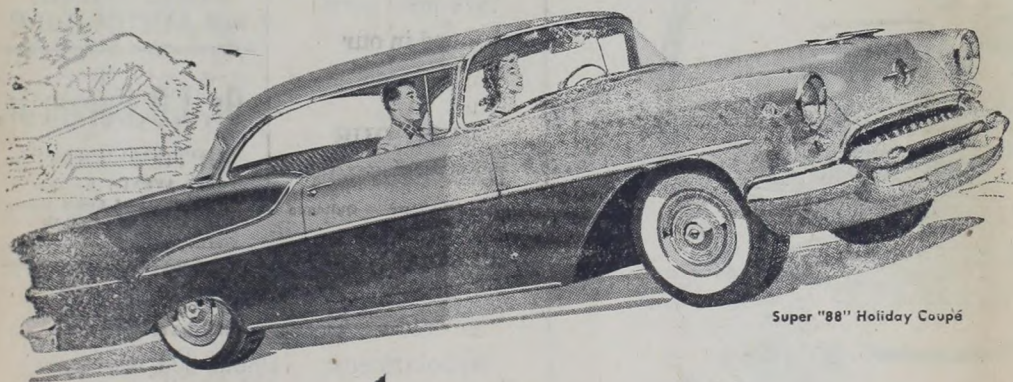

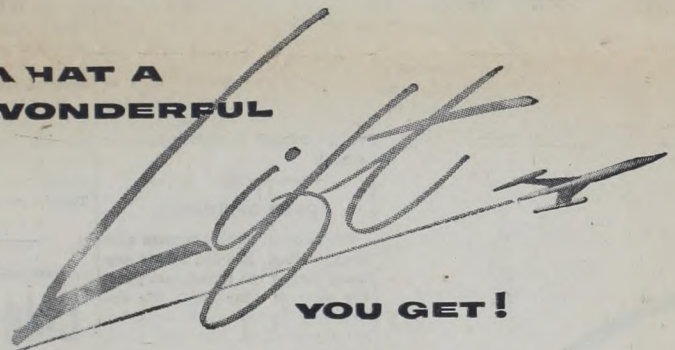

You can now check your sows at midnight or see what the commotion is in the hen house—with out rolling out of bed. You do it with closed circuit television. All you do is snap on the receiving set in your home — and what your snooping camera sees, you see. What next? ?

ATTENDED BALL GAME IN ABILENE SATURDAY NIGHT

Mr and Mrs Dick Taylor and son, James, and Earlette Grundy journeyed to Abilene last Friday and met their daughter, Barbara, and Tillman Bradley who had been visiting their aunts in San Angelo and Anson.

While in Anson they attended a baseball game in Abilene between the Abilene Bluesox and the Clovis Pioneers on Saturday night. Each person who attends the games has a chance to guess the exact number of people attending the game for a $75 prize. Barbara's guess of 2900 was the closest estimate submitted. There were 2903 people in attendance.

MOVED TO AMARILLO

Mr and Mrs Dee Dodson and family, formerly of Washington, D.C., moved recently to Amarillo where they plan to make their home.

REGULAR MEETING OF WMU WAS HELD MONDAY A.M.

The W.M.U. of the First Baptist Church in Quitaque met Monday morning at 9 o'clock for their regular business meeting, with six women present.

The president, Mrs Gilbert, led in a prayer. Mrs J. F. Stroup gave a very interesting devotional after she had read the 1st Psalm, and a portion of the 17th chapter of Jeremiah.

Mrs Gilbert read the minutes, in the absence of Mrs Gowin, and the financial statement for July was read and the report was adopted.

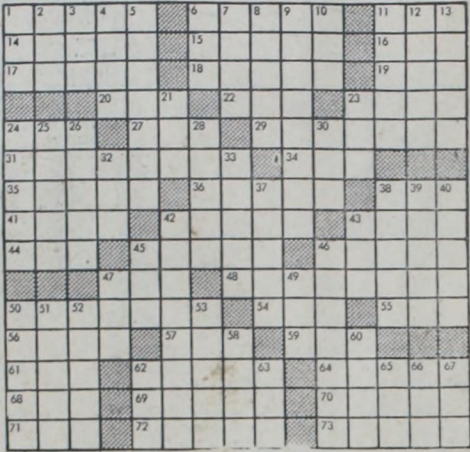

A letter of thanks from Beeville Home was read. The closing prayer was read by Mrs Ray Persons.

NEW SON ADDED TO FAMILY

Mr and Mrs Glen Cooper of Lockney have adopted a new son born August 16, 1955. He weighed 7 lb. 7 oz. and has been named Terry Rags.

The couple has two other children, ages 11 and 4. Mrs Cooper was the former Violet Purcell.
