Barbee - Mullin Vows Spoken Here Sunday

In the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Barbee at 4 p.m. Sunday, January 29th, Miss Neva Jean Barbee became the bride of Mr. Earl Dean Mullin. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Barbee of Quitaque. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Horace E. Mullin Jr. of Turkey, Texas.

Rev. Claude L. Withrow read the impressive ceremony as the couple stood under the arch of greenery and apple blossoms with baskets of white gladiolus, stock and fern with lemon leaves.

The bride chose a street-length wedding dress of white tulle. Her veil of shoulder length nylon illusion fell from a lovely beaded coronet halo. She wore a corsage of white carnations and carried a white Bible covered with a ruzette of white satin and lace. She carried out the tradition of a penny in her shoe; something borrowed was a pearl necklace of her mother's, and a blue garter for something blue.

Miss Patsy Barbee, sister of the bride, was maid-of-honor. She selected a navy blue two-piece dress with a white carnation corsage.

Harvey Don Mullin of Turkey, brother of the groom, served as best man.

GRANDMA VAUGHAN — 104

(By Mrs. W. R. Dora Scott)
"The trouble with you young folks," Grandma Vaughan tells her granddaughters, most of whom are in their 'fifties', "is you get lazy." Grandma who was 104 years old Monday, does not use a mechanical mixer to stir the sugar and butter, "or lard", for her cookie recipe, but tells her offspring to "stir that mix hard, 'till the sugar melts don't be a lazy mixer."

For the past ten years or more, Grandma Elanora Jane Vaughan of Silverton, has celebrated birthdays with a flourish. When she reached the century mark, back in 1952, she let the family have a really big party in the Silverton Baptist Church Fellowship Hall, but since then she has preferred to gather her descendants about her in the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. A. Stephens, five miles south of Silverton, with whom she lives.

At the last count the descendants - children, grand-children, great grand children and great, great grandchildren - had passed the 235 mark.

Grandma Vaughan sits calmly amidst the hullabaloo of the many small children and their parents who come each year to show their respect for the gallant old lady. She enjoys looking over the great quantities of food that is brought in to feed the family and friends who come on her birthday from California, Kansas, and other far places, as well as all over her native state of Texas. She admires the lovely flowers and cards and other remembrances that fill the rooms each year when Grandma's birthday rolls around.

Every year there is a birthday cake, which offers wonderful opportunity for the caterer. Sometimes it is a tiered arrangement glowing with candles, one year it was baked in the shape of a high open Bible. This year it was three separate cakes arranged to form "104".

Grandma's eyes are dimmed, and her hearing is not clear, but one has a feeling of awe in the presence of such sharp intelligence and sprightly wit that has extended through more than a century.

Grandma's touch is gentle as she lovingly fondles the youngest of her many offspring, and she shows keen interest in the affairs around her - an interest that has kept her mentally young. She hesitates to bore you with her memories of so many, many years, but if you ask her she will relate clearly, and always with (Continued on Back Page)

Poultry Outlook For 1956 Expected Good

ECONOMIST GIVES INFORMATION ON OUTLOOK FOR POULTRY IN 1956

The over-all demand for eggs and poultry is expected to remain good for 1956 but supplies of red meats which compete with poultry are expected to be high and prices lower, says John McHaney, economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

From the production standpoint, McHaney says 1956 should be another year of record or near-record production for eggs, broilers and turkeys. Intentions of turkey breeders, shown by an October USDA survey, indicated that about 13 percent more breeder hens would be kept nationally while Texas breeders indicated they would keep about 39 percent more hens than last year. If these intentions are carried out, says the economist, the 1956 turkey crop would exceed the 1954 record.

Generally, says McHaney, the price situation during the past year has been favorable. Net income farming, however, has continued to decline and farmers are looking for enterprises to bolster their returns. Poultry makes a natural choice for 1956, because of favorable recent experiences and lower feed prices.

Feed supplies are very large and presently both feed grain and vegetable proteins are costing less than a year ago. Chances are good, says McHaney, that poultry ratios will average a little lower in 1956. Other production costs aren't expected to change very much.

Prices for eggs through most of 1956 are likely to average slightly lower than in 1955. Broiler prices, because of more production and competition from other meats are also expected to average a little for the year. If the large turkey crop materializes for 1956, lower prices will be the result.

The inefficient poultry producer may find the going rough in 1956 for competition within the industry is keen. The secret of success is to produce a quality product in quantity and at a low per unit cost. Management thus becomes even more important, says the economist.

Open House To Be Held Sunday At Quitaque Hospital

Open-house will be held Sunday, February 5 from 2:00 p.m. until 5:00 p.m. at the hospital. This is our opportunity to meet Dr. C. H. Black, his wife, Adaline, and the entire hospital staff. Also you will be able to meet the new hospital board, and to see what we have in the hospital and what we have to do in the future to make our hospital one of which we may be proud. Punch, coffee and cookies will be served.

We are very fortunate to have a doctor who has chosen to work in our community and surrounding vicinity. We all know the misfortunes of our hospital since its erection. Let's put forth more effort than ever before to make ours a hospital to be proud of.

Dr. Black comes to us from Lubbock, is a native Texan and a very conscientious doctor of high calibre. Mrs. Black, a native of Wisconsin, is a lovely person who has had sufficient training as a nurse, in fact, she is a graduate nurse, to be her husband's most able assistant when needed. She will not be on duty constantly. Dr. and Mrs. Black have a 4 1/2 year old Susan who needs a home life just as our children need it.

Mrs. Christine Brummett will always be on hand to answer your call and to assist Dr. Black. Christine needs little introduction to many of you, but she will be on hand at open house to help out.

By the way, the Blacks have another daughter, Nancy Gall, who is a Freshman student at Northwestern University at Evanston, Illinois.

New equipment is being sought for the hospital, such as an operating table, cart, etc. We need these items badly, but just now won't you come and help us give Dr. Black and his family a Quitaque welcome?

Invitations are being sent from the mailing list but if you hear of this event from your neighbor or in any manner, you are invited to attend. We hope to see our friends from Flomot, Turkey, Silverton, or wherever you live in the vicinity when our open house starts this Sunday at 2:00 p.m.

C. Fisher Speaker For Soil Fertility Day 23rd

Charlie Fisher, Superintendent of the Spur Experiment Station of the Texas A. & M. System will be one of the speakers for the Soil Fertility Day to be held Thursday, February 23rd. Mr. Fisher is the 1954 winner of the Holzhille Award for outstanding service rendered to Texas Agriculture.

Fisher will appear to the dryland farmers of the County, as he will appear to the drif. He will speak on the methods that the Spur Station conserves water through the sump pan terrace system. The products of the Spur Station revolve primarily around the production of roughage and grazing crops and marketing it through livestock.

As of late the Experiment Station has been working with the new cattle feeding hormone stilbestrol. Mr. Fisher will nit on this topic.

The planning committee have just about made all the arrangements for the big day on February, the 23rd. Mr. Carmon Rhode of the arrangement committee has received consent to use the Palace Theater. The food committee composed of Shellie Tomlin, Ray Thompson, Hugh Nance and Bill Long, are making final plans for the big barbecue. The drawing committee of Edwin Crass and Scott Smith have several prizes lined up from the Silverton business men that will be given away at the three drawings during the day. Mr. Tomlin and Whittemore are serving on the finance committee.

Cotton Producers Urged To Use Acres

COTTON PRODUCERS URGED TO USE OR RETURN ACREAGE ALLOTMENTS

Texas cotton farmers can plant more acres of cotton in 1956 than was harvested in 1955 if they make full use of the State's allocated acreage.

The Texas Stabilization and conservation points out that the 1956 cotton acreage allotted to Texas producers is 7,410,393 acres. Final figures released by the U.S. Department of Agriculture on the 1955 cotton crop shows that 6,860,000 acres were harvested in the state.

All farms in the state eligible for a cotton allotment have been assigned an acreage for 1956 plantings. The State committee urges all producers who do not intend to plant their allotted acreage to contact the local ASC office and return to the county committee any cotton acreage not to be planted. It can then be reallocated to producers in the county who have asked for additional acres. A final date has been set in each county for turning in the acres which will not be planted. If the intentions not to plant are not known and the acreage not reallocated, the county loses the acreage and the farm gets no credit on its historical base. Acreage can be returned on both a temporary and permanent basis. A full explanation, says the state committee, can be obtained from the local county committee or from officials in the county ASC office.

Editor's Speak

FRUITS OF FREE ENTERPRISE

President Hess of the American Medical Association has something interesting to say about the Ford Foundation's half-billion dollar grant to educational institutions.

Some $99,000,000 of it will go to privately supported medical schools. This, Dr. Hess observes, will help these schools immeasurably. Then he adds, "More important is the source from which these funds are derived. They are the fruits of free enterprise and, vicariously, contributions of this magnitude from private sources give the pressure of government and help relieve demands for more and higher taxes. This Ford Foundation endowment money not only helps to improve the teaching in medical schools generally, but it will help to maintain and strengthen these schools' top research centers for the benefit of all humanity."

The AMA knows whereof it speaks—it always has recognized financial needs of the nation's 81 approved medical schools and played a big role in helping to relieve the burden. And it is that if these schools are to properly discharge their all-important purposes they must be kept free of the bureaucratic and special influences that would inevitably take over if government aid the bills. It is a healthy sign that more and more commercial companies, as well as funds and foundations, are adopting that viewpoint and are giving greater financial support to educational institutions of all kinds.

TOO HIGH A PRICE

The Herald, of Brownsville, Texas, has printed a thoughtful editorial on farm problem and its political repercussions. It touches on the situation facing livestock producers and other farmers, and on the varied stratagems with which the major political parties are seeking to gain the farm vote. When it says, "Certainly we would like to see some system which will insulate agriculture against catastrophic drops in net income. Above that, however, our farmers generally feel that our best bet lies in free and untrammelled production. We know that any government program which attempts to maintain prices through artificial juggling with its some type of production or marketing controls.

"This in turn hamstring the productive genius of our farmers and removes the privilege of adapting our production and distribution method to the demands of the market place. This is too high a price to pay in order to assure the prosperity of some farmers."

It could be added that the kind of "prosperity" that government aid and controls produces is a frail reed indeed, subject as it is to the ever-changing political winds. And it is certainly evident that the taxpayers of the country cannot forever subsidize farm production which goes into storage, not consumption. The bill for that now has run far into the billions and the whole surplus problem in critics.

The ultimate solution to the farm problem will be found within, not without, the world of agriculture itself. Political "solutions" usually just make bad matters worse.

4-H'ers Eliminate "Accident Havens"

How many hazards can you find?

SAFETY, a crop to be harvested on every farm and in every home, is receiving special attention from more than one-half million 4-H Club members taking part in the 1955 National 4-H Safety Program.

As a part of their 4-H Club work, members in all 48 states are correcting hazards such as those seen in the above drawing. They are attempting to reduce the Nation's annual farm toll of 14,500 lives, 1,250,000 injuries, and an economic loss of about a billion dollars.

4-H'ers, working as individuals or in groups through their local clubs, conduct surveys to locate hazards, then correct the unsafe conditions. They give demonstrations on hundreds of topics pertaining to farm, home and highway safety. Members present talks before group meetings and over radio and television; put displays in store windows; and build booths at fairs.

To assist the Cooperative Extension Service in conducting the 4-H Safety Program, General Motors has just published a new "4-H Safety Handbook for Local Leaders," which provides how-to-do-it ideas for carrying out successful safety programs. Copies of the manual will be distributed to volunteer 4-H leaders through County Extension Offices.

In addition, GM provides incentives in the National 4-H Safety Awards program which is arranged by the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work. Medals are made available to four county winners; an all-expense trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago is given to the state winner and $300 college scholarships are presented to eight national winners.

In the drawing, there are more than 45 accident hazards or unsafe practices shown. Don't let them occur on your farm or in your home.

News Letters

From Congressman WALTER ROGERS

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE 18TH DISTRICT

There has probably been more lip service paid to bipartisan foreign policy in this country and less done about it than in any country in any civilization in the history of the world. The present hullabaloo about the ill-advised, inappropriate and highly uncalculated for statements by Secretary of State Dulles have triggered a general foreign policy debate in every section of this country. The obvious political overtones of the Secretary's interview with a national magazine are further evidenced by the great amount of self-praise that he heaped upon himself. Since the reaction to these statements has rebounded like a thunder cloud, the Secretary immediately began to call for a bipartisan foreign policy. Most Secretaries of State consider a bipartisan foreign policy one that they have molded and one that the members of the other party should not criticize. Of course, if the wheels of democracy are going to operate as intended by our forefathers, there could be no such bipartisan policy as so defined. Open debate is one of the corner stones of our democracy and when the right to criticize is abolished the democratic form of government will be out of balance. The question about the "brink of war", but whether or not a Secretary of State should be granted exclusive interviews to favored organs concerning matters of tremendous importance to all of the people, without first advising the duly elected officials of those people that he claims to have carried to the "brink of war" and then pulled them back from the edge of the chasm. The best thing to be done is for Mr. Dulles to openly admit that he has been highly pleased with his own operations but probably shouldn't have bragged about them so much in his exclusive interview. This would point the matter up and end it for the time being so that the people in this country could get about their business and try to prevent any further trips to the edge of the precipice.

FEDERAL AID TO EDUCATION

The proponents of federal aid to education have made great headway in the last few years. They have kept up a constant pressure on several fronts. One of these has been for the expansion of school construction funds. This is the avenue in which the greatest progress has been made. Little progress has been made in the plans for federal aid for the payment of administrative expenses. But there is still a tremendous pressure for such action. The present bill that is before the Rules Committee, and will probably be before the House of Representatives by the time you receive this letter, calls for an expenditure of 1.6 billion dollars a year for 5 years or a total of 1 billion, 250 million. The present bill that is before the Congress calls for the expenditure of 4 million dollars for 4 years or a total of 1.6 billion. You can see that the argument is not for or against federal aid but is simply a question of how much. There is no question but that if there is to be federal aid for education the bill that is before the Congress would be better to carry out the announced desires of the President to provide class rooms and provide them immediately. It might be pointed out that if the people in this country were allowed to retain in each state the amount of money that is spent on foreign aid, there wouldn't be any shortage of class rooms or necessary money to administer school programs.

37 Servants!

to help you LIVE BETTER ELECTRICALLY

The average home employs thirty-seven servants — and all of them are Reddy. He is at your beck and call 24 hours a day, 7 days a week all year long — fair weather or foul. He'll run any of those 37 appliances — or ALL of them — whenever you say!

The beauty of it is, that Reddy does all these jobs for real low wages... about 3¢ an hour. That's a lot of work for a little money!

Next time your electric service bill arrives, take a good look at Reddy's wages — you'll find that electricity is still today's biggest bargain.

a touch of humor, fascinating incidents of her young life. She quotes poetry unerringly.

When asked her recipe for her long life, Grandma answered: "I live with those who love me, whose hearts are kind and true; for the Heaven that shines above me, and awaits my spirit, too."

Grandma loves to share her cookie recipe, but she has been using it through many generations, and it takes a bit of imagination to follow her proportions.

"Take a cup of butter (or lard)", she says, "and a cup and a half of sugar, and stir until the sugar is melted — don't be 'lazy'. Add four eggs, (and here the proportions become doubtful) and about a half cup of sour cream — or buttermilk — and add some baking soda, enough to 'sweet' it."

Then Grandma says she uses two "sifters" of flour and a big "spoon" of baking powder, and sifts them together three times. The size of the sifter and the spoon is left to your discretion, but with some and trial effort could be determined. She likes to flavor her cookies with fresh grated nutmeg.

Grandma doesn't make her cookies as frequently as she did when she was just a hundred years old, but she can tell you very clearly how to do it. She doesn't see well enough to piece quilts any more, but she did up until a short time ago. She keeps busy now with her knitting, and her needles click merrily as she makes pot lifters for the members of the family who display them proudly as cherished samples of Grandma's handiwork.

In 1954 — when she was 102 — Grandma Vaughan received a letter of congratulations from the President, and she acknowledged it with a note in return and enclosed a pot lifter she knitted for Mrs. Eisenhower. In her letter Grandma told the President: "Mr. Fillmore was the President when I was born and only 12 men had served us before him. As a little girl I remember when Mr. Buchanan was our President." She told President Eisenhower to "trust God, and do good and seek His face as I have done, and all will be well in the arduous duties and tasks."

Grandma Vaughan was born Eleonora Jean Spencer on January 30, 1852, in Wood County, Texas. Her parents had 11 children and she was the second child, with one older brother. Being the oldest girl, her days were busy from the very beginning with the care of children. Her father died when she was still a young girl and she remained with her mother to help with the care of younger sisters and brothers.

If you ask her, Grandma will paint a vivid picture for you, of the early pioneering days. She tells of how the family used a "slot" to furnish light for the home. A slot was made by wrapping a rag around a stick, smearing soft tallow over the rag with the hand, and lighting it as a candle.

All the cloth to make garments for the large family was woven in the home. Grandma's mother could weave ten yards of plain cloth in a day, but it took longer to weave ten yards of jeans.

When Grandma was ten years old she had to spin four "cuts" of thread in a day. She explains that a "cut" of thread is 165 threads, two and a half yards long, and it took two cuts to make a pair of socks.

Game was so plentiful that a bunch of wild turkeys could be scared up anytime the meafolks went on a hunt, and rabbits, too, were a frequent item on the menu.

She tells of the hardships the family suffered during the Civil War when her father was called into service. He did not fight with the Army, but went with the Texas Scouts to patrol the border lands. Grandma was eleven years old at the time, and she recalls how she and her brothers planted and harvested two acres of corn with nothing to work with but a hoe. Their only animal, a horse, was taken by their father for him to ride on his scouting duties.

During the father's absence, the family had enough to eat, and enough to wear, but life was difficult. Shoes were the biggest problem. Grandma had only two pairs during the four years of the war — but shoes were not needed except in very cold weather, for all the children went barefooted in those days.

When her grandchildren complained of the cold, Grandma told them of the winter during the Civil War when she had no shoes. To keep her bare feet from the cold ground she would wade a plank by the fire and take it to the barn lot to stand on while she milked.

She was 24 years old when she married William M. Vaughan, a widower with seven children. They were married at Meridian, in Bosque County, on September 8, 1886. They remained there until March of 1901, when they gathered their large family together, put all their household goods into a covered wagon and moved to Frick, Okla. They lived in Oklahoma for 15 years, then decided to return to Texas to be near Mr. Vaughan's sons who had settled on the Western Plains.

They arrived at Silverton on December 23, 1916, and Grandma Vaughan has lived there since. Her husband died in March, 1928, and she moved into the home of her daughter, Mrs. Stephens where she still makes her home.

Grandma Vaughan was the mother of four children, but she mothered all the family of eleven, and they all reverence and love her as their own mother.

Some of the children, who lived to their full three score and ten years, have passed on, but when Grandma's birthday comes there is always more than a hundred loving descendants who gather to shower affection, admiration and gifts on the bright spirit who is Grandma Vaughan — now starting her fifth year on her second century.

By Margaret Stephens Thornton

Note—The following story was written by Grandma Vaughan's great granddaughter, who is a student at Clarendon College, and she chose to write for her English class about her "Grandma Vaughan."

It is only a very few days until we will be celebrating the 104th birthday of Grandma Vaughan, who is my great grandmother. We always have a wonderful time when the family gets together and enjoys a wonderful birthday dinner. During the week the family meets again for a fish fry at Uncle Ed's house. Everyone helps get the fish from the tank. I think this makes them taste better.

I went to visit Grandma Vaughan the other night. She told me some very interesting stories about her life. She began by telling me that in the year 1852 in lowlands of Big Sandy in Wood County, Texas, she was born. She told me that as a child she and her brothers and sisters went to fuffy pulling contests. That sounded like a lot of fun to me.

Grandma started to school when she was eight years old when she was nine years old, the Civil War began. During the war the family lived on an acre and a half of land. The children had to pick wool from dead sheep to make their clothes. Their coffee was made of live oak acorns, wheat, and parched barley. The Southerners did not have sugar, so they used sorghum syrup. The favorite dessert was called Yankee pudding. The family had to hunt for part of their food. Their soap was made from coon fat.

When Grandma married, she not only got a husband, but also seven step-children. She had four children of her own, of whom two are still living. The whole family helped with the work on the farm. They sold cotton for four cents a pound. Grandma said the kids picked it themselves, so they didn't have much expense on it.

Grandma is now living south of Silverton, Texas with her daughter, Mrs. W. A. Stephens. Grandma is a tidy lady who still has plenty of wit. Although Grandma is hard of hearing and almost sightless, it is hard to get ahead of her.

Grandma has a hobby. She knits pot holders. She gives these to her relatives and friends who stop by to see her.

I thank God for the privilege of being related to this grand little woman. Words cannot express what she has meant to me. I wish to take this opportunity to wish you, Grandma Vaughan, a very "happy birthday."

Prompt action pays off when you oppose poultry "colds." At first sign of respiratory distress, give Ar-Sulfa via drinking water. Ar-Sulfa is a control for infectious coryza (commonly called colds). Birds usually respond within 48 hours. As an aid in easing breathing, use Can-Pho-Sal, either liquid or bomb. Helps loosen accumulated mucus from nostrils and throat. Remember, for poultry colds, act quickly with Ar-Sulfa—follow up with Can-Pho-Sal.
