

Band Together For Aid

Citizens Turn Out For Monday Night Town Meeting

by Jan Sherman

Shallowater took the first step Monday night to acquire a much needed medical clinic for their area. You might ask what they did. Did they meet far into the night figuring methods, formulas, finances, etc.? No, the people who came to the meeting merely displayed their enthusiasm by coming to a meeting at the school auditorium and listening to Dr. Tom Nicholas explain what a clinic of this type would be. There was a chance at the end of the meeting for those who wished to contribute, but mostly the people who met with us had a chance to listen and ask questions.

M.J. Williams, president of the Shallowater Chamber of Commerce, presided at the meeting and gave a short introduction into the meeting stating the basic needs of a clinic for our area and introduced Bill Tiney from the Tech School of Medicine. He commended the community for the interest as he looked out over a full auditorium. Mr. Tiney stated one purpose of the School of Medicine was to train doctors for the rural areas, and that hopefully they would then want to settle in those parts of rural West Texas. There is a real need to set up health delivery systems in rural areas. He further stated that the medical school will be conducting a survey in the very near future which will determine our medical care needs. This survey will take approximately 90 days from now to complete. Our community needs to provide the correct setting for this survey. Dr. Tom Nicholas was then introduced to the audience.

In his introduction by Mr. Tiney, Shallowater found out what kind of man we are dealing with. Dr. Nicholas practiced medicine in Buffalo, Wyo. for 22 years and knows what it is like to be the only doctor in town and work around the clock to meet the health needs of a community. He's widely known across the United States and has served on numerous boards and has received many honors as an outstanding physician. Since he has had experience in serving rural areas, he is most interested in how to meet needs such as ours most adequately.

Within his conversation with the community, he mentioned that 80 to 90 percent of the health

Over 100 Shallowater residents attended a town meeting Monday night to discuss a possible medical clinic for the city. Dr. Thomas Nicholas of the Family Practice Department of the Texas Tech School of Medicine told the group that if the city provided and equipped a clinic, Tech would staff the facility with doctors completing their residency requirements. The doctors would work in conjunction with qualified faculty personnel in providing care to townspeople.

Nicholas estimated the cost for the project at around $70,000. "If you'll get the clinic, we'll get the people," he said. Part of the $70,000 cost would be used to renovate the old bank building in downtown Shallowater for the clinic.

Shallowater Resident Honored by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

A Coronado High School student and teacher have been selected to visit the nation's largest private research and development laboratory because of their achievements and interest in science.

John Thornell, a mathematics and science teacher, and a resident of Shallowater, and Joe Jones, a senior at Coronado, will visit the Bell Telephone Laboratories in Murray Hill, New Jersey, April 12-13. The trip is sponsored annually by Southwestern Bell for an outstanding West Texas science student and teacher as part of a continuing effort to encourage interest in the field of science. The visits are designed to acquaint the student and teacher with how a research laboratory operates, to help narrow the gap between the classroom and the research laboratory, and to encourage the visitors to pursue their interest in science. The laser, holograms, space satellite communications, the Picturephone telephone and new ways of communicating with computers are some of the interesting and exciting new fields of research the Lubbockites will explore on their trip. Thornell and Jones flew to New York on April 11 and returned to Lubbock April 13.

problems can be handled by a family practice which is trained for this health care process and they will then relay the more serious problems to a specialist. Tech has this Department of Family Practice and they are training their doctors to go into this area. He brought up many interesting and comforting thoughts such as this care coming from the Family Practice will be better for you since this doctor will care more about you as a person and will take the time to listen and administer to the total person. "Hopefully," he said, "this will lead into attracting someone who would want to stay in the community and live here. This

You may well ask about the years of experience of these staff members. The residents who will be working here are M.D.'s who have received their degrees, and therefore are graduates of medical school. This training they will be receiving will be their area of specialty—that of family practice. These residents will be under the direct supervision of a faculty with 14-25 years of experience each. Therefore they will be providing Shallowater with health care and we will be providing Tech School of ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED—Mr. and Mrs. Clifford W. Conner of Shallowater, proudly announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Caran Conner, to Mr. Dee Highley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Darel L. Highley Sr. of Forsan, Texas. Caran will graduate from Shallowater High School in May of 1976. She is presently employed at Montgomery Wards. Dee is a 1970 graduate of Forsan High School and served in the U.S. Navy from 1972 to 1974. He is presently attending Texas Tech and is employed at Johnson Manufacturing as a welder. The couple plans an early June wedding.

Medicine with a teaching field for their family practice specialty. Dr. Nicholas went on to say he has seen this type of program at work and that it is excellent because you get outstanding health care stemming from these residents knowing all the new medical facts with their eagerness to serve and being supervised by an older doctor who can tell him how to apply this new knowledge. He observed that this area is vastly underserved by health care systems. In the rural communities surrounding Lubbock, there are at least nine towns with a population of 1,000 or greater who have no physician in full-time practice.

opportunity to develop this program. Lubbock, Texas, home of TTUSM, lies in the center of a large region characterized by extreme distances, large sparsely populated areas, and a severe problem in health care delivery. There are only 27 family or general practitioners, far less than the 65 needed if an ideal ratio of 1 family physician to 2500 people were to be reached. This urban shortage makes the rural problem more acute since it is also difficult to enter the health care delivery system in the city.

"All this talk about a clinic. Is it worth my time to think about it? Is there really a problem?" Here are the facts:

So is it worth your time, effort and consideration? I am proud to say that on a rainy night, Shallowater came and said yes!

Rites Held for Relative of Local Resident, Mrs. Homer Randolph

Funeral services were held April 3, at 2 p.m. in Snyder, Texas, at Bell-Seale Funeral Home for Mrs. Lillie Marcum, 84, who died at her home in Odessa, Texas, Thursday, April 1, 1976.

Mrs. Marcum had been a former resident of Shallowater, residing here in 1940 and 1941. Her son, Otha Draper, taught school here at that time. Another son, O.B.

Draper, attended school here and graduated from Shallowater High School.

Mrs. Marcum is survived by these two sons and two other sons, Tom Draper of Amarillo, and Calvin of Simi Valley, California. Also surviving are 2 brothers and seven sisters which includes Mrs. Homer Randolph of Shallowater.

United Methodist Women Meet

The United Methodist Women of Shallowater met Monday evening, April 12, in the church parlor. The vice president, Mrs. B.H. Thomas, called the meeting to order and led the opening prayer. Each member answered roll by reading a verse from the Bible containing the word "pray" or "prayer."

The worship table was decorated with a gold cross and a floral arrangement of white gladiolas and green palm leaves in remembrance of the resurrection of our Lord, Jesus Christ.

Special guest speaker was Mrs. Blanche Brady, who is constantly going about visiting and ministering to the elderly. Mrs. Brady brought an inspiring message on "The Gift of Grace." She challenged the members with this thought, "Some people go about doing good, others go about doing. What have you done?"

Mrs. W.C. Vaughn distributed booklets on World Day of Prayer and Self Denial, to be read and savored the remainder of the week.

New business consisted of preliminary planning of the Senior Banquet to be held in the fall.

Mrs. Doyle Lusk was hostess to ten members and Mrs. Brady.

The next regular meeting will be April 26 at 7:30 p.m.

Shallowater Ag Boosters Meet

The regular monthly meeting of the Shallowater Ag Boosters will be held Monday night, April 19, at 7:30 in the school cafeteria.

All area farmers, businessmen and interested persons are invited and urged to attend. Refreshments will be served.

A very interesting program has been planned by Carey Gooch, manager of the Shallowater Coop Gin, and Jerome Beach and Denver Ford, representatives from Grower's Seed Company in Lubbock.

Ford and Beach will present research work that Grower's Seed Co. has done on cotton varieties and production and field seeds which promises to be a very interesting program to those attending.

The booster club meets each third Monday night of the month. Newly elected officers are president, Danny Stanton; vice president, Bryan Burgett; secretary-treasurer, Robert Seale; and Kenneth Carr, program chairman.

Be sure and keep this date in mind and plan to attend. The ag boosters need your help in attendance and membership.

Young Homemakers Of Texas Meeting

The Shallowater Young Homemakers will journey to the Ready Room at Pioneer Natural Gas in Lubbock on Monday, April 19th. Emily Cauhape, Home Economist, will present the demonstration on Mexican Food.

All interested people please, meet at the Homemaking Cottage between 6:45 and 7:00 p.m. By grouping, fewer cars will be needed. If it is more convenient for you then meet us at the Ready Room in Lubbock at 7:30 p.m.

These demonstrations are most interesting. Recipes are distributed and sampling of the prepared foods enable one to decide how the family would enjoy it. Everyone is invited to participate.

Little League Season is Here

All adults who share an interest in having a working program in Little League should attend this year's organizational meeting this Saturday, April 17, beginning at 2:30 p.m. in the Shallowater Club House.

Purpose of the meeting is to outline the past years history of activities and plan the activities for the coming season.

Those who can give of their time to coach or manage a team or in any other way, such as umpiring, or serve in an officers role are urged to attend this very important meeting.

There is a great need for persons to participate and help make the program a success. The children of the community need the help from volunteers. So be sure and plan to attend this meeting.

If there are any questions, Clois Cobb, Jr. (past president) will be happy to help you by calling him at 832-4322.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED—The James McMenamys of Route 1, Shallowater, announce the engagement of their daughter, Kay Bevins, to Mr. Dwight Alexander (Alec) Lindley, son of Mrs. Patricia F. Lindley of Austin. Miss McMenamy, a graduate of Coronado High School, was a 1975 graduate of McMurry College in Abilene, and is presently employed by the Hereford School System as an elementary music teacher. Mr. Lindley, a graduate of Hale Center High School, attended McMurry College and is now a first year student at Southwestern Medical School. The couple plans to wed June 5, 1976, at the Shallowater Methodist Church, and will reside in Dallas while Mr. Lindley completes his education.

Bride-Elect Honored With Shower

Rickie Randolph, bride-elect of Jimmie Dale Seaton, was honored with a lingerie shower on April 5, 1976, in the home of Mrs. Leonard Winfield of Shallowater.

Hostesses were Wanda Randolph, Brenda Steen, Billie Brown, Kay Lindsey, Reta Sue Saunders, Kay Saunders and Mollie Winfield.

The serving table was covered with a yellow lace effect cloth. A lovely brides cake centered the table. The cake was made by Sue Randolph, sister-in-law of the bride to be.

Many nice and useful gifts were presented the honoree. 31 guests were present including Mrs. Jimmy Seaton and other members of her family of Lazbuddie, Texas.

Area Couple Says Vows in Shallowater

Rickie Randolph and Jimmie Dale Seaton exchanged wedding vows at 5:30 Sunday afternoon, April 11, with Justice of the Peace, Jessie Lee Vance officiating the ceremony at her home.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Homer Randolph of Shallowater and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Seaton of Lazbuddie. Honor attendants were Mollie Winfield, sister of the Bride, and Bobby Blackburn, of Shallowater.

The bride was graduated from Shallowater High School and was employed by Velma's Beauty Shop for 7 years. The bridegroom was graduated from Lazbuddie High School and farms there.

Following a short wedding trip, the couple will live in Lazbuddie.

Library Lunch Bunch to Meet

The Lubbock Christian College Theatre group will perform a one-act musical entitled "Telemachus, Friend" on April 20 for Lunch Bunch. "Telemachus, Friend" is a play based on a short story by O. Henry, and is set in Los Pinos, New Mexico in 1910. The play, directed by June Bearden, features five actors and a guitarist in turn-of-the-century costuming, and like all O. Henry stories ends with an "O. Henry twist," or surprise ending.

In order that Lunch Bunch may be finished by 12:45 p.m., "Telemachus, Friend" will begin at 12:10 p.m., or five minutes early. Lunch Bunch is a free program which occurs each Tuesday in the Community Room of the Mahon Library, 1306 9th Street.

Sheridan's Ride

by Jack Sheridan

I suppose the biggest entertainment news this week past is the opening of the film version of the first Bernstein-Woodward film of their bombastic work, "All the President's Men," which is holding forth for some time at the South Plains Cinema.

This is a political theme film, as anyone alive must know, for it details the uncovering by superb and dogged investigative reporting of the Watergate break-in and the events that led up to the Congressional investigations and the ultimate unveiling of so many who had a hand in the sorry and regrettable affairs of Washington, D.C. of a few years back.

Now, politically-motivated themes have, for some reason, never been popular fare for the American movie-going public. But, if any film can overcome that bugaboo, then "All the President's Men" can well be the one to do it. For this is a superbly-handled, totally-engrossing, completely faithful accounting of the teaming of two reporters and the leadership of their editors (Washington Post) to probe and bring to light the whole incredible plot.

The Warner Bros. film, beautifully filmed, authentic to the core, cast with total stalwarts from stars through supports, directed flawlessly by Alan J. Pakula, written for the screen with fidelity by William Goldman, represents a masterful achievement in every respect. This film is no mere documentary of those events but a film of taut suspense, total involvement, style and powerful emotional achievement.

In the roles of reporters Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward are Dustin Hoffman, superb, and Robert Redford, respectively. They could not be better. From there on down the fat and lengthy cast list, the credits are all plus. You have the impeccable Hal Holbrook as the Deep Throat striving for truth, played in shadows in the underground contact point; Jason Robards as the executive editor, strong; Jack Warden and Martin Balsam as senior editors at home in the pressroom with conviction and power. Jane Alexander, that strong star of Broadway, finally has a screen role to her advantage as the bookkeeper, while Stephen Collins' Hugh Sloan is fine, and Donald Segretti played by Robert Walden is sympathetic. There are others, too many for mention, but all in keeping with the company named.

Washington, D.C. itself comes alive through highly intelligent camera use and the 138 minutes of the film, PG-rated, passes fluidly and unnoticed, climaxed by the staccato teleprinter bulletins that detail the events that extend beyond the film's time scope.

"All the President's Men" is a credit, a high one, for all concerned.

Now for the stage fare that is enjoyable, played very well and directed with flair. This is the new Hayloft Dinner Theater's "The Mousetrap," that incredible mystery charade by the late Dame Agatha Christie, that has been running a couple of decades and more in the same theater in London in which it bowed.

This is a charade and a clever and amusing game of wits that has been given an adroit staging and direction by that same Larry Randolph of Texas Tech's drama faculty, who never seems to come a cropper. He has a good cast to do his bidding, too. There are the Galloways, Rebecca and Dana Scott, she as Millie, he the detective; Renee Meeks, severe and intense and fine, as Miss Casewell; Bobbie Vego as Mrs. Boyle; Steve Barrier as the trying Christopher Wren; Bart Williams, excellent as the Major; Maximillion Parish as the continental Mr. Paravicini; Robert Diepenbrock as Giles Ralston and all of them, except the detective (?) are under suspicion.

If any reader thinks that I am going to reveal the culprit's identity, forego the thought. That is not, as the play's locale would suggest, "not cricket."

I enjoyed myself thoroughly at "The Mousetrap." I think you will, too.

I only saw a portion of the Fox Theaters' new entry, "The Big, Bad Bears," a comic tale about the Little League effort and a GIRL who insists on her "rights" to play. Walter Matthau is the always reliable star and the film is anticipated since Tatum O'Neal, that terror as the moppet in the price con-man film, "Paper Moon," has come back to us. She has grown up a lot since then and in some ways that's too bad. She's beginning to look too nice and young ladyish now to con us so easily. From what I saw, the film is warm and funny and should please its patrons.

The same infirmity (bruised ribs) that cut short the above film, has at this writing, kept me from catching Alfred Hitchcock's newest (and rated one of the best) "Family Plot" at Showplace 4. We'll get to that one during the week and report next time around.

A couple of notes on upcoming events, all of which deserve your attention and support. Scholarship programs for the performing arts at Texas Tech University will benefit from two special dinner-theater "previews" of the Lerner-Loewe musical, "Camelot" preceding its regular run at the University Theater. This show is a joint production by the music, drama and dance divisions of Tech. The dinners are at 7 p.m. April 22 and 23 in the University Center ballroom, the play at 8:15 p.m. in the University Theater.

The regular run of "Camelot" will be April 24 through May 2 in the University Theater. Tickets for the preview and the regular run are available at the box office at the theater, reservations at 742-2153.

Lubbock Theatre Centre presents the comedy "The Great Sebastians" at the LTC Playhouse on Ave. P at 8:15 p.m. April 23, continuing through April 27. More on this one next week.

The Lubbock Symphony Guild offers its "Blue Ribbon Ball," "Revelry and Reminiscence '76" at the Big Texan at 7:30 p.m. Friday, April 23. The Bicentennial event is chock full of events, from booths featuring "Boutique '76" to a Grand Promenade with attendees in black tie or period costume, with the Hon. George Mahon and Mrs. Mahon, leading as special guests of honor, dancing with Mark Anthony and his orchestra and a celebration supper from 11:30 p.m. to 1:30 a.m.

The event is a benefit for the 30th Anniversary of the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra. Admission is $50 a couple, $25 for singles.

Congratulations certainly are in order for the University of Texas. After a thorough investigation into wrong doings, a group of UT people decided that there was no wrong doing there.

That certainly comes as a breath of fresh air at a time when outside investigators are turning up evidence of hanky panky here, there and elsewhere. Just think! An inner circle discovers nothing amiss at UT. We're delighted.

I had always been brought up to believe that where there was smoke, there was fire. But obviously such is not the case at UT Austin. There were no illegal payments.

You may recall that a few athletes allegedly received pay for work that they didn't perform by reason of being released for spring sports and/or spring football drills. This wasn't so, the inner circle of UT Austin reported on examination.

But then, has the University of Texas ever been guilty of erring? Heaven perish the thought! Because of the prestige of the university, there never has been any need to subterfuge. University of Texas athletic programs are as pure as the driven snow.

Oh, they might wave a hand deprecatingly and remark that such and such a school was pretty good, in some respects, but it wasn't, of course, the University of Texas.

Well, three cheers and a bulldog for the Orangemen. We're glad that they have achieved peace of mind, that they are absolutely exempt from anything smacking of illegality.

Speaking for the vast majority of fans, if that liberty may be taken, we'd feel a lot better if the alleged investigation had been performed by an outside group, completely impartial, and with no ties to the Orange and White.

If any more proof was needed that Karl Godine and Jarvis Williams were helped to make up their minds to sign for basketball play at Texas A&M, the recently recalled suit against the Southwest Conference is icing on the cake.

Let's see, wasn't it Godine who declared, with an apparently straight face, that the reason the pair chose the Aggies was the fact that, out of 100 or more offers, A&M was the ONLY (the caps are mine) school not to offer any inducements?

Everyone likes to be associated with a winner, and winning is a lot more fun than coming in second. But winning, when it isn't done according to Hoyle, has an empty flavor.

I remember covering a Tech-Baylor football game in Waco once. A Bear back broke loose for some 70 or 80 yards for an apparent touchdown. It was called back because of holding.

Someone protested that it was a bad call. The late George Wright, the SID at Baylor, shot back that "you let me hold on any play and I'll score. If you break the rules, you should be penalized."

Steve Sloan had reason to be perturbed after last Saturday's scrimmage. The Raiders did little to impress the audience that gathered to see the second week's climax.

The offense sputtered. The defense sputtered. There was little consistency shown. There were bright spots, of course. Occasionally the offense looked explosive. Occasionally the defense looked powerful. But both were off and on.

Tommy Duniven didn't have one of his better days, thanks to passing that was erratic and often off target. Rodney Allison, at times, looked strong.

There were moments of hard hitting, but much of the time the fans in the stands wouldn't have been awakened by the sounds of body contact. There was a lack of crispness that was apparent. It's obvious that a lot of work remains.

On the otherhand, the second week of spring drills typically produces poor football. The players are a little tired, for one thing, and they are a little more familiar with the plays.

Over all, there may not be much improvement this week, but the improvement will be there. And, as time draws near for the spring game and the players get a little rest, they will be ready to respond in the windup that ought to be something special this spring.

A week ago I forgot to mention that the first true sign of spring had arrived. From Freeport, Me., came the L.L. Bean catalogue and that, sports fans of fishing, is the harbinger of spring.

It matters not that we in the Southwest have had spring for weeks, when word comes from the frozen north, it is spring. And hooray for L.L. Bean.

A casual glance through the pages show how inflation has set in. We have a collection of the Bean catalogues extending back into the 50s.

Prices have gone up like the thermometer in West Texas on a July day. But one thing that Bean friends never flinch at is the price. They know that the quality is there and that for you Sears, Roebuck, Monky Wards and Gibsons.

From Bean you can get everything that the fisherman or hunter needs, or the camper or backpacker.

As for me—and I love to pore through the catalogue—give me an old worn out shirt, a pair of discarded wool pants, a pair of sneakers and a rod off the rack. Amen!

Thunderstorms Move into Area

Thunderstorms, moved into the area over the weekend, dumping various amounts of rainfall over the South Plains, and bringing with it hopes that more will come.

Farmers were jubilant over the rain that fell, which will enable them to cut down on irrigation expense in preparation for planting season that will be here soon. Estimated amounts of one-quarter inch was recorded and forecasters were predicting more to come.

The rains will benefit city residents as well as the farmers by helping them to cut down on lawn and garden watering, lowering expense on their water bills.

The old saying for West Texas weather is "If you don't like the weather, stick around," and be sure you don't try to predict the weather or they will call you a newcomer for sure.

Anyway, just when we had about decided that it wasn't going to rain anywhere soon, the rains came, falling on the dry area with amounts that will benefit everyone, whether they are farmers, ranchers or city residents.

Junior Class Volleyball Tourney

The Jr. Class Volleyball Tournament is well underway. The competing teams will be playing for the championships the 16th and 17th. All the juniors have been working hard and are very pleased with the progress of the tournament. During the tournament days, Friday and Saturday, the juniors will be serving homemade ice cream, cake, cookies, and brownies in the concession stand in order to help raise money for the Jr.-Sr. Banquet.

We ask that everyone help support the juniors by attending the Volleyball Tournament Friday and Saturday and enjoying all the homemade goodies. Everyone come and see who will win the Volleyball Championship!

Students to Be Inducted

The first members of the new Shallowater National Junior Honor Society were announced at an assembly April 12 by principal Gene R. Barnes. The members were selected on the basis of scholarship, character, leadership, citizenship and service.

Those receiving this outstanding honor were Yolanda Anaya, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lupe Anaya; Brand Giles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Giles; Cathy Hohertz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hohertz; Reyna Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Jackson; Mark Jungman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Jungman; Buster Lamberson, son of Mr. and Mrs. C.M. Lamberson; Brad Ratliff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Ratliff; Sandra Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Stewart; Gilbert Valverde, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesus Ververde; Becky Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tevis Walker; Louis Whaley and Mary Whaley, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Whaley. Sponsors are Mrs. Virginia Hohertz and Mrs. Keitha Hopson.

The new members will be inducted on April 22 at 7:30 p.m. in the High School Auditorium. A reception will follow in the library. The public is invited to attend.

District Golf

by Chris Hutchings

Last Friday the Shallowater golf teams played at the Gaines County Golf Course for District. The boy's A team were Kim McMenemy, Chris Hutchings, Ray Jackson, Steve Wilson and Kenneth Young. The boy's B team were Alan Johnson, Andy Blackmon, Lee Rinehart, and Joe Beaver. The A team took 4th place. The girls team of Laura Thompson, Carol Shropshire, Kim Young and Kim Myers received 3rd place honors.

The NHS would like to thank George Parsley and Guy Lesly for arranging this field trip.

OIL PAINTING—The Art I class has been doing oil painting this quarter. The first of three paintings to be completed by this class was done with unlimited palette and color scheme. Shown here with their first paintings are Mark Dempsey, Brian Cody, Jerry Ritchie, Patty Gisch and Gay Lynn Hix.

The artwork was on display in the high school last week.

FROG TIME—It's frog time once more in Miss Dillard's classroom. Every year the last six weeks are spent dissecting the frog. Many students have names for their frogs, in this picture they named his Oscar. The main purpose of studying the frog is to learn how it functions. Having to cut the frog up and having taken his insides out may sound terrible, but it's a very interesting experience.
