Harlan Hodges Cancer Treatment Center Dedicated

The Harlan Hodges Regional Cancer Treatment Center at Methodist Hospital was dedicated, and a public open house was conducted November 21. Texas Radiation Advisory Board members attended as special guests.

New, underground rooms in the east building, containing the 18 million electron volt linear accelerator, the 4 million electron volt linear accelerator and computerized treatment planning equipment were shown by hospital personnel.

The treatment center is dedicated in memory of Col. Harlan A. Hodges, Col. and Mrs. Hodges moved to Lubbock in 1948, after his retirement from the United States Air Force. He continued interests in oil properties until a year before his death in February of 1974.

"The Harlan Hodges Regional Cancer Treatment Center is an important step in the resolve of the Board of Trustees for Methodist Hospital to place major emphasis on cancer, the nation's number two challenge, next to heart disease, in which area we have majored in the past decade," explained George M. Brewer, hospital president.

The 18 million electron volt linear accelerator was recently installed in the treatment center. The 4 million volt linear accelerator has been in use for two years. They are located in rooms with high density concrete walls which vary from 2 to 6 feet in thickness.

A computer and auxiliary equipment are located in one of the rooms where radiation treatments are planned for individual patients.

The two linear accelerators direct ultra-high energy radiation beams toward cancerous cells in the body with minimal damage to healthy tissue. Technologists operate the linear accelerators from remote controls with voice and visual contact with the patient by closed-circuit television.

The brief treatments require times of a few seconds to two minutes. Most treatments are performed on outpatient appointments.

The treatment center includes a waiting room designed with a skylight, nurses' station, dressing rooms and rest rooms.

During formal dedication ceremonies, Brewer introduced guests. Dr. S.M. Kennedy, chairman of Methodist Hospital Board of Trustees, gave the dedicatory address.

A portrait of Col. Hodges was unveiled and later hung in the hospital's main lobby. Mrs. Hodges gave a response to the dedication. The Rev. Tom Daugherty, hospital chaplain, gave the prayer of dedication.

Shallowater Athletic Booster Club Notes

by Dale Jackson

The Athletic Booster Club held their weekly meeting Thursday night, November 18, at 7:30 in the Auditorium. Boys and girls basketball players from each grade level were introduced by their respective coaches to the Booster members, parents and teachers.

After the introduction of Mustang players for the 1976-77 season, a tour was given through the varsity football field house and the varsity boys and girls basketball dressing rooms by coaches Wolski, Tubb, Averitt, Baker and Casey to view the newly installed green astro-turf carpet which was bought and installed by the Athletic Booster Club.

The club wishes to acknowledge its many thanks to the members who worked all three nights in putting the carpet down with the help of all the coaches who also worked very hard. Our special thanks goes to Mr. Charles Luck who furnished most of the necessary tools for installation.

The club will sponsor the annual Junior High boys and girls basketball tournament to be held in Shallowater on December 16, 17, 18. The club will be operating the concession stand for the tournament with Mary Warren as foreman. We will be selling 1 1/4" Mustang slogan badges to wear. They will be the round stick-pin, lapel and dress type available in three of your favorite Mustang slogans.

Some speakers got down to dollars and cents talk, while others discussed the needs of jail inmates. But all of them had one thing in common—concern over how proposed state jail standards will effect jails in Texas.

Fourteen residents of Lubbock and the surrounding area appeared before members of the Texas Commission on Jail Standards Monday during a public hearing in the 99th District Courtroom. The hearing was one of several held throughout the state this month to receive public input on the proposed jail regulations.

Joe McDuff of Taylor County told commission members that some smaller counties will find it difficult to meet the proposed regulations on recreation and exercise. It will be an extreme hardship for some jail facilities to provide a special room for recreation, he said.

Commission chairman James

Greenwood III pointed out to McDuff that recent federal court rulings have cited violations of prisoners' rights in jails where no provisions are made for the inmates to exercise.

McDuff said that prisoners could get plenty of exercise by doing push-ups in their jail cells. But Greenwood noted that the court rulings have pointed out a need for inmates to have "a change of scenery" by getting out of their cells for short periods during the day.

Rule No. 217.19.00 of the proposed standards calls for each inmate to be allowed one hour of physical exercise or recreation at least three days per week, outdoors if weather and facilities permit.

Another member of the jail standards commission explained that this rule would not necessarily mean a new recreation room would have to be constructed in a jail. "A day room

A THANKSGIVING Message

We have much to be thankful for in this great land of ours. For we live in a nation of abundance and opportunity, health and prosperity. Where freedom is our birthright... and brotherhood our life spirit.

This spirit of brotherhood is one that our forefathers exemplified on the first Thanksgiving. And from it we have established a lasting sense of loyalty, compassion and respect for one another. For this, we are truly fortunate.

Let's take this holiday as a time to reflect on all that we have to treasure. And celebrate Thanksgiving in the true tradition of peace, unity and love.

SPORTS

by Joe Kelly

It's an old axiom, but still true: when somebody wins, somebody loses. And, for the first time this season, Texas Tech's Red Raiders experienced the agony of defeat.

It wasn't that they didn't fight. My gosh, that magnificent comeback endeared them to football fans everywhere. It wasn't that they weren't prepared. They were. On Saturday last they simply met a Houston team that was, at least that day, superior.

There probably were a lot of telephone calls to Lubbock people Saturday night. They probably were a lot like the one from my daughter, who, through her hoarseness, asked what happened? She was one of many Tech fans who didn't think that Tech could, or would, lose.

The answer I gave her was simple; Houston just had a better football team. The Cougars stopped the Raider offense until late in the game. The Cougar offense found chinks in Tech's defensive armor.

That may be too plain an answer, but there it is. The Raiders could mount no running game the first half and little passing. When you're held to 50 yards total offense for 30 minutes, you obviously are not going to put many points on the board.

Meanwhile, Houston found the weak spots in the Tech defense and ripped the Raiders. The Cougars had a balanced 108 yards rushing and 104 passing in that first half.

An overshifted Houston defensive line had enough quickness to cut off Tech's outside game. And, when the Raiders were forced to go inside, they simply couldn't cope with the more physical Houston line. Rodney Allison, who usually makes the option click, was held to 10 yards on 10 carries that first half.

And when you talk of the Houston defense, you have to mention Wilson Whitley, the giant tackle, whom Steve Sloan termed long after the game, "that bionic man they have in their line."

Whitley was credited with only four tackles and one assist and this is another time that figures lie. The six million dollar man—another Sloan assessment of him—pressured Allison all day.

"The bad time we gave Allison?" Whitley said later in the exuberant Houston dressingroom, answering a reporter's question. "Man, we didn't give Allison a bad time. He gave us a bad time."

"I'll tell you," Steve said later. "That guy will go to the pros and a year from now he'll be playing in the middle for the Los Angeles Rams. Whew! He's something else."

Houston players insisted that there was no letdown in the fourth quarter with a 27-5 lead. They preferred to give credit to Tech for fighting back. In fact, the loquacious Danny Davis (and the Houston Brass?) said quite succinctly that Houston didn't beat Tech, the clock just ran out on the Raiders.

Sloan said that the coaches were doing everything they could to get something going. "We ran through our entire repertoire of plays," he declared.

Asked if he had a play ready for a two-point try if Tech had scored, Steve replied: "Yes, sir. That pass that was intercepted was the play." He even forced a wan smile.

He also declared that it is going to take a lot of talking and motivating this week to get the Raiders ready for the final two conference games.

"We'll be playing two teams as good as we are and maybe better," he stated. "But I think we'll come back. Yes," he said in reply to a question, "we'll be playing with a co-championship in mind. I guess that's better than Tech has ever done before, isn't it?"

Asked about the bitterness of the loss, Steve said that he'd have to rate it "about a 3 on a scale of 10."

"I'm terribly disappointed for the players and for the fans, too," he declared. "If we could get to the Cotton Bowl oh and ten, it would be great."

Of course, as stated earlier, Houston was a better team. And proof of it came in Tech mistakes. Three of them cost 17 points and, in a game of this stature, you can't afford that luxury. To be brutally honest, Tech has made similar mistakes all season and has been, up to this game, fortunate to get away with them.

Serious mistakes were a fourth down clip that gave Houston life and led to a touchdown; the pass interference play on a Tech interception that led to a touchdown; and a foolish decision to run a kickoff out of the end zone (to the 10) that led to a field goal.

All of that is behind the Raiders. If they have learned from their mistakes, they'll be a better team for their final three games—Arkansas, Baylor and the Bluebonnet Bowl.

Tech still has a good football team and three wins would give it a tremendous season and impetus going into 1977. The bowl appearance is deserved and I think that the Raiders will shake off this bitter defeat, come back and finish out the season with brilliance.

One final note about last Saturday. When Tech's pass was intercepted, there was an immediate pall of gloom on the sidelines. The stand, so noisome and enthusiastic moments before, fell silent. It lasted on a couple of flicks. Then it came.

Those loyal fans erupted in a tremendous cheer in admiration for the valiant effort by the Raiders. If the players heard it, they must have been heartened. It was richly deserved and I was glad to see this expression of support after such a heartbreaking defeat.

1926 Grad Class

"Remember when" was the main topic of conversation when the 1926 graduating class of Lubbock High School gathered at the Hilton Inn in Lubbock Friday night at 6:30 for a 50th class reunion and dinner with 35 members out of the 105 members that graduated back in 1926 attending the memorable event.

Master of ceremonies was Homer Hunt of Lubbock, class president 50 years ago, with members of the class coming from Muleshoe, Amarillo, Albuquerque, Tulsa, Lubbock, Shallowater and the surrounding area to join in the reunion.

These members all have happy memories of school days gone by, when back then entertainment was having class suppers and dances, a picnic at Buffalo Springs when all day the hills swarmed with students climbing up and down, stopping now and then to fish or swim and when about once a month someone brought a wagon and team and the class would take off through the pasture and down the canyon on a old fashioned hayride.

Memories were of spelling matches, hitching racks at school where horses, bicycles and jalopies stood side by side and a complete football season for boosters was beating the Plainview Bulldogs and Amarillo Sandies.

Little did these students realize back when they were going to school together that 50 years from then they would gather together to reminisce those days of long ago. There were some deceased and others who lived too far away or illness prevented them from attending, but they were remembered in the thoughts of those present as they talked about their days together as students at LHS.

There were 5 graduates of Hardy School and 7 who attended Shallowater. These two schools were not affiliated and in order for the students to enter college they were required to graduate from an affiliated school, the nearest one being Lubbock High School.

Claborn is a crewmember aboard the amphibious transport dock USS Coronado, deployed with the U.S. Sixth Fleet. His command joined with naval forces from Portugal, Italy, Turkey and the United Kingdom for the combined exercise which included convoy operations, amphibious assault landings and anti-submarine warfare maneuvers.

The primary objective of the exercise was to train NATO naval forces in combined sea operations, to refine NATO procedures and J.W. Reed, a teacher at LHS in 1926 and K.T. Miller, one of the graduates who later taught school in the mid 30's in the Shallowater system were among the 35 members and their spouses attending. All 58 present have memories for a long time of an evening of visiting, recalling school activities, reading class wills and looking at the old class annual.

Those from the Hardy School were George Alton Blackmon, Alton Blackmon, Douie (Brown) Blackmon, Laura (Hard) Clifton and Juanita Shelby. From the Shallowater School were Buelah (Arnold) Herring, Nila Mae (Cook) Green, Mamie (Cauley) Tullis, Sarah (Chauncy) McInturff, Joe Sooter, Ronald Sheely and George Sullivant.

ensure that operational plans were current.

Participating units evaluated increased standardization of doctrines, equipment and armaments among NATO forces, plus command and control procedures for coordinated action by NATO sea, land and air forces.

The convoy operation tested Allied capabilities to reinforce and resupply ground forces in Southern Europe. Acting as opposing forces, NATO units simulated surface, subsurface and air attacks along the convoy's route.

"Display Determination" was one of a series of annual operations, conducted each fall from Norway to Turkey, designed to provide unified and coordinated training of national and NATO forces within the Allied European Command.

A 1968 graduate of Monterey High School, Claborn joined the Navy in June, 1968.

compartments were not designed to store frozen food.

Frozen foods should be held at 0 degrees F, but when the freezing compartment is held at 15 degrees F or lower, other food items in the refrigerator will freeze.

An ice cube compartment will keep ice cubes well frozen at any temperature below 20 degrees F, but bacteria start growing at 10 degrees F.

The temperature in a compartment may well read as high as 15-20 degrees F. Frozen foods begin to thaw in this temperature range, even though the packages may feel hard. One day at 20-25 degrees F does more damage to foods than a full year in the freezer at 0 degrees F.

You can follow these guides to be sure frozen food stays frozen.

If frozen food must be stored in the ice cube compartment, plan to use it within a period of one week. Keep the temperature control at a setting just above freezing in the general storage area.

Buy frozen food just before checking out of the grocery store. Ask the grocery sacker to put frozen foods in an insulated bag or a double paper bag, then put them in the ice cube compartment as quickly as possible upon arrival at home. Place the frozen food in contact with the floor of the ice cube compartment or ice tray shelf.

Consumer Tips For Celery Buying

One way to choose the freshest celery in the market is to listen for the "best talker."

Pick up a crisp-looking stalk of celery, squeeze it gently and listen to it talk back. The louder the noise is, the better quality the celery will be.

This vegetable is a crisp, low-calorie nibbling treat. One large outer stalk (eight inches long) contains only about seven calories, while one cup diced uncooked celery has only 18 calories.

Look for bunches that are medium in length, with well-formed hearts, solid and brittle to give a crunchy snap, smooth inside, fresh appearance with green leaves.

Celery is perishable. It needs a cold, moist storage place in a film bag or in a crisper and refrigerate. Use within a week for best flavor and quality.

4-H Happenings

The Lubbock County 4-H Council will meet on November 30 at 7:00 p.m. at the Garden & Arts Center on University Avenue. All council delegates should plan to attend.

Following the council meeting, the Adult Leaders Association will meet at 7:30 p.m. Any interested parents are also welcome.

Immediately after the meeting, Martha Couch, Area 4-H and Youth Specialist, will conduct a record book training for leaders, parents and 4-H'ers. Everyone is urged to take part in both the meetings and the record book training.

COTTON TALKS

FROM PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC.

Barring unexpected complications the Cotton Research and Promotion referendum is still on for mid-December, according to Donald Johnson, Executive Vice President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock, "despite a USDA announcement November 11 that was disappointing to all concerned."

Cotton producers across the nation will indicate in the referendum whether they favor an increase in their present $1-a-bale contribution to the research and market development work of Cotton Incorporated. Legislation authorizing the referendum on an increase not to exceed one per cent of the value of cotton was signed into law earlier this year. The amount of the increase and the procedure to be followed in its collection was left to the Cotton Board, which administers CI funds, and the Secretary of Agriculture.

Hearings were held by both USDA and the Cotton Board, and on August 20 the Cotton Board recommended that the vote be on an increased assessment equal to four-tenths of one per cent of the current gross value of each bale of cotton. This recommendation followed the wishes expressed by an overwhelming majority of testimony.

The American Cotton Shippers Association and a few cotton producer organizations and individual producers expressed a preference for a flat-rate per-bale assessment increase, regardless of bale size or selling price.

The Secretary's decision in the matter was a decision not to decide until after the referendum. Thus both factions were displeased.

As announced in a USDA press release November 11, the "recommended decision" reads "If the amendment to the order is approved in a grower referendum, the Secretary of Agriculture will prescribe by regulation whether the assessment rate shall be applied against (1) the current value per bale, or (2) an average value determined from current and/or historical cotton prices and converted to a fixed amount per bale." The filing of exceptions to the decision are allowed through November 24, but no change in the order is expected.

"Asking that the order be changed at this point would risk delay in holding the referendum and jeopardize its passage," Johnson said, "and passage of the referendum must take precedence over all other considerations." With this in mind, PCG filed the following comment with the USDA's hearing clerk:

"Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., representing around 20 per cent of U.S. cotton production and 20,000 cotton producers in 25 counties on the Texas High Plains, cannot fully concur with your recommended decision of November 11 concerning amendment of the Cotton Research and Promotion Act.

"For reasons fully documented in our own and other testimony in hearings, we continue to fully support the Cotton Board's recommendation adopted August 20, 1976, for a supplemental cotton research and promotion assessment at the rate of four-tenths of one per cent of the current gross sales price per bale of cotton.

"However, in the interest of preventing delay in the grower referendum for mid-December, we urge that the referendum be held on schedule, that the final decision on how the four-tenths of one per cent is applied be made subsequent to the referendum, and that the final decision be made in agreement with the Cotton Board's recommendation."

There's usually a brighter side to any bleak situation.

Jail Standards . . .

would suffice," he said.

Lubbock County Commissioner Arch Lamb cited three words he considers most important in operating a jail, "and they all start with 'S,'" he told the commission. These would be security, safety and sanitation, Lamb said.

Lamb questioned whether the commission and its proposed standards could successfully guarantee jail inmates protection from one another—one of the problems that has continuously plagued the Lubbock County Jail in the past year.

"A better job can be done," Greenwood told the commissioner.

Lamb also took issue with the words "reasonable variance" in the section of the standards dealing with granting variances for jails unable to fully comply with the regulations. He said the decision on granting a variance should be left in the hands of the jail standards commission and not in the hands of jail reformists. Also, Lamb noted, the word "reasonable" should be stricken from the regulations because it has no dimensions.

Greenwood replied, "I'd certainly rather see the word reasonable used rather than unreasonable."

Among those speaking in behalf of the rights of prisoners were the Rev. Thomas McGovern, pastor of Christ the King Catholic Church, and Murray C. Havens, a member of the Lubbock Chapter of the Texas Civil Liberties Union.

Havens reminded commission members that "not everyone in jail is a criminal." Jails usually house persons awaiting trial and who may be acquitted, individuals serving as material witnesses and, in some cases, young children, he said.

"The standards should take into consideration more than the punishment aspect," Havens advised the group.

According to Havens, the commission also should take into consideration some of the provisions made in recent court orders. The El Paso County Jail currently faces having to measure up to provisions handed down in a court order that is stricter than the jail standards commission's proposed regulations, he said.

Provisions in the court order, Havens said, called for daily exercise for prisoners, rehabilitation and educational programs which would include vocational training, medical program, separation of prisoners—especially inmates under 17 and first-time offenders, safety measures to assure the safety of each inmate, etc.

It would be economically unsound for a county to redesign its jail program to meet state standards and then find it must do more work to measure up to the provisions of a federal court order, Havens said.

Father McGovern cited the need to maintain the "human dignity" of jail inmates. He expressed particular concern about adequate facilities to separate first offenders from hardened criminals, recreation facilities, rehabilitation and housing and treatment of juveniles.

Jails also should provide an adequate means for religious worship and counseling for prisoners, Father McGovern said.

Commission members stressed the need for improvements in county jails throughout Texas—and, they said, this is going to cost some money. But, the commission members added, they have been "mindful of the economics" involved in the proposed standards.

Following the completion of all the hearings in the state, the subcommittees on prisoner treatment and enforcement and variances will make recommendations to the jail standards commission. The commission will adopt final rules no sooner than 30 days after the publication of its proposed standards in the Texas Register. The rules will take effect 20 days after their adoption.

Carbon Monoxide Dangers Cited

With the winter months setting in, the specter of carbon monoxide deaths materialize, according to fire department Chief, Floyd Epperson, with a local family just recently narrowly escaping the vicious fumes of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Listed below are several safety features for the home dwellers to observe in order to safeguard their homes against the deadly fumes.

Physical warning symptoms include a dull headache, dry mouth and nausea, he said. By the time the third stage is reached, he added, poisoning has become severe and help should be sought immediately.

Homeowners who have tried to seal their homes to outside air should check their heating unit closet to see whether an air vent pipe leads to the outside, Black said. This vent carries off unburned carbon monoxide gases and supplies fresh air to the burner, he added.

Other safeguards include:

- Making sure openings in the foundation aren't blocked by weeds, flowers or debris, thereby preventing air from getting to the burner and vent pipe;

- Keeping a window open in homes with unvented room heaters in order to dilute carbon monoxide fumes released by the heater;

- Changing the filter regularly and making sure the thermostat works properly; and

- Checking the gas line for leaks by applying soap and water where the pipes are connected. If bubbles appear, gas is leaking out and a plumber should be called.

Methodist Women Meet Here

The United Methodist Women met Monday evening, November 22nd, in the home of Mrs. Louis McMenamy. The meeting was opened by singing the hymn, "In Christ There Is No East or West."

The concluding session of the study of Southeast Asia was highlighted with a meal of Chinese dishes prepared by the members. The menu included coconut soup, Jasmin tea, and a variety of meats, vegetables, and desserts. The highlight of the meal was learning to "eat with" chop sticks.

Table and wall decorations and dishes were of the Oriental origin. These items were from the collections of Mrs. M.J. Williams and Mrs. Doyle Masbey and obtained in their travels abroad. Many of the members kept the theme by dressing in kimono.

Following the meal a brief business meeting was held. Roll was answered by reading a Bible verse containing the word "harvest." Mrs. James McMenamy closed the meeting with prayer. Twelve members attended.

The Christmas Party December 13th, in the home of Mrs. C.E. Pair.

AUSTIN—December is a good time to go hunting, especially if you are tracking down industrial prospects in the cold northeast.

I was privileged to be on such a hunt last year and December 7-8 I will join 75 West Texas businessmen on a tour of the industrial regions of Ohio.

We are going to make a case with industrialists in Cleveland and Cincinnati for choosing Texas as a site for new production, distribution or warehousing facilities.

Last year was the first time West Texas has gone industry hunting collectively. East Texas has been doing it successfully for 15 years. Houston interests, Rio Grande Valley businessmen and a private group from North Texas have been on such missions. Currently South Texas leaders are planning such a tour.

The idea behind all of these trips is to meet with manufacturers and big businesses and provide a true and clear picture of Texas and the business climate in this state.

For too long, the northeastern business community has thought of Texas as dry and dusty and full of cactus and rattlesnakes. We're going to have to keep hammering to get the message across that Texas is indeed the land of opportunity.

There are a lot of people and businesses who are getting the

Sheridan's Ride

by Jack Sheridan

Now consider this. You're a middle-aged bracket man whose life has been spent in and around the arts, music, theater, films, paintings and the life. And one of the things you love most of all is a performance of what we call grand opera. You've loved opera all down through the years and have seen most of the late and still living great ones singing the great works. And, among this formidable list is one opera, in particular, that you have seen maybe 25 times here in the U.S. and abroad starting way back when and it has become the "pet," the most beloved of all of them, "La Traviata."

Then Dallas Civic Opera comes along this past week and revives this wonderful experience, Verdi's story of the tragic love affair between the courtesan Violetta and her Alfredo, "La Traviata." And to sing the leading role of Violetta they secure for her long-awaited debut with the organization the top-ranking superstar of opera today, Beverly Sills, that truly All-American wonder.

And, then, consider that a friend suddenly pops up with the most wonderful gift of all, a flight to Dallas, tickets for the Friday night performance and Sills. And, then, if that were not enough, following that Friday night triumph (and it was an unforgettable triumph, believe me) suddenly this same friend decides to attend the third and final performance of the same opera, same Sills, at the matinee Sunday in State Fair Music Hall.

So, this music lover, which, of course, is this writer, saw not only Beverly Sills for the first time "live" but had a "second helping," a second time around, which was as stunning, as perfect and flawless, as emotionally assaulting as the first performance, an unbelievable carbon of perfection to the letter. I thought so. So did an aggregate Friday-Sunday sellout audience of some 6-7,000 people who whistled, cheered, standing ovation and all to etch one of the truly treasured memories for all the days to come in these parts.

So, blessed am I. I had two Thanksgivings and two Christmases, you might say in the space of three nights. And, I am deeply grateful and humbled by the entire experience.

To speak first of the lady of the hour, Beverly Sills, many of you have become acquainted with her singing and her irrepressible vitality through frequent appearances on television, as well as the medium of tapes and recordings. She has a voice of liquid soprano gold and the ease with which she modulates her vocal powers from the softest, gentlest pianissimo tones to the soaring strength of a fortissimo is simply incredible.

She is a slender, most attractive woman who has risen to the absolute pinnacle of her profession, surmounting long years of tough, hard work and personal problems as well in her family. She sang for many years with the New York City Opera and then the Metropolitan Opera sought her out. She did not leave the tried and true New York City Opera. She now sings on both sides of Lincoln Center, with NYCO and the Met, too.

Friday and Sunday's electricity came from the totally undeniable truth that here embodied in this talented body is the spark of genius, that ember that glows only seldom among the members of the performing arts. She is not just good, excellent, thrilling and magic, she is a power of creativity and a beacon of God's great gifts loaned to an individual for the duration of his lifetime service. What Beverly Sills did in her Friday and Sunday performance that I caught was nothing more or less than a true miracle of achievement.

Miss Sills was not alone on the big Music Hall stage. Not at all. The production, using most attractive settings, was sung gloriously from the leads to the most minor member of the chorus. Even the dancers in the opening moments of Act II were charming and delightful, colorful.

To sing the taxing role of the lover Alfredo was the tenor Beniamino Prior, who has a clear, lyric voice of stunning impact, who complemented Miss Sills with the ease that would seem that they had been singing and acting these roles for a very long time. Not so. They are relatively new to each other's styles, but one would never know it. Prior was grand.

The other lead role is that of Alfredo's father, Giorgio Germont, which was beautifully handled by a splendid, full-voiced baritone Greek-born Kostas Paskalis. Here again was a principal who filled out that incredible balance of unity with his two fellows and he, too, reaped honors all the way.

It is a large cast and space here does not permit an adequate treatment of their work. But one can say that each and everyone of them held firm the supports in voice, acting and appearance that the three major stars deserved.

The handsome production is devised and directed by Tito Capobianco, already well known and respected among opera lovers. He has taste and best of all a sense of the elegant which "Traviata" demands.

Fronting the superb Dallas Civic Opera orchestra in the pit was the vice president and general director of DCO, Nicola Rescigno, leader from the inception for Dallas. His work was marvelous. He caught every nuance of the Verdi drama in music and wrung the essence of this glorious, moving music which in turn wrung the hearts of the silent packed house each performance. I have seldom been in a theater of this magnitude when virtually no member of the audience of 3,000 plus even dared cough during the three hour production.

"La Traviata" is, in a way, the "My Fair Lady" of opera. It is singable, recognizable (even to the man in the street who thinks he doesn't know anything about opera) and haunting. It is great theater music, for it dovetails the action with the characters and the music expresses the deepest emotional qualities of this fine work.

Twice seen in three days. That was the weekend away from home. I am fresh off of the plane as I write this. But, I can assure you, the melody and those who made it, lingers on.

More about Dallas in our next.

Let us give Thanks

HORSE TALES

Senior Spectacular

by Gloria Lara

This weeks senior is Belinda Dunn daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl and Doris Dunn. They reside at 5516 17th Lubbock, Texas. Belinda was born Feb. 25, 1959.

As we all know Belinda is a senior this year and I guess through all her years of school she has finally made up her mind that she does not have any favorite subjects in school. Her favorite things in life are horses, dogs, and nature. Her favorite hobbies are oil painting, horseback riding, reading; outdoor activities, such as bicycle riding, walking in the park, etc.; and last but not least she likes sewing and cooking.

In school she is a member of NHS, and annual staff. Outside of school she is involved in the Youth Action Singers and the Choir at Peace Tabernacle in Lubbock, Texas. Her special honors have been that she has held an "A" honor roll since the 8th grade.

The only comment that she has about her Sr. year is that she likes it because her class schedule is not as heavy as it was in past years. After graduation she has planned to get married. She will definitely get a job and work. She has also planned to go to college later. The type of career she wants is to breed and train horses.

The last comment she has is that she is ready for a change.

The 7th and 8th Grade Fillies

by Gloria Lara

Well finally the Little Fillies have a chance to show their stuff. They have been staying in the background all during football season. But this past Monday they had their first basketball game against Frenship. The 7th grade Fillies were ready because it was their first game and they did show Frenship that they had been taught to play basketball when they won. The 8th grade Fillies weren't as lucky when they lost to Frenship. This coming Monday they will go against New Deal. Let's go Little Fillies!

FHA News

by Debbie Paul

The Future Homemakers of America had a meeting last Thursday, Nov. 18, in the Homemaking Cottage. At their meeting they had two guests from Pioneer Natural Gas, Mrs. Nan Poe and Miss Emily Cauhape. They gave a demonstration on making breads and gifts for Christmas. The Future Homemakers of America would like to thank these ladies for coming, and welcome them back anytime.

Basketball Season Gets Underway

by Steven Wilson

The 1976-1977 Mustang Basketball Season officially got underway this past Friday. All four high school teams played with three of them winning. The JV Girls won as did the JV Boys and Varsity Girls.

The Varsity Girls game was very exciting as it went into overtime. Terri Stanton kept the Fillies in the game and her free throws gave them the game. This game as all four was against the New Deal Lions. The girls did a good job against the reigning Champs who are favored to repeat in District 4-A. At the end of the game the scoreboard showed a 48-46 score.

The Varsity Boys did not fair so well falling to the New Deal Lions by a score of 48-39. The Mustangs could not have worked any harder, but they made many mental errors. Two big problems the Mustangs had were blocking out for rebounds and fouling. With lack of height the Mustangs must block out which would help the other problem of fouling.

Monday and Tuesday are game nights with Monday being a home stand while the teams hit the road Tuesday.

JV and Nineth Fillies

by Claudett Lamb

The Freshmen Fillies played against Frenship. The girls were nervous over their first game. They played a hard fast moving game, but Shallowater came out on bottom. The score ended up 46-26. The girls are telling us not to worry there will be a difference in the next score, with the Fantastic Fillies on top.

The J.V. Fillies went to Ralls Monday to scrimmage them. This was to get them experienced in playing other teams and to calm their nerves. Since it was a scrimmage there was no score kept. The J.V. are really looking up and we can hardly wait to see them when the season starts.

Good Luck Fillies! We are all behind you!

Stars of Six Weeks

by Alison Terry

The SUPERSTARS of the SIX WEEKS as elected by National Honor Society members are Janis Horton, senior, and Stacy Hohenberger, sophomore.

Janis dropped out of the sky on April 8, 1958. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. W.M. Horton. Miss Horton's favorite class is basketball, mainly because she likes the game. Water skiing, snow skiing, and men are a few of Janis' other most-liked things.

Janis is a member of FHA in which she is 2nd vice-president. The pep squad is proud to have Miss Horton as their president. Janis also serves as secretary of the Mustang Band. An honor recently bestowed upon the SIX WEEKS SUPERSTAR was captain of the Fillie basketball team.

Comments on the 1976-1977 school year by Janis: "It's my last year. It has been fun so far, but now since basketball is here, it will be fantastic!"

Stacy Hohenberger, son of Mr. and Mrs. R.E. Hohenberger, was born on June 16, 1961. Stacy likes to compete; therefore, he is a sports nut. Young Mr. Hohenberger glues himself to the "boob tube" when not partaking in his favorite pastimes of woodworking and drawing.

Stacy says the best thing about this year has been FOOTBALL!

Notes From Mrs. Warren's 3rd Grade

Things I would be thankful for if I were a Pilgrim.

I would be thankful for all the trees that helped us make houses to live in. I would be thankful for the animals the clean air, and the fun things we play. I would be thankful for all the fine food we have to eat. I would be thankful to God who let us live.

Trent Peacock

If I were an Indian I would be thank for deer and buffalo. I would be thankful for fish to catch. I would love birds. I would get their feathers. I would thank God for deer skins because I could make a tepee out of them. Also, I would be thankful for wood for I could make bows and arrows.

Layne Tuttle

If I were a Pilgrim I would be thankful for wood to keep me warm and for food to eat, and Thanksgiving Day.

Richard Jones

If I were a Pilgrim I would be thankful for my food like turkey, carrots, and dressing. I would be thankful for trees and animals. The trees would give us houses and firewood for our fireplaces. The animals are good to eat and look at. The most I would be thankful for is my church and people and the fresh air we have.

Mimi Lupton

If I were a Pilgrim I would be thankful for birds, trees, food, earth, animals, water, and the ground we walk on; plants, flowers, homes of the Pilgrims and Indians, families and for God who made the world.

Demetrio Lomas

If I were an Indian, I would be thankful for land, birds, fruit, and meat. I would be thankful for trees, rain, sun, rivers, animals, plants, turkeys, and "deers."

Sherry Wiley

If I were a Pilgrim, I would be thankful for animals, corn, deer, rabbits and birds. I would go out and hunt for food. I would be thankful for every kind of meat, fruit, tree and land that helps us live. I would thank God for our natural resources.

Kevin Hoffman
