Veterans Day Often Ignored—Yet Local Vet Should Remind Us to Offer Thanks

Editor's Note: This article was contributed ty an anonymous citizen of Shallowater. If any of our readers wish to contribute any such article anonymously, they may do so by contacting this office at P.O. Box 225, Lubbock, phone 745-3419.

Veterans day is just around the corner and while we no longer have the big November 11th celebration what we once had and very little flag waving and don't pay as much tribute to our war veterans. It might be helpful for many of us to reflect on that so many so called average citizens have done to protect our freedom. Sometimes the most peaceful and loveable folks within our own community have known first-hand the awesome destruction and hatred of war. Years of tranquil small town living and close relations with close friends and neighbors have helped one man make the adjustment to a happy civilian life.

Very few people know that Granville T. "Red" Doggett, a local insurance agent was once Staff. Sgt. Doggett with the G Group of the 12th Calvary Regiment during World War II. To be one of only nine survivors of an original troop strength of 165 men plus about that many replacements is likely to change a man. Apparently, Doggett's concern for people was one of the reasons he was awarded the bronze star, one of the nations highest military honors. Doggett, was one of the participants in some of the most severe combat duty in the Pacific during World War II.

Doggett, one of Shallowater's most jovial citizens doesn't give the impression of taking anything too seriously, but those who know him well know better. The life that Doggett leads in civilian life has not caused him to receive any citations or national awards, but somehow you get the impression that it doesn't matter to him.

The things he likes to talk about now are Lavina, a strikingly beautiful and genteel lady and their son, Travis. When someone asks Doggett if he is pretty crazy about that boy, his reply is likely to be "My soul, that boy is really something". He gives his wife most of the credit for his coming to Shallowater and the measure of success he has achieved. Of course, Christianity plays a major part in the Doggett family life style and every member of the family is very enthusiastic in this respect and they are quite active in their church work. Many weekends, they are off on lay-witness trips.

Doggett, who is quite often called by his nickname "Red" leaves very little hint of the red tones in his hair these days, but if you look very closely, the distinguished gentleman with the white hair still has tints of red. He possesses the personality that immediately puts a person at ease and the ex-Lubbock restaurant owner, who once sold hamburgers "six for a quarter" still has a sparkle and enthusiasm about him that people appreciate.

He left the restaurant business in Lubbock to come to Shallowater as a grocer shortly after the war was over and eventually went into the insurance business in Shallowater. Doggett is an outdoors enthusiast, a "retired hot-rodder", likes water sports and just about anything else that can be done with the family. He has never been known to be overly shy and often creates a stir when he walks into the local bank or one of the local restaurants either singing or calling out with a very loud "ten hut!", a throw back to his old military days. Harvest Festival Held Saturday

Saturday morning at 10 a.m. the Harvest Festival got underway with a parade. The parade consisted of floats, decorated bicycles, riding clubs, antique cars, boats carrying queen and princess candidates, fire engines, and bands. After the parade ended at the Clubhouse, the high schol marching band gave a mini concert for the group.

At the baseball park, a Canine Dog Show was given for all who wanted to attend.

The Clubhouse was opened with games to play and booths to explore. Games were played until 5 p.m. when things began to settle down. At 5:15 p.m. the candidates were presented in pantsuits and introduced.

Linda G's of Lubbock presented a style show with the new fall fashions, models being the queen candidates and Lion wives. Entertainment and an auction took place from 6 to 9 p.m.

With Mr. Barnes as moderator, the candidates and their escorts were introduced. Questions were asked of each girl.

Study Club Meets Here

The Shallowater Study Club met in the directors room at the Shallowater Coop Gin. Roll call was answered with naming a part of the cotton gin.

Mrs. Carey Gooch was speaker and tour guide into the gin.

There were 18 members present and they were met with a cotton bole corsage and given a package of pamphlets on cotton. Also a small bale of cotton.

Mrs. Carey Gooch and Mrs. S.H. Robinson were hostesses. refreshments were served and everyone came away feeling as though they knew more about a cotton gin than before.

One new member was excepted. We welcome Mrs. Jan Sherman. The next meeting will be November 5th with Mrs. M.J.

or song. So if the talk of galloping inflation, extended recession, dirty politics, or heaven forbid, depression and other things to scare a person out of his wits, this veterans day, it might be rather cheerful to reflect on folks like Red Doggett. Because of the dedication and the call to duty that many thousands answered over the past years. We can still cherefully talk about when coffee was 5 cents a cup, hamburgers 6 or a quarter, and thank the Good Lord we still have a good country and know that when we talk about the "good ole days" that very few of us really want to go back. Thanks Red Doggett and others for the future.

Shallowater Boxer, Joe Martin, Wins In Odessa Boxing Tournament Recently

Saturday, October 12, was a big night for boxers and boxing fans who emerged on Odessa's Floyd Gwin Auditorium. Levelland entered seven boxers and left with seven wins. Other towns entering were San Angelo, Sweetwater, Pecos, Crane, Midland, Odessa and Houston. Houston is referred to by ring managing as the boxing capitol of the U.S.A. and entered a very good team.

One of the highlights of the night was a lightheavy weight bout between Joe Martin of Shallowater and Jimmy Stringer of Odessa. Joe fights with the Levelland team. The Odessa American News describes Stringer, "Jimmy Stringer, winner of the Fightingest Fighter Award at the last regional tournament, best represents this breed of determined fighters. Stringer won the sportsmanship award the year before and the 23 year old aggressive roughneck, who is seemingly ignorant of the meaning of pain in the ring, is seeking his fourth trip to state."

The first round between Joe Martin and Jimmy Stringer was about even, with both boxers feeling the other out. The second round opened with action fast and furious, Joe catching Jimmy repeatedly with a vicious left hook. Jimmy was staggered but made it to the bell. The third round, both fighters came out full blast. The fight turned into a slugging match and was ended by a short right thrown by Joe which cut a large gap over Jimmy Stringer's oeft eye. The fight was called by referee Carl Youngblood, with Joe the winner by a T.K.O.

Mark Martin won his first fight of the season at Muleshoe on October 5. Mark floored 22 year old Manuel Gonzales in the first round and kept command of the first winning by a decision. Manuel is from Mexico and fights for the Lubbock team.

Joe Frank Martin, a smaller version of Mark and Joe returns to the wars after having injured his hand. He is in the Levelland High School division.

The next meet is between Odessa and Levelland at Levelland. No definite date has been set.

Elliotts Tour Eastern States

Twentyeight members of the Lubbock Antique Car Club, including Postmaster and Mrs. Melton Elliott departed Lubbock by chartered bus on Saturday morning, Sept. 28th for several points of interest in the Eastern States, including Canada.

The first stop was at Springfield, Mo. where the group toured the Ford Museum and several other interesting points, including Dearborn, Michigan. They crossed over into Canada at Detroit, Michigan and enjoyed beautiful Miagara Falls on the Canadian side.

In Hershey, Pa. the group attended the Antique Car Swap meet and the ladies enjoyed touring the Ameish Settlement.

Highlighting the tour was visiting Washington D.C. and viewing the Capitol and touring the House and Senate Chambers.

The Elliotts flew home from Washington on Tuesday, Oct. 8th, while the rest of the group returned home Saturday by chartered bus.

Lions Club Holds Meeting

Thursday night, October 10, at 8 p.m. the Lions met at Vardeman's Restaurant for a regular meeting. There were 24 present with five guests.

The meeting opened with song and pledge. Guests were introduced, Jimmy McMellian and Leonard Dunn from Tahoka and three prospective members, Lee Gerara with Lion James Harris, Guy Halsan with Lion Jack DuLaney, and Ricky White with Lion Bobby Styles.

Different aspects of the carnival were discussed. Wayne Wages, Jimmy Forestor, and Roger Pettit were presented life memberships to Kerrville Crippled Children's

Rays of Hope by Pat Stanton

"I will bless the Lord at all times: his praise shall continually be in my mouth. My soul shall make her boast in the Lord: the humble shall hear thereof, and be glad. Oh magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt his name together. I sought the Lord, and he heard me, and delivered me from all my fears." (Psalms 34:14)

The writer of this Psalm had learned the key to victory in all situations. He knew that praising God always brought release. This Psalm shows the results of true praise. Verse four says that we can be freed from FEAR. I say we because I believe in applying Biblical truths in a personal way. If you do not, they will not touch or minister to your needs. Verses 6, 16, 19 and 22 of the whole chapter stress that we can have TROUBLES resolved. Verses 9 and 10 state that we are always PROVIDED FOR. You will note that verse 13 is just the opposite of praise. "Keep thy tongue from evil and thy lips from speaking lies."

You cannot do verse 1 and 13 at the same time. The moment you begin to gossip and slander your neighbor, your fellowship with God is broken. SIN always breaks your fellowship with God. Many times this is why you begin to be depressed, worried, and fearful. You've left your safety and warmth in God's arms and resorted to the nature of this Praising God and continually give him THANKS, will deliver and keep you from fear of: man, death, the future, danger, evil, enemies, imaginative fear, and a spirit of fear. Read, meditate, and apply the whole teaching and truth of Psalm 34. It can bring you a NEW DAY.

Sunday's weather was right in keeping with the mood of most Texas Tech fans-somber, sober, sinister, subdued. You could add weepy, woeful and wrong.

Wrong? Yes, because when everything else is said, the Red Raiders were thoroughly beaten by a better football team. It was not a case of them not being ready to play; Tech just lacked the ability last Saturday, lacked it in all phases of the game.

Like everyone else, I've had 24 hours or more to write this column (this is being written Sunday). It would be easy to say that (1) When you're in a shootout, both sides should be armed; (2) Tech made only one mistake, it showed up for the kickoff, etc.

But let's be totally honest. Saturday Texas A&M was a superior football team in every aspect of the game. Both the offensive and defensive lines controlled scrimmage.

Aggie backs ground out yardage consistently and the right side of the Tech line couldn't stop them. The Raiders needed another Ecomet Burley and an E.J. Holub. They had neither.

It became painfully evident, after the first three punt exchanges, on each one of which the' Aggies gained ground, that it was only a matter of time. Finally, in the second quarter, they attacked the Achilles heel and drove inexorably for the Raider goal.

Meanwhile, the Raiders couldn't get any momentum going. Every thrust was stopped. They were completely frustrated. They simply couldn't run over or around that big Aggie line.

To compound matters, the usually error-prone Aggies played a nearly faultless game. And, when the Raiders finally did pounce on a fumble, they couldn't do anything with it. The Tech attack was just one big dud. Nothing worked—and credit A&M for that.

If there were any areas of concern, it was the lack of wisdom to pass on first down from their own 20 (intercepted, leading to a second, quick-and deciding-Aggie Touchdown. There are other receivers than Lawrence Williams, who drew double coverage.

And there is little excuse for any punt return man fielding fair catch punts inside the 10 yard line. It didn't help Tech's field position, which was terrible most of the game, but even the 20 is better than the five-yard line.

All of that is nit picking, of course. The Raiders had it laid on them and it was no fluke. Obviously, the better team won, hands down. Last Saturday, before a nation-wide audience, no one could have gone away thinking anything else.

If the Aggies continue to play as flawlessly through the remainder of the season, they should win the conference title. You had to be awed with their size, ability and execution.

One victory, or defeat, does not make a season, of course, and it would be well for the Raiders to keep that in mind. In this crazy season, anything can happen-and probably will.

You now have Baylor-Baylor?, SMU-SMU?, and A&M on top with one victory each. Tech, Texas and Arkansas can have a loss. And when Rice plays Notre Dame a 10-3 game in South Bend, no one can feel confident. Baylor and SMU tied for the lead-who would have dreamed that a month ago.

If the Raiders continue to play one game at a time, they still have a good shot at the title. Certainly this is one year when no one has a corner on the crown and the old saying about two losses eliminating a club could be in jeopardy.

Indeed, this might just turn out to be the best conference race in history. Obviously, seven teams have a good crack at a title and the Cotton Bowl. Hold onto to your hats, the fun is just beginning!

The World Series, through the first two games, has been marked by the type of pitching you expected, along with the key home run that so often breaks up a tight game.

I would no more try to pick a winner than put on Burley's cape and fly around the light poles in Jones Stadium. The A's and Dodgers appear to be matched as evenly as two teams could be. It's liable to go down to seven games. It's starting out as a great Series.

Actually, the Dodgers had the best pitching in the first two games, based on total hits, but that doesn't mean a thing in the World Series. It's the timeliness of the hits that count and, in the opener, the A's had it. The Dodgers had them in Sunday's game.

So, how do you pick a winner? Let's start with tossing a coin. That would do for starters, but if it stands on end, I'll be darned if I'll help you! Settle back and enjoy good baseball.

At the start of this column, I was going to say that even the Dallas Cowboys' defensive team wouldn't have helped Tech Saturday. That was before I saw the game against St. Louis.

Even Tech's defensive team wouldn't have helped the Cowboys! Could the defection of several Cowboys to the WFL next year have created division on the team? The Pokes have the material to be a winner. Obviously, something is wrong. It's going to be a long season in

What To Do While Stuck in An Elevator

I learned something very importat last summer. It was so important that I want to pass it on. Maybe I can help someone else, so that he will know what to do and what not to do if he is ever faced with the same situation I was.

I learned that a person should never set one foot in an elevator unless he or she is first fully equipped. What I mean by fully equipped is that he should be carrying a sleeping bag along with a purse, a picnic basket full of food, a water jug, a watch, and a couple of nerve pills. This may sound ridiculous because, after all, the chances of getting stuck in an elevator are really very slight. One of those "slight" instances just happened to occur when I got on an elevator at the Statler Hilton last July.

Our room was on the tenth floor. At 3:00 p.m. I decided to go down to the lobby to buy a magazine. After entering the hall where the elevators were, I pushed the "down" button and waited for an elevator that was going in that direction to stop on my floor. Three of the five elevators stopped and each of the doors opened within seconds of each other. I hesitated when I noticed this, then chose the elevator closest to me. I had the elevator all to myself as it began moving down.

What happened next is what always happens when someone gets stuck in an elevator. It stopped-right between the seventh and eighth floors. Immediately, I put my brain into action. First, I pushed the "open door" button. Naturally, it didn't work. It was just as well, though, because even if the door had opened, there would have been nothing but a wall, since I was between floors. Next, I pushed all the floor buttons, nineteen of them. Then, as a last resort, I punched the emergency button. There was nothing left to do, but wait.

There wasn't a bit of sense in panicking, so I decided to make the best of the situation. I sat on the floor to be comfortable and proceeded to think about how embarrassed I was. Then, a funny thought occurred to me. Out of a choice the bad one. I decided that I'd never go on "Let's Make a Deal", because I'd probably choose door number one and a 1938 Ford without a motor, seats, and wheels would be behind it.

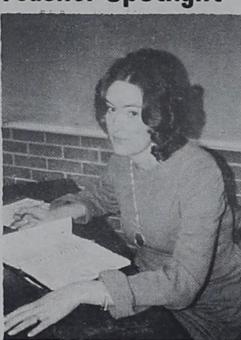

It seemed as if I had been in that elevator for hours. I didn't know how much time had lapsed, though, because I didn't have a watch. It was getting monotonous, so I got my billfold out of my purse and looked at my collection of pictures (eight times). I counted my money and discovered that I had $1.75. Digging through my purse I found two pieces of Doublement chewing gum (which I hate), a hair barrette, a broken mirror, three pencils, and a used Kleenex. After exhausting that source of entertainment, I proceeded to count the colored buttons on the sides and top of the elevator that were put there for decoration. Just as I reached number thirtytwo, the elevator jerked down and the door slowly opened.

Instead of a crowd of people waiting outside to see if I was all right, all I saw was a woman and two men who looked at me like I was crazy as they came into the elevator. I realized that I was sitting on the floor, so I quickly got up and stepped out onto the seventh floor.

Thus, my dilemma had ended. The clock in the hall showed 4:00. I found the stairs and walked back to the tenth floor. As I walked into our room, Mother looked up from the book she was reading and asked, "Didn't you find a magazine you wanted?"

Teacher Spotlight

Mrs. Patricia Turner is our teacher spotlight for this week. Patricia was born in San Angelo and graduated from Central High School. She attended college at San Angelo State University and taught school at Galveston Ball High School. Mrs. Turner teaches English and Drama. She enjoys teaching here and hopes to continue.

College Night

Shallowater High School juniors and seniors have been invited to attend an area College and Vocational Night, being held at Monterey High School in Lubbock at 7:30 p.m., Monday, October 21.

The meeting will consist of a brief assembly in the auditorium, followed by three thirty minute sessions for students to visit various representatives from the colleges. Representatives from over forty Texas colleges and universities and seven out of state schools, as well as representatives from the armed services, will be available to the student.

Mrs. Witcher has a complete list of the schools who will send representatives. Students should see her by Friday, October 18, to make arrangements to go.

District Begins

by Charles Krebbs

Friday will start district 5A play for the Shallowater Mustangs. Their first opponent will be the Seagraves Eagles. Since this is a district game it will begin at 7:30 instead of 8:00. Another significant change that will occur is that the Mustangs now have four football captains to represent them. The two new captains are Jerry Harrison and Richard Krebbs. New captains are traditionally elected at the beginning of district play for the Mustangs.

Seagraves will be a very tough opponent with a record thus far of 5 wins and 1 loss. The Mustangs had an open date last week. The Mustangs were busy rejuvenating the defense and the offense with variations. The whole team asks everyone to come out and support them in their first district game Friday night.

Football Spotlight

by Richard Krebbs

This week in the gridiron guidance column the last two seniors will be featured. Randall Hawkins and Alex Grice are the featured seniors this week.

Randall Hawkins is a fine ball player and adds depth to the Mustang defense. He plays defensive end. Randall also plays on several of the special teams. And takes pride in usually getting the first tackle of the ball games.

Alex Grice is son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Grice. Alex is 6 ft., 150 lbs. and defensive end, also. He backs up the two ends on offense also.

The Mustangs begin district play this week against Seagraves.

FHA Activities

For the Lion's Carnival parade the F.H.A. decorated and entered a float. The float was divided into two sections: one part depicting the various areas of subject matter covered in the Homemaking program and one part on F.H.A. The F.H.A. emblem motto, flower, colors, and purposes were displayed and the F.H.A. officers were seated in this area. The float received $15.00 for placing second.

Mr. Hay's Super Save also sponsored a booth for the F.H.A. at the Lion's Carnival. A selection of home experiences and class experiences were displayed along with F.H.A. information to further explain the Homemaking program to the community.

Student Holiday Set Friday

Friday, Oct. 25 is an Area Wide Teacher Work Day. On this day students will not attend school but classes will resume the following Monday, Oct. 28.

The teachers will use this time to attend a meeting of their professional organization, Texas State Teachers Association. The meeting will be in The Lubbock Municipal Auditorium.

Band Concert Held Tuesday

Tuesday night at 7:00 p.m. the Shallowater marching band presented a concert in the High School Gymnasium. They marched in and played several numbers, some featuring the twirlers. One number featured the cornets and another the flutes, while the Cheerleaders did a pompom routine. Then the cheerleaders did a cheer with double stunts.

Coach Grimes introduced all varsity football members. The concert was closed with the school song and fight song.

The proceeds from this concert will go to charter buses for the band to go to Stanton for the last district football game.

Senior Spotlight

by Janie Serna

The spotlight this week shines upon two persons.

First we have Miss Vicki Cline. Vicki is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Cline. She was born on November 13, 1956.

Before coming to Shallowater High, Vicki attended Roosevelt High. Now in her second school year here, she is a very active member of S.O.S. (Spirit of Shallowater).

After graduation, her decision of what to do has not been made yet. Nonetheless, she has narrowed it down to two choices and they are either to go into the service or to become a secretary.

Vicki says, "I really like Shallowater High. The faculty and the students are so friendl and easy to get along with."

William Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor, is our other spotlight shinee. He came into this world on February 15, 1955.

PooPoo, as he is known to all his friends, is not in athletics or organizations this year, but he did play football last year.

After graduation, he plans to join the Air Force.

FFA Meeting

by Jackie Randolph

On October 14, the Shallowater Future Farmers of America held their second meeting. This meeting was devoted to electing a chapter sweetheart. The chapter elected Terri Martin as sweetheart and Nancy Thomas as Plowgirl. Terri is one of the five girls who joined FFA this year. Congratulations to Terri.

The chapter also decided to sell fruit. All FFA members will be selling oranges and grapefruits. If you wish to buy any fruit contact any FFA member. A forty pound box will be $6.00 and half a box will be $3.50.

School Pictures

The Shallowater Classes received their school day pictures this week. The cost of the package is $4.16. Return the money or the pictures to school by October 29th.
