Mrs. Ramsey's & Mrs. Cruse's 2nd Grade Classes enjoyed a ride on the Turkey Fire Truck recently.

Valley 2nd Graders Visit Turkey Fire Station

Last Friday, a visit to the Turkey Fire Department helped make the story "Fire Fighters" more of a reality to the Valley 2nd graders. Cody Yates and Adam Seymour, Turkey Volunteer Firemen gave an interesting tour of the Fire Station. The students got to try on the special coats and oxygen tanks worn by the fire fighters. Then Christy Pointer and Shay Seymour, Turkey Volunteer Ambulance staff showed the kids the ambulance. The highlight of the trip was a ride down Main Street on the fire truck! And before they left, each child was even given a Beanie Baby!

Following the visit to the fire station, the children enjoyed a picnic lunch at the Turkey City Park before heading back to school.

Mrs. Cruse, Mrs. Ramsey, and all the 2nd graders said, "We would like to thank the Turkey Fire Department and Ambulance Service for the special treatment and good time that we had!"

Local Care Packages To Go To Our Troops In The Armed Forces

Our hometown men and women serving in the Armed Forces are stationed at various critical points around the globe at this time of turmoil. We back at home can do very little but pray for their safety and wait to hear from them. But there is something we can do, right here in the Turkey and Quitaque area. Karen Yates has started a collection of items that can be sent to our men and women serving their country. Many of the troops have no one to write letters of encouragement to them or to send items that making living in the desert easier to tolerate. By donating to this cause, boxes of items can be sent and distributed to other military personnel by our hometown service men and women. This is one way we can help make their day a little better and let them know we care and are thinking about them.

If you would like to help with this project contact Karen Yates at 806-423-1419 or The Valley Tribune at 806-455-1101. Items can also be dropped off at Turkey General Store.

Some of the items that would be appreciated are: Baby Wipes, Toothpaste, Deodorant, Soap, Shampoo, Lip Balm, Eye Drops, Contact Solution, Bug Spray, Calling Cards, Black Socks, Band Aids, Neosporin, Writing Paper and Envelopes, Stamps, Cookies, and Candy. Monetary donations can also be made to help with the cost of shipping the items.

Planting the right tree in the right place.

The right landscaping requires careful planning. Trees and shrubs planted in the wrong place can cause power outages or other hazards. Make sure you plant trees that won't grow into overhead power lines. Keep shrubs at least 10 feet away from electrical equipment and call the local underground line locating service before you dig. Planning ahead helps keep your power flowing safely. AEP is there, always working for you.

For more information about electrical safety, visit aep.com. To locate an underground line call 1-800-245-4545.

Briscoe County 4-H'ers Bring Home Consumer Judging Medals

One hundred twenty-six youth gathered at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center on Saturday, April 5th, to apply their critical thinking and decision making skills gained in the 4-H Consumer Life Skills Project.

Each 4-H member ranked a class of four items from the best choice for their consumer dollar to the least desirable choice. Prior to the contest, youth studied several items to determine which is the best product to purchase in a specific situation. Junior youth, ages 8-10, studied items such as back packs, CD ROMs, insect repellent, sun screen and DVD players. The intermediate, ages 11-13, and senior age groups, ages 14-19, also studied cell phones and pickup trucks. Intermediates and seniors not only rank the items, they also justify them verbally to the judges in a process called oral reasons much like those given in a livestock or dairy cattle judging contest.

In the Intermediate division, Briscoe County team 1 consisting of Seth Fuston, Chancy Campbell, and John Luke Shannon placed 10th overall, and Briscoe County team 2 consisting of Nichole Schott, Townlii Zeigler, and Torrey Fuston tied for 5th place overall. Individually, Townlii Zeigler placed 5th and Nichole Schott placed 7th.

The Junior participants included Khaki Scrivner, Autumn Phillips, and Kelsey Clay whose team claimed medals for the 3rd place team overall. Two other junior teams that participated included Payton Price, Lauren Young, and Jacob Hancock whose team placed 5th overall, and Emily Garcia, Jesse Price, and Tanner Clay whose team placed 11th overall. In the individual ranking, Khaki Scrivner received a medal for 1st place, and Payton Price received a medal for 3rd place. Lauren Young placed 14th overall, and Autumn Phillips placed 15th overall.

4-H Consumer Life Skills Projects are usually conducted in the late fall and early spring in preparation for the contest. However, contact your County Extension office now to get signed up for 4-H and this project. Each year, a group of 8-10 items are studied in preparation for the contest. Contest officials select items that are realistic consumer choices for teens.

All Extension programs including 4-H serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, disability, or national origin.

Veneman Announces Details On Crop Disaster Program

Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman recently announced that more details on disaster program benefits, including the Crop Disaster Program (CDP), are now available for producers. "We are working hard to provide as much information as possible to help eligible producers sign up for these programs," said Veneman.

USDA's Farm Service Agency received over 600 e-mails with questions, suggestions, comments and concerns about the disaster programs, especially the Crop Disaster Program. In response, a significant number of questions have been posted along with answers at <http://disaster.fsa.usda.gov>. As new questions are submitted, frequently asked questions will be updated on a regular basis.

FSA has also posted a two page document that explains the basics of the CDP and how to calculate program benefits. Additionally, a spreadsheet can be downloaded that will calculate potential disaster benefits by entering a few pieces of data about crop losses. The spreadsheet will work for typical crop losses, but not under all circumstances. For example, the current spreadsheet does not handle "prevented planted" or "unharvested" acres, losses for crops with fresh and process markets such as apples, or production that has been affected by quality.

The formulas in the spreadsheet and the answers to the questions are for illustrative purposes and will not be finalized until the regulations are published in the Federal Register. The tools represent the best information available today so producers and lenders may begin to understand how the program will work.

Actual calculations will be performed by the FSA Service Center once sign-up begins on June 6. The USDA Service Centers can also provide additional information once sign-up begins.

Gem Theatre In Need Of New Roof

"Please help us put a new roof on the Gem Theatre!" stated Lawana Cruse, director of Gem Theatre projects. When work started on the Theatre seven years ago the roof was in pretty good shape. But with the passage of time and exposure to the elements, it has now developed more leaks and they are getting bigger every time it rains. "The original historic metal ceiling in the Theatre is much to pretty and to valuable to let anything happen to," said Cruse. This historical Theatre is an asset to the entire area. With this in mind the Gem Theatre is now asking anyone who can, to help by giving a donation, to this worthwhile community project. "We need to raise $6000 as soon as possible, and we plan to have some fund raisers in the near future," stated Mrs. Cruse.

This is a repair that needs to be taken care of as soon as possible to prevent any further damage to the historic structure. All donations will be greatly appreciated. Or if you would like to help with any fund raising activities you can call Lawana Cruse at 423-1273. Donations may be sent to The Gem Theatre Fund, Box 74, Turkey, Texas 79261.

Do Your Homework To Select Best Cotton Varieties

Picking productive cotton varieties is not an easy task, especially on the Texas High Plains, an area where weather can literally "make or break" a crop. A Texas Cooperative Extension cotton agronomist advises producers to do their homework by comparing several characteristics among many different varieties, and then keying these characteristics to typical growing conditions.

"We can't control our growing environment from year to year, but we can select the varieties we plant based on positive traits," said Randy Boman, Texas Cooperative Extension cotton agronomist. "It is very important to select and plant varieties that fit your farm, varieties with the genetic potential to achieve good lint quality and total yield."

2002 was another year of above normal heat unit accumulation and favorable harvest conditions on the Texas High Plains. This weather favored many of the longer season, open boll type cottons that have gained popularity in recent years, he said.

"Last year's crop totaled just over 3.27 million bales, the fourth largest crop we have seen since 1977. As a whole, that crop had good color and leaf grades, low bark percentage, and better average staple length and micronaire averaged just over 4.3, the second highest micronaire value on record. Only the 2001 crop had a higher micronaire value, it's average was 4.4."

High micronaire combined with short staple length can result in substantial discounts in growers' USDA loan value on some standard stripper type cotton varieties. Some longer season, open boll picker type cottons did not have micronaire values or staple length worthy of discounts, Boman said.

Even so, growers should not plant fence-row to fence-row with one type of cotton, he added.

County Extension agents can advise growers on variety performance in local field trials. The Plains Cotton Improvement Programs (PCIP) replicated large plot systems variety trials, sponsored by Plains Cotton Growers and Cotton Inc., also contain good baseline information, the agronomist said.

"The variety trials conducted by John Gannaway, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station cotton breeder, at Lubbock and many other High Plains sites is another good source of comparison information," Boman said. "It is best to consider multi-year and multi-site performance averages, when they are available. At the same time, there are many new varieties appearing on the scene that have not undergone multi-year university testing."

Yield potential is probably the single most important agronomic trait in producers' minds, but growers should also give significant consideration to lint quality.

"We sell pounds of lint, but the value of each pound is a function of fiber quality, so these two characteristics are closely linked to profitability. But we also want to consider adaptability" Boman said. "Many long season picker cottons are better adapted to areas with longer growing seasons, but some of these varieties have produced record yields and quality on the Plains, due to extremely warm September weather in recent years."

"Growers who made record yields with those varieties had above normal heat accumulation. They also terminated irrigation and applied harvest aids, defoliants/dessicants. In a timely fashion, and they got their crop out of the field early."

Even when growers can catch a "run of good weather," they should not leave open boll picker cottons in the field until a freeze conditions the plants for harvest. Unacceptable preharvest lint loss is likely to result, the agronomist said.

"On the other hand, the storm proof stripper varieties are more suited to our harvesting conditions, and they are more likely to survive damaging weather at harvest without considerable lint loss," Boman said. "Check the storm-proofness of any variety on your potential planting list. If you do choose an open boll picker variety, plan and budget ahead for a good harvest aid program that will let you achieve an early harvest."

"Don't be caught with lots of lint in the field, but no chance of harvest due to inclement weather."

The value of transgenic varieties is another consideration. Growers should consider varieties bred for herbicide tolerance, and/or insect resistance, Roundup Ready, BXN, Bollgard, only if this technology is a bargain compared to typical traditional weed or insect control costs for a specific field, he said.

The jury is still out on the value of Bollgard in the High Plains, because our bollworm and budworm pressure is generally light," Boman said. "The inherent agronomic performance of some Bollgard+Roundup Ready "stacked gene" varieties may simply be better than some Roundup Ready cottons, even though both have the same genetic background."

"When we think of disease, resistance to diseases such as verticillium or fusarium wilt, bacterial blight and root-knot nematodes is a desirable trait for most of the High Plains."

Regardless of how they prioritize agronomic traits/qualities, growers should strive for diversity when selecting cotton varieties.

"Don't plant the entire farm to only one variety of cotton" Boman concluded. "Matching varieties and transgenic technologies to specific fields will help you spread production risk. It is simply good management."

Growers can obtain a copy of Gannaway's 2002 Cotton Performance Tests in the High Plains and Trans-Pecos Areas of Texas, or the PCIP's System Agronomic and Economic Evaluation of Transgenic and Conventional Cotton Varieties in the Texas High Plains, from their county Extension agent or from Texas A&M's Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Lubbock 806-746-6101.
