FARMERS NOT TO BLAME FOR HIGH FOOD PRICES SAYS A & M ECONOMIST

Don't blame the farmer for higher food prices. In fact, explains Dr. Wm. E. Black, extension economist at Texas A&M University, farmers are the consumers' best friend.

The American agricultural industry, he points out, continues to produce more than commercial markets will absorb at prevailing prices and they can do even better if the situation should warrant.

This unparalleled production has kept food prices from rising higher than they are while the prices received by the farmer have averaged no more, most often considerably less, than those of 20 years ago, says the economist.

But, he adds, the food marketing bill has more than doubled in the last 20 years. And there are lots of reasons. The increased population has upped the volume of food marketing by more than one-third. Marketing services have jumped by one-half because consumers want and are getting more sorting, grading, trimming, packaging, processing and storage, more built-in conveniences and they are eating more and more away from home.

He also noted that labor costs account for nearly half of the total food marketing bill — have doubled. New plant and equipment costs along with transportation, materials for packaging, interest, rent and taxes keep climbing as do production costs for the farmer. Our agricultural producers, he emphasized, are striving to meet this price-cost squeeze by producing more at lower cost and are today the most efficient producers in the nation. They too are pushing hard for more efficient marketing and product promotion, Black says.

Consumers continue to be favored by increasing incomes while farm income lags. Despite higher food prices, consumers spend less of their incomes for food than any time in history and are getting the best, says the economist.

For comparison, consumers might ponder these figures, suggests Black. For all items except food, the cost has increased 42 percent; transportation is up 60 percent; housing 42 percent; rent 52 percent and medical care 86 percent while all food, including eating away from home, has increased about 37 percent over the past 20 years, says Black.

It's Black's contention that consumers should be ever grateful to this nation's agricultural produc-

Service Held Friday For Mrs. Pierce

Funeral services for Mrs. Annie Camilla Pierce, 90, a Turkey resident since 1905 were held at the Church of Christ in Turkey at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, July 11.

Holland of Austin; a sister, Mrs. Lizzie Johnson of Turkey; forty grandchildren, 73 great-grandchildren and six great-great-grandchildren.

Turkey Man Injured In Traffic Accident

Teddy Chapman, 38, of Turkey was still in the Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo with jaw fractures and a broken wrist suffered Saturday, July 5 when his pickup truck hit an embankment north of Turkey on State 8E.

Chapman, an employee of Mullin Drilling Contractors, was reportedly returning to Turkey from a company inspection trip when the crash occurred. A witness said the southbound truck swerved to avoid an oncoming car.

ers who have stayed on the job, cutting expenses wherever and whenever possible and putting on the dinner tables of this nation the finest food in the greatest abundance ever known. Black doesn't believe many consumers would be willing to trade places with a farmer in order to have an opportunity to share the odds a farmer faces every day in the operation of his business.

COMMUNITIES OFFERED THE TECHNOLOGY OF COMPUTERS

The Texas Industrial Commission is offering every community across the state the modern technology of computers in seeking new industry.

"This new program will give Texas communities a rifle rather than shotgun approach in attracting industry," Chester Wine of Corpus Christi, chairman of the Industrial Commission, said in announcing the recently approved plan using existing computers owned by the state.

The Industrial Commission offered use of the four phase program to Chambers of Commerce across the state recently in asking Chamber managers to assist as Computer Program Evaluators.

"By serving as evaluators, local leaders will have the opportunity to get a comprehensive look at the program being developed before its introduction later this year," Wine said.

Four basic programs are to be offered in the industry-attracting plan. It will give communities an instant site location service for national companies seeking to locate branch plants in Texas; printouts for existing Texas companies of the export potential for their products; matching of location resources with location requirements for each of the more than 400 specific types of industry; and studies for communities to compare their facilities with other cities of similar size.

The site location service will provide manufacturers with the opportunity to specify up to 700 requirements for characteristics the company considers suitable for location of a new plant. Given these requirements, the computer would scan the bank of information on every town in Texas, pulling out the specifications requested.

Texas manufacturers can check their export potential through a printout of overseas countries in which their particular product is in demand, and information on the value in that particular market with names and addresses of contacts in the markets.

Communities can take advantage of the candidate industry phase of the program, checking to determine which types of industry they would most likely attract, and names and addresses of national concerns in these areas. Communities will also be able to request a printout comparing

Bar Association Honors Hightower

The State Bar of Texas has honored State Senator Jack Hightower of Vernon "for his interest, support and untiring efforts" on behalf of the legal organization.

Hightower was presented an engraved metal plaque by the Bar's past president, Ralph W. Britz of San Antonio, "in grateful appreciation for his distinguished service to the people of Texas . . . and for his sponsorship of legislation proposed by the State Bar in the public interest and for the improvement of the administration of justice."

Hightower represents 21 counties of the 30th Senatorial District. He heads the Senate committee on contingent expenses, is vice-chairman of the committee on constitutional amendments and is a member of these committees: education, claims, finance, jurisprudence, oil and gas, state affairs, transportation, water and conservation and youth affairs.

PLAINVIEW MUSICAL GROUP RECORDS NEW POSSIBLE HIT

Harry Bray, a former resident of Turkey and Quitaque now of Plainview, and his musical group that call themselves The Wheels, have wheeled out a new record release that only time can tell if it is to be a hit or not; but its composer and recorder has enough confidence to believe that it will be.

In the meanwhile, he hopes many people will listen to the instrumentation and vocal of "When Gabriel Blows His Horn" and on the flip side a love ballad, "A Drink of Mescal Wine." Both words and music were composed by Bray who cut the record while directing and playing with the three other members of his group in his under-local facilities such as hospitals, recreational areas, community services, etc., with cities of similar size. This phase of the program will allow communities to establish specific goals for improving their attractiveness to industry in the next decade.

Cities wishing to serve as Computer Program Evaluators should contact the Texas Industrial Commission, Sam Houston State Office Building, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711.

Annual Family Night for the Quitaque Lions and their families will be held Monday night, July 21 at 8:00 p. m.

Texans Vote August 5 On Water Bonds

Texans will vote August 5 on a proposed constitutional amendment to authorize the state to issue $3.5 billion in bonds to pay its share of the plan to provide water for Texas to the year 2020. A big part of the money would be earmarked for 67 new dams and reservoirs and other new construction projects.

There will also be eight other proposed constitutional amendments on which voters will make a decision, but the water bonds are taking the spotlight in this area.

It is said that Texas won't have enough water by the time today's teenagers are middle-aged. It is hard to realize what this means to Texans. Many haven't even imagined such a serious situation, because when the tap is turned, the water now flows. What if it were rationed the year around and the people were allotted a certain small amount for drinking and washing?

What if there was no water for recreation?

Texas' water planners have suggested ways to insure fresh water for the state to the year 2020. By then, they estimate, Texans will need 32 million acre-feet of surface and ground water a year. One acre-foot is 325,851 gallons.

"In just 31 years, Texas will pass from water sufficiency to water deficiency unless we take positive and affirmative action now," Governor Preston Smith told 500 Texans who have pledged to work for approval of amendment number two on the August 5 special election ballot.

The amendment would authorize $3.5 billion in bonds to help finance the Texas Water Plan, to match about $5.5 billion in federal funds.

"Our concern is not limited to this generation alone," Smith said. "It extends to generations yet unborn."

A large share of the money—some $2.4 billion—would be spent on 67 new dams and reservoirs, to be built as the need arises, and two salt barriers to go along with Texas' 157 "major" reservoirs—those with a conservation storage capacity of at least 5,000 acre-feet. They will be financed by a combination of federal, state and local funds. The proposed reservoirs, by river basins, and costs are:

- Red, $90.5 million, Lelia Lake Creek, Sweetwater Creek, Ringgold, Bonham (Bois d'Arc), Big Pine, Pecan Bayou, Liberty Hill and Barkman Creek.
  - Sulphur, $242.3 million
  - Cypress, $91.2 million
  - Sabine, $242.9 million
  - Neches, $210.3 million
  - Trinity, $331.8 million
  - San Jacinto, $77.8 million
  - Brazos, $257.8 million
  - Colorado, $298.4 million
  - Lavaca, $56.8 million
  - Guadalupe, $240.5 million
  - San Antonio, $93.6 million
  - Nueces, $153 million
  - Costa, $24.2 million.
- Salt water barriers are proposed for the Sabine and Neches river basins, but no locations have from the Northeast Texas basins been proposed.

All the cost estimates are based on December 1967 prices.

"Dam and reservoir sites in Texas are becoming scarce and costly to develop, and must be preserved and developed to maximum advantage," the water development board noted.

A canal beginning on the Sabine River north of Orange would supply water for municipal, industrial and irrigation use and "for preservation or enhancement of the bays, estuaries and wildlife refuges in the coastal area of the state between Sabine River and the Lower Rio Grande Valley," terminating near Raymondville. The coastal system also would include reservoirs and conveyance works to supply future supplemental water needs of Houston and San Antonio metropolitan areas.

A Trans-Texas Canal beginning at the Upper Sulphur River and ending near Lubbock on the High Plains would supply water for the Dallas-Fort Worth area, North Central Texas, the High Plains, the Trans-Pecos area, El Paso and on into New Mexico.

Other projects would be needed to move water imported from out-of-state to the Trans-Texas and Coastal Divisions.

Plans call for the first delivery of surplus water through the coastal canal to the Lower Valley in 1980; delivery of surplus water to the High Plains in 1985; and the first delivery of imported water through the Coastal and Trans-Texas facilities in 1988.

The water development board act specifies that needs within a basin will have an absolute priority for 50 years before the water may be exported. Demands of intra-basin requirements will be met on a "100 per cent firm basis" before any exportation.

Also envisioned as part of the overall plan are large-scale regional systems to collect, treat and dispose of municipal and industrial wastes, structures to obtain better circulation of tides, improve channels and levees, provide drainage and protect coastal areas from hurricanes.

Tragedies In Quitaque Area THE "VALLEY OF TEARS" IS RECALLED HERE

It was called "Valle de las Lagrimas"—Valley of the Tears.
 Its location was in "Quitaque Territory," an area bordered by Palo Duro Canyon on the North, the Pease River on the South, Tulia on the West and Turkey on the East.

This is broken country, full of hideout sites and sheer rock-ribbed canyons that empty out onto rolling ranch land.

Once the savage Comanche lurked here, and so did the stealthy Comanchero.

Here on Los Lingos Creek was a trading point for Indians and Comancheros, dark, swarthy men of Mexican descent.

At this site, thousands of cattle that had been stolen by the Indians were traded to the Coman-cheros.

The Comancheros themselves admitted trading for more than 300,000 head of stolen cattle. Also, they probably transported more than 100,000 head of stolen horses into New Mexico during the period that the trade flourished.

Southwest of Quitaque on the J. R. Stroup Ranch is the site that is known as "Valley of the Tears."
 Here is the sad story of how the grim basin got its name:

In the 1850s and 1860s, when the Indian tribes were dealing death and destruction all over the

Claude C. Wilson Died Sunday

Just before going to press with this issue of The Tribune it was learned that Claude C. Wilson, 63, had died Sunday at his home in Turkey following a long illness.
 Funeral services were held at 4 p.
 m. Monday at the Church of Christ at Turkey, with the minister, Jack Hutton, officiating.

Burial was in Dreamland Cemetery under the direction of Seigler Funeral Home.

A complete obituary will appear in next week's issue of The Valley Tribune.

area, many times white women and children were captured.

Mounted behind braves, the captives were taken on wild horseback rides to the breaks of the Quitaque, usually ending up on the spot later to become known as "Valley of the Tears."

Here, in this lonesome setting, children were jerked from their mothers and traded to the Coman-cheros or other Indian tribes.

Some unknown person, after hearing the wailing of mothers who were seeing their children for the last time, first came up with the name "Valle de las Lagrimas" or "Valley of the Tears."

Shirttail Sermon

A hunter raised his gun and took careful aim at a big bear. When about to pull the trigger, the bear spoke in a soft soothing voice, "Isn't it better to talk than to shoot? What do you want? Let us negotiate the matter."

Lowering the rifle, the hunter replied, "I want a fur coat."

"Good," said the bear, "that is a negotiable question. I only want a full stomach, so let us negotiate a compromise."

They sat down to negotiate and after a time the bear walked away alone. The negotiations had been successful. The bear had a full stomach, and the hunter had his fur coat.

We live in an age of compromise. Satan says, "Let's negotiate." But there are some things which cannot be compromised. If we try to compromise with sin, we deceive ourselves and fall into a snare which will destroy us.

Proverbs 6:27 asks the question, "Can a man take fire into his bosom, and his clothes not be burned?" Galatians 6:7-8 states emphatically, "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to the flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting."

"Abstain from the very appearance of evil" (I Thess. 5:22). Don't compromise with evil!

TURKEY BOARD OF TRUSTEES CALLS TAX ELECTION

On Monday evening, July 7, 1969, the Turkey School Board of Trustees set Saturday, July 26, as an election day to vote on Senate Bill No. 116. When passed this would permit the Board to set the tax rate, not to exceed $1.50 for maintenance and $ .50 for bonded indebtedness.

For the 1969-70 school term, the rate would probably be $1.75 which would be a 16 2/3 percent increase based on present value.

NEWS from the High Plains
Research Foundation

Early visual results of a planting process that could reduce the cost of annual seedbed preparation and substantially reduce the number of manhours required for establishing a crop looks encouraging at the High Plains Research Foundation at Halfway.

Dennis Mooney, assistant agronomist, explained that the study involves planting cotton and grain sorghum in crop stubble that remain from last season's crop with no seedbed preparation.

In two separate studies at the Foundation, cotton has been planted single-row between two rows of grain sorghum stubble shredded to about 4 inches in height. Double-row sorghum has also been planted on cotton stubble with no seedbed preparation.

Mooney reports that the cotton in the study, planted May 19, looks as good as Foundation cotton planted a week earlier. One and one-half pints of Paraquat combined with 1.5 pounds of Caparol in 30 gallons of water were sprayed on the cotton immediately after planting to control weeds. Mooney said the contact herbicide provided 100 percent initial control, but that some regrowth has occurred recently.

The only problem encountered in planting in the sorghum stubble seedbed was trash preventing penetration of the double disk planter. Mooney solved this problem by putting a 6 inch sweep ahead of the planter to move this trash out of the way.

In the sorghum study 1.5 pounds of Propazine plus 1.5 pints of Paraquat in 30 gallons of water per acre were applied immediately after planting to control weeds. "For some unknown reason, the weed kill was not as effective in the cotton stubble as in the sorghum stubble as in the grain stubble," Mooney said. He pointed out that the herbicides effectively controlled small weeds, but the control of some larger weeds was not total in the sorghum study. Wind and sand protection provided for the seedling cotton by the 4 inch grain sorghum stubble is expected to be the most important part of the entire study. Damage to seedling cotton by sand and wind is one of the greatest hazards faced by cotton producers and the sorghum stubble has so far provided complete protection.

One explanation to the encouraging results is offered by Dr. Tom Longnecker, Foundation Director. He said that grain sorghum roots equal in weight the above ground part of the plant and these roots in the soil provide a better seedbed than can be produced by mechanical means.

"We are encouraged that this can become a practical way of planting cotton and sorghum in this area, thereby saving farmers the usual $15 to $18 per acre seedbed preparation cost," Longnecker said.
