number of wells pumping irrigation water increases every year. Growers continue to adjust irrigation practices in order to make more efficient use of available water. For many farmers this means watering fewer acres. Whether your interest in irrigation stems from a farming enterprise, commercial business, or some other, Cook emphasizes that the 1969 High Plains Irrigation Survey has up-to-date irrigation information for you. Call or go by the County Extension Office for a copy of it.

HIGH PLAINS IRRIGATION SURVEY NOW AVAILABLE

Facts and figures that describe irrigation in Briscoe and 41 other High Plains counties are now available from Kenneth D. Cook, County Agricultural Agent. Cook says these irrigation facts are published each year by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in the High Plains Irrigation Survey.

Although special emphasis is placed on 1969 irrigation, long term trends for major crops, number of wells, pumping capacities, term trends for major crops, number and irrigated acreage are also included in the survey. This information is combined to show changes that have taken place in High Plains Irrigation over the years, adds the agent.

In Briscoe County, approximately 960 wells pumped water to significantly to crop production and 55,000 acres of thirsty crops during 1969. In addition to the wells, 46 tailwater pit and playa lake pumps were used. These two low-lift water sources offer economical irrigation and contribute significant water conservation. More playa lake water should be used for irrigation, says Cook.

Of the major crops in Briscoe County, Cook points out that 25,000 acres of grain sorghum, 12,000 acres of wheat, and 11,000 acres of cotton were irrigated during 1969. These acreages alone show the importance of Briscoe County irrigation.

Additional income from irrigating these and other crops contribute heavily to the county economy. Irrigation water, continues Cook, contributes heavily to the wealth of many people in the county, whether received directly by farmers or indirectly through other businesses and employment.

A point of major concern to all of us, cautions Cook, is that an average of 164 acres were irrigated by each well in 1950, 93 in 1960, and only 57 in 1969. The

Mrs. J. C. Franks read the Scripture from Isaiah 9:2-6 and Luke 2:7-20. Mrs. E. D. Bilberry read "Gentle Mary", followed by the group singing "Silent Night." Mrs. L. B. Turner presented the reading "No Room In The Inn." Gifts were exchanged and refreshments of iced punch, candy, cookies, cake and coffee were served.

Those present were Mmes. Malcolm Turner, L. B. Turner, H. S. Gilbert, L. E. Shorter, L. D. Bilberry, Allie Pritchett, Harrison George, Billy Roys and children, J. C. Frank, W. W. Merrell, Ralph Stapleton, Wade Martin, Fred McNeely, R. I. Thomas, J. L. Speer, Edith Washington, Dan Kingston, Ronald Clay, M. C. Washington, and Ernest Fisher of Matador.

The choir of the First Baptist Church of Flomot presented a special Christmas program Sunday, December 21, at 7:30 p. m. to the church members and visitors.

The first number by the choir was "Silent Night". This was followed by a Scripture reading by Dan Kingston of Luke 2:1-14. While the choir hummed, Mrs. Clayton Bond sang a solo, "While Shepherds Watched their Flock by Night." Mrs. Wayne Hunter recited the poem "There Will Always Be A Christmas", while the choir sang "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing", "Away In A Manger", "Gentle Mary Laid Her Child," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "O Come, All Ye Faithful", "Joy to the World", "I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day", "There's A Song In the Air", and "Good Christian Men Rejoice". As the choir sang the last song the smaller children knelt before a picture of the manger scene, drawn by Rev. Leo Cole.

Choir members were Dan Kingston, David Hunter, Anita Hunter, Donna Cole, John Cole, Bob Cole, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Kingston, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Bond, Miss Judy Shorter, and Mrs. Dan Kingston playing the piano.

Following the special music at the church, the choir and children went on a carol-sing around the community. This was followed by a party for the small children and was held in Fellowship Hall. Refreshments of cake, cookies, punch, and coffee were served.

Santa Claus appeared with bags of candy for the children.

College students home for the holidays are Miss Judy Shorter from Texas Tech; Bob and John Cole from Clarendon; Anita Hunter from Wayland Baptist College; and Coy Franks from Texas Tech.
