Champs Fall To Rockettes As Boys Win Over Rockets

The Valley High School basketball teams drove over to Wellington Tuesday night for a pair of district contests, the girls intent on taking a strangle-hold on the first round of play, and the boys hanging in with a chance at the title.

Things did not go quite as expected, however, as the Rockettes handed the Valley girls their first loss of the season in district play and only the second team to win over the Valley team all season. Canyon has won over Valley twice earlier in the season. The score in the Wellington-Valley game was 33-32.

The Patriots, who are surprising people this year, took a hard-earned win over the Rockets and now stand 4-2 in district, with losses only to front-running Memphis and Claude. The girls are now 5-1 in district and are tied with McLean for the lead.

Thursday night of last week the local teams hosted Claude and split with the school, the girls struggling to a 26-22 win over the Mustangettes while the boys dropped a spine-tingler 52-53 loss to the Mustangs.

The Valley girls, although managing to win, have been struggling since the finals of the Floydada tournament when they scored only 20 points the first three periods of play. They sort of broke out of the slump in the last period of that game when they dumped in 19 points. They barely edged Matador by three points in their next outing, then could only score 26 points against Claude and only a super job by the guards saved them in that one. The Valley girls won over Wheeler last Saturday night by a 56-24 score.

Cookie Dowd with 10 points captured scoring honors in the Claude contest. In the Wheeler game Janna Turner and Mitchie Lipscomb shared scoring honors with 12 each, Cookie Dowd getting 8, and Bonnie Clary, switching over to forward for just a few minutes in the final quarter, hit for 6 points while Eva Cheatham was held to only 2 points.

Eva was high in the Wellington game with 11 points. Mitchie Lipscomb and Janna Turner are both playing with hurt knees and this has slowed the girls offense down to a certain extent. However, Tuesday night's loss to the Rockettes probably means that the Patriots must win the remainder of the games in district to win the district title for McLean defeated Claude last week and looks like the most serious threat for they have a very fine team and are going to be hard to beat.

Ricky Hall hit for 14 points to lead the scoring parade in the Claude encounter, and every player on the squad hit the scoring column in this game, which was close all the way. The Patriots led 14-12 at the first quarter, the score was tied at 24 at halftime, and Claude was ahead 37-36 at three quarters. In the final quarter the count was tied four times and the game went right down to the final buzzer before the winner was known. Dee Whittington suffered an injured knee in that game.

The Wheeler game was never much of a contest as the Patriots jumped into a 19-8 first period lead and led it all the way. Pepper Jones led the scoring parade in that one with 13 points.

The local teams wind up the first half of the district play Friday when they host Silverton in a pair of district contests. Tuesday night of next week comes the task of (for the girls) winning again over the McLean teams. If the Valley girls' hurts can heal and they can get it all back together again, they can take a giant step toward making another trip to the playoffs. The Valley boys won over the Tigers last time rather easily but it will be tougher in Tiger country.

Scott Honored By Panhandle Sport Hall of Fame Sunday

Valley's George Scott, whose girls' basketball team surprised the Panhandle and state last year, and Spearman's Leann Shield-knight, the area's most prolific scorer last season, Sunday were honored in basketball by the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame.

The ceremonies, held in Amarillo College's Badger Gym, were scheduled to begin at 2:00 p.m.

Scott, a two-time all-state basketball player at McAdoo, took the reigns of Valley High School's girls' team last season and guided the squad into the state Class A tournament finals before it lost a two-point decision to Grandview.

Scott's coaching achievement was considered highly unlikely since Valley was in its first year as a consolidated school for the communities of Quitaque and Turkey, both rivals through the years.

Valley's girls also had to overcome Claude, traditionally one of the Panhandle's most successful teams and the defending state champion. Valley defeated Claude by a point in a special playoff game to decide the playoff representative and continued impressively enroute to a 31-7 season.

A basketball lecturer at last summer's annual convention of the Texas High School Girls Coaches Association in Brownwood, Scott molded together a starting unit comprised of five underclassmen and one senior. Valley was particularly effective defensively, allowing only an average 30.2 points per game in the state playoffs. Enroute to the state finals, Valley defeated Sunray 54-30, in the bi-district game, then won the regional tournament with victories over Vega (42-33) and Abilene Wylie (47-26), then eliminated Cooper 29-23 in the state tournament semifinals before losing 39-37 to Grandview. Grandview had been averaging almost 90 points a game going into the championship finals.

Thus, Valley, not even favored to win its district crown, reached the state tournament's championship finals in its first year as a high school.

Scott, who still holds the boys Class B state tournament record for most points scored in a single game (43), coached the previous two seasons at Turkey High School. He coached a year at Flomot and two years at Gruber before moving to Turkey.

The McAdoo all-stater also played four years of basketball at West Texas State University.

"I hadn't even thought about it (the honor)," said Scott. "I was real surprised when I heard it. It'd have to be the very highest honor I've received as a coach."

"All the credit will have to go to the girls though. We had no problems whatsoever. They were thinking of mutual goals, and that was winning. I thought our guards did a real fine job, especially on helping out on the big girls. Our forward press caused a lot of turnovers, and they didn't get the ball as much because of it."

SHIRTTAIL SERMON

by Rev. Sid Parsley
Methodist Church, Quitaque
"Because that, when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful; but became vain in their imaginations, and their foolish heart was darkened. For the wrath of God is revealed from Heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who hold truth in unrighteousness."
Romans 1:18

The world is in a turmoil with the mid-east war, fuel shortage, paper shortage, and food shortage. This crisis reaches into the heart of our nation. Our freedom is being challenged, the principle upon which our nation was founded. The integrity of our government officials from city, to state, through national is being questioned. Many individuals are confused as to what to do and where to turn.

As a nation, we are under the wrath of God. A nation founded on Christian principles, which has turned from God. Our need is reformation and revival. Reformation refers to restoration of the pure doctrine, teaching of the Holy Scriptures. Revival refers to the restoration of the Christian life, a life in proper relationship to the Holy Spirit. A combination of these would bring about a constructive revolution in our day and fulfill our needs as a nation.

In Jeremiah's day there was plenty of external religion; but it did not remove the judgment of God. It is time you and I stopped playing church and return to the worship of God in the true spirit. In Jeremiah's day they worshipped false gods. In our day we have turned to false theology, which is as bad as their false gods.

God is a God of grace; but He is also the God of Judgment. The time has come when we must talk about the judgment of God. We must face the fact that our nation stands under the judgment of God; we must proclaim the message with tears and give it with love. Modern man knows something is wrong. Through this crisis we are called to reevaluate our lives and turn to Him who is our source and refuge. "But my God shall supply all your needs." Phil. 4:19

The local Junior High teams traveled to Clarendon last Friday for both A and B team girls and boys games. The girls were able to come out with two big wins but the boys didn't quite get it all together during the A team game. The B team boys were able to come from behind in the fourth quarter and win.

The first game ended with the Valley B team winning by the score of 45-6. Peggy Shannon led in scoring with 14 points, Paula Lipscomb was next with 9, Laura Fuston and Maria Valdez each got 6, Brenda Coker and Carla Meyers 4 apiece and Leanda Campos had 2 to round out the scoring.

The A team girls took the court next and bombed the Clarendon girls 80-16. At the end of the first period Valley led 30-0 and at half-time 60-5. At that point Joan Turner had 30 points to her credit, Sherice Price had 23 and Marlene Cawley 2. These girls then played

ESTABLISHING GRASS HAS LONG BEEN PROBLEM

According to David Seitz of the Soil Conservation Service, establishing grass on high saline soils (alkali flats) has long been a problem to many local ranchers that have land with saline soil and a high water table.

Seitz stated that Zack Fisher's ranch had 154 acres of cropland with high saline soil. The previous owner had tried drainage ditches to help solve the problem. Fisher tried to continue cropping the land but all the crops that were tried failed. Cotton, feed grain, alfalfa and even Midland Bermuda proved a failure.

guard the last half and Jill Eudy added 12 points, Mary Scoggins had 11 and Renee Smith 2.

The B team boys led by Larry Curry with 14 points, defeated the Bronchos 34-24. Darrell Dowd scored 8, Jeff Crump 4, Beegie Pierce 3, Vance Price and Otis Holman 2 each and Jon Davidson 1.

The last game between the A team boys was one of frustrations for the Valley boys as they just couldn't seem to put the ball in the basket. Jeff Crump and Randy Woods both had 4 points, Kirk Proctor had 3 and Kenneth Helms 2 in their 13-30 loss.

Fisher, according to Seitz, considered establishing alkali sacaton since it and inland saltgrass were native on the adjoining rangeland. As a trial, Fisher did brush control on the adjoining area to remove salt cedar and began practicing good management practices such as fertilizing, mowing, temporary fencing and rotating grazing. However, he still was not satisfied with the production of alkali sacaton on the bottomland site.

In the fall of 1972 with the recommendation of SCS specialists, 104 acres of Kentucky 31 Tall Fescue was planted. Moisture condition was good and a fair stand was established. The area was not grazed and in early summer a hay crop was removed. Kentucky 31 is a cool season grass which is green all winter.

Seitz said that in the fall of 1972, the fescue looked good enough that another 54 acres were planted and several bare areas in the original planting were overseeded. The 1973 planting has proved very successful and has an excellent stand. Through this pasture establishment, in conjunction with other good conservation practices such as brush control, cross fencing, installation of livestock water pipeline and facility, good range management and a planned grazing system, Fisher believes that he has doubled the carrying capacity of his ranch in the last five years.

CONSERVATION FARMING TO SAVE TRACTOR FUEL

A new conservation farming technique saved an estimated 1.8 million gallons of tractor fuel in Texas this year, reports an official of the U. S. Conservation Service. Edward E. Thomas, state conservationist for SCS in Temple, said minimum tillage farming systems eliminated an average of five tractor trips per acre during 1973 on about 334,000 acres of cropland. "A tractor burns about a gallon of fuel per acre for the average farming operation," Thomas said. "Eliminating five tractor trips per acre reduces fuel consumption by five gallons of gasoline or diesel per acre."

To haul 1.8 million gallons of fuel in railroad tank cars would require a train nearly two miles long. Thomas predicted even greater fuel savings in the future as more farmers turn to the new system. "The practice is still a long way from being perfected," Thomas admitted. "But we've come a long way in the last three years. If similar gains can be made in the next few years, conservation farmers will be able to make a major contribution in helping ease the energy crunch."

With minimum tillage, crops are planted directly into the stalks and leaves left over from the previous crop without prior land preparation. Herbicides are used to control weeds, cutting out several tractor trips over a field. Some farmers report minimum tillage saves as many as 10 to 12 tractor trips per crop. A statewide average is about half that amount.

The surface cover of dead leaves and stems greatly reduces wind erosion, dust storms, and air pollution. The practice is equally effective in preventing water erosion and sedimentation from cropland. Thomas said one of the big problems with minimum tillage is that surface-applied herbicides used to control weeds don't always work properly on all soils in Texas. He said better, more dependable herbicides adapted to mulch farming are needed.

Thomas credited the state's conservation farmers with helping develop minimum tillage farming systems. "This practice has evolved by trial and error during the last few years," Thomas said. "SCS agronomists, researchers, chemical companies, conservation district leaders, and innovative farmers have all had a part in developing the measure. We only hope continued progress can be made in this field."

STOP WIND EROSION!

The most serious damage from wind erosion is the separation and gradual removal of silt, clay and organic matter from surface soils. Remaining materials may be sandy and infertile. The said often piles up in dunes and presents a serious threat to better lands surrounding it. Soil blowing causes other damage. Crops are often damaged or destroyed by the abrasion of wind-blown soil particles. During dust-storms vehicle accidents are often reported. Duststorms also pollute the atmosphere. This dust is so disagreeable that it is sometimes unbearable for families in the area.

Certain conservation practices can be used to reduce wind erosion in this area. Stubble mulching is one of the most effective ways to control wind erosion and conserve soil moisture. Stubble mulching is the management of plant residues for year-round protection of the soil surface. Hauled-in mulches can be used on cotton land or land that does not have sufficient cover to protect it. Cotton gin trash at a rate of three to five tons per acre will effectively control erosion.

A cover crop can be planted for protection when regular crops are off the land, but also may be planted in strips or between rows to provide protection from wind erosion. Stripcropping can be done to control wind erosion also. This consists of planting crop strips straight and at right angles to the prevailing wind. Stripcropping controls soil blowing by reducing soil avalanching.

With 20 million acres of cropland in Texas, long-term fuel saving possibilities by improved methods of minimum tillage are huge, Thomas pointed out.

Once vegetative cover is depleted, emergency tillage will be necessary. Emergency tillage helps create a rough, cloddy soil surface to resist the force of the wind. It is only a temporary measure because clods readily disintegrate. Emergency tillage must be at right angles to the prevailing winds.
