Valley Boys And Girls Attend Area Track Meets

The Valley boy's attempt for a second straight meet championship came up two points short Saturday at the Miami Invitational Meet.

The two day meet started with the sprint relay making the finals with their best time of the year. The team of Kirk Garner, Bubba Clardy, Jason Smith, and Clay Edwards recorded a time of 44.59 and went on to win the finals with a time of 45.15.

Warren Merrell got things rolling for Valley when he came across the finish line first in the 3200 run with a time of 10:13.45. Bubba Clardy kept his unbeaten mark intact when he won the 100 meters with a time of 11.1. Kirk Garner recorded his personal best in the 300H with a winning time of 40.6. Clay

Edwards felt the hands of defeat for the first time this year when he came in second behind Gruver's McCloy. Edwards time was 23.05. Merrell went on to win the 1600 run with a personal best of 4:29.81.

With Valley leading the meet with 70 points just ahead of Clarendon with 68 and Gruver with 63 a win in the 1600 relay would have given Valley the championship but it was not to be as the team of Garner, Clardy, Edwards, and Stevie Moore came up a little short as they came in third just behind Clarendon. The time was 3:40.5.

Final score of the meet was Clarendon 84, Gruver 83, Valley 82. Other good performances were turned in by Stevie Moore in the high jump as he cleared 5'10. Clay Edwards also came in 5th in the long jump with a jump of 19'7 1/2. Moore and Chad Powell each turned in 57 second 400's. Nathan Davis, Bradley Price, and Bobby Silva each had good times in the 800. Jason Little, Powell, and Manual Silva had good efforts in the field events. Clay Merrell improved his time in the 3200 meter run as he turned in a 11.20 and in the 1600 as he ran a 5.20.

Valley girls turned in a solid effort for the meet. Katy Browning came in 6th in the 200 meter dash with a time of 28.69. Vera Pinkerton came in 6th in the discus with a toss of 85'3.

The Valley boys and girls will travel to Wellman Saturday for their last meet before district. Warren Merrell will run in the Plainview meet Saturday in the AAAAA Division.

the good number of children and youth in attendance.

The banquet meal, prepared by B. J. Griffin, Eunice McFall, and Zeola Taylor, was served by the Valley senior FHA girls.

Following the meal, the Chamber conducted an encouraging program from community leaders. Steve Ulrey brought a report on the goals of the Chamber of Commerce and work accomplished over the past year. Mayor Elgin Conner spoke from the City of Quitauque on the city's commitment to economic development and cooperation with the Chamber to work toward that goal. Carol Stephens spoke from the point of view of a local business person about her vision for the future. Judge Jimmy Burson presented a statement of commitment from Briscoe County.

As I See It!

By Thelma Gafford

If you've missed seeing any of the school kids around, join the club. They have been running in every direction, and for the remaining seven weeks of school, they are going to be very busy with tennis, basketball, track, Ag, FHA, piano, and parties (for the high schoolers). It's hard to believe, but the last 6-weeks of school begins next Friday.

Don't forget the Volleyball Tournament this weekend sponsored by the Valley Booster Club. They have worked very hard to put the tournament together and will be serving up those good ol' hamburgers. Games will be held on Thursday and Friday evenings, and all day Saturday. All proceeds go toward the All-Awards Banquet to be held next month.

I can't wait 'til October to roll around. No, it's not because my son will be moved off to college, nor so I can go to a football game, and no it's not so it'll start coolin' off again, and for sure it's not so I can carve another pumpkin! It's so I can get back that hour of sleep I lost. If I ever needed it, I needed it now. So I've marked my calendar to remember to enjoy that hour, I'd hate to forget about it. Then it really would be lost.

Editor's note: The following reprint from The Memphis Post, March 22, 1990 edited by Ruby Phillips

Many years of frustrating heart-breaking searching placed a spray of flowers on her mother's grave in the Newberry cemetery, Saturday, March 10. Her story began in 1918. Etta Gatlin, a young mother, had a four-year-old daughter with a friend in the A. O. farm to make their home. It was two and one-half miles east of the then thriving Newlin, Texas.

On February 14, 1918, a mother came to a tragic, timely death. Communication slow at the time, and transmission slower. Also, the names and addresses of her relatives were unknown. As a consequence, relatives attended her funeral.

The young couple with a four-year-old girl, Adren Phillips only had one child at the time and gladly brought a tiny, blue-eyed, blond, curly-haired baby home with them. She became a member of the family and plans to adopt soon underway. Progression was slow due to lack of edge of her relatives.

Months later, Gladys, great-uncle, and father-in-law, showed up and announced he had come to take her to live. Since the Phillips family had no legal rights to Gladys, nothing that could be done at that time, no contact could be made with her. It seems that lies where she had gone to live moved frequently. During this period of time, she could not find out anything about her mother. All relatives wanted to feel they were being kind by not talking to her of her mother. It is possible they really know where she was buried as she would, she could locate her.

Gladys Gatlin Miller Ends 72 Year Search For Grave

Editor's note: The following is a reprint from The Memphis Democrat, March 22, 1990 edition.
—by Ruby Phillips Roden

Many years of frustration, and heartbreaking searching ended for Gladys Gatlin Miller when she placed a spray of flowers on her mother's grave in the Newlin Cemetery, Saturday, March 10, 1990.

Her story began in 1918, when Etta Gatlin, a young mother and her four year old daughter moved with a friend to the A. O. Phillips farm to make their home. This farm was two and one-half miles northeast of the then thriving town of Newlin, Texas.

On February 14, 1918, the young mother came to a tragic, and untimely death. Communications were slow at the time, and travel even slower. Also, the names and whereabouts of her relatives were unknown. As a consequence, no relatives attended her funeral.

The young couple with whom the Gatlins had been living did not wish to assume responsibility for a little four year old girl. Adren and Lucy Phillips only had one child at that time, and gladly brought the beautiful, blue-eyed, blond, curly-headed baby home with them. She easily became a member of the family and talk and plans to adopt her were soon underway. Progress in adoption was slow due to lack of knowledge of her relatives.

Months later, Gladys Gatlin's great-uncle, and father of eight children, showed up and announced he had come to take her to his home to live. Since the Phillips family had no legal rights to Gladys, there was nothing that could be done. After that time, no contact could ever be made with her. It seems the families where she had gone to live with moved frequently. She lived with the great-uncle for about a year; after that, she lived with another uncle. Then for a time she lived with a grandmother who was struggling to raise three small children of her own.

Soon she went to live with her father and stepmother. In a short time, her father passed away leaving her with her stepmother. After his death, she lived with various aunts and uncles until her marriage. During this period of time, she could not find out anything about her mother. All relatives appeared to feel they were being kind to her by not talking to her of her mother. It is possible they really did not know where she was buried. So try as she would, she could learn nothing.

Frequently over the years, she would check records and inquire as to where her mother might have been buried. She had no memory of her staying with the Phillips. Therefore, there was a gap in her life she longed to know about.

Through the years, she had managed to keep a postcard with the postmark of Newlin, Texas. Newlin seemed a likely place to search, and as her children grew older, they too joined in the search. Somehow, they were put in touch with Annie Hamilton, who keeps records of graves at Newlin. However, she was unable to help. They checked death records in both Hall and Childress Counties, with no results. Funeral homes were no help. The whole thing seemed hopeless.

In February of 1990, Gladys' youngest daughter, Debra Miller Goff, decided to try one more time to make contact with someone who could furnish information her mother very much wanted and needed. She contacted Annie Hamilton once more.

Annie gave her the name of Ruth Cobb who live in Newlin most of her life. Ruth Cobb could not help, but directed her to Mike Hughes of Childress, a former Newlin resident and history buff. Hughes could not help, but gave her the name of Ruby Phillips Roden.

After fifty or sixty years, she had finally contacted the right person who had information she had searched for so long.

After many telephone calls, and letters back and forth with Ruby, Gladys Gatlin Miller came to the Newlin Cemetery. She tenderly laid a spray of flowers on her mother's grave for the first time in her life.

Since no marker was ever put on the grave, A. O. Phillips told his daughter, Ruby, he was going to take a large gyp rock and place it on the Gatlin grave. It could be identified in future years. Little did he know, that 70 years later it would truly serve its purpose for which it was intended.

In early years, as late as 1918, many times a funeral home was not used. Neighbors came in and bathed and dressed the body. Others made a burial box, while still other neighbors dug a grave.

It is thought, death records were burned in a fire which destroyed a store and office owned by the Newlin Justice of the Peace.

Gladys Gatlin Miller will be returning to the Newlin Cemetery, where she plans to set a proper head stone in the place of the old gyp rock. No doubt she will replace the flowers from time to time.

At long last, the gap in her life has been closed, and she must feel good after so many years of wondering and searching, to finally put her mind at rest.

The Phillips family moved from Newlin to Memphis, and Alvin Phillips and Ruby Roden still make their home there.

Each February 14th had always brought back fond memories of Gladys. For many years they had wondered where she was, and how she was. That too has been resolved.

Salvation Army Locates Missing Persons

Each year, thousands of people return to the Salvation Army's Missing Persons Bureau when they cannot locate someone they love. Missing persons work is one of the Salvation Army's oldest social services programs. Since 1887, The Salvation Army has worked diligently with the resources of agencies nationwide to bring families together again and to promote reconciliation for the greatest good of all concerned.

Last year, 2,492 missing persons were found through the efforts of dedicated Salvation Army staff members who work at the four Salvation Army Missing Persons Bureaus located in the United States.

The Salvation Army's Missing Persons Bureau uses such resources as telephones, computer databanks, and letters to achieve its consistent record of success. According to staff personnel, "practically every other agency or organization dealing with the problem sends people to us."

Confidentiality is critical to the success of the Salvation Army Missing Persons program. When a missing person is found, he or she receives the inquirer's address and telephone number. It is that person, not The Salvation Army, who decides whether or not a reunion will take place.

Anyone wishing more information about services available from the Salvation Army's Missing Persons Bureau should contact: The Salvation Army, National Headquarters, 799 Bloomfield Avenue, Verona, NJ 07044.

It has come to my attention that some of you may have heard rumors about my office being closed during the time that I was off with the back injury I received while at work in the courthouse. It is true that my office was closed, but the duties of that office were never neglected. Helen Crisman was hired as temporary help for me and she was paid for this service with my salary funds which I was no longer drawing. Because this was work related injury, I was paid by workers comp insurance, not county funds. Any person covered by comp insurance is covered by these funds if they are injured while on the job. A recent audit of Hall County reflected a decrease in my salary funds of over $5,000. These facts can and should be checked out with the county judge or feel free to check my ledgers. Anyone should check these facts if they are in doubt. My work has always been and will continue to be done in a timely fashion.

I have been actively conducting the duties of county treasurer for Hall County for two terms and I sincerely want to continue to do so. I have the training it takes to be able to maintain this office. Vote for a conscientious, dedicated, experienced county treasurer who is well able to continue to serve you.

Move Over VCRs, It's Pay-Per-View

You've got the popcorn. The remote control is comfortably in hand as you glide cozily into the easy chair. Now, beam yourself to the video store for a great movie without leaving your living room.

Unless your name is Captain Kirk, the only way to do it is with pay-per-view cable television, a rapidly growing home entertainment phenomenon that turns your home into a personal movie theater, concert hall or sports arena.

There are more than 50 million households wired for cable, and about 12 million are part of advanced "addressable" cable systems which allow pay-per-view subscribers to select special programs instantaneously, either with a telephone call or by pushing a button on the remote control.

Movies, Music and... Mud Wrestling In addition to convenience, blockbuster programming is the most exciting part of pay-per-view. Major music stars-The Who, Rolling Stones, Frank Sinatra, to name a few-are being brought to television exclusively via pay-per-view. Many hit movies debut on pay-per-view just months after first runs in theaters and long before they appear on regular pay TV services like HBO and Showtime.

Let consumers think that movies are the only selections available, how about the superstars of women's wrestling, a unique offering produced especially for pay-per-view.

"Blockbuster sporting events are really what ignited the pay-per-view concept," says Hal Krisbergh, president of Jerrold Communications, which in 1986 launched Cable Video Store, a leading pay-per-view service offered by cable systems nationwide. "Today, virtually anything that's available in a video store can be ordered on pay-per-view. Most local cable operators provide details on how to subscribe to pay-per-view."

Snacking Can Be Good For You

It's so easy to grab a candy bar or munch on some potato chips when between meal hunger pangs strike, but why load your body with empty calories? There are plenty of nutritious and satisfying snacks that are easy to prepare and many others that require no preparation at all.

Next time it's snack time, just say "no" to a candy bar and "yes" to the following appetizing ideas:

- Any kind of fresh fruit
- Unbuttered popcorn
- Dried fruits such as prunes, raisins, or apricots
- Small handful of nuts

- Whole grain bread or apple wedges spread with peanut butter
- Cottage cheese on toasted bread or crackers
- Fruit-flavored yogurt

Or, try Oats and Apple Trail Bars, an easy to prepare snack that starts with a convenient Apple-Cinnamon Muffin Mix.

Oats and Apple Trail Bars 1 package (7 ounces) Martha White Apple-Cinnamon Muffin Mix

- 1/2 cup quick cooking oats
  - 1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter or margarine, melted
  - 1/4 cup chopped nuts
  - 2 tablespoons brown sugar
  - 2 tablespoons honey
- Heat oven to 350°F. Combine all ingredients and stir to blend. Press mixture into an ungreased 9-inch square cake pan. Bake 20 to 25 minutes or until golden brown. Cool 5 minutes and cut into bars or squares while warm. Makes 16 2-inch squares.

For more great recipes made with convenient mixes, write for "Easy Baking," Martha White Kitchen, P.O. Box 58, Dept. 290-D, Nashville, TN 37202.

Pay-per-view turns a home into a personal movie theater.

at 8:00 PM Wednesday? Put down the popcorn and zzzzap, here it comes. Technical advances by Jerrold's Cable Video Store allow you to order a movie virtually seconds before it airs. It's called "impulse."

Subscribers simply check the monthly program guide that comes with their pay-per-view subscription, click a few buttons on the remote and they're all set. The movie automatically registers on their account and comes on at the scheduled time.

"It's the ultimate in simplicity and convenience," adds Mr. Krisbergh. "No trips to the store, no lines to wait in. Best of all, you'll never hear 'Sorry, someone else just rented your movie.' A billion people could literally watch the same video simultaneously."

Pay-per-view services are typically transmitted 24 hours a day, 7 days a week to ensure a constant stream and variety of programming. Cable Video Store, for example, offers 20 to 30 different movies each month, with prices ranging from $0.99 to $3.99. Blockbuster events, such as The Who concert, usually cost more, but can be far less than the cost of a ticket, especially if you want to go at the last minute. Zzzzap!
