of America.
We face the future with warm courage and high hopes.

This is the Future Homemekers of America''s Creed.

Every first Monday in the next month the Turkey Future Home-makers meet and we all say our Creed together. Sometimes I won-der just how many of our members know what the Creed means.

To me the Creed is full of ideas and messages if one will just listen and know what it says.

When our creed says "We have clear consciousness of seeking old and precious values," what does this mean? It means that we are this mean? It means that we are taught and learn from people and things that are considered "old fashioned" and we are aware that many old things are precious to others, just like you have valuables. You should not think this too "old fashioned." 'old fashioned.

"We are the builders of homes for America's future." It is saying that we, the young people, must be good examples and try to make it the best place for ours and others children.

The most important part in our Creed to me is "Homes where truth, love, security and faith will be realities, not dreams," I think this is important because we all want truth, love, security, and faith in our homes. As a Future Homemaker I will try to make this
