The rice section of the bill per-petuates the grave mistake which was made two years ago in repealing a good rice program which farmers had supported and voted for through the years.

"The farm bill, as approved by the Senate and House Agriculture Committees, provides a gigantic windfall to the processors and handlers of farm commodities. By setting loan prices at depressed levels and permitting the import-ation of raw cotton, the internatation of raw cotton, the internat-ional grain traders and cotton sh-ippers are assured of the contin-uation of a high volume of low-priced farm commodities. "Farmers Union commends the handful of members of the Senate and House Agriculture Committees who had the courage to vote against the majority because of the inadequacy of the legislation. #### HIGH PLAINS DIAPAUSE BOLL WEEVIL CONTROL PROGRAM OFFICIALS GEARING UP FOR 1977 ACTIVITIES

Officials of the Diapause Boll Weevil Control program now in its thirteenth year of operation are gearing up for 1977 activities and are optimistic that boll weevil numbers in Texas High Plains cot-ton fields will be significantly reduced from last year's record infestation levels.

Dr. James F. Lester, area ent-omologist for the Texaxs Agricult-ural Extension Service at Lub-bock, says that heavy spring rains delayed cotton operations back three weeks, but that all the signs point to another succesful program.

"According to trapping informa-tion we are receiving from Ron-ney Edwards of the USDA's Plant Protection and Quarantine office in Crosbyton, fewer boll wee-vils are being caught this year than were captured last year," says Leser. One of the earliest emotions a child experiences is fear. And from the first loud noise that awakens him until the moment of his death he knows no day without the recurrence ome foreboding danger.

From the beginning of time religion has been our tested antidote to the poison of fear. In the dark forests of antiquity, on the boiling seas of exploration, in the foxboles of modern strife, men have calmed the body's trembling with the soul's faith. We have faced the unknown, the hostile, through trust in the Known, the Faithful; we have challenged the insurnountable, confident in the power of the Almighty.

How essential, though, that each generation passes on our Faith to the next! Who dares deprive a child of the chance to conquer fear? Who would rob his son's soul of the Christian heritage martyrs died to preserve?

Bring your children to God's House every Sunday.

In the midst of the worst energy crisis this country has ever known a U, S. District Judge has blocked exploration of a potent-ially rich reserve of oil off the East Coast.

The Natural Gas Shortage was brought on by politicans who prohibit drilling in their own states, who ask the courts to bar drilling off the coasts, and who continue to support a misguided system of government regulation.

It simply isn't fair for these politicans to encourage drilling off the Texas Coast, and then block any efforts to drill off their own coast.

It is neither fair nor rational for them to get their gas at a low, subsidized price, while the people of Texas and other producing states pay for virtually all of the natural gas exploration that's being done in this country.

ion that's being done in this country.

Texas has shown, through our experience with off-shore drilling, that it is possible to increase the supply of energy and still protect the environment. In the Gulf Coast Outer Continental Shelf area, from 1971 to 1975 there was no oil spill of more than 50 barrels, even though 4,105 new wells were drilled.

ion is that the driller would have to submit plans for production and development to assure that adequate steps are being taken to protect the environment. I think it is important to determine the extent to which the witholding of natural gas from production in the East and the Midwest has contributed to our Midwest has contributed to our current natural gas shortage.

We Texans are keenly aware that it was this shortage that led to an attempt on the Senate Floor last winter to move into Texas and take away some of the gas for which Texans have ion for a vote on the proposed Beef Market Development Plan, Texas Farmers Union President Jay Naman warns cattle produc-ers to "be sure you know who it is that wants to control your $40 million, why they want it, and what they intend to do with it."

Speaking in behalf of the state-wide general farm organization, Naman claims the Beef Research produce as much as 1.4 billion and Information Act "is vague and unspecific in assuring that of natural gas production that is sorely needed in this time of pay the tab. The only sure thing is that producers themselves will in no way be able to speak out or vote on anything. Special out or vote on anything. Special interest groups deemed 'qualified' by the Secretary of Agriculture will control all the decisions, and one of them in each state stands to get a 10 percent kickback. In Texas, that means some group is in line for around $500,000." Naman noted there has not been enough talk about opposition to the plan, mostly due to general

I blocked that attempt at that time. Now that the crisis has passed for a few months, I think it is essential that non-producing states plan ahead and either drill their own gas, if it is available, or pay a fair price for the gas produced in Texas.

Cotton Injury From Hail

Spring thunderstorms with hail are dealing South Plains cotton severe blows in isolated areas. And farmers, worried that planting deadlines are near, may be quick to react by replanting if they have enough seed. That, says a Texas Agricultural Exten-sion Service agronomist, in many instances may not be the best

"You don't make snap decisions when it comes to hail damage," says Dr. James R. Supak, area specialist for the Extension Service. "It will always appear much worse than the actual damage immediately after the storm. In the case of cotton, the plants have a remarkable canacity to recover.

been hit by hail, and no doubt more will be hit as the season progresses, Supak predicts. If a a producer's crop suffers hail damage, he will have to consider several factors in determining whether to replant. Among these are growth stage, type and extent of the injury and seasonal conditional conditions of the seasonal conditions of the se

A first point to consider, the agronomist says, is how much of the field was damaged. A hall the field was damaged. A faul storm can reduce the plant population to only two seedlings per row foot in 40-inch rows. (about 25,000 to 30,000 plants per acre), and the crop can still produce a normal yield, unless, of course, the crop is peoply distributed or the crop is poorly distributed or has long skips.

Another point in determining whether to replant is how much damage there was to plants. The having only traces of leaves will recover better than those with no leaves. But he emphasizes that a seedling with no leaves can still make a crop.

"However, if the stem is shatt-ered and the bark loosened or broken at points below the leaf buds, then recovery is imposs-ible," the specialist warns. After a hail storm, a sandfighter should be run as soon as poss-lible to revent sand injury to ible to prevent sand injury to vital buds on stubs left in the field. Quite often, he cautions, sand damage after a hall can do as much or more harm to young seedlings than the hail.

Any regrowth hinges either on the sound terminal bud (the growing point) or axillary bud located at the point of leaf attach-

The specialist says that because of the young seedling's ability to recover, hail injury in May or June will cause less yield loss than in July and August when the plants are more mature and replanting becomes impossible. "If the damage is suffered early, a crop can recover to the point that the injured plants are difficult to distinguish from un-damaged plants," he adds. Also young cotton that survives early hail damage is often more mature at first frost than a crop that has been replanted.

"When a cotton field is totally destroyed,"he says, "the producer has no choice but to replant,

DESCRIBES PROTEST MOVEMENT AMONG

STATE FARM LEADER

A protest action by farmers possibly a strike or moratorium on supplies purchases, rallies and demonstrations, has been announced by the Texas Farmers Union Speaking from the Panhandle where the Executive Board of the state-wide general farm organization formed the official resolution of protest, President Jay Naman described the ensuing events.

"We are calling for major am-endments to the four-year omnibus farm bill now before Congress.
We find certain provisions intolerable, such as the importation of raw cotton, grain reserve systems pluses and the resulting low prices, inadequate disaster programs the destruction of the peanut and rice programs, and many other sections which are obviously implmented at the request of trade and processing groups. The lead-ership in Washington has apparently been lobbied into providing a farm bill which benefits comm odity buyers who love cheap prices, trade groups who enjoy prices at a world bargaining level, and political leaders who fear food and fiber inflation. Domestic producers have been fogotten.
"If Congress does not, however, rewrite this bill, we ask the President for a veto and reversion to previous permanent farm legis-

Failing all of that, we find no other alternative than to organize into a posture of protest. If we are to be penalized for efficiency and surpluses, then we must find a way to slow down our production. This could mean an end ion. This could mean an end to purchases of equipment, fertilizer, fuel. . . all supplies. With the losses we are taking this market year, many farmers will not be financially able to buy these supplies anyhow.

"We will do whatever it takes to draw attention to the serious."

to draw attention to the serious problems of farming and the fact that this situation cannot continue. If farmers are an ignored minority group, then we will use all the tools of a minority group to gain a voice before we are all forced out of business.

"Apparently the Administration and Congress are not interested in our need for survival through a fair price. And consumers are likely not interested in anything but the retail price they face.

"If everyone thinks we are going to be the scapegoat for inflation while facing our own huge cost increases in equipment, supplies and labor, they are wrong. Thousands of farmers have been going out of business over the part decade and it's all going. past decade, and it's all going unnoticed while America enjoys the supermarket fantasy of always having plentiful, high quality food special care to withstand hot, dry weather, says a landscape horti-culturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Water is the prime need of young trees during the summer season since a great deal of moist-ure is lost from the leaves and stems," points out Everett Janne. and fiber.

"That is not the reality of farming when we are getting mere pennies of the retail dollar. If you don't want to pay the producer a fair price, don's expect domestic agriculture to survive much

The time has come that we will no longer sit by and ac-cept this. Even our bankers will be behind our protest because they cannot continue to finance a los-ing farm business either. I feel ing farm business either. I feel certain that once this whole thing begins, you will see farmers more unified than they have been since the turn of the century. All segments in the business of agriculture will know we'nce serious. And maybe then something will change. At this point we really don't see any other alligned damage, especially from we really don't see any other al-ternative."

can only use water close by. If this soil area becomes dry, the the entire tree can follow.'

Janne suggests watering at reg-ular intervals all trees planted within the past year. If the soil is sandy, water about once a week; if it is clay or loam, thorough watering every 10 days to two weeks should suffice.

Using an open-end hose, regulate the water flow so there is no run-off and let it run until the so-il around the tree is saturated. To determine whether or not you are supplying the proper amount of water, take soil samples between waterings at depths of 12 to 13 inches; the soil should be moist but not muddy.

"Insect control is also an important part of post planting care of trees," notes the horticulturist. "Since even a light infestation can cause severe damage to a newly planted tree, control mea sures should be taken promptly

ings, voted at a called meeting Tuesday to enter into an agree-ment with Collingsworth County in the use of a two-county detent ion facility to be located at Wel-

The project calls for bringing The project calls for bringing the present Collingsworth County Jail (built in 1963) up to standards set by the Texas Commission of Jail Standards. The officials of the two counties will have to work out a contract suitable to both on the staffing, repair and main-tenance, costs of meals and utilites, and other detention related

The actual motion as passed was as follows: "it is the order of the court that Hall County and Collingsworth County enter into an agreement to bring the present Collingsworth County Jail up to Texas Commission on Jail Standards; and further that the counties work out a contract agreeable to both counties for the staffing, re-pair and maintenance, all costs of meals and utilities, and other detention related supplies."

The Hall County Jail has not been used for the past six or seven years, and Hall County has been paying a daily rate for each prisoner taken to Wellington. Juveniles and most women prisoners have been taken to Childress County jail.

When the present Wellington fac-ility is completed, it will house the women and juvenile prisoners, as well as the male adults.

The multi-county jail has been in the study phase for almost a year. Four counties, Hall, Collingwith Pollow and Whooley 24 years experience. Write Box lingsworth, Donley, and Wheeler, were in the original proposals, b23-2052, or contact the Valley Tribune office, 455-1101 in Quia- en no further action to enter into from the final project. When the four counties were making the study, the architectural firm of Corgan and Associates of Dallas was employed to make the Phase I study > Collingsworth County had obtained a grant of about $12,000 to make the Phase I study. This ounty has also obtained a $14,000 grant for the detailed architectural plans, to be used in Phase II. The final step, termed Phase III, is for the actual building constuction (in this case remodeling of the present facility).

Making the decision to go with mother county was a hard decision for the commissioners to ma-ke, County Judge Lester H. Campbell said. At first, it was not known whether it would be legal to spend county tax money

We wish to take this means to thank our friends for the cards, letters, flowers, visits and the food brought in since my surgery at Central Plains Hospital at Plainview. Each act of kindness was deeply appreciated.

Ora and Fox Bolton

Hall County Commissioners, af- | ure passed two bills which enable

ers finally decided to enter into the project, was because it was felt that to build a jail for Hall County alone would be a great deal more expensive, plus the fact that the county would have to face the costs of staffing, main-tenance, etc. alone. At least in this way, the two counties can share these costs, the commissioners reasoned.

The exact cost of the enlarge-is not yet known. When the four counties were involved in the orig-inal study, Hall County's portion would have been about $60,000 for the capital improvements. With only two counties to be involved the size of the structure will, of course, not have to be nearly as large as would one for four count-

At the present time, Judge Campbell said, the county has about $20,000 in a special jail fund. The new project is not likely to be completed for about two years, so it is possible that more can be set aside before the money is needed.

The commissioners want to keep the Hall County residents fully informed concerning the project, Judge Campbell said; as further information is developed, this information will be the said of th formation will be passed along
