Grasses, however, produce higher forage yields and more total digestible nutrients per acre than legumes. Also, insect and disease damage is less on grasses. Perennial grass stands are easier to maintain than legumes. And there are many area where productive legumes aren't adapted.

When selecting a hay crop, producers should also consider length of growing season, winter temperatures, available moisture, soil condition and animals intended to consume the hay.

Warm-season annuals and perennials prefer climatic conditions favorable for growing, harvesting and curing good quality hay. Small grains, ryegrass and other cool-season annuals make good quality hay when spring climatic conditions favor harvest and curing. They should be used primarily for hay made from excess growth when the species matures, weather permitting.

Hay harvested from excess growth in perennial pastures, such as Coastal bermudagrass, is often the most economical; however, the pasture must be divided into two sections, allowing one to remain vacant until grass is 14 to 18 inches high for cutting.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe David Payne and daughter, Lana, spent Sunday afternoon visiting with her mother, Mrs. Goldie Russell.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Finney of Quitaque had as their guests their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Kiser of Plainview. They all attended services at the Church of Christ in Turkey.

Governor Clements has designated the month of May as Older Texans Month in honor of senior citizens.

In their later years many people experience one or more health problems that are related to their present or past nutritional status. The individual who has had a lifetime of poor eating habits is not likely to be as healthy as the one who has enjoyed the benefits of a good diet. You are what you eat!

Nutritional needs of the older adult differ a little from the needs of younger adults, except in energy, or calorie requirements due to reduced physical activity. Older adults still need the recommended servings from the four food groups; four servings from the bread and cereals group, two from the milk group, two from the meat group and four from the fruit and vegetable group, especially one rich in vitamin C and one rich in vitamin A.

With increased food prices and decreased income, it becomes a problem to insure adequate nutrition for senior citizens. Adding to the problem may be a loss of appetite, difficulties in shopping for and preparing food in small amounts, and lack of enthusiasm for food because of eating alone.

Senior citizens can learn how to substitute lower cost foods with adequate nutrients for more expensive foods. For example, beans, peas, eggs, poultry and fish can be substituted for more expensive meats.

They can prepare foods in large amounts, but divide into small portions and freeze for later meals.

Tornado Survivor Describes Tragedy

A Pantex sheet metal worker who lost his wife and infant son, and who himself was not expected to survive injuries suffered 22 years ago when a killer tornado dipped into Silverton, has no memory of the funnel actually striking.

William E. Proctor, 5210 Tumbleweed, Amarillo, who was 23 and not long out of the Navy on May 15, 1957, said he had been in the home of his brother, Robert, a little more than 10 minutes when he heard the rumbling sound of an approaching tornado. "The only thing I remember is sitting around the kitchen table," said Proctor. "My brother's dog was barking, and then I heard the terrific roar."

He heard someone say, "That's a tornado!" "My wife and I jumped up and went to the crib where our baby was, but we never got him out,"

Proctor said he remembers nothing more. He remained unconscious four days with a fractured skull, a collapsed lung and numerous cuts and bruises. A stick had pierced his right ear and exited on the left side of his face. A deep scar is still visible on the lower right side of his neck.

He confirms contemporary accounts which said no advance warning of the tornado was heard in the Silverton area.

He was taking his wife, Patricia, 18, a native of Coventry, Rhode Island, and their month-old son, Michael William, from their home at 703 Pittsburgh in Amarillo to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Proctor, in Turkey on that night in May.

"The static on the car radio was so bad, due to the lightning, we had to turn the radio off," he said. "In fact, it was raining so hard we missed the turnoff to my brother's place in Silverton and had to back up and relocate it."

Proctor regained consciousness after almost 100 hours. "They told me that day our baby son had been killed instantly. My wife had died of gangrene."

Mrs. Proctor was the last of the 22 persons to die from injuries suffered in the tornado. Her legs had been crushed and she had head lacerations and bruises over her entire body.

The deaths of his wife and son left a void in his life, Proctor said. "I didn't care whether I lived or died, and that probably prolonged my recovery. I stayed in Northwest Texas Hospital 30 days."

But he returned to work as a repairman for an Amarillo sales and service company and returned to Amarillo College in August to learn a trade. "I really didn't take life real seriously for a year to a year and a half after the tornado. I was in a period that I just didn't care."

Proctor started his apprenticeship at the Mason-Hanger - Silas Mason Company in March 1958 and has worked at the Pantex plant ever since. And he soon realized that "because something bad had happened it wasn't the end of the world." He believes God spared his life because "He had things for me to do and He wasn't through with me yet."

Proctor remarried one day short of two years after the death of his first wife. He and his wife, Donna, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Lane of Turkey, are the parents of three children: Kent, 19, a student at West Texas State University; Craig, 17, a junior at Amarillo High School, and Rhonda, 16, a sophomore at Caprock High School.

He is not certain that his injuries from the tornado have caused him any lingering prob-

1957 STORM SCARS STILL REMAIN IN SILVERTON

A few foundations which once held homes still remain in Silverton as grim reminders of a tornado which claimed 22 lives and injured about 68 others on May 15, 1957.

Silverton Mayor Charles Sarchet, publisher of the Briscoe County News, said more signs remain from the twister that took only one life when it struck Silverton in 1970.

The 22nd anniversary of the twister that ranked as the most deadly in the nation for the 1957 season will be observed without jubilation this month by folks in the cotton belt town located near the foot of Palo Duro Canyon.

The first message about the Silverton tornado 22 years ago came from Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan of Pampa, who was visiting his daughter in Silverton. He was watching television when the power went off and stepped outside to look at the weather.

Jordan quickly drove to the disaster area in the south part of Silverton and radioed the sheriff's department at Tulia for emergency assistance.

The funnel dipped to the ground from a huge black cloud at 10:30 p.m. Seven persons in one family were killed in two adjoining houses. They were Mr. and Mrs. Veral Vaughn and Mr. and Mrs. Rance Stephens and their three children. The Vaughns were parents of Mrs. Stephens. Only the paneling of the Vaughns' living room was left standing.

Other homes destroyed included those of the Luke Thompsons, lems. "I am hard of hearing. But I don't know if that was caused from the tornado or working with sheet metal. Most sheet metal workers are hard of hearing you know."

"You certainly learn who your friends are after a tornado," said Proctor. "A lot of people helped, but the Red Cross did more than anyone."

the B. C. Jaspers, the H. P. Rampley's and the Henry Grabbes. The Love Apartments were destroyed and two babies were killed there. Five more were killed when a migrant laborers' housing unit was blown away.

The storm, which devastated an eight to ten block area in Silverton, came after rain and hail had pounded the town for several minutes and then quit. Many residents actually watched the big funnel sweep into town and begin destroying some of the better homes within the city limits.

The roar of the twister awakened many other residents but it struck before they could get into storm cellars.

An intense rain followed the storm and streets in Silverton were impassable because of the mud and downed power lines.

The dead were brought into the only funeral home in Silverton. When it was filled, bodies were sent to other area mortuaries.

The injured were treated in the Silverton Clinic. Many were transferred to Amarillo, Plainview, Lockney and Lubbock hospitals as quickly as possible.

The American Red Cross moved into the area with financial aid for stricken families. Relief funds were also set up for the victims in several neighboring towns.

Within three weeks after the tornado had severely crippled Silverton, the two huge grain elevators which had been owned by H. E. Wilson were repaired, painted and set upright, ready for business in the coming harvest.

AMERICAN AGRICULTURE MOVEMENT LEGALLY CHARTERED IN TEXAS

County representatives of The American Agriculture Movement met in Dallas April 28-29 for the purpose of establishing a legally chartered farm organization in the state of Texas.

"The American Agriculture Movement was conceived in adversity, born in despair, nurtured with hope, grew with participation, and lives with determination," said Mike McCathern, newly elected State Coordinator.

"We have used our tractors, the symbol of our industry, to bring the attention of the American public and to the Congress of the United States, the problems which exist in rural America. We have proven that we are willing to actively participate in the political processes of this Nation, and we feel that we must now bind ourselves together in a nationally recognized organization to continue our efforts of seeking 100% full parity prices at the marketplace for all of our agriculture commodities," he said.

"The AAM will continue to be governed by the grass-roots members, just as it has been from its inception," McCathern said. "Its goals will be to have maximum input from grass-roots farmers into all future legislation, to keep the nation informed of problems which exist in agriculture, to support political candidates who support agriculture, and to oppose those who oppose our goals of full parity prices for our commodities," he continued.

"We urge our members to continue their work and support of the other farm organizations and commodity groups, and to work towards full cooperation between these groups in order that we can eventually have one true voice in agriculture."

A. B. Ramsey was taken to Central Plains Hospital in Plainview Friday morning of last week about 3:00 a.m. by his wife, Marie, and his son, Dale. He was hospitalized until Sunday morning when he was released and his wife brought him home. He was thought to be suffering with his heart, but his wife says this was ruled out. He is improving.

Mrs. James Barefield was taken to the doctor in Silverton Monday evening by the Quitaque Ambulance Service. She has been incapacitated at her home this week with a back injury.

Those on the ambulance run were Mrs. Phil Barefield, Elgin Conner and David Brunson.

Mrs. U. F. Coker, sr. was recognized as the Mother of the Year at the Turkey United Methodist Church during the Sunday morning service on Mother's Day 1979. Mrs. Coker just last week celebrated her 87th birthday.

Mrs. Son McCracken and Amanda of Pecos attended services at the First Baptist Church Sunday morning and spent the day visiting her in-laws, Mr. and Mrs. Leon McCracken. She had spent the past week visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Houston Gunn at Cary. Mrs. McCracken's sister's son, Jay Trent, was injured when he and a companion were playing in an underpass near Cary and he stepped out in the path of an oncoming automobile. His mother had been at the hospital in Amarillo with him. Mrs. Trent usually cares for her parents, the Gunns. Mrs. Gunn is an invalid.

FARMERS UNION SAYS RATION PLAN IS ENERGY CARPETBAGGING

Directors of the Texas Farmers Union say President Carter's gasoline rationing plans are nothing but "energy carpetbagg-ing." The directors issued a statement after reviewing Department of Energy stand-by rationing plans now before Congress. "It is obvious that rationing on a per vehicle basis would allow those in urban areas to accumulate excess coupons while farm and ranch families would have no options in limiting their travel due to the number of traveled miles necessary to maintain farms, conduct critical business in town and provide rural families the needed inputs that must be transported from trade centers to farms and homes," the statement said.

The directors also said that a proposal to let converters place excess coupons on a "white market" for speculative sale would allow those whose businesses and personal habits require less travel to prey upon those who must travel.

TFU President Jay Naman said Texas farmers feel that "if an emergency arises, a stand-by plan should instead be constructed around percentage cutbacks equally in each distribution area. This would fairly result in rationing that accounts for current consumption by rural residents over which they have a few alternatives to conservation. "Otherwise," Naman said, "thousands of vacationers could park their recreational vehicles for one summer and use the "white market" coupons to profiteer off farmers who must go to their fields, transport their crops to market and make trips to town for business, equipment maintenance and family shopping."

One veteran state representative told me this week that he had never seen so many bad bills come before the House of Representatives in Austin. I had the pleasure of helping kill one of these last week. This was H.B. 491, which we sent to the graveyard by a vote of 92 to 46. This bill would have resulted in doing away with our home- stead laws. It would have made older people in their declining years vulnerable to crooks and fast-talkers. Unscrupulous lenders could have really taken advantage of anyone who got in a financial bind. Had this bill passed, a companion bill was waiting in the calendars committee that would have placed a proposed constitutional amendment on the ballot, which the people could vote on in the next general election. To me, it was the most dangerous piece of legislation to come before the House, and I voiced strong opposition to it at both the front and back microphones on the floor of the House. Unfortunately, not all bad bills are killed. One got by this week with a few votes to spare. This bill (H.B. 1358) obligated the State of Texas for an initial one million dollars for constructing and developing a large state veterans' cemetery in Nueces County. But even worse, it obligated the state government for the perpetual annual care of the cemetery. This will amount to approximately 200 thousand dollars a year, including salaries for 23 personnel, but costs could run more.

I spoke just as vigorously against this bill because I do not think this is a state responsibility. As a veteran of World War II, I felt I was fighting in the defense of the United States. Texas was only one of the 48 states that I served. If the people of Nueces County want to establish a veterans' cemetery, I think they should pick up the tab. This is only one example of the millions of pork barrel dollars that roll through the state legislature. Our daily schedule now begins with office work at 6:30 or 7:00 a.m. and ends after midnight. The House may adjourn as late as 10:00 or 10:30 p.m., then members attend one or more committee meetings which are held in the capitol or a state building in the capitol complex. As the countdown on our allotted time begins, it seems we are working against the clock, which will run out Monday, May 28, at midnight. But stay tuned. I'll make time to write next week.

MAY TO BE OBSERVED AS HEARING, SPEECH MONTH
"May, which is being observed as Better Hearing and Speech Month throughout the U. S., is an ideal time for the public to renew its concern for hearing conservation," according to J. Wampler of Belton of Plainview, the local representative of the Beltone Crusade for Hearing Conservation. The crusade, sponsored by Chicago-based Beltone Electronics Corporation, is designed to build public awareness of the problem of hearing loss and the need for hearing conservation. "Hearing loss currently affects an estimated 15 million Americans, making it the nation's number one handicapping disability," Wampler emphasized.

In connection with the observance of May as Better Hearing and Speech Month, Wampler announced the availability of a special booklet designed to help the average citizen protect his hearing ability. Entitled, "How You Can Conserve Your Hearing," the 12-page booklet is available in single quantities upon request by calling 296-7710 in Plainview.

WESTWARD DOUGH!
OR how DO you COVER A Wagon?

The wild, wild West. Land of hope and opportunity to thousands of courageous settlers. But, if it weren't for the dollars of thousands more Americans taking stock in their country, there might never have been a West to go west to.

You see, money raised from the sale of government securities helped us purchase the Louisiana Territory from the French. Other securities helped by the states of California, Nevada, Utah, western Colorado and most of New Mexico and Arizona from Mexico. Even settlement of the Oregon Territory was made possible through the issuance of United States securities.

Today, you can still take stock in your country's growth by buying U. S. Savings Bonds.

Just sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. There's no easier, safer way to save or help your country. After all, U. S. Savings Bonds are still a great way for you to go West. Or East, North and South.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4 1/2% the first year). Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.
