

26 KILLED IN UTAH SCHOOL BUS TRAGEDY

Corsicana Capitalist Found Dead, Throat Slashed

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

A great deal has been said about the art of making and keeping friends, but the best object lesson in this art is to be found in the actions of a dog. The utter sincerity of the creature is compelling. It takes a case-hardened individual indeed to experience no response of sympathy to the tail-wagging of the yellowest pup. The dog is glad all over. No perfidy there, not even dissimulation. "I like you," says the dog from muzzle to tail tip and who doesn't like being liked?

Of course not all dogs like all people, and there are many instances in which the killing of a dog is necessary for protection of person or possessions. The use of poison to guard sheep, goats or other valuable livestock from coyotes and canine night raiders of the Dr.-Jeykel and Mr. Hyde character, is certainly to be defended.

But it is difficult to understand why poison should be used in a stealthy manner against pets which are kept carefully at home and which do nobody any harm.

"Lady," Spitz-Collie of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Armstrong, died by poisoning yesterday. So far as I know Lady did nobody any harm. She was for years a devoted pet of the Armstrong family, a constant companion of Mr. Armstrong and a member of the family whose affectionate disposition certainly should not have made her any enemies.

I do not believe that the fatal morsel which took Lady's life was placed by design to do that thing. But what happened in this instance simply proves how often it is that attempts to do by stealth what should be openly done go awry with results often tragic.

Funeral Service Is Held for Mrs. Mann Saturday

Funeral services were held for Mrs. J. D. Mann at the Twelfth Street Methodist church in Cisco, Saturday, November 26, 1938. Rev. A. J. Morgan of Breckenridge county, judge of Stephens county, conducted the services. He was assisted by Rev. G. M. Meglasson, pastor of the Bethel church. Burial was in Oakwood cemetery.

Mrs. Mann died Thanksgiving day at the home of a daughter, Mrs. E. B. Whisenant, of Harpersville, 12 miles north of Cisco. She was born June 24, 1867, at Peoria, Ill. She was converted when 12 years of age and joined the Methodist church.

Mrs. Mann was twice married. December 24, 1882, she became the wife of John Henry Caton, who preceded her in death December 9, 1882. To this union two children were born, Sarah Elizabeth, now Mrs. Finley Knox, of Abilene, and Henry Ettie, now Mrs. E. B. Whisenant, of Harpersville. She was married to J. D. Mann December 2, 1886, and the family moved to Texas in 1889, and to Stephens county in 1903. Previous to their removal to Stephens county she became affiliated with the Concord Cumberland Presbyterian church, and later joined the Harpersville Cumberland church by affiliation, where her membership remained until her death. Her husband, J. D. Mann, and the two daughters named above, are the immediate survivors.

Mr. and Mrs. Mann were residents of Cisco for several years.

CORONER SAYS MOTIVE "SELF DESTRUCTION"

Body Is Found Near Idle Buzz Saw at Home

CORSICANA, Dec. 1.—(P)—Frank Neal Drane, the 76-year-old philanthropist who pledged $800,000 to help his fellow-man, was found dead today, with his throat slashed.

The body was found near a buzz saw at his home west of Corsicana. Justice of the Peace A. E. Foster returned a verdict of "self-destruction."

Drane made a fortune in electric power, banking and agriculture. He organized the Navarro County foundation, a charitable institution, last May, donating approximately $800,000 to the foundation.

The capitalist and his late wife donated Drane hall to Trinity university at Waxahachie.

Survivors include his son, Hugh Drane, a Dallas capitalist. Drane's body, almost decapitated, was found on the floor of his workshop by an employe, the peace justice said. The saw, electrically powered, had been switched off.

HUNT PUSHED FOR GIRL, 18

Business School Student Disappears

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 1.—(P)—Footprints melting in the snow, and trampled a batch of school papers, served today as the only clues of the widespread hunt for Mary Brown, aged 18, business school student, who vanished last night.

Mary's young sister, Lucy Brown, looked over the suspects but failed to identify them as those of the "foreign-looking, roughly-dressed men" whom she said had abducted the girl.

RODEO PLANS COMPLETED BY JAYCEE GROUP

First of December Trade Events to Be Presented Saturday

Everything is ready for the first of the series of December trades promotion events which the Cisco junior chamber of commerce will sponsor, Carlton Holder, president of the Jaycees, said today.

This will be a junior rodeo to be presented at the Lions club's soft ball park Saturday afternoon at 1:30, preceded by a parade at 1 o'clock. The "Movie Queen" of the Lions club's musical comedy production of that name will appear in this parade, which will be led by the Lobo band. Holder and John Trigg, chairman of the rodeo committee, are endeavoring to have every saddle horse and donkey in the Cisco country in this parade.

"We want them all," said Holder. "The more the merrier. Every kid with a horse, a donkey or a Shetland pony is not only welcome but wanted. Trot out your horses and let's make this a spectacle."

The parade will move at 1 o'clock in time to reach the park for the beginning of the rodeo at 1:30.

Three of the five events on the program will be for boys and in each of these awards will be offered.

The rodeo program is as follows:

1. Goat roping for boys under 18 years of age. Prizes of $2, $1 and 50 cents will be paid winners.
2. Steer riding for boys under 18. Fifty cents will be paid each successful rider.
3. Calf roping. There will possibly be two classes in this event, one for men and another for boys. Prizes will be the same as in the first event.
4. Wild cow milking for men. Boys will not be entered in this event. There will be no prizes.
5. Bronc riding. There will likewise be no prizes in this event.

Admission to the rodeo is free. The event has been advertised throughout the Cisco country and one of the biggest crowds to come to Cisco in years is expected.

The defense began putting on testimony after the noon recess with prospect that all testimony would be finished his afternoon.

Mrs. Peters claimed self-defense.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—(P)—Rufus Franklin and James Lucas, Alcatraz convicts, have decided not to appeal from their conviction of a life sentence for the murder of Royal C. Cline, a prison guard. Martin Accuses Italian Consul

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 1.—(P)—Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers union, told the house investigating committee today that Italian Vice Consul Giacoma Ungarelli attempted to persuade American citizens of Italian ancestry in Detroit to support the "fascist government."

Testifying before the committee investigating un-American activities, Martin said:

"This meant that American citizens were asked by the Italian government to be traitorous to their country."

The witness said that after this plan failed an economic boycott was threatened.

VEHICLE WITH 40 ABOARD IS HIT BY TRAIN

Crash Occurs in Storm; Bodies Are Strewn Along Tracks

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 1.—(P)—A fast freight train crashed into a loaded school bus at a rural crossing 10 miles south of here today, killing 26 children and seriously injuring at least a dozen others.

W. E. Speakman, chief clerk of the Denver & Rio Grande Western, said 26 dead had been counted.

The bodies were taken to mortuaries and efforts made to locate relatives to assist in their identification.

Earlier Sheriff Grant Young said "at least two-thirds of the 40 occupants were killed."

Twelve of the seriously injured were taken to General hospital. The dead and maimed were strewn for a mile along the Denver & Rio Grande tracks, Young said.

The framework of the bus was rammed under the locomotive.

At the hospital it was said that seven children were in a critical condition. Students of all ages ranged from 14 to 18 years. Most were the children of farmers.

A newspaper reporter said "about 20" were killed. He said he counted 15 bodies along the tracks.

This was the worst school tragedy in the history of Utah.

The grief-stricken parents rushed frantically up and down the tracks trying to find their children.

The bus was en route to the Jordan high school.

A snow storm reduced the visibility. The train was the "Flying Ute," westbound freight. It was an hour late due to the storm.

Tempests in a Bowl

THE current uproar along a thirty-odd-mile stretch of the Trinity river serves as one immediate proof of the wisdom of those schools and conferences which have placed a ban on post-season games. Most of us out here in west Texas care very little about the rivalry between a couple of Texas cities, regardless of which may claim us. But if the mere choice of a "bowl" in this scramble to squeeze the last drop of glory and penny of lucre from a successful gridiron season has the effect of creating the eruptions now going on at Fort Worth and Dallas we sincerely believe that this bowl business had better be turned back of California where it started.

SOME of the statements appearing in the professedly "state" papers which we have read are statements to be repented of. It would be well for the writers at both ends of that thirty-mile front to realize that the great majority of supporters of TCU, SMU, Baylor and other denominational schools are not supporters because these schools happen to be located in Fort Worth, Dallas, Waco or whatever they may be in, but for reasons entirely disassociated with town pride. Such support is prejudicial, if legitimate. Fort Worth and Dallas theodites are losing a great deal more than they gain by outbursts which put the splendid institutions in their communities in a bad light. A great many supporters of TCU live in Dallas and a great many supporters of SMU in Fort Worth.

The point is this: If we are going to have these "bowl" games then let the teams and the schools choose where and whom they will play and stop the business at that. If commercialism and town prejudice are going to dominate the "bowl" picture, then the schools which withdraw from any connection with such post-season spectacles will be wise schools. After what has occurred along the Trinity "front" as a result of this season's "bowl" choices, we believe the Southwest conference would be justified in passing a rule against such post-season games. The juvenile uproar certainly hasn't put Texas and the Southwest in a very complimentary light before the rest of the country. As a matter of fact it makes us look something like "social climbers" in the gridiron society. If the west coast conference wished to choose Southern California and Southern California to choose Duke of the Rose Bowl, that is their business, and as much as we may regret that our candidate was not chosen, we should accept the verdict gracefully. If TCU wished to choose the Sugar Bowl and Carnegie Tech in preference to the Cotton Bowl that is TCU's business and both Dallas and Fort Worth would be a great deal better to reveal themselves ladies and gentlemen in chagrin or exultation. Human and Other Nature of conservatism. Men hold on to things they have in their grasp like they do to customs and opinions that they have been used to, because giving them up is painful. All our concern about communism is an uneasiness we bring upon ourselves by our reluctance to accept of improvements upon our economic system. Not all new ideas are good. But the good new ideas have to batter down the door before they can get into human thinking. So they develop a violence sometimes because they have an extreme form in their efforts to get recognition. So our best defense against communism, or fascism, or any other ism is a readiness to adopt whatever is good in any of them. The old party, or a new party, that adopts a platform embodying some of these progressive ideas that our civilization needs for human justice ought to win; whether it does or not, remains to be seen.

By W. F. BRUCE

Walkouts and their up-to-date model of "sit-downs" are a very considerable part of the general clash of conflicting interests in the world today. And the motive in such movements is a desire to get through coercion something that the participants in these activities do not now have. Strikes are open to question as to whether the object they seek is really something that the strikers are entitled to, and if so whether that method of getting their aims is the right method. Some such struggles have marked the progress of the race up to its present level of social well-being. That the movements often stop with a bloodless effort may indicate that we are improving somewhat in the method. But still it is a commentary on human selfishness that adjustments and distributions of the good things should wait for coercion. Unselfishness would seek a voluntary adjustment of human relationships.

Selfishness seems to be a form week-end with Mrs. Jim Wedgeworth.

SERIAL STORY
LOVERS AWEIGH

COPYRIGHT, 1938
NEA SERVICE, INC.
BY BETTY WALLACE

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JUDY ALCOTT—admiral's daughter. She faced a choice between two navy suitors.
DWIGHT CAMPBELL—ambitious lieutenant. He faced a choice between his wife and duty.
JACK HANLEY—flying sailor. He faced a test of a patient love.
MARVEL HASTINGS—navy wife. She faced the test of being a good sailor.

Yesterday: Over and over in her mind Judy debates whether she loves Jack. Then one night the telephone rings with an urgent message for her father. "What is it?" she cries out.

CHAPTER XIX

Judy knew that she mustn't let go like this. It was probably nothing important. She was imagining things. But into her mind had come the picture of planes flying over a dark sea, and she could hear again Jack Hanley's voice saying, "We had a casualty."

Nothing had happened to him. No. No! Nothing could happen. He was the best flyer in the squadron.

Her mother opened the door, a negligee thrown hastily about her shoulders. "Judy!" she said, drawing the girl inside.

"Father, what is it?" Judy gasped, as he put down the telephone. His face was suddenly flint hard, with narrowed, tired eyes. The lines around his mouth had sprung into prominence. It was as if the quiet man she knew had suddenly slumped under the weight of all the responsibility of his position. "That was Naval Communications. They have picked up a message. I must go at once."

"What message?" Judy asked. "Oh, tell me!"

He said slowly, "We have no information—no complete information."

"Was it the Enterprise?" she begged. "Please tell me! Was it an accident—something about the planes?"

Her mother tried to hush her. "Come, Judy." She led her from the room, back into her own bedroom. She said, "Your father has told you all he knows, can't you see? Don't worry him. He has so much to bear!" In her eyes was the memory of all the other times Admiral Alcott had been waked in the night by a cry of distress. Judy herself remembered vividly the night a merchantman rammed a submarine, and her father had worked days and nights without sleep, getting every vessel under his command to the scene of the tragedy. The Falcon, tugboats, submarines, Divers to go down. Emergency equipment from New London. All of it had been his responsibility. And when, in the end, there had been little they could do in that choppy sea to raise the doomed submarine, her father had been like a man whose heart had died inside him. "Nothing I can do!" he had said. "Nothing." He never once spoke of the men who had died, trapped under the sea. But she knew he had never forgotten. And her mother knew.

Judy cried wildly, "But if it's the Enterprise, they wouldn't have called Father. Just tell me it's something else! I could stand anything else!"

Through her open window she heard the big car stop with a squeal of brakes. The enlisted man who chauffeured it had lost no time in getting here. Then the front door slammed. Her father was gone. He would be driven swiftly to the Communications building at the foot of Broadway.

Somehow, somehow, she must live through this time. In the morning, she'd know all about it. But she couldn't bear the waiting. She said, "It's like—like that time at Lakehurst—everybody was crying in the commandant's house."

Her mother said, "It may not be the Enterprise." But she didn't sound very convincing. Judy cried, "You, you know! He told you!" "Judy, you mustn't carry on like this." Her face was tired, too, and her mouth drooped. "He didn't tell me anything. I—I couldn't ask—"

There was no sleep for Judy that night. She tried to control herself, she tried to remember that if anything had happened at sea, Naval Communications would not call her father. The commander of the battle force would be in charge. But wasn't he on the Pennsylvania? And on the Saratoga was the office of the man directly in charge of plane carriers.

She racked her brains, to remember the name of the officer on the station who worked with the airplane carriers. What officer ashore would be called if it was actually trouble on the Enterprise?

She was too keyed up, too shaken, to think coherently. Her mother said sharply, "This is silly, Judy! It might be any one of a half dozen more or less routine emergencies, and you know it as well as I!"

But Judy cried, "I tell you, I can feel this. I've been thinking about the Enterprise all night. . . . Like a premonition of disaster."

Her mother said, "Nonsense!" She added, more kindly, "Every flyer's wife in the Navy has premonitions every time her husband takes off. And what do they amount to?"

Every flyer's wife. The words repeated themselves over and over in Judy's mind. She wasn't Jack's wife. Why was she carrying on like this? But he was her friend. Her best friend!

As if her mother's thoughts had followed her own, Mrs. Alcott said softly, "I know Jack is very dear to you. But even if your premonition is right, and the trouble has something to do with the Enterprise, remember there are many men aboard her. Dozens of other flyers. . . . It isn't Jack. It can't be."

The telephone rang again, imperiously. Judy jumped.

"I'll take it," her mother said quietly.

"Hello? Yes, this is Mrs. Alcott." There was a silence. Then her mother's face seemed to gray as it listened, and she said at last, "My dear, I'm so sorry! So sorry! But they can't be sure yet. It may be a mistake. Oh, we'll come at once, my child!"

Mrs. Alcott turned to Judy. "That was Diane Bell. She says the skipper's wife telephoned her. They think—they think—Bill—"

"God!" Judy's nails punched into the soft flesh of her palm. But in the next moment, choking relief flooded her. Little drops of moisture stood on her upper lip. She sobbed, "Not Jack!" over and over, as if even now she was afraid. "Not Jack!"

Her mother's arm slid around her shoulder. "Darling, you must quiet down. He wouldn't want you to act this way no matter what happened." And then she said, "We must dress quickly. We must get to Diane at once."

Judy put her stockings on in a daze. She took out the first dress her fingers touched as they groped in the closet, and slipped into it, zipping it up while her heart pounded.

Jack was safe. Jack. And in that moment, realization like a high green wave washed over her. All her dread had been for Jack. Never, never had she worried this way for Dwight. Why—why—could that mean—did it possibly mean—that she loved him? She sat down on the bed. This agony that had racked her because she thought he was in danger, was it because he was dearer to her than she had guessed?

"Ready, Judy?" There was no time to think. She must go to Diane. But the first thing Diane said when she opened the door was, "Judy! They said—they said two planes were down. Bill's—and Jack Hanley's." (To Be Continued)

Four of Brunk's Comedians

Pictured above are four of the members of Brunk's Comedians who will appear in Cisco for one week starting Monday, December 5, sponsored by the local American Legion post.

Making their 21st annual tour through the southwest this well-known tented organization will present plays, vaudeville and music here.

The opening play, said to be as thrilling as today's headlines and as modern as the styles of Hollywood, is entitled "Watch Your Daughter." Not many years ago a successful Broadway production, this play is filled with good comedy for both old and young.

According to Mr. Brunk the big tent theater, which will be located by the Daniels hotel, will be well heated with underground furnaces.

The price of admission this year seems to be the main feature of the show. No extra charge is to be made for reserve seats and adults are charged the same as children to see the show. The one price to all is 10 cents per person and for any seat in the big tent.

The shows will start nightly at 7:45 and the doors will open one hour earlier.

Rural Electric Project Board Maps Progress

A meeting of the Eastland county directors of the Comanche-Eastland Rural Electrification project was held at Eastland Tuesday morning, November 29. At this meeting a survey was made of the work done to date in signing applications for electric service. The survey shows the proposed line extending out of Comanche county by the way of Amity church north to Okra community; from Elliott's store west to Rising Star; from Rising Star west to Bud Williams; from Rising Star north to Romney. It is proposed to extend this line north and west from Romney to Nimrod, Scranton, Dan Horn, Dothan and to communities along Highway No. 23 north of Dothan. A line will be extended from Romney to the Cisco territory, also east from Romney to Long Branch on Oak Grove community.

In the eastern section of the county, the line is proposed from Gorman by the way of Grandview to Staff; from Staff to Flatwoods, and from Staff to Lone Cedar, Olden and Colony. A third extension from Staff will reach Alameda and Cheaney.

Other lines may be included, depending upon the interest shown in the different communities.

Up to date approximately 300 signed applications have been secured. This assures the building of 100 miles of lines in the county, it was explained.

County directors include I. S. Echols, Gorman; E. E. Blackwell, Ranger; and W. B. Starr, Cisco. Interested parties not contacted to date should see one of these three men a once, as it is absolutely necessary that this project be signed and mapped not later than December 10, it was announced.

A. C. Thomas, survey engineer, will complete mapping details as fast as these lines are signed by prospective customers.

Illinois Man Trying to Locate 'Blood' Mother

Information which may help him locate his mother is sought by James L. Binson of Tremont, Ill., in a letter just received by County Clerk R. V. Galloway.

Galloway said he was not able from records in the county clerk's office to furnish any of the information requested. The letter is published in full. Any reader able to assist the writer was asked by Mr. Galloway to write Mr. Binson.

"Dear Sir: "According to records in Texas Children's Home, Fort Worth, I was born a twin in Eastland county. According to records on June 20, 1901, mother's name being given as 'Ola Binson."

"Records also show that I have a sister that had the name of Mattie Truett. I was later, in 1904 or 1905 adopted by a W. S. and M. E. Binson, of Scranton, Eastland county, Texas.

"Will you please exert every effort possible to assist me to locate or gather facts concerning my blood mother? My foster parents have passed away and I never found my brother and sister until this summer, no one up to now knowing anything about Ola Binson or Truett."

"Please check birth of twins on the above dates, adoptions show Sept. 1, 1901. Please check birth, marriage and death records about that time, 1901, for Truett or Binson.

"As far as I know W. A. or R. A. Binson was in no way related to Ola Binson. Thanking you in advance for any information that might assist in locating my mother if she is still alive. James L. Binson, P. O. Box 258, Tremont, Ill."

None of these records were found in the clerk's office, according to Galloway.

Clark Denounces Two-Price Plan for Farm Relief

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(P)—Senator Clark of Missouri Sunday joined the opposition to a domestic "two-price system," which has been proposed by Secretary Wallace as a possible solution of the farm products surplus problem.

"It would be the greatest provocation of class hatred," the Missouri senator said. "It seems very impractical to me.

"In theory it's probably all right to charge a millionaire more for a farm product than the poor devil on the street. The difficulty is in where to draw the line."

Under the Wallace proposal, surplus farm products would be sold to relief and low-income families at less than market prices. The government would subsidize this undertaking.

Senator Wheeler of Montana declared recently the two-price proposal was "cockeyed."

Clark said it would encounter some of the same difficulties which confront the present federal relief program.

"The fellow who struggles to make his own way and stay off relief rolls frequently is discriminated against because he is not on these lists," he said.

Clark predicted the new congress would subject existing farm legislation and its administration to an inspection and overhauling.

O'Daniel Names Advisory Board of 29 Citizens

FORT WORTH, Dec. 1 —(P)—Governor-Elect W. Lee O'Daniel Monday announced the appointment of a board of 29 advisors, representing various lines of endeavor and different parts of the state, and called for them to meet in Fort Worth Monday, Dec. 5.

Creation of the board was in line with a campaign pledge made by O'Daniel prior to his nomination at the Democratic primary last July.

Of the 29 members of the board, 27 are men and two are women. In advising the members of their selection, O'Daniel said the appointments carry no political significance, and the appointees are to act in individual capacities with no official status.

They also are to serve without remuneration, and will be required to pay their own traveling expenses.

"That," O'Daniel said, "will be their contribution to the cause of better government."

"This is something new in government," he said, "but something new is needed."

He also said that the idea and suggestions put forward at next Monday's conference will be used as the basis of his recommendations to the legislature when it meets in January.

He announced the personnel of the board as follows:

Walter B. Pyron, Houston, vice president of the Gulf Oil corporation, representing natural resources.

J. W. Calhoun, Austin, acting president of the University of Texas, representing education.

Dr. E. M. Waits, Fort Worth, president of Texas Christian university, representing the religious life of the state.

John W. Carpenter, Dallas, president of the Texas Power and Light company, representing utilities.

Clarence Scharbauer, Midland, representing tourist traffic.

R. R. Kinkney, Amarillo, president of the Pinkney Packing company, representing the cattle and livestock processing industry.

H. Overstreet, Bowie, representing farmers and ranchers who haul by truck.

J. A. Nichols, Aledo, representing farmers.

C. W. Woodman, Fort Worth, editor of the Union Banner, labor.

Two hundred game preserve demonstration signs have been erected and requests have been filed with the county agent for more than one hundred additional signs. Signs are being painted by NYA boys and demonstrators are paying for the materials in the signs.

County Agent Cook was to meet with a group of ranchers and farmers in the Allen ranch area, 10 miles east of Ranger at 2 p. m. today to plan a game preserve there. This section of Eastland county is planning to protect white tailed deer, of which there are a few and to investigate the possibility of stocking the areas with wild turkey.

Eastland county landowners who want to organize game preserves following the extension service plan can get information from the county agent.

Says Man's Been Here 18,000 Years

CHICAGO, Dec. 1 —(P)—Prof. Fay-Cooper Cole of the University of Chicago has expressed belief that the first inhabitants of North America migrated here 18,000 years ago.

"Since no traces of either Stone Age men or the higher primates have been found in America it is apparent," he said, "that the earliest men in the new world were immigrants who arrived approximately 18,000 years ago.

"Their culture was not so advanced as the civilization of their contemporaries of the solutran period of Europe."

Keeping Up With The Boy Scouts

Plans have been completed for a field day rally to be held in Rising Star Thursday, Dec. 1, for members of the scout troops of Pioneer, Sipe Springs, and Rising Star. The field day events are to begin at 5:30 p. m. on the ground of the local Scout cabin and will be followed by a Comanche stew supper in the evening. After the meal court of honor Chairman E. M. Howard will open a court of honor. Boys, from each troop, who have earned merit badges or advancement in rank, will appear before the court.

Citizens of Pioneer are justly proud of the members of their scout troop. Some few months ago these boys did not have a meeting place. In order to make part of a building, which was offered them, into a scout room it was necessary to have $50. Scoutmaster Lawrence put the matter up to his boys, and they said they would pay the amount necessary to make the improvements, if they could have time in which to do it. Their troop committeemen signed the note at the bank to make the money immediately available. The boys have been enjoying a nice meeting place during these months and have paid more than half of the note by budgeting their monthly dues

Awards to Breckenridge Sea Scouts were given by officers from the Fort Worth council with Commodore O. L. Blanton commanding the quarterdeck. Brownwood Patients at the Toy hospital, which is being conducted by scouts and troops officers of Brownwood, increased by the hundreds Saturday morning, when more than 400 children attended a show at the Lyric theater, each bringing a toy as admittance fee. The hospital received all of these toys.

Members of Troop No. 2 have redecorated their troop room and have made some new charts, banners, etc., for the walls.

The court of honor for all Brownwood scouts which was to have been held Tuesday evening,
