ROGERS AND POST ARE FLYING HOME

Failure of Tri-Power Parley Threatened

Through the Editor's Spectacles
By GEORGE

From what I can hear, it is a good thing that the skating rink left Lake Cisco. It is quite probable that the skating rink people realized this and deliberately pulled up stakes and left to save a life. Or, perhaps, they had less consideration for the life than for the condition of their furniture. For Cy Karkalits was so determined to learn to skate that he hit the floor with everything he had and some things he didn't.

He would set his mind on skating in one direction, but although he had the best of intentions his feet would go the other way. That generally left him suspended in mid-air for a fraction of a second—only a fraction. The floor received him with a resounding thwack. His feet exchanged places with his head with such remarkable celerity that it was sometimes difficult to tell which end of him was up. Close observers, however, were able to tell by the skates.

Sometimes he would teeter along rather successfully for a few minutes while his audience held its breath in sharp suspense. Then, all of a sudden, a premonition of disaster would frighten him into a wild dash for the side rail. Sometimes he made it by the fraction of a finger-length. But most of the times he would sprawl all over the intervening landscape.

But he was game. He could take it. After each disaster he would struggle to his feet again and start the process all over. Although he hit the floor about 900 times, he was ready for another trial at the end of the 900th. The rink simply had to close down to be rid of him.

One of us made the remark Saturday: "Every time I think of Will Rogers a lump comes to my throat."

That is the way most of us feel about the man—just as if a close friend or relative had been lost.

We were looking at the cartoon by Knott in the Dallas News. It showed the humorist standing in front of a microphone, his hands in his pockets, the stray lock of hair over his forehead, the familiar, good-natured grin on his face. Before him on the table a big alarm clock was ringing. Those of you who heard him as a radio entertainer remember the noisy old clock he brought into the studio with him to warn him of the end of his period. He would get so involved in his talk that he would forget to quit.

Over the cartoon were these words: "Well Folks, My Time's Up."

Can you think of anything more appropriate, more Rogersesque?

It looks as if the most needed people are those who are always dying early. Fate seems to snatch them right out of the middle of a job that nobody else but them can do. On the other hand a lot of sorry, apparently useless folk go on living and living. Heroes die young. Achilles of the fabled Stygian invulnerability, was awarded a glorious, brief life, and succumbed to an arrow in the heel, the member by which his mother had held him when she plunged him into the Styx to make him immune to wounds.

Hector, his chief adversary and, like him, a man of mighty deeds, also died young, at Achilles' hands. Alexander the Great, a world conqueror almost before he grew a beard, was the victim of a fever

20 French Subjects Reported Killed in Ethiopian Raid.

PARIS, Aug. 17 (AP)—Differences and delays threatened tonight to wreck the tri-power conference that is attempting to settle the Italo-Ethiopian dispute as reports at Rome said that 100 persons were killed when Ethiopians raided tribesmen in French Somaliland and fought a pitched battle.

The British at the parley waited word from Mussolini as to what he wanted while the Italians insisted that procedure was up the French and the English.

A dispatch to an Italian news agency said that 20 French subjects were among the victims when the Issa tribe of Ethiopians swept down on another tribe. The incident was regarded in Rome as highly important.

The economic concessions offered Italy by the other two powers got no response from Mussolini.

CONCESSIONS OFFERED ITALY

PARIS, Aug. 17 (AP)—Premier Pierre Laval tonight submitted to Italy a rough outline of the proposed solution of the Italo-Ethiopian trouble.

The plan provides:

1. French and British renunciation of further Ethiopian economic privileges in favor of Italy.
2. Italy to be aided in floating loans for colonial development in Ethiopia.
3. Italy to be given political rights in the appointment of technical advisors to Ethiopia and the department heads of the customs.

Air Anthony Eden, British conferee, agreed to the first provision but waited the cabinet's reply to the second and third.

Adjournment Of Congress This Week Is Sought

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 17 (AP)—The democratic high command concentrated efforts today on a drive to adjourn congress next week. Predictions were heard that several major bills, including the utilities measure for which the administration has fought strenuously, may be scrapped for this season.

Plans for a last minute rush of business will be discussed at a White House conference between the president and congressional leaders Sunday night. Some leaders talked of adjournment next Tuesday or Thursday, although most of them believed that the session would last until the end of the week.

Spencers Off for California Trip

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Spencer are leaving today for California. Their daughter, Miss Alice Estill and little Bobbie Poe will accompany them. Mr. Spencer is going to look after his gold mining interests, and the others are going for the pleasure of the trip. Other than the above they will be accompanied by Miss Lucile Furr, of Carbon. They expect to be gone about two weeks, and during their absence Jim Byrd will pinch hit for Spencer in the office of the secretary of the chamber of commerce.

Mr. and Mrs. William Reagan are to leave Sunday for a vacation in Colorado.

Harry Gordon Selfridge, who organized the firm of Solfridge and Co., Ltd., in London in 1906, was born in Ripon, Wis.

BODIES REACH FAIRBANKS ON SAD JOURNEY

Rogers to Be Buried at Los Angeles; Post in Oklahoma City.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Aug. 17—Through the same murky Arctic skies that lured them to death, Will Rogers and Wiley Post were borne to Fairbanks today in the first phase of a long, sorrowful journey home.

Joe Crosson, ace pilot of the far north and a close friend of the distinguished dead, made the solemn, dangerous 500-mile flight from Point Barrow in four and one-half hours.

Between lines of sorrowing Alaskans, the linen-wrapped bodies were moved to an undertaking establishment for embalming.

To Be Flown to Seattle
The "mercy-flyer" said he would proceed on the homeward journey as soon as possible. The bodies are to be flown to Seattle. Then that of Rogers will be taken to California and Post's to Oklahoma. Rogers will be buried in Los Angeles in a vault the last part of the week and Post in Oklahoma City.

Mrs. Rogers and her family are in New York. She will go to the coast for the services. Mrs. Post, in Ponca City, Oklahoma, gave up her previous intention to fly to Seattle to accompany her husband's body to Oklahoma. She will go to Maysville, Okla., to await the body at the home of her husband's parents.

Took Off at 5 a. m.
Crosson took off from Point Barrow for Fairbanks at 5 a. m. (CST) this morning with the bodies of the internationally famous pair, carefully wrapped in linen, laid away in the cabin of the plane. The dozen white settlers of the remote northern village gathered to accord farewell honors to the humorist and his aviator friend and companion. Crosson, Post's Alaskan friend and an aviator, too, and Robert Gleason, a radio operator, flew over the mountains and through fog across the tundra wastes Friday to take the bodies back to civilization.

It was Crosson, veteran of unnumbered Alaskan flights, who bade them goodby at Fairbanks and warned them against the hazards of the fog at Point Barrow.

The broken remains of Post and Rogers, whose names were known throughout the world, lay in a warehouse behind the mission hospital at Barrow on the ice-strewn Arctic shore after Dr. Greist and Charles Brower, grizzled "king of the arctic," prepared them for the journey home.

In this same warehouse last May the bodies of 14 Eskimo victims of an influenza epidemic were laid out in plain board coffins.

Brower was the man whom Rogers said he was flying to Barrow to visit. For 51 years, Brower has operated a whaling station and trading post on the lonely, north-most tip of Alaska.

The terrific impact as Post's ship fell in the beginning of a spin just after takeoff, so mutilated it that it appeared doubtful the exact cause of the crash ever would be determined.

Eskimo Brings News
An Eskimo, breathless from 15 miles of running across the tundra, brought the first word of the wreck to Barrow.

"Red plane blow up. Two men dead," the Eskimo mumbled to Staff Sgt. Stanley R. Morgan, United States Signal Corps wireless operator.

Hastily mustering a party, Morgan engaged a fast motorboat and set out in the gathering darkness for Walakpi, a tiny native settlement at Refuge Inlet, where the tragedy occurred. His journey was slowed by floe ice.

Eskimos already had removed

Power Lobby Probe to Go Over Into Campaign

Former Ciscoans Complimented At Picnic Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Turner of Richmond, Va., who formerly lived here were complimented by a few intimate friends with a picnic at the Country Club Saturday evening. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Foxworth, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. H. Brandon, Mr. and Mrs. K. H. Pittard, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Maner, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Cliett, Mr. and Mrs. James Moore and Mrs. L. E. Richardson of Longview, a sister of Mr. Turner.

GO TO ARKANSAS

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Jones and Billie Jones arrived Friday from Houston after a three weeks visit there. Leaving Sunday morning for Bella Vista, Ark., they will be met in Dallas by Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Stephenson of Houston who will accompany them on the trip.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 (AP)—Continuation of the power lobby investigation into the early stages of the 1936 campaign was revealed today as a strong probability. With the bitter controversy over the abolition of public utility holding companies expected by many to furnish the major campaign issue, importance was attached to this development.

Members of the senate lobby committee, it was learned, expect to hold a few hearings during the coming four-month congressional recess, but will resume in earnest when congress reconvenes in early January.

The committee expects to devote all next week to questioning Howard C. Hopson, Associated Gas and Electric company kingpin.

WILLIAMS BACK

Mr. and Mrs. Mitt Williams of J. C. Penney Co., store here, returned Thursday night from a two weeks' vacation spent in El Paso, Texas, where they visited the parents of Mr. Williams, Tulsa, Oklahoma, Oklahoma City, and Fayetteville, Ark., where they visited Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Smith, parents of Mrs. Williams.

Crops through the country they travelled looked good, Mr. Williams said. People they talked with were optimistic, he added.

Special Ranger Posts Bond in Shooting

ROCK SPRINGS, Tex., Aug. 17 (AP)—John D. Smith of Junction was shot to death in front of a local cafe last night. Roscoe Morris, special ranger employed by the ranching interests of Real county, surrendered to Sheriff Young and posted $5,000 bond. Cause of the shooting was not revealed.

Young People Are Invited to Rally

All young people who are interested in the coming prohibition election were invited to a rally in the basement of the First Baptist church Wednesday at 4 o'clock. The invitation was extended by Mrs. J. R. Burnett, president-elect of the WCTU in Cisco.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

The word of the Lord came to me, saying, I will give peace and quietness; be strong and be of good courage; dread not, nor be dismayed.

O Lord and Master of us all, Whate'er our name or sign, We own thy sway, we hear thy call; We test our lives by thine.

Just as sweetness comes from the bark of the cinnamon when bruised, so can the spirit of the cross of Christ bring beauty and holiness and peace out of the bruised and broken heart.

Will Rogers

THE name on everybody's tongue today is Will Rogers. No man of modern times so caught and held the popular mind. Because he represented to a greater extent than any other the spirit and genius of Americanism...

A tribute paid him by the Dallas News Saturday was happily descriptive of the man:

"Newspapers never had a better friend than Will Rogers. He read them and relied upon them. Indeed, he is said to have read little else. Through them he attained an uncanny insight into the quirks and foibles of his countrymen."

"Will Rogers was a force for sanity in American life. When other men were losing their heads in panic or anger, Will Rogers habitually kept his. Full of foolishness, he was devoid of folly."

Why Repeal?

ON August 24 the qualified voters of the state of Texas will face the issue of whether or not the prohibition amendment to the state's constitution will be repealed with substitution of a provision outlawing the saloons.

has not this year aroused the popular interest that it has in the past. Yet it is one of the most important questions to be settled, if it is possible to settle it.

WE do not think that it is possible to settle the liquor question by legislation. It is not amendable to laws. The idea of legislating morals into a person is futile and foolish.

BUT on the other hand, there are certain moral obligations emphasized by a changing civilization and times that must be observed as essential to the social and political integrity of the country.

National prohibition has been repealed. It was repealed by political pressure that disregarded other obligations. The results of repeal have not been the beneficial results that were promised.

IT is our contention that if prohibition had never come in the form it came we today would have more real sobriety. The prohibitionists made a mistake by taking advantage of an after-the-war wave of sentiment to push over a law before the country was ready for it.

WE are not fanatic with the opinion that drinking liquor is a horrible sin simply because it is drinking liquor. But over-indulgence in drink is not only harmful to the body and the mind, but it is a terrible danger in the midst of a society that moves fast.

Taking it for granted that the aim of the majority of those who will act upon the question of repeal is the best interests of the state and the cause of real temperance, it appears to us that it would not serve either purpose to desert prohibition at this time and leave the doors open for unrestrained sale and use of intoxicants.

Cheering News

AMONG the cheering news of the week is the prospect that congress will adjourn within the next few days. Nobody can tell what congress is going to do. Business cannot. And so long as the body is in session, especially during such a period of planned social change and industrial regulation, just so long will business keep timorously close to its moorings, awaiting a definite indication of the course of the tide and the direction of the wind before venturing upon any energetic course of action.

tration determination to press through at the most propitious time the revolutionary changes it desires in its program. With the passage of the social security bill and other administration-sponsored measures, a great deal of this program has been accomplished, although the president has suffered defeat on a number of measures on which his heart has been set. With congress gone home and the threat of uncertain legislation removed from the field, the administration, however, will doubtless find cause for gratification in the economic response that follows.

Matters in Probate

The report of J. E. Walker and John F. White, appraisers of the estate of Mary E. Comer, deceased, showing a property valuation of $10,951.55 was approved by the court.

In re. estate of John G. Martin, deceased, application of W. E. Tyler, executor, to sell certain real estate of the estate to pay legal claims and delinquent taxes, approved and citation and order of sale issued. Report of the sale was also approved by the court.

In re. estate of Paul R. Sublett, N. C. M., application of the guardian of said ward to invest $1,500 surplus funds of the estate in Baby Bonds of the United States was approved after the filing of a waiver of service by Eric Eads, chief attorney for the veterans administration, agreeing that a hearing may be had without further notice.

Application of J. R. Burnett, guardian of the estate of Mrs. Carrie Tipton to pay claims against the said estate, was approved and payment authorized.

In re. estate of Floyd Raynor, McLellan, deceased. Application of Mrs. Mallie McLellan for distribution of the community funds of the estate now in the hands of Perry Sayles, administrator, was approved by the court and a hearing set for August 26. A notice of the hearing was ordered posted after proof of heirship was established.

In re. guardianship of Delbert Collins, minor. Application of Raymond Thurmond to be appointed guardian of said minor for the following reasons: Previously P. J. Evans of Tarrant county, had been named while Delbert Collins, the said minor, was a resident of that county, but since that time he has removed to Eastland county where he now resides permanently; that it is necessary for the economical administration of the guardianship that it be transferred to Eastland county.

New Cases Pending

Fred L. Covert vs. Ora May Covert, divorce. Paralee Jorday vs. Mrs. E. J. Craft, et al, suit on note.

Judgments and Orders

The suit of Mrs. Ruth Poe Herring for partition of property was dismissed on motion of the plaintiff, as the court held that the property in controversy had been partitioned by mutual agreement.

The State Guaranty Bank vs. H. L. Owens, dismissed for want of prosecution. This case has been on the docket for 14 years without an order having been issued, the order of the court recited.

E. C. Brand, banking commissioner, in re. liquidation of the Texas State Bank. Report sale of note executed by Luther Safford in favor of the Texas State Bank, amounting to $61, to Luther Safford for $25, approved by the court.

DEPARTMENT OF THE COUNTY AGENT

Compliance Committee Finished

The peanut and cotton compliance committee has about completed its work showing 955 peanut contracts signed and 1,183 cotton contracts. The acreage for these contracts are yet to be tabulated. County Agent Heald stated. All of the old corn-hog contracts that were sent in have been accepted by the Washington authorities, it was stated, amounting to 284. The new contracts, and about 15 of the old ones which were delayed in being sent in, are yet to be passed upon.

Commissioners Court—Orders

The application of the Commercial State Bank of Ranger, for release of $25,000 in United States treasury bills, pledged by the bank to secure county funds, was approved. It appearing to the court that after the release of the said securities there still will remain a sufficient amount pledged to secure the funds of Eastland county, it was therefore ordered by the court, all members being present, that the trustee, the First National Bank of Dallas, Texas, be and was hereby authorized to release the above mentioned securities to the Commercial State Bank of Ranger.

By resolution of the court instructed the county treasurer to accept payment of principal and accrued interest on two $100 bonds issued by school district No. 49, Center Point, being Nos. 1 and 2, dated August 1, 1921, and due August 1, 1941, same being held for the benefit of the county school fund. The county treasurer was thereby authorized to accept in payment for said bonds, and when the principal and accrued interest shall have been paid, to deliver said bonds to the proper persons authorized to receive them.

The court having heretofore appointed E. E. Woods as presiding election judge of voting precinct No. 1, and whereas since such appointment this precinct

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE

"Distracted about serving," for that is what the word means, "pulled this way and that." It is not a steady strong pull that tears ones to pieces, but a swarm of petty, tedious odds and ends of duties that keep the attention flitting about like a butterfly over a meadow of wild flowers.

It was all because He had entered "into her house." It was that house, her house, that was distracting her. Pins here, specks there, spots yonder, little demands everywhere, and no easy moment anywhere. Any other time things would not be in such a clutter; and even a little clutter would not matter. But of all times the day for things to go wrong would be when some one had come, and especially one for whom she wanted everything to be just right.

Then if somebody cared enough to help her instead of sitting about and leaving her to do it, "alone." Finally her fretfulness colored the whole situation; even the honored Guest, did He "not care that my sister did leave me to serve alone." Sometimes a worrisome carefulness about a guest may be noticeable enough to make him feel unwelcome, almost as if he had intruded, or were becoming a burden. The ability to make a guest feel easy as if he were at home is the art of hospitality.

It must have been in gentle good nature that the little reproof came from the Master: "Martha, you are anxious about many things." All this was senseless fuss about useless matters. One quiet receptive hour listening to a philosophy that would put momentary affairs into minor consideration and would fill the life with everlasting hope was the one thing needful, the good part that would never be taken away.

Deputy Constables Approved

The appointments by M. N. Seaborn, constable of Justice Precinct No. 1, of R. E. Dean and W. A. Martin as deputy constables, was approved by the court.

MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN

By GEORGE TUCKER

New York—Back from a southern cruise comes a holidayer with a story that so stunned him he probably will never set foot on another liner.

Until now an inveterate traveler, he had made the acquaintance of Joe Heiman, who, like himself, found pleasure in visiting strange ports and dropping into lands infrequently visited by casual tourists. They had met twice on previous cruises, these two, and so, to cement a friendship that began in midocean, he visited Heiman one evening in his New York apartment. There he made the acquaintance of a young singer who is employed on the cruise staff of entertainers.

"I can't seem to travel enough," Joe explained, "I travel always—I seem to live to travel"—he did not know he also was traveling to die.

Several months later the pilgrim who relays this tale, boarded ship for distant lands and while en route met the contralto he had encountered in the Heiman apartment.

"Hello," he exclaimed, "don't tell me Joe is aboard too!"

The girl turned aghast. "Don't you know what happened to Joe?"

"Tell me," he said. "Joe spent two thirds of his time on the seas. It was a mania with him. But he won't travel anymore. He was lost with the Morro Castle."

The shock of this disclosure so affected him that now he insists he will embark no more on ocean voyages.

Incidentally, this same wayfarer tells me it costs 14 cents every time a ship's fog horn is used. On the voyage the liner ran into some ceiling zero weather, and for three days and nights the fog horn was sounded at three-minute intervals. If my arithmetic is any good, the steam expended on this alone cost $159.60.

(EDITORS NOTE: Mr. Tucker's arithmetic is not any good. The figure should be $201.60)

Not the least amusing incident of the week was that explorer who came to New York with his wife and young son. They were guests of a fruit company executive whose estate on Long Island is staffed by Negro servants.

The lad aged two, had never seen a darky before, and so when he disappeared into the kitchen and returned with a washrag, dragging a smiling colored mammy by the hand. "Wash, wash!" he screamed.

He spent three days trying to wash the black off the delighted old Mammy. He has put away his washrag now, convinced that she will never be white, but he still touches her every time he passes and looks to see if any of the black has rubbed off on his fingers.

Charles Francis Coe, noted writer who sometimes is guest announcer at important prizefights, was in elegant form at the recent Golden Gloves bouts. During one fight in which the American was a New York theatre usher, he interplotted: "—he slips under a right but then this boy is an usher and used to slipping into strange places..."

Coe, incidentally, is or was a great amateur fighter and is known by men of the resin as "Socker" Coe. He used to spar regularly with Gene Tunney when Gene was champ and Baer was still a butcher boy in Livermore, California.

Mrs. Vera McLeroy, deputy county clerk, after spending her vacation, is back at her desk in the county clerk's office. She spent some time on the West coast. Turner M. Collie, county clerk, has returned to his office after a brief vacation, which was spent at Ruidoso. Mrs. Collie accompanied him. D. J. Jobe, office deputy in the sheriff's department, has returned to his duties after a splendid outing in Colorado, and Ruidoso. Mrs. Jobe accompanied him. He stated he spent most of the time on ranches in the Gunnison river section, where the fishing was fine, and the temperature delightful, making sleep most restful. He said the temperature hovered around 28 the latter ten days they spent at Ruidoso.

'Arms and Men' on East African Front

While world statesmen are pulling diplomatic strings in an attempt to forestall the impending Italo-Ethiopian war, both nations are girding for battle.

Ethiopia's emperor has expressed hope that a peaceful solution may be reached through the League of Nations . . . negotiations are going forward . . . but the dark-skinned emperor admits that "danger of war is becoming more and more serious."

These Associated Press pictures reveal the types of fighting men and war machines which will be pitted against each other if peace efforts collapse and the ancient East African kingdom becomes a theater of war.

Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia has called upon his subjects to "fight to the last man" to preserve the country's freedom in the event of an Italian invasion. Ethiopia's area is estimated at 350,000 square miles and its population at 10,000,000. The country is comparatively undeveloped but is rich in natural resources with large agricultural potentialities. The capital, Addis Ababa, is the largest city in Ethiopia with a population of about 70,000. Pictured here are Emperor Haile Selassie, a skyline of Addis Ababa and a map of the country, bordered in part by two Italian territorial possessions, Eritrea and Italian Somaliland. (Associated Press Photos).

In Rome, historic home of the Caesars, Premier Benito Mussolini is feverishly carrying out his plans for an East African campaign. Hundreds of thousands of soldiers have been called to the colors and vast war supplies have been concentrated in Italian colonies bordering Ethiopia. In contrast to Ethiopia, Italy has an area of 119,744 square miles (colonial possessions not included) and has a population of more than 42,000,000. Rome, the capital, had a population of 1,008,083 in the census of 1931. While much raw material must be imported, Italy has huge munitions plants. Ethiopia on the other hand must import all of its munitions and war equipment. (Associated Press Photos).

In addition to hundreds of thousands of warriors who fight under "rases," or tribal chieftains, Ethiopia has a moderately well-equipped imperial army which owes allegiance directly to Haile Selassie. This force, estimated at between 60,000 and 70,000 men, has some planes, but it is reported there are only eight such machines and only six in condition to fly. There also are a few anti-aircraft guns. Some of this equipment is shown here. (Associated Press Photos)

If war comes thousands of tribal warriors like the one above will figure prominently in Ethiopia's forces.

The Italian army is equipped with the most advanced implements of modern warfare and is particularly well prepared to fight in the air or repulse aerial attacks. Foreign military observers will watch carefully to see how effective Italy's air force will be if a war is fought in Ethiopia, a rough forbidding country with few roads and only one railway. Pictured here are a squadron of Italian fighting planes and Italian anti-aircraft guns mounted on trucks. (Associated Press Photos)

Ethiopia is reported to have armed a quarter of a million troops and has laid plans to put seven armies totaling 600,000 men in the field in the event of a conflict with Italy. The Ethiopians' war stocks are estimated at between 300,000 and 1,000,000 rifles, 200 cannon (some made in 1860), between 350 and 400 machine guns and the same number of automatic rifles. These pictures show Ethiopian infantrymen entrenched, "going over the top" and a typical machine gunner. (Associated Press Photos)

This well-equipped Roman soldier is typical of those in Italy's East African expeditionary force.

It is estimated that Italy has approximately 235,000 soldiers and skilled workmen in its East African colonies. This, military observers state, is considered sufficient for the present if an advance is made into Ethiopia. If needed it is believed Italy could put 1,000,000 well-trained, well-equipped troops in the field. Italian tanks, a flame thrower and Italian infantrymen on the "firing line" are shown in the above pictures. (Associated Press Photos)

SECOND HALF TITLE HINGES ON MONDAY GO

Outcome of the second half of the city soft ball league season will hinge on the game Monday night between the Nance Motor company and the Community Natural Gas teams at the Humble lighted field.

Community team, second half leaders with a perfect record until an embattled John H. Garner's crew surprised them Thursday night with a 7 to 3 defeat, faces a real threat in the Nance team which stands second in the league percentages, only game behind the gassers. If Nance can win Monday night, bolstered by the reappearance of Coach Dexter Shelley who is due to arrive Sunday from a summer away at school, it will throw the standing into a tie. A rained-out game between the two teams is yet to be played, and, should Nance win Monday night, that game would determine the outcome of the second half of the league. On the Community side of the fence is Clyde Van Sickle, assistant coach of the Cisco high school and team boss who has been the strong man of the gassers in their spectacular second half campaign.

John H. Garner's, the team which threw the second half leadership into doubt, is the winner of the first half honors. The merchants will play the winners of the second half in a special series for the championship.

Bodies Reach--

Rogers' body from the wreckage, but the sergeant had to use ropes to pull the shattered plane apart before Post's body could be lifted from beneath the motor in two feet of icy water.

The bodies and personal effects taken from the plane were placed in a native skin boat and towed to Barrow.

News Shocked Nation
Sergeant Morgan flashed the word by wireless to Col. George E. Kumpe, in charge of the Alaska Telegraph System headquarters, operated by the Signal Corps, in Seattle.

The Signal Corps notified Mrs. Post in Ponca City, Okla., and the Rogers family in Skowhegan, Maine.

"I wish to God I had been with him when he crashed," Mrs. Post cried, when she learned of her husband's death.

It was only through a last-minute decision, prompted by the jesting of Rogers and her husband, who said the trip was not one for a woman to take, that Mrs. Post stood by the plane and waved goodbye to the travelers when they took off Aug. 1 from Renton Airport on Lake Washington for Juneau.

MRS. ROGERS REACHES NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Aug. 17 (P)—Mrs. Rogers and her daughter, Mary, arrived in New York today after a hurried trip from Maine, en route to their California home to lay to rest the remains of the famous humorist, killed with Wiley Post in an Alaskan plane crash.

Scarlet fever was first accurately described by Sydenham in 1676, before which time it had been confused with smallpox and measles.

NEW COOK SAND AREA IS OPENED

ALBANY, Aug. 17—Humble Oil & Refining Co. No. 1, J. H. Nail Estate, opened a new Cook sand area in southwest of southwest quarter of section 150, E. T. Ry. in sand 1540 to 1549 feet, a half-mile from the Geo. Callihan pool on Nail ranch in northwest corner of the same section. The well was bailing 25 barrels and was shot Wednesday afternoon in hard sand, and is cleaning out after responding favorably according to reports. Humble's new well is located 6 miles northwest of the Cook pool, and an equal distance 6 miles northeast of Bluff Creek pool, both being the most extensive producing areas of Shackelford county and prime holdings of Roesser & Pendleton, Inc.

Reliance Oil and Royalty Corp.—Jones & Stasney No. 1, J. H. Nail Estate, is preparing to spud in southeast corner of north half of southwest quarter section 137, E. T. Ry., one-fourth mile south of Frontier Production Co. two producers in center of the section. Banner & Elmore No. 2, J. H. Nail Estate, registered a failure at 1205 feet in section 134, E. T. Ry.

P. S. Kendrick No. 1, W. D. Baker is preparing to spud a new test in southwest corner of section 210, E. T. Ry. in western Shackelford to test the King sand, being a half mile northwest of the first production ever found in King sand in Shackelford or Jones county nearly 10 years ago, which flashed in Jones county this month with the 1,000 barrel discovery of Farris & Fikes No. 1 Jennings, located about 4 miles northwest of the Kendrick test.

Charter Oil & Gas Co. No. 4, N. M. Mims, is drilling up an under-reamer lug at 1580 feet, just 15 feet above the Bluff Creek sand near center of south half of section 207, E. T. Ry.

Reliance Oil & Royalty Corp. No. 10, G. R. Davis, is a new location in the Davis pool, T. & N. O. survey No. 4, located west of well No. 9.

George Callihan et al No. 2, G. R. Davis in center of east line of T. & N. O. survey No. 4, is drilling at 950 feet, on the undeveloped east side of the same pool.

Reliance Oil & Royalty Corp.—L. A. Prather No. 5, David Diller, is preparing to start on a new shallow test 1070 feet from southwest line of south 80 acres of W. Ahrenbeck survey No. 4, a south extension test for the shallow Diller pool which has recently been uncovered 10 miles north of Albany.

Groover Rose—Jones & Stasney No. 1, J. A. Matthews, is a new location 450 feet from northwest line and 150 feet from northeast line of south 80 acres of T. E. & L. survey No. 584, about 4 miles north of Albany.

BLOCK OF 4,000 ACRES COMPLETED

ALBANY, Aug. 17—Jones & Stasney, geological firm of Albany and Reliance Oil and Royalty Corp., of Cisco, have completed a block of 4,000 acres north and west of Avoca, in Jones county after several months of preparation, and after having core drilled with 9 holes to the Luaders limestone ranging from 100 feet to 350 feet in depth last year. Commercial leases were purchased from the landowners, but the operators will start a 3,000 foot test on the block within 90 days, with intention of testing the Canyon sand series, which range below the Cisco series now producing in Shackelford and Jones counties in various sands known as Fry, Moutray, Tannehill, Bluff Creek or Humble, Cook, Hope and King, with dip of about 40 feet to the mile running northwest.

The King sand well of Farris and Fikes is 3 miles southeast of the Jones and Stasney-Reliance block, and that sand will be penetrated around 2100 feet, nearing the bottom of the Cisco series. The block centers around Deaf and Dumb Asylum surveys 9, 10, 11, 22, 23, 24, 26, 27 and 28 in Jones county.

ACTIVITY CONTINUES IN GORMAN AREA

GORMAN Aug. 17—Activity in oil continues in this section with the Thompson well of Northrup and Campbell holding the center of interest. Tubing is being pulled to clean the well and it may be given another acid shot in one of the other possible pays.

Strawn, et al. have everything on the ground for a test on the Hampton tract and are beginning to rig up for drilling.

Froh and Cass are now rigged up on the Woody tract and ready to begin work there. This well will be followed by another on the Stone tract.

Drilling is being done on the Lusk tract on the series of wells to be put down in that section.

The Gowan well continues to produce at the rate of 3 barrels per hour and the way it holds up is indicative of what action may be expected in that section. Several are watching it for the purpose of later drilling and there will be several wells put down around it within the next few months from all reports.

Walton et al have a block of acreage almost completed north of Gorman near Lone Star and may begin operations there within a few weeks.

Congratulations

"Wonderful Edition"
"I congratulate the Cisco Daily Press on the splendid initial and anniversary edition which your fellows published August 4. It was really a wonderful edition and would have been a credit to most any town, certainly one even larger than Cisco. I can realize the amount of ability, energy and perseverance and effort that was required to produce a newspaper of such pretensions," was the comment of Judge G. L. Davenport Saturday made to a Daily Press representative.

"The citizenship of Cisco must needs be proud of having a publishing organization capable of producing such an edition, even though it was a special issue. But I am sure that they do, as was indicated by the splendid cooperation manifested in the columns of the special edition.

"Not only is the anniversary edition a credit to Cisco, but the entire county," Judge Davenport concluded.

"A Great Paper"
"That was a great paper you fellows put out on the occasion of your fifth anniversary of the Citizen and the initial edition of the Daily Press," was the comment made on our big special edition by Judge Earl Conner Saturday to a representative of the Daily Press. "It was chock-full of interesting features, and I enjoyed it very much."

Stocky Aerial Globe-Galopper Didn't Like Farm

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Aug. 17 (AP)—The stocky little globe galloper who made the name of Wiley Post familiar throughout the world was a farm boy with a distaste for farming.

Wiley Post was born Nov. 22, 1898, on an isolated farm near Grand Saline, Van Zandt County, Texas, and in the days when flying was only something to read about with raised eyebrows the boy who was to have the aviation world at his feet whittled out models of airplanes.

Just as he kept the Winnie Mae on its record-breaking world-girdling course in 1933, the Texas farm boy kept his eyes on the goal he set for himself in the skies. An accident, one which cost him the sight of his left eye, was instrumental in his getting a start toward that goal, but he knew before that what he wanted to do.

The taciturn youth with brown eyes and brown hair had a heritage of several generations of Southwestern pioneers who made their way in agriculture, but farming never interested him much.

Only once he developed sufficient enthusiasm for farming to show he could do it if he would.

This was when his father gave him a small cotton patch. Wiley took the utmost pains to develop his crop and when he had pocketed the profits he had enough to set out for a school at Kansas City, Mo., to train himself in automobile mechanics.

The W. F. Posts, meanwhile, had moved to another farm, in Oklahoma.

But mechanics cannot be learned wholly from books, so Wiley took a post-graduate course in garages, machine shops and the oil fields of Oklahoma. He got in a machine shop at Holdenville, and there came the accident that ruined his left eye. The $2,000 he received as damages was used to buy his first airplane.

Already he had become pals with airplanes in the dangerous role of wing walker, parachute jumper and general barnstormer. He had told a prospective aviator-employer he could do anything, and on the second flight he floated down in a parachute, the first of a series of ninety-one he did at $25 a jump.

Elopes in 1927

Having acquired his own plane, Post set out to learn all he could about flying. He flew from sun-up to sundown on many of his barnstorming days, carrying passengers off improvised landing fields in the Southwestern pastures.

In June, 1927, Wiley eloped—in an airplane—with May Laine, 17, pretty daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Lane of Sweetwater, Texas. They had grown up together near Grand Saline.

She accompanied him on his barnstorming for awhile, but having a wife called for a steady job, and Post had heard that F. C. Hall, Chickasha oilman, was interested in flying.

Post applied for a job as his pilot and got it. Years later the oilman became his financial backer for the flights that shot Post to fame in the Winnie Mae, which was named for Hall's daughter, Mrs. Winnie Mae Fain.

Hall sold this Winnie Mae (he named all his planes Winnie Mae) and Post was without a job. Next he went to the Pacific coast and became chief test pilot at the Lockheed factory at Burbank, Calif.

While he worked in California Post's desire to do something big for aviation was whetted by Art Goebel's record nonstop transcontinental flight in 1928 and the refueling endurance contests the following year. He won financial backing for a refueling flight and already had the checks when two other fliers crashed. Then, as Post explained it, "my checks were no good."

The following year he entered the Los Angeles-Chicago nonstop air derby and got lost—but it, roared ahead of a fast field in 9 hours 9 minutes and 4 seconds.

While the big bee of a round-the-world flight was buzzing strongest for Post in 1929, he met Harold Gatty, Australia-born navigator. Soon Post was saying, "Coste and Bellonte, the French fliers, were a great pair, but they had nothing on us when it comes to co-operation."

After meticulous preparation Post and Gatty, with Hall's backing, streaked out from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, on June 23, 1931, and circled a cheering world to land in New York 8 days 15 hours and 51 minutes after leaving it.

The doughty pair received a Broadway welcome rivaling Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's and at Washington they were received by President Herbert Hoover. The cheering followed him right on home to Oklahoma and from this time on Post had a strong desire to keep on the move.

This urge led him to prepare for his now familiar solo flight around the world. In July, 1933, he stood by his Winnie Mae for two weeks at Floyd Bennett Field, New York, waiting for a propitious time. At 3:10 a. m., July 15, he strode in the field, Mrs. Post at his side.

"I'm going pretty quick now," he said.

"Do be careful."

"O. K.," Post smiled, and soon he was off to Berlin; Novosibirsk, Siberia; Fairbanks, Alaska, and back to New York in 7 days, 18 hours, 49 and one-half minutes.

"Get me a patch for this dim lamp," Post cried as he stepped from the plane, and again the world's cheers rang in his ears.

Puts Away Winnie Mae

Next the stratospheric flights, this year. Four times he took off from fields in California, bent on reaching New York through extremely high altitudes in record time. Four times he failed to reach his goal but he was satisfied with what he learned of the stratosphere.

He had done many things but

FARFICAL ATTEMPT TO BOOST PRICE OF SILVER

Congressman Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma, characterized the silver program of the government as a colossal farce, and so it is. Any attempt of the government to restore the price of silver and cause it to take its place as one of the metallic bases for United States currency, short of bimetallism, is, and must necessarily be, a gigantic failure. The metallic foundation of American currency is gold and silver. To demonetize one naturally increases the popularity and value of the other. The attempt of the government to boost the price of silver by its gigantic purchasing program can only be regarded as a temporary move to hold the silver price at something like its material value, as the United States government is practically the only buyer, and therefore the source of the only demand for the white metal.

The restoration of silver to its former place of free and unlimited coinage is the only method to bring silver back to its rightful place in America's financial set-up. With silver restored to free and unlimited coinage at the mints of the nation, not only the government would be the source of demand for the white metal, but the world at large would augment the demand of our own government and thus guarantee the stability of silver, and would increase the circulating medium. But making silver a commodity, to be hawked on the boards of exchange, won't get it. Just the government going into the open market and bidding so much for one of the basic metals of our currency means but little to the country.

Bimetallism

On a bimetallic primary money the American states grew rich and prosperous—not a few individuals who now control 95 percent of the wealth of the nation—but everybody in the entire nation had some money.

Since silver was demonetized in 1893 certain favored few have garnered the wealth of the nation for their own use and benefit, and the masses have become poorer and poorer, while the rich have steadily grown more powerful with their annexed wealth under the gold standard.

Discussing the silver purchasing act, Senator Thomas stated that instead of trying to buy silver on the cheapest market the government should force the price upward with the ultimate object of monetized silver, and thus bring the market to America. If the object of the government is to acquire silver cheaply, he said, the purchase act should be repealed. The silver program might as well be abandoned unless the government is going to buy with a view of remonetizing the metal, Thomas said, and so it might.

There is only one incentive for the government acquiring a stock of silver, and that is make silver into real money, otherwise, the whole program is a colossal farce. We have been told that silver is "a debased metal." Yes, because it has been debased by government decree. Gold has been favored as the basis of our currency, while silver has been legislated against.

A Comparison

A comparison of gold and silver might be made with that of wheat and corn. Suppose, by legislative enactment, there should be passed a bill making it unlawful to use corn for bread, and prescribe that no mills should grind corn at all, but all mills were open for the processing of wheat. It would require no stretch of the imagination to see corn steadily decrease in value and wheat advance. So, the mints, according to the monetary laws, may mint all the gold that is brought in free of charge, or just enough to pay the mintage, but the mints of the nation are closed to the coinage of silver, and only by purchasing the metal on the market is its value recognized and regulated. It thus becomes a commodity, without a value as one of the precious metals of the nation.

Silver money is a circulating medium. Those who have it spend it. Gold is a coward as a medium of circulation. Before the gov-

Demand GOOD LIGHTING

NOT THIS WAY

Inadequate and improper lighting conditions cause near-sightedness and eyestrain in children.

BUT THIS WAY

The STUDY LAMP provides light of the right quality and quantity for reading or studying.

More than half the boys and girls who fail in their studies have defective vision!

That puts it squarely up to parents to provide proper lighting conditions for study and reading. For poor lighting is the chief cause of eye strain and near-sightedness, in children.

If your child holds his book abnormally close to his eyes when reading, or if he squints, or complains of headaches... beware!

To make sure that your child will have proper lighting when the duties of the new school year arrive, let one of our representatives make a free survey of your home. The sightmeter will tell you the results. Your local office will be glad to tell you when our lighting representative is available.

Martha—A Home Maker

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Luke 10:38-42; John 11:1-44

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

In the village of Bethany lived Martha and Mary and Lazarus who often welcomed Jesus and his disciples to their home. Martha went to great trouble to prepare a meal for Jesus but Mary took time to listen to Jesus' words.

Martha urged Jesus to order Mary to help her with the work. Jesus replied, "Martha you are anxious and troubled about many things. But one thing is needful; for Mary hath chosen the good part."

When Lazarus died his sisters sent word to Jesus. Martha cried, "Lord, if you had been here my brother would not have died." Jesus said, "I am the resurrection and the life, he that believes in me, though dead, yet shall he live."

Standing before the tomb Jesus wept not only in sympathy for Mary and Martha but for Lazarus, whom he called back from the dead, when he cried, "Lazarus come forth."

UCV Convention In Amarillo Will Be Last Meeting

AMARILLO, Aug. 17—When the United Confederate Veterans meet in Amarillo, Texas, September 3 to 6, for their 45th annual reunion, it may be the closing of this once mighty organization composed of those warriors who followed the Stars and Bars in the War between the States.

Recent years have taken a heavy toll of the once grey lines that followed Lee and Jackson of the Confederacy. Only a trace of those grey waves of Southern men remain. Many, of course, are too feeble to attend a reunion of their comrades.

However, in spite of the great inroads which death is making in its ranks, General Harry Rene Lee, Nashville, Tenn., commanding the veterans, expects at least 1,000 members to meet in Amarillo, about 300 more than assembled at Chattanooga last year.

Amarillo came forward with an invitation only when it was evident the Confederate veterans would not have a place in which to hold their reunion this year. Other cities, having invited them, later failed to raise a sufficient sum to stage the affair.

U. S. Marine Band

While entertaining Confederate veterans will be a new experience for Amarillo, those attending are assured of every consideration and a full program of entertainment. The United States Marine band is being sent here for the four days. Many state delegations are bringing official state and college bands. An old-fashioned rodeo, featuring cowboys from Texas ranches, will be among the high lights of side attractions.

All veterans and their attendants will be guests of the host city. Free meals and lodging are being made available in barracks, made possible with equipment from the United States Army, and in Amarillo homes. That Amarillo is determined to entertain the veterans and visitors with true West Texas hospitality is evidenced in advance preparations.

Shake-Up Occurs In Eastland Police

EASTLAND, Aug. 17—W. L. Mead, Eastland police chief for the past two years, reported for work Friday morning at the city hall and was notified by J. F. Little, city manager, of his dismissal.

W. J. Peters, Eastland resident for over 25 years, was appointed and deputized Friday as an officer to succeed Mead.

Also dismissed Friday was R. H. Ball, night policeman.

J. F. Little, city manager, explained that no police will be on duty in the mornings and that Peters and Elton Reeves will be on the night force.

There will be no official police chief, the city manager explained, and each will have the same importance.

Mr. Mead, the former chief, had served on the Eastland force for six years. He worked under former Chiefs Lee Reid and Ben Pryor.

It was indicated that the present force of Eastland police might be augmented by one for day duty. W. L. Mead formerly served on day duty.

Funeral Services For Mrs. Lucky Held Saturday

Funeral services were held at the residence at 10:30 Saturday morning for Mrs. Mary Florence Lucky, 37, who died at her home, 506 West Tenth street at 7:30 Friday morning.

The Rev. E. S. James, pastor of the First Baptist Church, conducted the services. Burial was in Oakwood cemetery with Green Funeral Home in charge.

Mrs. Lucky died unexpectedly of throat trouble. She is survived by her husband, D. M. Lucky; four children, Lavoita, Marion, George and Rufus; her mother, Mrs. Belle Posey, and a brother, Ray Posey both of Annona, and the following other relatives: Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Posey of Clarksville, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Sanders and children of Levelland; E. D. Posey, G. F. Posey, C. N. Wagley, A. L. Dondley, G. A. Love, E. E. Posey of Cisco, and L. E. Posey of Houston.

Mrs. Lucky was born in 1898 in Red River county. At the age of 15 she joined the Baptist church in which she was an active member. She was a graduate of Baylor college at Belton and was a former teacher and principal of the public school at Dothan.

Cook Family Has Reunion at Clyde

ALBANY, Aug. 17—Thirty-seven members of the S. S. Cook family, met at Clyde last Sunday for the first reunion held in many years. The Cooks came to Stephens county in 1877 and a year or so later settled the townsite of Eolian.

A beautiful picnic spot one-half mile south of Clyde was the meeting place for four daughters and one son of the late S. S. Cook and wife. They were Mrs. W. H. Brunson, Midland; Mrs. H. M. Rainbolt, Merkel; Mrs. J. F. Berry, Clyde; Mrs. R. N. Chalker, Eolian; W. I. Cook, Littlefield. Other relatives joining in the days festivities were Mr. and Mrs. Glenn S. Brunson and children, Glenn, Jr., Nellie Elkin and Shirley; Mrs. A. C. Weyman and sons, William and Edward; Mrs. Charles Blalock; Mrs. J. B. Zant and son, John, Jr., all of Midland; Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Hargrove; Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Hargrove; Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Britian and children, Patty Lynn and Jane; Jesse Moody, Abilene; Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Fryar and Carrol and Shirley Louise Moody, Albany; Miss Hazel Lee Rainbolt, Merkel; J. F. Berry, Mr. and Mrs. John Berry, Clyde; Joan Berry, Haskell; Misses Eula Lee, Ivorene and Merle Chalker, Eolian.

4-L Club Meets Wednesday With Billie Kilborne

The 4-L club met Wednesday with Billie Kilborne at his home on West 13th street. The evening was spent in playing cards and refreshments were served to Misses Merrill Goldberg, Ruth El Duff, Nanna Lee Pence of Brownwood, Doris Surles, Louise Statham and Pansy Lee Porter, and Messrs. Livius Lankford, Horace Cameron, Donald Surles, J. G. Rupe, J. F. Armstrong, and Billie Kilborne.

For the Bridge Player

By TOM O'NEIL
Pressing Luck

Comes from E. H. Goodenough of New York a theory that the time to take big chances on slams is when the cards are running for you. I have seen a rubber game in which the contrary was the case, when a player far behind came out on top by two successive grand slams. But the following is from a rubber in which Goodenough took part:

North
S. A-K-Q-4-2
H. 10-8-7
D. 6-3
C. 7-4-2

West East

D. Q-9-7-4-2 D. J-10-8
C. J-10-6 C. A-K-Q-9-8

South, Dealer
S. 8-6-5
H. A-K-J-9-3
D. A-K-5
C. 5-3

It was the final rubber of a session in which North and South were behind. South bid a heart and North responded with a spade after West's pass. With the opposition passing South bid two hearts, North three hearts, South four clubs (a bluff to stop a club lead). North bid four spades. South took that as confirmation of a spade suit with tops on which he could get discards. He leaped to six hearts; East doubled.

The club psychic worked to the extent of inducing the opening lead of a diamond and South had hopes. He put himself into the North hand with a spade, finessed East out of his heart queen and then found that the spades did not break so he could get club discards.

His alibi for the set was that he thought a three-two adverse holding in spades was a good gamble when he most needed to recoup.

Then East and West increased their point total with a grand slam on the hypothesis that it was more probable that a grand slam could be made than a little slam:

a spade after a pass. South passed and West went three spades. East went to four and West leaped to seven.

South opened his ace of hearts. After ruffing, East discarded three diamonds on West's hearts and ruffed clubs and diamonds to take all the tricks.

South felt that the only chance of setting a grand slam was with the heart ace, inasmuch as the bidding indicated to him a bit of a fit between East and West in hearts. He said that against a mere game bid or a little slam bid he would have opened the diamond jack, which would have enabled the defense to take three diamond tricks.

"Ah, one should pass when ahead, not behind," chortled Goodenough.

Mrs. Winston Is Hostess to Circle

Plain Cowboy at Birth Ends Life Friend of Great

Will Rogers began life as a plain Oklahoma cowboy who was proud of his Cherokee Indian blood and of his ability to twirl a rope. He died the intimate of presidents and kings, of millionaires and dictators, the No. One humorist of the world beloved of rich and poor, the obscure and the famous. He was a man as common as the commonest, as much at home in the ranch bunkhouse or the country store as at the banquet table with the Prince of Wales.

Homely Genius

In homely speech he could size up in a paragraph a national crisis that had statesmen snarling at each other and make even the statesmen laugh.

He was born in the Indian Territory at Oologah, Oklahoma, on November 4, 1879. As a youth on his father's ranch he practically grew up on a horse and learned to throw and twirl a lariat with an expertness that gained him admission to the stage where his versatile and ready wit earned him immediate and lasting fame. Although he lived in California, he called Oklahoma home.

Great Favorite

As a youth he was a great favorite with people because of his fun-loving disposition and his inimitable brand of ready humor.

Educated at Kemper Military school near Booneville, Mo., young Rogers left his home while a youth and went to Texas where he worked on a ranch. From there he went to South America where he appeared in wild west shows and vaudeville, doing his rope-twirling act with great success. From the wild west show and vaudeville it was but a step to the Ziegfeld's Follies where he became an instant favorite with New Yorkers.

The first time Will Rogers' audience laughed at him—the important moment that launched him on his fortune-making career as a humorist—Will was miffed. He thought they were chiding his Oklahoma drawl. That was in 1905 while he was in vaudeville doing a roping stunt. The show manager told him he might explain some of the fine points of trick roping. When Will started talking, the audience roared. Will didn't want to do it again, but was urged and yielded.

Must Hear Him

His first venture in pictures was not sensational, for it was not enough for theatergoers to see Rogers. They must hear him too, to appreciate his art. When the pictures talked Rogers was remade—this time far greater than when he topped the shows on Broadway.

He moved steadily forward and at his death was regarded as the No. 1 attraction in films. His pictures were shown round the world in a dozen languages, although titles had to be superimposed in some countries where his quaint Americanisms could not be readily understood. He spoke a language all his own.

The comedian amassed a great fortune in the amusement field, gave a great deal of money to charitable causes of every description and still was generally regarded as a millionaire. He was perhaps the largest land owner in the motion picture colony.

Although a prolific producer of

We Can Take It

We congratulate the rival newspaper upon its fine handling of the Will Rogers-Wiley Post tragedy Friday. The quickness with which it got out an extra Friday morning was a credit both to its alertness and the excellence of the news service it received. So we score one for the opposition. We have no apologies or excuses to offer. We took too much for granted and weren't on our toes, that's all. But we can take it. When we went into this competition we went into it with the realization that it wasn't going to be a one-sided affair; that it would be a give and take proposition. We went into it with the determination to hit as hard as we could and to grin and take it when we were hit. The Press could have put out an extra just as easy as not Friday morning. But we weren't on our toes and that's all there is to it.

It's just such things that make competition valuable. Naturally, we are determined that we shall not be caught napping again. Moreover, we are determined to further increase the reader interest and the value of the Cisco Daily Press, by making it a newspaper that carries ALL the news. We shall not engage in any fight to get on the business streets first, because the newspaper is read most in the homes of the city and not in the business area. We have fixed a definite time each day to come out and we shall put our efforts into making the Daily Press a newspaper that covers all the news as well as one that seeks to serve with editorial fearlessness the needs of Cisco.

Again, we congratulate the rival paper. It did a good job. But it's got to keep it up if it keeps up with the Press.

ernment called in the gold of the nation it was a well known fact that at the first intimation of a national disaster, such as war or pestilence, it would be withdrawn from circulation and silver and currency must necessarily take its place to carry on the commerce of the world.

So, there can be no place for silver unless it is restored to its primary function as one of the metals for the basis of all American money.

When silver is remonetized, and the mints of the nation are again opened to the free coinage of silver, then, and not until then will there be a permanent value of the white metal. Treating it as a commodity won't get it.

in his early thirties. All the way down through history, the truthful myth of Achilles has been repeated in the realities of men and women who sacrificed long life to achievement and glory. There must be truth, after all, to the statement that quality, not length, of life is what counts.

Joel Chandler Harris, author of many tales of negro folklore, wrote 40 volumes. He was a native of Georgia.

Every successful business man is a consistent advertiser—that's why he is successful.

"Shucks, listen, when a comedian is taken serious he's through. Forget it."

Peggy Wood, the actress, recalled Friday that Rogers had long nursed an ambition that never can be fulfilled. He had hoped to fly from London to Capetown, backtracking the trip he made by boat as a youth when he first won his spurs as an entertainer. He had wit for the screen he was active, too, between pictures, giving what he called lectures all over the country, writing for newspapers and acting as toastmaster at functions devoted to wide range of causes.

He lived on a rambling ranch near the Pacific ocean, between Beverly Hills and Santa Monica. He was not a party goer. When he appeared at a Hollywood celebration it was an event. No affair could coax him into formal evening dress. He made the old blue serge double as a dinner jacket.

The secret of Rogers' success was that he lived close to the people, on and off the screen. He fitted in any gathering. No one was to big for Rogers to kid, but there never was a lasting sting in his wisecracks.

News of the actor's passing left every quarter of his adopted home dazed.

From an unidentified extra, who telephoned to pay his praise, to the most important figures in the life of the state, came the same expression. "There was only one Will Rogers."

Soon after the news reached Los Angeles, flags on all buildings were lowered to half staff.

Bore Grief Alone

Will Rogers, Jr., Stanford university student, only member of the immediate family at home, had to bear his grief alone. Mrs. Rogers, who was Betty Blake of Arkansas, before she married Rogers twenty-seven years ago, was on a visit to their daughter, Mary, actress, in Maine. Jimmy Rogers, the other son, just finished preparatory school, was with his mother.

Rogers couldn't be bothered with grammar—on the stage, screen or in private life. He spoke by ear, rather than rule, but he never was misunderstood. He was constantly denying that his quaint speech was a part of his act, and that as a matter of fact he had attended two or more colleges.

Rogers was referred to as an ambassador at large from the United States to the world. When mentioned as a possible candidate for president and her governor either of Oklahoma or California, he said,
