Cisco Roundup

Mrs. Wiley Daniels of Rising Star visited at the Chandler home last week. Considerable work was done on the Eolian road Tuesday, but the weather materially interfered with the work Wednesday. The city is having the weeds cut on the streets and it is up to the citizens to have their sidewalks cleaned off before the assembling of the picnic in the city next week. The Baptist Sunday school had a picnic Tuesday afternoon. A. S. Nabors and family of Gorman are new residents of the city. Mrs. Bessie Bettis Lawrence of Oklahoma is visiting the Bettis home. Note the war news on another page, and England declared war on Germany yesterday. Mrs. Hulbert Robinson, Miss Myrtle and Aaron arrived from Douglas, Ariz., Wednesday in answer to a telegram announcing her mother's sickness. Cards have been issued as follows: "Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Patterson announce the marriage of their daughter, Same Marie, to Orrin Calvin Britton, Thursday, July 30th at Eastland." To Prof. Britton and Bride we extend congratulations.

BLUE BLOODED BEAUTIES ARE PUT TO DEATH

BERLIN, Feb. 18. — Baroness Anita Von Bergh society beauty and Frau Renate von Natzmer, another blueblooded beauty were beheaded today for spying on behalf of a foreign state.

The execution of the two women was carried out at dawn with such secrecy that it was hours before the official veil could be penetrated sufficiently to learn their exact fate. At first officials said they had been shot by a firing squad. Then the statement was retracted and it was admitted the women had gone to the block where their heads were chopped off by a silk hatted executioner with a medieval battleaxe.

"MUST EDUCATE INTELLECT"

CLEVELAND, Feb. 18. — "We must educate the intellect so the student will be fitted to figure out things for himself and meet the changing conditions of this modern world," said Dr. William F. Pierce, president of Kenyon college, Gambier, O., in addressing an alumni group here.

Spencer Catches California Spirit

Yes, he has it! J. E. Spencer has the true California spirit, climate and all. The Chamber of Commerce secretary has just returned from California after two weeks spent in looking after gold mining interests which he and other Cisconians have there, and is full of praise of the climate, the flowers, the heavily laden grapefruit, orange, and lemon trees.

And—believe it or not—he says that California had a very unusual rainfall this year, which accounts for the good appearance of the vegetation there.

CLAIM NEGRO TRIED ATTACK UPON SISTER

EASTLAND, Feb. 18. — The state's case against Frank Allen, negro, accused of assault to attack Mary Kertesz, white transient girl, in Cisco on the night of Jan. 25, apparently lost ground today when the defense brought out in cross examination that the two principal witnesses were not sure that the negro had tried to attack the girl.

Joe Kertesz, 23, brother of the girl, testified that if he had thought the negro was attempting to attack the girl, he would have attempted to teach them, although the negro was keeping him at bay with a pistol at the time.

Dewey Ball, companion of the boy and his sister, testified that there were hand marks upon the girl and that he believed the negro had attempted to attack her.

Miss Kertesz was to take the stand during the afternoon session, it was believed here today.

The state's case also shrunk in the face of testimony that the negro did not rob the trio, although Kertesz had $4.78 and the girl $10. He is also facing an attempted robbery charge.

Attack in Cisco
The alleged attack was east of Cisco after the trio had left a freight train there and had purchased groceries at a nearby store.

They told officers here that the negro had held them prisoners for five hours, forcing them to go with him to a wooded area east of the city.

They said that he menaced them constantly with a gun and that they escaped only when a passenger train arrived in the city about 1 a. m.

Miss Kertesz and her brother had come from Indiana. Mrs. Kertesz, wife of the youth, had been with them but had left them at Fort Worth to hitch-hike while they came west on a freight. They were going to El Paso, they said.

The pair met Ball, a Kentuckian, at Fort Worth. He was going to a veterans' hospital at El Paso.

The negro was arrested in Cisco the morning after the alleged kidnapping took place. Police said he had been there only three days.

It was intimated unofficially today that Milton Lawrence, counsel for the defense, might put the defendant on the stand in a sensational testimony tomorrow.

FIRST PHASE OF ELEVATOR STRIKE OPENS

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. — Building service employees today opened the first phase of a strike designed to cut off all elevator transportation in New York City skyscrapers.

The walkout threatening such lofty buildings as the Empire State and the Woolworth buildings for mid-morning. At that hour arbitration efforts were going forward but many elevator operators and other building service employees began walking out in advance of union authorization.

Only one walkout, that at the 24-story Brickmen building in Broadway was authorized by the union as a test of strength and a demonstration of what would happen if millions were forced to walk up to get to offices or homes.

OYSTER CAUGHT RAT

SMITH CREEK, N. C., Feb. 18. — Soon after piling a dozen newly-gathered oysters on the kitchen floor of his home here, J. A. Witherington heard a peculiar noise. Entering the kitchen, he found that an oyster had caught a large rat by the tail. The oyster and his captive were placed on display at a fish market.

FRIED OYSTERS COST HIM $250

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 18. — Because Henry James ordered his oysters fried instead of raw he lost $250 here recently. While eating the meal he discovered five pearls. The value of the find would have been $250 a jeweler estimated, if the oysters had been uncooked. The pearls were ruined by the cooking.

Labor Chiefs in Huddle Over Job Insurance

Demanding legislation making a 30-hour week compulsory, labor leaders protested at the senate labor committee's hearing on the proposed work insurance bill that the $50 basis of payments set up would be a serious blow to organized labor's standard of living. Talking things over during a recess at the hearing in Washington, are, left to right; John Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers; William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Senator Neeley, chairman of the committee, and Frank Morrison, secretary of the A. F. of L.

Motion Overruled In Johnson Trial

GATESVILLE, Feb. 18. — The murder charge against Mrs. Ethel Johnson Dallas, charged with the murder of her son, Joe Blankenship, was dismissed suddenly on motion of the prosecution as the first veniremen was called for examination.

District Attorney Tom Reese offered the motion on grounds the prosecution lacked evidence because of absence of several important witnesses.

GATESVILLE, Feb. 18. — A state motion for continuance was overruled today in the trial of Mrs. Ethel Johnson, Dallas, charged with murder for the death of her son, Joe Blankenship, and his bride on a ranch near here last August.

The court allowed the prosecution two hours to file cross interrogatories to defense interrogatories filed previously. A special venire of 75 men was excused till it was filed. Mrs. Johnson, wife of a federal radio commission inspector, was indicted several months after a coroner had returned a verdict of suicide and murder in the death of young Blankenship and his bride.

Reformatory Boys Sought After Break

GRANITE, Okla., Feb. 18. — A small army of peace officers, augmented by bloodhounds and a radio equipped airplane, combed highways, byroads, and farm lands in southwest Oklahoma and nearby Texas today for 18 young criminals who shot their way out of the state reformatory yesterday.

There were 22 in the gang that overpowered guards, surged to the main gate, and left behind the body of a tower guard. Three were caught. A fourth returned, saying he had been forced into the break.

Camp Mabry, near Austin, former training ground for national guardsmen and soldiers during the World war, will be used to instruct the new extensive target ranges are a part of its equipment.

The new business concern will show Buick, Oldsmobile, and Pontiac. These new automobiles feature a total of 34 models, ranging in price from $615 to $2,175 f. o. b. factory, thus offering a range in both price and styling that satisfy the demands for this section of the country.

Hillsboro Man Is Kidnaping Victim

HILLSBORO, Feb. 18. — A. L. Smith, Jr., prominent young Hillsboro business man told officers he was kidnaped last night by two men as he sat in front of a church here, waiting for his wife, and was put out of his car on a country road.

Smith said the men forced him to get into the rear seat of his car, threatening him with a pistol. They drove several miles out on the Fort Worth road, he said, and then returned to Hillsboro, telling him they wanted to "pick up a machine gun."

After obtaining a large bundle at the rear of a filling station here, he said, the men drove west out of town, several miles from town they robbed him of $5 and left him to walk home.

Evidence Gathered For Oil Allocation

AUSTIN, Feb. 18. — Texas railroad commissioners facing necessity of a probable 10,000 barrel reduction in the state daily oil allowance, today received evidence on which to allocate the decrease.

Texas production, under present allowable orders, is 1,026,000 barrels daily as of Feb. 13. Oil Administrator Harold Ickes has certified 1,020,000 barrels daily as the market demand for Texas oil during March, a decrease of 11,600 barrels under the February allocation.

Only one specific request for a higher allowance was entered in the record today. Operators in the Livingston field, the gulf coast district, asked an additional allowable of 1,000 barrels to a day.

DANGER TOLD IN RUSHING TO CISCO'S FIRES

Cisconians today were warned to stay away from fires. The warning came in a statement from Fire Marshal O. Gustafson following a fire Sunday afternoon at the Canico refinery on East Fourteenth street.

Hundreds of people flocked to the fire and not only were in the way of firemen fighting the blaze but actually endangered their own lives, the fire marshal said.

"I don't know why people want to crowd to a fire," he said, "but they do."

"There was very little damage at the one yesterday, but it might have been a mighty dangerous affair. "If any of those tanks had exploded they could not have helped killing some of the people."

Explosion Possibility
It was pointed out that the oil blaze, the smoke and fire alarm of which attracted many sightseers, brought people to within a short distance of the actual flames. Had a tank exploded, it was said, many would have been hurt and possibly killed, and oil would have been thrown "on Fourteenth street to C avenue."

At the same time, firemen complained that they were unable to work properly for the crowd. One fire truck which returned to the station and then came back to the refinery found it difficult to make any progress because of the number of cars and people jammed on Fourteenth street.

Another hazard was pointed out in the fact that many rushed to the fire, driving recklessly and at a high rate of speed in an effort to "beat the trucks."

COURT PROBE OF CLEBURNE DEATH CALLED

CLEBURNE, Feb. 18. — County Attorney Gean Turner planned a court of inquiry today to investigate the death of Mrs. Mattie Jordan, 33, and the serious wounding of her husband, Oscar Jordan, 40, by Nelwyn Jordan, 14-year-old high school girl.

Nelwyn remained grief-stricken at a morgue, from which her mother was buried this morning. Officers said they planned no legal action against her.

Physicians said the father had a chance to live. The girl told officers and newsmen that her mother cried out and she found her parents struggling in their darkened bedroom. She said she fired two shots at her father after mother had told her, "Do something about this."

The first shot struck Mrs. Jordan in the neck, fracturing several vertebrae.

German Officials Guard Saar Border

SAARBRUCKEN, Feb. 18. — Green uniformed customs officials of the third Reich took up their posts at one minute after midnight today along the French frontier in token that "German is the Saar."

To all intents, this rich little territory of 737 square miles and its 770,000 people was back in the Fatherland today.

Although formally, the Saar will not be handed back to Germany as a result of the Jan. 13 plebiscite until March 1, really it is German now, after 15 hated years under League of Nations rule as one of the pawns which Germany lost in the World War.

DECISION ANNOUNCED FIRST IN NOVEL PROCEDURE; GOV'T MONEY POLICIES PROTECTED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. — The supreme court today handed down decisions in the momentous gold cases approving and protecting New Deal monetary policies.

The court gave outright approval to legislation which eliminated gold payment clauses from all private bonds. The court was divided five to four on all cases.

It threw out other suits which sought to test this legislation as applied to government bonds.

The court likewise threw out a suit in which payment at the rate of $1.69 in devalued currency was sought on gold certificates turned in under the treasury's gold seizure orders.

The court resorted to unprecedented procedure by first announcing its decisions in the cases and then proceeding one by one to the reading of opinions supporting the decisions.

In the government bonds and gold certificate cases, the court held the U. S. court of claims in which the suits were filed had no authority to entertain such suits.

In the liberty bonds case, the court held the congress went too far in eliminating the gold payment clause from government bonds. But it said that any action to recover must be in law and that the court of claims had no jurisdiction.

Treasury officials said they viewed the court's action on the gold cases as a complete government victory.

Europe to Japan Via U. S.

Travelers from Europe to the Far East will go west to reach their destination, if plans now being perfected by the French Line prove successful.

A co-ordinated Franco-Japanese service across the United States at greater speed and less expense than the ordinary eastern route is to be offered by the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique, this year.

By this western way to the East, Paris and Yokohama are brought within 26 days of each other, via the United States. The cost, first class, is figured at $497 or L102. Under this project, Honolulu will be 17 days from Paris; Shanghai, 29; Sydney, 30, and Melbourne, 33.

After reaching New York aboard such fast French liners as the Normandie, Il-de-France or Champlain, the Tokyo-bound passengers will proceed across the American continent, to Vancouver, Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles. From these ports, they will continue across the Pacific in the "President" boats of the Dollar Line, or in Asiatic boats such as the Assama Maru, Chichibu Maru and the Tatsuta Maru. For tourists who have more time at their disposal, stopovers will be arranged for at Niagara Falls, Yellowstone Park and the Grand Canyon of Colorado.

Hitherto, most Europeans bound for Japan have taken the land route via the Trans-Siberian Railroad, or the long sea route via the Mediterranean, the Red Sea. With the new Paris-Tokyo via America service instituted, the trip will be shorter, the expenses less, and the discomforts of the tropics will be avoided. It is confidently believed that many diplomats, journalists and business men going from Europe to Japan will prefer this new route.

Interesting Old-World Items

British and Australian newspapers rush out editions carrying the Hauptmann verdict in enormous headlines. Popular opinion in those countries, where the papers carried full cable reports, appears to approve the verdict. London papers comment that gowns and wigs were omitted and cigarettes allowed in recesses in the Flemington court. In line with American sentiment, they regret the theatricalism press and radio gave the trial, but commend the dignity and fairness maintained by Justice Trenchard. The conviction does not bring back the Lindbergh—but the world is quietly gratified to know that the parents could not be made to suffer such an outrage with impunity.

Japan's House of Representatives overwhelmingly passes the military expenditures budget of $297,000,000 and sends it to the House of Peers. The sum, largest in Japanese history, represents 46 per cent of the entire year's expenditures. The militarists have won their long, hard fight on the score of "an international crisis" and the opposition is nearly silenced. A dreadful dictum an admiral has demanded that the people accept—He has said Japan must maintain an equal navy even if its citizens are reduced to a diet of rice gruel.

Reichsfuhrer Adolf Hitler announces that Germany will win its way back into the world markets with a new automobile that requires little fuel. He opens the auto show, saying Germany solves the problem of the cheap car because it must. He cites one costing no more than a middle-priced motorcycle and having "the least imaginable fuel consumption." The motor makers enthuse—They feel the new car becomes the object of first importance for export.

Little Red Schoolhouse Retires

Once America's pride, the "little red schoolhouse," with its barnlike single room and primitive equipment, is slowly but surely passing. More than 10,000 of these small district school buildings were abandoned in the past few years, their places being taken by the modern consolidated school.

With the rapid extension of good roads and the employment of motor busses for the transportation of children to these larger institutions, it seems inevitable that the one-room school, with its many handicaps, will eventually disappear.

While the district school must thus give place to a new and better system, it has filled a paramount role in the advancement of the nation. To the self-sacrificing labors of faithful teachers in these rural schools many famous men and women owe their early education and inspiration.

But the demands of progress must be met in education, as well as in all other phases of our increasingly complex civilization. The new and larger consolidated school, with its staff of better prepared teachers, its improved organization and its modern equipment will mark an advance over the "little red school house," which must make for a more enlightened and efficient citizenship.

Formaldehyde, prohibited as a preservative in most countries, may occur naturally in undetermined amounts in canned sea foods, it is reported by Norwegian research workers.

It is reported that Spain's one iodine manufacturer has been forced to stop production because Chilean iodine is so cheaply produced.

"It's never too late to begin," is the slogan of the 106-year-old man who recently advertised for employment in a London newspaper. He characterized himself as being "active as at 40, youthful appearance, highly educated, linguist."

Just Another Simple Scheme To End Work

Collie Is Second Senator To List Employers

By RAYMOND BROOKS
AUSTIN, Feb. 18.—Sen. Wilbur B. Collie of Eastland is the second member of the Texas senate to file a sworn statement as to his employment and compensation. Sen. Collie lists his clients of the past year in the Senate Journal. He recited he is not employed in any criminal case and "have received no compensation whatever for recommending executive clemency either to the pardon board or governor."

Sen. Collie quoted Edmund Burke's speech at Bristol that "it ought to be the glory of a representative to live in the strictest union, the closest correspondence and the most unreserved communication with his constituents." Then he listed the names and addresses of all persons, firms and corporations who have engaged his services as a lawyer during the year 1934: H. A. Skinner, Eastland; Harry Porter, Fort Worth; T. L. Patterson, Lubbock; Will St. John, Cisco; Cisco State Bank, Cisco; Earl Bender & Co., Eastland; Texas State Bank, in Lido, Eastland; Ernest Falks, Eastland; First National Bank, German; W. A. Lasater, Nimrod; Mrs. Sylvia Evans, Breckenridge; Guy Dabney, Cisco; Pratlley Bros., Eastland; Newham & Walker, Ranger; Pipkin Bros., Eastland; Drs. Payne & Lovett, Eastland; Panhandle Refining Co., Eastland; Mrs. Lillian Denison, Springfield, Ill.; Crown-Central Co., Houston; Butler-Harvey Chevrolet Co., Eastland; The Fair, Fort Worth; Pipkin-Moore & Bender, Eastland; Receiver Security Union Insurance Co., Houston; American Service Bureau Dallas; Retail Credit Company, Fort Worth.

"My principal occupation when not engaged in the service of the state as a member of the state senate, is that of practicing law. I was paid a fee by the above clients for specified legal services referred to my office and in the courts. I have no partnership, and have not at any time been retained by any person, firm or corporation for any salary, dividend or compensation upon any time basis. I have never worked for represented, a utility, transportation or oil corporation and have never owned stock in any such company. I am not indebted to, or have claims against, any such company or corporations, and so far as I know have no relative to connected."

"I hold no membership in any group, association, organization, chamber of commerce, or corporation that has appeared before legislative committees in behalf of, or opposed to, the passage of any legislation. I know of no relative holding such membership and none has appeared before any committee."

"A brother is employed as gasoline tax enforcer in the Dallas office of the state comptroller at a salary of $150 per month. A nephew is employed as a patrolman on the capitol grounds by the board of control at a salary of $20 per month. These are the only relatives known to me to be employed by the state."

FARMS HAVE LABORATORY
POYNETTE, Wis., Feb. 18.—Wisconsin's experimental fur farm now is equipped with a laboratory where new types of animals are developed and other free service carried on for the state's 1,200 fur farmers and for conservation generally. It is believed to be the only one of its kind in the country. One of the experiments resulted in crossing black raccoons with native Wisconsin gray raccoons, giving a dark gray healthy animal.

SARNIA, Ont., Feb. 18.—Similar in size to a one-cent piece, a coin owned by Bruce Armstrong is believed by collectors to be over 1,800 years old. Markings on it indicate, they say, it was printed in Rome during the reign of Emperor Claudius, about 54 B. C.

AUSTIN, Feb. 18.—Flow of hot oil and gasoline has been reduced to "a mere trickle," Chmn. Ernest O. Thompson of the railroad commission said here.

Chmn. Thompson said the outlet of illegal gasoline and oil is mostly through truck shipments. He urged that trucks used to haul such contraband products be confiscated, and that the vehicles and the oil or gasoline be sold and the revenues turned into the public school fund.

Gov. Allred is writing a message to the legislature which will mark a high point of the administration, and will touch one of the chief policy issues of the legislative session.

The message will deal entirely with taxes. It will discuss the sales tax, the income tax, ad valorem taxes, and natural resources, production and occupation taxes. It will make specific recommendations. Of these, already it is known that Gov. Allred opposes the sales tax, and has promised to veto it. He opposes it as a means of paying off local bond issues, though if a constitutional amendment no opportunity to either approve or veto the submission.

A sidelight on what his message probably will contain was given when Gov. Allred asked for exhaustive figures on the state's revenues in production taxes on a monopoly Texas product shipped throughout the world.

We don't quite see how a disease caused by high taxes can be cured by raising more taxes, however, it has kept the politicians busy and the people expectant while the spending of extra high taxes on all sorts of irrelevant and futile activities has shown the sad mental state of the Brain Trusters.

Many business men who discovered that we could not tax ourselves into prosperity have tactlessly said so with the result that they were told to go back and sit down.

There can be no question but that almost the whole of the thinking and reading world is imbued with fear about taxes. No doubt, they will have to like it, so everybody might as well get over their fears and grin and bear it.

"RAP-TAKER" RELEASED
AKRON, O., Feb. 18.—Edward B. Kinna, who wanted to "take the rap" for a murder he didn't commit, was released from the city workhouse here on orders of Detective Chief Fred Deitz. Kinna was held for a fortnight after he told detectives a fantastic tale that he had committed a Miami Fla. murder in 1930 for which another man was serving a life sentence. His story was disproved, however, Deitz said.

WASHINGTON—Critics of the administration's five billion-dollar work-relief bill are considering a proposal that will strike terror into the hearts of many New Dealers.

The idea is to bring administrators and cabinet members to the Senate floor, where they can be questioned in detail as to administration measures—somewhat after the manner of the British Parliament.

A simple change in Senate rules would permit the invitation of high officials to the chamber for questioning. And it would be difficult for an invited official to refuse with dignity.

The chief reason for hesitation in proposing such a rule has been the certainty that administration forces would combine to bury the resolution in committee. But you're likely to hear from it.

TELEGRAPH company officials place the number of World Court telegrams received by senators after Father Coughlin's radio speech at about 60,000.

That doesn't come up to the wild tales you've heard of hundreds of thousands, but it's more telegrams than ever landed here before at one time and enough to scare a Senate—especially since most of the messages were signed by from two to a dozen names.

Senator Warner of New York seems to hold the record, with approximately 10,000 telegrams received. But he stuck by the administration and voted against the court.

World Court letters at least equaled the telegrams in number.

PROGRESSIVES in Congress profess to see the hand of Gerard Swope, General Electric magnate, behind the administration's social insurance measures—which they regard as conservative. Although they consider Swope a relatively enlightened industrialist, his influence in forming the legislation is supposed to have been greater than they think any industrialist should have been allowed to exert. Swope was on the presidential security committee.

Nevertheless, insiders know that the most important influence behind the Wagner-Lewis unemployment insurance bill—whose principles are preserved in the administration proposal to foster state systems—was that of Justice Louis Dembitz Brandeis.

The justice, whose disciples here are legion, prefers small units to big units and wanted to be sure the measure would be constitutional.

UNMISTAKABLE signs come from Capitol Hill that the stock of Secretary Ickes, who took such a wicked lambasting from members who sought to keep him from administering the work relief program, is booming again.

After Speaker Byrns had assumed Congressmen that Ickes wouldn't boss the entire program, word went quietly around that Ickes still rated high at the White House and would certainly have a say-so about a portion of the funds.

Members were also reminded that Ickes was still able to rescind many existing public works allocations and to expose politicians who hadn't kept their noses shiny clean in the past scramble for funds.

Thus no one was surprised when Cox of Georgia, who had said on the floor that Ickes had so extensively insulted members that he was "the most thoroughly hated man connected with the government at the present time," backed tracked abjectly by announcing to the House that his remarks had been both unkind and mistaken.

SILKEN SPINDLES

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Gale Henderson, pretty and 22, works in a silk mill. She and her 19-year-old brother, Phil, support their invalid father. STEVE MEYERS, who also works in the mill, asks Gale to marry him. She promises to give him an answer in a few days. Gale goes skating, breaks through the ice and is rescued by BRIAN WESTMORE who falls face now dead, but the mill. Brian has come home after two years in Paris to enter the mill. Vicky disappears before he can learn her name.

VICKY BUTCHER, daughter of ROBERT BUTCHER, general manager of the mill, schemes to captivate Brian. Vicky leaves in a rage determined to show Gale she cannot take Brian from her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXVIII

THE crowd shuffled out of the movie theater, stopping to look at posters announcing next week's show; girls peering to catch a glimpse of themselves in the narrow mirror panels at either side of the entrance, to powder noses and dab on rouge, chattering and laughing; young men who spoke in deeper tones, pausing to light cigarettes and jam hats on firmly.

Steve Meyers looked down on Gale as they stepped out on the sidewalk. "Wasn't such a bad picture, was it?" he asked.

"Oh, I liked it. That girl who was 'Kathy' is a new star, isn't she? I've never seen her before. And didn't she look beautiful—"

The words broke off. A couple—a small girl in a bright red hat and rather dowdy fur coat and a tall youth—had just halted before the glass case where tickets were sold.

Steve asked, "What was that you were saying?"

"About the picture? Oh, I don't know—it doesn't matter anyhow. That was Phil with Ruby Griffith. Did you see them?"

"Yes."

They walked in silence for a few moments. Then Steve said, "I wish you wouldn't worry the way you do about Phil."

"How can I help it? You see the sort of company he seems to prefer—Ruby Griffith and her crowd. You know what they're like. And he comes home at all hours of the night and morning. It's only within the last six months or so that he's been like this."

"Worrying isn't going to do any good."

"No, I don't suppose it will. But what can I do, Steve?"

yourself, trying to do something for someone else."

"But I'm not! I don't do half the things I should."

"I wish you'd let me do them for you."

"Steve—"

"Oh, I'm not going to say any more. I promised I wouldn't and I'll keep that promise. You said you couldn't marry anyone now. But there's one thing I want to ask you. When you were away at school—well, you must have known lots of other fellows. Is there anyone else, Gale?"

"You mean—"

"Is there anyone else you're in love with?"

Gale was glad she did not have to meet his eyes. She knew exactly how those blue eyes looked. She turned away, surprised that her heart was beating so rapidly. She wished it wouldn't. Steve was waiting for her to answer and there was only one answer to give. You certainly couldn't count a man you'd met only three or four times and then purely by accident, even though he had said, "I like you, Gale Henderson. I like you a lot."

Gale said, "There's no one else, Steve. No one."

He put a hand on her arm, drew her close. His voice had an edge of buskiness. "Then I can go on hoping," he said. "Oh, Gale, if you only knew how I feel about you—"

"You promised," she reminded him.

"Yes, I know. I promised."

He began talking about something that had happened at the mill. Five minutes later they had reached Gale's home.

"You'll come in, won't you?" she asked.

"Not tonight. Going to be home tomorrow evening?"

"I think so."

"It isn't nonsense. It's too much for you, doing all you do at home and working at the mill besides."

"Father, what in the world put such ideas in your head?"

"My own eyes have done it—seeing you look so tired when night comes and growing thinner. I can't help worrying about you, Gale. You ought to be married and settled in your own home. When your mother was your age—"

"But things are different now!"

"I know. But that doesn't make them any better. I've lived my life and some of these days I'm going to be gone."

"Father, please—!"

"It's better to face things calmly. Gale—better to talk about them. I'm not afraid of dying. A man couldn't be who lives as I do, a burden to the ones he loves. No, I'm not afraid to die, but I wish I could know you were going to be happy and safe. I don't worry about Phil; he's a boy and he can take care of himself."

Gale had risen from her chair and slipped an arm around his shoulders. "Don't, father!" she begged. "I can't bear to hear you say such things! You aren't going to leave us—not for a long, long time."

He smiled. "Perhaps not. Still, I'd feel more comfortable to know things were going to be all right for you. I'd rather hope that you and Steve—". He raised his eyes, letting them finish the question.

"Steve's been an awfully good friend," Gale said. "I'm fond of him. But I don't want to marry anyone, father. Not now. Not for years."

"Well, if it isn't to be Steve I hope it will be someone as worthy. Steve's made of the right stuff. He's a fine young man, Gale."

"I know that. Steve's all you say he is—and more."

Her father covered her hand with his, pressed it. "Well, we won't talk about it any more tonight," he said. "It's late anyhow. Time to be in bed."

Gale rinsed the cups and wiped them, set the bread and butter away. "He thinks I should marry Steve," she told herself. "He wants me to marry him."

She was sober-faced as she put out the kitchen light and went to her bedroom, sober-faced as she stood before her mirror, brushing her hair. This mood continued throughout the following morning. It was Sunday and the Hendersons ate dinner at 1 o'clock. By 20 minutes past two when Gale had finished putting the last dish back into the cupboard, had wiped her hands and hung away her apron there was a knock on the front door.

Cale hurried to open it. A young man wearing a brown windbreaker jacket and corduroy trousers stood before her. His cap was pulled down over his eyes.

"Special delivery," he said, "for Miss Gale Henderson. Sign here, please." He held a pencil and pad toward her.

X-Rays May Be Used In Applying Iodine

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. — Applying iodine to internal infections of the human body by means of X-ray treatment is a possibility that soon may become accepted practice in the field of medicine.

"Internal antiseptic treatment may be done by injecting a non-toxic compound of iodine into the infected section of the anatomy," Dr. James said.

"When this spot is then irradiated with X-rays, the compound is broken down and releases free or nascent iodine. The iodine then performs its germicidal action."

"This process continues only so long as the X-rays are present and as soon as they are removed the free iodine returns to the compound and is carried away through the blood stream."

"The secondary radiations themselves have a germicidal effect."

Experiments on rabbits have proved the feasibility of this practice, he said.

Before it can be used on the human body, however, years of research will be necessary in order to learn the exact conditions affecting the ability of a person to withstand the presence of toxic iodine in his system, and for how long.

CAT FROZEN IN SNOW
MIDLAND, Ont., Feb. 18. — Arriving at his barber shop Dick Lethbridge found a cat outside his door. He discovered the animal was frozen solidly in the snow.

Apparently it had gone to sleep, the heat of its body melted the snow and then a quick drop in temperature caused ice to form, freezing it to the ground. After a little attention the cat appeared to suffer no ill effects.

Economist Says Unemployment Insurance 'Dole' Prevented Revolution In Britain

By HENRY T. RUSSELL
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON, Feb. 18. — Unemployment insurance—wrongly but better known as "the dole"—stood between Britain and revolution, according to Sir George Paish, distinguished economist who predicted the world crisis ten years ago.

According to Paish, one-time financial adviser to ex-Prime Minister David Lloyd George, the so-called "dole" system has great advantages, even though he, Paish, would prefer to see a return to conditions whereby men earned their living through a normal demand for their services.

Introduced by Liberals
"The system was introduced in England by Liberals in about 1911," explained Paish. "I myself had suggested it before its introduction here, following a visit to the United States, where I found that great improvements were being made in modernizing industry. My suggestion was that the unemployed here should be insured in order that it should be made easier for employers to discharge them when installing modern machinery which enabled them to dispense with labor. It is uneconomical to keep people working in an industry, just working at a low wage, when by machinery you can do the work so much better."

Paish added that during his visit to the United States, he had found that great changes were being made

CHECK UP ON CONDITION IS HEALTH PLEA

AUSTIN, Feb. 18. — If you have not had an audit made recently of your physical assets and liabilities, go to your doctor now and have it done, is the advice of Dr. John W. Brown, director of the state department of health, to grown-ups in Texas. "It is quite as important," Dr. Brown said, "to check up on your physical resources as it is to look into the state of your financial possessions. By regular care under your physician's direction, you can conserve your physical assets and can avoid the accumulation of destructive liabilities."

"Each of us starts with a certain amount of physical capital. Merely as a personal business proposition, it is worth while to conserve it to the best of our ability. In infancy and in childhood our physical resources, as a rule, are safeguarded for us. As we grow older, the responsibility for doing or rests to a large extent upon the individual. The critical period for many comes in middle life with the sudden sharp realization that the physical capital is yielding diminishing return in the way of physical well-being.

"The records of health departments and of insurance companies show that from ten to fifteen years have been added to the average length of life. But the same records let us see that a large part of the deaths reported every year, are due to what is known as the degenerative diseases of middle age."

"Nearly all of these diseases have slow beginnings, and their onset can often be recognized, in the course of a thorough physical examination, before they have gained serious headway. In the majority, early detection of the menacing conditions with a readjustment of the physical activities and a better budgeting of activities under the physician's direction, will help to shift the balance from the unfavorable to the favorable side of the ledger."

Actor Is Never As Important As He Thinks, Says Italian

By ALEXANDER KAHN
United Press Staff Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 18. — Tullio Carminati does not place too high a value on his ability as an actor, nor does he think actors as a group are great creative factors in society, and it is for those reasons that he derives a certain cynical amusement from the antics of many of his fellow screen players.

For Carminati observes that most of the actors and actresses here are egoistic to an extreme degree. He finds that most of them believe the entire world rotates about their persons.

"The Italian actor feels that a certain type of ego is not harmful; in fact, may be useful to an actor—professional ego.

"Every motion picture player must have some form of professional ego if he is to be successful," says Carminati. "What I consider out of place is the personal ego; the sense of importance which prompts an actor to suppose that he is entitled to equal attention with the Deity."

"An actor is never as important as he believes he is. As a matter of fact, the best is only an imitator of life; a mimic who can reproduce the basic emotions which affect mankind the world over."

"No good actor is a creator in the sense that a painter, writer or composer is a creator. It is only his majestic ego that makes him believe he is superior to others.

"I believe acting is an art and a fairly subtle one, and difficult, too, because it requires less the technique of an actor than the ability to interpret. An actor is never better than the individual he impersonates. After all, the best old man character is the one we chance upon

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18. — Jules Leroux, Belgian Consul for Philadelphia, has extended an invitation to all school students in this city to "join hands across the sea" with students of Belgian schools.

The movement is sponsored by the Belgian Minister of Public Instruction through the Belgian Bureau for student exchange.

Students interested in improving their knowledge of French by corresponding with a Belgian student are urged by the bureau to make a request for a name to be supplied by them. They will supply a name of a boy or girl for the exchange. The Belgian student will write in English and the American boy or girl in French. Both correspondents thereby improving their knowledge of a foreign language.

Leroux believes that in this way a closer bond of friendship will spring up between the two countries.

INSTRUMENTS MAY TELL OF OZONE LAYER

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 18. — Plans for the construction of special scientific instruments to be carried by the Army Air Corps-National Geographic Society balloon on a proposed second flight into the stratosphere already have been completed it was announced here.

The instruments, two delicate spectrophotographs, will be built at the Bausch & Lomb company laboratories.

Final details in the designing of the instruments will be worked out before construction begins, it was announced after a conference between Bausch and Lomb scientists and technicians and Thomas W. McKnew, assistant secretary of the National Geographic Society.

By means of the spectrophotographs, the scientists hope to add to the knowledge of the ozone layer of the upper air, by recording the variations in the spectrum.

The balloon for the new flight, McKnew disclosed, will be even larger than the three million cubic feet gas capacity of the previous one. For greater safety, he said, helium will be used instead of hydrogen gas.

Capt. Stevens to Command
Captain Albert W. Stevens of the U. S. Army again will head the flight into the stratosphere, McKnew revealed. In Capt. Stevens' opinion, he said, stratosphere flights are possible only with a large man-controlled balloon to level off for different periods at certain altitudes.

Gustave Fassin, who designed the large spectrophotograph in the previous flight again will be assigned to the task of designing the new instrument with the aid of other members of the local company, it was announced.

If the June flight is successful, another one will be attempted next September, McKnew said.

determined by caseworkers in all counties of the state. Under this plan the commodities distribution department of the Texas Relief Commission will take over all distribution activities and be responsible for putting commodities as they become available into the hands of relief clients. We will not allow surpluses to accumulate because we believe such practice not only causes an added expense for storage and is subject to fire and other hazards but also it causes the commodity to become an old and inferior product.

It was also revealed that the Federal Surplus relief corporation has taken over for shipment out of the state 38,606,804 pounds of canned meat processed in the 22 Texas relief commission beef canning plants.

The remainder of this canned meat, 10,312,734 pounds, was allocated to Texas to be distributed at the rate of 7 1-2 pounds per average family per month through May. Federal authorities said it is possible mutton and veal may be made available for distribution in excess of the 7 1-2 pounds of canned meat, but they would not agree to a request from Texas officials that the issue of canned meat per family be increased.

SISTER MARY'S RECIPES

BY MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

WHEN I was a little girl I used to visit an aunt who served potatoes every meal. Always for "supper" we had potato cakes if we'd had mashed ones for dinner or fried potatoes if they had been served plain boiled at the meal before. Both are perfectly good ways of using left-over potatoes, of course, but repeated three or four times a week apiece, they get monotonous. A good way to use plain boiled potatoes is to dice and reheat in a tomato sauce. Then just before serving, sprinkle grated cheese over the top.

Use canned tomato sauce, or make a sauce of 1 tablespoon flour and one tablespoon butter cooked until bubbly, then add one cup-tomatoes rubbed through a fine sieve and simmer until thick. The flavor of the sauce is improved if, in addition to the seasonings of salt and pepper, two or three cloves and a teaspoonful of minced onion have been heated with the tomato before straining. If more convenient, the potatoes and tomato sauce can be put in a baking dish and reheated in the oven.

Serve in Cheese Sauce

Another good way of using diced boiled potatoes is to reheat in a cheese sauce. Add four tablespoons grated or finely chopped cheese to one cup of hot white sauce. The dish can be served as creamed potatoes or the mixture turned into a buttered baking dish, covered with buttered crumbs and reheated in the oven until the sauce bubbles.

Lyonnaise potatoes use cold boiled potatoes to advantage, too. Pan fry one medium sized onion which has been peeled and thinly sliced in two or three tablespoons fat. Add two cups sliced or cubed potatoes, season with salt and pepper, cover frying pan and cook slowly about fifteen minutes. Cook

Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST: Grapes, cereal, cream, rice omelet, crisp toast, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON: Potato puff, creamed celery, home made relishes, dried peach cobbler, milk, tea.
DINNER: Oven barbecue of rabbit, sweet potatoes baked with prunes, ten-minute cabbage, apple crisp, milk, coffee.

fat from fat salt pork usually is used for proper Lyonnaise potatoes. Some cooks add a few tablespoons vinegar just before the cooking is finished.

Cook With Eggs

Cold boiled potatoes combine well with egg. Dice potatoes and brown lightly in butter. Add one or two tablespoons milk and break over one or two eggs. Stir and cook until egg is set.

Left-over mashed potatoes can be used in many ways. Mashed potato cakes can be made more interesting if a little grated cheese is added to the potato before it is formed into cakes. Or, a well beaten egg may be stirred into about two cups of mashed potatoes to make richer cakes. The little flat cakes can be rolled in flour before browning if a crispier crust is wanted. And finally, there are potato puffs for company days!

Potato Puff

Two cups cold mashed potatoes, 3 eggs, 1 cup grated cheese, separately. Beat whites and yolks of eggs separately. Beat yolks with a Dover beater until thick and lemon colored. Add with cheese to potatoes and mix thoroughly. Beat whites of eggs on a platter with a wire whisk, beating until stiff and dry. Fold into potato mixture and turn into a well oiled baking dish. Bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven and serve
