250 NEGROES BESIEGED BY WHITE ARMY

DANVILLE, Ky., Nov. 11.—Race rioting broke out anew at the Dix River camp late yesterday and only the early arrival of state troops, en route from Frankfort, can prevent serious bloodshed, according to deputies stationed there.

Six hundred whites were besieging 250 negroes who have taken refuge in an abandoned quarry, a telephone message from the camp stated.

Under threat of using machine guns at the entrance of the quarry, the special deputies were holding back the inflamed mob.

White, one of the deputies declared. Fighting was renewed. White said, when a gang of whites attacked a passing negro and gave him a severe beating.

The whites then attempted to march on the guards, but were held back by the threat of a machine.

GIRL WITHOUT ARMS USES HER BRAIN INSTEAD

BELTON, Nov. 11.—Nany Mae Cook, student in the conservatory of fine arts at Baylor College for Women, armless since birth, has learned to hold brush and crayon between her chin and shoulder and produce pictures appealing and perfect in technique.

Beginning the study of art only six months ago, she has completed several canvases of great merit, and is busily engaged upon the most ambitious one of all, a pastoral scene in grays and browns.

Miss Cook entered Baylor as a freshman September 24, immediately beginning her studies in art. She is not only adept with the brush and easel, but she is also an artist with the needle, with a pillow full of blue ribbons to show that she is, among them being the first prize for embroidery, given by the Texas Cotton Palace. She sold more than $200 worth of her own work last summer.

CHANGE IN LAW FOR TRUSTEES IS ADVOCATED

FORT WORTH, Nov. 11.—Frequent abrupt changes in the personnel of the majority of city school boards in Texas is condemned by Dr. George A. Works, director of the Texas school survey. He declares that a frequently changing board has no opportunity to develop constructive policies, and that such changes are expensive financially to the community, and costly to the children in educational achievements.

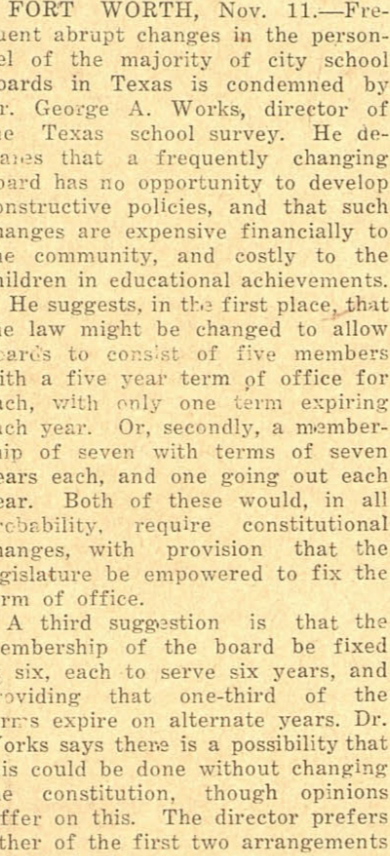

He suggests, in the first place, that the law might be changed to allow boards to consist of five members with a five year term of office for each, with only one term expiring each year.

Or, secondly, a membership of seven with terms of seven years each, and one going out each year. Both of these would, in all probability, require constitutional changes, with provision that the legislature be empowered to fix the term of office.

A third suggestion is that the membership of the board be fixed at six, each to serve six years, and providing that one-third of the term's expire on alternate years.

Dr. Works says there is a possibility that this could be done without changing the constitution, though opinions differ on this. The director prefers either of the first two arrangements to the third.

THIRD ANNUAL CHICKEN SHOW DECEMBER 4, 5, 6

EASTLAND, Nov. 11.—The third annual show of the Eastland County Poultry Raisers' association is to be held in Eastland on Dec. 4, 5 and 6, and, according to those in charge will be bigger and better than either of the two preceding shows, the first of which was held at Ranger and the second at Cisco.

It is very probable that the large brick building on West Main street, where the Eastland county flower show and community fair was recently held, will be the building in which the exhibits will be placed.

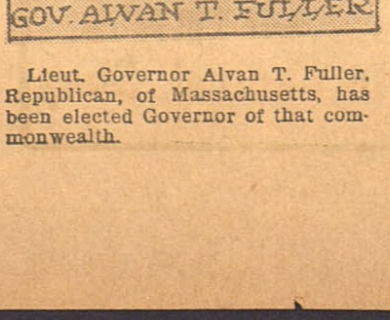

The show will be opened to everybody and a large number of entries are expected.

A. H. Johnson, Eastland poultry enthusiast and breeder of fine chickens, states that it is not known yet just how much will be offered in prizes, but that they will be liberal. A catalogue for the show, which will give the prizes to be offered, is being compiled and will soon be given the printer and is expected to be ready within a few days.

The membership of the Eastland County Poultry Raisers' association was at one time more than 500. It is understood to not be quite that many at the present time as several have failed to pay their dues.

Those who have failed to pay up are urged to pay up, as they are needed in the organization and the funds are needed for the coming show.

CHAMBERLAIN TO ENTER BALDWIN CABINET.

DUCKS COMING, CHURCH SUPPER IS A CERTAINTY

"The ducks are on their way to Cisco," said Alex Spears, who has returned home from his outing on the coast, where he joined a Fort Worth party on a duck hunt.

It is now up to Mr. Hall and the other members of the Presbyterian church to stage the supper. I promised the ducks, and they are now rolling towards Cisco.

I shipped the legal limit—75 fine fat fellows—and the Presbyterians can prepare for a great feed if the others will do their part. Mine was to get the ducks.

Mr. Spears stated the trip was a great one. The shooting was fine, and every minute was enjoyable.

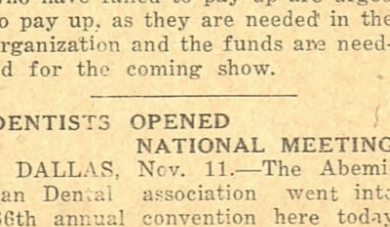

"We went to Port Lavaca and secured a boat especially fitted for duck hunting, and made our way to Matagorda Island, where the ducks abound. We lived in the boat, as it was fitted up for sleeping. I feel as fit as I can be, and had a great time, but am glad to be home again, for after all Cisco looks best, which one realizes more after a trip away.

DENTISTS OPENED NATIONAL MEETING

DALLAS, Nov. 11.—The American Dental association went into 66th annual convention here today with seven departmental meetings and two large dental exhibitions in operation. The first general session is to be held tomorrow with Governor Neff of Texas welcoming the 2,000 or more delegates.

The annual report of Dr. William A. Giffen of Detroit, president of the association, will feature the first general session. In conjunction with the convention is being held the seventh International Dental Congress Conference, and the first annual session of the National Association for Dental Assistants. Organization of this department, which includes the women assistants in the dentists' offices, is being sponsored by a national committee of which Mrs. Juliette A. Southard of Chicago is chairman, which was appointed by the dentists' convention last year.

AGED PASSENGER DEAD AS RESULT OF HIS INTERFERENCE WITH THE AVIATOR—LATTER'S HURTS MINOR

Taylor Storer, aged 73, lies dead in the Green & Gray undertaking parlors, and W. M. Wilson, professional aviator from Ranger is under the care of a surgeon at the City hospital suffering with a mashed nose and injured leg sustained when his plane crashed to the ground at the foot of Britton hill, near Randolph College Monday afternoon.

Wilson and his plane has been in Cisco since Saturday, taking passengers up for short trips, and many have seen the city from Wilson's plane while here. Yesterday the plane was one of the attractions at the annual poultry show now being held here.

Late Monday afternoon Taylor Storer, who conducted a furniture repair shop in the rear of Jasper Daniels' grocery store at the corner of D avenue and Eleventh street, secured passage in the plane for a flight for himself, and paying the fare for a friend to make the flight on his return.

Just before entering the plane Storer bade Mr. and Mrs. Daniels goodbye, telling them he was going up in an airplane. This proved to be his last farewell to them. After flying over the city Wilson circled over Chesley field where the Lobo pep squad was doing their stunts, when something snapped in Storer's mentality, as Wilson stated he seemed to go insane, and tried to get out on the wings of the plane and do some of the stunts common to trick aviators.

In the effort to get Storer back into the plane the passenger caught the gas control lever and shut off the gas. The flier endeavored to glide his plane to earth and make a safe landing, and eye witness state he was seemingly doing so, but when the plane was within about 100 feet of the earth it took a nose dive and crashed into the plowed field over which it was flying.

The plane was badly wrecked, and Storer was dead when taken from the wreck. Green & Gray's ambulance picked up the body and conveyed it to their establishment where it was prepared for burial, and where it still remains awaiting funeral arrangements.

It was learned from W. H. Hurd and Jasper Daniel that the dead man had been living in Cisco for about a year, and conducted a furniture repair shop. They stated that he had a son and daughter, but did not remember their names or addresses.

When asked if Storer was drinking when he went up in the plane Hurd stated that deceased never drank, but was a total abstainer. His actions can only be accounted for by the altitude affecting him, causing him to become suddenly insane, as Wilson stated he appeared to be perfectly sane when he started up with him.

A rumor was current soon after the accident that it was Hurd who had been killed. This was explained when Hurd stated that Storer was wearing a vest with his name on the lining, which he had given him, and when the undertaker examined the body Hurd's name was found.

Many saw the plane when it crashed to the ground, some at a distance, and these were not aware that the plane had fallen. The Lobo pep squad witnessed the crash and were among the first to reach the scene. Many in cars motored out to the wreck and made a personal inspection of the plane as it lay in the plowed field battered and broken.

Wilson's injuries are not thought to be serious, though he will be a patient in the hospital for some days yet. It was stated.

The chamber of commerce had engaged Wilson to do some stunts over the football game at Ranger today, and the painter had just finished painting a huge Lobo on one wing of the machine, and the letterings Cisco C. of C. on the other, just before its last flight.

Mr. and Mrs. Stirley, who formerly resided here, making their home at the Gude hotel, have returned to Cisco, and will remain here for several days. They are guests at the Gude. Mr. and Mrs. Stirley are now living at Laredo, where he is engaged in the pipe business. He stated that Laredo's wildest, which came in some time ago for 5,000 barrels, is still a consistent producer.

OWENS PLANING MILL BUILDING IS BEING MOVED

The old building on E avenue and the Texas & Pacific right of way, is being moved away. The building is being taken down in sections, perhaps to be converted into a barn or other building at a new location.

This structure was erected by S. A. Owens for a planing mill in 1919 or 1918, and later used by the Johnson construction company in the same capacity after he had purchased the interest of Owens in the property.

However, since the Johnson construction company acquired the Cisco Planing Mill property their business is conducted at this location.

CHRISTMAS DROUTH THREATENS CHICAGO

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 11.—A carload of choice "Christmas liquors," valued at $225,000, was held by prohibition officers in the Atlantic Coast Line freight yards here today.

The huge consignment, billed as "lumber" was being shipped from the South Atlantic Coast to Chicago. Prohibition officers said they would unload the expensive cargo, which included 24,000 quarts of Scotch, rye, champagne, and many other choice imported blends, and destroy it.

EASTLAND CO. GAVE 3,506 FOR MRS. FERGUSON

Dr. George C. Butte, the Republican nominee, had a large number of supporters in Eastland county, which was revealed when the commissioners court Monday officially canvassed the returns from Tuesday's election, and announced the results.

However, the Republican nominee failed to get any considerable number of votes in the Cisco precinct, the only place in Eastland county, where he made a public address. The official count showed that the county was safely in the Ferguson column, but it also showed that the Republicans polled the largest number of votes in the history of the county.

The official count revealed that there had been cast in Eastland county a total of 6,025 votes. Of these 3,506 were cast for Mrs. Ferguson, while Dr. Butte received 2,519; Mrs. Ferguson's majority, 987. Barry Miller, the only other Democratic nominee on whom any perceptible fight was made, received 4,446 votes for lieutenant governor, while J. H. Kurth, his Republican opponent, had 4,448 votes.

AN EXACTING VIRTUE

The greatest word in the English language, says Edward W. Bok, is Service. "Not the service that serves self," he explains, "for, like lip-service, that accomplishes naught. But service in the true and intended meaning of the word—the service that labors for the interest of others, that confers an advantage, that benefits, that avails."

There is a greater word. It is Tolerance. Tolerance transcends service.

Intolerance is a ball and chain man drags along in his struggle upward. When this ball and chain has been removed, the best Service will have been done for man.

It is difficult to tolerate; one must practice unselfishness, and selfishness is bound up with the first human instinct, "self-preservation. It is fear, rather than ignorance, that makes bigots of men.

John Stuart Mill, writing in his autobiography of the great feeling his father had for convictions, remarks that an earnest person, being no more infallible than other men, is liable to dislike people on account of opinions which do not merit dislike; "but if he neither himself does any ill office, nor connives at its being done by others, he is not intolerant; and the forbearance which flows from a conscientious sense of the importance to mankind of the equal freedom of all opinions, is the only tolerance which is commendable, or to the highest order of minds, possible."

Most of the intolerance in our time is of religious character; it flows from the thing nearest our hearts.

The great writers to whom the world owes what religious liberty it possesses, have mostly asserted freedom of conscience as an indefeasible right, and denied absolutely that a human being is accountable to others for his religious belief.

"Yet so natural to mankind is intolerance in whatever they really care about," Mill points out, "that religious freedom has hardly anywhere been practically realized, except where religious indifference, which dislikes to have its peace disturbed by theological quarrels, has added its weight to the scale.

"In the minds of almost all religious persons, even in the most tolerant countries, the duty of toleration is admitted with tacit reserves.

"One person will bear with dissent in matters of church government, but not of dogma; another can tolerate everybody who believes in revealed religion; a few extend their charity a little further, but stop at the belief in a God and in a future state.

"Whenever the sentiment of the majority is still genuine and intense, it is found to have abated little of its claim to be obeyed."

If you wish to be possessed of the most difficult, trying and exacting of the virtues, cultivate Tolerance.

TOO MUCH EDUCATION

President Coolidge, in addressing the students of Georgetown University, expressed more confidence than some feel in the impossibility of giving a college education to too many of the country's young men and women. The graduates all will be needed, he said, and places will be found for them.

Of course, that is true on the assumption that "going to college" and the getting of an advanced "higher" education are the same thing. Unfortunately, they are not. More than a few college graduates, if they really are educated, are strangely successful in concealing it all through their later life, while, on the other hand, the possibility of acquiring a real education without ever crossing a college campus has frequent illustrations among the acquaintances of everyone.

The president admitted that people who are or think themselves highly educated are not inclined to do any of the unpleasant or tiresome jobs upon which the smooth running world depends, but he cherishes the comfortable belief that the performance of one after the other of these tasks will be turned over to machines. There is no doubt a basis for this expectation, and the process already has gone far, but the president's ideal of a world in which there will be nothing unpleasant or hard for anybody to do will not be attained tomorrow, or even next week, and meanwhile there is no end of drudgery to be done. And there can be no doubt that through what we call "education" we are shutting off rather severely the supply of folk of the sort who not yet have revolted against doing it.

This of course is no argument against education, which is an individual proposition. Education, however, does not need to unfit a person for work. We shall, no doubt, acquire this view generally some time before we reach the point where all are educated into the "white collar" class, and there is nobody left to dig the ditches and dam the rivers of humanity.—The Ft. Worth Star Telegram.

EMPLOYEES TO OWN BANK

California's largest banking institution, the Bank of Italy, will ultimately come into the control of its more than 22,000 employees. The first step in the plan by which the men who run the bank and its many branches will gradually acquire ownership has already been taken. Twenty years ago A. P. Giannini, then a commission merchant, gave his large business to his employees. Today, as president of the Bank of Italy, with its $350,000,000 capitalization, he is repeating the idea. Communism is not coming to America because American business genius is going to work out a fair and practicable means of bringing greater happiness and greater profit to all who are willing to work. Let the good work speed up.—Fort Worth Record.

SONG

Let my voice ring out and over the earth,
Thru all the grief and strife,
With a golden joy in a silver myth;
Thank God for life!

Let my voice swell out thru the great abyss
To the azure dome above,
With a chord of faith in the harp of bliss;
Thank God for love!

Let my voice thrill out beneath and above,
The whole world thru;
O my love and life, O my life and love,
Thank God for you!

Finds Kellogg's Bran "Easy way to avoid constipation" after suffering for years

Constipation is a dangerous disease. It can lead to many others. Twenty years' suffering with constipation determined this man's health. Kellogg's Bran restored it—as it has done for thousands. This is what he says:

"Gentlemen: After eating Kellogg's Bran twice a day for one month I find it not only an 'Easy Way to Avoid Constipation,' but an easy and most pleasant way to cure it. I have been troubled with constipation . . . for more than twenty years . . . after adopting the milk and bran diet I find my stomach greatly improved, and find it a specific for constipation. . . . I deem it only justice that you should know what your product has done for me, and what it is capable of doing for others." (The original of this letter is on file at the Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, Mich.)

Kellogg's Bran relieves mild and chronic constipation because it is ALL bran. It brings sure results. It sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine in nature's own way. Don't experiment. Only ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective. If eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is guaranteed to bring permanent relief—or your grocer returns your money. You should eat two tablespoonsful daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. The flavor is delicious—nut-like—cooked and krumbled. Enjoy it with milk or cream, sprinkled on oatmeal cereals, cooked with hot cereals, or in the delightful recipes on every package. Made in Battle Creek. Sold by grocers everywhere.

DINNER STORIES

An Oregon man was trying to sell a horse. The animal was broken-winded, but sleek. The owner trotted him around for inspection and, bringing him back to the prospect, he stroked the horse's back and remarked: "Hain't he a lovely coat?" The prospect removed his pipe and said, as he looked at the heaving flanks of the animal: "Yeah, his coat's all right, but I don't like his pants."

Two workmen were wheeling dirt in wheelbarrows. The boss went up to one of them and said: "Look here, you! Your mate's wheeling four wheelbarrow loads to your own!" "Well," snarled the workman, don't blame me. I've told him about it half a dozen times already."

John Ruskin was wont to attack all and sundry with a savage merri-merriment which even his best friends at times resented. Once he wrote a friend hoping that a fierce criticism written by him of his friend's picture would make no difference to their friendship, to which the friend had the wit to reply: "Dear Ruskin—Next time I meet you I shall knock you down, but I hope it will make no difference to our friendship."

Mrs. Jones had just engaged a new cook and she had only one mis-giving about the matter. Bridget was not at all bad looking, and she feared the young men would be hanging around: "Now, remember," Mrs. Jones said to her the first morning after breakfast, "no followers are allowed in the kitchen. My last cook had to leave for not keeping to that rule."

A few days later the mistress went to the culinary department on a tour of inspection. She opened the door of a large cupboard and, to her great surprise, found a policeman standing there. She turned an accusing eye on Bridget. "What's the meaning of this?" she asked angrily. "I dunno," promptly replied Bridget; "he must have been left there by the last cook."

Pine Tar and Honey Still Best for Chest Colds and Coughs

Our mothers and grandmothers would never be without pine tar syrup in the house for coughs, chest colds, etc. This was many years ago, but modern medicine has never been able to improve on this time-tested remedy. The force of the Humble company at Humbletown were called out early Saturday morning to go to the Comyn tank farm of the Humble company, situated about six miles east of De Leon, to combat a fire that was raging there. Lightning struck one 55,000-barrel tank practically filled with crude, which was consumed. Twenty-five men were called out from Humbletown, and about fifty from Breckenridge. Lightning struck the tank about 3 o'clock Saturday morning, and it was about 9 o'clock Sunday morning before the blaze was extinguished. The fire was confined to the immediate vicinity of the burning tank.

Tangled Wires

Jean held the telephone receiver close to her pink ear, just as though Bob Phillips himself stood beside her instead of sitting in his office staring dejectedly into his own transmitter. "You dear old thing!" Jean murmured to Bob, and the response was startling.

"How perfectly idiotic to talk that way!" was a growling answer.

"What did you say?" demanded Jean in a freezing tone.

"Does it matter?" retorted the growl.

"It may not matter much to me," blazed Jean, "but I assure you that it matters to you. I am returning your ring now."

Deep laughter overflowed the receiver. Jean held it away from her ear in disgust. Her blue eyes were wide with bewilderment and every nerve tingled. Suddenly she hung up the receiver, and the tiny click seemed to be the lock on the closed door of happiness.

"The-b-b-big b-o-o-or!" she sobbed recklessly.

Fifteen minutes later Nora tapped at her door. "Mr. Whitten at the telephone, Miss Jean."

Jean flung on a hat and opened the door. "Thank you, Nora; please tell Mr. Whitten that I have just gone to the post office to mail a package to him!"

"Yes, Miss Jean, and begging your pardon, ma'am, your hat is on wrong side before."

Jean adjusted her hat, tied a spotted veil across her telltale eyes, and proceeded to the post office to mail a certain registered parcel that contained one blazing solitaire diamond ring and a sapphire bracelet (a birthday gift). "I hate the ring," confessed Jean morosely, "but I wish I could keep the bracelet; a birthday gift is another kind of a keepsake. Pooh, I don't want any of his things. I will send his letters back as soon as I can collect them."

Of course Jean knew where every one of Bob's love letters were hidden; she also knew by heart every word in every letter, and could close her eyes and visualize the position of certain words and phrases on the earliest letters. She mailed the package that morning and during the evening Bob called.

"Not at home," said Jean sweetly. Nora started incredulously, and scenting a lovers' quarrel, tiptoed downstairs to the library where Bob, always sure of his welcome, had found his way, and was eagerly awaiting his fiancée. His good-looking face was worried and he was plainly nervous. He looked up eagerly as Nora appeared in the doorway.

"She says she's not at home, sir," said Nora with just the proper degree of respect for a tragic moment.

Bob looked miserable. "Look here, Nora," he said desperately, "what is Miss Jean doing? Is she entertaining—or what? I must see her if I can."

Nora advanced a step and spoke in a whisper. "She been nowhere much today, and she's crying, sir, fit to break her heart." She winked back a tear in her own sympathetic eye.

"Thank you, . . . perhaps she will answer the telephone." He made his way out of the house and went to his club and shot into a telephone booth.

Upstairs in her own room, Jean heard the front door close dully, and applied a fresh handkerchief to her reddened eyes. Presently Nora tapped at the door. "The telephone, Miss Jean," she said rather hurriedly, and departed before Jean could question her.

"This is Jean Ross," said Jean, picking up the receiver.

"Ah Jean. What do you mean, dearest, by sending that ring back to me—and the bracelet?" Bob wanted to know in his dear voice.

"If you will think hard, I am sure you will recall our telephone conversation this morning," returned Jean in icy tones.

"Did we have one?" inquired Mr. Whitten dryly.

"Did we?" she retorted.

Bob's voice took on a heavy judicial tone. "I rang you up this morning and asked you to go to the theater tonight, and never received any response from you. I found later that we had been cut off, so I waited awhile and rang you again, and Nora said you had gone to the post office, and then in the mail tonight I found that—that junk!"

"Junk!" breathed Jean furiously. "Do you mean to deny holding a conversation with me this morning at 10 o'clock?"

"It didn't happen," affirmed Bob. "Why, Robert Whitten!"

"It's the truth, clinging desperately to the instrument. 'Then,' she quavered, 'then w-who-oo was it called me an id-idiot?'"

"Not if I wish I could get hold of the fellow—I'd lick him good and plenty," he cried enthusiastically. "What else did he say?"

"I s-said I w-was returning your r-ring, and he laughed horribly!"

"The deuce he did! Some cheerful idiot taking advantage of crossed wires. There I was waiting for a response from you."

Long silence from Jean, and then Bob demanded roughly, tenderly, "Have you been crying darling?"

"Yes!" she whispered.

"Then I am coming right over to see you."

"Now?" in a panicky voice.

"Yes; but you'll have time to powder your nose before I get there," and his rumble of laughter was adorably different from that of the "big boor."

"I knew all the time it couldn't possibly be Bob," said Jean illogically as she hung up the receiver and flew to the mirror.

For this reason "skin lotions," etc., can't possibly help you any. You need what is known as Black and White Ointment, which heals the sores, builds up the tissue of the skin, makes it active, so it naturally expels all the acid poisons which the system must throw off through the pores. Then, pimples, blotches, "breaking out," eczema, etc., quickly disappear.

Black and White Ointment is economically priced in generous packages. The 50c size contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers have Black and White Soap, too, so you can keep your face, neck, hands and arms lovely and clear.
