Armies Prepare for Major Ethiopian Battle

Through the

Spectacles
By GEORGE

Among the duties that can be most embarrassing to mere man is that of dressing the models in a show window. Some of these lily-white sisters whose fingers bend backward at the joints and whose nails gleam with the tints of the manicurist, cock a supercilious eyebrow and look upon mere man in amusement at their roles, with supreme contempt. The grinning faces of the passers-by beyond the sound-shutting plates of glass perturb them not at all. They are absorbed in the artistic, and they handle the soft silks, the lacey lingerie and thin hose with a graceful and exaggerated gesturing that suggests a stratospheric remoteness.

But not Henry and F. B. Both of these fellows, long accustomed to the business of dressing windows, cannot control an impulse to blush and an embarrassed grin when some one catches them in the act of putting their arms around the wooden model in the window. Somehow, the act doesn't comport with normal dignity and it is mighty, mighty hard to go about the business with the usual aplomb when a crowd gathers to watch the process.

Wyatt is another window dresser of taste and talents. But I have never seen him on the women's side. He probably can dress the windows there as effectively as he dresses those across the entrance in the men's wear department. Once I catch him there, I shall put his composure to a test. Up the street Nick has no women model forms in his windows, although he does deal in dainty things. He is spared the ordeal of dressing them in public.

The Cisco Public library, holding open house last Saturday in observance of National Book Week, had the largest attendance of any during the ten years that the institution has observed the annual event. More than 60 persons visited the institution during the day. It was a source of pleasure to the women of the Twentieth Century club who have sponsorship, incidentally, has given this community probably the best public library in west central Texas.

Widening of the proposed viaduct to carry Highway No. one over the Katy tracks on East Eighth street from three lanes to four lanes is a change of great significance to the safety factor. A three-lane drive on a much-travelled highway is dangerous for the reason that cars, pulling out of the line going in one direction may meet another car pulling out of the line going in the opposite direction. When there is only one lane in the middle, it is sometimes impossible to avoid a collision. The article "—And Sudden Death" which attracted so much attention in the Readers' Digest pointed out that as many fatal accidents occur on straightaways on such roads than on curves. With two lanes for traffic between the two lines of cars, this condition can be averted.

Weather

WEST TEXAS—Cloudy with probably local rains in the panhandle and extreme east portion tonight and Thursday; warmer in the panhandle tonight.
EAST TEXAS—Rain tonight and Thursday; slightly warmer in the northwest tonight and extreme north portion Thursday.

OMINOUS NOTE SOUNDED AT ROME TODAY

Britain No Hint of Peace Offer From Mussolini

(By Associated Press)
Italian and Ethiopian troops today prepared for what was expected to be the first major battle of the Ethiopian war. From Asmara came reports that skirmishes between the opposing armies on the northern front were becoming hotter, making the major engagement seem near.

An Ominous note was sounded in Rome. It was reported that troops which had been expected to leave for the southern front were still in Italy. Home defenses were being tightened and naval leaves withdrawn.

Shipments of American oil to Italy appeared assured, but the volume remained to be determined.

From London sources it was said that Great Britain has not had the slightest hint that Mussolini is ready to talk peace. It was said that until Mussolini is receptive no progress is possible.

Paris sources said that Premier Laval was waiting an indication that Mussolini and Emperor Selassie is ready to talk peace before submitting a settlement plan.

Diplomatic circles scouted the reports of territorial grants having been proposed.

VIOLENCE IN STRIKE AGAIN

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 4 (AP)—Two policemen and two strikers were hurt today when violence flared again in the Motor Products corporation plant, where 21 were injured last night.

Enforcing police orders forbidding picketing, over 60 policemen routed 75 strikers who attempted to resume picketing.

Trans-Atlantic Mail Service Is Farley Project

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP)—Postmaster General Farley said today he will ask the coming session of the congress for funds to start a trans-Atlantic airmail service.

He said he planned the experimental flights to start next summer, with the route to be in operation probably within the following year.

Investigation to Resume at Austin

FORT WORTH, Dec. 4 (AP)—The legislative committee investigating the organization and work of the state department of public safety began consideration of information in connection with the recent discharge of Tom Hickman from the ranger force.

The committee adjourned last night and Representative Sam Hanna of Dallas, chairman, said the investigation would be resumed in a few days, probably at Austin.

The Junior League of the New York College Settlement, organized in 1900 by Miss Mary Harriman, was the nucleus of the Association of Junior Leagues of America.

TWO PILOTS DIE IN CRASH

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP)—Two Mitchell field, Long Island, army fliers, First Lieutenant Harry Geoffrey, of Minnesota, and Major George Rice, of Wyoming, were killed today when their plane crashed on a hillside near Bolling Field. Officials said the plane crashed while the pilot was seeking low altitude preparatory to landing.

Meteor Explosion?

An aerial phenomenon that could have been an enormous rocket but was said to be a meteor occurred last night about 8:15 o'clock. It flashed a streak of shattering fire northeast to southwest, ending in a sharp explosion which lighted the night for a moment as brilliantly as a flash of flashlight powder. Rumbles of belated thunder followed the explosion for several moments.

One Robber Killed In Bank Attempt

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP)—Secretary Hull today repeated that the United States was determined to do all that was possible to discourage abnormal sales of commodities listed as "war materials" to Italy, or Ethiopia. He said there had been no variation from the government policy.

NEW OFFICERS NOMINATED FOR CISCO LIONS CLUB

Nominations for new officers for the Cisco Lions club were announced today by the nominations committee at the regular weekly luncheon. The slate of nominees will lie before the club for two weeks, subject to further nominations, before they will be formally voted upon.

S. H. Nance was nominated for president. Other nominees were: R. E. Grantham, first vice president; Charles J. Kleiner, second vice president; J. W. Thomas, second vice president; J. C. Burnam, secretary; H. L. Dyer, Lion tamer; Dallas Wales, tail twister;

REVENUE MAN, EX-OFFICER FATALLY SHOT

Two Thrown From Night Club by Bouncers, Claim Holdup

TULSA, Dec. 4 (AP)—Federal Revenue Agent Louis Pappan and George Stewart, former detective captain, were shot to death last night in a night club after they had been thrown from the place by two "bouncers."

County Attorney Holly Anderson declared the shooting to be "worse than murder."

The "bouncers," Tyree Parks and G. R. McCullough, claimed the slain men had attempted a hold-up.

Authorities said there were no witnesses available.

A driver of a taxicab said the slain pair went to the night club after they had visited two other places and inspected the beer licenses.

The bouncers and Roy Stanley, the club manager, were arrested.

TCU Accepts Bid To Sugar Bowl Gridiron Classic

FORT WORTH, Dec. 4.—Texas Christian university's Horned Frogs, one of the nation's most powerful elevens, have accepted an invitation to meet Louisiana State university in the New Orleans Sugar Bowl classic on New Year's day.

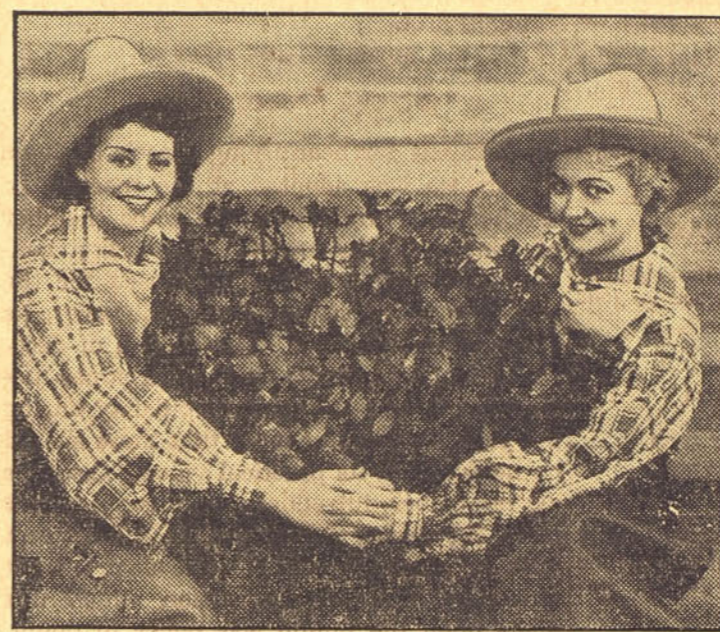

The Frogs, who met their first defeat of the season in a thrilling engagement at Fort Worth last Saturday that sent the Southern Methodist university Ponies to the Pasadena, Cal., Rose Bowl game on New Year's, are en route to San Francisco where they will meet the Santa Calara university Broncs in a post-season game.

L. S. U., like the Christians, has lost only one game—that to Rice Institute early in the season, a team that T. C. U. defeated 27 to 6. S. M. U. defeated T. C. U. 20 to 14 in what many critics declared the greatest football exhibition of the season in the country.

No Variation in Policy, Says Hull

WADESTOWN, W. V., Dec. 4 (AP)—Police today killed one robber and wounded another when the pair tried to hold up the Bank of Wadestown, Troopers, waiting three days after receiving a tip, loosed a volley after the pair had fired at Assistant Cashier Olen Henderson, who ignored their demands for money.

STREAMERS OF LIGHTS, TREES WILL BE USED

American Legion Will Aid CofC in Raising Fund

If the plan for decorating Cisco's business streets for the Christmas season is realized as it was approved last night by the board of directors of the chamber of commerce, consensus of opinion is that Cisco will be one of the most attractively decorated communities in this part of the state.

James Haynie was authorized to undertake the work of decoration, collaborating with the West Texas Utilities company which has agreed to cooperate as it has each season without cost to the merchants.

Mr. Haynie submitted a proposition to the board by which he will secure the cedar trees, erect one by each white way standard, erect a large tree near the intersection of D avenue and Eighth street, wire the trees for lighting, run parallel lines of colored lights down each side of D avenue, and string cones of colored lamp streamers over each intersection on D avenue, all for the sum of $250. The board approved the plan and named a committee to work in conjunction with the American Legion post and Mr. Haynie in raising the money.

Similar to Others

The decorations, which will include trees on side streets as well as D avenue, are similar to those employed at Borger and other cities where he has secured contracts, Haynie said.

The West Texas Utilities company was represented by Dick Giles, chief district clerk, and O. J. Russell. Rex Moore and W. C. McDaniels represented the American Legion. Mr. Haynie agreed to purchase and transport the trees to Cisco, do all the wiring and stringing of cables to support the streamer cones over the intersections, and to put the system in shape for the electric company merely to connect the current. Individual merchants will be required to furnish the light streamers used in front of their businesses, however. But most of the merchants already have these streamers.

The directors heard routine reports on the highway status and other matters with which the chamber has been occupied.

Mr. Maynie began selection of the trees to be used today.

DOCK STRIKE NEAR AN END

HOUSTON, Dec. 4 (AP)—Immediate settlement today of the longshoremen's strike here is expected, following the announcement by Holt Ross, labor representative, that 13 steamship companies have expressed a willingness to employ members of the International Longshoremen's association.

OFFICE ASSISTANT

Miss Martha Coleman, of Clarksburg, W. Va., has accepted a position, as office assistant for Dr. H. Seale. Miss Coleman, who is a registered nurse, is a niece of Mrs. W. W. Wallace and has visited in Cisco several times.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Speak ye every man the truth to his neighbor; execute the judgment of truth and peace in your gates.—Zech. 8: 16.

Remember: A trusting heart, a yearning eye, Can win their way above If mountains can be moved by faith, Is there less power in love? —FABER.

Until we learn the only way to serve God is to serve our neighbor, we may have knocked at the wicket gate, but I doubt if we have got our feet across the threshold.—MacDonald.

Hypocrisy

THE surprisingly naive Mr. Brisbane, persistent defender of Mussolini's attempted military conquest of Ethiopia, points barbaric accusations at the Ethiopians as a justification for the Italian attacks during which bombs are dropped from airplanes on defenseless towns and all the modern machinery of war loosed against the ill-equipped troops of the Negus Negusti.

THERE may be a basis of truth in these reports, but it is hard to understand how Brisbane or any other enlightened human being can accept so barbaric a philosophy to correct a barbarism.

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE

"Why?" is a small word that asks a simple question, childishly worded as "What For?" and perhaps more learnedly and rhetorically directed as "wherefore" that is on the surface of many an idle query, or on the other hand at the bottom of the profoundest philosophy.

Man About Manhattan: NEW YORK—The theory that "easy familiarity" with the masses pays, as followed so successfully by "Big Bill" Thompson in his mayoralty campaign in Chicago some years ago, has been caught up by one of New York's best liked producers and has turned what otherwise would have been an embarrassing situation into a fine publicity gag.

NEW YORK—The theory that "easy familiarity" with the masses pays, as followed so successfully by "Big Bill" Thompson in his mayoralty campaign in Chicago some years ago, has been caught up by one of New York's best liked producers and has turned what otherwise would have been an embarrassing situation into a fine publicity gag.

slaughtering natives, civilians among them, to bring about reform? One wonders what sort of reform that would create. The Mohammedans have swung the sword to advance their civilization over seas of blood.

THE plain truth of the matter is that Italy needs territory, needs it badly, and Ethiopia is the only available ground that may be taken. Nor is Italy in any worse role, to speak again plainly, than have been Great Britain and other nations whose empires were established before Mussolini got ambitious to be another Caesar.

Street Decorations

A DESIGN for beautifying Cisco's business streets was adopted at the meeting of the board of directors of the Cisco chamber of commerce last night. The design contemplates a variation of that used for the past few years, still retaining, however, its fundamental features.

WITH almost all other communities in this section recognizing the Yuletide with attractive street dress, the city which does not do so is set apart and instinctively marked as unprogressive.

THE system adopted by the chamber of commerce last night undoubtedly will make D avenue and adjacent business streets as attractive as any in this part of the state.

slow in learning their lines? This is a circus, not a drawing room comedy, and our lions aren't very social.

Although few extravaganzas are more dazzling and brilliant than a really important first night in the theater, the actors themselves aren't always overly enthusiastic.

Invariably these occasions assume the proportions of a Peacock Parade of ermine and jewels, with preening dowagers and dueling social leaders angling for the most attention.

In deference to their bosses, most players are willing to ignore the interruptions, secure in the knowledge that the critics care not a hang for all the fine frills the audience is wearing, but now and then a fire-brand of the theater will step out of character long enough to rebuke a noisy or tardy arrival.

This is a success story: Louis Senesi, silversmith at the Vanderbilt hotel these 22 years, encountered a pal several months ago and the friend broke out in a vein similar to this: "Louis, I got an extra sweepstakes ticket. Why not buy it?" And Louis said, "Why not?" which he did, because Louis has a son who is a senior at Cornell and Louis would like to have some extra coin for the boy.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON — When President Roosevelt wrote the house ways and means committee, at the time the Guffey coal bill was under consideration, to let no doubts as to constitutionality block the legislation, he was looking further into the future than then was supposed.

Won First Decision

Moving, as unquestionably they were, into legal precincts substantially uncharted, they won a clear-cut decision in the first court action directly challenging the act. That was in Kentucky, where a federal judge unequivocally upheld the statute.

The point is important, in the view of the administration's lawyers, because it generally is necessary to show a real and pressing deprivation of property or rights to blast down an act of congress.

Litigation Mounts

It appears, incidentally, that litigation over the Guffey act might so mount in volume that when the supreme court finally reaches the issue it may hear all of the cases simultaneously, settling, in one opinion, all the major questions raised.

Michigan Will Tower Over Big Ten on Court

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 4. (P) —They're known as the Wolverines, but it looks now as though the name "Giants" will be hung on the University of Michigan's basketball team this winter.

While the personnel of the team hasn't been determined definitely, the five men who seem certain to land positions average just under six feet, three inches in height. The real giant is John Gee who stands six feet, nine inches, having grown a full inch since last season. Naturally, he's the center.

The others are John Townsend, six feet, five inches, and his "little" brother, Earl, six feet, four. The two "shorties" are the candidates for guard positions, Capt. Chelso Tamagno, six feet, one-half inch, and George Rudness, five feet eight.

Then, just in case none of these men do the things expected of them, the coach can call upon a few more "giants." They include Bill Lane, six feet, four and one-half; Manny Slavin, six feet; John Jablonski, six-two; Matt Pantanelli, six-two; Earl Meyers, six feet; Dick Castle and Jim Warns, both of whom are six feet, five.

July, originally the fifth month of the year, was called "Quintilis" by the Romans.

HIGH COURAGE by Jeanne Bowman

Chapter 44 MUDDY ROAD "It was then I sent for Miss Farnsworth," said John Neuman...

"Why didn't you bring this evidence to me?" the district attorney asked.

John faced the man soberly. "I should have done that," he acknowledged...

Mrs. Farnsworth stepped into the room, smiled at Anne, and with open arms came across to her.

"Thank you, Mrs. Farnsworth," said Anne. "Aunt Charlotte, dear."

"You asked me once not to call you that," Anne countered. "I'm the same girl now that I was then."

"I was distraught, the tragic death of those two love ones and everything at such odds. You'll forgive me, Anne?"

"It doesn't matter," Anne turned away, then after a moment turned back, "and I'm terribly sorry about Uncle Lee. I loved him, truly."

"You're coming home with us now, Anne, right back to your own little rooms and maybe we can find Yvonne."

"That is your home," Anne countered, and turned to Tecla and John. "My home is with my people."

"But my dear girl," Mrs. Farnsworth's sweetness was vanishing, "you can't pretend you can handle everything yourself. You come home with us and we'll take care of you. Rob can go right on taking care of the canneries, because you must admit, Anne, that a mere girl can't handle the business. Don't you think I'm right?" she appealed to the men in the room.

There was only silence to answer her question, until at last Anne went to the district attorney's desk, asked for pen and paper, sat down and wrote industriously.

"Will you sign this please, Judge Kellogg?" she asked. "Gladly," agreed her friend after glancing over it, and scrawled his name on the paper.

home, and give her lots of money? We're going to have a festival and I want everyone in Union Town there. Buy lots of food and coffee, everything they like. And Tecla, tell Liisa she has her job back, and if any of the fishermen reach there before I get home, tell them I'll try to make up to them for what they lost this last summer.

"And you?" asked Ansel Kellogg. "John and I are going to walk home," she smiled as everyone echoed, "walk." "You don't know how good it will seem to walk along without bumping into bars."

With John she escaped from the courthouse through a rear door, then silently they plodded along through the gathering twilight.

For a while Anne was content with the joy of walking, of taking long steps, swinging her arms, breathing deep and looking up with nothing to obscure her gaze of sky, a sky mottled with the faint amber-tinged gray of the clouds. And then there seemed the necessity of words.

"John," she ventured, "remember the night I first came down here and Tecla met me at the door? Do you remember how she acted and what she said?"

"Yes," he assented, "she said 'Annikki, Enkeli.' She thought she was seeing the ghost of your father's twin sister, who's name was Annikki, and for whom you were named. However," he added, "I didn't know it at the time."

"Let's take the old road over the hill top, the one that comes down in back of my house," Anne suggested, as they neared a cross street.

"It may be muddy," John demurred. "I'd like that," she confessed, "after these weeks of walking on the highly antiseptic floors of hospitals and jails I'd like some nice brown gumbo on my shoes."

"John," as they turned up a shrub lined road, "why did Rob Crocker have the revolver oiled and buy the cartridges, if Tom was the one who was going to use it?"

"I imagine Tom was cunning enough to provide that alibi. If the revolver hadn't been found and identified as Luke Farnsworth's, he couldn't have been connected with the shooting. To me, Nikki, it proves premeditation. He can say what he pleases about merely having it handy for protection of the canneries. I believe he hoped to find you alone, sooner or later."

Anne shuddered, looked at the dense bushes growing along the roadside, and drew closer to John.

"You needn't worry, now," he assured her, "Tom was taken to jail right away and he won't be allowed out on bail."

"And Rob?" "Arrested by the federals as he left the courthouse. They're succeeding in connecting him with the bootleg trap. The men working on the legal traps were willing to insist they were owners, but those on the bootleg trap confessed in the hope of getting immunity.

"Poor Sharlee" mused Anne and John looked down at her with a queer smile.

"You're generous," he commented.

"But she wasn't to blame for anything. With a mother like Charlotte, how could she have been different? John, I believe I'll see that she and Aunt Mabel take a trip abroad to forget."

"And Charlotte?" "As Liisa says, 'drat her.' My generosity stops there. I believe she's as guilty as Rob or Tom. She should be spending the balance of her days in the Salem penitentiary, also.

"Nikki," they had reached the top of the hill and were looking down on Union Town, looking out on the Pacific. Behind them night was crowding over the hills, but out there the afterglow still smudged the horizon with topaz.

"Nikki, I won't be far from Salem, after this week." Anne felt her breath catch, a pain stab at her heart. "What do you mean?" she asked.

"I'm going to Corvallis. Had a wire from the coach - he wants me to come down and take over the junior teams."

"And your boat—" she stopped short. There wouldn't be any trawler, because John had probably spent his money saving her from prison; perhaps that was why she had received such special care at the hospital. It hadn't occurred to her to ask who had paid the bills for all of the service she had received.

She looked at John. So, like Rob, he was going away, going to leave her to face her new problems alone. Only she knew why he was going.

He had taken the soft hat from his head and was standing, looking out to the sea, the fine features set in grim, hopeless lines.

Monday, Anne accuses John of "running out on her."

The Nation's Ace Golfers Await Tee-Off in Miami Biltmore Open

By JOHN McKNIGHT
MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 4. (AP)—With a title worn previously by six of the sport's greatest figures at stake again, the top flight of the professional and amateur golf brigade tees off here December 14 in the sixth annual $10,000 Miami Biltmore open.

Among the contenders is Sam Parks, Jr., national open champion.

Keen competition and the tough, tricky course renders the task of would-be selectors of favorites difficult.

First to win the event, which paid only $2,500 after 36 holes in its initial year, were Walter Hagen and Henry Ciuci, who tied at 143 in March, 1931. Al Espinosa and Denny Shute, with 144's halved the runner-up money. John DeForest was low amateur, his score 161.

Sarazen Holds Record

A $10,000 tournament in March, 1932, was won by Gene Sarazen, with the record 72-hole score of 287. Hagen and Paul Runyan, with 288's, were runners-up. Ralph Redmond, at 303, was low amateur.

In November, 1932, Denny Shute emerged with the third title, his score 291. A stroke behind was John Revolta, current P. G. A. champion. Low amateur was Curtis Bryan, at 319.

Willie MacFarlane went blazing through four rounds using 288 strokes to capture first honors in December, 1933. MacFarlane established the course record of 67 strokes that year. Revolta again was second, registering another 292. Johnny Goodman, blond Nebraskan, took amateur honors with 304.

Two Sections in 1934

The tournament was divided into two sections last year, the "Bombers" competing for $7,500 and the "Pursuit" flight seeking $5,000 in prize money. The "Bomber" division was restricted to the low qualifiers in the P. G. A. tournament and the low 30 in the National Open. Other eligibles played in the "Pursuit" flight.

Olen Dutra's 292 took the "Bomber" crown. Orville White was runner-up with 295. Mike Turnesa won the Pursuit division at 204. The runner-up was Abe Espinosa, with 299. Amateurs' honors were won by James Milward's 315.

This year the tournament reverts to the open-field system of only one money division.

A Tricky Layout

A course of many tricks, dog-legs, water hazards, traps, headwinds confronts the field. A winding creek flanks several fairways and guards the approach to several greens.

The first major stumbling block on the out-going nine is the fifth hole, par 4, 440 yards, a right-angle dog-leg.

First of the water holes is the seventh. Water is on the left and traps and bunkers to the right. The lake guards a green flanked by sand traps.

The fourth 2,290 yard ninth is bounded by water on both sides of the fairway. A short, accurate pitch must be made to an elevated green.

Par usually claims a stroke from the unwary at the eleventh, par-4, 435 hole. Two full woods down a fairway where a crosswind prevails from the right must be straight to avoid rough on each side of the narrow fairway.

The 145-yard, par-3 fourteenth hole has traps to right and left of the green and out-of-bounds to the rear.

The fifteenth hole, par-5, 550-yard challenge, foils many. It is difficult to reach the green in two shots on this double dog-leg. A small lake has its shore almost at the edge of the green.

Par for the course is 71.

Banker's Wife Held

Accused of slaying her banker husband, John H. Dumbrell, 59, Mrs. Amy Dumbrell, 59, is shown in jail at San Francisco. Mrs. Dumbrell, who surrendered after the shooting, was accompanied to the jail by her son, John, Jr., 19. (Associated Press Photo)

In this day when top-notch heavyweight fighters are content to confine their ring activities to one or two actual fights a year, with a couple of easy exhibitions thrown in, Joe Louis' desire to work at his chosen trade with unusual frequency is most commendable. The Bomber is ready and anxious to engage in real fights with any and all the big boys. Promoter Mike Jacobs can line up for him.

The present crop of heavyweights being what it is, the sensational negro will be called on to face a flock of third raters and "easy marks." And therein lies a real danger. One of these unknowns might, remote as the possibility may seem, catch the Bomber off his guard and spring a surprise. It has happened before. In fact, Louis readily admits the hardest fight of his brief professional career was his 10-round contest with the little known Adolph Wiater.

Bomber Lets Down

When you stop and consider that Louis had little difficulty battering down the two former champions he faced, Carnera and Baer, it is easy to understand that the Bomber, exceptional fighter that he is, has the natural failing of letting down a bit when he is facing an opponent of little repute.

Little Lou Ambers and Vince Dundee, former middleweight champions, could give Joe Louis a bit of advice on the subject of underestimating opponents. A few months ago this pair was walking around with their jaws wired up as the result of forgetting to duck when facing fighters they did not rate too highly. Fritzie Zivic, youngest of the fighting Zivic clan, put Ambers on the shelf for several months and it was Freddie Steele, the thumping northwesterner, who broke Dundee's jaw.

Some ten years or so ago when Tom Gibbons was knocking off heavyweights with startling regularity, he was signed to meet the old colored warhorse, Kid Norfolk, in old Madison Square Garden. Gibbons confided that he would stop the nero with a blow to the "solar plexus," the sort of punch that Bob Fitzsimmons used to beat Jim Corbett.

For five rounds we watched every move the St. Paul boxer made and then in the sixth round saw him put the negro on the floor with a smashing blow to the stomach, as he said he would.

"Well, I guess I called the turn that time," Gibbons remarked in the dressing room after the fight. "He went down when I found the spot I was looking for, all right."

"But I don't understand why you didn't stop him long before the sixth round. You had at least a dozen openings for the punch before you put it over."

One of the first laws of the fight game is that a man must protect himself at all times — it's risky business to relax for a second, mentally or physically.
