Release of $50,000,000 Impounded Oil Royalty Near

MONEY AWAITS SETTLEMENT OF LAWSUITS

By RAYMOND BROOKS.
AUSTIN, Sept. 26.—Light is beginning to break for the owners, including the state of Texas, approximately $50,000,000 impounded in major oil companies' treasuries as the result of a series of lawsuits concerning title to the gigantic Yates oil pool of Pecos county.

The money is being held to be paid to the legally-declared owners, pending outcome of three major suits now on appeal. Early determination of its ownership is expected. Atty. Gen. James V. Alfred originally estimated the amount involved to be $50,000,000. One company alone announced in open court, he recalled, that it has on hand $25,000,000 that it cannot pay out until the law questions are determined.

One of the famous cases, that of Turner vs. Smith, already is in supreme court. On motion of Atty. Gen. James V. Alfred, the Whiteside case, involving hundreds of parties, and the huge sum of impounded funds, was advanced by third circuit appeals court and argued. The court has announced it will certify questions from this case on to supreme court. This will permit consolidation of all the cases. The issues in the Whiteside case will more fully cover disposition of the legal arguments over locating vacant surveys in the Pecos county area than did even the Turner case. The California company case, with similar issues, awaits submission in the third circuit. Policy of supreme court, when it resumes after a summer vacation period to work on its old cases rather than new ones, except those of emergency nature, indicates early adjudication of these Pecos county cases, involving the largest amounts ever at issue, and the payment of huge sums impounded to await decision as to their legal owners.

Third civil appeals court indicated in June its purpose to certify questions in the Whiteside case. Recently many of the scores of lawyers representing numerous interests in the massive case, have been holding discussions as to the law questions to be certified up to supreme court.

Before Supreme Court Soon.
Third civil appeals court begins its new term today, and unless there is exceptional delay caused by the discussions and controversies of lawyers that diverge interest over the subject matter of the questions certified, the entire body of the Pecos county litigation should be before supreme court shortly.

Judges of the final court have stated their purpose to work on the old cases first.

The Turner-Smith case was filed more than three years ago, and it was submitted finally in argument of counsel before supreme court on Oct. 21, 1931.

Involved Title Fixing.
The Whiteside case, more recently tried here, was appealed to third civil appeals court this year. On appeal, the name of this case is Douglas Oil company vs. state. On motion of Atty. Gen. James V. Alfred in May, the appellate court advanced and heard arguments before the summer vacation.

This suit involves fixing title to Block 194 in Pecos county, affecting several thousand acres of the Yates pool. Trial court here held with the state on all issues in controversy.

The effect of final court determination of the cases will be to say whether state vacancies lie in the heart of the oil pool, or on the opposite side of the block, thus affecting location of all titles in the area, including the state's claim on public lands, and its lessees.

Many Have Interest.
The California company case involves similar issues.

Decision by supreme court on the Turner case will determine part of the issues involved in the others; but the final decision in the Whiteside case apparently is to control all issues, thus freeing from treasuries of the major oil companies the $50,000,000 which belongs to oil companies, land owners, royalty owners and the state. An unknown number of Texas citizens, running into the hundreds, have interests at stake in the determination who own the money. There were over 600 land owners named in the Whiteside and California company cases.

Hoover Carts Replace "Hoovercrats" in North Carolina

"HOOVER carts" are a new conveyance originated by the depression in North Carolina, according to Mrs. Thomas O'Berry of Goldsboro, N. C., state vice-chairman of the National Democratic Committee. "They came into being," said Mrs. O'Berry, "when a local newspaper invited the farmers of the three surrounding counties to get together for a rodeo which was arranged to stir up trade. The farmers wanted to go to the rodeo but they couldn't buy gas to run cars into town, nor did most of them have wagons or horses or mules. So spontaneously they rigged up their strange-looking vehicles.

PLANS ARE BEING SHAPED FOR SMOKER

Plans are being rapidly shaped for the new Business Men's Smoker to be held early in October. Chairman J. A. Benham has announced committees to have charge of details looking forward to the largest attendance and the most interesting of all get-together meetings yet held. There are committees out whose reports should challenge the best thought and planning of the business interests of Cisco, namely, the committees on better markets, with Asa Skiles as chairman of the grocery group and the dry goods group with H. S. Drumwright as chairman. The rodeo group in charge of Joe C. Burnam, will also report on the next, and the day of the week that will best serve the interests of the people. The time of this has been suggested Saturday to Monday instead of Saturday.

Possibly there will be other reports other than a regular program for the meeting. New committees appointed and requested to meet at the chamber of commerce Tuesday at 3 p. m. are as follows: Arrangements committee, H. L. Dyer, chairman; Geo. Boyd; Rex Corrothers, Vance Littleton and Wm. Reagan.

Officers Busy, But Only Busy

The police department had an exciting run of business Saturday night and Sunday but none of it resulted in anything sensational. Saturday evening two enthusiastic gentlemen were haled before the municipal tribunal on charges of having disturbed the peace after tipping liquor on the street.

Officers raided a "blind tiger" in north Cisco confiscating six pints of whiskey and a quantity of beer. A negro man and a negro woman were turned over to county authorities for action.

HUGHES' RISE FORESHADOWS NEW POLICIES

DALLAS, Sept. 26.—Reorganization of the democratic party machinery in Texas has elevated to power one of the most colorful of young Texas leaders in the person of Matur Hughes, Dallas criminal lawyer.

Hughes' selected as the new chairman of the state democratic executive committee forethadows new policies. It means control of party machinery by liberals.

During his administration, the Ku Klux Klan entered the political arena, and took control of the county government. Hughes clashed with Klan leaders, and the result

EVANGELIST TRACES CHURCH DEVELOPMENT

"The Plan, Plea and Purpose of the New Testament church was the subject discussed by Dr. G. C. Schurman at the First Christian church last night. "I do not know just how long it will take me but this is one sermon I intend to finish even if I do not get to 9 o'clock," declared the evangelist as he began his description of the progress of the church under the preaching of the apostles of Christ.

For ends he has "Chuck" Van Horn and Billy Rutledge, a sweet-looking pair; for tackles H. McMichen, Latch and McMurray; for guards Blackburn, Garrett and Aycock for centers Curley and Hanna. In the backfield his prospects include McCall (Capt.) Caffrey, Ray, Barker, C. McMahon and St. John.

GRID GAME FOR WEEK-END BEING SOUGHT

Coach Wilson Elkins said this afternoon he had concluded tentative agreement with Gorman high school for a football game here Saturday. He was uncertain whether the game would be played Saturday afternoon or Saturday evening. He prefers a night game but the lights are not in condition and he is waiting to find whether or not they can be put in shape before fixing the hour for the contest.

It is probable that Cisco football fans will be given their first glimpse of the 1932 Lobos in action next Saturday afternoon. That, it appears will be the result of negotiations which Coach Wilson (Bull) Elkins is carrying on for an opening contest.

Gorman, traditionally the season starter for the Lobos, will likely finish the opposition. Telephone conversations with the Gorman authorities developed that the Panthers like punishment. The team has a game for Friday afternoon but the boys are ready to take on the Lobos Saturday afternoon as a sort of demerit-tasse to the Friday afternoon contest. The superintendent, the coach of the Gorman eleven may hold a veto in the offing.

It was explained the game for Friday afternoon is a part of team affair and that the Panther second team will be able to handle the assignment without great difficulty.

Coach Elkins said today he wanted a game for Friday but that he had met disappointment in every direction in attempting to slate a contest for that afternoon. Albany high school declined with thanks, preferring not to be "skinned up." Gorman didn't mind being skinned but had the Friday afternoon card full. Elkins was continuing negotiations in the hope of obtaining final agreement for Saturday afternoon.

The Lobo squad is intact and in fair condition. A month of practice and helmet scrimmage has developed a fair crew of hopefuls whom Elkins is anxious to test under fire. With all noses present and accounted for the Lobo coach estimates a line averaging 175 pounds. His backfield will be a Mutt and Jeff proposition, with speed and line-ramping qualities, but deficient in punting and passing. He expects to offset these defects in time, however.

For ends he has "Chuck" Van Horn and Billy Rutledge, a sweet-looking pair; for tackles H. McMichen, Latch and McMurray; for guards Blackburn, Garrett and Aycock for centers Curley and Hanna. In the backfield his prospects include McCall (Capt.) Caffrey, Ray, Barker, C. McMahon and St. John.

Tuition fees for these unders will be at least $3 a month for the term and possibly $4 a month, he said.

ROUSING RALLY IS FEATURE OF MARKET WEEK

In its weekly review of business and financial conditions The Wall Street Journal says:

A rousing rally in stocks in mid-week, carrying the Dow-Jones railroad and industrial averages to within hailing distance of the recent rally highs, was the feature of developments in the securities markets. The sharp upward movement came after the market had swung in the doldrums for four days around the lows of the reaction. The upswing was accompanied by a striking increase in trading volume.

The rally in stocks was preceded by firmness in bonds, with the high-grade issues the first to feel improvement. Second-grade railroad issues, generally, worked upward during the week, although they received a severe set-back Thursday. Interest throughout the week centered in the railroad securities. Early loadings reports of individual carriers early indicated that the upward trend in railway traffic was continuing. Declines from a year ago were less than in preceding weekly periods, compared with the like 1931 weeks. The report of the Chesapeake & Ohio for August, when net was almost double the total for July, also served to wheat interest in carrier stocks. As a group they were in the van of the recovery.

Announcement from the Reconstruction Finance Corp., that it would defer action of the large loan to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, funds which the B. & O. planned to use to anticipate its March 1, 1933, bond maturity, disturbed the rail bond market and brought sympathy selling into rail stocks. However the setbacks were short-lived. Eastern carrier shares, involved in trunk line consolidation plans, were firm all week.

While the railroad carloadings figures, electric output figures for the week were hardly stimulating. They showed a larger percentage decline in the September 17 week, from the similar 1931 week, than had previous weekly statements, and broke the trend toward narrowing of the gap which had prevailed for a number of weeks. Wholesale price indices, also, were slightly lower.

Trade reviews, however, were generally optimistic in tenor. They pointed out that reports from a number of cities indicated that foundations for a forward movement in business had been laid, and that there had been a distinct upturn in a number of lines which all-

GOVT RESTS CASE AGAINST SEN. DAVIS

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—The government today rested its case against U. S. Senator James J. Davis, charged with violating the lottery laws.

The government ended its case after a week of testimony designed to show that Davis, dominating figure in the Loyal Order of Moose, had been closely connected with the organization's charity balls which the government claimed were lotteries.

M'CAMNEY MAN BADLY HURT NEAR ABILENE

ABILENE, Sept. 26.—An early morning fog was blamed this afternoon for an automobile crash in which J. H. Russell, McCamey was seriously injured.

J. V. Fleming, of Center, Texas, and W. H. Hughes, occupants with Russell's car told officers the fog caused the collision.

ABILENE, Sept. 26.—J. H. Russell, of McCamey, a nephew of Bud Russell, traveling guard for the state penitentiary, was injured in an automobile accident at Eldorado, eight miles east of here today. Physicians said his condition was serious.

Russell was driving with R. A. Johnson to Eastland to get his wife. The accident was sidwiped at the top of a hill. The driver of the second machine did not stop after the crash.

Russell's throat was slashed and he suffered head injuries and bruises. A freight train engineer who witnessed the accident, stopped the train and brought the injured man here. Johnson was slightly hurt.

County officers began a hunt for the hit-and-run driver.

RAIN BLAMED FOR DEATHS OF TWO.

BODY OF MRS. J. J. WINSTON IS SENT HERE

The body of Mrs. J. J. Winston, 67, a long time resident of Cisco who died at Baltimore, Md., will arrive here Tuesday afternoon on the Texas and Pacific Sunshine and will be buried in Oakland cemetery beside the body of her husband following funeral services at the First Christian church Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. The Rev. E. L. Miley, pastor of the church, will conduct the services and burial arrangements will be in charge of Green Funeral home.

Mrs. Winston succumbed to a second and paralytic attack after recovering from a stroke suffered several years ago. She is survived by a son, Capt. Barlow Winston, of the United States army, who will accompany the body to Cisco. Since leaving Cisco about six years ago Mrs. Winston had lived with her son as he was transferred from place to place in the discharge of his military duties.

Mr. Winston died here in 1925. He had retired after having been engaged for many years in the grocery business.

Mrs. John Stamps, of Cisco, is a sister of the deceased. Mrs. J. B. Ammerman, noted Texas club woman and temperance worker, who died at Fort Worth earlier in the year, was a sister, another, Mrs. Hill, lives at Lockney, Texas.

SPEAKING OF THE WOOL SITUATION.

According to a Texas exchange, sheep and goat men are encouraged over the situation. They are urging growers not to jeopardize further possibility of price gains by shearing fall wool. They also are advocating holding the lambs for a better return. They point out that short wool is selling in the United States under the tariff protective price, which they say is an indication that there is little demand for this trade. They report that losses among goats resulting from heavy rains and cool weather are estimated at 400,000 to 500,000 head among West Texas herders. With more than 125,000 head killed by freezing weather last spring, they say that goat numbers in the state have been reduced nearly 750,000 head from the 3,750,000 goats nearly a year ago. Furthermore, that the goat has helped to solve the surplus mohair problem by dying in large numbers.

DOLLY GANN AND THE MODERN MODE.

Dolly Gann, the heavyweight sister of Brother Charlie, is shelling the woods on the Canadian border line. She visited Duluth, then she unfolded her great secret. She said, with a sunflower smile, "Pres. Hoover has become not only the leader of our own country, but the whole world, upon whose advice the governments of other nations have repeatedly acted." Where and when? Germany has declared that she will create a standing army and a navy regardless of the Versailles treaty. Pres. Hoover mildly informed the European world that the United States was unconcerned, that it had no part in the Versailles treaty and that it was attending to its own business. Truth is, Germany should be permitted to create and maintain a standing army and to build a navy if the Germans are willing to pay the freight. Why should the United States dictate to Japan or Germany or any other foreign power? Why should the United States, speaking through Ambassador Edge, pledge France a security peace pact? As for the World war, it cost the American people $36,000,000,000. It cost the American people the trade of the world, largely owing to the republican tariff wall. Allied nations owe the American people $7,000,000,000. They have defaulted payment. Allied nations as well as Germany owe American banks and bankers $9,000,000,000. Why should Uncle Sam continue to be the great father of the world? Charity begins at home. Why not protect America first?

JOSEPHUS DANIELS TRIBUTE TO F. D.

Josephus Daniels has been one of the outstanding leaders and editors of North Carolina for 40 years. He has attended every national convention of the democratic party since the crown of thorns and cross of gold speech of Bryan in 1896. He was an adviser and right hand man of Woodrow Wilson for eight years. He was the secretary of the navy who made history in the dark days of the World war. He contributes to the current number of the Saturday Evening Post a remarkable story of the life and public service of Franklin D. Roosevelt. It is really the best contribution to the democratic cause that has appeared since the nomination of Roosevelt by the Chicago convention. It should be read by all democrats as well as all voters of independent minds. It is worth while from forelines to finish. It tells the story of the protection of the naval oil reserves by outstanding personages and the looting of the oil reserve after Woodrow

That Near-Sighted Hired Man!

Wilson has been retired to private life. It tells of Roosevelt, the man of sterling qualities, high American patriotism and his love for justice for all men, his sincere sympathy for those who need a helping hand and his ideals and policies of government from his entrance into public service until the present hour. Incidentally there is a tribute to Sen. Thomas J. Walsh of Montana who trailed the looters to their lair, who forced them to disgorge and who was instrumental in sending Albert B. Fall to the penitentiary for his crimes against the American people. Josephus Daniels is one of the outstanding pro leaders of America. He is one of the outstanding democratic regulars of the South. He is a man of the people. He worked his way from a printer's devil to a high pinnacle and his record as a public servant never surpassed by any American who classified himself as a democrat.

PAUL MALLON ON "THE PAUPER VOTE."

Paul Mallon, writing in National Whirligig, is responsible for this: "The discouraged leaders were particularly angry about the eastern managers who let paupers be barred from voting in one Maine district. They think that may have cost them 10,000 votes." Paul Mallon was speaking or writing of the panic existing among the higher-ups in the city of Washington. Lewiston is the home of Gov.-Elect Louis J. Brann. Lewiston republican managers classified as "paupers" men and women voters, idle through no fault of their own, who had received aid in order to feed their children. It was that or let them starve. Republican managers in Maine uncovered a law enacted by a Maine legislature a hundred years ago which disqualified from voting any person who had received aid from city or county or state. This regardless of economic depressions or any other so-called "act of almighty God." Why shouldn't it have cost the republican managers of Maine 10,000 votes? It was one of the most inhuman rulings ever made by civilized man under the American skies, and it was upheld by a republican judge. In the city of Lewiston alone 400 were disfranchised. They were honest; they were poor; they could not obtain employment, and they were classified with idiots and ex-convicts and chronic paupers.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

As I write this I am not sure that it will be printed. I am not sure, in fact, whether anything will be printed in the Daily News this afternoon. Had you come down to our office this morning and seen our Mayes Griffin blundering about and trying to go through doors that weren't there you would share my uncertainty. Mayes prints the paper after it is made up. He is the one who operates the big press, a job that requires more technical knowledge and practical experience with presses than any of the rest of us has.

There was a reason for Mayes blundering. He hadn't been tipping. Tipping isn't one of Mayes' faults. He wasn't ill. He is an example of perfect health.

The reason is that Mayes had just begun to live. Sunday morning at 2 o'clock he became a father. Dorothy Janet is the name of the little miss. Eight pounds of babyhood is enough to make a blunderer out of any man. So if the press runs backwards this afternoon you know the reason.

Both mother, nee Miss Fay Kennedy, and daughter are doing well.

Spectacles is due Victor B. Gilbert and Tom J. Cunningham an apology. I offer it humbly.

On September 4, 1932, I reasoned from a couple of premises to a false conclusion. The trouble was one of the premises was wrong.

I suggested that Eastland county would have no representative in the legislature for the special session. "Vic" had been named assistant director of the motorbus division of the Texas Railroad commission and Mr. Cunningham, it was understood, had also accepted other employment and I drew the conclusion that this prevented their serving during the special session. The conclusion was wrong.

Both of these gentlemen were in the house having a big part in passing relief legislation for which the special session was called.

"Vic" writes me a nice letter asking the correction.

"When I accepted a place with the railroad commission in March of this year," he said, "I had no intention of resigning my legislative post, nor relinquishing the commission my people had entrusted to me so often, until that duty was performed, for that trust to me was sacred. When the governor called the legislature together in extraordinary session to consider the question of assuming the highway bonded debt of the counties, and the remission of interest and penalties on delinquent taxes, both of which were matters of vital importance to our people and both of which relief measures I have long advocated and endeavored to write into the law, I resigned my position with the railroad commission to serve in the legislature and to lend my assistance to the passage of those two great measures." Gilbert points out that House bill No. 2, the highway bond relief act, will lift $100,000,000 from the backs of Texas tax payers and that it will mean a saving to Eastland county of approximately $200,000 annually.

"It is very gratifying to me to be able to give to the people of Texas, and to my district, as a farewell legislative act, terminating my long service in the Texas legislature, these two outstanding relief measures, for both of which I claim a humble responsibility."

Congratulations to both Mr. Gilbert and Mr. Cunningham for their work and Specs is ashamed he inadvertently cast any umbrage upon them.

In the Political Arena

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD

Washington correspondents agreed that the republican leaders, including the president, are panic stricken as the result of the political upheaval in Maine. Early in the campaign, those who are close to the president announced that he would make but three speeches. Now he is going to make a coast to coast speaking tour and get a close-up of his fellow Americans. An appeal has been made to the former heavy contributors to the republican campaign chest to increase the size of their checks. All the outstanding crators of the party are to be drafted by the speakers' bureau.

Elihu Root is 87. He is one of the most distinguished of all of the elderly statesmen of America. He has been dragged from retirement and will make one or two addresses. Elihu Root has not been politically active in years. He was given a great boost for his nobility of character and achievements in the days of his activity by Alfred E. Smith in his Saturday Evening Post article which was not a statement of "The Democratic Case."

Dr. Mark Sullivan who supplies political articles for many daily newspapers from coast to coast is a very intense republican. He is one of the five or six newspaper correspondents who are among the confidential advisers and news propagandists of the president.

Dr. Sullivan affirms that Pres. Hoover was not an issue in the Maine campaign; that the republicans who voted the democratic ticket "think of the president as having fought in an heroic role against a congress which is not liked." Indeed, the worthy newspaper doctor makes a flat assertion that "Pres. Hoover did not figure in the Maine election at all."

There are times when the chief of the republican news propagandists rivals Will Rogers as a humorist. On election day in Maine some 40,000 republicans, or independent voters, cast democratic ballots. They elected a very vigorous independent newspaper in Maine, the Portland Daily News. Its editor, in a review of the election, declared the third district of Maine would have elected the democratic nominee for congress, but his name happened to be "Connolly," and in this rural district of Maine there is a certain deep prejudice against the name "Connolly" just because of the name and that is all.

Dr. Sullivan has made another discovery. Democrats and anti-pro organizations shipped large sums of money to Maine for use on or before election day. Is it possible that 40,000 Maine republicans could be bought outright to vote the democratic ticket and dismantle as well the state known as the "cradle of prohibition liberty for mankind?" Dr. Sullivan must be panic stricken. He should get down to basic facts. Maine republicans are not for sale. And the same is true of Maine democrats. There are a few floaters everywhere, but they cannot be counted by the hundreds or the thousands in the land of Gen. Neal Dow.

There will be no investigation of the Texas Cotton Co-Operative association. By a vote of 14 to 8 the senate defeated a resolution calling for an inquiry by three senators to be appointed by Lieut. Gov. Edgar E. Witt. Sen. Tom DeBerry led the fight against the resolution. He said he feared an investigation of the co-operative at this time would depress the already bearish cotton market. Sen. J. W. Stevenson expressed the same opinion, asserting that if the farmers lost faith in the organization holding their cotton they would dump their present crop upon the market.

Farmers in the Mid-West are as restless as ever. A general selling holiday, seeking higher farm prices, began in all agriculture states of the Middle-West and South at midnight Sept. 20, by order of the National Farmers' Holiday association in a meeting held in an important Iowa city. This non-selling campaign is to apply only to grain and live stock. Perishable farm products, such as cream, butter and eggs, are not to be withheld from market for at least 30 days. If at the end of that period the price is not equal to the cost of their production, the perishable products likewise will not be sold, the counsel of the association declared, speaking for the farmers of Iowa and other states of the Mid-West. It was urged that instead of picketing, the organized farmers make every effort to enlist the support of all farmers in the movement.

Higher price strikes in agricultural communities constitute something under the American sun. Ficketing of highways by farm organization is a weapon borrowed from the American Federation of Labor. There are coal mining strikes in Illinois. There was a demand for national guards to afford protection to the mine owners and the mines ad their non-union strike breakers. Gov. Louis Emmerson of Illinois, a republican, turned down the call. He declined to send national guardsmen to the scene of the trouble. This is presidential year. Illinois has been a republican Gibraltar.

Benjamin Harrison defeated Grover Cleveland for a second term. There were strikes everywhere that year in the industrial centers, including the mining centers of the East and of the West. Organized labor turned against Cleveland. Four years of Harrison and the American voters again rallied to the standard of Grover Cleveland and that very able statesman, an American immortal of today, was returned to the White House. There were no farmer strike movements in these days and picketing of highway to advance the prices of farm staples was an unheard of procedure in the rural districts of America.

TRAPS MOSQUITOS

PARIS, Sept. 26.—Catching mosquitoes by the pound has now been made possible by means of inventions perfected and put on exhibition at the 30th Concorde Lepine, here. Testing out the contraptions, an expedition of mosquito catchers set out from here for the Camargue plain, at the mouth of the Rhone river, near Marseilles. One apparatus is said to have trapped five pounds of unwary mosquitoes within 60 minutes. The invention consists of a mercury lamp, which attracts the biters in swarms, only to be killed, upon arriving by a powerful insecticide, and collected in a tray.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

THE CACIQUE, like the oriole, builds far out on the end of a limb, for protection against animals. The oriole has only cats and squirrels to worry about, but the cacique has a more clever enemy, the prehensile-tailed monkey. These wily animals are able to reach out with their long tails and grasp bird nests that would be safe from any other animal. The cacique has also learned the trick that is used by some of our native birds... that of building near a wasp nest.

CALL of the WEST by R. G. MONTGOMERY

BEGIN HERE TODAY STAN BALL, an agent for cattle interests, faces ASPER DELO in his office. Asper is accused of killing men sent to check his lumbering activities at Three Rivers. Ball announces he is making a personal check. DeLo says he will personally see that he does not make the check. Leaving the office, Stan saves a girl from kidnapers. She proves to be DONA DELO, Asper's daughter. When Stan learns her name he tells her to be STANLEY BLACK and slips away. DUDLEY WINTERS, in love with Dona, agrees to go to Three Rivers and bring Asper back. Dona goes with him and at a little ranch place on the way Dudley puts a plan of marriage to Dona, hoping she will take this plan of getting Asper DeLo to return. She agrees but holds back when Stan Ball, on his way to Three Rivers, steps out of the night and kisses her. At Three Rivers they meet SWERGIN, Asper's timber boss, and he says he is ready to kill Ball, that Ball shot a ranger. Dona decides to ride in to hunt for Ball. She catches a bad horse and has to try to ride him to keep up her pride. Dona rides the roan. Swergin tells her she must not ride without a guard as Ball is a killer and is at large. She slips away and rides toward Pass Creek where she has been told not to go. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER X

She returned to her father's side and slumped down in the grass.

PASS CREEK canyon led down on the south side of Folly Mountain. A rugged rim divided the creek country from the timber lands of the DeLo Timber Company. None of the pine or spruce had been cut in the canyon and the trail was narrow, twisting in and around great trees and close under frowning walls. Dona pushed the big roan as fast as he could travel with safety. The canyon widened into a meadow and she could see a mile ahead. The roan lifted his head and snorted. Dona scanned the trail with alert eyes. Close to the edge of the timber a rider was skirting the open meadow. Dona touched the roan with her spurs. The rider was her father. Her mount leaped ahead but before she could enter the open Asper had vanished into the timber at the far side of the meadow. Dona thundered across the open grass land eager to catch up with him. The going was rough now but the roan took it with the sure-footed ease of a cow horse. He swerved and his powerful forelegs struck out like flashing streaks of light as he dodged around grass hummocks and spring spots. Suddenly the roan leaped sideways and tossed up his head. Dona cast a fleeting glance at the ridge above. She fancied she saw a flash of black in the higher timber parallel to her course. It made cold chills run up her spine and she bent to pull the carbine from beneath her stirrup flap. Beyond the shoulder of rock she caught a second glimpse of black. This time she was sure it was a black horse galloping along the rim above. Its rider seemed to be crouching low over the neck of his mount and urging the horse on. PANIC gripped her. It was plain that the man above was not concerned with her at that instant. He was pushing his horse to head off her father. Dona strained her eyes to catch a glimpse of Asper but the dense growth hid him in its green fastness. She sank her spurs into the roan's flanks and he responded with his last ounce of speed. Crashing through the brush Dona pulled her horse up with cruel sharpness. She could see her father ahead in the open. Facing him was a cowboy on a black horse. Both men had swung broadside and were pulling their rifles free. It was plain that they intended to shoot it out. The man on the black had all the advantage for he had ridden out prepared to shoot while Asper DeLo had been taken by surprise. Asper was struggling with his gun which seemed to have caught in the trappings of the saddle. Dona forced the roan to a dead stop and her carbine flashed up. The roan saw it and plunged. Here was something she had overlooked. She had failed to try her horse with a rifle. The roan was certainly gunshy and panicky. Some one had carelessly fired close to his head and had ruined him. Dona struggled to swing her rifle around and bring it down upon the black horse. The shot was a long one but she had to take a chance. Then the roan cut loose and began bucking. With grim anger Dona let the rifle rattle to the ground and reached for the saddle horn. She fought the roan savagely and without giving him a chance. This was no time for showmanship. This was a desperate stand with her father's life at stake. A rifle cracked and Dona caught a jarring glimpse of her father as he pitched from his horse. A second shot sent his mount staggering away, evidently wounded. Dona saw the black horse rear up and strike on his face and had not moved. With shaking hands she turned him over. His face was white and his lips parted in a blue line. When she moved him he groaned and tried to move but his eyes did not open. Dona tore at his jacket and pulled it open. A red stain met her gaze and she began to rip away his shirt. She found a ragged wound high in the shoulder. It was bleeding profusely and would have to be bandaged at once. Suddenly she became calm and her white face took on a look of grim determination. She would settle with Ball of Blind River and her settlement would be cold lead. She made a bandage from the torn shirt and twisted it tight with a stick until the blood ceased to seep through the cloth. "Dad, Dad! It's D!" she spoke huskily. They were the first words she had uttered since bending over him. The timber king continued to groan but he did not open his eyes. Dona began examining him for bruises and found one at the back of his head. Asper had landed in a bad way and had suffered a severe shock in addition to the bullet wound. Dona held his head in her lap and began to take stock of the situation. Ball would be lurking near. He was a man who would take an unfair advantage, that was plain, and it made her position more dangerous. Dona got up and laid Asper's head in a hummock of grass. Her own body was racked so that she could scarcely walk but she struck out in search of her carbine. At every step she expected to hear a gruff voice commanding her to halt but only the scolding of a squirrel broke the silence. She spent 20 minutes hunting for the carbine but was finally successful. With it under her arm and ready for instant use, she returned to her father's side and slumped down in the grass. Then she tried to think what she should do. She was alone and both horses had disappeared. Asper DeLo weighed 180 pounds and his weight would be the weight of a helpless man. She slipped her arms around his shoulders and tried to lift him. The best she could do was to raise him from the ground. To carry him was impossible and she cast about for another plan. Rising, she tried to walk to high ground in hope of sighting one of the horses. She stumbled along, feeling very small and weak. On a high knoll she halted and surveyed the trail up the canyon. There was no trace of a horse as far as she could see. Slowly she retraced her steps. She did not dare leave her father for long. He might regain consciousness for an instant and she wanted to be at his side if he did. She had a clutching fear that he might only be conscious once. The sun had already left the meadow in the canyon and the air was beginning to chill. Dona felt in her pockets for a match. She found none and began to search in her father's clothes while he continued to groan and seemed to be straining to move. Not a single match did her search reveal and Dona came to the despairing realization that he had packed his match box with his cigar case in a saddle pocket. With night coming on and a cold chill settling on the high country she sat there helpless beside the form of her father. Big tears welled in her eyes and she felt her courage deserting her. was his defeat in his race for reelection. Hughes then entered the practice of criminal law, and has become one of the leading attorneys at the Dallas bar. It was not until three or four years ago he began taking an active interest in state politics. Campaigned for Smith. In the 1928 campaign, Hughes campaigned for the election of Alfred E. Smith. But he was not on the state committee, and his scope of influence was limited. He denounced party leaders who bolted to Herbert Hoover, and declared they should be deprived of participation in party leadership. A fight for leadership in the Dallas county machine between Hughes and Thomas B. Love, ultra-dry and Hoovercrat of '28, was to follow. Love's overwhelming defeat in the race for the governorship in 1930 was the signal for Hughes to "drive his stakes" to wrest control in Dallas county from Love. When the precinct conventions of 1932 approached, Hughes organized for control of the county convention. Love attempted to get a majority of dry delegates to the county and state conventions. At the spring county convention, Love was denied a place on the delegation of the state convention, and Hughes was quickly elevated to leadership. So important had been Hughes work in taking control away from the non-regular element of the party that he was chosen as spokesman for Texas delegation at the democratic national convention in Chicago. Hughes' brief address on that occasion added to his mounting popularity in Texas democracy. Enemy of Reformers. Hughes is a wet, and is the enemy of the reformers. He was an ardent champion of the candidacy of John N. Garner for the democratic presidential nomination. Nomination of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson for the governorship was the event which was to furnish Hughes the final lift into power and leadership of the state committee. He was a warm supporter of Ferguson, and the pre-announced choice of James E. Ferguson for the state chairmanship. Ferguson ousted W. O. Huggins from that post. His changes dropped Charles I. Francis of Wichita Falls, and other veteran leaders from the committee. Hughes and other prominent young democrats have avowed their intention of putting a stop to party leadership by those who bolt. The right to bolt was upheld by the state supreme court, which declared in a decision testing the Terrell election law that a democrat did not have to violate his conscience in voting. Hughes, however, wants the law changed. He is determined the pledge which democrats take in participating in the party primaries shall be made to mean something. $5 FEE ASKED PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 26. — State Senator Joe E. ways are the first to feel a turn in the tide. The drastic reduction in gasoline prices, put into effect by the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, served to bring some selling into the oil stocks. The cut followed price slashes made in various sections, and was necessitated by these reductions and conditions of oversupply of gasoline, the company declared. With prices trending downward, and the period of reduced consumption at hand the outlook for the oil industry is not as rosy as it was earlier in the summer. A slight upturn took place in buying of steel products during the past week. While this brought about a higher rate of activity at some finishing mills, the raw material producing average showed little change at around 15 per cent of capacity. Heavier specifications for tin plate by the can companies caused the Farrell Works of the American Sheet & Tin Plate Co. to jump its schedule to 100 per cent of capacity, from an irregular rate substantially below that figure recently. The Texas Centennial Means The 100th Birthday of Texas

Sam Houston was inaugurated President of the Republic of Texas on October 22, 1836. As a symbol of his assumption of civil office, he presented his sword to the Speaker of the House.

Celebrated in Honor of the Immortal Heroes of Texas' Early History

"It now, sir, becomes my duty to make presentation of this sword... this emblem of my past office," said Houston at his inauguration. "I have worn it with some humble pretensions in defense of my country—and should the danger of my country again call for my services, I expect to resume it, and respond to that call, if needful, with my blood and with my life."

In this dramatic manner constitutional government began in Texas nearly a century ago. The centennial of that event, and of other events which marked the birth of Texan independence, will come in 1936. We should observe it with a Centennial Celebration worthy of Texas and the heroes who won and established Texan independence.

Such a Centennial Exposition can rival the foremost of such events ever held. Literally millions of people will throng the borders of Texas. They will not only see the glories of our illustrious past—but the golden opportunities of the present. Happily, such an Exposition will return revenue to the State far in excess of its cost... and individual Texans will see direct economic benefit.

GANDHI'S FAST IS TERMINATED BY AGREEMENT

POONA, India, Sept. 26—The Mahatma Gandhi abandoned his "fast until death" today as vitality ebbed steadily from his frail body, body he had staked against the British settlement of India's voting problem. British acceptance of an agreement reached between Hindu castes enabled Gandhi to end his hunger strike. Today was Gandhi's weekly day of silence. He suffered from periods of nausea and fainting spells during the last stages of the fast. His wife rubbed his head with olive oil to restore consciousness when he fainted. Gandhi ended his fast at 5 p. m. After silent prayers he sipped orange juice, his first nourishment after more than six days of water and soda.
