Land Comm'r Investigators Threaten Action on Bank

DALLAS, Feb. 22 (AP)—Threat that a grand jury in Austin might be asked to take action if the Mercantile National bank here persisted in refusing to hand over bank records of Tom C. Clark highlighted today's session of the senate investigating committee.

The threat was made by Senator Hill of Henderson, frequent critic of Attorney General McCraw. Clark and McCraw formerly were law partners.

A sharp division within the committee on the course of the inquiry was evident.

Senator Holbrook of Galveston, pointed out that McCraw was a probable candidate for governor, favored investigating "rumors" circulating about McCraw, but Senator Weinert of Seguin, countered that it was not the committee's duty to enlighten the public about the qualifications of any tentative candidate for office.

Junior Patrol Advisory Group Meets at Lunch

The advisory committee for the junior safety patrol now being organized in the public schools to assist in maintaining conditions of safety in street crossings by students, met at a luncheon at the Laguna hotel today noon.

It was announced that the Sam Browne belts to be worn by the junior patrolmen have been ordered and that plans are being made to put the patrol program into effect a week hence.

Sergeant M. C. Myers of the Texas Highway Patrol was a guest of the committee, as was Chief of Police Perdue. Mr. Myers promised, if possible to assign himself and two highway patrolmen to Cisco on the day that the program is begun to assist Chief Perdue and the schools and advisory committee in starting its functions in the proper manner.

The advisory committee will meet with patrols selected from all schools at 4 this afternoon at the high school to give further instructions to the students, who will serve in no capacity as traffic officers but simply as monitors for students in crossing streets and highways where danger from traffic exists.

Present for the meeting at noon were E. L. Jackson, chairman of the committee; Mrs. Charles S. Sandler, Miss Ida Mae Collins, R. N. Cluck, superintendent of schools; O. L. Stamey, principal of the high school; V. A. Andrews, principal of grammar school; T. C. Williams, principal of east ward; Arlin Bint, of west ward; C. J. Turner of grammar school; Sergeant Myers; B. A. Butler of the Cisco Daily Press, and Chief M. L. Perdue.

British Minister to France Is Killed

DERBY, England, Feb. 22 (AP)—Hugh Thomas, 49, British minister to Paris, was killed today when his horse fell in a steeplechase race.

He was secretary to the Duke of Windsor for seven years.

ASTRONOMER DIES

PASADENA, Calif., Feb. 22 (AP)—Dr. George Hale, 69, world renowned astronomer, died yesterday. He had been ill a year.

Rampaging White River Floods Area Around Newport, Ark.

Thousands of residents have been forced to move to high ground as a result of breaks in the Stephen-Kael levee on the White river near Newport, Ark. NEA's photographer flew over the flooded district to make these vivid shots of the high water. Picture above shows one of seven breaks in the levee about three miles south of Newport, flooding over 40 square miles while that below is also an airview showing water flowing over the top about 12 miles south of Newport.

Chamberlain's New Policy Under Fire

LONDON, Feb. 22 (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain's policy of making friends with Europe's dictators today became a target for assault by the opposition labor party which demanded in the house of commons a vote of censure against the government.

Arthur Greenwood, vice chairman of the labor party, declared that with Anthony Eden out of office as foreign secretary "the fate of the world rests in the trembling hands of the prime minister."

Later Chamberlain told the stormy session that the League of Nations as a protection against aggression was "a delusion" and demanded that Geneva throw off its "shams and pretenses."

FRENCH PLAN HUGE DEFENSE FUND

PARIS, Feb. 22 (AP)—The French cabinet in the face of grave international problems resulting from Britain's crisis and changes in central Europe, approved today a plan for an independent national defense fund reported to total $329,000,000. The government asked parliament to give it urgent consideration.

Senate Refuses to Increase Relief

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 22 (AP)—The senate rejected today an amendment to increase the emergency relief appropriation from 250 million to 400 million dollars.

HUNGARI NAZI HAUNTS RAIDED

73 Alleged Leaders Are Arrested

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Feb. 22

(AP)—Secret nazi headquarters and meeting places were closed today by police making what was believed to be the first of a series of raids to suppress Hungarian nazis. Authorities disclosed that 73 alleged nazi leaders were arrested. They were accused of operating secretly under false names after an interior ministry decree prohibited nazi activity last fall.

BAUGH SIGNS WITH CARDS

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 22 (AP)—Branch Rickey announced today that Sammy Baugh of football fame had signed a St. Louis Cardinal baseball contract.

Thousands Fight to Save Levees at Pine Bluff

PINE BLUFF, Ark., Feb. 22 (AP)—Two thousand workers fought today to save the levees around Pine Bluff from the flood waters of the Arkansas river. Renewed rainfall increased the apprehension.

The principal danger point was a bend in the river north of the city where a crevasse in the levee threatened inundation of the railroad shops.

The Red Cross was feeding 1,500 families.

Freeze Feared to Have Damaged Fruit

Temperatures that fell to 25 degrees here early today following yesterday's snow, was feared to have done much damage to the budding fruit crop. Earlier periods of cold, accompanied by rain and snow were not believed to have had serious influence on the blooms.

Warmer weather was promised in weather forecasts for today and tomorrow.

RETURNS TO TULSA

Mrs. B. E. Allison who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. R. L. Ponsler, and Mr. Ponsler for several weeks left this afternoon for her home in Tulsa, Okla.

JAYCEES NEED 50 CARS FOR BAND ON TOUR

Goodwill Route Begins at 12:45 Wednesday Afternoon

Needed: Fifty cars.

The Cisco junior chamber of commerce today was making this appeal to business men and to citizens generally in preparation for the goodwill tour tomorrow which will advertise the Eastland County Livestock show throughout Eastland county and a portion of Callahan county under the sponsorship of the organization.

The cars are needed to convey the high school band which will be featured on the tour, playing numbers at each of the stops.

Announcement of the show here, invitations to the residents of the communities to attend the distribution of circulars advertising it will take place at each stop, while Ciscoans mingle with the citizens of the communities visited to promote goodwill and advertise the show by personal contact.

The tour will start from the high school building at 12:45 tomorrow afternoon, according to the itinerary announced by A. D. Starling, chairman of the committee in charge. O. L. Stamey and Edward Lee are the other members of this committee.

The route will be in this order: From Cisco to Eastland, Morton Valley, Ranger, Desdemona, Gorman, Carbon, Rising Star, Romney, Nimrod, Scranton, Dothan, Putnam, Moran and back to Cisco.

Only Son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Angus Succumbs

Alex M. Angus, 40, only son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Angus of Cisco, died Monday afternoon about 4:30 at his home, 5223 Mission street, Dallas, Texas after several weeks illness.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Angus, who had been at his bedside had just returned to Cisco yesterday when they received a message announcing their son's death. They went back to Dallas immediately, accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. Roy Gallagher of Austin, who was visiting in Cisco at the time. Another daughter, Mrs. L. C. Hall, at Eastland also accompanied them.

Mr. Angus is survived by his wife and one daughter, Peggy Eileen; his parents and three sisters, Mrs. Gallagher, Mrs. Hail and Mrs. Lee Galley of Ranger.

Burial will be in Dallas today. Mr. Angus had been employed by the Magnolia Petroleum company since boyhood, beginning as an office boy. He served two years spending ten months of that time in the army during the World war, in France.

Army Flying Recruit Guest of Father

Bill Bookman, of Randolph Field, son of L. F. Bookman is a guest of his father, for two or three weeks while on furlough from the service. In training for a flier, young Bookman has accompanied army planes on numerous flight maneuvers, going to Florida, California and other points where these maneuvers have been conducted.

Mr. Bookman is the representative of the Mergenthaler Linotype company in west Texas and New Mexico.

POST OFFICE CLOSED

The Cisco post office was closed today, in observance of the anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

Washington Gave Up Life He Loved to Lead Country

The following quotation from a letter of George Washington to his friend, the Marquis de Lafayette, reveals the simplicity of the desires of the Father of His Country, whose birthday anniversary we celebrate today. Retired from a life strenuous with service to his country, he sought only the enjoyment of that peace and domesticity in the freedom for which he fought. He was not destined long to enjoy it, for the government which he had helped create in the Revolution, fell into troubled dissension and he was summoned to lead it into stronger union as a democracy knit by his wisdom and his popularity into an enduring nation of states.

One can well understand, by reading the excerpt below, what a sacrifice in personal wishes and inclinations, that Washington made for his people:

"At length, my dear Marquis, I am become a private citizen on the banks of the Potomac; and under the shadow of my own vine and my own fig-tree, free from the bustle of a camp, and the busy scenes of public life, I am solacing myself with those tranquil enjoyments, of which the soldier, who is ever in pursuit of fame, the statesman, whose watchful days and sleepless nights are spent in devising schemes to promote the welfare of his own, perhaps the ruin of other countries, as if this globe was insufficient for us all, and the courtier, who is always watching the countenance of his prince, in hopes of catching a gracious smile, can have very little conception. I have not only retired from all public employments, but I am retiring within myself, and shall be able to view the solitary walk, and tread the paths of private life, with a heartfelt satisfaction. Envious of none, I am determined to be pleased with all; and this, my dear friend, being the order of my march, I will move gently down the stream of life, until I sleep with my fathers."

—Washington to the Marquis de Lafayette, February 1, 1784.

Calvert Files for Attorney General

AUSTIN, Feb. 22 (AP)—Robert Calvert of Hillsboro today formally filed his candidacy for attorney general with Sec't Vann Kennedy of the state democratic executive committee.

Calvert, speaker of the house of representatives, was the second to file for the office, the first being Lewis Goodrich of Shamrock.

Airplane-Shaped School Is Planned

METHLEY, England, Feb. 22 (AP)—A school shaped like an airplane is to be built in this mining village.

Glass-walled classrooms will be located in the "wings" and covered playgrounds in the "wing-tips." An assembly hall with stage and cinema will occupy the "fuselage" while the "tail" will be divided between a gymnasium, the art room and a library.

The "pilot's cockpit," offering a view over the main grounds and the best position from which to control the "plane," will contain the headmaster's room.

The school will cost about $80,000—no more, it is said, than a conventionally-designed one of the same size—and will accommodate 240 pupils.

The idea is to provide something bright and stimulating for the children.

GOVERNOR OF DISTRICT TO ATTEND MEET

Meeting to Be Held at 7:30 on Laguna Roof

Cisco Lions will be hosts Thursday evening, 7:30, at the Laguna roof garden to Lions of the Oil Belt group which includes Cisco, Ranger, Eastland, Breckenridge and Graham, when District Governor Tom Gillis, of Fort Worth and Deputy Dist. Governor Dr. Harry Logsdon, of Ranger, will be guests on the program. A local entertaining group will appear also.

These group meetings are held quarterly and the Lion goat, Nannette, is awarded the town which has the least percentage of attendance at the affair. A dinner is served members and guests. No ladies other than guests attend. About 100 usually attend and Cisco expects a full quota, since the local club has a reputation of unusually good programs.

E. L. Smith will be toastmaster for the group program. Lions A. G. Tuttle and R. E. Grantham compose the program committee together with Lion Smith. Horace Condeley, chairman of the Oil Belt group, will preside during the business session following the program.

In addition to the address of Dist. Governor Tom Gillis and remarks by Dr. Logsdon, there will be music by Mrs. Judia's string orchestra, accordion duet by Mesdames Ben Krauskopf and Troy Powell, solo by Mrs. H. V. House, cornet duet by John James Haynie and Glenn Tableman, and male quartet.

To Decide on Soft Ball Park
It was decided at last week's meeting of the local club to hold a business meeting at the regular Wednesday hour of this week in order to finish consideration of the question of sponsoring the soft ball field improvements and games for the summer season. Final vote was deferred last week so that due consideration could be given the proposal. About $800 is necessary to place the field fencing and lighting in tip top condition for games it was explained last week.

Teruel Evacuated by Spanish Gov't

BARCELONA, Spain, Feb. 22 (AP)—The Spanish government announced today that its troops had evacuated Teruel, strategic Aragon capital, 160 miles east of Madrid. The communique said that the retreat was orderly and that all equipment had been removed from the city.

The government captured Teruel on December 21 and the insurgents since have been trying to regain it.

Abilene Group to Be Here Today

A group of Abilene business men, most of them members of the Abilene Rotary club, was scheduled to arrive in Cisco this afternoon at 3:45 to advertise on a goodwill tour the West Texas Fair at Abilene.

Cisco Rotarians were prepared to greet the visitors in a body.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Shaw and son, Robert, have returned to their home in Fort Worth after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Spencer.

Weather

East Texas: Fair, not so cold in the northwest tonight. Wednesday partly cloudy and warmer.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

I will both lay me down in peace and sleep. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures.—Ps. 4:8: 23: 2.

Goodnight now cometh gentle sleep. And tears that fall like gentle rain. "Goodnight, O, holy, blest, and deep, The rest that follows pain. How should we reach God's upper light If life's long day had no goodnight."

He maketh me to lie down for rest and peace. And we all need the time of quietness before God. It was divine wisdom that said, "Come ye apart into a desert place and rest awhile."—Sara A. Hubbard

Insuring Attractiveness Means Action First

ATTRACTIVENESS is a practical asset of any community. It has a value in dollars and cents, because it appeals to a human instinct for the gratification of which people will pay money. Consequently it is good business from every standpoint to insure attractiveness.

UNFORTUNATELY, it is too often obtained at unnecessary cost. The reason is that we do not act in keeping with our foresight but simply let matters take a course until the presence of unsightliness compels action to remove it. Thus more cost and difficulty are involved, which, if previous action had been taken, would not have been necessary.

THE new route of Highway No. One through Cisco can be made an inviting introduction to the community. Certain regulations, both as to quality and appearance, will prevent the marring of this route with unsightly building. The aesthetic value of such regulations alone make them desirable. The practical value in the improvement of real estate standards and the invitation to better building there makes them worth while.

Competition for "Thunder"

THE competition for "political thunder" is growing in spiritedness at Austin. Allred has moved to block Att'y Gen. McCraw out of possible credit for any favorable decision in Texas' defense of its right to submerged oil lands on the Gulf coast. McCraw has gone to the national capital by airplane to appear before the judiciary committee of the house of representatives in opposition to a senate joint resolution which would direct the attorney general of the United States to seek title for the federal government to all lands within the three-mile limit on coastlines. If McCraw should succeed in having Texas' right to the submerged lands along its coast recognized it would strengthen his campaign for governor considerably. But he won't be able to claim such credit alone, if the astute Allred can help it. Allred has gone to Washington to appear himself before the committee. In doing so he has cast reflection upon the ability of the Texas attorney general to successfully prosecute the state's plea. If Texas' right is recognized by the federal powers that be, the governor can appropriate a goodly share of the credit. If it is not allowed, the attorney general will have to be the goat.

New York State Senator Edward Coughlin introduces a bill making it "disorderly conduct" for a woman to stand at a bar. How about under the table, senator?

Now taxpayers know what happens to those hot letters they write to the lawmakers. A waste-basket caught fire in a house committee room the other day.

For Love of Polly

CAST OF CHARACTERS POLLY CHELSEY, heroine; stranded in London when war breaks out. JERRY WHITEFIELD, hero; the Yankee who sees her through. CABELL BANKS, privateer captain.

CHAPTER XVIII

AFTER they had walked a little way, reveling in the feel of hard ground under their feet, they thought of food. Jerry said, "I think we're half starved, that's what we are. Let's find an inn."

"Not in this quarter, you fool. Too many Sunrises about. We must get away from the waterfront and buy civilian clothes before we eat a mouthful."

This they did. Later, as two civilians, they sat at a tavern table and tried to satisfy their half-starved bodies without making themselves ill.

When the meal had been eaten Jerry spoke. "Now I must go back to London, cross-country, and see about Polly."

"See here!" exclaimed Cabell. "It's a piece of madness. You'll be picked up again. There'll be a reward offered for us tomorrow, and London's where they'll post it first. If you're caught, it will mean Dartmoor or the hulks."

"I'm going up to London," Jerry said. "Wait for me if you like."

Could I trouble you to put your mind on it now?" "Yes," said Jerry, coming back to earth. "Well, there's a place between here and Deal known as Clitte's cove. Jean Clitte puts in there after he's stopped at Corly, further south. Clitte's cove is where we must go. . . . How are your feet?"

They agreed to set out at once, on foot. Somewhere in the neighborhood of the cove they would wait for the smuggler to come in. They might take lodgings at a farmhouse, or, if this seemed incautious, they would hide out in a wooded ravine. Cabell invested in a pair of pistols for them and in knives of a serviceable sort. Thus equipped and with money in their pockets they had no fear of starving.

They turned their faces southward on the King's Highway where the road roughly followed the sea. A signpost pointed the way to Deal; the road stretched levelly before them. The necessity of walking all evening and most of the night did not disturb them. They were intoxicated with their new-found freedom. After the long dark hours in a ship's hold it was rather like heaven to them to see the sky overhead and to feel the wind in their faces.

They continued to be of that mind even after they grew tired. They had brought food with them, and now and then they would crawl onto a stack of hay for rest and refreshment.

Yet the night had its drawbacks. Once they were stared at suspiciously by a farmer in a cart, and questioned. And once they passed a hanged man dangling from a gallows, left there as a horrible warning to "All that pick pockets and live thereby."

Often the deep ruts and loose rocks sent them sprawling in the road, tearing their clothes and scratching their shins. But the going became even harder after they had to leave the highway. When the road turned inland they kept to the shore, for the cove they sought must be recognized by its relation to the sea.

They came upon it unexpectedly, recessed in a curve of the shore line. Jerry would have known it from the description he had had of it, but tonight there were surer signs to mark it. An ugly two-masted lugger lay off shore, and in the ravine, lanterns bobbed in the darkness.

"God in Heaven!" said Jerry reverently. "Can there be luck like this for us?" "It seems improbable," Cabell replied. "And yet. . . . And yet there was a dory being lowered away from the lugger and making silently for the cove. Six men oared it. . . .

"Come on," Jerry said. "It's Clitte or some of his men. We'll meet them on the beach."

With this method of approach Cabell Banks disagreed. He argued, for all the world like a professor in a classroom, "If we hallo from up here and explain our presence, it will be safer. Out of range, you might say. They're apt to take us for customs agents if we walk into them."

Jerry saw the reason in this. He curbed his impatience and waited for the boat to beach. Then, cupping his hands around his mouth he called down, clearly but not loudly:

"Does Jean Clitte go there?" There was a silence, broken only by the swish of the waves. Then a voice from below, rough and rasping: "Who asks?"

"Jerry Whitefield. If Clitte's there he'll remember me. We talked in London."

"Clitte's not been in Lon'on!" "McGeen then? John McGeen was in London!"

A laugh below. "All right. Come ere and lend a hand. We aim to sail before day cracks."

Jerry and Cabell (and it was now Jerry who led) made their way through slipping shale and stone to the beach below. As they came onto the sand McGeen held up a lantern and stared into their faces. To Jerry, whom he recognized, he said: "You said there'd be a woman with you. Who's this?"

"My plans were changed for me. This man's my friend. He's all right. You promised passage for two. You'll be paid for two."

McGeen nodded abrupt assent and lowered his lantern. "Fall to!" During the hour that followed they helped the smugglers land French brandy from the boat onto the shore and carry it to an abandoned thatched-roofed cove in the ravine where it was received and checked by men whose dark outlines only could be distinguished. And from this hut they helped carry bales of what appeared to be English woollens and loaded them into the returning boat.

Several trips were made between lugger and shore. When Jerry and Cabell went out to the ship and boarded, at the last trip, they saw Clitte coming from the cabin and locking it carefully.

"The rascal doesn't trust us," Cabell said.

"Nor I him," Jerry answered. (To Be Continued)

Prepayment Coupons Boost Collections

REGINA, Sask., Feb. 22 (AP) — Tax prepayment coupons, used by Regina's civic government, are described by tax officials as an efficient and popular collection scheme.

"People are beginning to realize the advantage of including their tax payments in their monthly budgets," says L. G. Geernaert, tax collector. "Making provision each month for a part of the year's taxes is a much easier way of meeting them than waiting to the end of the year."

As another collection aid, a Regina official personally interviews owners of all business blocks and rented buildings upon which taxes are in arrears.

Tests by the National Physical Laboratory of Great Britain have shown that a short length of rubber hose inserted in water systems will shut out furnace-stoking and water circulation noises.

McCraw to Defend Texas Right to Public Domain

AUSTIN, Feb. 22—Texas, in the person of Attorney General William McCraw, will defend its century-old right to its public domain, particularly its submerged coastal oil lands, Wednesday in Washington before the judiciary committee of the national house of representatives.

McCraw left Tuesday by air plane for the nation's capital, to appear before the committee in protest against passage of Senate Joint Resolution 208, whose enactment would direct the United States attorney general to assert and acquire title for the federal government to all lands within the three-mile limit on coastlines. The resolution, by Sen. Gerald Nye of North Dakota, already has passed the higher branch of Congress and is scheduled for hearing Wednesday before the lower house's judiciary committee.

McCraw already has prepared his brief to be presented before the committee in protest against the Nye resolution. At least two other states, Louisiana and Massachusetts, will join Texas in opposing the measure, McCraw said.

A Million Acres By its passage, some million or more acres of submerged lands along the Gulf coast potentially worth hundreds of millions of dollars in oil revenue, would be lost to the Lone Star state, which has retained the right of its public domain since it became a republic more than 100 years ago.

As a matter of fact, McCraw said, he will base the Texas opposition to passage of the resolution, mainly on the fact that Texas specifically retained title to all of its public lands even when it became a member of the Union.

Because of this century-old ownership, Texas has even stronger claim to her submerged coastal lands than have other states which border on the coast, although it is the Texas attorney general's department's claim, that all such states have the ownership of their coastal waters within the three-mile limit.

"Texas is the immediate successor, in right and in title in such lands, to the unique and memorable Republic of Texas, the status of which as a free and independent nation received world-wide recognition," McCraw said.

Failed to Accept Title "She alone, as I understand, may rest her claims to such lands and the minerals therein or thereunder upon an independent national sovereignty ante-dating her admission to the union."

In fact, he pointed out, the United States government failed to accept title to the coastal properties and others now valued at millions of dollars at the time of Texas admission to the union in 1845.

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE

Nature has her surprises for us too. We may think we have them in Texas sometimes. But I was not as much surprised the other morning arising to see the ground getting white when I had confidently expected a rain as I was several years ago in western Nebraska when I got up on New Year's morning to see the ground sort of white as if from new fallen snow, only to find it fairly covered with water instead. Drifts of snow had been on for two or three weeks, and this unexpected turn of affairs, right in the middle of the night when one would expect the thermometer to be going down, was a result of one of those peculiar winds that sometimes occur in the regions near the mountains. A warm chinook wind had moved down from the mountainous altitudes to the west, gaining heat from the friction of increasing pressure as it reached lower and lower altitudes, until it had produced a midwinter temperature above freezing.

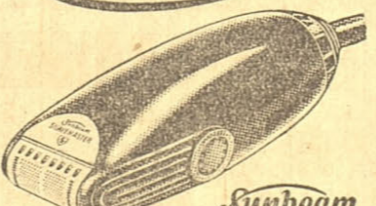

I suppose our recent snow took several of the early seasonal plans by eye-blinking surprise. Ground where I knew that peas and potatoes and turnips lay just in the act of starting to grow did not look promising of early garden. Chicks that must be just about ready to peep in the shell will find it risky to peep out of the shell. Pink peach blossoms look attractive but not hopeful against a pure white background. I suppose some of our winter residents among the birds that were laying plans for packing up to go north will decide to camp awhile in their partly disarranged winter quarters before starting the trip. Anyway it is better for the sudden dash of winter to come now at the beginning of spring anticipations than to swoop down upon us with the budding and blossoming season in full swing.

Purchases of Gas Ranges Set Record

Keeping abreast of the gas industry of the nation, the Abilene division of Community Natural Gas company reports more modern gas ranges purchased for kitchen modernization during 1937 in this section than for any previous year.

The industry throughout the nation reports the greatest annual purchase of ranges for domestic use since 1929, the peak year. In 1937 housewives bought 1,600,000 gas ranges, a gain of 10 per cent over 1936. The local gas company reports an even greater increase.

Further growth of popularity of gas ranges is indicated by additional national business statistics just released to M. L. Bird, division superintendent of Community Natural Gas company. In 1937 alone the sale of gas ranges was greater than the next nearest industry had in total domestic use.

Gas water heater national sales also increased 20 per cent in 1937 over 1936 with Community Natural Gas company reporting a 40 per cent increase in its territory.

Also shown by 1937 national statistics is the fact that back of each gas industry worker stands an average investment of $37,000 for rendering gas service. This is more than either the steel, railroad or automotive industry has invested per worker.

The survey shows that the national gas industry has a greater capital investment than the steel industry, one of the most basic of the great national industries. Wages paid by the gas industry are higher than those paid by the steel or automotive industries.

While the average gas industry employe worked 48 hours per week in 1929, the big year, 1936 salaries were slightly higher, even though the average employe worked only 40 hours per week, an important contribution by the gas industry to improved living conditions, Bird said.

Goat Gives Birth to Quadruplets

RANGER, Feb. 22 (Sp.)—Ben Rigby, who lives on Eastland highway three miles south of Ranger, is the owner of a Toggenberg milk goat that gave birth to four kids last Thursday morning and all are normal and active.

Rigby states that the goats were carried to the barn in a bushel basket and the mother goat followed and has been looking after the young in a manner that shows almost human intelligence. One of the kids is a bit smaller than the other three and the mother goat allows the small one to feed first.

This is very unusual, according to goat men of Ranger. Rigby says he has owned the nanny for three years. Last year and the year before she gave birth to two kids at foaling time but this is the first time in his experience to see four goats born at one time. Two of the kids are males and two females.

County Tax Receipts Show $44,000 Gain

C. H. O'Brien, county assessor and collector, reported Saturday that net tax collections in January this year were $44,163.34 over receipts the same time in 1937.

O'Brien stated that net collections on current and delinquent property taxes and poll taxes this year in January amounted to $236,740.84. Last year during January net collections were $192,587.50.

Approximately $20,000 of January collections this year were on intangible valuations. In 1937 litigation held up collection from intangible valuations.

Taxes for 1937 do not become delinquent until July 1 when eight per cent penalty is added and interest at the rate of six per cent per annum will begin to accrue.

It's Odd But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 22—Instead of shearing sheep, Russian scientists give them a dose of medicine that makes them moult.

The Russians do not think this discovery will take the place of shearing. But they predict a cunning way to outwit nature.

This concerns the sheep with "mixed" wools. These have coarse and fine hairs mixed. The mixed wool varieties are not rated high.

The new wool medicine, thallium, will select the hairs wanted. It will make the fine hairs moult, while the coarse stick to the sheep. After the fine hair is out, the sheep still has the coarse stuff as a fairly valuable by-product.

The selection is due to a difference in roots of sheep's wool. Thallium weakens the roots so that hair falls out. But it takes less thallium to weaken a fine hair root than a coarse one.

The discovery is reported in Nature by N. A. Iljin, of the Wool Laboratory, Moscow. There is a drawback. Thallium sometimes makes the sheep sick. Thallium has been tried in the United States for making hair grow on partly bald heads. Its value is supposed to lie in its control over the nerves which monitor hair roots.

Too Much Business for "Worrying Rock"

HAPEVILLE, Ga., Feb. 22 (AP) It didn't take Bill Ward long on the municipal "worrying rock" to find out it doesn't pay to worry about other people's troubles.

The community erected the rock on the public square to help humanity unburden its cares. Ward took over the job as official worrier and lasted two days sitting out the worries of the public.

"It was all going out and nothing coming in," he said as he threw up the job with a gesture of futility. "Lots of people wanted me to worry for them that did not do my own worries any good."

Gov. E. D. Rivers assisted in dedicating the "worrying rock," which Courtland Gilbert, a newspaper editor, suggested to give "disappointed lovers, politicians and others a place to mope without bothering other people." Thousands have used the rock, visitors from many states stopping to sit on it and erase a worry or so.

very dark, still they saw nothing that looked like Savoy.

"I believe we must be mighty close, now," said John. His companion remarked that the train seemed to have slowed up about as much as they could expect.

With that the cattleman dropped his big, fat telescope grip to the ground and a second later swung off himself and was swallowed up in the darkness. In another second the conductor came to the platform and tapped Forgy's cowboy companion on the shoulder.

"Did he get off at Savoy?" asked the conductor.

"He got off just this second," replied the cowboy.

"Great Caesar's ghost," shouted the conductor. "He's a dead man. We are past Savoy five miles and running 50 miles an hour."

He yanked the signal rope and the train came to a reluctant stop, and at a further signal backed slowly up the track, with the conductor, a brakeman, a porter and the cowboy anxiously scanning the right of way to locate, they thought, the dead body of John Forgy.

But Forgy wasn't dead. A mile back they found him sitting on his grip digging snow out of his ears and coughing up balls of it. A trail in the snow 100 feet long showed where the stockman had hit the ground. His grip had rolled almost as far.

But Forgy wasn't hurt. He threatened to lick the conductor, called down maledictions upon everyone connected with the railroad and demanded his $5 back. And he got it. Then he sped the train upon its way with another curse and walked backed to Savoy and his ranch lugging his grip with him.

A survey made at Oxford university showed that although only 10 per cent of the students elect music, this 10 per cent wins 75 per cent of all prizes and scholarships.

Liberia was founded in 1822 by Negro freedmen from the United States.

"neither snow, nor rain, nor heat, nor night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds"

WHILE stormy weather and its ravages are beyond the control of man, this may serve as a timely reminder of the continual battle waged to provide you with uninterrupted Electric Service—our ideal. On many a stormy night, as you enjoy the cozy warmth of your home with cheerful lights and radio, our linemen are working desperately midst frigid blasts because...

the service must go on

OCCASIONALLY, of course, the elements win... linemen lose. Whether a "blue norther" or an old-fashioned blizzard, the West Texas wind can be ruthless in its destructive force. But so infrequent are these occasions, and so quickly in most cases is service restored, that we feel justified in calling to your attention how nearly we do approach our ideal of uninterrupted Electric Service.

Long Distance calls go through while you "hold the line" because telephone management said...

"OUR JOB IS TO MAKE SERVICE FASTER"

THE men who head the telephone company have always believed even good service can be better. Their aim, like that of every other telephone worker, has been better and better service at low cost to the user. One result is that today you can call distant cities as quickly, as easily, as you telephone across the street.

A few years ago it took seven minutes (average) to make a long distance connection. Today, the average time is 96 seconds! Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.
