COUNTY RELIEF CHANGES ANNOUNCED

About Our Friends

By STEP A. LONG

Off to Mexico City tomorrow... This column will naturally be suspended during the week that Step A. Long will be mingling with the other thousands of Lions from the nations that they have embraced Lionism and who will be making this pilgrimage to see what the sister republic on the south of the U. S. A., has to offer in the way of entertainment, and to view the remains of the ancient Mayan, Toltec and Aztec civilizations.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Smith will be along to take care of us... Lee can do some Mexican lingo and he will be able to tell us whether the people are friendly to us or are trying to put over their disapproval of something we may have done amiss... As for ourselves, we will be compelled to resort to the sign language for our needs... but then our eyes will be busy despite the great handicap of a newspaper man who will not be able to ask his questions... now we believe in questions... no use to wonder about something when a few well directed questions will yield the information... But doubtless we'll get along somehow... we can ask Lee... if he is really able to find out anything.

We may run out of money... We ask all our friends to be on the lookout for a C. O. D. wire asking for a little loan with which to get us home... If a war breaks out, Lee will act as our army and Mrs. Smith will make a lovely red cross nurse... We're taking our "Cisco Texas" hat band along so that we may be identified if lost... When the thing is over, we promise that they will know that there is a big dam and a swimming pool and other natural resources in Cisco, Texas.

JURY AWARDS MARBLE BOARD TO 3 OWNERS

A justice court jury of six men Thursday afternoon, without ruling on whether it was a gambling device, awarded possession of a marble machine allegedly seized by Police Chief M. L. Perdue to plaintiffs in the latest development of the marble machine fight here.

Notice of appeal was filed immediately, and City Attorney R. E. Grantham, representing Perdue, said that the chief would file a bond of $200 Friday and retain possession of the machine until such time as the case is tried in the county court.

The case was submitted to the jury in Justice Joe Wilson's court on five special issues, all of which the jury ignored, simply returning the verdict: "We jury decide to return the machine to owners."

The machine is owned by R. E. Waters, C. W. Lowery, and W. L. Moore, who were represented in the case by Will St. John.

Ethiopia Keyed For Courage Testing War

EQUIPMENT OF OLD KINGDOM IS OBSOLETE

PARIS, July 19 — Ancient Ethiopia faces a war that will test to the death the stubborn courage of its warriors in the fight to preserve their independence, it was increasingly apparent today.

As the expected opening day of the war with fascist Italy drew nearer, reports multiplied of the military unpreparedness of the kingdom.

United Press and other dispatches from Addis Ababa made it clear that the country was ready from the human standpoint for a fight and that its men and boys were prepared to give their lives but the dispatches showed with clarity the formidable nature of the war which confronts them.

Warriors, Not Soldiers Emperor Haile Selassie will be able to muster perhaps 500,000 men in all but they are warriors, not soldiers. They are undisciplined fighters of undoubted bravery but unsusceptible to the essential strict discipline of modern war with its requirements for clock-like movements of masses of men under fire.

There are not even rifles enough to go around.

The United Press Addis Ababa correspondent reported the regular army even now numbered hardly more than 15,000 and it was unlikely it could be increased more than 30,000 within the next few weeks.

Old men and boys, all civil service, everyone who can give battle are training in the streets everywhere over Ethiopia.

But of the perhaps 1,000,000 rifles available, not more than 250,000 are believed to be modern repeating rifles and many of the remainder are one shot rifles, some antiquated and needing many types of ammunition, a great disadvantage.

Mahan Suspect Is Sleepy Salesman

SAPULPA, Okla., July 19.—Sheriff Lew Wilder said today a man sought in Creek county on suspicion he might be William Mahan had turned out to be a sleepy auto accessory salesman.

The salesman, whose name was given as W. E. Wilson talked with officers when he reached his home in Okmulgee, this morning, the sheriff said, and all details of his trip through the county tallied with those recorded by a posse.

Officers in several counties were set to watching all roads today when an oil company employe saw a car in which he believed was Mahan parked by the road. The search was dropped when the salesman said he took a nap about that time.

Ripley Prepares to Astound Readers

Robert Ripley, above, has made thousands of drawings showing odd facts—"believe it or not." The famous cartoonist and collector of unusual data is offering free trips to Hollywood for winners of the contest sponsored in Cisco by the Daily News. Ripley is shown here at his drawing board, ready to work on a new believe-it-or-not.

Free Trip to Hollywood Offered In Ripley's Believe-It-Or-Not Contest

The three persons submitting the best provable "Believe It or Not" will visit Hollywood, and the San Diego World's Fair, escorted by Robert L. Ripley. Along the entire route to California and in Hollywood, these three privileged winners will be the guests of Ripley. They will share the fame and fortune of the Believe It or Not man on his fact-finding expedition to the movie center of the world.

You can win one of these grand prizes. You have never heard of a contest that offered such desirable rewards... and you've never heard of a contest that required less effort. All you have to do to compete for these awards is submit a "Believe It or Not" fact... some amazing, provable fact that you've encountered in reading, at your work, in your home life. "Believe It or Not" facts are everywhere. They are all around you... any one of them will put you in the running for those grand prizes in the National Ripley "Believe It or Not" contest.

There are no essays to write, no puzzles to solve. Just write a few words about an astonishing fact you know, give the proof, and you are in the running. For details and rules of the contest, as well as special prizes for local winners every day, watch the daily contest story.

The contest starts July 22 and ends midnight August 4. In addition to the chance at the big national prizes, the winner of each day's contest conducted by the Daily News will have his name and his "believe it or not" published.

Better get a move on and be ready to fire in a believe-it-or-not letter so that it will be ready for the first contest Monday.

Proration Units In Panhandle Feasible

AUSTIN, July 19 — Different sized proration units for three zones in the panhandle gas field were declared feasible at today's hearing of the state railroad commission to consider how natural gas from Texas 1,500,000 producing acres shall be taken.

Commissioner Chairman E. O. Thompson asked directly if there was any reason why the commission could not establish units of 160 acres in Wheeler county, 320 acres in a middle section, and four units in the western portion. Gordon Griffin, commission engineer, agreed there is a physical barrier that would make a practical dividing line in Gray county just west of the Wheeler county line. There is no such physical barrier to divide the proposed other two zones.

Securities Manager Takes Blame For Destroying Utilities Lobby Records

WASHINGTON, July 19.—U. E. Beach, securities manager of the vast Associated Gas and Electric company system, testified before the senate lobby committee today that on his own responsibility he ordered branch managers "all over the country to destroy" records relating to their campaign against the administration's holding company bill.

"I told my managers it was o.k. to get rid of their records because we were through working on the legislation," Beach said.

Beach's testimony came after the committee had heard from E. W. O'Brien, A. G. E. subsidiary employe who he and other witnesses conferred on testimony before it was presented in the committee. The committee is utility bill including its activities in 26 states in which it operates.

Beach denied that he was instructed by O. E. Wasser, comptroller of the company, to take action regarding the records.

EXTINGUISHER TO BE TESTED ON GAS LINES

Emphasizing the need for safety with the last departure from routine service, the Community Natural Gas company of this district this afternoon at Eastland will sponsor a test of a new fire extinguisher designed for use on high pressure gas lines.

The extinguisher is said to be the only one which will extinguish a gas line fire without the pressure being shut off and the service necessarily stopped. The Du Gas Dry Chemical extinguisher will be tested on low pressure and intermediate lines by the Technical Products company of Dallas.

The test is being made in connection with a safety meeting for the Lone Star system employes at Ranger tonight. At the meeting, which will be held at the Lone Star Gasoline company, a sound picture showing safety progress in automotive design and construction will be shown.

The motion picture and the fire test are a part of a safety educational campaign, according to A. W. Breeland of Dallas, safety director.

OFFICE HERE TO BE MOVED TO EASTLAND

Sweeping changes in the organization of the Eastland county relief administration were outlined by Administrator H. E. Driscoll at a meeting last night in Eastland of all relief officers.

The shakeup will call for the elimination of the Cisco, Ranger, Gorman, and Rising Star offices as the various branch offices are centralized and the entire relief administration handled out of offices at Eastland and Carbon.

Driscoll, in a telephone conversation with the Daily News today, said that he did not know definitely when the change would be made but that it would be "in the near future."

The Cisco, Ranger, and Eastland offices will be combined in Eastland to handle the relief work in the northern half of the county and will have charge of 955 relief cases in this section. The Rising Star and Gorman offices will be merged at Carbon and will have supervision of relief cases in the southern half of the county, totaling 400 in number.

The Eastland office will be under the management of J. W. Wilson, at present relief officer at Ranger, and the Carbon office will be managed by Wortham Seal, at present relief officer at Rising Star.

To Cut Overhead J. A. Wells has been appointed to assume today the duties of case work supervisor of the Eastland county relief board and W. E. Moore, present works supervisor, has been appointed as assistant case work supervisor.

Because of the centralized control so necessary for the new work program coming up, this merger has been made, Driscoll explained, and to greatly reduce the administrative and overhead expenses of the relief operations in Eastland county for both work relief and direct relief.

None of the present case workers, numbering 13, will be dismissed, Driscoll said, and in most cases they will be retained in their former relief territories.

Case load tabulations, as of April 4, 1935, showed 2,504 on relief, while at present the number is 1,355, Driscoll pointed out at the meeting. Four case workers were dismissed on July 11, while on July 12 three additional case workers were transferred to the rural rehabilitation department, and out of the supervision of the Texas relief administration.

Cotton Growers and Their Demands

An all-South cotton conference, sponsored by the New Orleans Association of Commerce, ended in a riot. There were hundreds of dirt farmers (or growers) who responded to the call. Well, the association of commerce named the chairman. He manhandled the dirt farmers and they resented it. A dirt farmer from Lake Providence, La., offered a resolution that the meeting officially endorse the federal cotton program. His resolution was quickly seconded by other farmers. Chairman Haspel declared the resolution out of order. He used the steam roller. He adjourned the convention until "the following morning." Commissioner of Agriculture J. E. McDonald was a delegate. He submitted his plan. He suggested a domestic price of 20 cents a pound for cotton, $1.50 for wheat and "comparable prices" on that portion of our major agricultural crops domestically consumed. McDonald declared that under the domestic allotment principles of the Dies bill, now before congress, "the price of that portion of our major agricultural crops domestically consumed would be held at such levels as would assure prosperity." The Texas farmer from Ellis county advised that all farms should be prorated under AAA regulations and that the prorate on each should be sold at the protected prices in this country with the balance sold abroad "at any price it would bring." He further declared that this principle is that upon which the manufacturing industry of the United States operates successfully. Under it, according to the Texas commissioner of agriculture, the domestic market pays protective prices and the surpluses go abroad at or near the cost of manufacture.

Picking time is here in the coast country and the valley. Ginning and marketing are on the way. There are thousands of prophets who are advising the farmers how to farm, how to make money and how to invade the foreign markets and sell their surpluses. Texas will produce a very large crop this season under the control system. Uncle Sams holds in storage millions of bales of cotton. He has loaned millions on the fleecy staple. Processing taxes are under fire everywhere the republic over. Cotton growers are interested in the final outcome. Wheat growers are interested. There is a court of last resort. It may "say the last word"—before picking time is over in West Texas.

William Green Appeals to Followers

William Green is the president of the American Federation of Labor. He has urged all unions affiliated with the federation "to be absolutely sure of their ground before prosecuting employers under the Wagner labor disputes act." His words of advice: "Great responsibility rests with labor and management alike to see that these new pages in the annals of our industries relations are not marred by a record of strife, bred by misunderstanding, misrepresentation or the deliberate flaunting of the law." Many of the leading industrialists of the country have

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NRA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON—Democratic leaders in Congress exert great power and are allowed to pick men for hundreds of federal jobs. If the voters boot them out of elective office, they can be sure of soft presidential appointments. But what a dog's life those old wheel-horses do lead!

Cast your eyes on Majority Leaders Joe Robinson and Pat Harrison in the Senate, then on Speaker Joe Byrns and Rules Chairman John J. O'Connor in the House. The two senators, their friends, and their beliefs are of the most conservative hue.

Byrns is of the same stripe. O'Connor is a son of Tammany Hall, whose game has always been to scatter crumbs to the poor while collecting from wealthy special interests.

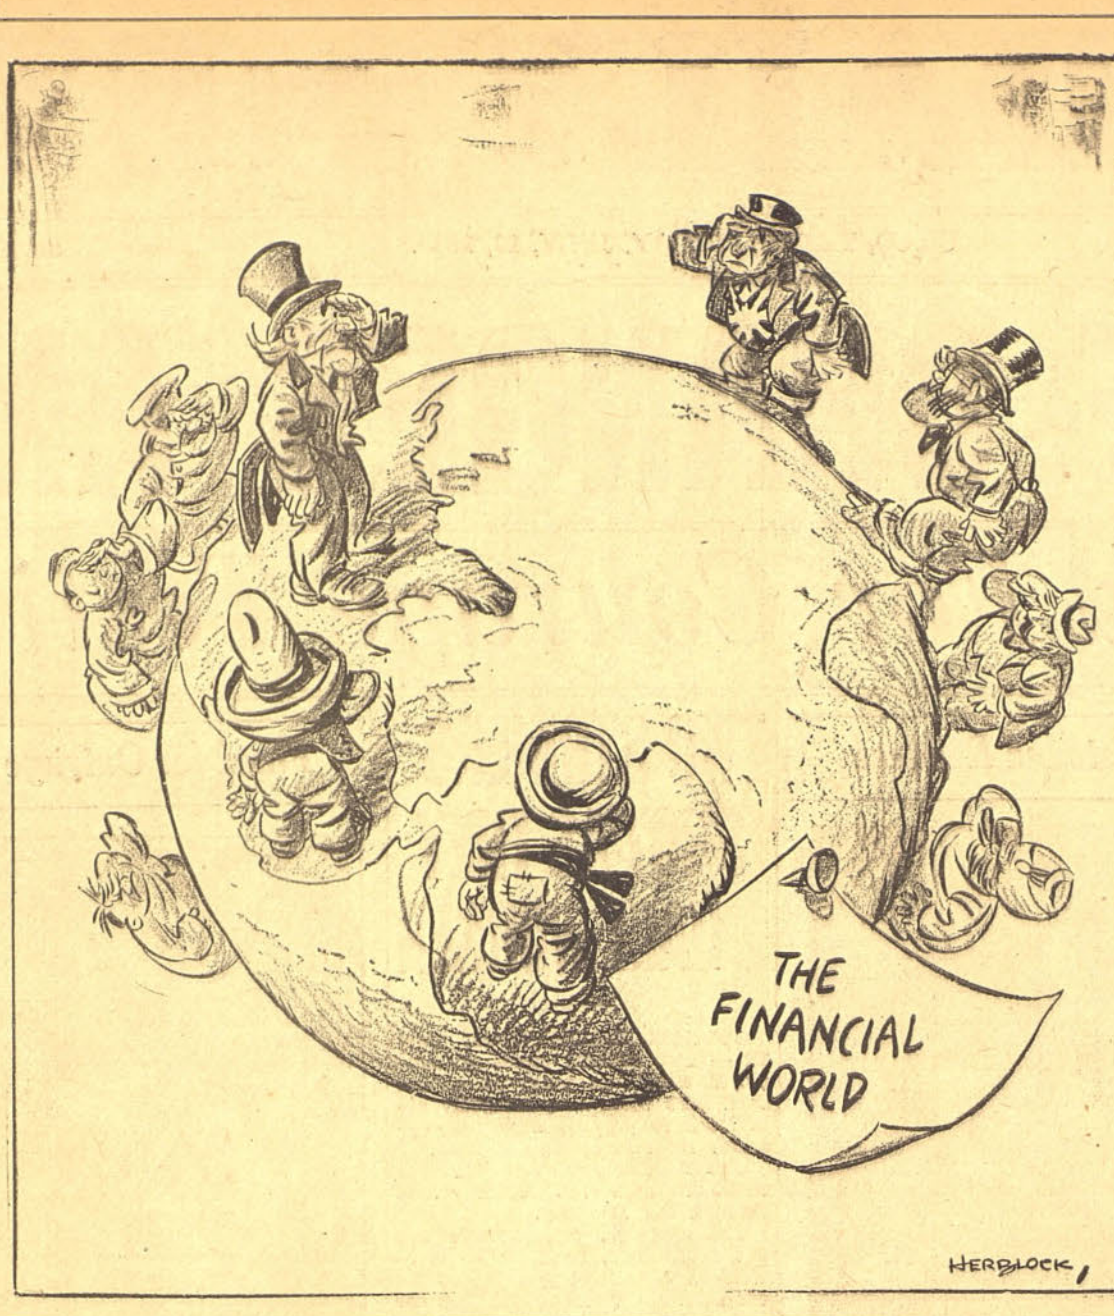

ROBINSON and Harrison have been especially faithful. True, Harrison let out of his Finance Committee the bill which had virtually killed NRA before the U. S. Supreme Court did the job—but only after Roosevelt himself had weakened on the issue.

And Robinson could hardly stomach the holding company bill, which was such anathema to his close friends and associates in the power business—but he left a pair for the bill when he left town.

In defending the administration, the two Southern leaders have incurred the hatred of Huey Long.

Now, badly worried by Huey's threats that he will go into Arkansas and Mississippi next year to defeat them for re-election, they are vitally dependent on administration support in their campaigns and could displace the president only at their political peril.

Stabilization Is Just Around The Corner declared for a thorough test of the Wagner act. They are pledged to carry their cause to the supreme court of the United States. Now the Wagner act guarantees labor's right to bargain collectively, makes any employer-attempt to interfere with employees' self organization an unfair practice, outlaws the company dominated union and gives the labor union representing a majority of the employees in a shop a right to speak for all the employees in that shop, "whether or not they are members of the union."

Company unions (the closed shop), are found in many of the industrial centers of America. Collective bargaining and the outlawry of company unions is a moss covered issue. It was threshed out in many nations in Europe and the British Isles and it remains as a burning issue today as of old in the United States. Strikes are costly and are out of place in a civilized nation. Walkouts are out of place in a civilized nation. Boycotts and boycotting have no place in a civilized nation but the "contest of the ages" continues a burning issue and the final appeal will be to the court of last resort.

Really, the millennial age has not been ushered in, and Peace on Earth and Goodwill to Men has ever been a dead letter since civilization began.

McCraw As Hot Oil Money Collector

Commissioner E. O. Thompson and his fellow commissioners are making it hot all along the line for violators of the oil conservation laws of state and nation. Attorney General McCraw is the last word as a collector of hot oil fines, and the beauty of his performance is that the fines assessed are placed to the credit of the general revenue fund. Conservation of petroleum and natural gas wealth is an accomplished fact under the skies of Texas. The slogan is "gather them in." And make life miserable for those who violate the conservation codes and regulations of the commonwealth and the property rights of the law-abiding who are engaged in the petroleum as well as the natural gas industry. Laws are made to be enforced. They should be enforced and the men who enforce them should be rewarded, yea, and honored by the people.

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, July 19 — The rural resettlement administration, just now taking shape, promises to be one of the biggest and certainly the most permanent of all the complex governmental activities now listed as rehabilitation, relief and recovery. The works progress program will take many people into short-time jobs but there is no assurance it will have money with which to carry on much over a year. The United States treasury is setting up a semi-permanent or permanent regional accounting and disbursing agency in Texas which probably will absorb functions now carried on disjointedly in various services and institutions.

Rep. Harvey O. Jones of Rummels, in accepting appointment as postmaster of his home city, Winters will have created a vacancy in the legislature to be filled at a special election Aug. 24, date of the constitutional amendment election.

There have been fewer than usual changes in the legislature this year. Sen. Hughston resigned, and his place was filled by election of Sen. Tebbel. Sen. Gordon Burns "moved up" and Rep. McKinney was named to his seat in the house.

corn on Texas prison farms, but Prison Manager Lee Simmons reported here that the rest of the cotton is in such fine condition that the total crop will run close to a normal year's. The overflowed cotton land was replanted in vegetables, grains and hay.

LEAF WORMS ARE INVADING TEXAS FIELDS

COLLEGE STATION, July 19—The leaf worm is invading Texas cotton fields ahead of usual schedule this year, according to R. R. Reppert, Extension entomologist at Texas A. and M. college.

Control measures have become necessary in most of the southern counties, he said. "Frequent showers for the past two weeks have been favorable to the pest's multiplication and spread, although the hot days have tended to hold it in check. Should cool weather with showers at the same time develop, damage from this pest will be extensive," Reppert added.

The leaf worm is easily controlled, according to the entomologist pointed out, recommending calcium arsenate as the best method.

He recommended the application of the chemical in dry form where dusting machinery is available and under ordinary conditions.

"Five pounds an acre applied in an event dust cloud should be sufficient except where there is an exceptionally large growth of cotton when ten pounds an acre should be used. It should be applied early in the morning while there is dew on the plants, although it is effective when applied in midday provided there is no wind."

SUN-TAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JO DARREN, finishing her first year in college, learns her father is out of work. Jo hunts a job and secures part time work in a marine supply store. There she meets wealthy, handsome DOUGLAS MARSH who offers her the job of hostess at his inn at Great Lake. Jo accepts and this causes a quarrel with BRET PAUL to whom she is engaged. Jo breaks the engagement.

She goes to Crest Lake, Marsh warns her that many people consider her mother eccentric. Jo sooner reaches her room than word comes from Mrs. Marsh that dinner is to be served in five minutes.

Now go on with the story CHAPTER XI
AS the Japanese boy padded softly down the hall after delivering his message from the imperious Mrs. Marsh, Jo stood bewildered, clutching her negligee about her. Five minutes! And Douglas Marsh had said she would have plenty of time for a shower and to dress for dinner. Evidently his mother was a woman of sudden decisions, or—his seemed more likely to Jo—she had decided to put Jo on the defensive by making her late to the very first dinner at Crest Lake.

"Well, late or not," Jo told herself, "I'm going to have my shower." And when she felt clean and refreshed and had rubbed her young body's whiteness to a pink glow she found that three minutes of the five were already consumed. Flipped at the thought of having to rush so insensibly, Jo went to the telephone and got Penton at the desk downstairs.

"Would you please tell Mrs. Marsh that I'm sorry, but it will be 10 or 15 minutes before I can be down?" "I certainly will, Miss Darlen." Something in Penton's voice told Jo that he knew what was up, and that he was definitely with her against Mrs. Marsh's little plot.

But Jo did get downstairs in less than 10 minutes, radiant and somehow not caring in the least what Mrs. Marsh thought. Penton greeted her with an approving smile.

"Mrs. Marsh and her son are in the dining room, Miss Darlen." She nodded pleasantly. "Thank you."

EXCEPT for the Marshes and a hovering waiter, the big dining room was deserted; and the Marshes had taken a table in one corner by one of the windows which overlooked the lake. As Jo crossed the room she was painfully conscious that the old lady was watching her every step of the way.

But Jo in her turn, hiding her analytical gaze behind a meaningless smile, examined Mrs. Marsh, too. She saw a thin, elderly woman in a black dress which was relieved only by a bit of white collar. Her mouth was thin, like her body, and it was tightly set as if it could open only with effort. The white hair was piled carefully and re-gally, and her pale blue eyes were suspicious and cold. Indeed, she was so unlike her son that Jo was for a moment taken aback. She thought suddenly that Douglas Marsh must be almost wholly like his father; and she thought, too, that old Aaron Marsh must have led a very hard life with such a woman. No wonder he bent all his efforts toward the gathering of money; and no wonder, as Douglas had hinted, he sometimes strayed a bit from the path of fidelity.

But Jo was relieved to note that even when his mother was present there was no change in Marsh's attitude toward her. He arose quickly and went forward to meet her. "I'm sorry you were rushed. It was my fault entirely. I didn't know Mother had planned dinner so early."

Jo smiled. "I must apologize for being late." "Mother," Marsh said, leading Jo to the table, "I want to present Jo Darlen."

much fear about that, have we Mother?" "Perhaps not," said Mrs. Marsh. "I always reserve my opinions about people until I've known them some time. You don't mind that, I hope, Miss Darlen?"

"Not in the least," said Jo sweetly. "I'm inclined to do the same thing myself."

At this point, perhaps fearful of where the conversation between Jo and his mother might lead, Marsh launched into a rather extended narrative which was entertaining but pointless. Jo could not help smiling to herself when she saw how neatly he had drawn the old lady away from her quarry, for in a few moments Mrs. Marsh was wholly absorbed in her son's reminiscences, allowing Jo to listen and eat her dinner in peace.

Obviously Mrs. Marsh was exorbitantly concerned with her only son's past and future. Realizing this, Jo forgave her much of her animosity. She would be as suspicious of any strange young woman in whom Douglas had shown so much interest. After all, Douglas Marsh was all the old lady had now. Compared with him, her money meant nothing, and the memory of his father might be only a bitter memory. While Douglas ran on pleasantly, Jo watched Mrs. Marsh—and pitied her. But her pity did not blind her to the fact that the old lady could make it very unpleasant for her at Crest Lake, and that probably she would miss no opportunity to do so.

They had received their coffee in fragile demitasses when Douglas at last finished his yarn; it had been an amusing incident of a summer when he had his yacht anchored off Tahiti. And no sooner had he finished than Mrs. Marsh began.

"Douglas, you hadn't told me I could invite anyone to Crest Lake, but—"

"Why, that's certainly understood, Mother," he objected. "Understood or not, I invited the Montgomerys. They should be here tomorrow."

He nodded. "Oh, yes. . . . Remember, Jo, we saw Babs Montgomery at the Olympic Bowl?" "Jo's mouth opened slightly. "Oh. . . . those Montgomerys?" She hadn't meant to say it, and at the words Mrs. Marsh looked at her oddly. In a surprised tone she asked Jo if she knew the family.

"I only know the daughter," Jo explained. "She was a sorority sister of mine at school."

"Oh," said the old lady, as if that explained a great deal. "She's an attractive and charming girl—and her family are of the best." She turned to her son. "I thought it would be good for you to have the girl here, Douglas. Someone of your own age and of your own—"

"Yes, I'm sure it will," Marsh interrupted hastily. He offered Jo a cigaret. "Would you like to smoke on the veranda?"

"Please go ahead," said Mrs. Marsh. "I can't stand to be near cigaret smoke even in the open air, I'm going up to my room, anyway."

Outside, in the shadows of the veranda, Marsh said, "You handled her beautifully, Jo. You know, you become more remarkable to me with every minute."

"You'd better reserve your opinions about me, like your mother," Jo advised.

Douglas laughed. "We haven't"

Last of 4 Churches Finally Abandoned

NAPOLI CORNERS, N. Y., July 19.—Forty years ago this village boasted a church on each of its four corners, one Methodist, one Baptist, one Congregational and one Wesleyan.

The Baptist and Wesleyan churches surrendered to decay and a dwindling population. The Methodist and Congregational churches merged 12 years ago.

Now the Methodist church, unoccupied since the merger, has been sold to a poulturer and is used to house white leghorn chickens.

Business Men Praise Cover Page Of Daily News Greater Cisco Edition

The pencil sketch for the cover page of the Special Texas Centennial Co-operative edition of the Daily News to be issued soon, was received from the engravers Thursday.

This sketch was shown to a number of business men, who were profuse in their praises of the advertising of Cisco's natural and recreational advantages as brought out in the art work of the cut which will form the front page of this edition.

Cisco is brought out prominently and shown as properly located as to accessibility and nearness to Dallas, the Centennial city. Cisco's natural resources are shown graphically and clearly, and her outstanding possibilities as a playground for the millions who will pour into Texas' borders next year are impressed beyond a shadow of a doubt. Following are some expressions of commendation from those who have seen the sketch of the cut, which will arrive Friday from the engravers:

JUDGE MOORE IS ONE OF FEW OLD COWBOYS

DALHART, July 19.—Judge J. Early Moore, of Dalhart, former cowhand, trail boss and frontier statesman, is one of the few remaining men in the dwindling ranks of that pioneer six-gun regiment of the Old West—cowboys and trail bosses of the famous XIT ranch.

He is believed to be the only man who has rounded up and worked cattle on all seven divisions of this historic ranch, and who ever drew salary from four divisions.

Born in Tennessee, he came to Naruna, Texas, near Lampasas, when seven years of age. He walked three miles to school to sit on backless benches of split logs.

"My father offered me a college education because I was slightly crippled, but I had cowpunching on the brain," he said the other day.

"In the spring of 1886, after a year in college, I quit and went with Brown and Williamson's trail herd from Lampasas to the XIT Yellow House headquarters near Lubbock.

"Though only 21 I decided I wanted to be an XIT division manager and took a job at Yellow House. For a month we branded a thousand cattle a day."

After two years the veteran cowpuncher said he decided that he should have remained in college, and he re-entered, only to yield again after two years to the lure of the open range.

In 1892 he was made trail boss on the Montana drive in which more than 12,000 yearling steers hit the trail. On this drive dangers beset the way, storms and stampedes claiming several lives.

In his reminiscences Judge Moore said he wished he had been born 30 years sooner when "there were a lot more opportunities in the cattle business,—no fences, more range."

Daily News and American and Roundup want ads are a good investment.—Phone 80.

J. E. Spencer, secretary of Chamber of Commerce—"The thought in the art work is the finest thing ever brought out by a newspaper editor. Cisco certainly will receive valuable advertising from this edition."

R. C. Giles, chief clerk of the West Texas Utilities company—"Biggest piece of advertising I have ever seen for any town. The work is thorough and the thought is clearly interpreted by a fine piece of art work."

O. J. Russell, manager of the ice department of the same company—"You may quote me on this piece of advertising. That cover page tells the whole story for Cisco."

H. L. Dyer, manager of the Community Natural Gas company—"The most complete story ever told on one page."

Dr. Hubert Seale, prominent in Booster club activities—"Yes sir, that is the thing I have been wanting. The thought and art work which is carried out is the finest piece of advertising of Cisco's claim for distinction that has ever been promulgated. That is a story that will get results for Cisco."

K. N. Greer, manager of Palace theatre—"You may quote me on this. That front page cut is a knockout. It will certainly advertise Cisco to the world."

Herman Reimer, Reimer's Cleaning Plant—"That is a complete story and the conception is splendid. It will advertise Cisco and what she has to whoever may see a copy of that proposed edition."

Milt Williams, manager of J. C. Fenney company, Inc.—"That is the best conceived plan I have ever seen for telling the world about Cisco and what she has to offer as a Play Ground for Centennial visitors. If they never read any further than the cover page it will be worth the money as an advertising for us. Fifty thousand placards with this cut on them would bring that many people to see Cisco if they were distributed properly at a booth at the Centennial grounds in Dallas in 1936."

Garland (Pete) Nance, vice president of the Nance Motor company—"I think this is a splendid presentation of what Cisco has to offer to the recreational seeker who may live near or faraway. Cisco has it. Then why not tell the world?"

Horace Condey, auditor of the Cisco Gas corporation—"I think this story as depicted by the engraving for your front page of your proposed Texas Centennial Co-operative edition, is certainly a complete story of what Cisco has to offer to the pleasure seeker or to one who might be industrially minded. It should be a successful edition."

Alex Spears, president of the First National Bank—"I think your edition is well conceived and the art story is completely told. Cisco has many natural advantages over other towns and they should be told to the world."

A. D. Anderson, president of A. G. Motor company—"That plan for Advertising Cisco and her recreational and natural advantages is a good one. The cut for your front page is the best advertising for Cisco that I have ever seen. It certainly will make even Cisco people sit up and take notice."

Doug Fairbanks, Jr., Takes Gamble

Well heeled, (with new shoes) Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., set out to prove that he was a chip off the old block in a gamble with death when he was barred from risking his money at the high stakes tables of Monte Carlo casino. Emulating his famous father, he mounted the railing at the roof of the resort's highest building. Just then blonde Laura LaPlante came on the scene. Fearing he might lose his balance and fall into bad company, several stories below, she rushed to the rescue in the nick of time.

SISTER MARY'S RECIPES

BY MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST: Baked sweet apples, cereal, cream, cinnamon toast, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON: Cream of chard soup, croutons, jellied fruit salad, cheese sandwiches, Boston coolers.
DINNER: Salisbury steak, mashed potatoes, chard with Hollandaise sauce, tomato and celery salad, blackberry pie, milk, coffee.

chard is to cut the thick center rib in uniform lengths and tie in small bundles. Cook in boiling water, adding salt after the first ten minutes of cooking. Cook the thin part of the leaves just as you would spinach—in the water that clings to the leaves. When tender, chop leaves fine and arrange in a border on a deep serving platter. Garnish with hard cooked eggs and fill the center with the thick ribs in Hollandaise sauce. This is an exceedingly nourishing and economical dish for a summer meal.

Use Little Water
Cook in as little water as possible and for only a short time. Pop up with lemon juice and other seasonings that your family favors.

Many calories can be added to chard by dressing it with butter or a rich Hollandaise sauce.

The other day I had luncheon at a fashionable tea room noted for its delicious and unusual foods. The cream of chard soup was excellent and was made like cream of spinach soup, adding the cooked and sifted vegetable to a thin cream sauce. I made it at home, seasoned with lemon juice and a suggestion of sage and onion.

Trail Herd Passes, Writing History in the Dust

Across the vast dust-piled plains, stretching without relief to the far horizon, the trail herd wends its way, in perhaps the last of the great migrations that annually led hundreds of thousands of cattle to market and to new grazing grounds, in the halcyon days of the southwest cow country. With drooping heads, the 2,000 cows and yearlings move, as if sensing that their hooves are printing the last chapter of the plains saga in the dust that swirls as they pass. From 27 miles north of Fampa, Tex., on the Grundy Morrison ranch, cowboys drove the stock across the Texas Panhandle to the foothills of the Rockies, 225 miles away in northeastern New Mexico. Better pasture lands are there, drouth and dust storms having taken heavy toll of the Texas buffalo grass on which thousands of range cattle once fattened.

PROF ACCEPTS RESEARCH JOB IN WASHINGTON

AUSTIN, July 19 — Dr. O. B. Williams, associate professor of bacteriology at The University of Texas, has accepted a position on the research staff of the bacteriological of the National Canners Association in Washington, D. C. Preliminary to starting work in the general laboratory, Dr. Williams will be connected with the field laboratory of the association in the Middle West until sometime in October. During the last two summers he has been on the staff of the field laboratory. In his work in the laboratory at Washington he will be engaged in a study of food problems, especially that of spoilage of canned food.

"There are two problems of food bacteriology," Dr. Williams said. "One is that of spoilage and the other food poisoning. It is very seldom that a case of poisoning from eating commercially canned food occurs. Of late years any case of this kind has been practically unknown. The last case reported was in 1926, and it was caused from eating imported Italian canned goods." Dr. Williams is a native of Kosse, Texas. He obtained his bachelor of arts degree from the University of Texas in 1921, his master of arts in 1923 from the same institution, and his doctor of philosophy from the University of California in 1928. He has been a member of the teaching staff of the University of Texas since 1920.

Hitler's Power Creates Martyrdom For His Spinster Sister in Vienna

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of two dispatches giving intimate glimpses of Chancellor Hitler, his sister, Paula, and their lives.

By E. C. M. JAHN
United Press Staff Correspondent
VIENNA, July 19. — Paula Hitler, 39-year-old spinster, and the "Fuehrer's" only sister, leads a life of voluntary seclusion in Vienna. The "E" in the spelling of her name is due to the mistake of a registry official. Paula is satisfied to watch the career of her brother from afar, and only once a year pays him a brief visit. She agrees whole-heartedly with her brother that it would be immoral if his relatives were enriched by the success of his "Cause."

Closely Resembles Hitler

When a United Press correspondent rang the bell of apartment No. 13 where she lives, a plainly dressed stoutish, healthy-looking, gray-eyed and dark-haired woman, whose resemblance to the "Fuehrer" was unmistakable, opened the door two handbreaths wide. It was Paula Hitler herself; but when the visitor asked whether he could see "Frau Wolf" he was told rather peremptorily: "Madame is not in, and I don't know when she will return."

Before the visitor could ask another question the door was slammed in his face. Paula leads a quiet life. She rarely talks to neighbors and receives only a few friends; a couple of middle-aged women and the man who found the apartment for her. Every year Paula spends a few weeks with her brother in Germany.

When there, she also seeks to remain in the background. Her visits are never announced to the public and, while in Germany, the "Fuehrer's" sister associates only with the wives of his most intimate collaborators. Neither she nor Anna Rauppach, the step-sister of Adolf and Paula, who lives permanently in Germany, ever appears in public.

Alice Johnson, Helen Stokes, Ruby Lee Blanton, Jessie Lee Hittson, Mrs. Skiles and her niece, Shirley Ann Parks.
