SENATE BODY APPROVES 12 CENT LOAN

About Our Friends
By STEPHEN A. LONG

Mrs. J. C. Donica expresses a very sweet philosophy of life... make no enemies... refuse to let anyone be an enemy... if misunderstandings come, correct them... do nothing to cause anyone to be an enemy... no wonder her hotel business always increases... incidentally she remarked that they had a full house Wednesday and almost so the night before... J. C. says he just helps, he has other work... Tearing down the old awning in front of Collins Hardware... progress comes surely if sometimes slowly... Economy Store to open soon will restore the block of prosperity... W. J. must have been born under a lucky star... no, lest you might misunderstand, it is not luck with W. J. Leach... he has made his money and success in business by close application and shrewd business principles... We congratulate you and wish that you may spread still wider.

P. P. Shepard has an unflinching formula for bringing rain... Wash his car and start for Albany... never fails to bring mud, he says... "Senator" H. E. McCormick and Herman Reimer are trying to make their friends feel bad this morning by extolling the special merits of that barbecued goat and the "trimmings" that they were served last evening... the good, easy chairs, etc... Now why should people want to rub it in that way, just because they are popular?

Lewis Starr says everything is all right... Mickey Carroll goes to work... not too early... S. R. Wood lugging in a big sack to the bank... Tommy Stark weighing too much.

Forrest Wright telling this story on Dr. Graham and Alex Spears to Sam Lipchitz, of the West Texas Produce company... Sam is enjoying a swim as the guest of the doctor... Alex is supposed to be on the operating table with Dr. Graham rolling up his sleeves ready to wield the knife... but his arm trembled violently... Mr. Spears wants to know what is the matter but the doctor says he is just a little nervous... the nervousness continues... The doctor mentions the fact that he owes a little note at the bank... Alex says that's all right, don't let that worry you... "But, I may need a few more thousand, that's what makes me so nervous," continued Dr. Graham...

Monday night's game will settle the softball championship of the second half season. The last game of the schedule brings together the two teams that are tied for the lead, Nance and Community.

Community got off to a fast start in the second half, but Nance, playing good ball in the latter part of the summer, did an overtake act that left the rasmen with only 750 percentage, the same as the motorist have.

Mussolini Looking For Radical Solution

PRECAUTIONS TO BE TAKEN IN ETHIOPIA

By ED KEEN
Copyright 1935 by United Press
ROME, Aug. 23. — "A solution of the Ethiopian problem must be something radical and conclusive," Premier Benito Mussolini declared today.

"Ethiopia cannot continue as a weapon—a modern weapon, not an ancient lance—pointed at Italy's back."

With these words, spoken deliberately but emphatically and with flashing eyes, Il Duce, on the eve for his departure for Northern Italy to attend the most extensive military maneuvers since the world war, concluded an hour's interview with the United Press, in which he discussed with much frankness Italy's justification for her course of action.

When I told him my object in coming here was to obtain first-hand information concerning Italy's purposes and the reasons for them, about which the world at large and particularly America is puzzled and to a considerable degree critical, Mussolini said:

Claims Ethiopia Hostile
"For the past 40 years Ethiopia has been hostile toward Italy. In order to avoid friction we tried to come to an understanding with her, and in 1928 we signed a treaty of friendship, which she has since consistently disregarded."

"The situation has become worse and worse. She has attacked our soldiers, killed our officials and civilians, and has been preparing an army to attack us."

You Are Invited To Election Party

You and your friends are cordially invited to attend the Cisco Daily News election party tomorrow evening at Mobley Park.

Latest election returns from the entire state on all the seven important amendments will be furnished to the guests by the Daily News. State returns will come direct to the News from the Texas Election Bureau at Dallas by telegraph.

As a special added feature, the Eastland Bureau of the Daily News will furnish by telephone the results of each box in Eastland county. You will know how each community in the county voted on each of the important measures.

Entertainment will be furnished the crowd by the Lobo band, which will play a concert in the park during the evening. The band, popular as always, is expected to present its very best in Saturday night's music. Director Robert L. Maddox will have charge of the band.

The Daily News has arranged to have an amplifying system installed with a microphone in the news room and loudspeaker in the park so that bulletins may be announced to the crowd as soon as they are flashed to the paper by phone or telegraph, without the delay necessitated by the usual bulletin board or lantern slides.

There will be plenty of parking space about Mobley park. Police will cooperate to prevent any jams and to aid in safety precautions, Chief M. L. Perdue has announced.

You will vote, of course, as an interested citizen. You will want to know your city, county, and state vote. The Daily News will furnish you the information. Come and enjoy the party.

COUNTY FARM COLONY GIVEN STATE'S OKEH

SPECIAL TO DAILY NEWS
EASTLAND, Aug. 23. — Eastland county's application for a farm colony project has been recommended by Dr. C. A. Wiley, acting state director of rural resettlement of Texas, to Washington officials.

This information, from the state rural resettlement head in a letter to Judge Clyde L. Garrett, was announced today.

Explanation of the workings of the program, with which authorities of Eastland county must deal in efforts to secure the estimated $75,000 project was given in the letter.

In pursuance with the request by Wiley that Eastland county brief be sent to him, Judge Garrett has notified regional headquarters of the resettlement program at Stillwater, Okla., that it be sent to Wiley at Austin.

Judge Garrett today viewed the county's possibilities of securing the colony with confidence.

Wiley's communication to Garrett said in part:

"We had in mind the needs of a community project in your section of the state and have sent in a recommendation through the regional to Washington for approval for the location of a project in your section of the country."

Grill Aged Mooney 'Key Witness'

Despite severe grilling by William F. Cleary, deputy attorney general for California, with whom he is shown, John MacDonal, 63, paralytic in Baltimore city hospital, insisted that his testimony in 1916, which sent Thomas J. Mooney to prison for the Preparedness

Day bombing in which 10 people died, was false. Though an abject figure, MacDonal stoutly maintained, before a California supreme court referee and Mooney's attorneys, that he had not seen Mooney until after the bombing; and that California officials "coached" him in his original story.

Will Rogers Given Highest Tribute Of Any Private Citizen at Funeral

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 23. — Will Rogers, having received the highest tribute ever offered a private citizen, rested today in a stone vault in Forest Lawn Memorial park, awaiting the time when he will be returned to Oklahoma.

That his body would be sent there was certain, for during his lifetime the cowboy humorist expressed such a desire and his family gave concrete evidence that this wish was law with them.

WITNESS SAYS HE BOUGHT OIL AT SALE IN ORDER TO MOVE IT

The oil purchased was confiscated as hot oil and could not have been moved otherwise. The witness was L. R. Hepworth, who was plant manager of the Phoenix Refining company at the time of the deal. The state only got one fourth of the

CCC Can Use Ten Men From County

SPECIAL TO DAILY NEWS
EASTLAND, Aug. 23. — The Civilian Conservation Corps has asked for 10 enrollees from Eastland county, Wortham Seale, case worker in charge of the county, announced Thursday.

Neal Gly, CCC enrollee supervisor for the state, sent the information to Oscar White, assistant district administrator, at Abilene, who gave Seale the request.

Youths between 18 and 25 years of age of good morale will be eligible for the enrollment. Seale explained that if the enrollee is offered regular employment he may receive an honorable discharge before his enrollment time expiration. The enrollee may also just sign up for three months then continue the regular six months period if he wishes, Seale explained.

When the Works Progress Administration begins to function the enrollee may continue in the CCC even if any member of his family finds employment in the program, according to the case worker in charge.

Highway Commission Announces Projects

AUSTIN, Aug. 23. — A $3,020,000 program of federal aid and national road projects which it expects to undertake soon was announced by the state highway commission.

Dates for bids have not been decided. Included is concrete paving of three miles of highway 34 in Johnson county.

SINGING MOUSE

TOLEDO, Minnie the singing mouse, has come back stronger than ever as a feature of parties, after a brief confinement that added sex-tuplets to her informal act. Minnie became famous when she was found by a newspaper and went A. W. O. L. in a branch newspaper office for a week.

CAKE LURES DEER

HARTFORD, Conn. — A wedding cake lured a young brown doe to its death. Roaming the deserted streets at night, the animal espied the cake in a pastry shop window and leaped through the plate glass. The doe died to death from a cut.

BANDITS EGG PURSUERS

JOPLIN, Mo. — Tips to police: remember the experience of Jasper county officers when pursuing bandits. While chasing a trio that hijacked a produce truck, officials were bothered by a constant stream of egg crates and cream cans that the fleeing group tossed out.

TOWN FARM AUCTIONED

DOUGLAS, Mass. — The old town farm was auctioned because there were only two destitute persons living there. The old Colonial-type farmhouse housed 16 persons.

Headquarters For National Youth Administration Will Go To Dallas

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23. — A district office of the National Youth Administration in Dallas to serve about 70 north Texas counties was assured today.

Postmaster Bruce Luna of Dallas telegraphed Hatton Summers that office space would be provided. It is expected the offices will be opened in two or three days.

IREN SENATOR SHOUTS DENIAL AT ROBINSON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23. — Senator Millard Tydings, dem., Md., broke into the senate lobby hearing today to shout at Bernard Robinson, utilities lobbyist, a denial that he had met Robinson at a cocktail party.

"And hereafter, when you use my name in this testimony you will damn sure you are right," shouted Tydings.

The Maryland senator was in a rage because of Robinson's testimony yesterday concerning government officials and others he met or entertained at cocktail and dinner parties for which Howard Holson, head of the Associated Gas and Electric company paid the bills. Robinson flushed as the tall, erect senator snook his fist at him.

COLLEGE GRADS SOUGHT

ATHENS, O. — College graduates must be finding jobs easier to find. The Ohio university job placement bureau here received 181 more calls for graduates to fill openings this year than last.

JUDGE REFUSES MODIFICATION OF BOOKIE SHOPS' INJUNCTION

AUSTIN, Aug. 23. — Judge Harry Dolan, here today refused to exclude the Bulletin Record Publishing company, issuing Race Form sheets at Dallas and Houston, from the terms of Governor Allred's restraining order against bookie shops and firms furnishing information to

SOUTHERNERS ANGERED OVER 9 CENT ORDER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23. — The senate appropriations committee today approved an amendment to the third deficiency bill directing the Commodity Credit corporation to lend farmers 12 cents a pound on their 1935 cotton crop.

The amendment was sponsored by Senator James Byrnes, dem., S. C. He and many other cotton states senators were irate over the administration's announcement that loans would be restricted to nine cents a pound, coupled with a government guarantee of a subsidy to give the farmers a 12 cent net return.

Southern senators were expected to support the amendment when the bill comes before the senate, but its fate was uncertain.

Sen. John Bankhead meantime announced an immediate drive to get farmers to hold their cotton off the market until they get a price of 12 cents or more.

WILD TRADING OVER OPEN MARKET RETURN

NEW YORK, Aug. 23. — Cotton traders celebrated the return to a free and open market for the first time in two years today with tremendous activity.

First prices showed terrific drops from the previous close because of the inherent bearishness on the surface of the government's reduction in the cotton loan basis from 12 cents to nine cents a pound.

Initial prices showed losses of more than $4 a bale. Trading was feverish. Blocks of 1,000 to 5,000 bales appeared. They were dumped overboard by speculators and eagerly taken by foreign houses. The Japanese, god bargainers were quick to absorb offerings. Liverpool also entered the market on a large scale.

Much Excitement

Excitement prevailed. Traders shouted their orders around the ring in a deafening roar. The orders were spread over a larger number of houses than in many months, adding to confusion of executing transactions.

Cotton men termed this latest government move as the declaration of independence for the south and a severe blow to those countries that had been making inroads into the market for American cotton, notably Brazil.

After the first burst of selling, the market became more orderly. Near months rallied 17 to 18 points from the lows, while the distant positions followed more slowly.

Under the new ruling, it was believed that the American price would get down to world level and commerce in cotton would be resumed on a large scale.

GAME TONIGHT SCHEDULED AS GRUDGE FIGHT

Two much touted and altogether bloodthirsty teams of business men today were looking forward eagerly to tonight's "grudge battle" on the diamond at Humble park. The game is scheduled for 8 o'clock.

Nick Miller's Wild Haberdashers and Truett LaRoque's Ranting Reptiles are eager to get at each other in the game which will settle — at least for the winner — the question of supremacy of the two. Each team has already won one victory over the other.

Managers of the two teams announced their lineups — confidentially — this morning. They are as follows:

Haberdashers—Miller, p; Leach, 3; Parma, r; Dyer, 1 b; King, 1f; Littleton, s; Grantham, cf; Lauderdale, cf; Samuels, c; Wagon, 2; Daniel, 1; Boyd, 1.

Reptiles—LaRoque, p; Holder, c; Jacobs, 1 b.; Giles, 2; Yates, 3; Eustis, s; Huffmeyer, 1f; Nance, 1f; Parish, cf; Leveridge, 1f; Karkalits, Elliott, Carroll, utility.

The Seven Amendments

Voters of the state tomorrow will be asked to decide upon seven state constitutional amendments when they go to the polls. The amendments will be numbered for the first time and will be the following:

1 — Providing for old age pensions. A maximum of $15 monthly, if this amendment were passed, could be paid to each person over 65 years of age not an habitual drunkard or criminal and not an inmate of a state institution. A person, to be eligible, must have lived in the state for five of the last nine years before application and to have lived continually in the state for at least one year. It is estimated that the pensions would cost the state between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 annually. No provision is made for this amount, and it would be left to the legislature to raise it.

2 — Temporary commitment of insane preliminary to trial by jury. This would be treating a mentally person the same as one physically ill. It would be to allow him to have state treatment for his mental disorder before it became too far advanced to be cured. At the same time, it would avoid the embarrassment of a jury trial—which is sensible, since no jury trial is required to ascertain if a person has measles or pneumonia.

3 — Repeal of state prohibition. This does not affect either national prohibition nor local option. Eastland county, under its old law, will remain dry until a local option election repeals this law. It provides for the legalizing the sale of liquor in the state. In any event, it will again be presented to the people, in effect, in the measure which deals with creating a state monopoly for the sale of liquor.

4 — Submission of amendments to special sessions of the state legislature. Amendments to the state constitution may be submitted, at present, only at regular sessions. This would be in the nature of providing for emergency legislation.

5 — Suspended sentence authority of the court. This amendment would allow the court to place persons convicted for the first time upon probation rather than sending them to prison immediately.

6 — Abolishing the fee system of pay for public officials. The fee system has been the center of a great storm of criticism during the last two years. Numerous instances of abuse of the system have been uncovered and advocates of the amendment would substitute a salary basis of payment, with all fees collected to be uniform and to go to the state, officials being paid from the central fund. The fee system was adopted when there was no other feasible means of compensation. Recent advocates of change claim the system is obsolete and leads to corruption of officials.

7 — Providing free text books in private and parochial schools. At present only public school pupils are furnished free text books by the state. The amendment, if passed would furnish free books to pupils of all schools and provide a new basis for apportionment of school funds. The Daily News has taken the view that this amendment, if passed would retard

Behind the Scenes in Washington

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a special series of stories telling exactly how lobbyists work and what part they play in the government at Washington.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON.—A very high official, who spent many years in Congress but no longer allows himself to be quoted, estimates that $25,000,000 has been spent on lobbying during this session.

The lobby is very definitely a part of the government and it always will be. But it is large and usually very secretive. Every important person on the federal payroll has contacts with it. For there are somewhere near 3000 resident lobbyists here, plus thousands of visiting lobbyists and they are of every type, shade, and odor.

The chief field of the lobby—especially of its most highly paid, most mysterious practitioners who are likely to be working for the greatest good for the smallest number—is a vast layer-upon-layer web of personal friendships, political obligations, social contacts and cultivated acquaintanceships.

THAT web to some degree enmeshes just about everybody in Washington, from the president down to the $1400-a-year stenographers upon whom some small-fry lobbyists, seeking favors or information, concentrate.

Some of the favoritism is rotten and corrupt. Some of it is open, uncoincidental and perhaps even altruistic. Most of it is handed out in a foggy twilight zone through which move many reticent characters—representing special interests and exerting special influence—who only occasionally trip and tumble out into the foreground where everyone can get a good look at them.

TO save a day's argument, let's arbitrarily define lobbying as the term is generally used in Washington:

A lobbyist is a person who, for pay, attempts to influence legislative or administrative decisions. Men are hired at huge fees—sums of $25,000 to $100,000 have been common talk here, and one political lobbyist is reputed to have received $50,000 from a millionaire for a mere introduction to Roosevelt—for the influence they have or are imagined to have.

BEAR in mind that lobbyists frequently eat, drink, and even sleep with government officials and members of Congress. Such friendships are the big-time lobbyist's bread and butter.

Members of Congress are often indebted for their election to special interests seeking favors here and it is difficult to regard such members as much more than lobbyists themselves. Many paid lobbyists are able to get congressmen to exert pressure on departmental officials, for most of those official and sub-officials owe their jobs to one member or another.

BETWEEN one thing and another, you can realize why a very large part of Washington seems to be just one big, happy family of lobbyists, officials, congressmen and their wives and daughters. The strong men who are uninfluenced by this arrangement are none too common.

The lobbyist here is usually a lawyer. He probably will object to being called a lobbyist and sometimes it's hard to draw the line.

Usually he will operate with honey rather than vinegar. For every threat a congressman gets he will receive 10 promises of campaign help, invitations for himself and the wife, appeals to his vanity, and free entertainment.

progress in public schools by turning them back many years into the hands of the churches and necessarily prohibiting any form of central education by the state. Many of the church leaders have taken the same view.

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, Aug. 23 — Texas schools, which ran behind this year in allotments of state money to pay high school transfer tuition of pupils, to pay teacher aid, industrial aid, cost of operating school buses and other items, have a better prospect for 1935-36, records of the state department of education indicate. The schools will share a $1 per capita higher apportionment, this year reaching the maximum of $17.50 per pupil on the scholastic census.

In addition, the rural aid appropriation, which is combined the fund from which these items are budgeted, was increased from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 a year. The new law and higher appropriation will go into effect from Sept. 1. Next spring, the schools should fairly well break even on their preliminary budgets, in the opinion of department officials.

The budgets are set up on a preliminary basis, and about one-half the estimated requirements are paid. The school needs, tuition requirements, costs of transportation and other items are checked. Then in the second half of the term, a recheck is made, and the applications are revised to fit within the available money for the entire state. These budget costs have run about $3,000,000 a year, but have not been fully met up to now.

That resulted last spring in shortening some rural school terms, causing some teachers to get less money the final month or so, and otherwise restricting school services and operations.

Big oil companies are insisting that acreage shall be included in future oil proration orders, along with well potential. This seems to be expected to work to their advantage and shut off the "little fellows" with small acreage, in respect to the amount of oil which shall be produced.

Unofficial hints about the capitol are that, if acreage shall be introduced as a proration factor, there is strong probability the railroad commission would return to a smaller spacing unit as the starting point—that is, that it would turn back to 300 feet between wells and 150 feet from property lines, which set one well to about 3-1-2 acres; rather than space the wells out to greater distances, so that the little operators could better be taken care of before having to seek "rule 37" exception permits.

This would permit introducing some acreage factor, but flatten out its effects. No comment has been made by the commission, and no order will be issued until sometime next week, in which a decision on this point may be shown or deduced.

Big Business In Brands Reported

KERRVILLE, Aug. 23 — Contrary to a popular notion that the old branding iron has been relegated to the scrap heap and to place as mere symbol of the old west, Frank Krueger, local blacksmith, says he has done an increasing business in making brands during the past two years.

The door of his blacksmith shop bears more than 100 livestock brands burned into the wood. Some of the brands burned into the shop door are 32 years old. They vary in size and include cattle, calf, sheep and goat brands.

It takes from 15 minutes to a whole day to make a branding iron, Krueger says.

FORGOTTEN KEY COSTLY
CINCINNATI, O. — Edward Wyanand, 40, Cincinnati, forgot his key one night recently and it proved costly. Returning home, Wyanand attempted to climb into a second story window, lost his balance and fell 15 feet to the sidewalk. He suffered an injured hip.

"A man sees more of his country in a day's travel in an airplane than he had previously seen in a life time with an average amount of surface traveling," remarked Clyde Roseberry, editor of the Shawnee News and Star, who is also an enthusiast about aviation. Oklahoma is closely connected in time with the distant points of the country by the American Airlines which serves every city of a million or more and puts New York less than ten hours away from Oklahoma City.

Speed with safety and almost unbelievable comfort are responsible for their new all time record of over 19,000 passengers carried in a single month. The speedy service of the major airlines is now taken for granted, but many people do not realize the new comforts provided by the American operated Douglas, Vultee and Curtis Condor Sleeper planes. Meals are served in the air and a stewardess looks after every need of the passengers. Editor Roseberry who plans a trip to California on the "Southern Continental" is looking forward to a chicken dinner in the air and a sleep in one of their comfortable berths cool and high above the hot desert.

Flying with a major air line is now the safest way to travel. Experienced pilots, improved equipment, new instruments and, above all, better methods of forecasting weather conditions have made that statement true. The American, for example, has 25 employs on the ground, engaged in keeping the equipment in perfect condition and checking weather conditions, and every pilot in the air. Radio communication plays an important part.

An intensely interesting story is the recent move by President C. R. Smith in employing a group of expert meteorologists to develop the new air mass analysis theory of weather "making" for use in air line operation. It illustrates how important safety is regarded by the big companies and that the public is beginning to realize it is shown by the rapidly increased number of passengers. There is a romance connected with flying that appeals to everyone and now that it can be done with comfort and safety,

JO DARLEN breaks her engagement to BRET PAUL, professional athlete star, because he objects to her taking a job as hostess at Crest Lake Inn, fashionable summer resort owned by wealthy DOUGLAS MARSH. Jo goes to Crest Lake and later Bret arrives as life guard.
Douglas Marsha's eccentric mother dislikes Jo. PETER FRAGONET, film actor, pays Jo marked attention and asks her to marry him as soon as he can get a divorce. Jo becomes friendly with LOLA MONTEZ, film actress.
Prompted by his mother, Marsha asks Jo to leave Crest Lake. She decides to go to Hollywood to look for a job, and flies there with Fragonet. Later she begins to doubt Fragonet's promises and moves to a rooming house where he cannot find her. Lola Montez offers a job. SILEN DRANN, production executive, asks Jo to come to the studio for a screen test. She accepts.
Drann telephones that the screen test was a success. Later Jo gets a call from BOLESON, production executive, asking her to come to see him.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXI

WITH Boleson's words still ringing through her head, Jo replaced the receiver. Then it was true! There could be no doubt about it now.
And why not? Why shouldn't it be true, Jo Darlen asked herself stoutly. She had read of many instances of unknown girls starting out for stardom after only a few days or weeks in this magic city. Usually it was a girl who had possessed some sort of a "break"—and she had had such a key. Swiftly her brain traveled back over the events which had led to this unbelievable moment when Boleson had asked her to come to his office.

She remembered the evening with Bret and Tubby in that little room in the Fendale apartments—when Bret had suggested Jo should answer Mr. Brown's advertisement in the newspaper. She remembered the meeting with Douglas Marsh on her first day in Brown's tiny store. Then Crest Lake, and Fragonet, and Lolita, and Silas Drann.

Jo struggled with an impulse to knock at her landlady's door and tell that pessimistic woman that there was one girl who was not "going home" again. Right now she managed to restrain herself; more practically, she hurried upstairs to her room. There was plenty of time in which to make her appointment with Boleson, but she wanted to look her best.

FORTIFIED with the courage Boleson's message had given her, Jo approached the Atlas gate far more certain of herself than she had been on her initial visit. She gave her name to the still suspicious gateman and told him she had an appointment with the Atlas president.
"Oh, yes. . . ." He touched his cap. "Mr. Boleson's secretary called a few minutes ago. Right down to the administration building there, Miss Darlen."

Jo walked along in the sunlight on winged heels. In the reception room of the administration building, too, she found the way paved.
"Please go right in. Mr. Boleson's office is the first door to the left down the hallway."

She first encountered Boleson's secretary, a brisk and efficient young woman who asked her to be seated. But Jo had not long to wait. In less than half a minute she was ushered into a dimly furnished office. In one corner was a broad walnut desk and behind it stood a short, rather heavy man whom Jo liked at once. He seemed reticent, almost shy, and Jo could hardly believe that this could be Boleson himself. It may have been that he recognized that he did not look the part, for he introduced himself, diffidently asked Jo to sit down near his desk.

"Miss Darlen, perhaps—" He stopped, cleared his throat. "Perhaps you are wondering why I sent for you."
"It was—well, rather unexpected," Jo said, smiling.
"What I am going to say is a bit difficult." He returned her smile. "You see, it smacks a little of attending to your business instead of mine. But you'll understand that my people—the actors and actresses who work for Atlas—represent millions of dollars in investments. Investments that have to be protected for the sake of the Atlas stockholders. . . . He paused a moment, and Jo wondered to what he was leading.

"I think I can see you're a sensible young woman," he went on. "You're not the sort of girl I expected. I think you'll listen to reason. You know, of course, to what I'm referring?"
"I'm . . . afraid I don't, exactly," Jo confessed, her mind in a whirl.
"It's about Fragonet," he told her quickly, his tone edged suddenly with impatience.
"Fragonet?" repeated Jo, startled. "I—I don't understand, Mr. Boleson."
"You don't deny knowing Fragonet?"
"Of course not. But I—"

SHE was interrupted by his quick nod. "Good! Miss Darlen, I don't know what your real feelings are toward Peter Fragonet, nor do I know what his real feelings are toward you. That's not my business. But Fragonet—Fragonet as an asset to Atlas Pictures Corporation—is my business. I have several millions tied up in Fragonet pictures, one of which has not even been released."
"But—"
"Please let me finish, Miss Darlen. We have always had a little trouble with Fragonet. He has—shall I say, a flair—for drawing adverse publicity. Just now there's a drive for clean pictures, and I'm heartily in favor of it. Along with better pictures the public is demanding that the private lives of its stars be normal and sane. I agree with that, too—"

"One moment, Mr. Boleson," Jo interrupted, her lips pale with slowly rising anger. "I really can't see what all this has to do with me. I met Mr. Fragonet at Crest Lake where he was making a picture. I've seen him not more than two or three times since coming to Hollywood. Beyond that there's nothing that would—"
"I believe you," Boleson told her quietly. "But I'm not sure that the gossips would. Especially after the rumors have been embroidered a bit. And there's Mrs. Fragonet. You flew from Crest Lake with Fragonet, did you not?"
Jo nodded weakly. "That was a mistake, I know."
"I'm afraid it was. The rumor kettle was all set to boil over about then, but fortunately I arranged for Fragonet and his wife to appear together at one of the premiere at Grauman's." Boleson leaned forward slightly, meeting Jo's eyes across the desk. "It's purely a business proposition with me, Miss Darlen. I'd like to get rid of Fragonet—there's a lot of trouble—but I can't do that. I want to avoid any scandal for him. I'm going to get to the point, Miss Darlen. What is it worth to you?"

"What is it worth to me?"
"Exactly. What will you take to turn Fragonet down cold?"
Jo grew crimson. She bit her lips, those trembling lips she had rouged so carefully for this important visit to Boleson's office.
"I'll take nothing at all," she said coldly.

Boleson smiled, but it was a cool smile now. "Are you trying for higher stakes, or are you in love with him?"
"Neither, Mr. Boleson. I've—I've already turned him down cold, as you put it. Perhaps there were times, at Crest Lake, when I should have avoided him. But I didn't realize then what it could lead to. I really never want to see Fragonet again. . . ."

SHE broke off, suddenly weeping. Before she could stem the flow of tears she was conscious of Boleson leaning over her, his hands nervous, his voice heavy with embarrassing regret.
"Miss Darlen, I—I can't tell you how sorry I am," he was saying, over and over again. "It was necessary for me to put it up to you pretty straight, just in case you were the hardboiled type. I'm really sorry, and I do believe you."
Jo held to his arm, lifted herself unsteadily from the chair. "It's quite all right. You see, I—I was rather taken by surprise."
"I didn't mean to have that happen," Boleson said, puzzled. "Surely you must have had some notion that I'd be concerned about the situation with Fragonet?"
"Perhaps I should have, but is, I thought you were calling me here to talk about my screen test."
Boleson's eyes widened. "You took a screen test? How long ago, Miss Darlen? I don't see them all, you know, but perhaps in a few days—"

"I'm sorry," Jo interrupted. "I—I just thought you reviewed them all. That was silly of me, wasn't it?"
"Not at all. Perhaps I should, you know." He shrugged helplessly. "But there are only so many hours in the day." He reached for her hand, held it in an open, friendly fashion. "Miss Darlen," he went on, "I hope this Fragonet business hasn't hurt you . . . seriously."
Jo shook her head. "I'm all right. And I'm really glad you called me."
Once again in the bright sunlight, Jo walked the hot miles from the Atlas lot to the stucco bungalow, yet when she reached the little hallway she felt no weariness. Rather she was like an automaton which had been set for a certain distance, a certain route, and now was finished with its task.

In the dark hallway she telephoned Lolita's home to leave a message with the Montez maid.
"This is Miss Darlen. . . . Miss Montez arranged for a job for me, I believe. Will you please tell her I want it very much? And that I'd like to begin work tomorrow if I may?"

Younger Stars In Tennis of Soviet

MOSCOW, Aug. 23 — A new champion, Boris Novikov of Moscow, now rules the tennis courts of the Soviet Union, having defeated Eugene Kudriavtzev, for many years Russia's leading star, in the All-Union tournament here.

In the ranks of women, Nira Teplovskaya, winner of the 1934 tournament, easily retained her title.

Kudriavtzev's defeat was a shock to Soviet tennis followers, for he long had been considered in a class by himself. This year, however, he was worn down by over-training with younger opponents and was defeated in his first match with a little-known player. He did not even meet Novikov or Edouard Negrebetsky who played the finals.

Tennis has been played extensively here for only a few years but is growing more popular each summer and tournaments are followed by an increasing number of fans.

Make-Believe Beer Garden Is Opened

FERNDALE, Mich., Aug. 23 — A beerless beer garden is operated here at the headquarters of Youth, Inc. Amid potted plants, and enclosed by a white picket fence, the 400 members of the organization enjoy all the atmosphere found in an outdoor drinking establishment — without the drinks.

The banana split supplants the wassail bowl, and the chocolate soda wears the crown usually carried by the foamy, amber brew of other establishments. And the pretzel has been replaced by the more genteel ladyfinger.

This drinkless drinking place is a social experiment to determine "what can be done to keep young people out of drinking places" and was made possible by a $500 gift from Mrs. Frederic M. Alger, member of the State Liquor Control Commission.

Members of Youth, Inc., range from 16 to 25.

'Human Icicle' Prepares for Test

While authorities threatened to ban the bizarre experiment, carefully prescribed diet became part of the regime of Stephen Simkhovitch, right, preparing in Los Angeles to allow Dr. Ralph Willard, left, to freeze him into a "human icicle" as a scientific experiment, and in the expectation that it will be possible to revive him later. Dr. Willard, who hopes it will be possible thus to kill various disease germs without killing permanently the patient, has announced success in a similar test on a small monkey.

SISTER MARY'S RECIPES

BY MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

THERE'S no question but that summer squash is a treat when fried or mashed, but I've hit on some clever ways of preparing it that make it a favorite of even those people who consider it tasteless.

Try steaming summer squash and serving it with a white sauce to which cheese has been added. This dish is well adapted to the needs of children as well as adults.

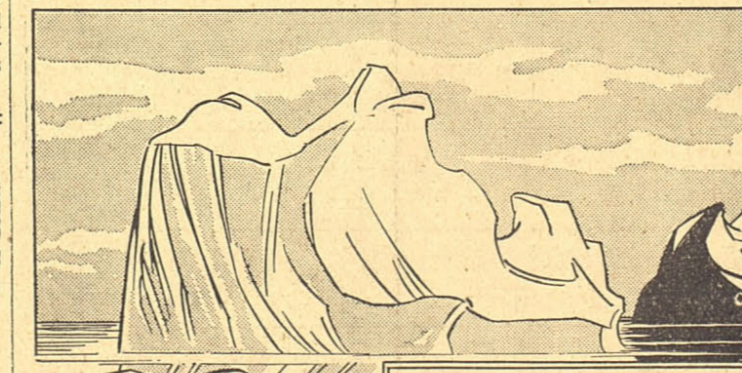

Squash scalloped with tomatoes makes an appetizing luncheon main dish. Serve it with pumpernickle and finish the meal with a hearty dessert, such as peach dumplings.

Squash Scalloped With Tomatoes
Three small summer squash, 1 medium sized onion, 1-2 cup cooking oil, 4 ripe tomatoes, 1-2 cup chopped celery, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup grated cheese.

Wash squashes and cut in half-inch slices. Fry in cooking oil in frying pan until tender. Put to one side of pan and pour off all but 2 tablespoons oil. Add onion thinly sliced and cook until brown. Put a layer of prepared squash in baking dish and cover with tomatoes peeled and cut in slices. Sprinkle with onion, add seasoning and celery and cover with cheese. Continue layer by layer until all is used. Put in a moderate oven for twenty minutes to cook tomatoes and melt cheese. Increase heat for last few minutes in order to brown the top. Serve from baking dish.

Corn cut from the cob may be added to this combination along shredded sweet green pepper

FOUR ANIMALS ARE KNOWN AS 'GOPHERS' IN VARIOUS LOCALITIES OF THE UNITED STATES!
(CHIPMUNK, POCKET GOPHER, TORTOISE, AND GROUND SQUIRREL)

WHEN A MAYFLY GOES BELOW THE WATER TO LAY ITS EGGS, IT CAN REMAIN FOR LONG PERIODS, SINCE IT WRAPS UP A SUPPLY OF AIR IN ITS WINGS BEFORE GOING UNDER.

SCIENTIFIC names of animals frequently seem cumbersome, hard to pronounce, and most difficult to remember, but they prevent the confusing of one creature with another. An animal may have several common names in one locality, but it has but one scientific name throughout the entire world.

Hawaiian Diva Is Seeking U. S. Fame

HONOLULU, Aug. 23 — Lena Machado, beautiful Hawaiian woman, who has sung higher than Galli-Curci, seeks new audiences to conquer on the mainland.

Known as the "songbird of Hawaii" Lena has moved more people to tears than probably any other opera singer. Babe Ruth and other famous people have cried upon hearing her plaintive singing as soloist for the Royal Hawaiian Band, welcoming them to Honolulu harbor.

Before she left, she indicated she would attempt to make mainland concert engagements during a vacation tour.

Mrs. Machado several years ago played engagements in Chicago theaters.

Deserving Boy To Get Caddy Bequest

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 23 — An estate for deserving caddies has been established by the will of a late St. Louis golfer, Walter Hyde Saunders, who died August 3.

Saunders willed $500 to the Bellevue Country club. The interest is to be given each year to the caddy who, during the year has the best record for efficiency courtesy and honor.

Preference will be given boys supporting their mothers or earning their way through school.

Watermelon Bait Catches Groundhog

KERRVILLE, Aug. 23 — A tempting watermelon proved the undoing of an imported groundhog here the other day.

A ripe, red melon lured the little animal into a wire cage. The groundhog was brought here from Tennessee. The second time it escaped from captivity it was killed by hogs.
