SENATE PASSES NEUTRALITY MEASURE

About Our Friends

By STEPHEN A. LONG

Steve, we suppose we'll have to apologize about those fish.... you proved with too many witnesses that you and your party caught them.... and then they tasted too good to have been purchased at a fish market.... but that was lots of fish.... more than a hundred people, consisting of your organization and your softball team and a few visitor-guests.... and still every one had plenty of fish and some to spare.... that was really a feed.... we'll have to admit that you and Barney and Alex Spears are excellent cooks on the open.

But we never knew that you had such a big sales force as that.... and such a ball team.... it's no wonder one must dodge a V-8 at every corner and no wonder you win ball games.... you can run in a brand new team each inning.... congratulations.... your party at the Lions-Rotary park last evening was a decided success.

Frank Harrell will surely have no shortage of feed this year.... 800 bales of hay in his barn and nearly that much more of cane to be put up.... doesn't have many hogs but does have some.... will be able to combat the soaring price of bacon with a little home-cured of his own.... three cuttings of alfalfa.... usually makes lots of corn, too.

All farmers, where it is possible, should do a little impounding of water.... wonderful land here if given sufficient water.... lots of gullies that would store water if dammed.... an acre of land well watered would supply a family the year round.... and have lots of vegetables to sell to the less fortunate.

Lonnie Tullos says that one should have system in one's business.... no need to drag out long hours to do a little work when the same amount of work can be done in much fewer hours.... no need to fire the boiler in the wee small hours of the morning when you do not expect to use it until hours later.... That is good judgment.... energy can be dissipated by just playing about at a job when as a matter of fact a few, well directed efforts could put the matter over much better.... The Spanish have learned that no one wishes to shop during the heat of the day.... from noon until about 3 o'clock.... therefore they close their shops and rest until that time.... Perhaps we will some day do all our work

GARNER ENDS SECOND HALF WITH VICTORY

Garner's closed the second half of its softball season last night with a 10 to 3 win over the Lobos, to grab a 500 rating for the period. At the same time, the Lobos were held in the blank part of the win column. The two teams had a game rained out earlier in the season but Rex Page, league president, said this morning that they had decided not to play it, since it will not materially affect the standing of the league. Thursday night Nance, fighting for a chance at a playoff with Garner's for the title, will meet the Lobos. In order to get into the championship series, the motorists must win Thursday's game and then come back Monday to defeat Community, present leaders.

But that won't be all. Such a string of wins would mean only that Nance and Community will be tied for the second half, and would have to play their own private series before the winner could take on the champs of the first half. Friday night Nick Miller's Haberdashers and Truett LaRoque's Ranting Reporters will meet in their "grudge fight" game. Each has defeated the other team once.

By United Press

Black then momentarily excused Howard Hopson, head of the Associated Gas and Electric company, and broadened the probe by bringing into it the Cities Service company. He called W. S. Winans, comptroller of Cities Service, Winans said the top holding company spent about $100,000 on expenses in the campaign against the bill and the subsidiaries perhaps that much more.

Then Black introduced a letter which he claimed was written by a Missouri branch of the company, asking employes to write to Washington using plain stationery, in the fight against the bill that would take away their jobs. ### HEARING FOR ROAD CUTOFF IS FAVORABLE

Special to Daily News
EASTLAND, Aug. 21. — "Satisfactory as expected under the circumstances" was the result of a hearing given delegates from West Texas who Tuesday pleaded before the highway commission at Austin for completion of Highway 89, according to Milburn McCarty of Eastland, spokesman.

"We're prepared to further do with our efforts to secure favorable action," McCarty said today as he reported on the hearing. Twenty-one delegates from 10 towns favoring the completion were given a hearing by Chairman Harry Hines and D. K. Martin.

Already Cost $500,000
McCarty told the commission that necessity for the completion of a road which has already cost $500,000 and that it was to "the interest of the state to protect its investment from deterioration and disintegration."

The commission, McCarty and delegates said seemed to be in favor of the completion if they had funds. Evidence of hazards of transporting stock over the Bankhead highway was heard by the highway commission.

McCarty said cattlemen are forced to haul stock to Fort Worth by way of Breckenridge, Graham, and Jackboro to avoid the many curves between Strawn and Weatherford. The road is ready for completion, McCarty said he had been informed by highway engineers. Estimate cost for completing the road was reported at between $300,000 and $400,000.

Argued by the spokesman was that the state has spent $500,000 for the 45.65 miles projects which saves 14.21 miles between Fort Worth and West Texas and that it eliminates four railroad crossings. McCarty said the road saved 40 to 60 minutes for travelers in passenger automobiles and two hours for truck drivers from Fort Worth to Eastland county.

Delegates in behalf of the project were present from Midland, Colorado, Sweetwater, San Angelo, Baird, Putnam, Cisco, Eastland, and Ranger. Telegrams were read from Pecos and Weatherford. Present from Eastland county were E. P. Crawford, R. E. Grantham, Cisco; R. V. Galloway, J. E. Walker, Ranger; Milburn McCarty, Albert Taylor, County Judge Clyde L. Garrett, Ben Scott, H. C. Davis, Don Parker, J. E. Little, and Hamilton McRae, Eastland.

CLAIMS LEGAL LIQUOR WOULD HAVE CUT DEBT

AUSTIN, Aug. 21. — Revenues which would have accrued from liquor which has been sold in Texas illegally during the past two years would have done much to reduce the state deficit according to R. Emmett Morse, chairman of the Texas Repeal Forces, who released figures recently showing that states which have repealed their prohibition laws have netted from $500,000 to $20,000,000 annually on a per gallon tax ranging from forty cents to $1.60 per gallon on whisky sold. "The senate committee for the investigation of Crime found that one drug store in Austin had sold, without prescription, 42,828 pints of whisky in six months," Mr. Morse said. "Had the state collected $1.00 per gallon on this whisky its tax from this one store would have been $5,354.50.

"A San Antonio drug store sold 273,344 pints in 90 days. Had the $1.00 per gallon tax been paid on this whisky, the state would have collected $46,667.90 in these ninety days from the store.

"I think it a very conservative estimate to anticipate between $6,000,000 and $10,000,000 annually from the sale of liquor in Texas. If voters go to the polls on Saturday and repeal the existing prohibition laws."

FOUR TEXANS ARE BELIEVED RIDE VICTIMS

By United Press
KANSAS CITY, Aug. 21. — City and county officials today were searching for four Texas youths believed to have been taken for a ride by local gangsters, angered because the youths raided slot machines by tampering with the mechanism. The youths stopped several days ago at a tourist camp near here, driving a car with a Texas license. They played dime slot machines at several road houses, the machines paying off with amazing regularity. One proprietor learned that while three of them played the machine, the fourth tampered with its mechanism. The youths were arrested yesterday. An hour later, four men driving a large car called at the police station. One introduced himself as a representative of the slot machine manufacturer. They agreed to dismiss charges and asked the boys to go back in their car. No trace of the Texans has been found since. Their car at the tourist camp had been hammered and destroyed.

BILL SEEKS TO KEEP U. S. OUT OF WAR

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Aug. 21. — The senate today approved legislation designed to keep the United States out of a possible foreign war. There was no record vote on the neutrality resolution.

The legislation was put through after than less than half an hour's consideration.

It now goes to the house where Speaker Joseph W. Eynns said the administration was anxious for its passage, indicating it would be considered soon.

The neutrality resolution, pressed to the front as the European war crisis developed, was a compromise from a series of neutrality resolutions introduced by the senate munitions committee.

While it did not meet all the demands of members of the committee they refrained from attempting to attach amendments to it so that it could be speedily adopted.

Sen. J. Hamilton Lewis, dem., Ill., foe of the resolution, offered a substitute measure, but did not press it. Senator William E. Borah, rep., Idaho, refrained from offering an amendment to tighten provisions of the resolution to forbid Americans to travel even at their own risk on belligerent ships.

The legislation forbids arms shipments to belligerents, restricts travel of American citizens on belligerent ships, licenses arms manufacturers, and takes other precautions.

Allred Promises to Make State Dry

Governor James V. Allred reiterated that he would "consider defeat of the prohibition amendment as a mandate on officers to enforce the prohibition law." He announced that the attorney general's department and he himself were awaiting the next move by bookies in his move to oust them from Texas. This was his message to bookies:

"You can't compromise with gambling and vice. In my judgment the chief cause for the wave of gambling was passage of the race-track gambling law. Local officers can put a stop to the bookies' operations if they will go about it vigorously."

Furthermore, the wires carried the news that Texas Rangers were in at least two Texas cities ready to carry out the governor's threat to back up his injunctions designed to force horse racing bookie shops out of business—with force, if necessary.

State election will take place August 24. There are seven amendments on the official ballot. Governor Allred has announced his determination to make this state as dry as a bone if repeal fails to carry. Senator Morris Sheppard, the author of the dead 18th amendment, has appealed to the people of his native state to vote to keep constitutional prohibition as it exists in Texas for the reason "that since the repeal of the 18th amendment state laws have been a failure."

Well, the voters are the masters. Laws are made to be enforced. There should not be one law for a few at the expense of the many. As far as the state campaign is concerned to date it has not produced any more commotion in "the haunts of men" than a country picnic had in the old days of political campaigns. Perhaps the governor's blast will drag the repealers out of their trance and redouble the efforts of those who are for "a dry state, a dry nation and a dry world."

Loss of Life on Highways

In 18 months 52,000 persons lost their lives in automobile accidents on the highways of the United States. Texas has a ghastly record. Why this eternal fishing for minnows and overlooking the whales on the part of the lawmakers of Texas? Why not protection for life and property? Livestock has been barred from the state highways by a legislative statute. This law provides for state highways by a legislative statute. This law provides for state highways alone. Why not cover all the highways, state and county, of the commonwealth? Why not give secure protection to those who travel the highways and pay for their construction and upkeep? The Austin American carried an interesting story August 14. This was the ghastly feature of a Taylor dispatch:

"Nine persons were treated here for injuries suffered Tuesday about 9:30 p. m. in two automobile accidents in both of which trucks without lights figured. First, a truck parked in the middle of the road without lights collided with a passenger car and the inmates of the passenger car sustained severe or minor injuries. One car hit the truck from the rear and another from the front. The second accident happened about six miles from Taylor on the Taylor-Austin road as a truck without lights came from a side road."

All told nine persons received serious injuries and were sent to nearby sanitariums for treatment. This could be easily avoided by watchful and conscientious lawmakers who are for a drivers license law without blowholes and will see to it that all the regulations provided for are enforced without fear or failure.

Angry Farmers Disarm U. S. Marshal

Plattsburg, Mo., is one of the ancient towns of the Missouri river country and state. Three hundred angry farmers seized the United States marshal and held him captive for several hours to block a farm foreclosure sale. They took his gun. They blocked the sale. They were not armed, but they deflated the tires on the marshal's automobile lest he break away from his capturers" and held the sale elsewhere. This should be a land of the rule of the law and its majesty. A foreclosure sale cannot be stopped by mob violence. Those who are interested should await court procedure. Anarchy begets chaos and riots and murder and hell. These 300 Missouri farmers will regret their wild outburst of rage and their defiance of the agent of the federal government. This marshal had the court edict behind him. He was not responsible for the sale. He was executing the judgment of a high court as it was placed in the hands of the sworn agent of the government.

President Signs Security Bill

Nearest and dearest to the heart of President Roosevelt is the social security measure enacted by the congress. He has signed the bill. It is the law of the republic. It provides for social security for 30,000,000 Americans. It provides for old age pensions for those who are entitled to a pension. It provides for the care of crippled children and the blind; for widows and orphans who are left penniless and practically homeless. It provides for employes insurance and all in all it is the top notch enactment for social justice ideas and ideals of the New Deal administration. Now what will Texas do when the ballot boxes open on August 24 for an old age pension system in the state of Texas?

REFUSES TO WASH

STEBENVILLE, O. — Eldridge Thompson, 18, of Gladow, Va., doesn't like soap and water. He appeared at the Transient Bureau and asked for a meal. He was told he would be fed if he would wash. The youth walked to the street and threw a stone through a plate glass window in the bureau.

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, Aug. 21 — The young democrats will figure in an important way in this fall session of the Texas legislature. They will have a part in policy legislation, conforming to national social security and other planning matters. They will have a doubly important role because the national political campaign for the 1936 election year already is taking shape, and this organization is well within the field of the chief national issues.

BROOKS

Visit of "Thad" Scott of Houston, national executive committeeman of the Young Democrats, to Austin this week has been in connection with the interplay of official and political groups for the coming democratic crusade.

There has been considerable complaining that University of Texas exes and architects situated in the city where the university is located should have been overlooked when the university looked for architects for its new group of buildings and the American Legion Centennial museum.

The various buildings were apporportioned among three firms of architects, all of Texas, but outside of one already associated with the university, no Austin firm received favorable consideration.

This final week of the prohibition repeal campaign before the election, finds even less interest among the voters in either side of the issue than had been foreseen. The issue has failed to match any of the bitter past fights over prohibition.

None of the other amendments has aroused widespread interest, except that for old-age pension has enlisted many future beneficiaries.

League Pays Bald Woman 5,000 Francs

GENEVA, Aug. 21 — A woman whose hair fell out completely while working at the League of Nations' Secretariat, sued the League for 60,000 Swiss francs damages.

She has been awarded 5,000 Swiss francs ($1,617) compensation by the League's administrative tribunal.

The woman, a French widow, Madame M. Perrasse, alleged that she was working in a room in the League of Nations' buildings where smoke from a chimney intoxicated her and led to her becoming completely bald.

Madame Perrasse had worked at the League as a shorthand-typist for over twelve years.

Charles H. Prisk, editor and manager of the Pasadena (Calif.) Star-News and Post, says: "Newspaper advertising is the most potent influence in the business life of the nation. It is so today more than ever before because of the unprecedented economic situation that exists."

"If it is true as has been said that a drop of ink makes millions think, then the countless number of drops of it that go into the producing of even a single widely-read newspaper advertisement cannot do other than occasion millions of thoughts. And these thoughts inevitably affect human life."

"Without newspaper advertising every consumer would be a financial sufferer. He would be deprived of the one sure economic guide. No longer would he know of the possible buying opportunities open to him. And in time he would come to purchase only the barest of necessities. The inevitable result would be, so far as retail trade is concerned, mercantile stagnation."

"Newspaper advertising is the force that turns the wheels of progress, that produces employment, that makes for happiness and contentment, that makes the nation itself go forward. It is the one thing that consciously or unconsciously determines, to some extent at least the course of action of every man, woman and child."

When the sun is blazing hot, your motor heat goes up, too!

To protect your motor, use Germ Processed Oil, which has 2 to 4 times greater film strength and is less affected by extreme motor heat!

YOUR MOTOR runs lots hotter in Summer. That's why you must have oil that maintains high film strength under extreme temperatures to get safe lubrication. Otherwise, the lubricating film ruptures and the bearings and cylinders suffer damaging wear.

oil and that heat above 225° does not lessen this advantage.

More proof—supervised road tests were made in identical cars fitted with the new alloy metal bearings used in many 1935 cars. The bearings lubricated with a high-quality plain mineral oil showed 45% more wear than those lubricated with Conoco Germ Processed, the first alloyed oil.

You'll be certain your motor is safely lubricated even at high temperatures if you say "O. K.—Drain" and fill with Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil—the oil with the "Hidden Quart" that stays up in your motor and never drains away.

For your Health's sake . . . HEAT Your ENTIRE House

If you are susceptible to colds, and most people have from two to three each winter, you owe it to your health to heat your home adequately as a protection against sudden changes in temperature which are a contributory cause of colds.

With the entire house properly heated and ventilated, you have greater comfort and the satisfaction of knowing that you are taking the precaution of guarding your family's health.

One single illness to a member of your family will cost you far more in money and suffering than the few dollars you will spend for adequate heat to combat winter colds. So look over your heating equipment now. Some might need repairing. Some might need replacing altogether with modern equipment. Whatever it takes, do it now, for August is the opportune time to buy advantageously modern gas heating equipment. For your health's sake, heat your entire home.

GIRLS IN 'KNOT-HOLE' BRIGADE PUT TO SHAME NOISIEST FANS

By GLENN A. GREEN
United Press Staff Correspondent
ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 21. — Five thousand high pitched little voices scream approval. Five thousand pair of tiny feet stamp in unison. And five thousand all-day suckers disappear almost magically. Those are highlights of an hilarious afternoon at the baseball game with the Rochester Red Wings. In the minor league long-range baseball planning or playground planning.

Their ages ranged from 9 to 15 (on the record); their conversation from dolls to Dizzy Dean; and their expressions run the gamut from boredom to wild excitement. They are 11,000 strong when all noses are counted—rabid but loyal baseball fans.

The United Press correspondent accompanied the girls to Red Wing stadium, home of the Rochester International League club, took a good grip on a seat in the center of the gang, and listened.

Turned Into Circus
It was a ball game, a carnival and a circus.

Three sections of the stadium was a pot-pourri of squirming, chirping humanity. Color was the motif, with two little negro girls offering a study in contrasts. They wore canary-hued frocks, white bandeaus and half-hose, bright red sandals, and they gazed down on the field through large white-rimmed spectacles.

A 70-piece boys' "knot-hole" band swung into popular ballads at irregular intervals. Always, the girls joined in the chorus, bearing down on "The Man on the Flying Trapeze." Their "O-o-oh!" in this was like thousands of blue jays, calling, screaming, having fun.

They were behind the home team to a fault; yelling "robber" at umpires on questionable decisions; "sore head" at visiting players who chose to argue with the arbiters.

Yell For Hits
When the home club was behind, they launched the traditional rhythmic cry: "We wanna hit, we wanna hit....we wanna hit"; and, when ahead, they kept up a running fire chatter. Late in the game, one of the girls noticed a tall, bronzed athlete, lazily playing catch along the left field foul line.

"Lookit!" she cried, leaping to her feet. "There's Alabama Pitts!" The gang took up the cry. "We want Alabama! We want Alabama!" The good-natured southerner from the "Big House" athletic fields waved acknowledgement.

The "pay-off" came in the last of the ninth, when the gang, casting aside decorum, broke rule No. 5 in the "knot-hole" pass book: "We must always display good sportsmanship."

An Albany player slashed a homer over the left field fence. As he rounded third base the gang sent up a tremendous "Boo" which continued until he spiked the home plate and turned toward the stands, facing the gang.

Hostility Turns to Applause
With mock courtesy, he doffed his cap, made a sweeping bow and smiled.

For a moment there was a puzzling silence of indecision. Then, using their feminine prerogative, the gang—to the last girl—applauded wholeheartedly.

As they filed out of the stadium, the loud speaker announced: "The St. Louis Cardinals will play an exhibition game here on Tuesday."

"Ah!" exclaimed a petite redhead who looked nearer 5 than 9. "Dizzy Dean!"

A mild argument ensued over whether "I'd rather have Babe Ruth."

A little sun-tan number put the controversy "on ice," however, with: "Aw, I'll take the Dionne quintuplets."

Attendants scurried through the empty stadium sweeping up thousands of all-day sucker sticks, candy wrappers and peanut hulls.

The score board showed: Albany 9; Rochester 6.

No Action Taken On Eastland C-C Money

EASTLAND, Aug. 21. — Quartered by a delegation of 20 from the Chamber of Commerce who asked for an appropriation of $150 per month, Eastland city commissioners Monday night withheld decision, indicating it was forthcoming September 15.

Hamilton McRae, president of the commerce, spoke in behalf of the organization.

Uncertainty over what arrangements may be made in order to whittle down or facilitate payment on Eastland indebtedness over $1,000,000 was principal reason of the decision non-divulgence, it was indicated and reported.

Commission Granted Postmaster Jones

EASTLAND, Aug. 21. — Frank A. Jones, who has been serving as acting postmaster at Eastland since September 1, 1934, has received his commission for the regular term.

Mr. Jones succeeded A. H. Johnson when the Eastland postmaster for 13 years resigned. Mr. Johnson had served under four presidents. He was appointed by President Harding, Coolidge and Hoover, and served for some time under President Roosevelt.

Increase in receipts for this year at the office has been noted. Postmaster Jones stated Tuesday.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JO DARIEN breaks her engagement to BETTY PAUL, college athlete star, because he objects to her taking a job as hostess at Crest Lake Inn, fashionable summer resort owned by wealthy DOUGLAS MARSH. Jo goes to Crest Lake and later Bret arrives as a life guard.

Douglas Marsh's eccentric mother dislikes Jo. PETER FRAGONET, film actor, pays Jo marked attention and asks her to marry him as soon as he can get a divorce. Jo becomes friendly with LOLITA MONTEZ, film actress.

Prompted by his mother, Marsh asks Jo to leave Crest Lake. She decides to go to Hollywood to look for a job and Fragonet persuades her to go with him by plane. There Jo begins to doubt Fragonet. She moves from her hotel to a rooming house, begins a fruitless search for work. Lola Montez sends for Jo and she goes to the actress' home. Lola confides to Jo that she (Lola) was Fragonet's first wife.

Jo sees SILAS DRANN, the director, and he asks her to come to the studio for a screen test. Jo goes.

fortable, anxious to leave. "I—I'm afraid I'll have to be getting along."
"Can I take you somewhere?"
"No, thanks. I—I've a friend waiting."
"Oh... I see." He opened the door, bowed stiffly from the region of an ample waist.

SHE was hurrying toward the big gate when she heard her name called out and turned to see Fragonet running toward her.
"Jo... Jo, what on earth are you doing here?" he asked.
"Looking for work," she told him truthfully.
"Work? Here at Atlas?"
Jo nodded. "Drann was just giving me a screen test."
Fragonet's astonishment was comical. "After all," Jo laughed, "why not?"

But Fragonet was serious. "No reason why not. Except that you should watch out for Drann, that's all."
"Don't tell me I'm just one of these poor little girls who have to watch out for the big bad director! Do you—even you—believe stories like that, too?"
"Look here, Jo," Fragonet insisted. "There's an awful lot of untruth written about Hollywood, and that director and poor-little-girl gag is one of the legends. But you have to remember this——that in every walk of life, in every business in the world, you may run into a Silas Drann."

"I'll be careful, Peter." She held out her hand. "But I really think it's all right, because Lolita Montez arranged it."
"Montez?"
"Yes... I called on her yesterday. She was grand—and she has the sweetest little girl."
Fragonet did not reveal himself by the flicker of an eyelash. Plainly he had schooled himself well where Lolita was concerned, and he hadn't the slightest suspicion that his first wife had revealed his secret to Jo Darien.

"She's quite a youngster, all right," Fragonet said evenly. "I'm surprised Lolita showed her off. Nothing's ever said about the kid, y'c'know."
Jo nodded. "I know."
"It might hurt Lolita very much if it got around generally." He paused, his glance wavering from Jo's direct blue gaze. "Confound it, I'm due on Stage Four, or I'd see you home. . . . And look here, Jo, I want to know where I can reach you."
"Not now, Peter. . . ." She turned toward the gate. "Good-by."

He seemed about to walk along with her, and then, with a hurried glance at his strap-watch, he rushed on along the cement walk.

WHEN Jo reached the little stucco bungalow she found her landlady seated on the porch steps, sunning herself. As Jo approached, the woman rose and stood stolidly as though she were guarding the doorway.

"I want to talk to you about the rent, Miss Darien. What you paid me ran out two days ago. I don't mind waiting if you have prospects—but I notice you've been fooling around with the movie crowd. I guess you figure on getting into pictures."
"Why—why, I took a screen test," Jo admitted under the withering gaze.
The woman nodded. "I've seen you young girls do that before.

I'd feel much safer about my rent if you were just looking for an ordinary job."
Flushing, Jo opened her purse. "I can give you half a week's rent now. If I give you any more I won't have enough to—"
"Half a week's rent is better than none," remarked her landlady philosophically. "And you take my advice and don't monkey too long with picture outfits. Only a few make good—and honest work is the lot of the rest of us."
Jo nodded, handing her the money. "I agree with you absolutely. But I thought I'd take this one chance."

One chance it was, Jo told herself when she was in the privacy of her room. Suppose it didn't work out?
She faced the half-formed thought that had crept into her mind—should she wire Douglas Marsh? He had said she could depend on him, that she was to appeal to him if ever she needed help. He would give it, too, she knew; he would give it willingly and anxiously, and with no strings attached. But behind him Jo saw Babs Montgomery, and her hot pride rebelled.

HER thoughts were interrupted by her landlady's voice calling her to the telephone. It was Lolita Montez, profusely apologetic for not having been in touch with Jo the day before.
"I had a perfectly hectic day at the studio," the actress explained. "And besides, I had decided it would be better if you could get something outside the lot. I've a friend who owns a sandwich shop on Hollywood boulevard. Would you draw the line at that?"
"Why, no," Jo told her, puzzled. "But I thought you sent Drann to see me."
"I'd as soon let loose the elephants at you. Where'd you get that idea?"
"He—he was here yesterday evening, and he gave me a screen test this morning," Jo explained.
Lolita swore neatly and clearly into Jo's ear. "I'll pray you're rotten, Jo. I swear I will."
"I think I'll be that without your prayers," Jo laughed. "But I can't understand why Drann would intimate you'd mentioned me when I asked him if you had."
"There're a lot of things you don't understand yet about Drann. Take my advice, Jo, and see this friend of mine in the sandwich shop even if your screen test is good." Lolita paused a moment, then went on: "And before you have anything more to do with Drann will you let me see just how much the rest of the Atlas executives know about the test?"
"You mean he might be just—"
"I wouldn't want to say that," the actress interrupted. "But I do know Drann's a nut and you have to watch nuts in Hollywood. Just sit tight and I'll see you tomorrow."
"But, Miss Montez—"
The actress had left the wire. Puzzled, Jo turned from the telephone to encounter her landlady who had been listening intently from the doorway.
"I guess maybe you were right," Jo smiled.

The woman nodded. "I built this bungalow when they were making pictures in horse barns. I'd like to have a quarter for every girl I've seen go back home wiser."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIX
THE ensuing half hour was the worst Jo Darien had ever experienced in her life, and she felt certain that never again would she go through anything at all comparable. Before her were three pairs of eyes, veiled behind cigaret smoke yet boring like gimlets. Before her was the camera with its starting lenses—and the microphone to record even her nervous breathing. Several times Jo felt sure she was going to faint, yet somehow she finished the ordeal. When she and Drann emerged at last into the comforting sunlight she was perspiring at every pore and felt so utterly weak that she could hardly stand.
"How do you think it went?" she asked Drann.
"I've seen much worse and I've seen much better," he told her. "You can't tell a thing until you get into the projection room."
"I don't have to be there, do I?"
Drann laughed. "No... I'll have a look first—and if there's a possibility, then I'll bring in Boleson and the rest." He stared at her with his wide, myopic eyes. "Come in my office and you can take off that make-up."
Behind the screen in Drann's office, Jo was startled when she looked into the mirror over the blue wash basin and glimpsed her face in make-up. It seemed silly, exaggerated, almost clownish, but she supposed the lights and the cameras took care of that. In a moment or two she emerged from the corner, and Drann turned from his littered desk.
"You'll hear from me soon." He arose and walked toward her. He was smiling, but it was hardly Jo thought, a friendly smile. "I'm terribly anxious you should succeed. You see, you are the type I admire most and I should like to give it to the screen."
Jo answered his smile, recalling an evening in the dining room at Crest Lake Inn. "You seem to admire a great many types," she laughed. "I remember you mentioned that my friend, Miss Davis, was your favorite type!"
His eyebrows raised. "Davis? . . . Oh, yes—yes, the chunky little girl who was so afraid of me. Well, that was the truth. I detest women who are skinny. Certainly you aren't skinny, Miss Darien."
"I hope not, Mr. Drann. I detest even the word itself!" Under Drann's odd gaze Jo was uncon-

WHEN you allow Headache, Neuralgia, Muscular, Rheumatic, Sciatic or Periodic Pains to keep you from work or pleasure. You can't go places and do things when you are suffering—and the work or good times won't wait for you. Why allow Pain to rob you of Health, Friends, Happiness, Money?
DR. MILES ANTI-PAIN PILLS have been used for the relief of pain for more than forty years. They taste good, act quickly, do not upset the stomach, nor cause constipation, leave no dull, depressed feeling. Thousands have used them for twenty, thirty, forty years, and still find that nothing else relieves pain so promptly and effectively. Why don't you try them? Once you know how pleasant they are to take, how quickly and effectively they relieve, you won't want to go back to disagreeable, slow acting medicines.
Chas. W. Webb, Indio, Calif.
 You too may find quick relief. Why wait forty minutes for relief when Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills will relieve you in ten to twenty minutes?
 As a household remedy I have never found anything that equalled Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills.
 Mrs. Silas D. Keller, Penfield, Pa. I never found anything that was so good to stop pain as Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills. I have told many about them and I find they are all using them.
 Mrs. Martha Lacy, Davenport, Iowa. I have been using Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills for years. I keep them on hand.
 Miss Audra Seybold, 2417 W. 2nd St., Dayton, Ohio. Your Anti-Pain Pills have been a wonderful help to me. I have used them for three years and always keep them on hand.
 Mrs. E. Pierce, Lapwai, Idaho. I have used quite a lot of Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills. They are fine pills to stop pain.
