Outlook Good for Higher Peanut Price Here

Through the Editor's
Spectacles
By GEORGE

Us editors has our troubles. Editor Cockrill of the Gorman Progress gets around a flock of them rather cleverly with the outright admission that he "got off to a bad start" a week ago in the following story:

"Last week we got off to a bad start or something of the kind for we had more 'busts' in the Progress than we have had in years. First off, we made a mistake in Leonard Stewart's Santa Claus letter and forgot to ask for his long expressed wish—another bird dog. Then we got the article about the work being done by the gas company all wrong. To cap it all we got a man's name wrong in all the ways possible. It should have been Clyde Karkalits, as the man who was going to run for tax assessor and collector and not Karl Karkalits who was named. To cap it all we failed to get a few of the Santa letters in and got an awful bawlin' out about that. So mote it be! That's the life of an editor!

"For all the above we are truly regretful and promise we may not do it again before this issue of the paper gets out."

Cockrill, you have our brotherly sympathy.

Bill Kittrell, son of Mrs. W. H. Kittrell of Cisco, and assistant to the commissioner of the Texas centennial, is in Washington with other centennial officials to invite President Roosevelt to visit Texas during the exposition next year and to make arrangements for federal participation in the exhibits. Three millions of dollars were allocated by congress for federal exhibits and detailed arrangements are being made for these now.

Kittrell has had and continues to have a great deal to do with the centennial. He was a moving force in the campaign for legislative appropriation which was successful, and he continues to take a leading part in the preparations despite the changes that have occurred in other official posts.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Herndon of Cisco are more fortunate than most folks in knowing a flesh and blood Santa Claus. He is the very Santa that Robert Ripley, of "Believe It Or Not" fame, will present over the National Broadcasting company's nationwide hook-up today.

He lives at Marshall, Mo., and he was born on a farm adjoining on which Mr. and Mrs. Herndon lived until 15 years ago when they moved to Cisco. They have known him from his birth in 1888 and have eaten numbers of Christmas dinners at the same table.

His name is Santa Claus. Born of poor parents he has cultivated his talents well. By occupation he is a plumber and a preacher, and he has a family of five boys and two girls who, the Saline County Record declares, think it's fine that their dad is named Santa Claus, but who also believe in the Santa who rides his reindeer drawn sleigh to their roof top every Christmas Eve.

"Every year," says the Record, "Santa Claus gets hundreds of letters from boys and girls all over the world. Some of them are written in Italian, in Spanish and German, and those are just a bit difficult for Santa. But when he can read them he answers every one, often writing as many as twenty-five or thirty letters in an evening."

MARKET FOR 5,000 TONS IS ASSURED

Federal Official Here Saturday Says Need Is Understood

Demands of Eastland county peanut growers that the price of peanuts be raised to a point where a profit on this year's crop is possible appeared to be meeting receptive ears when it was learned that an official of the "peanut section" of the Agricultural Adjustment administration spent late Friday and Saturday in the county. While here the official conferred with County Agent C. Metz Heald and W. B. Starr, both of whom appeared optimistic that the price would be raised to around the $65 per ton figure asked. Starr was a member of the federal peanut crop control board.

Heald and he accompanied the official to Abilene Saturday morning to confer with officials of the West Texas Cotton oil company, which has submitted a bid for buying and diverting to oil from 200 to 2000 tons of peanuts.

At Least 5000 Tons
The Washington AAA envoy told Eastland county representatives that the department of agriculture appreciates the needs of the peanut growers of the southwestern area and that the growers of the section may rest assured that an oil market for at least 5,000 tons of peanuts would be created within the next few days, and that it was hoped the farmers would be patient until all details for this market could be worked out.

Mr. Starr told the Cisco Daily Press Saturday that although he was disappointed that this market had not developed earlier, he still felt no doubt that by the first of the year the peanut growers of Eastland and adjoining counties would have an active and favorable market for their product, and that every step possible to develop this market had been taken.

Advice to growers to hold their peanuts was voiced by County Agent Heald. It was also declared that 40 per cent of the Eastland county crop was still too green to move and required further time for curing before it would be acceptable at the mills.

The Current Rate on Suckers

By IRVIN S. COBB

THE late Tom Williams dropped into a gambling house in Reno, Nevada, one night, and, playing roulette, speedily dropped his all, but not before he had made up his mind that the game was cooked.

On his way down stairs in deep disgust he met the proprietor, "g. Brown."
"What kind of a dump is this you're running?" demanded Williams. "I've just been skinned out of four hundred dollars."
"Who brought you in here?" said Brown.
"I brought myself in," said Williams.
"Oh, if that's the case," said Brown, "I owe you eighty dollars."
"How come?"
"Well, you see, I pay twenty per cent apiece for all suckers that steered in. You appear to have steered yourself in. Here's your Anna Ware, 19-year-old unwed Pennsylvania servant girl, shown with the four-months-old boy restored to her by the St. Louis court of appeals. The court held the child was not the "gift of God" baby of Mrs. Nellie Tip-ton Muench, former St. Louis society matron, who kept possession of the tot for some time.

U. S. COURT HOLDS WAGNER ACT IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 21 (AP)—The Wagner labor disputes act, the new deal measure giving employees the right to organize and bargain collectively without company interference, was held unconstitutional tonight by Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis. The opinion was the first federal court ruling on the legality of the act, passed by the last session of congress.

Otis granted the Majestic Flour Mills of Aurora, Mo., a temporary injunction against a national labor relations board complaint which cited it for alleged refusal to bargain for a wage and hour agreement with a union of its employees. Declaring that congress had exceeded its constitutional right "to regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the several states," the judge said, "the conclusion is that the whole act is unconstitutional."

At Washington, Edwin S. Smith, member of the labor relations board, said it would be decided next week whether the board would appeal from the judge's decision. Smith said the judge apparently disregarded the fundamental principle on which the act is based.

SNOW FALLS IN E. TEXAS

DALLAS, Dec. 21 (AP)—A heavy snow and sleet fell in East Texas today, sending the mercury to low thirties.

Longview's first snow of the season fell shortly before noon, after sleet fell steadily. Texarkana reported a heavy snow.

Dallas had a trace of snow, as did several other points. Other parts of the state had rain, with overcast skies.

Elks Grateful for Aid Given Show

The Cisco Elks lodge Saturday expressed its gratitude for the assistance given it in raising funds for Christmas baskets through the medium of its annual Christmas Charity Show Thursday at the Palace theater.

Citizens and merchants who contributed by direct gifts or the purchase of tickets, the newspapers and especially Manager K. N. Greer of the Palace theater who donated use of the show-house, were named. The lodge included in its expression of thanks all who in any way helped the show to be a success.

ACTION UPON CCC CAMP FOR CISCO SURE

Assurances Contained in Letters from State Park Officials

Assurance that the Cisco State Park project would be included in requests for Civilian Conservation camp allotments to be made April 1, 1936, was received Friday afternoon by Johnny Cox, president of the Cisco Boosters, in a letter from Chief Engineer R. O. Whiteaker of the Texas State Parks board.

The assurance was substantiated by a letter from D. E. Colp, retiring chairman, who, like Whiteaker, wrote in reply to a letter Cox had directed to Pat M. Neff, incoming chairman of the board.

Colp, in particular, complimented the Boosters on the brief sent in connection with the appeal for a CCC camp.

"In your letter," he said, "you certainly have set up a fine brief, in fact you gave us a lot of new information we didn't even know about. It will be very beneficial to us to include with

USSR Dispatches Say Japs Study Invasion Plans

MOSCOW, Dec. 22 (Sunday) (AP)—Reports from Khabarovsk through official soviet news channels early today said that the Japanese army in Manchukuo was studying a plan for invasion of outer Mongolia. Proponents of the plan, the dispatches said, were urging the Japanese to carry it out immediately even if it should bring Japan to war with the Soviet Union. Thursday's border incidents, in which five Mongolian soldiers allegedly were killed, was a "test attack," the soviet account said. The dispatches accused the Japanese army command in Manchukuo of acting on its own initiative with the approval of the Tokyo administration.

JAPS 'INDIGNANT' AT BORDER RAIDS

TOKYO, Japan, Dec. 21. (AP)—A dispatch today from Hsinking said the Japanese army in Manchuria is "most indignant at the lawlessness of communistic outer-Mongolians on the Manchukuo border, and may be compelled to take adequate measures to insure the safety of the Manchu-Mongol frontier."

It said Mongul groups in Manchukuo territory fired on and harassed survey parties who were attempting to define the frontier.

Police Drop Todd Case Probe But Jury Continues

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 21. (AP)—Police today dropped the investigation into the cause of the death of Thelma Todd, on the theory that she was the victim of an accident—not a "perfect crime or suicide—but the grand jury investigation continued, with the first hearing set for Monday.

Tom Cavit, the district attorney's investigator, disclosed that bloodstains were found on the running board of the actress' car. He said he believed these might indicate a struggle for her life, and almost got out of the car, but fell back unconscious.

Rev. H. D. Blair was in Cisco Saturday.

"Expected Death"

Mrs. Roland West, (above), formerly Jewel Carmen of the screen and wife of the film producer and Los Angeles cafe partner of Thelma Todd, was quoted by police as saying Miss Todd told her five years ago she had heart disease and had but five or six years to live.

Contract on Albany Water System Let

ALBANY, Dec. 21.—David Vickers, contracting firm of Sweetwater, was awarded the contract to lay new water mains for the city water works last Friday, December 13. The contract was for $28,282, less than the city estimated when the bond election was held a few weeks ago.

Work on securing this project was begun two years ago when the old water lines started giving away and it was found that new mains would cut the insurance rate which is now being paid. At the present time, the City of Albany is being penalized $5500 per year for inadequate water distribution system. When this new work is completed, $3,000 will be cut off this $5,500 and the money saved over a period of ten years will more than cover the cost of laying the lines.

To File Hauptmann Petition on Monday

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 21. (AP)—C. Lloyd Fisher, attorney for Bruno Hauptmann, said today that he would probably file Hauptmann's petition to the court of pardons for clemency Monday.

Governor Hoffman is expected to summon the court to convene between Christmas and New Year's day to consider the plea.

IS ESTIMATED TO BE GOOD FOR 100 BBLs.

Closed In Saturday When It Begins Steady Spray

The Hickok Oil Corp. well on the old dump ground property, north of Cisco, was drilled in Saturday with good prospects of oil production. The well cleaned itself with a head of four or five barrels when tools were removed from the hole Saturday morning and shortly after filled 2,000 feet in fluid. Making about a million and a half feet of gas, it began spraying steadily during the afternoon, forcing the crew to close it in. It was estimated to be good for 100 barrels daily.

The well Friday started drilling out the plug where casing was set on top of the upper streak of Eastland Lake sand at 3,394. Thirty thousand gas was encountered at 3,402 feet and this increased to 1,273,000 feet at 3,406 where the expected shale break was picked up. The bit entered the lower streak of the Lake sand at 3,417 feet.

The well is now bottomed at 3,425 feet. It was possible that further drilling would be done Monday although it was expected to complete as it stands.

The well offsets the Lone Star Gas company's Boggs and the Hickok Kleiner well, the former an oil producer and the latter biggest gas well in the area completed for 10,000,000 feet.

Hotel Clerk Is Queried in Milne Case, Says Paper

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 21 (AP)—The Record in a copyrighted story said that federal agents today questioned a clerk of the Chester hotel, who related that a young man he believed to be Caleb J. Milne, IV, asserted kidnap victim, stopped at the hotel last Tuesday night.

The clerk, Philip McMahon, said that the man was alone and apparently well when he registered as "Harry McLaughlin of Buffalo." That was three days after Milne disappeared and 24 hours before his bound and gagged figure was found near Doylestown.

Federal agents refused to affirm or deny the Record's story. The Record said that "two federal agents, after questioning McMahon, tore a page from the hotel register and brought it to Philadelphia offices for comparison with Milne's handwriting."

Schall Reported "Slightly Improved"

Northcutt vs. the Magnolia Pipe Line company for personal injuries alleged to be $450. This cause was appealed from a judgment for the defendant, tried in the 88th district court by a jury, in which the defendant was given a judgment, alleging contributory negligence. Plaintiff appealed from the judgment of the 88th court in which he alleged the defendant was liable for negligence in burying his pipe line at such a shallow depth on plaintiffs farm that it was not below his plow. In plowing his field in March, 1934, with his lines about his shoulders, the point of the plow struck the pipe line, breaking the clevis pin and throwing him over on the plow, inflicting injuries to his damage of $450. The appellate court found there was no negligence on the part of the plaintiff, and reversed the verdict of the trial court and rendered for the plaintiff and assessed his damage in the amount sued for. Frank Brown pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated and to a charge of burglary in 88th district court Thursday and received sentences of one year and two years, respectively. One indictment charged the defendant with driving while intoxicated March 4, 1934, and the other with entering the residence of R. D. Smith Sept. 28, 1932.

Politics At Random

By BYRON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

To the layman it may seem that the choice of a national convention city is merely an unimportant detail, but the politicians think otherwise.

Like theatrical producers, party strategists believe the stage setting is one of the most important parts of the show.

They try for perfection of details, and often give thought to the back drops and spotlight effects before the case is selected or the script put into final form.

They want to create the proper "atmosphere" from the very beginning, and that explains better than anything else could why the republicans are going to Cleveland.

The "atmosphere" the republican leaders want for the initiation of their 1936 extravaganza is one of eastern conservatism, tempered by just the proper amount of mid-western liberalism.

To the majority of the party leaders, Cleveland seemed to fill the bill exceptionally well.

Reasons For Choice

The chosen city is one of the country's largest industrial centers, capable of providing the much-desired background of business solidarity and financial understanding.

Yet it lies outside that section commonly referred to (sometimes contemptuously by western politicians) as "the industrial east."

It is within a state which depends heavily on agriculture, inclined in recent years to turn toward the liberal side of many questions.

In addition, Cleveland recently has turned out a democratic mayor and installed a republican in his place. Not the least important of the psychological ramifications of this is one which relates purely to a detail of convention procedure.

Nor was the possible effect of convention rallying on Ohio as a whole overlooked in the calculations of the leaders. With the democratic state organization quarreling, republican state leaders express high hope for 1936.

No Unpleasant Memories

Undoubtedly the fact that Ohio is putting forward no candidate for the presidential nomination had some weight in the decision.

Politicians usually feel that the nomination and the convention should not go to the same state; that each has a certain pulling power locally, and his power should not be concentrated in one spot.

Cleveland's chief competitors were Chicago, home of Col. Frank Knox, and Kansas City, on the boundary of Gov. Alf Landon's state of Kansas. This circumstance

WPA Project to Survey Mineral Resources of Texas to Be Conducted by University

AUSTIN, Dec. 21.—Mineral resources of Texas will be surveyed under terms of a project which has received the approval of the Texas State Planning board, the Works Progress administration and the University of Texas.

Under this program, 92 geologists, not on relief rolls, will be employed to head the investigating parties. For each geologist employed, there must be nine persons taken from the relief rolls to aid in the field work.

The project had its origin with the Texas State Planning board, which last August submitted to H. P. Drought, state works progress administrator, the plan to make a study of mineral resources under the direction of the University bureau of economic geology.

undoubtedly dampened the enthusiasm of some Knox and Landon men who otherwise might have fought harder for Chicago or Kansas City.

Cleveland likewise has a half-sentimental, half-practical appeal for historical reasons. It has no unpleasant party memories hovering about it.

But at Cleveland, in the same half where this year's convention will meet, Calvin Coolidge was named for president in 1924, amid long-remembered party glories. A return there is one way to begin to give the party that "Coolidge prosperity" label which many republicans would like to see it wear in 1936.

This plan was approved by the works progress administrator on September 6, and by President Roosevelt, November 8. Under the plan as approved, allotment is made for the survey by counties, ranging from $1,161 to $3,555 per county, the total being $375,190.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

New York — There was a Russian snap to the night as we stepped into it, causing one to wonder if Czarist Odessa had ever been like this. All day the first snow of a new winter had fallen, sending inexorable drifts against the walls and staining the streets a matchless white.

From Hell Gate to South street and from West street to Yonkers the city had greeted this spectacle of winter with the full burst of its electrical magnificence. One the gaunt spires of the churches seemed immune to snow and light. They stood grey and untouched as if engraved in grey ink on a souvenir postcard.

"This," I opined, "is not a night for Broadway and the theater." With me was the editor of a newspaper that publishes this column. He had come east on business and wanted to glimpse Manhattan after dark.

"What would you say to some vodka, and caviar, and a girl in red boots dancing on a table top in a room so filled with cigarette smoke and music you can cut it with a knife?"

He had a lot to say about it, so we got into a cab and were driven for perhaps half an hour until we came at last to a passageway that led, I will swear, to a corner of old Moscow.

A great bear of a Rasputin, resplendent in uniform, ushered us in and then a girl with the soul of lost Russia in her eyes (I didn't think that one up by myself) offered a greeting in native tongue. She accepted our hats and coats and gave us each a check in return, and then another door opened and we stepped into a room that reeled in an atmosphere of the double-eagle.

An officer saluted smartly (he was really a waiter in uniform, but that's the way they intrigue the customers) and said something in Russian which he promptly translated. It meant, literally, "Hail to the happy ones." Before we knew it we were at a ringside table, fingering curiously a jigger of that most potent of all liquid fire—vodka.

I was anxious to inquire after the girl with the red boots but didn't want to appear too eager, so I asked the officer if he wouldn't join us. "This is nice," I murmured.

"One comes here to forget," replied my officer, now strangely sober "but one always remembers." He put just the correct shading of nostalgia in his voice, which wasn't bad acting at all, considering some of the things that pop up on Broadway. Then suddenly there was a blare of music, the frenzied, climbing tempo of a Russian tune that swirled through the imagination and left one delightfully fascinated.

This was a new girl, one I had never seen. "But where...?" I asked the officer, "Where is the other girl." The officer looked to right and left, then, confidentially, "On her honeymoon. She became the bride of her childhood sweetheart—a duke—yesterday." The duke, I was able to ascertain next day, is a local boy whose papa owns one of the finest hot dog stands in all Brooklyn.

Twentieth Century Club Holds Open House Friday Afternoon

The Twentieth Century club held open house Friday afternoon as the closing meeting of the old year. Mrs. Charles Brown, president, presided during the brief business meeting at which time she presented the club with a gift of stationery and the six flags under which Texas has lived. After the business meeting a Bible Day program in keeping with the Christmas theme included the singing of carols by a group from the Community Choral club composed of Mesdames. Olin Pierce, A. E. Jamison, J. E. Walters, and Bill Smith with Mrs. S. E. Hittson at the piano.

Mrs. Joseph Perkins of Eastland, president of the Sixth District of Federated Womens clubs, gave a brilliant review of "Young Joseph," by Thomas Mann.

The group sang "Silent Night, Holy Night" at the conclusion of the program. Preceding adjournment the president read the following poem:

A Poem for the New Year.
(By GRACE NOLL CROWELL)
Let us take heart again, let us go on,
Whatever disaster or grief or despair
Walked with us through the old year that is gone,
Let us forget that it ever was there;
Let us forget that it walked by our side.
The year is before us, a pathway untrod;
There will be open roads sunny and wide,

There will be happy days, there will be God.
Let us take heart again, surely we can;
Let us build steps on the errors we made;
Let us climb up to the sunlight again
Out of the darkened wells, out of the shade;
Let us remember no evil can last;
Courage will come again certain as dawn.
The New Year is here and the old year is past;
Let us take heart again, let us go on.
Members present were Mesdames. P. Pettit, G. B. Kelly, Homer Slicker, J. C. McAfee, A. Spears, J. E. Spencer, J. J. Butts, J. B. Curry, J. B. Cates, S. E. Hittson, Charles Brown, C. H. The Lesson-Sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "God forms and peoples the universe . . . infinite Spirit being all, mortal consciousness will at last yield to the scientific fact and disappear, and the real sense of being, perfect and forever intact, will appear" (pages 509 and 295).

our application justifying the early allotment of a camp to this project. Congressman Blanton assured us he would use his best efforts in your behalf and this will be the best thing you can do because he usually gets what he goes after and I know personally he is very much interested in Cisco.
Periods Observed
Mr. Colp pointed out that the National Park service sets aside and observes certain periods to receive applications and sends back for future presentation such as are sent "out of season." He declared that application for a camp for Cisco would be made as soon as the service notified the state board of its readiness to receive applications. Whiteaker wrote that he had already made plans to come to Cisco to inspect the local site.

"It so happens," he wrote, "that a few days ago, in making tentative arrangements for a trip that I must make to west Texas, it was suggested that I should come by Cisco and give some study to the Cisco area which has not been possible heretofore, since the topographic map of the area was completed.
"I do not know at this time just when I will be able to reach Cisco, but will get in touch with you immediately upon arrival there or advise you beforehand if arrival time can be definitely foretold.
"You may be assured that when applications for the seventh period are called for that the Cisco Park will be included in the request made for camps which are to be allotted April 1st, 1936.
"Assuring you of our appreciation of the development possibilities of the Cisco State Park, and trusting to see you one day next week, I remain,
Yours very truly,
"R. O. WHITEAKER,
"Chief Engineer."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

And the angel said unto them, fear not: for behold, I bring you tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you this day is born a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. Luke 2:17.

Love came down at Christmas,
Love all holy, love divine,
Love was born at Christmas,
Star and angel gave the sign;
Worship we the Godhead,
Love incarnate, love divine,
Worship we our Jesus.

—ROSETTI.

To enter the kingdom of heaven, Jesus said, one must become as a little child. That is, he must be cleansed of his evil thoughts and healed of his evil ways. One must thirst for righteousness before he can fully appreciate its blessings. One must subordinate all things worldly to the fruits of the spirit; for those riches will endure throughout eternity.—Frank M. Slover.

Encouraging

THE statement of R. O. Whiteaker, in a letter to President Johnny Cox of the Cisco Boosters, that Cisco State Park will be included in requests for CCC camps to be allotted to state park development projects next April is encouraging. This assurance, coupled with the promise of Cong. Thomas L. Blanton at the Boosters dinner last month that Cisco would receive one of the first two camps to be allotted his district, makes hopeful the prospect that by next summer the canyon area to the north of Cisco will be under a process of park development designed to prove extremely attractive to tourists who pass through here by the thousands every week of vacation weather. By the time the trek to the Texas Centennial celebrations at Dallas and other major Texas cities is well under way, Cisco ought to be in a position to offer inviting park attractions to these prospective citizens.

Legal Inequity?

THE fact that under the local option laws of the state of Texas, which govern now that statewide prohibition has been stricken down by sovereign vote of the people of the state, a wet area within a dry territory cannot be legally wet, although a dry area may remain legally dry within a wet territory has been the subject of much discussion. Wet sentiment openly feels that this is an inequity and that, if a dry area may be permitted to exist within a territory whose general majority is wet, a wet area ought to have the same privilege.

THE American concept of government starts from the assumption that the individual is free to do anything he wants to except as he may be restricted by a majority vote of his fellows. Without law, he would be free to steal, murder, rob, and drink as much liquor as he wants to. American law is restrictive and not liberative. Where three citizens get together and two of them determine that stealing is a crime and therefore prohibited by law, it is not within the privilege of the dissenting individual to make a law of his own legalizing the practice. He must bow to the will of the majority. The same doctrine must be applied uniformly to the rest of the field of lawmaking and government. American government is based on majorities.

LIQUOR prohibition laws start from the basis that the right to drink liquor is universal except as these laws abridge it. Therefore this regulation is a progression from total unregulation toward total regulation. There is no necessity of laws to permit the use of liquor; but there is a necessity to prevent the legal distribution of such. If it was permissible under the present theory and system of government, for a subdivision or an individual to legally go behind a general negative, one has to think but a pace or two ahead of the issue to discover what a general, unmitigated mess the whole field of law enforcement would be thrown into. Respect for authority would summarily be destroyed. We here in Cisco could organize a district and refuse to subscribe to the federal mandate that we must pay income taxes or obey the laws prohibiting indiscriminate sale of narcotics. In short, the country would be in one hell of a mess if we could change the basis of law enforcement to suit our personal or local feelings on every occasion.

A wet area within a larger territory must succumb to the restrictive vote of the larger area. But because a larger territory cannot compel a smaller, internal area to continue in untrammelled liberties of indulgence, it cannot prevent it, therefore, from voting to remain dry. It requires no voting to make an area wet, the repeal of prohibition to the apparent contrary, notwithstanding. Repeal simply nullified a restrictive vote and returned the country to its primary status. A section is naturally wet, in the sense that the liberty of its citizens to drink liquor does not require a law. The same doctrine is true of the crime of murder. Before ever there was a law against killing another, one man could end another's life without incurring legal penalties. It took no law to make the murder legal, either. It was legal because there happened to be no law against it. On the contrary when a majority of the citizens decided that killing people was a crime, the contrary will of a smaller, integral part of this group of voters had to submit. The same legal facts hold true with respect to liquor.

If it were possible for a wet minority of a dry territory to continue in its wetness legally, prohibition elections would be futile and every one a farce, legally as well as actually.

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE

Why is a Golden Age nearly always a time that is enchanted by the charm of distance in the past; while a Millennium is veiled in the misty uncertainties of the future? Why is not the present which is the only little fragment of time that is available the object of our anxious favor? But the present is always filled with regrets for the past or hopes for the future. It must be because we are living in a moving world whose main characteristic is change. Experience would seem as unstable as the undulating sea then unless there is a binding and steadying cord of some kind running through it.

A state of decline is apt to make comparisons with an era of glory it once had; but an era of progress is apt to picture some millennial level of splendid achievement in the future. Statesmen of a decaying nation bemoan the past; prophets of a vigorous religion glorify the future. Malachi, the last oracle of the Old Testament succession was on the border line between the set of a waning sun and the dawn of a new day. We may expect him to be reminiscent as well as an-participant in his message to his own wayward generation.

The "day of old" and the "ancient years," the "days of your fathers," make a memory that ought to be pleasant in their recollection. The very admonition to "return" implies a recovery of an abandoned course that was and is desirable, a way wherein once they had walked. On the other hand the promise of a renewal of this pleasant experience on certain conditions, of "open windows" and blessings poured out beyond measure, of a happy nation in a delightful land, would turn them encouragingly toward the future. The unifying and stabilizing factor that gives a solid ground for hope and a strong incentive for reconsecration is indicated in Malachi 3.6. The sons of Jacob have not been swallowed up in their destructive doings and have lived over for the possibility of a chance at recovery because "I, Jehovah, change not." One unchanging factor such as that is a guarantee of escape from destruction.

WOOL 'CYCLE' HOLDS

NEW YORK, Dec. 21. (AP)—The two-year wool consumption cycle theory continued to prove itself during the year 1935. Since 1922 there have been no two consecutive years of either advances or declines.

S.M.U. Understudy Picks Bob Wilson As 'Greatest Foe'

DALLAS, Dec. 21. (AP)—J. R. (Jackrabbit) Smith, elusive understudy to Bobby Wilson, Southern Methodist's All-America halfback, startled the Methodist squad by naming Wilson on his "all-opponents" team.

Smith listed three opposition backs then carefully wrote in Wilson's name at left halfback.

His explanation: "For three years now I have been trying to break in as a regular in the Southern Methodist backfield, but, unfortunately for me, Bobby plays my position. He is the worst opposition I have," grinned Smith.

"Anyway, he's twice as good as any back I've played against. He can make all my teams."

LOWEST IN 14 YEARS

NEW YORK, Dec. 21. (AP)—A 15-year record low in both the number and liability total of 1935 drew to a close, setting records in this respect not seen since business failures was in sight as 1920.

NEWS OF TODAY FROM TEXAS AND THE NATION

Believing his invalid 16-year-old son incurable, Will Reed, 50-year-old Iowa farmer, shot the lad dead and then suicided. He left a note saying: "This is the best way out." The boy was slain while he slept. Just another "mercy death."

Declaring: "Pick me if you desire, but I'll support any liberal the republican convention selects," Senator Wm. Borah, now an avowed candidate for the republican standard bearer, is reported to have told leaders of the G. O. P. I stated several months ago that Borah was the strongest man the republicans could name, and that is still my opinion. The prediction, it seems, is being verified, for already leading republicans are organizing to name Borah or liberal delegates to the convention. "The first thing to do," Borah states, "is to get a convention committed to liberal principles. So far as my efforts count I am not going to permit personal matters, either my own or those of others, to interfere with the main purpose." In this position the Idahoan is perfectly consistent—placing principles above personal ambition. But indications now are that the Borah band wagon is going to be a very popular vehicle in which to travel to the republican convention at Cleveland. But Borah's willingness to permit his name to go before the convention is not particularly pleasing, despite the fact that he is my favorite republican, if I have a favorite, but I rather dislike to see him offer himself as a vicarious sacrifice on the republican political altar. This is what it will mean if he is nominated, as I cannot conceive of any fortuitous circumstance that would enable any republican to defeat Roosevelt next year. So one can understand why Borah is placing principles above personal ambition. He is seeking to commit his party to those principles he advocates, and wrest it from the control of the Hoover reactionaries.

White House inmates will have enough Christmas cake to give each one a "wedge" this year. President Hoover has been presented with an one-hundred-pounder. The presentation was made by Representative Stubb, a California democrat, who said the huge cake was the work of an Ojai, Calif., culinary architect.

"Then in the latter part of 1935, there will be a mysterious and sensational tragedy that will result in the death of a well-known blond actress." Thus predicted Mahlon Norvell, astrologer, last year. The news hounds have identified this prophecy with the mysterious death of Thelma Todd, which authorities seem unable to solve. Other prophecies of Norvell which have been verified, partially at least, are the separation and divorce of Clark Gable; divorce for Jean Harlow; romance of Mae West that will prove definitely whether she is married.

Larry Chittendon's "Cowboys' Christmas Ball," made famous by his poem of the ball staged at Anson on Christmas, 1885, was re-enacted Friday night. Many will recall the poem, as it has been dignified as one of the classics, and read by thousands. Many of those who attended the original "Cowboys' Christmas Ball," many coming from quite a distance, were in attendance, besides several hundred guests who watched the dancers doing the polka, schottish, figure eight and square dances from the balcony of the high school gymnasium. Boots and silver sandals clicked on polished floors, and crinolines and laces of the 80's swished beside the more sophisticated modern frocks of the present day. The poem has a particular jingle, and has delighted many lovers of the frontier as lived by the cowmen and cowhands. One stanza reads as follows:

"I was there, I say, at Anson, with the lively Widder Wall; I went to that reception, 'The Cowboys' Christmas Ball.' The music was a fiddle and a lively tambourine, And a viol, 'come imported' by stage from Abilene."

Mexico Rebellion Reported Nipped

MEXICO, D. F., Dec. 21. (AP)—The government today announced that it was learned that a rebellion was scheduled to start in Orizaba, the industrial center of the state of Vera Cruz, where the labor party has its greatest strength.

It was asserted that the movement was already frustrated with the arrests of six persons and the seizure of arms and ammunition in raids on the house of Luis Morones, labor leader and associate of General Calles.

Retail Trade Is Carried High on Crest of Recovery

By RADER WINGET
NEW YORK, Dec. 21. (AP)—Like a cork on the crest of a wave, retail trade rode high in 1935 with the surge of general recovery.

The merchandising business entered the year at high tide, post holiday sales carrying dollar value of volume to satisfying peaks, and the Easter shopping period emptied shelves in many cities.

By the time that buying wave had subsided, retailers were moving summer goods to vacation-bound customers.

There was in industry a mid-year let down which was reflected in the stores in most sections, but after the independence day holiday industrial wheels began to hum with a sharper rhythm, and merchants profited from fatter payrolls.

Partial Autumn Slump
Fall was a trying time for many. Wet weather, dust storms, floods and other hindrances cut into retail trade substantially, but even so there was no nation-wide recession. Some cities experienced large sales while others dropped well below the corresponding period of the previous year.

Thanksgiving week disclosed a sagging tendency in the east but buoyance in the mid-west, south and west coast sections.

But a sharp rebound followed, and Christmas holiday shopping established six-year records in some cities while others passed the previous year with ease.

Quality Goods Bought

Merchants reported their customers were buying more than in 1934, and demand was in evidence for better quality articles along with higher priced goods such as home furnishings and the more expensive wearing apparel.

On the average, authorities predicted a final check of 1935 should show a 5 to 15 per cent increase over 1934 for the country as a whole in retail trade.

Class I railroads of the United States had more than 25,700 passenger coaches, 2,200 dining, parlor, and sleeping cars, and 9,000 Pullmans in operation in 1934.

NEVER MIND THE LADY
by David Garth

SYNOPSIS: Terry Willett and Allaire West have met for a few hours exciting adventure. The outcome of the adventure is that a man is shot, and Terry takes the rap. But Allaire does not know; she sails for the States thinking Terry has gone back upriver to his job, and Terry takes a slashing from the native police under the impression Allaire has sailed away without caring. Now Terry is hurrying back to his construction camp, where his father is trying to stave off both fever and rapacious natives.

Chapter 15
DEFEAT

"Stick around and rest up a couple of days." That was useless and Bucky Corrigan knew it. He went on casually—"There's been shooting in the streets in Propionoire."

Willett said nothing.
"If the port is mined—"
"Then I'll get off at Dos Rios and cut around Propionoire." Willett spoke with a snap and bite to his words. "Get a gang from one of those villages on the lower Palva and get portered up the river."

Corrigan hesitated.
"I'm not trying to make it hard, son, but those villages are tied up with the fever."
"I don't give a damn how hard it is," said Willett grimly. "I'll get through. Don't worry about that."

And Corrigan abruptly knew that Terry Willett would get through. He'd have bet his last dollar on the tall redhead.

They rolled up near the small, drab banana steamer. The dock was littered with signs of the recent loading, straw, broad green leaves, burlap, blackened stems, and squashed unripe fruit.

Willett stuck out his hand.
"So long, Bucky."
"So long, fella. Maybe we'll be together on a job some place—be swell, wouldn't it?"

"Sure," said Willett. "So long."
Corrigan watched him walk quickly through the fine grey mesh of rain.

Then he leaned back in his seat, stuck his feet against the partition and eyed his enquiring driver with an anti-Spig glare.

"Redmonte Bar, you punk."
Futility; it was expressed in every detail of the camp on the banks of that tropic river—futility, despair, and a malevolent frustration. There was no life no sound except the humming of insects in that fever-ridden spot. All was beaten and groveling—hedged in by a fringe of tangled vegetation and matted creepy trees that looked hollow and unreal—with a cursed muddy river licking the slimy bases of the pontoons that supported a would-be conqueror.

The clearing was scarcely larger than a child's playground—it was but a spot plucked from the jungle and slowly returning to its own—decaying, torpid, and heated in its pathetic civilization like the head of a vulture close to the sun.

The main hut that spoke authority was square and flat-ceilinged with two-by-fours lining the walls; the window was jaggedly screened—insects mocked it as the river mocked the dredger.

A work table was littered with crumpled blueprints and shelves of foolscap filed with sprawling calculations—two unmade cots with the mosquito netting in jumbled confusion over the disordered sheets—and sickness and madness everywhere.

There was one thing that defied the squalor and defeat of the place—that was the tall bearded man who slouched wearily over a table. His eyes were very bright, too bright, and the fine straight nose breathed jerkily, thin nostrils dilating like a racing thoroughbred's.

But, withal, a hint of Mayfair clung to him; a square appearance of the shoulders, the breeding in his face, the shape of the hand that trembled with a pen—perhaps.

He was writing, not daring to lose the chance of what might be a last lucid moment.

This is left for you should I not be able to last. I know you'll get here and whatever you find—head up.

The usual last request nonsense—take me back to the States; Carteret, Virginia, is where I began—I'd like to return there. This undreamed-of sentiment will probably surprise you, but I know you'll respect this last wish—"
For a moment a brief attempt at a smile appeared on his face. As if he cared where he was buried. But it was good enough as an excuse to get Terry out of the country should he by any chance have had other ideas.

His eyes returned to his message, the last vestige of humor gone, and he had to rest his head on his free hand as the pen resumed its shaky progress.

"—and take it easy for awhile. Don't go rushing off to some Pluto's playground right away or I'll jinx everything you try to build—there are other things in life—give them a chance and they'll find you—"

His pen dropped from his fingers and rolled across the table. He rested his head in both his hands and tried to focus on the framed picture of a beautiful woman with a wealth of auburn hair and a smiling mouth. He'd snatched the rattle from her baby's hand and given him a whip.

"He's going back, Vic," he murmured. "Back to whatever you'd have wanted, I hope. Almighty God, how I hope so—"

Then Lawrence Willett permitted his head to sink upon one arm, and sighed—like a tired child who is quite willing to be put to bed.

Two weeks later a young man boarded the "Atlantic," New York bound, at Dos Rios, the last open coffee port since the guns of the revolution had begun to roar.

He paused by the rail and leaned on an elbow. For a while he watched the scurrying coffee porters down on the dock, then his gaze shifted to the long low range of hills in the background.

Behind them—Propionoire, the Palva, Pluto's playground—His eyes were misty for a moment, but only for a moment.

Something about him, the line of his mouth, the set of his shoulders, the jut of his chin, perhaps—could be named by one word.

Iron!

The bar of the Arundel Club was of glass, inlaid with silver. It was filled with fish, some of them very queer. There was one called a Trigger Fish because of the alignment of a fin, and this fish could go seventy miles an hour when it wanted to. It never wanted to.

The place had a thick carpet of Pompeian red, a sunken black dance floor, and walls panelled with full length mirrors.

Upstairs men and women in evening clothes played roulette and baccarat from midnight until dawn. The midnight crowd at the Arundel was famous.

There was quite a cluster about Allaire West. She invested all the qualities of duel in her play, chasing the bank up a tree or losing her shirt and doing either in a graceful composed way that inspired three cheers. Everybody was surprised when she suddenly got up and asked to be cashed in.

"You're stopping early tonight, Miss West," said Louis.

"Tired of it."

"Is everything all right?" he asked anxiously.

"Of course, Louis. It isn't your fault. It's mine. I don't seem to enjoy it any more. Seems a waste of time." She smiled. "Something I ate, no doubt."

She went downstairs and joined a small group at the bar. A nice-looking blond man who might have passed as a Viking made room for her.

"Are you going to drown your sorrows, or celebrate your luck?" he inquired.

"Neither, Charley. What's the matter with that fish? Doesn't it ever move?"

"All it does is eat," complained Charley.

Allaire tapped on the glass with a slim forefinger in a futile effort to stir the lethargic Trigger Fish. Charley tapped too. So did all the others. They tapped, and the Trigger Fish didn't even budge.

"Heavens!" exclaimed Allaire suddenly. "What fools we are. Getting all excited over a fish."

"I know it," said Charley. "But just think, Allaire, that fish can go seventy miles an hour. They've even reinforced the glass at the ends of the bar in case it should smack into them at full speed. If it ever got going places I imagine it would be hard to stop."

"I imagine it would, agreed Allaire thoughtfully.

"And," continued Charley plaintively, "with all that preparation, what does it do? It lolls around, eating, and preening itself.

Wouldn't it be a thrill if it should suddenly go—phht—? Justify its existence?"

"There," said Allaire, "you have raised a very pertinent point, Charley. Justification of existence is confined not alone to denizens of the briny deep. Or, as in this instance, a denizen of an aquarium bar in a plus-ultra gambling jernit."

"True," admitted Charley. He shook his head sadly and looked dejectedly at the fragile, long-stemmed cocktail glass in his fingers. "What is a Trigger Fish without ambition? A very woeful thing indeed. Nobody's any good without ambition."

"What's yours, Charley?" the girl inquired.

"Orange Blossom," said Charley. "Try one."

Will Rogers and Wylie Post Crash is Year's Biggest News

HAUPTMANN TRIAL SECOND IN SENSATION

By J. M. KENDRICK (Executive News Editor) NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—The most dramatic story of the year to American newspaper readers was the tragic death of Will Rogers and Wiley Post in an airplane near Point Barrow, Alaska.

Rogers, the humorist, motion picture actor and newspaper columnist, and Post, the globe-circling aviator, were known in virtually every home in this country, and beyond, their fame was world-wide.

This was the greatest spontaneous news story of the year. It was the story with the greatest reader appeal. A glance at circulation figures throughout the country shows more newspapers were sold on this story than on any other one news event of the year.

Ranking a close second in dramatic appeal was the trial, ending in conviction and death sentence, of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, charged with the kidnap-murder of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., in the thrill-packed Flemington, N. J., courtroom.

After his removal to the death house in the state penitentiary came the fight to save him from the electric chair. In appeal to the state's highest court was lost. The United States Supreme Court refused to review the case.

The third greatest dramatic story of the year was the assassination of Senator Huey P. Long, in Baton Rouge, by Dr. C. A. Weiss, a young physician, shot to death on the spot by Long's bodyguards.

This ranks next to the Rogers-Post crash in spontaneous stories. If it were not for the many sensations over a long period in the Hauptmann-Lindbergh case, with a deeper and more lasting public interest, I should place it second, instead of third, in listing the most dramatic stories.

Three World Stories

Of world-wide scope and of greater importance in their influence than the above three stories were:

The economic situation, marked by continued improvement of conditions in this country; the action of the U. S. supreme court in declaring the NRA unconstitutional, and the attack in courts on other "new deal" measures, including the AAA and the utilities law.

The Italo-Ethiopian war, carrying with it the ever present danger of involving other countries, notably Great Britain, France and

TEN BIGGEST STORIES OF '35

Here are the ten biggest news stories of the year, selected by J. M. Kendrick, Associated Press executive news editor:

1. Death of Rogers and Post in plane crash.
2. Trial and conviction of Hauptmann.
3. Assassination of Senator Huey P. Long.
4. Economic improvement and court attacks on "new deal."
5. War between Italy and Ethiopia.
6. Rearmament of Germany.
7. Sinking of the Mohawk.
8. Dust storms in the mid-west.
9. Kidnaping of George Weyerhaeuser.
10. Barbara Hutton's divorce, re-marriage.

other members of the League of Nations which opposed Italy's move, invoked sanctions for the first time and sought a peaceful settlement.

The open renunciation of the Versailles treaty by Germany, its rearmament, resulting in a drive for more armaments throughout the Old World, and a continuation of the anti-semitic drive.

These three continuing stories have occupied the front pages almost daily throughout the year. The Italo-Ethiopian war has been singularly lacking in drama but always holding the threat of a widespread conflict.

Barbara Hutton's Romance

The other four outstanding news stories of 1935 were:

The sinking of the Mohawk, off the coast of New Jersey, with a loss of 45 lives.

The dust storms over a great area of the high western plains, followed by a substantial recovery throughout most of the territory.

The kidnaping and release of the Weyerhaeuser boy at Tacoma, Washington, with the subsequent arrest and conviction of Kidnaper Narmon Waley and his wife.

Barbara Hutton's divorce from Prince Alexis Mdivani, her remarriage to Count Court von Haugwitz-Ieventlow, and the death of her former husband in an automobile accident.

Other Interesting Stories

Among the other interesting news stories of the year were the death of Queen Astrid of the Belgians in an automobile accident; King George's return to the throne of Greece; the suicide of Evelyn Hoey, chorus girl, in the Pennsylvania home of Henry H. Rogers, III; the killing of "Dutch" Schultz, gangster, in New Jersey; John Parrymore's romance with young Elaine Barrie, actress; the two Florida hurricanes; the stratosphere flight from Rapid City, S. D., resulting in a new record; the crash of the airship Macon, off the west coast; the operation on Alyce Jane McHenry, the upside-down stomach girl; the defeat of Max Baer by Braddock for the world's heavyweight championship and Baer's subsequent knockout by Joe Louis, the leading challenger; 12 persons killed in a Cheyenne, Wyoming, passenger plane crash; the Up-State New York floods; the Colorado-Nebraska-Kansas floods, the renewal of Japan's campaign in China; and the republican attack on the democratic administration, presaging a heated general election campaign in 1936.

The central Christmas theme of the gift will be exemplified in most of these, with White Christmas programs being presented at which presents for the poor and for various church charitable institutions will be collected.

At the First Baptist church and the First Christian church in particular will have these White Christmas programs take place at the Sunday school hours.

At 7 o'clock this evening the First Presbyterian church will present an operetta, "And There Were Shepherds." Offering there will go to the aged ministers fund of the church.

Crude Operation on Brother Done By Insane Man

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., Dec. 21. (AP)—Bob Cooper, 35, sawmill worker, victim of a crude emasculation performed by a brother with a pocket knife, clung to life today while officers sought a motive for the bizarre tragedy.

The victim's brother, Clyde, aged 33, who was released from the San Antonio state hospital in April on a furlough to his father, A. L. Cooper, of Houston, remained silent in jail here. Sheriff Tom King said that only new lunacy charges would be brought against Clyde. He said that Clyde, who is a religious fanatic, told me he saw a vision before the attack on his brother, Bob, and thought it was the right thing to do.

Clyde knocked his brother down with his fists before Bob's wife and two neighbors, and performed the mutilation as the witnesses were powerless.

Clyde was sent to the state institution after members of his family found him attempting self-mutilation.

Well Drills Into Good Oil Pay in Staff Community

The R. T. Hoff No. 1 White, located in the Staff community six miles southeast of, Eastland and about a mile northeast of the Leon Power plant, was reported here Saturday to be good for between 75 and 100 barrels after blowing in about 9 o'clock Thursday night. The well flowed 25 barrels Friday night.

The new producer is on lot 42, lease 3 and 4 of the McLennan county school land survey. It is located a mile west of the Mook-Texas Sibley pool. Geology of the structure was worked by the government about 15 years ago.

The well was drilled with a spudder to a depth of 1451 feet, when gas flow was encountered. The well was drilled to a depth of 1454 feet and a head control valve set. It was estimated that the well was producing about 1,500,000 cubic feet of gas daily.

After the control valve was set the well blew itself in for an estimated 100 barrels of oil daily. Hoff and associates of Comanche county have a lease of 650 acres at the well, which is reported to be a new horizon at the depth. The well had been drilling for about three weeks.

This was the second well drilled by the Hoff interests on the lease, the first being a dry hole. It was reported today that the well will likely be drilled deeper. Activities at the well were at a standstill Friday morning awaiting arrival of tanks.

White Gifts Program at Christian Church

A "White Gifts for the King" program will be featured at the Sunday school hour at the First Christian church today. Mrs. Charles Brown's class will present a program and each member was asked to bring a gift wrapped in white to be sent to the old people's home or the orphans' home in Dallas.

The regular morning worship, to begin at 10:45, will follow the Christmas theme. Carols will be sung by the congregation and there will be a solo by Marion Bruce. The subject for the morning sermon will be "Ready for the Feast." The evening sermon topic will be "The Word Made Flesh."

FORT GRIFFIN BONDS SOLD

ALBANY, Dec. 21.—With the announcement made this week by the Shackelford county commissioner's court that the check for the amount of the sale of the park bonds had been received, which amounted to a total of $15,121.64, and that the purchases of the 519 acres in the site had been completed, the citizenship of Shackelford county received the assurance of the certain completion of the park project as soon as the CCC camp can be allotted by the National Parks service. Congressman Thomas L. Blanton on the eve of his departure for Washington declared in a letter to the local chamber of commerce that no stone would be left unturned to get the allotment at a very early date.

Three hundred and twenty acres of the site was purchased from the Kate A. Leathers estate. This tract is very desirable for park purposes, bordering on the Clear Fork of the Brazos River for more than one half a mile, besides being bisected by Mill Creek. It is well timbered with pecan, elm, hackberry and mesquite, and embraces the old military cemetery. Another tract of 34.47 acres was bought from the Underwood estate. This is a high point surrounded on two sides by Highway No. 23 and by the graveled road to the town of Fort Griffin. On this tract is the site of the old military hospital, and some of the lesser buildings. The remaining tract of some 165 acres was purchased from H. C. Herron and contains the ruins of the actual fort buildings, the parade ground and the well.

Adult Schools of Cisco Give Radio Program Friday

Mrs. A. L. Thomas and music class of the Cisco Adult schools gave an hour's interesting program over the Dublin radio, KPFL Friday. The program occupied the air from 12:30 to 1:30.

At the close of the program Lee Humphries, supervisor of the adult schools, made a radio talk in which he gave a brief outline of the work the adult schools are doing.

He said in part: "These schools give training in almost any line of work, including literary training from the primary to the high school subjects, as well as commercial training. The home-making department gives instructions in plain and fancy sewing, and all kinds of needle-work, and the art of making the home attractive and comfortable, as well as making over garments. Our records disclose some pupils have saved as much as $75 to $100 on these items, plus the training received. "The fine arts department courses offers instruction in piano and all stringed instruments. Mrs. Thomas, head of this department, holds degrees in music from some of the leading conservatories of the country.

"Our adult schools have an enrollment of 600, with 300 in attendance.

"The nursery school for the little tots is a real feature of the adult system, for children from two to five years old, where they are taught to respect the rights of others, and also taught better manners. There are 60 children enrolled in this department with 30 in attendance."

In closing his talk Mr. Humphries gave special credit to Supt. R. N. Cluck, of the Cisco public schools, whom he said deserved the credit for the splendid success achieved, and which is supported by the business folk of Cisco.

FARROW COMPLETED FOR 133 BARRELS

ABILENE, Dec. 21.—Knight & Ewing No. 1 J. D. Farrow, south offset to the R. L. Crawford No. 1 Walsler in the Sandy Ridge pool eight miles east of Anson, completed this week for 133 barrels flowing through two-inch tubing on a 24-hour potential gauge. Lower Bluff Creek sand was drilled from 1,949 to 1,958 feet. One per cent of water showed with the oil. Location of the test is 200 feet from the north and east lines of the northeast quarter of section 6, block 15, T. & P. survey, Jones county.

Brown Eagle Oil company and Charles Kleiner No. 1 Birt Fields, wildcat three miles east of Hawley, was cleaning out after a fishing job Thursday, with no more hole drilled past 2,095 feet. It was expected to reach lower King sand around 2,225 feet. Location is in the east half of Samuel Andrews survey, Jones county.

Anderson & Kerr of Oklahoma City No. 1 Ivy, wildcat in the southeast corner of Haskell county being drilled by Ungren & Frazier of Abilene, was casing off water sand to 1,150 feet this week. It is located in the northwest corner of the east half of the northeast quarter of section 2, block 3, H. & T. C. survey, and is scheduled for a King sand test. Geology was done by Claude Daly of Fort Worth.

Tom Humphrey No. 1 Henry Dorsey estate, estimated 1,500-2,000 barrel discovery which extended the Hawley field half a mile southeast, was running six-inch casing Thursday to cement at total depth of 2,060 feet after being delayed most of this week by a fishing job. Loss of a swedge in the hole almost necessitated it being junked. Location is in the southwest corner of section 18, Manuel Bueno survey No. 196.
