CLAIMS CIGARS SOLVE 'BOX' MYSTERY

Clyde Thompson Is Given 99 Years For Slaying

REP. PATTON FIGHTING TO CLEAR NAME

TRIAL BEGINS FOR ED EBERS IN SAME CASE

By United Press
ANGLETON, July 26 — Selection of a jury in the trial of Ed Ebers, Retrieve prison farm convict charged as an accomplice in the murder of Everett Melvin began today in district court.

Clyde Thompson, another convict, was assessed 99 years by a jury last night in the same slaying. It was Thompson's third conviction for murder.

Most of the morning would be consumed in selecting the jury to hear the case. Raymond Hall also is charged as an accomplice. His trial was set for Monday. Thompson previously had been sentenced to life imprisonment.

Thompson, notorious "thrill killer," was serving a sentence at Retrieve prison farm at the time Melvin was slain. His counsel sought to show that he was insane and that he killed Melvin in self defense.

Thompson was first convicted in connection with the death of Leon and Lucius Shook of Cisco, "to see them kick." He was given the death penalty. Later the court of criminal appeals reversed this sentence and he was again tried and again sentenced to die. His sentence was commuted to life imprisonment, however.

He had readily admitted killing Melvin, but at the trial was more concerned over his appearance than over his defense.

FRANCE MANS RINGS OF FORTS FACING RHINE

By JOSEPH D. RAVOTTO
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS, July 26. — Electrification of railroads in France has led to speedier trains and as a result France today possesses 57.9 per cent of the world's total of trains traveling at a rate exceeding 62 miles an hour.

A detailed report recently issued by the French railway companies reveals that the United States is a poor second with only 27.8 per cent, with Great Britain and Canada trailing in fourth and fifth places respectively behind Germany.

Five Nations Included

The report, giving the number of trains and mileage, is as follows: France — 50 trains, covering 4,304.4 miles.
Germany — 14 trains, covering 1,863.5 miles.
United States — 24 trains, covering 627.7 miles.
Great Britain — 5 trains, covering 575.9 miles.
Canada — 4 trains, covering 109.6 miles.

France is proud of the great strides made in the electrification of its lines in recent years. The Paris-Orleans-Midi has the largest total of electrified track in France with 1,652 miles, and it is already possible to cross from the Atlantic coast to the Mediterranean seaboard by electric traction.

The electrification of this system has proceeded southward from Paris and from east to west along the valley of the Pyrenees until the time is well in sight when the electrified tracks will meet and it will become possible to travel from Paris to the Spanish frontier by electric traction.

Coal Can Be Made Into Gasoline As Oil Is Exhausted

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 26. — Every oil field in the United States will be pumped dry within 40 years and possibly in 16, an eminent Harvard geologist has predicted. But American motorists needn't worry about a shortage of gasoline.

Prof. Kirtley Mather explained when the country's petroleum supply is exhausted, we can begin turning coal down below to last 3,000 to 4,000 years. A lesson to be learned from the nation's dwindling oil supply, Mather told a Harvard summer school audience, was the shortsightedness of large scale real estate development in mining or drilling centers where there are limited natural resources.

He forecast a large migration of people from western Oklahoma and the Texas panhandle when the oil gives out.

NEW DISPUTE FLARES UP IN YOUNG DEMOS

By United Press
DALLAS, July 26. — Controversy in the ranks of Texas Young Democrats broke out again today when Joe Bailey Humphreys, Crockett city attorney, refused to debate Joe Morris of Dallas on the success of the New Deal, but offered to debate Elliott Roosevelt, son of the president.

Morris, a champion of the New Deal, had recently challenged Humphreys, who is an opponent of the Roosevelt administration. Humphreys explained his refusal by declaring he had not known of the challenge until he arrived here today and added he "could not see any reason for debating such a recent convert to New Deal policies" as his challenger.

KING SNAKE OF SPIDER FAMILY SLAYS NOTORIOUS BLACK WIDOW

"The dreaded black widow spider has met its Waterloo—and among its own kind.

That is the story of Jim Brown, 911 East Fourteenth street, who brought in the black widow and its conqueror as proof. The black insect with the blood-red hourglass was dead, and the conqueror had just been enjoying a gory feast.

"I noticed that we had a lot of grey jumping spiders around our place," Brown said, "and that I never did see one of the black widows there. I just got to wondering if maybe the grey spider wasn't a kind of king snake among spiders.

TORN CLOTHES OF SLAIN GIRL ARE EVIDENCE

By United Press
FEORIA, July 26. — The torn and bloody garments that Mildred Harkmark wore on the night she was ravished and slain were admitted in evidence today in the trial of Gerald Thompson, who is charged with her death.

The clothes were identified by Mildred's sister, Ruby, first witness called by the state.

Ben Thurman, defense counsel, decided not to make an opening statement on behalf of Thompson. Ruby testified in a low emotional voice.

The sisters shared the same bedroom, Ruby testified, and they were dressing for the evening, Mildred to go to work, Ruby to go out.

The state attorney inquired about Mildred's general physical condition. "Was there anything in the way of bruises on her arms, neck and head?" attorney asked.

"No" there was not, Ruby replied. "The next time she saw Mildred was in the morgue, Ruby testified. Thompson, slouched in his chair, appeared at ease.

CHOICES FOR TEXAS G-MEN MADE KNOWN

By United Press
AUSTIN, July 26. — Two lawyers and a newspaper editor are Gov. James Allred's selection for the proposed commission to direct Texas "G-Men" in the state's drive against crime, it was understood here today.

It is generally talked among law enforcement that the governor has chosen Albert Johnston, Dallas attorney; George Cottingham, Houston Chronicle editor; and Ernest Goens, Tyler attorney.

Allred has until Sept. 9 to make the appointments. It is expected, however, that they will be announced as soon as the act becomes legal.

Tom Hickman, noted Texas ranger, will head the intelligence bureau under terms of the act. L. G. Phares of the state highway patrol has been mentioned as likely director of the department.

Trans-Canada Air Way Looms Nearer

OTTAWA, Ont., July 26. — The long talked of Trans-Canada airway will become a reality within the next two years if civil aviation in Canada maintains its present rate of progress, it is predicted in government circles.

The proposed airway was brought a step nearer realization when the last Parliament appropriated $500,000 for use in laying the ground work, such as construction of air-dromes, landing fields, night lighting, wireless facilities and other accessories of the service.

If the next Parliament is as sympathetic to civil aviation as the old one was, it is believed here that a regular air line, bringing Vancouver to within 15 hours of Montreal, will be in full operation by 1937.

Testify Raid Aimed At Former Partner

By United Press
RUSK, July 26. — The defense sought today to refute the testimony of former business associates Johnny Rankin, former constable at Griffin, who testified yesterday in Rankin's murder trial.

Rankin is charged with murder in connection with the death of Jesse Jones, who was killed when officers seized a whisky still near Jacksonville on March 21.

The state charged Rankin and Jones were partners in the operation of the still and when they disagreed Rankin planned the raid. It was Rankin, the state charged, who fired the fatal shot.

Olympic Withdrawal Over Religion Seen

By United Press
NEW YORK, July 26. — Another vote on whether America should compete in the 1936 Olympic games was seen as a possibility today because of rising indignation over alleged religious discrimination in Germany.

The vote is expected when the A. A. U. holds its annual convention in December.

The United States has accepted Germany's invitation to participate in the games but recent developments in Germany have resulted in agitation for America to withdraw.

Jeremiah Mahoney, New York, president of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States has declared himself opposed to participation if reports of German discrimination against athletes on religious grounds are confirmed.

PLANS SHAPED FOR FFA CAMP HERE AUG. 8-10

J. M. Bird, returning from a summer of work in Iowa State college, today was working on plans for the annual Future Farmers encampment here August 8, 9 and 10.

Between 400 and 500 boys from this part of the state are expected, Bird said. They probably will begin arriving Thursday, August 8.

The boys will be quartered in the sections of the dam at Lake Cisco, just as they have been in the past, he said. The program is being mapped out.

Bird has been studying in the Iowa college, working on his master's degree. He also studied dairy-keeping conditions in Minnesota before returning to Cisco.

GREATEST DANGER IS IN WRECKS NOT WAR, SAYS CONTEST WINNER

The greatest enemy of the United States is not any foreign nation, believe it or not. It is the American motorist, faulty equipment, and all the other elements which go to make up the average automobile accident.

Winner of Thursday's "Believe It Or Not" contest, being sponsored by the Daily News in Cisco is Cecil Edwards, 707 D avenue, who brought in the fact that 25,000 more Americans have been killed in automobile accidents during the last 15 years than in all the wars that the United States has engaged in.

He listed the number of deaths from automobile accidents at 325,000, as compared with 300,000 deaths from wars.

Proof sent in with the believe-it-or-not was that this statement was taken from government statistics recently published.

Have you sent in your believe-it-or-not? You'd better hurry and do so. There is just a little more than a week to get in.

When the contest for Sunday week has been completed, the winning believe-it for each day will be sent to the national contest. In the national contest three winners will be chosen and awarded free trips to California to the Ripley collection at the San Diego fair, and to Hollywood. The winners will be accompanied by Robert Ripley, creator of the world famous cartoon.

Summer Short Courses

Each year sees a growth in the annual summer short courses at Texas A. & M. college.

Next week 30 or more persons from Eastland county will leave for College Station to attend the annual farm course. They will come back with new ideas or improvements over old ideas. They will exchange thoughts with others who have the same purposes and the same problems, and will benefit by the exchange.

Both the fire department and the police department here recently were represented at short courses for their respective departments of city government service. Both reported greatly beneficial courses. They agreed that they had to work hard, but that the work was pleasant and that they learned something.

Within the next few years the nation likely will see a great many more short courses spring up here and there, where they are easily accessible to the persons who are interested in them. And they are likely to be more interested in them, too.

That is only one phase of adult education, which is being stressed perhaps more than any other form of education in the nation.

Other phases likely will be stressed equally as much in the program to come.

Peace Negotiations Over Africa

Norman Davis, American ambassador at large, last night made the prediction that Italo-Ethiopian situation would be settled over a League of Nations council table. That was after Italy had agreed that a peaceful solution might be arranged and after Ethiopia had appealed to the League to settle the difficulty.

Both the descendants of the Caesars and the oldest Christian nation in the world said that they wanted peace—and went right ahead building up their forces for a big scrap. Each appealed to other nations—much in the manner of small-time fighters in a ring, stalling for time—to look upon their innocence in the alleged injustice being perpetrated. Each blamed the other nation for failure, so far, of peace negotiations.

This much is certain. The Italians are ready to fight. They have been transporting troops and supplies to Eritrea and Italian Somaliland, bordering the ancient kingdom. Their equipment is of the very finest and their men are well drilled.

The Ethiopians are ready to fight—to a man. They would welcome nothing more than a good physical combat. But they have nothing except their personal bravery and population of undisciplined warriors.

But the Ethiopians say that they have a weapon which even the Italians will be helpless against, Africa, Black Africa. They believe their swamps and hills and jungle diseases will halt the invading army even more than bullets would. And undoubtedly they are right to the extent that it would at least prolong such a war.

An airplane dropping bombs could do a lot of damage

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Those pesky Virgin Islands, tiny nodules in the Caribbean holding a mere 22,000 persons, nearly all colored, brought on the major clash in this administration between a cabinet officer and the Senate.

Now it is certain that Federal Judge T. Webber Wilson and Gov. Paul M. Pearson of the islands will have to leave that balmy clime. The best guess is that Wilson will be required to leave first, which will be a moral victory for Sierra.

On the other hand, Wilson, being a Democratic politician from Mississippi, stands more chance of a subsequent federal job than Pearson, a Republican appointee.

The whole Virgin squabble was such small potatoes that you can chalk an error up against Roosevelt for letting it reach the point where it waggled the foundations of the Capitol and the Interior Department.

PEARSON would have been replaced by a Democrat a couple of years ago if the character of his vilifying enemies hadn't been such as to cause Ickes and Roosevelt to support him under fire.

Wilson's activities against Pearson and his performances on the bench had been such as to assure a transfer for him, too. But Tydings of Maryland, sore because one of his political proteges had been dismissed from an island job for unsupported charges and activities against Pearson, promoted and conducted a Senate investigation.

festival with Pearson on the receiving end. After Wilson's testimony against Pearson, Tydings publicly whitewashed the judge.

Ickes was at the White House, early next morning, good and sore; determined to get in his story first. Tydings arrived later, equally sore. Both found Roosevelt's sore, too.

As if he didn't have anything else to worry about, he suggested, without such an unprecedented row as this one! So the hearings were abruptly halted.

THE Corcoran-Brewster hearings were one of the big shows of the year and a reporter, without stretching his neck much, could see Committee men Lehbach of New Jersey, pudgy veteran bulldozer; Martin Dies of Texas, who wants to deport 6,000,000 alien consumers of American goods; Chairman John O'Connor, stocky red-headed Tammanyite who arranged a no-roll-call vote on the holding company "death sentence"; rugged-faced "Goober" Cox of Georgia, and Sabath of Illinois, Corcoran's only friendly questioner.

Then there were Senator Burr Wheeler, sponsor of the Senate bill, and Congressman Sam Rayburn, its House sponsor; Corcoran, looking like an angelic choir boy in a double-breasted blue suit; Ben Cohen, tall, lean, soft-spoken intellectual; swarthy Ferdinand Pecora, their friend and former associate, grinning from ear to ear as Corcoran made what he called "the best witness in all my legal experience"; Ernest Gruening, waiting to deny Brewster's charges of intimidation; and his pretty, plump secretary, Stella Draper; burly Congressman Maury Maverick of Texas and dark little Vito Marcantonio of New York, belligerently impatient to back up parts of Corcoran's story.

Hiring a couple of Baltimore lawyer-politicians, he began hearings which turned into a muck-hurling over a populous nation. But it would have little effect on the mountains and swamps of Ethiopia, upon which the subjects of Haile Selassie will depend.

Meanwhile, Japan is sitting, looking on. Japan already has been attacked in the Italian press for alleged interference through lending its support, moral or otherwise, in what Il Duce's men believe to be their private fight.

Japan may or may not take a hand. Certainly Japan is interested in Ethiopia, at least from a commercial viewpoint. Peace negotiations will go forward. They may be successful. Certainly Mussolini will not walk out without stalling until the rainy season is over and he can enter Ethiopia. But whether or not, there likely will be some changes on the map. There are too many powers involved, too many nations to satisfy, without such changes.

Colonel Albanus Phillips, president of the Phillips Packing company, says: "Newspaper advertising performs at least one definite, vital function which newspapers themselves fail to emphasize and which, unfortunately, too few consumers properly realize."

"The popular conception of newspaper advertising doubtless is that it represents a highly effective method of creating consumer interest; is a reasonably economical means of developing distribution and that, because of resultant volume increases, unit costs of any given commodity are proportionately reduced—to both the manufacturer and the consumer."

"But of far greater importance is the influence which newspaper advertising wields in setting up standards of excellence and integrity. Standards which every advertiser must recognize and observe if there is a sincere desire to remain an important factor in any particular field.

"The task of making consumers see advertising, making them read it, understand it, believe it and want it, are all primary functions of newspapers and the men and women who prepare and illustrate advertising. But the sixth point is the problem of the maker of the commodity. And the job of causing consumers to want the same product over and over again can only be accomplished by setting up standards that are consistently safeguarded."

"Newspaper advertising, by the intimacy and frequency of its contact with readers and potential consumers, must necessarily play an important part in a nation's thoughts, customs and habits. Used merely as a vehicle of exploitation it has tremendous power. But when also employed to represent a standard of integrity and excellence, and when these virtues are steadfastly and zealously observed, newspaper advertising becomes more than a transient merchandising method and rises to the fine heights of a code of honor for the advertiser and his product and a perpetual safeguard for the ultimate consumer."

Galt Braxton, editor and publisher of the Kinston (N. C.) Daily Free Press, commenting upon the recent agitation and discussion of the differential in general and retail rates, declared that he is gratified by the growing sentiment of publishers and advertising managers to bring their rates more nearly together.

"There is no real good reason," said Mr. Braxton, "why the average daily newspaper, the circulation of which is more or less confined to its local territory, should have a wide differential in rates between the prices asked for retail or local advertising and general or national advertising." Net rates for both should approximate each other, he thinks.

Mr. Braxton pointed out that he saw no satisfactory remedy for the growing tendency of some general advertisers to chisel rates by using local dealers through whom to place their business, so long as there was such a disparity and wide differential. "Of course," he said, "the plan to put the local rate for certain classifications, including automobiles, radios, electric refrigerators, and such advertised products which as a rule are handled through national agencies at a figure equivalent to the net general rate will help some. The attempt to make such classifications, however, will not be made without surmounting obstacles and objections."

STAMPS FIRE BAREFOOTED WORCESTER, Mass.—Barefoot, Michael Yankowski, 55, dropped a match on the floor and started a fire. He notified the fire department and attempted to extinguish the fire with his feet. On arrival of firemen the blaze was out. Their call wasn't in vain, however, for they treated Yankowski's feet for severe burns.

OUT OUR WAY

BOLIVIA BUYS CATTLE FROM U. S. RANCHES

NEW YORK, July 26 — South America, among the foremost cattle-raising areas in the world, is buying breeding stock from the United States.

The second shipment of a consignment of more than 200 registered Holstein heifers, designed to work a Nordic strain into the vast dairy holdings of Patino Mines and Enterprises, Inc., at Oruro, Bolivia, will leave Norfolk, Va., July 27 on the Grace Line freighter Nosa Queen. It will constitute the largest shipment of cattle to any South American country in recent years.

Although the transaction is somewhat reminiscent of sending coals to Newcastle, Bolivia itself is a mountainous country and is not a large cattle producer. The blooded dairy stock of the Patino company, however, is almost as well known there as are the famous tin mines that made Simon I. Patino one of the five richest men in the world.

More Purchases to Follow The Norfolk shipment will bring the total of dairy cattle purchased from the United States by Patino Enterprises in the last 18 months to more than 400. Patino officials in New York said that further purchases probably will be made. The value of the cattle already bought approximates $50,000, while the cost of freight and insurance is almost as much again.

The animals leaving their homeland come from dairy farms in Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin. American Livestock Exports company of Chicago assembled the heifers after negotiations with J. A. Arguedas, Patino purchasing agent with offices in New York.

Called Largest Sale Arguedas predicted that further shipments of cattle will be made from this country for breeding purposes.

"A few years ago some cattle were sent to southern Chile," he said, "but they were few in number. This is the largest sale of the kind of which I have ever heard. The cattle possess a remarkably fine strain. Previously we have made similar importations from Holland, but the heifers from midwestern United States are of even better quality. We plan on making additional purchases in the future."

Jorge Ortiz Linares, a member of the Patino family and a Bolivian rancher, participated in the recent negotiations.

SUN-TAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JO DARIEN, finishing her first year in college, learns her father is out of work. Jo hunts a job and secures part time work in a marble supply store. There she meets wealthy, handsome DOUGLAS MARSH who offers her the job of hostess at his inn at Crest Lake. Jo accepts. This causes a quarrel with BRET PAUL to whom she is engaged and Jo breaks the engagement.

she goes to Crest Lake. Her duties are pleasant but Marsh's eccentric mother takes a dislike to the girl. BABS MONTGOMERY, a school acquaintance who is jealous of Jo's popularity, comes to the inn. PETER FRAGONET, film actor, and his wife are also guests.

Fragonet takes Jo for a snailboat ride. Babs Montgomery, piloting a speedboat, crashes into the water. She is not injured but suffers from shock. Marsh comes to see her and later Fragonet calls.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVII
"THE nurse has taken your tray downstairs," Fragonet replied. He gripped the girl's arm in a hand that trembled. "Jo—I'm a fool to try to talk to you like this when you're ill. But I'm trying to make you see how important it is. I want you enough to give up everything." He released her arm, seemed to control his emotion with effort, and then went on more quietly.

"You must feel something toward me. Out there on the lake that day you said you didn't know for certain. Do you know now?" Jo felt trapped and helpless. She realized that his advantage was unfair, that even his simple question was unfair—as long as there was a Mrs. Fragonet. And yet she felt drawn toward this man, not because of his place in a world of women, but rather because he was so like a willful child. She sensed rather than knew the tragedy of such a life, a life made up of so many easy conquests that one barrier meant almost madness.

No, he had no rights, none in the world—but he was in love with her, and he had risked his life for her. Whatever else there was to consider, these things couldn't be discounted now.

She looked half-fearfully into his dark eyes, summoning the courage to begin. "I like you, Peter. . . . I don't want to say that I love you, because I—I don't know." She smiled. "You see, I have to be careful. I thought I was in love once, not so very long ago. It seemed the most important thing in the world that I hold to a certain one man, and marry him, and live with him until I died. And then one night—with just a few words—everything was finished. But I keep on living, and I don't think about him very much now. And what I feel for you isn't at all what I felt for Bret Paul."

"How do you know that was love?" Fragonet asked. "You were a girl then, and now you're a woman. I've watched you grow into a woman in the short time I've been at Crest Lake. You're years older now than you were that day we rode from the station in Marsh's car. You can't be sure at all that you loved this boy at the university."

"I know I can't, Peter. That's true. And I may not know for a long time." "Until you really fall in love, perhaps?" Fragonet said. "Perhaps?" "Perhaps. . . ." She returned his gaze steadily, but there was something in her eyes which begged him to leave her now, to give her time to think things out. He regained his feet uncertainly and stood looking down at her.

"Jo, if only you wouldn't be so afraid," he said. "If only you'd let down your shield. I—"

HE broke off suddenly and dropped to his knees beside the bed, taking her in his arms.

"Peter! You—"

But Fragonet's lips cut off her words and he held her helpless in his arms. Weak with fury, Jo held her clenched fists against his shoulders, and as he released her she struck him across the mouth with all the strength at her command.

She was about to speak when another voice bit like acid into the silence of the room. It was Edna Fragonet's, and just beyond her Jo saw Mrs. Marsh!

"A very pretty performance, Miss Darien," Edna Fragonet was saying, "but it would have been more convincing if you hadn't seen me first."

Poor Jo could only sag there helplessly against the pillows, her mouth foolishly open. Between her anger at Fragonet and astonishment at the sudden appearance of his wife she could find no words at all. But instantly Fragonet faced the two women in the doorway.

"Let's not have one of your scenes, Edna. I assure you I'm entirely to blame." He managed a wry smile, and in that moment Jo saw the Fragonet who was the actor. He was acting now, just as she had seen him dozens of times on the screen.

"I've no intention of making a scene," his wife answered coldly. "Mrs. Marsh and I had intended to pay a sick-room visit, and we were quite unaware that we'd be interrupting."

Mrs. Marsh had glanced at Jo only once, and now her manner seemed to say that as far as she was concerned Joanne Darien did not exist. Turning her back upon Jo, she addressed Edna Fragonet in a voice as cool as if it were commenting on the weather.

"Please don't let this disturb you, Mrs. Fragonet. I'm sure that like most men, Peter is entirely chivalrous. I haven't been unduly asleep the past few weeks and I know where to lay the blame. I'll have Douglas take care of the matter in the morning."

SHE started from the room, but Fragonet detained her. "Just a moment, Mrs. Marsh. It will do you no good to talk to Doug. I'm going to give him the whole story." He whirled desperately toward his wife. "What's the use of pretending any longer? I'm damned tired of pretense. This has got to be the finish, Edna!" He stopped suddenly, then went on in almost a whisper. "I don't suppose anything I can ever do or say will make up for what I've done to you, Jo." He seemed about to add something else, shrugged helplessly, and was gone.

Jo lifted herself upright, trembling in every fiber. "Mrs. Fragonet, you must listen to me a moment. I—"

But Edna Fragonet's eyes were points of ice. "Listen to you, Miss Darien? I'm afraid it is you who must listen to me. Perhaps you think you've done it at last, but you're wrong. You'll get nothing. Nothing at all out of this, do you hear? And I'll drag your name into every newspaper from here to Hollywood!"

"The door of the bedroom slammed shut with a resounding crash, and Jo closed her eyes tight against a sudden, throbbing pain at the back of her neck. But only one thought was in her mind now—to make Edna Fragonet listen, to make her understand.

"I've got to talk to her," Jo said aloud. "I've got to make them all listen to me."

She stumbled from the bed, rushed headlong toward the closet where her dressing robe was hanging. The room seemed to whirl madly, and the floor seemed to lift and sink in waves beneath her feet, but Jo knew only that she must get down the hall to Edna Fragonet's room. She must make her see the truth, make her tell that truth to Mrs. Marsh and her son.

How Jo reached the outer door she never knew, but suddenly she was in the half-light of the hallway. And then the hallway became darker and darker still, and the carpeting lifted obliquely in a long green flash to strike her hard across the cheek.

All at once, despite the throbbing of her head and the new pain where her cheek had struck the floor, Jo felt terribly weary. She raised her head once, then let it fall gently against her arm. She thought oddly that it was too cold to be sleeping there in the hallway with only her thin pajamas and her robe over her. She thought crazily that she must sleep close to the wall so as not to disturb anyone who might want to pass that way. And then a swift curtain dropped before her eyes.

MRS. MARSH encountered Nurse Conley in the lobby as the latter was returning to Jo's room. "You won't be needed any more by Miss Darien," the old lady informed her curtly.

Miss Conley's eyes widened in astonishment. "But I—"

"Those are my orders, Miss Conley," the nurse hesitated a moment, and then replied, "Very well, Mrs. Marsh. I'll take my things from the room."

"I've instructed one of the boys to bring them to you, Miss Conley. You might drop in at the Davis cottage. Mrs. Davis was complaining of a slight cold last night."

"Yes, Mrs. Marsh."

The nurse fought a moment between her sense of duty and her desire to keep a pleasant and lucrative place at Crest Lake. Perhaps the former would have won, for it was really strong in Miss Conley, had not Mrs. Marsh left her so imperiously.

When Douglas Marsh met his mother on the wide veranda of the Inn he knew at once that something was up. He was not long in finding out just what that something was.

"You simply must let this Miss Darien go at once, Douglas," his mother said. "Perhaps the others will stand it a few days longer, but I shan't."

"Why . . . what's wrong?"

In direct fashion Mrs. Marsh told him. She told him, too, how she had seen Todd Barston and Jo coming out of her room on the eve night of the dance.

As Huge 'Flying Fortress' Awaited Air Baptism

Poised for a series of experimental flights, and then its supreme test, a hop from Seattle, Wash., to Dayton, O., the huge mystery Boeing bomber, said to be the largest land plane ever built, a veritable sky fortress, is pictured here in front and side views before making its air debut at Boeing Field in Seattle. With a wing spread of 105 feet, and streamlined over its 70-foot length, the mammoth, 15-ton low-wing monoplane has four 725 h. p. motors which can hurl it over a 2,500-mile non-stop range at a speed of from 200 to 250 miles an hour.

SISTER MARY'S RECIPES

By MARY E. DAGUE

WHEN I find myself serving peas and carrots day in day out, I go to market and deliberately set out to select new vegetables for dinner. Whenever I see something with which I'm not familiar, I ask the market man what it is and how to cook it or use it. And that way I've made some grand discoveries that have delighted the family.

Americans seldom use leeks and sweet fennel. Both are prized by foreign cooks.

Leeks belong to the onion family but are delicately flavored. They are excellent for seasoning soups and salads, and the lower white part can be trimmed and served with butter or white sauce.

Fennel is Flavorome

Florence fennel or Finocchio is used extensively by Italian cooks as a salad, but is especially palatable when served boiled with a cream sauce. If you don't know it, try it with a fish menu. Its flavor is somewhat like celery, but it has a sweet taste and delicate odor.

The topeppo is a new vegetable rapidly gaining popularity. Of a waxy yellow color, it resembles the tomato in shape and the pepper in texture and flavor. The flesh is thicker than that of the pepper, but of the same crisp firmness. It's used raw in salads or stuffed and baked, just as its ancestors are used.

If you can't find new vegetables, then try new ways of serving the old ones. A vegetable pie is quite unusual but very easy to make. Serve it with a jellied fruit salad and floating island for dessert.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Sliced peaches, cereal, cream, creamed dried beef, popovers, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Cream of corn soup, croutons, egg and lettuce salad, graham muffins, red raspberry preserves, mint cooler.

DINNER: Tomato and lemon juice cocktail, vegetable pie, jellied fruit salad, Boston brown bread, floating island, milk, coffee.

Vegetable Pie

One cup baby lima beans, 1 cup corn cut from cob, 1-2 cup sliced okra, 1-2 cup diced kohlrabi, 1-4 cup diced celery, 1 cup milk, 4 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper.

Pastry: One and one-half cups flour, 1-4 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons lard or other shortening, 4 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons grated cheese, ice water (about 1-4 cup).

Cook vegetables separately. Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Cook and stir until sauce boils. Season with salt and pepper and add cooked and drained vegetables. Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder. Cut in lard and butter and add grated cheese. Add water just as you would for ordinary pie crust. Roll half on a lightly floured molding board and line a deep pie dish. Fill with vegetables in their sauce and cover with top crust. Bake twenty minutes in a hot oven (425 degrees F.).

AT present, astronomers are divided on the question of whether or not Mercury has an atmosphere. In 1937, when the planet makes its way across the rim of the sun, it will remain in silhouette for some 40 minutes. Astronomers hope to reach definite conclusions during this period.

Suicide Ends Film-Fame Quest

Hopelessness of her struggle against tremendous odds for screen fame drove beautiful Julia Ann Graham, above, 20-year-old former Sistersville, Va., choir singer, to death by her own hand. She was found shot through the head, in the home of a Hollywood cameraman, after two previous attempts at self-destruction, in March, 1934 and again last September, when she took poison. Then Producer Earl Carroll helped her to a screen start, after she had said, "Had I known what an inexperienced girl without dramatic training faced here, I would never have left home for Hollywood. The fight is terrific—it forced me to try death rather than carry on."

BROWNWOOD, July 26. — Four Cisco students will receive A. B. degrees from Howard Payne college this summer as members of the largest summer graduating class in the history of the college. They are: Misses Mary Beth Langston, Attie Stevens, Fannie Stevens and Thomas Coleman Williams. Fifty-five students will receive degrees at commencement exercises to be held Friday night, August 2. Rev. H. R. Long, pastor of First Baptist church at Sulphur Springs, will be the commencement speaker.

Twenty-four counties are represented in the graduating class as follows: Eastland, Coleman, Brown McCulloch, Comanche, Lampasas, San Saba, Rannels, Tom Green, Karnes, Rockwall, Mills, Kimble, Erath, Reagan, Dallas, Limestone, Palo Pinto, Llano, Dimmit, Hill, Callahan, Hamilton and Concho.

The summer class numbers the same as the class which graduated last spring, which at that time was the largest class in the history of Howard Payne. A short summer session will be held from August 5 to September 4 and registration for the regular session will begin September 3.

Cure of Arthritis Still Is Doubtful

ST. LOUIS, July 26. — Chaulmoogra oil, used in the treatment of leprosy and of arthritis in lepers, has not yet proved to be a sure cure for patients suffering from arthritis, St. Louis physicians believe. Their statement was made after several months' use of the oil in the treatment of sufferers from the affliction.

Chaulmoogra oil is made from the seeds of an East Indian tree. Some scientists believe that the oil cures leprosy by dissolving tumor-like growths. It is said to have a similar action in the cure of arthritis, by dissolving the connective tissue which forms in inflamed joints and causes them to stiffen.

St. Louis physicians say, however, that it has not proved a universal cure for arthritis. Their case histories show that some have been improved and some cured by the use of the oil, but they believe more experimentation is necessary before the oil can be regarded as a positive cure.

Experimentation may reveal that one certain factor of the oil can be isolated for use in treatment. Until it is found and refined for general use, physicians promise no certain cures from use of the oil.

Eavesdropping On Radio Is Thwarted

ESCANABA, Mich., July 26. — By means of short wave radios contained in neat little overnight bags, with plenty of room left for powder puffs and cosmetics, two Escanaba girls converse with each other while at work or on a vacation.

The girls, Helen Hargreaves Cloutier, who operates a beauty shop, and Jean Lucas, employed in her father's office, have received government radio operator's licenses. Miss Cloutier was granted one within a month after she began studying the code. Through her efforts, Miss Lucas became a licensed amateur operator.

While at work the two converse freely by means of a key located with other equipment in the little brown bags.

"This way," Miss Cloutier explained, "we are assured of a private line without any interruptions. The telephone, too, is left free to take care of incoming calls, many of which concern hairdressing appointments and the like."

Both girls have talked with amateur operators in foreign countries by means of their sets.

FRANCE SEEKS TO STAMP OUT CHILD CRUELTY

By WAVERLY LEWIS ROOT
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS, July 26. — A series of crimes against children, including torture and slow starvation, charged against parents has led to a drive for more severe punishment by the ministry of justice.

A dozen cases within a month aroused national indignation. Some of the accused parents were convicted, but they received only light sentences. The minister of justice issued a circular to magistrates and prosecutors asking stern punishment.

An appeal from a six-month sentence by Francois Bleuzen focused public attention. Bleuzen was convicted of beating his two children. The appeals court increased the sentence to 13 months.

Child Beater Sentenced
Shortly after this case, Leon Desprez, habitual drunkard, was arrested at Saint Denis, a Paris suburb, on charges of beating his three children, all under five, with a leather belt. Another child beater, Jeanne Regis, of Paris, was sentenced to two years.

Louise Caroff, of Saint-Pol-de-Leon, in Brittany, was arrested after a neighbor had prevented her from strangling her daughter because she did not want to run an errand. Eugene Chardon was arrested in Paris and charged with having beaten daily the nine-year-old daughter of his mistress. On the same day Louise Saint-Maxent, housemaid, was arrested in Weirau Bois, in the north of France, on a charge of murdering her newly-born child.

Recently, three children of six, four and eleven months, were found crying with hunger, and covered with vermin, in a Paris room into which their parents had locked them while they went away on a pleasure trip. When the parents were arrested they said: "It doesn't do them any harm not to eat once in a while."

Beating Fatal to Child
On the same day, at Tully, near Calais, five-year-old Desire Delatue was taken to the hospital of Saint-Omer, where he died as the result of beatings and malnutrition.

Leon Chateletier was sentenced in absentia at Saint Nazaire to 10 months in prison for brutality to his 18-month-old daughter. This sentence also was inflicted after the ministry of justice circular.

Then, at Choisy-le-Roi, neighbors found the abandoned children, 13, 7 and 4, of Lucienne Landfried, who had left them after her lover had beaten them daily for months.

Today for Fort Worth where she will be joined by Miss Mary Elizabeth Clielet on a weekend visit in Longview.

Geography Big Problem In Settings For Movies; Causes Headache for Fred Harris

By LEO BARON
United Press Staff Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD, July 26. — The boys and girls who wonder why they have to study geography should meet Fred W. Harris. He'd tell them how important it is. To a motion picture location expert, particularly.

Such experts have to know as much about geography as a Hollywood blonde knows about peroxide. They're called on daily to supply anything from a Swedish tundra to a pint-sized glacier. Furthermore, it has to be a good carbon copy and (almost always) it has to be close to Hollywood.

Harris is that kind of a geographer. His job at Paramount is to choose the spot where a company can shoot its outdoor scenes. Some pictures are easy to place on location. When he hears it's an airplane story, Harris gets a full night's sleep because all that picture will need is a lot of sky. But when it's some picture like "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer," his worries start.

For "The Lancers," Harris had to dig up a background conforming to the Khyber Pass in India. After poring over his geography books, he learned that the Pass was a jumble of granite faults and Eocene sandstone. He scouted around and found just such a spot within 35 miles of Hollywood. The setting was accurate enough to prompt three retired Indian majors to write from London that they were stricken with nostalgia upon seeing the picture.

More recently, Harris was required to find a spot that would make a Tennessee soldier pine for his old home. Harris couldn't find that in his books so he flew to Tennessee to see just what kind of terrain would be needed. Upon returning, he chose Sherwood Forest, near Pasadena, just five miles from the locale of the Lancers' picture.

Technicians with their usual skillful hocus-pocus have erected a weather-beaten Southern village in the forest and King Vidor is now shooting scenes therein for the picture, "So Red the Rose."

Telescope Is Built From Odds and Ends

RIPON, Wis., July 26. — A high-powered telescope, fashioned from old castings, odd lengths of brass pipe, valves, connections and an old manhole base by Col. W. E. Haseltine, of Ripon, has been presented to Ripon college and will be mounted on the roof of Lane Library.

The telescope has a magnifying power of about 100 diameters — an object a mile away appears at a distance of 100 feet.

Haseltine worked nearly three months grinding and polishing the lens.

TRACE WOUND TO WIND
FORT DODGE, Ia. — A strange storm casualty occurred here in the gunshot wound suffered by Mrs. M. F. Galloway. As she slammed a door to shut out a strong wind, a rifle hanging on the wall was jarred loose. It discharged and a bullet struck the woman in the chin.

BULLET'S PATH THROUGH BRAIN OF GIRL, 5, LEAVES NO INJURY

TOLEDO, July 26. — Unmindful of the fact that she is a source of wonder to physicians because of a bullet in the base of her skull, Barbara Lois Lamont frolics just as her other 5-year-old playmates do.

Since last September a small-caliber bullet has been lodged in the mastoid bone just behind her left ear. She was sitting under a tree, chatting with her neighborhood playmates, when the bullet struck from an unknown source. It entered Barbara's brain above her right temple, on a downward course.

Apparently more frightened by blood than hurt, she was taken to a hospital. Doctors gave her six hours to live. Her chance for recovery was set at one in 1,000.

But after a few days Barbara was sent home. The fear that the child might develop signs of failing health or mentality has vanished. Next September, she will be enrolled in the first grade.

Doctors say there appears to be no need for an operation to remove the bullet, Mrs. William Lamont, the child's mother, said.

Barbara is bright-eyed and alert, and normal in every other respect.

Corn Hits New High in Kansas

Kansas farmers are learning that it's an ill-wind that doesn't do some good. Deluging rains which damaged their wheat crops have sent Kansas corn to eight and nine-foot heights, something decidedly unusual in July. In the scene above, towering, wind-blown stalks nearly envelop G. A. Briggs on his Valley Center, Kan., farm.

Legend Exists Of Dead Man's Shadow

LANGSVILLE, O., July 26. — The strange legend of the "Dead Man's Shadow" continues to exist here despite scoffing skeptics. Unbelievers have only to look upon the weird evidence — and doubt invariably assails them, believers in the tale assert.

According to the legend, a stranger walking along a highway near here was struck and killed by a speeding automobile several years ago. His body was placed on a concrete sidewalk near the scene of the accident pending arrival of an ambulance.

When the body was removed, a vague shadow of the exact proportions of the victim remained legend has it.

Some time later, workmen poured a thick layer of additional concrete over that particular section of the sidewalk it is said.

But the shadow reappeared, so say the superstitious.
