RANDOLPH TO STAGE PICNIC AT 6 O'CLOCK

Randolph college will hold its annual Randolph day barbecue this afternoon at 6 o'clock, it was announced today by Dean E. B. Isaacks.

The barbecue was postponed Saturday, due to rain. It has been the custom in the past to hold the picnic as a part of the homecoming festivities.

The barbecue will be preceded by a parade through the business district and a baseball game between Randolph and the City club of the major league on the college campus.

Admission to the barbecue will be by ticket, but authorities are anxious that anyone desiring to attend ask for a ticket, which will be furnished free. They realize that it will be impossible for them to see each person individually, it was announced, and are using the ticket method only to keep an accurate check upon the number expected at the barbecue.

25 Secret Deputy Wardens Are Named

SAN ANGELO, April 24 — Twenty-five special deputy game wardens whose names have been kept secret were appointed by the Tom Green county Fish and Game Protective Society in an effort to further protect fish and game and halt "whole-sale disregard of state laws" in this area.

The special deputies will be empowered to make arrests for violation of the fish and game laws, particularly the fishing laws of which the society is guardian.

The society will also carry on work of recapturing gar, turtles, and other predatory pests in the waters of Tom Green county.

So far thousands of turtles and hundreds of gar have been killed.

Downtown Parking System To Be Changed

ANGLE TO BE METHOD USED ON D AVE

Motorists here will have to learn again how to park their cars on D avenue, following action by the city commission last night.

The city attorney was instructed to draw up an ordinance calling for automobiles to be parked at a 45-degree angle at the curb on each side of D avenue.

At the same time, double-parking will be abolished entirely, it was said. Indications were that the ordinance would go into effect immediately.

Police Chief M. L. Perdue today said that there would be "absolutely no double parking on D avenue."

"The 45-degree angle parking will give about twice as much room at the curb and ought to take care of any traffic we're likely to have."

Permission for Change

The city recently obtained permission from the state highway department to change the form of parking from parallel to 45-degree angle at the curb. "We got permission to make the change," the police chief said, "when we promised that there would be no double parking on the street."

He pointed out that the double-parking situation has been giving both motorists and the police department a great deal of trouble lately, persons parking their cars in the streets and "boxing in" other cars and preventing their leaving the curb.

This would be even worse, he said, if double-parking were allowed with the new system, "but we aren't going to have any double parking."

The system will go into effect as soon as lines are drawn on the street to show motorists where to park. The police chief indicated that the work of painting lines would start tonight, provided there is no rain.

Windbreak Trees Cause Much Action

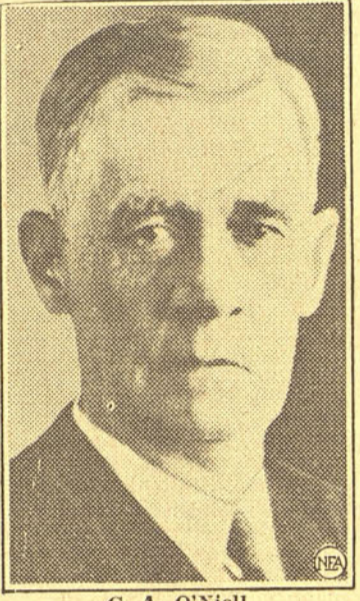

HALSEY, Neb., April 24 — This Nebraska town was a beehive of activity as more than 1,000,000 seedling and transplant trees were shipped to Nebraska farmers this spring.

The trees, to be used for windbreak and woodlot purposes, were supplied under provisions of the Clark-McNary Act. Farmers were granted the trees by paying the cost of shipping.

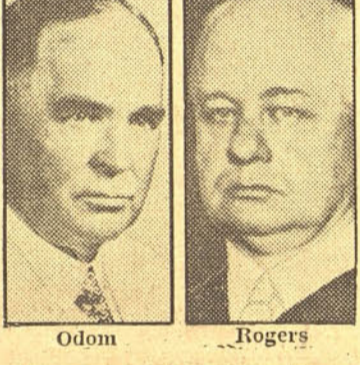

The million trees shipped from Halsey are but a part of the great number which is being planted in Nebraska this year. The American Legion is sponsoring tree planting activities in every county of the state.

Sweepstake House In Dublin Burned

(Copyright, 1935, by United Press)
DUBLIN, Ireland, April 24 — Dublin's great plaza hall scene of the Irish hospital's sweepstakes was almost destroyed by fire today.

Lightning Hits Lard Can Boy Sitting On

EAGLE LAKE, April 24 — Sidencio Adalos, 10, farm lad, owes his life to a freak of nature.

A bolt of lightning struck a lard can upon which Sidencio was sitting. He escaped with burns on his legs hands and back.

The bolt punctured the sides of the can with hundreds of small holes. No trace of the path of the lightning was found in the room.

CONVICTS ARE TAKEN AFTER GUN BATTLE

TYLER, April 24 — Mona Bell and Arthur Whitten, convicts who escaped from the county jail at Centerville last night, were captured today after a gun battle with Sheriff Tom Sikes and state highway patrol officers near Tyler.

Sheriff Sikes and Bell were wounded in the affray. Bell suffered a flesh wound in the forehead and Sikes suffered slight buckshot wounds.

John Gregory and Marvin Gordon, state highway patrol officers, were with Sikes when the convicts were captured.

The officers had received word that the escaped convicts were headed in the direction of Tyler this morning and immediately set out to capture them.

The pair was sighted five miles east of Tyler, their automobile parked beside the road. Bell, armed with an automatic shotgun, was on guard while Whitten slept. As soon as he saw the officers, Bell opened fire, the shots smashing the windshield of their car and wounding Sikes. Whitten was covered before he had a chance to reach for his gun.

AAA Amendments Favorably Reported

WASHINGTON, April 24 — The house agriculture committee today swung behind the administration and reported for the second time proposed amendments to the agriculture adjustment act.

It was the second time the committee had reported the bill, having in a court dispute over a reorganization petition filed by one of LaSalle street's biggest grain houses.

The grain exchange was faced with the possible liquidation of large quantities of grain held by the Rosenbaum Grain corporation if it permitted trading to begin in the grain pits.

It was definitely announced, however, that trading would be resumed tomorrow at the usual hour.

The decision resulted from an unprecedented dilemma which arose from a court dispute over a reorganization petition filed by one of LaSalle street's biggest grain houses.

Five Are Killed In Triple Crash

APPOMATTOX, Va., April 24 — Five persons were killed today in a crash involving three automobiles at Spout Springs near here.

Four of the victims were trapped in the wreckage and burned. Witnesses said one machine tried to pass another as the third approached over a hill. All three piled up in the highway.

Farmers Of Valley Await New Cotton

EDINBURG, April 24 — Farmers in this area await the appearance of a new variety of cotton which is said to grow to a height of 10 feet and produce an extra long fiber. It is known as "Aztec" cotton.

Seedlings already have sprouted but they have not developed sufficiently to enable farmers to determine the nature of the plant. Approximately 30 farmers have planted acreage in the new variety.

The "Aztec" seed is rare and Edinburg growers are under contract to return all seed from the 1935 crop to the original owners.

According to reports, the seed was found in an Indian cave in Colorado. The discoverer planted the seed and was amazed to find that the stalks grew 10 feet tall.

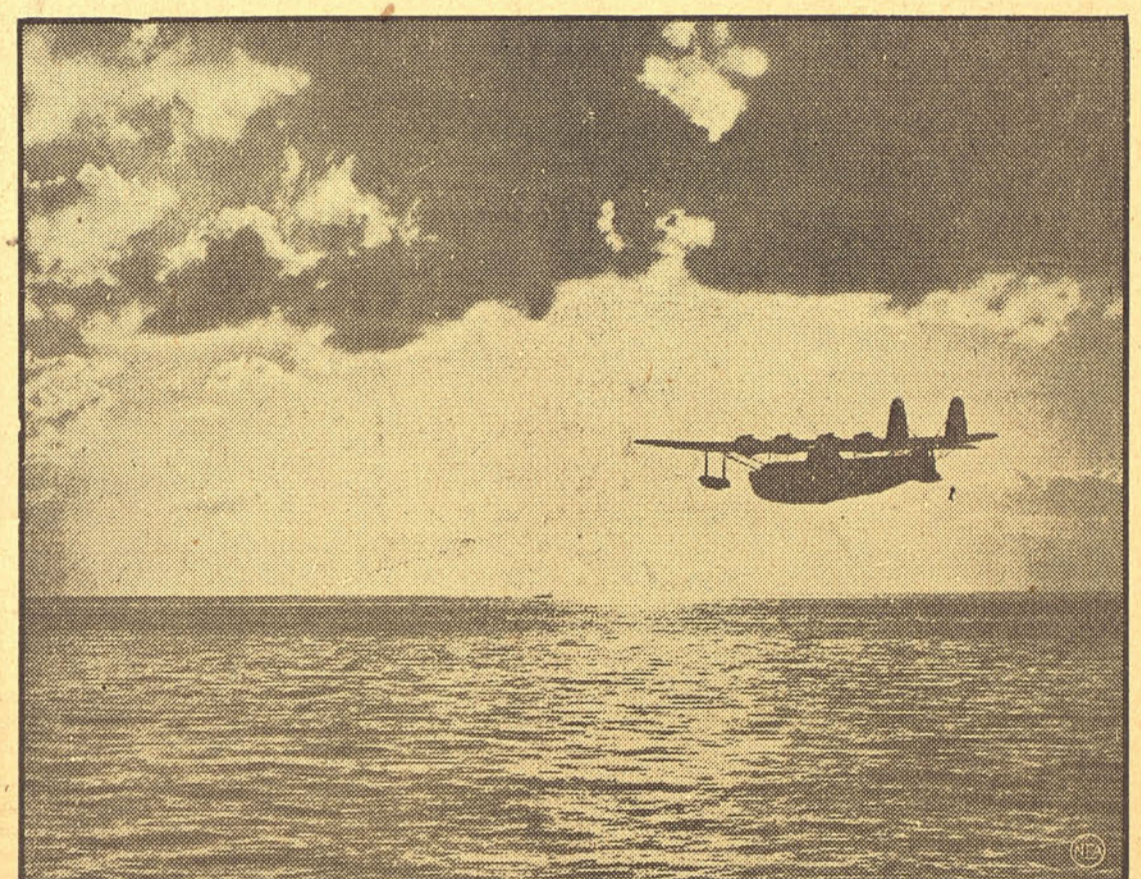

EASTER RETAIL AND CAR SALES SHOW GOOD INCREASE

WASHINGTON, April 24 — Easter shopping brought widespread increases in retail trade according to Secretary of Commerce Daniel Roper.

Along with the active retail trade, Roper said continued gains were registered in automobile sales. "Business activity in general though, failed to show progress," he added.

"In comparison with the same period of last year, however, the surveys are generally encouraging. While the gains recorded in retail sales were greater merchants were inclined to be disappointed that the volume did not reach large proportions. Chicago recorded continuation of the mail order business in good volume," Roper said.

TRADE BOARD CLOSED TODAY AFTER FIGHT

CHICAGO, April 24 — The Chicago board of trade will not open today, the board of directors decided at noon.

The decision resulted from an unprecedented dilemma which arose from a court dispute over a reorganization petition filed by one of LaSalle street's biggest grain houses.

The grain exchange was faced with the possible liquidation of large quantities of grain held by the Rosenbaum Grain corporation if it permitted trading to begin in the grain pits.

Increase Seen In South Texas Farms

SAN ANTONIO, April 24 — A five and one half per cent increase in the number of farms in 20 south Texas counties during the last five years was reported by Albert Maverrick, Jr., supervisor of the farm census.

The area reported 36,565 farms on Jan. 1, 1935 compared with 34,659 farms on April 1, 1930.

DUETS GIVEN BY GIRLS ARE LION FEATURE

Duets by Helen Green and Margaret Blythe, with Mrs. Clifford Yeager at the piano, featured the musical program presented by Lion H. L. Dyer, who had charge of the noonday luncheon program Wednesday.

Rev. Frank Turner, pastor of the First Methodist church, was a visitor at the club and he introduced Rev. C. C. Henson, who is assisting in the series of revival services now being conducted at the Methodist church.

Rev. Mr. Henson replied to the introduction by saying that if he were a commercial salesman he would say that he was traveling for the biggest concern in the universe, the president of which was all powerful and his line of goods, the redemption of human souls, the destination of which would be eternal glory in heaven. Rev. Mr. Henson's talk was well received and he was urged to visit the club again next Wednesday.

The report of the Easter egg hunt committee was received, the committee thanked and discharged. On motion by Lion Mitt Williams, this hunt was voted to be an annual affair to be staged under the auspices of the Lions club.

At a business meeting of the directors, the payment of the Lions part of the money for the piano recently purchased was authorized. At the same meeting, the directors voted to donate their half of the old piano to the Mexicans.

Program chairman for the next four weeks are as follows: J. C. King, May 1; Charles Kleiner, May 8; W. H. LaRoque, May 15; W. J. Leach, May 22.

WASTE, TAXES UPON GAS ARE SENATE TOPIC

AUSTIN, April 24 — Natural gas waste and natural gas taxes both occupied the attention of the Texas senate today.

Sen. Clint Small, Amarillo, introduced a bill to prevent the billion cubic feet a day wastage in the Texas panhandle, where he resides.

At his request the senate adopted unanimously a resolution for an appeal to the Illinois legislature not to tax Texas natural gas that is piped into that state. Five bills were reported to be before the Illinois legislature to tax Texas gas from 5 to 10 cents a thousand cubic feet after it reaches Illinois.

The resolution reminds the Illinois legislators of "pleasant and valuable commercial relations" between the people of the two states and expresses the hope that these relations will not be disturbed.

11 Jurors Chosen In Hitch Hiker Killing

EDINBURG, Tex., April 24 — Eleven jurors were chosen by noon today in the trial of James McAllister, former Texas convict, charged with murder for the hitch hiker killing of Percy Calkins, Houston traveling salesman.

In a statement of officers, he admitted that he shot the salesman, robbed him, and tossed the body in a cactus clump near Edinburg, March 30. He was unconcerned as selection of jurors continued, however, and sat working crossword puzzles.

Rejection Note Of Reich Acknowledged

LONDON, April 24 — Great Britain has sent Germany a short formal, and somewhat cold acknowledgment of its rejection of a League of Nations council vote of denunciation, it was learned today. Other nations are expected to do likewise.

It was understood that the other 13 governments to whom Germany sent its note also will take the course of a brief acknowledgment of the rejection, without arguing the rights or wrongs of German disarmament or the council's denunciation of it.

Naturalization Of 7 Persons Sought

SAN ANTONIO, April 24 — Seven persons, the largest number in many years, sought naturalization at the United States district court here recently.

Six of the group were Germans and the seventh a Greek.

AGENCIES NOW EXISTING WILL CARRY BURDEN

WASHINGTON, April 24 — President Roosevelt turned school teacher today at his press conference, solemnly shook his finger, and laid down an eight point program for the work relief program.

The president emphasized that the existing agencies will carry the load.

Then he outlined the eight-point program to spend almost $5,000,000 for everything from bonedoggling to bridge building.

The program:

- 1—Highway construction, grade crossing elimination.
- 2—Rural rehabilitation and relief in stricken agricultural areas, with all its ramifications.
- 3—Rural electrification.
- 4—Housing, low cost in urban and rural areas.
- 5—Assistance to white collar workers.
- 6—CCC work.
- 7—Loans to political subdivisions.
- 8—Soil erosion, reforestation, and miscellaneous projects.

Undersecretary of Agriculture Rexford Tugwell, original brain trustee, will head the rural rehabilitation as previously reported.

The president promised that during the week he would announce other steps required in the organization.

He said the Federal Emergency Relief Administration gradually would taper off, although it would continue to function after a fashion in caring for those employable who through force of circumstance in their communities, could not come under the works program.

ROOSEVELT CHANGES ATTITUDE TO CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, April 24 — President Roosevelt has so far abandoned his so called dictatorial way with congress that politicians are looking around for a reason.

Mr. Roosevelt may have shifted his congressional attitude to protect the administration against charges of dictatorship or to permit legislators to prove that they are not New Deal rubber stamps.

Some observers believe Mr. Roosevelt is recognizing the fact that this congress is not safely secured to New Deal objectives and if handled roughly might break away in a general bolt.

ACREAGE FOR EROSION JOB BEING LISTED

AUSTIN, April 24 — West Texas and Panhandle farmers hoped for more rain today, but did not wait for nature's aid in halting wind erosion which has done untold millions of dollars of damage to their fields this spring.

Forty-six counties undertook movements to list a total of 5,395,000 acres to prevent blowing. FERA furnished ten cents per acre for the costs. County agents were to supervise the work under direction of Dr. O. B. Martin, extension service director for Texas A. & M. College. The farmers were to do the work.

By May 1 the listing is to be completed, although further applications for aid are expected to follow.

Counties included in the program are Dallam, Sherman, Hansford, Ochiltree, Lipscomb, Hemphill, Roberts, Hutchinson, Moore, Hartley, O'Dham, Potter, Carson, Gray, Wheeler, Collingsworth, Donley, Armstrong, Randall, Deaf Smith, Hall, Childress, Motley, Cottle, Foard, Farmer, Castro, Swisher, Briscoe, Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Floyd, Cockeran, Hockley, Lubbock, Crosby, Dickens, Yokum, Terry, Lynn, Garza, Gaines, Dawson, Borden and Clay.

Interesting Events of World and Nation

At least four states have felt the influence of the government at Washington in its expression that no relief funds are going to become tools of those who would use them for graft or to further private political influence. Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator, takes direct charge of unemployment relief in Georgia, following PWA funds withdrawal from that state, following argument with Gov. Talmadge, of that state.

Senator Huey Long is warned to keep his hands off of PWA funds in Louisiana. Meanwhile Illinois and Pennsylvania are told they must assume more of their own relief load. Other states may follow the lead of Arizona in keeping an ambassador in Washington to follow through on relief disputes that may involve huge amounts. Washington will follow through very carefully in the disbursement of its huge relief funds.

The United States and Great Britain have both addressed notes to Japan, that she will be held responsible for losses of their citizens in the Manchoukuo oil monopoly. Japan has been trying to have these countries treat directly with Manchoukuo in the oil troubles, but since these countries do not recognize the existence of this puppet of Japan, they cannot, therefore, talk about troubles with it. The oil trouble is not smoothing the relations with Japan, by any means.

The accidental burning of a boy's fingers in a milk-drying test at Iowa State college, led to the discovery of a milk and honey candy making process which is now being utilized to absorb the milk and honey products of Iowa's farms. This process has now reached a stage to where it is being put on in a large commercial basis.

God made man with a discerning mind so that accidental learning attracts him to the finding out about strange and unusual happenings. Further investigation usually brings about permanent establishment of facts which become something important in the life of man.

The appalling conditions which pervade the squalid conditions of Japan's impoverished millions, is emphasized by reports which emanate from the earthquake victims, now number more than 3,000 dead and nearly 10,000 injured. Without water, provisions, and no shelter from the burning heat, many are becoming insane and their condition is horrible. Japan is impoverishing her common people, taxing them to spend billions on war materials, instead of developing better living conditions at home, so that her people could be cared for in just such emergencies as this.

But Japs are a fatalistic people and do not complain. There is a religion that makes them glory in self sacrifice for the Emperor and country, in order that they may be rewarded in the hereafter.

City jealousies in Texas may yet ruin the chances of the state to hold a successful Centennial in 1936. The time is already short if we are to really cash in properly on this great occasion. Meanwhile California goes along and will get many plums from the sightseeing public that should come to Texas.

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The AAA is out-Hoovering the old Federal Farm Board in its cotton loan operations.

It has loaded up with 4,270,000 bales on loans at 12 cents a pound, which means $256,200,000.

Like the Farm Board, AAA has failed to peg prices, and the market price has fallen below the loan value. And everybody is bothered by the heavy decline of cotton exports and a prospective carryover of 9,000,000 bales.

Farmers who can get 12 cents a pound for cotton from the government naturally haven't cared to export it for less.

Friendly observers of AAA fear that the cotton loan program, which was no part of the crop adjustment scheme and was forced upon the administration by loud outcry from cotton states, may develop into AAA's first real big disaster.

Growers can and will take the cotton back if the price rises above 12 cents, but right now AAA isn't very hopeful about that.

AAA officials have the weapon of compulsory control, which the old Farm Board didn't have, though already this year's program calls for a 35 per cent reduction and waits for, and from dispossessed tenant farmers and sharecroppers grow louder every week.

The 5,000,000 bales which it will have on hand by the end of the marketing year in August can't be unloaded commercially without ruining the market, of course. So AAA officials are discussing the possibility of cutting down cotton production in 1936 to almost nothing and giving warehouse receipts for its loan cotton to growers in return for reduction promises.

ANY strikes in basic industries this spring or summer will result in harsh defeats for organized labor.

This private belief of labor leaders here is one good reason for predicting that there won't be any, notwithstanding the threat of a serious conflict in the rubber industry.

Automobile, steel, and textile workers have not been effectively organized by the A. F. of L. and in each of those industries production is now being curtailed—which means the worst possible time for a strike, from the union standpoint.

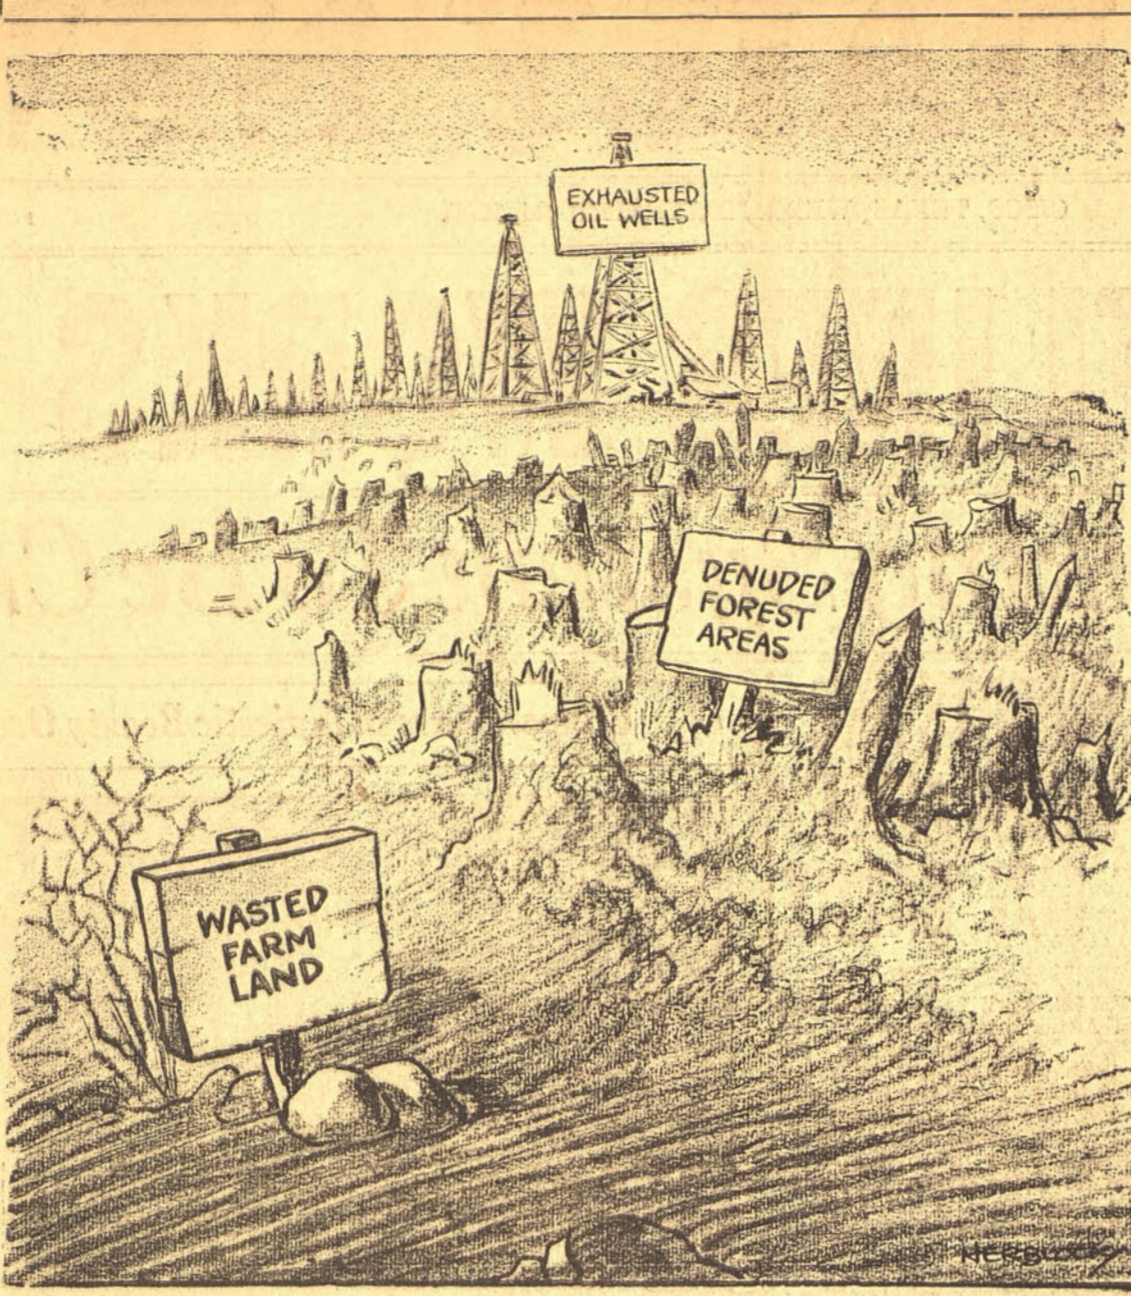

YOUNG New Dealers who helped put through the stock market act or are helping administer it through the Securities Exchange Commission are taking a lot of credit for the unhorsing of President Richard Whitney of the New York Stock Exchange and his "gang."

SEC. by demanding a revision of the governing methods and regulations of the exchange, strengthened the commission brokerage houses and encourages them to revolt against the banking houses, floor brokers, underwriters, and other insiders who had always fed on them through a self-perpetuating oligarchy headed by Whitney, who has now been defeated for the presidency.

For the first time, Wall Street was incited to a fight in its own ranks and the theory here has been that the public, as against the insiders, would begin to get more of a break.

BEGIN HERE TODAY MILLECENT GRAVES, secretary to GEORGE DRINGOLD, had her employer in his office, and JARVIS HAPP, a stranger, offers to help her. He sends her to a beauty shop where she is transformed into a brunette, then takes her home, introducing her as his secretary. She meets HARRY NORMAN; his stepson, ROBERT CAISE; Mrs. HAPP; DICK GENTRY, HARRY's partner; and VERA DUCHENE, Mrs. Happ's maid.

In Harry's home Millicent sees the mysterious woman in black ermine whom she believes has some connection with Dringold's death. The chauffeur is found dead. Later HARRY is kidnapped. Millicent and Norman learn the car driven by the woman in ermine belongs to PHYLLIS CONNER and go to her apartment. While they are there someone tries to enter, they leave. Norman follows to find out who it is. Millicent, alone, discovers the missing suitcase containing Harry's business accounts. She steps into the corridor, carrying the suitcase, sees a man coming toward her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXVI

MILLECENT stared at the man walking down the corridor. Her eyes wide with startled comprehension as she recognized him. For several seconds she did not realize that the unusual illumination of the corridor made it virtually impossible for him to see her. Only when he passed before the doorway of the apartment she had just left did Millicent fully appreciate that Richard Gentry was coming to the apartment upon some errand in connection with those stolen books of account. Gentry paused at the door, started to fit a key into it, then, apparently changing his mind, he raised his right hand, knocked twice, paused, knocked twice more, repeated these two knocks after an interval, and then gave one last knock.

Millicent, watching, saw that he did not wait for an answer but, following the knock, immediately fitted a key to the door and entered the apartment.

It was at that moment that Millicent suddenly realized her predicament. Gentry was undoubtedly going after those books. He would discover that they were missing and it would be but a matter of seconds until he dashed out to the corridor, aware of the theft of the suitcase containing those precious books. Perhaps he would make for the elevator but it was far more likely that, in his haste to descend, he would dash down the corridor toward the stairs.

Millicent snatched up the suitcase and such was her excitement that she was entirely unconscious of its weight as she sped down the stairs. She had started down the last flight leading to the lower floor when she suddenly realized that she would be trapped between the lobby of the apartment house and the sidewalk, held back by the weight of the suitcase.

THERE was no time to balance the probabilities. She had to think and act fast. A window opened onto the fire escape and she hung the suitcase over the sill down to the steel-barred platform and followed it, almost before the suitcase had thudded to the steel grating.

She had barely gained the platform and adjusted her skirts about her ankles when she heard the sound of feet thudding down the staircase. She turned toward the corridor and saw Richard Gentry dashing past, running rapidly.

He shot past the window and she heard the bang of his feet on the lower stairway as he ran down toward the lobby. Millicent looked below her and saw an alleyway, shaded and gloomy, piled with garbage cans, boxes, barrels, broken packing cases, and other bits of rubbish. She felt certain that, while perhaps an occasional truck might rumble through the alleyway, there would be but little traffic through it and few pedestrians.

She turned the suitcase over on its side, used it as a seat, crossed her ankles, tucked her skirt about them, placed her elbows on her knees, and waited. After some minutes she heard the thud of feet as two men laboriously climbed the stairs. One of them was talking and, while she could not catch what was said, she recognized Dick Gentry's voice, and could tell that he was both angry and frightened.

The pair climbed up the stairs to the third floor. She waited anxiously but did not hear them return. The shadows lengthened, a coolness filled the air. Millicent felt cramped and weary.

Had the two men remained in the apartment on the third floor or had they returned by way of the elevator? She had no means of knowing, and realized that she never could know without exposing herself to danger.

She picked up the suitcase, pushed it through the window to the corridor, stood listening for a moment but heard nothing except the distant rumble of traffic and the pounding of her own pulse in her ears. She ascended the stairs. The lobby was deserted. She crossed to the door, tugged it open and her heart gave a wild leap as a cruising cab driver, seeing her struggling with the door and the heavy suitcase, slid his car to the curb and flashed her an inquiring glance.

At her nod he slammed on his brakes, jumped across the intervening stretch of sidewalk, picked up the suitcase, and said, "Where to, Miss?"

She had no particular destination. She dared not go back to Jarvis Happ's house. She remembered the name of the cheap hotel where she had spent the night which followed Dringold's murder. She gave the caddy the name of the hotel and added, "I'm in a hurry. Please make it as fast as you can."

The cab lurched into motion and Millicent, flashing a glance back at the apartment house, saw a rufous swing around the corner and glide to a stop at the curb.

She saw Bob Caise jump from the car almost before it had come to a stop. Millicent settled back in the cushions, too frightened to look back again, fearful that Bob Caise would see her and start in pursuit.

She rewarded him with a generous tip and met the cynical appraisal of the clerk who stared at her from behind the desk with world-weary eyes.

Millicent knew the man's type. She stared at him haughtily and said, "Let me see your register, please." He handed her the book and she looked back through the pages until she found the name under which she had registered and the room number that had been assigned to her. Then she closed the register and said, "What rooms have you vacant, please?"

He handed her a chart. Millicent saw that the room she wanted was vacant, but she pointed to another room and said, "What's the price on this by the night?" "A dollar seventy-five."

SHE frowned, slid her finger down until it rested on the room she wanted.

"This room?" she asked.

"That," he said, "will be $1.50."

"I'll take it," she told him, opened her purse, slid a bill across the counter, wrote in the register, "Miss Millicent Jones," and said, "Will you please have a boy bring up my suitcase?"

He banged the palm of his hand down on a bell and yelled, "Front." A sleepy looking bellboy emerged from an elevator, sized Millicent up with insolent eyes, and picked up her suitcase and the key which the clerk handed him. Millicent pocketed her change, followed the bellboy to her room, handed him a small tip, closed and locked the door and even took the precaution of drawing the shades. Then she went to the place where she had concealed the notebook in which she had written Dringold's detraction. The notebook was still there.

Millicent took the notebook, dropped it into the suitcase and faced herself in the mirror. She now had every bit of valuable evidence in the case in her possession. She had the shorthand notebook which had caused Bob Caise so much concern, the books of account which had been stolen, the note in Bob Caise's handwriting which definitely linked him with the woman in the black ermine coat.

"What a prize I would be," she muttered. "Anyone who captured me now would have every shred of evidence in the case."

Her meditations were interrupted by the ringing of the telephone. Millicent stared at it with a feeling of panic. The steady, insistent ringing of that telephone bell seemed to indicate that she had been discovered.

Slowly she crossed to it and took the receiver from the hook. The voice which came over the wire was that of the clerk at the desk. "Miss Jones," he said, "there's a gentleman here to see you."

"I don't want to see him. I know no one in the city. There's some mistake."

"The gentleman," the clerk said, "gave the bellboy a tip and is on his way up. I'm just letting you know."

Millicent gripped the telephone receiver, wondering what to do. As she wondered, imperative knuckles pounded against the door.

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, April 24 — Sen. John Redditt of Lufkin has the last word on the validity of petitions to the legislature.

About 20 of the leading business men of one of the towns in his district signed a petition. One man wrote Redditt-urging just the opposite, sending him the numerous signed petition. The man took the petition and on its back wrote a petition for his views, exactly contrary to the other side, took it around and got the signatures of nearly all the original signers. This he sent back to Redditt.

When a committee got exercised about a lot of petitions from all over the state identically-worded, Sen. Redditt got this one out, showed his colleagues the two conflicting requests on the same sheet of paper of the same set of men.

"What weight should petitions have with lawmakers?" seemed to be the question.

Prayed and jangling nerves are a natural consequence of the long wear and tear of the legislative session upon Texas lawmakers. Sessions are intense, in the scramble for position the push-and-pull of getting bills up and getting votes of fighting disfavor measures. Even committee sessions have come to resemble hair-pulling contests in some cases and often-times citizens business men or other individuals chosen back home to present arguments before committees become the victims of unintended punishment. These visitors, except hardened official representatives, usually are timid about legislative committees, and unfamiliar with the freedom of discussion and verbal tug-of-war tactics. Some of them no doubt go home wondering if they haven't heard somewhere that the smooth-tongued lobbyists could get a hearing but the individual citizen was likely to be reproved, abused, harried out or bulozed, if he ventured to try to address a committee.

Cong. Joe H. Eagle of the Houston district has written back to Texas legislature assurance of his cordial support of its resolution opposing federal control of oil and gas production. He told the house and senate he had heartily approved state democratic party platform plank against abdication or surrender of the state's power to control production of natural resources; and that he also heartily agrees with the legislative concurrent resolution.

"At the last session," he said, "I gave unstintingly of my time and energy and political standing in congress to defeat the Ickes-Thomson-Disney oil control bill," and that he had spoken in favor of creating the Cole committee to investigate whether there was need of federal control.

"In my judgment," he said, "Texas people should make and enforce their own laws of conservation to suit her own people, and there should be no new 17th amendment, in effect to apply to oil, as the 18th amendment did to beer and liquor, for the benefit of the racketeers."

That both the seller and the consumer benefit by advertising. When competition is keen, wise business concerns double their advertising and get the business.

The most prosperous and progressive business concerns are heavy advertisers because it is the greatest aid in increasing their sales.

The best selling efforts are always linked with advertising.

When the public buys service or merchandise from the business concerns that advertise, they get the best merchandise and service available.

These business concerns believe in selling merchandise that satisfies. They carry quality goods that cost no more than inferior merchandise.

You can save by buying advertised merchandise. You should get the habit of reading the ads they bring opportunities to your door every day.

GARDEN EQUAL 165 WOODLAKE, Cal. — Smoke a pipe and raise a garden. This prescription for long life was offered today by Mrs. Mary Clezmore, local centenarian, in response to hundreds of written and verbal queries as to how she keeps active at 105. Mrs. Sizemore believes she may have to give up her gardening in another three or four years, but remarks she will cling to her life and her pipe 10 years more, anyway.

SCHOOL BOY BUILT AUTO REDLANDS, Calif. — John Verardo drove to high school in state today in an automobile five feet long and three feet wide that he built from scrap iron and tin. A one-cylinder motorcycle engine is capable of driving the little car 40 miles per hour and gives 400 miles to a gallon of gasoline. It took six months to build.

WASHBOARD BRIDGE CLINTON, Mass. — A landmark of which this town isn't proud is what is known as "Bouncing Bridge" a span between Clinton and West Boylston whose washboard surface causes motorists to bump their heads on car roofs. No less than a dozen cars have zoomed over a 30-foot embankment at that point when bouncing drivers lost control.

Mother and sister went to the hospital for repairs while Ray went on with his meal.

BATTLESHIP IS FEATURED AS CARS PARADE

It was a big day for Chevrolet and the A. G. Motor company in Cisco, Tuesday when the big battleship, U. S. S. Chevrolet advertising All-Steel Turret Tops for Chevrolet automobiles, fired her gun announcing her arrival in Cisco early in the morning as a preliminary for a big parade of Master and Standard Chevrolets over the main streets of the city.

At 5 o'clock a parade of 15 new 1935 Chevrolets, led by the battleship set sail from the A. G. Motor company's show rooms, heading north on D avenue, making the loop by the union station, heading into D avenue again at the Cisco Daily News building and thence south to Fourteenth street, firing her gun stationed on the battleship's deck repeatedly.

After the turn, the parade headed out sixth, by the new federal building and again making a turn at Front street to come into Ninth, thence back to D and to anchorage in front of the A-G Motor company's show rooms.

Mayor J. T. Berry and J. D. Lauderdale, cashier of the Cisco State Bank, headed the parade with A. D. Anderson, president of the A. G. Motor company, driving a new Master Six. The battleship followed in the wake, with the other 14 cars forming the parade, many of them driven by women owners, all with horns sounding regularly, interspersed at intervals by the echoing gun fired from the battleship's deck.

A. D. Anderson and Jack Anderson, president and vice president, respectively, of the A. G. Motor company, announced themselves as delighted with the showing and were profuse in their thanks to the women and others who had graciously lent their support to making the parade the success it was.

The battleship U. S. S. Chevrolet, set sail for Breckenridge on the early morning tide.

FAMED "Y" BRIDGE TO GO ZANESVILLE, O.

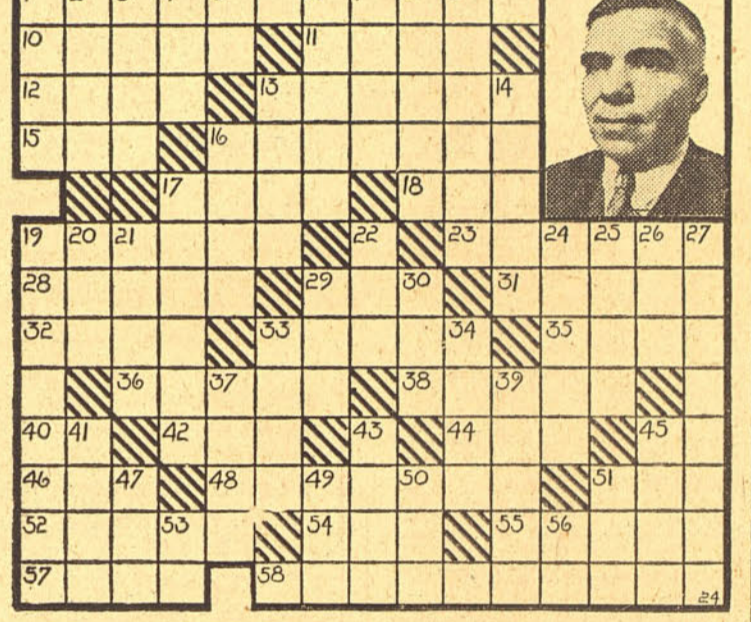

The only "Y" bridge in the country today was marked for removal in connection with the watershed program of the Muskingum conservancy district here. Lt. F. S. Tandy, who is in charge of dam construction work, regards the bridge as a detriment to the watershed program and as a flood menace. For that reason he has recommended its removal.
