Appeals Court Holds Lower Gas Rate Valid

DECISION HAS NO EFFECT ON LOCAL PRICES

The approval of a 32-cent gas rate order for cities using Lone Star gas will not affect Cisco or Eastland, it was announced today by H. L. Dyer, head of the Community Natural Gas company here.

Neither Cisco nor Eastland has a gas rate, he said. "Gas is purchased here direct from the field at six cents a thousand feet."

AUSTIN, July 10. — A sweeping decision of the third court of civil appeals here today held a 32-cent gas rate set by the Texas railroad commission for the Lone Star Gas company had not been shown to be confiscatory or unreasonable by the company court attack upon the order.

The appeals court rendered judgment for the state and dissolved an injunction against making the rate effective.

Railroad Commissioner Chairman E. O. Thompson immediately announced the way is open for the 200 cities and towns served by the company to order reduced rates to consumers. The 32-cent gas rate is eight cents lower than the rate formerly imposed.

Thompson backed his statement by fighting from the court decision that "the railroad commission may make its order requiring distribution companies to pay not in excess of such rate without further notice on hearing."

The opinion, however, dealt only with the state's interest in the case. Dissolution of a three-judge federal restraining order must be given by the attorney general's department before cities may finally reduce their gas rate.

Estimated saving to consumers is $1,400,000 a year.

The company has 15 days in which to file motion for rehearing by the court of civil appeals. If that is overruled, they can ask the state supreme court for a writ of errors.

The 32-cent rate was ordered by the commission September 13, 1933. Included among the cities receiving gas from the Lone Star are Cleburne, Eastland, Cisco, and Sweetwater.

SAYS GOLD SUITS TO ENDANGER AGREEMENT

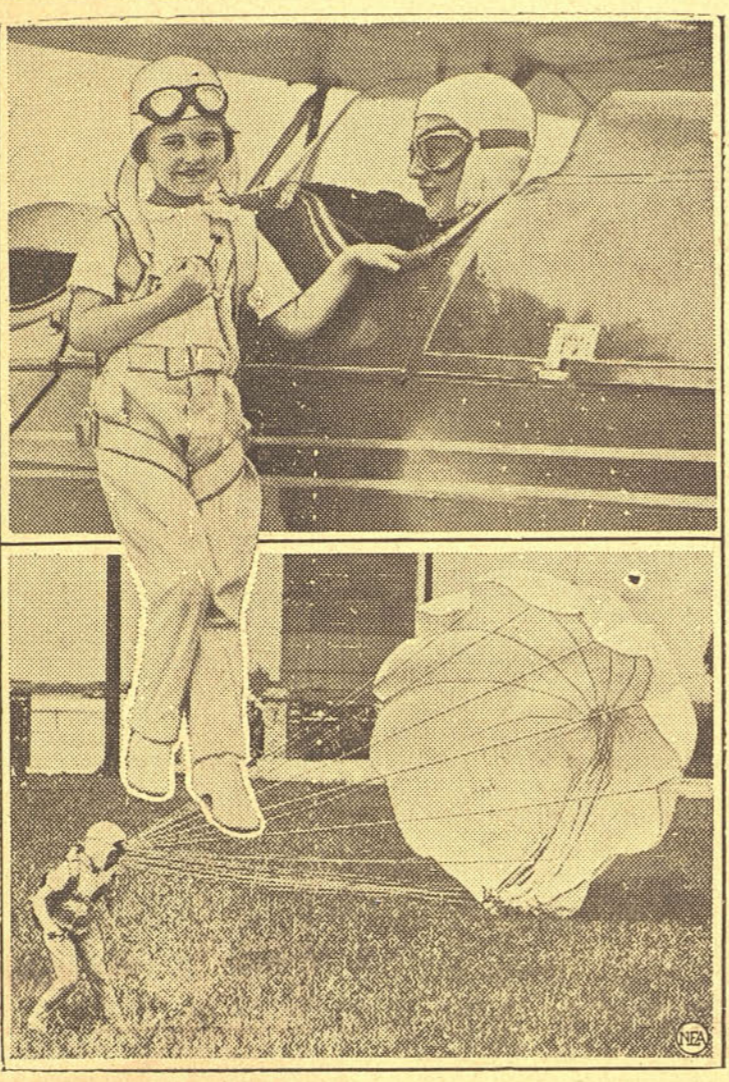

WASHINGTON, July 10. — Attorney General Homer Cummings today warned the house banking committee that failure of congress to enact legislation outlawing gold clause suits against the government would make any international gold standard agreement "almost impossible."

FIVE OF GANG HELD FOR QUESTIONING

McALLEN, July 10. — Sheriff Bob McDaniel of Hidalgo county said today that five members of the robber gang headed by Samuel Fortuna, border bad man, were held for questioning regarding the slaying of Deputy George Bennett Sunday night when he attempted to arrest Fortuna.

Fortuna was captured yesterday by Mexican officers and is held in Reynosa, Mex. Four other members are in jail at Edinburg.

Tiny Air-ess to Flying Talent

At an age when other tots are warned not to venture out of the yard, Joyce Hartung, 5, is asked not to leave the plane! But if she should tumble off, she has her own little chute, with which she is shown below to carry her safely to the ground. Joyce's mother, pictured in the upper photo, and Joyce's dad, who operates an airport and flying school near Detroit, are both licensed airplane pilots. And little Joyce is said to have more flying hours to her credit than any other child in the country.

Two Girls Drowned While Swimming Tuesday In Lake Mansell at Ranger

RANGER, July 10. — Lucile Bush, 16, of Ranger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Bush and Eleanor Rae Drinkard, 15, of Eastland, were drowned in Mansell Lake two miles northwest of Ranger about 3:30 Tuesday afternoon while the two were in swimming with Mrs. J. E. Bush, an aunt of Lucile.

The three had gone in swimming about half an hour before the accident and Mrs. Bush could not find them until they were in the water.

The Bush girl, who was the better swimmer of the two, started to shore and then noticed that the Drinkard girl was not able to swim out and returned to try to rescue her. Both girls went down together and drowned.

MRS. BUSH STARTED TO THEM, but realized she could do nothing, since she could not swim, and then ran to the house of Mertz Ratliff, caretaker at Evergreen cemetery, about half a mile away. Ratliff recovered the body of Lucile Bush almost immediately and tried artificial respiration, while two other men recovered the other body.

Eleanor Rae Drinkard lived at Eastland and had been visiting in the Bush home for about a week. She is survived by her parents, two sisters and a brother.

Lucile Bush is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Bush. Mr. Bush is an employee of Lone Star Plant 101, and is in Savannah Mo., on his vacation.

Illiterate Charged In Death of Woman

CORPUS CHRISTI, July 10. — H. T. Whittaker, illiterate vegetable peddler was in jail today following confession yesterday to the slaying of Mary Evans, whose body was found near Sandia several weeks ago.

"Well, folks, I done it," officers quot Whittaker as saying, "I don't why, I've been a good man before. I've paid my bills and worked hard. It just happened."

The vegetable peddler said Miss Evans promised to drive him to the lower Rio Grande valley and when they reached Sandia asked him for money. An argument ensued and he struck her on the head with a club and a piece of iron when she accused him of lying, the sheriff said.

VICTORY FOR ROOSEVELT ON UTILITY SEEN

WASHINGTON, July 10. — The utilities holding company bill was sent to conference today when Senator William Dieterich, democrat, Ill., agreed to withdraw to instruct senate conferees to recede from their former position on the "death sentence" feature.

The action was regarded as a temporary administration victory, although there was no indication that the senate conferees under leadership of Senator Burton K. Wheeler could force the house to accept the death sentence provision in the form in which it was advanced originally by the administration passed by the senate.

Dieterich withdrew his motion after Wheeler promised every effort would be made to work out an agreement with the house and that if no satisfactory arrangement could be made that the senate would have another opportunity to vote on the death sentence.

HOUSE TO EXPAND UTILITIES LOBBY

WASHINGTON, July 10. — The house today voted $50,000 to prosecute and expand its investigation into alleged lobbying for and against the Wheeler-Rayburn bill.

At the same time, the senate audit and control committee approved a request for $50,000 for a general senate investigation of all lobbying at this session.

Women Join Men In Electric Strike

FORT WORTH, July 10. — Two women have joined their husbands in their fight to regain their jobs with the Texas Electric Service company.

Mrs. W. R. Tully and Mrs. W. L. Morrison, both of Eastland, were discharged when the NRA was declared illegal. In protest the two women and 10 men are displaying signs saying the company in Fort Worth also is unfair to organized labor.

The strike began at Eastland after three men and two women were discharged. The men on picket line from Eastland here today were F. H. White, H. D. Daniel, W. R. Tully, W. L. Morrison, T. O. Adair, Joe Epperson, W. H. Cooper, L. R. Heath.

Man Is Freed On Charge of Murder

LIBERTY, July 10. — T. E. Barnes, cafe man of Hull, was free of murder charges today in connection with the shooting of Ernest Baucum, also of Hull, in 1933. A district court jury acquitted Barnes yesterday.

Barnes said he shot Baucum in self defense after an argument over alleged illicit relations between Baucum and his daughter, Virgie Barnes. The trial was completed in two days.

Coach Chapman To Return Here Today

Coach W. B. Chapman of Lubbock is expected to return to Cisco today from Philadelphia. He went there some time ago for an operation on his throat, designed to restore his voice.

He was joined this week by Mrs. Chapman, who will return with him. Assistant Coach Berle Hoffman has been in Philadelphia with Coach Chapman, it was said.

Coach Chapman has been in the Temple University hospital.

HAPSBURGS END 16 YEARS OF EXILE AS PROPERTY RESTORED

VIENNA, July 10. — Sixteen years of exile for the Hapsburgs ended today when the federal diet passed unanimously a bill authorizing their return and the restoration of property confiscated from the royal family.

The measure is expected to pave the way for young Archduke Otto, now in Belgium, to return to the former Austro-Hungarian throne.

Passage had been assured long before the vote and climaxed vigorous agitation for the royal exile.

Restoration of the old Hapsburg dynasty, the heightiest of Europe, would be viewed with uncertainty because of the possibility of international complications arising from the post-war alignment in central Europe.

Honeymooners Lost the Point

Niagara's roar was momentarily challenged as this mammoth blast tore a 5000-ton slice off Table Rock at the Canadian tip of Horseshoe Falls and sent it crashing into the gorge below. Fifty thousand holiday visitors watched spellbound as a second blast reduced the ledge, often called "Honeymoon Point," to half its former size. The dynamiting was undertaken to guard against possible rock slides from a crack extending 200 feet along the table.

Cisco Round-Up, Pioneer Paper, Saw Dallas News Begun Half Century Ago

The Cisco Round-Up, established in 1881, helped to pave the way for journalism, it was revealed today in a letter from G. B. Dealey, publisher of the Dallas News.

The old paper, known now as the American and Round-Up, is one of the few pioneer newspapers still being published, which saw the founding of the Dallas News on October 1, 1885. It still is published as a weekly, just as it was then, but has grown with the passing years and now is published with a daily paper, the Cisco Daily News.

GARNER WINS OPENER FROM HUMBLE CLUB

Garner's all pepped up over a perfect half-season and with a playoff for the city softball title in the bag, opened the second half of the night play season here last night with a 12 to 1 victory over Humble.

Humble, however, was severely handicapped over loss of several first-stringers for the evening and was unable to put up as good a game as it might otherwise have done. Elvins pitched good ball for the winners.

Tomorrow night the Community club will meet the Lobes in the second game of the second half of the season. These two teams finished the first half in a dead heat, each with a percentage of 500, and both will be out to break the deadlock.

Tonight's game will bring together the Community and the Putnam All-Stars in an extra-league game. The Putnam club is reputed to be good and to have an especially fast pitcher.

Two Adult Schools Announce Opening

The announcement was made this morning of the opening of the FERA Adult school in South and East Wards.

An art course is offered under the direction of Mrs. D. E. Waters. On Monday, Wednesday and Friday the course will be taught at the South Ward from 2 to 5 o'clock. On Tuesday and Thursday the same course will be given at the East Ward from 2 to 5 o'clock.

Classes in sewing will also be conducted at these schools and on the same days. Anyone that might be interested was asked to enroll at once.

Bee Swarm Lured From Main Street

BURLINGTON, Iowa, July 10. — The counterpart of "Lightnin' Bill Jones," who "druv a swarm of bees across the desert and never lost a bee," was found here in Earl Benson, farmer, who captured a vagrant swarm in the business district here with a "hot box." Traffic was tied up while Benson enticed the queen bee into the box by tapping on an automobile bumper. The swarm followed the leader.

BULLETIN
GENEVA, July 10. — Italian leaders said tonight that Italy would concede the calling of a special meeting of the League of Nations council to consider the Abyssinian war situation on July 25, provided Maxim Litvinov, as president of the council issues the council call that date.

LONDON, July 10. — Evacuation of foreigners, including many children of Italian fathers and Abyssinian mothers, continued today as the threat of war became more real in Halle Selassie's capital, Addis Ababa.

In contrast to reports that the fleeing refugees numbered many Americans, United Press dispatches from Addis Ababa, indicated that the 125 Americans now in Ethiopia — nearly all missionary families, would remain at their posts despite urgent warnings to leave.

The various governments with nationals living in Abyssinia have already issued warnings for them to leave. Many British are reported to be on their way out of the country.

IMMEDIATE LEAGUE SESSION ASKED

ADDIS ABABA, Abyssinia, July 10. — The Abyssinian government today demanded an immediate session of the League of Nations council to consider the threatened invasion of her territory by Italy.

The nation already had appealed to the various powers individually to prevent an invasion by Italy.

McCrea Nominated To Postmaster Job

WASHINGTON, July 10. — President Roosevelt today sent the following nominations for postmaster to the senate.

Cisco: Luther McCrea.
Sweetwater: Thelma Bowen.

McCrea Now Temporary Postmaster

Luther McCrea, nominated today for the position as postmaster of Cisco, has been serving as temporary postmaster since February 16.

When informed today of his nomination, he said that he did not know when, if it is approved by the senate, he would take over the four-year job, but that it might be August 1.

Baer Confirms Talk Of Spat With Bride

NEW YORK, July 10. — Max Baer, former playboy heavyweight boxing champion, today confirmed reports of differences with his bride of 10 days, the former Mary Ellen Sullivan, but denied that a serious rift had occurred.

"We love each other now and it will be the same way 10 years from now," Baer, on his way to John Hopkins hospital for an operation on his hand, told reporters.

STORMS POUR MORE FLOODS THROUGH EAST

ITHACA, N. Y., July 10. — Cloud-bursts, striking over southern New York and northern Pennsylvania, poured new torrents of water today over an area of 20,000 square miles where at least 49 persons have been killed in floods since Sunday night.

Weather forecasters predicted an end to the rain but probably too late to save more than a dozen villages and a countryside where 50,000 workers have fought against time to evacuate endangered populations and save dikes and dams.

Disease menaced the territory with a possibility of disaster greater than the flood. Thousands in cities and villages where water systems were polluted by sewage and drowned livestock had only that to drink.

'You Can't Enforce Laws With Axes'

There is a hot campaign coming in the month of August and the battle of the ballots of the qualified voters should score an interesting finish. For 50 years the prohibition issue has been more than a sideline in the politics of Texas. Now the big battle axes of the various factions are said to be coming out of the caves where they have been in retirement in recent years.

Governor Allred's views as to law enforcement have been preached from every step in Texas. They are well known to the reading public. A very interesting annual meeting of the Texas Bar association was held in the city of Houston. Attorney General William McGraw was a speaker at a luncheon given by the association in honor of the district and county attorneys. General McGraw is a phrase maker. He made a headline for the boys at Houston when he said, "You can't enforce laws with axes." His words: "Law enforcement is a local thing. Law enforcement comes from the hearts of men. Juries enforce laws." There is a lot of truth in what he said. The speaker urged all lawyers to take an interest in law enforcement and assume places of leadership in their communities.

Lawyers always assume places of leadership in communities—from the hamlet to the leading center of population. They assume places in legislative halls. They are senators and representatives. They are important as district and county attorneys. As for the lay brother of the law, he has his clients—good and bad. The association recommended enactment of a statute prohibiting attorneys from "discussing pending litigation with judges except in the presence of opposing counsel." Another amendment proposing a law prohibiting attorneys from practicing in courts presided over by blood relatives within the third degree was defeated 94 to 80. Well, a judge with numerous in-laws or blood kin, a just judge—and there are many just judges—would hesitate a long while before he would show favoritism to a lawyer representing his blood kin within the third or any other degree. Law is law. Justice is sacred, not the judge.

Judges are elected by the people. They are compelled to go before the people for re-election. A partisan judge who deals with favoritism or methods approaching favoritism would have a rocky road to travel in Texas facing charges of favoritism or partisanship in his rulings or in his handling of cases on his docket.

But back to the milk in the cocoon: "You can't enforce laws with axes. Law enforcement is a local thing. Law enforcement comes from the hearts of men. Juries enforce laws." And it should be added that an honest juror should be a shining ornament within and without the walls of a temple of justice. Laws are made to be enforced. Judges are not jurors. Jurors say the last word.

President Signs Wagner Labor Bill

It is known as the labor disputes bill, it is hailed by organized labor as a new bill of rights and is most aggressively opposed by many industrialists. It guarantees in permanent law that every worker is entitled to bargain collectively through representatives of his own choosing and without coercion from the employers. In signing the act the Presi-

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON — Mama and Papa, groaning over the size of meat and grocery bills, are entitled to know how much of the family money goes to pay dividends and higher profits. Or perhaps they aren't. It's an old-fashioned idea which was popular here in the early days of the New Deal.

Even the administration a year ago thought it ought to know when it exempted food industries from anti-trust laws under the AAA act, whether its policies resulted in the gouging of consumers. But it changed its mind.

Toward the end of the last session of Congress, Roosevelt telephoned Senator Jimmy Byrnes of South Carolina to urge passage of a bill from Senator Burt Wheeler of Montana for a quick investigation of food profits. The bill was lost in a last-minute rush.

This year, when Wheeler reintroduced the measure, the budget bureau sent word that it was "contrary to administration policy." Meanwhile, the AAA high command, with acquiescence from Secretary Wallace and Roosevelt, has ruthlessly suppressed most officials in its ranks who once led the fight for consumer and farmer protection against the "middleman."

The Senate has passed the Wheeler bill despite the administration's change of front, but the measure is sure to remain buried in the House unless popular protest against rising food prices directs more attention to it.

ONLY the day before the Senate began its investigation of NRA, word went down to subordinates in the Blue Eagle outfit that they must have no communication with members of Congress without previous consultation with their superiors.

The order was a bit late. Most NRA employes owe their jobs at least partially to the effort of one or more senators and those who had anything on their chests had already passed it along.

By the time the investigation began, investigating senators knew as much about the inside workings of NRA as they could absorb.

OVER at the Army and Navy Club, bets have been made that we will be at war within a year. Pacifists here are almost as pessimistic, from their point of view, as the militarists are from theirs.

Dr. Charles A. Beard, dean of historians, told a group of senators and other officials the other evening that the country was in the same sort of a situation as in other periods which had been followed by war. An economic deadlock existed, he said, in which the administration's only alternatives seemed to be a strong domestic policy and a strong, belligerent foreign policy.

A strong domestic policy, according to Beard, would call for a wider distribution of income and use of productive facilities. He saw no evidence of a strong domestic policy and declared that history showed the second alternative had always been chosen in similar crises.

dent warned the country that the Wagner measure would not eliminate all disputes in industry, "but given a fair trial should help establish peaceful relations between worker and employer." It is known that the great industrialists of the country and their legal advisers have planned for a drastic test of important provision of the act and will carry their cause to the court of last resort for "the last word."

In other words, its constitutionality will be fought to a finish by those who claim that it robs the employer of the control of his own business and in selection of his own employes. All of which is a reminder that the supreme court is in vacation until October, and the minor courts or judges of the federal judiciary will be busy until the coming of October, facing the lawyers of those who were determined to establish their viewpoint as well as the lawyers for the department of justice as the representatives of the government and the Roosevelt administration.

The First American Dictator

Kingfish Huey Long has made his appearance as the first dictator of an American commonwealth. His legislature at Baton Rouge is holding its fourth session since the beginning of the year. He has rushed through his legislative program. He has taken on control of all political posts. All governmental workers in Louisiana have passed under his absolute control. Local self government has been taken from the cities, major and minor and the parishes, the state over by this remarkable boss. Indeed, the job of awarding authority has been taken from all communities.

This makes the kingfish the absolute boss or dictator regarding the employment of every city, parish or village worker from well paid departmental heads down to the lowest laborer.

FREAK EGG

DALLAS, July 10 — Freak eggs are often reported from different parts of the country, but Dallas claims the most recent oddity in eggdom. The other day a hen owned by Mrs. S. D. Hahn here laid a regularly shaped egg except for the fact that a replica of a woman's arm was entwined around it. This was the fourth freak egg laid by the hen in the past two weeks, Mrs. Hahn said.

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, July 10 — Big concentration camps or "training schools" for workable bodies taken off relief will be a major phase of the government's program as it abandons relief, and one so far undisclosed officially.

Persons connected with the Texas state relief administration have protested in the form of these so-called training camps on the ground that relief-minded people will swarm into them instead of taking the jobs offered them by the relief rolls.

It is designed to make conditions in the training camps equally onerous with the jobs. The man being vocationally "trained" will do just as hard manual labor as he would if he had accepted the works progress, public works as work-relief job, or gone back to the farm under the rural rehabilitation or rural resettlement plans.

Officials of the Texas relief administration, who did not announce the concentration camp phase of the federal government's plan, gave this as their idea of its operation.

A man classed as "able-bodied, employable, will be checked off the relief roll and certified to the works progress administration for a job.

So long as he has a family, and the family still receive relief rations, he may decide just to chuck the job and try to get along on their dole, without any direct relief for himself. Or he may contend he is not fitted for the job to which he was assigned. There likely will be a reclassification service, to check him over and certify him for some other kind of work.

If he still refuses to take a job, the vocational training program enters. He will be sent to some big vocational training school, equivalent to a camp where the work program will be quite arduous, but directed toward training people to do some sort of work, rather than in the production of goods or of doing useful work in itself.

State Relief Director Adam R. Johnson, when asked about this idea said he had heard of it, but his view was likely that the training schools would turn out to be one of the biggest phases of the federal job, unless particular efforts were made to put people into work who can perform, or unless the camps or schools are pretty stiffly regimented and put under conditions approximating the average work conditions of a paid job.

There is no citizen of city, state or nation who should enjoy the opportunity of making a living without, in some way giving just a little of himself or her—self in worth while public service.

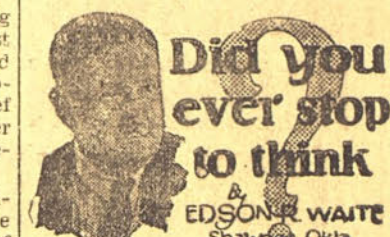

"The principle is an old one, but the basis upon individual gain, and its political subdivisions is laid will never reach a greater nearness, to perfection until this is accomplished.

"Such service must, naturally, come with the full free will of the giver and with the greatest possible portion of cooperation between the giver and the political unit that is the receiver. In addition, a way must be found to guarantee cooperation and coordination of effort between all persons striving for the success of government.

"Every nation in the world has seen, at one time or another, the gross errors and disadvantages that can and do result when the service of its component units and its workers is based on selfishness and the desire for individual gain. This principle of operation has not and cannot be successful in accomplishing one of the fundamental aims of a democracy — providing the greatest good for the greatest number of people.

"Men and women who enter into public life from motives purely and selfish realize that dog-in-the-manger tactics work sure destruction to any proposal for general betterment. They hesitate not to bring their problems and their plans, as well as their criticism of the plans of others into the open for frank, unbiased discussion and criticism. They know that sulking over fancied slights is one of the most certain destroyers of progress, and selfishness is a close relative to the absolute ruination of all systems of democratic government."

ROOSTERS PAINTED WILSON, N. C. — L. H. Williams, chicken fancier, who specializes in Rhode Island reds, ordered a negro helper to paint a chicken roost. When Williams went to inspect the job, he found several of his finest roosters painted white.

Governor David Sholtz, of Florida, says: "There is no citizen of city, state or nation who should enjoy the opportunity of making a living without, in some way giving just a little of himself or her—self in worth while public service."

SUN-TAN

CHAPTER III

JO and Tubby and Bret did full justice to the food. When, at last, Bret leaned back in his chair with a contented sigh and produced a package of cigarets there was little left on the table but the paper containers and the modest tableware Joe had found in the kitchen.

"Tubby," Jo said, "I don't know what I'll do without you this summer. I simply couldn't have dragged myself outside for dinner."

"I don't want to take all the credit," Tubby told her. "It was partly Bret's idea."

Bret looked at Jo through the gray haze of cigaret smoke. "And now I think Tubby and I ought to be skipping back to the campus. You'll need a full night's rest in preparation for tomorrow."

And truly enough Jo found herself quite ready to sleep again when Tubby and Bret had gone. She was so weary that she had only her bag brought up from the luggage room, and in the space of a very few minutes she had donned blue pajamas, left a call at the desk for seven o'clock, and climbed between the sheets.

When she was awakened the usually dingy room was bright with early morning June sunshine, and as Jo rummaged in her bag for her toilet kit she astonished herself by breaking into a song. Really, it wasn't so bad to be on your own, to be facing the world with only your two hands and your brain. "Especially when the morning was as bright as this one!"

On the table was the newspaper Bret had left, folded at the advertisement he'd advised her to follow up. When she had dressed, Jo tore out the little rectangle of printing and showed it into the pocket of her suit. She still felt certain, somehow, that she was going to be successful in getting this job. She had a "hunch" about it—and Jo's hunches weren't too often wrong.

SHE stopped for breakfast at a little coffee shop in the same block as the Fendale, and when she had finished she inquired about the address of her prospective job.

"Oh, that's right near here," the cashier said. "Just turn to the right at the next block down, and then walk about four blocks."

Jo thanked her, glad indeed that the distance didn't call for carfare. The advance rent at the Fendale had left her very little money, and Jo was determined that she would not appeal again to her parents for help. "And if I get this place," she thought, "I can walk to work. That would be fortunate—and healthy."

When she reached the proper block it took her some little time to locate the address, but at last she found it and her heart sank. It was not a very prepossessing establishment. What she saw was hardly anything more than a small store room with rather a narrow door, and over the front was a weathered sign which read "Brown's Marine Supply Company." In the tiny shop windows there were a few coils of rope, some brass boat-hardware quite unfamiliar to Jo, and a model of a sailing ship. But in the store itself she saw two small, sleek mahogany runabout motorboats set on blocks. She tried the door and found it locked, and she was starting dis-

He dropped his business-like tone and smiled engagingly. "You're new here, aren't you?"

rather gruff voice startled her. "Well, you're early, anyhow."

She turned to see a short, middle-aged man peering at her nearsightedly. He fished in his hip pocket for a ring of keys, selected one and proceeded to open the door.

"Did you come in answer to the ad in the paper?"

"Yes," Jo said. "I'm Jo Darlen, and—well, I'd like to work for you."

"I'd like to take it, Mr. Brown," she told him. "But—you see, I'm absolutely without help from any one else, and I just couldn't pay rent and buy food for $3 a week."

Mr. Brown grunted. "It really ain't a job for a girl that's not living at home. I ought to find some girl that just wants to pick up a little extra money."

"But that kind of girl doesn't need a job desperately—like I do," said Jo. "If you have to have help at all you ought to be willing to pay for it."

She waited for the storm of abuse she felt sure would come; but Mr. Brown remained silently meek. At last he said, "I'll pay you $10, if that's satisfactory, because I'm expecting things to be better this summer. And if they get a lot better, and you can do the work, we'll make it $12."

"Very well," said Jo, removing her jaunty beret. "I'll take it."

"Good!" Mr. Brown reached into his battered desk and brought out a sheaf of papers. "These here are charge slips for the past month or so. I haven't had a chance to enter them. They go into this account book here, and then of course we send out monthly statements. He produced another huge ledger book, blew a coating of dust from it. "You see, I represent a lot of manufacturers of boat engines and equipment and the like. Do you know anything about boats?"

BEGIN HERE TODAY JO DARLEN, preparing to return home after her first year in college, receives a letter telling her that her father is out of work. Jo decides to hunt for a job. Next day she moves to a cheap furnished apartment. Her former roommate, TUBBY DAVIS, and BRET FAUL, to whom Jo is engaged, come to see her. Bret shows Jo an advertisement for a girl to work part time in a marine supply house. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY ing won't be half as hard as pleasing out my writing!" He chuckled.

JO found it hard going that first morning. Brown didn't have much of a system, and during the winter when he had no assistants his office work fell into considerable confusion. But as the hours wore on, and Jo began to make a little progress, she decided she could handle the work satisfactorily.

At 11:30 Mr. Brown shuffled Jo into the little cubicle and asked Jo how she was making out.

"Fine, I think. I'll be faster when I get used to the work."

"Sure. I go out to lunch at 11:30. I just take half an hour, and you can watch the place. If anybody comes in ask 'em to wait a while."

He had been gone only a few minutes when she heard the door open and looked up to see a tall man walking down toward the office. He was, Jo saw, smartly and quietly dressed, and there was an assured air in the way he carried a stick. When he reached the little office and raised his hat Jo thought, oddly and suddenly, that he was quite the handsomest man she had ever seen.

"How do you do," he said. "Is Mr. Brown in?"

"He'll return in just a few minutes," Jo replied. "And I'm sure he'll want you to wait."

"Thanks—but I can see a man in this block, and then I'll come back." Suddenly he dropped his business-like tone and smiled engagingly. Jo guessed his age to be about 37 or 38, but when he smiled she couldn't be at all sure. "You're new here, aren't you?" he asked. "You see, I represent a lot of manufacturers of boat engines and equipment and the like. Do you know anything about boats?"

Jo's heart sank again. "No."

"Well, that's all right. You'll pick up the terms after a while. Learning the difference between a propeller shaft and a stern bearing won't be half as hard as pleasing out my writing!" He chuckled.

"But that kind of girl doesn't need a job desperately—like I do," said Jo. "If you have to have help at all you ought to be willing to pay for it."

CONVICTS RULE SMALL ESTATE NEAR MOSCOW

MOSCOW, July 10—Ten years ago 18 criminals were brought to a small and neglected estate near Moscow. At that time peasants of an adjoining village appealed to the Central Executive committee to remove this "nest of cut-throats" from the region. The peasants were reassured, but the "nest" remained and not a guard was posted.

The young criminals continued to live on the estate and formed a labor commune. Felix Ozerjinsky, upon whose initiative the Commune was organized, aimed to fight criminality by re-education through work.

During the 10 years of the Commune's existence, the number of its members grew from 18 to 3100 men and women. It developed from a few small shops until now a knitting mill and a large boot factory operate.

As a principle, each member of the Commune must remain there for three years. However, an overwhelming majority remain indefinitely. Many of them, former criminals and waifs, now work in the various Soviet towns as skilled technicians.

Re-education of the criminal is an extremely complicated task. The entire educational work is based upon the principles of full confidence (open doors), labor, and self-management. Open doors have kept criminals there as no lock would have done.

Self-management allows the members to be guided without compulsion.

Burning Barbecue Causes Fire Alarm

EASTLAND, July 10—An exaggerated case of a housewife leaving her stove and burning food was observed by firemen last night, who answered a "fire" call at a grocery store to find barbecue smoldering in a pan in which the water had evaporated.

John Harrison, proprietor of the store, arrived at the square in time to open the door or firemen. He had just returned to his home from a volunteer firemen's meeting.

Job As Hangman Is In Great Demand

OTTAWA, Ont., July 10—There is no scarcity in aspiring 'hangmen' in Canada.

The department of Justice reveals that nearly every week some Canadian applies for the non-existent job of "official hangman." Some say they have had experience and offer to produce testimonials from sheriffs for whom they have officiated. Others, inexperienced, are sure they can do it. The majority of the applicants are foreigners living in Western Canada.

There is no "official hangman" in Canada, however. The duty of hanging condemned people rests with local sheriffs. The justice department is concerned only with the question of whether the law should take its course or the clemency of commutation be extended. When the former course is decided on, it is the sheriff's duty either to do the hanging himself or hire someone else. One of several who, from experience, are known to be qualified, is usually engaged, but there is no complete monopoly of it.

Bumper Cotton Crop For Texas Foreseen

SAN ANGELO, July 19—The hot weather is the life of West Texas cotton and even though two weeks to a month late prospects for a bumper crop this fall are evident, according to the general opinion of farmers in this area. General rains within two weeks, they state, would insure a heavy yield.

A bollie crop may be expected this year because of the lateness of the crop, Frank Kemp, gin manager said. Ginning will begin in October this year, Kemp believes, with the first bale probably received in the latter part of September.

Wheat and oat threshing is well under way, with oats, damaged by black rust, turning out from ten to thirty bushels per acre, while the wheat yield is ranging from 14 to 22 bushels. Wheat prices are 75c and oats 28c to 30c.

Crossroads School Hearing Is Monday

EASTLAND, July 10—Protesting action of the county school board in detaching 1137 acres from its district to Alameda, Crossroads school has been granted an injunction from 91st district court to restrain the attempted change. The injunction, hearing on which will be held Monday in the court, also enjoins the county board from transferring money of their school to Alameda.

Poison Fish Are Now in Aquarium
CHICAGO, July 10 — Collectors for the John G. Shedd Aquarium here returned recently from the South Seas with a collection of rare tropical poison-fish.

Wading in the shallow reefs off Honolulu, members of the expedition turned over large coral blocks to capture their quarry.

One of the most unusual specimens in the collection is the surgeon fish. It carries, sheathed at either side of its tail, a pair of keen, knife-like spines that can be opened out and used with deadly effect.

The lion fish, stinging fish, and scorpion fish likewise carry poison filled spines.

In contrast with these were the brilliant and harmless butterfly, parrot, and squirrel fish; the trigger and file fish, and the colorful amphiprion that lives with the sea anemone.

DEVELOPMENT OF OIL FIELD SPEEDS WORK

MCALLEN, July 10 — Three new companies started work on a construction projects costing approximately $700,000 in the lower Rio Grande Valley as a result of further development of Hidalgo county's Samfordyce oil field.

Contract was let by T. Frank Murchison and his associates herd for construction of a 90-mile oil pipeline from the Samfordyce field of southwestern Hidalgo county to Fort Isabel, first of the Valley's two new deep water ports on the gulf of Mexico to be available for use shortly.

The line will be five and a half inches in diameter, will use dresser couplings in making connections, thereby hastening construction and will have an estimated daily capacity of 10,000 barrels of crude.

Two pumping stations will be used, one at the field to start the oil on its way to tidewater and the other at the middle of the line. Estimated cost of the line is $325,000, Murchison stated, and completion is expected about September 1.

The pipeline will be operated by the newly organized Valley Pipeline company, in which Murchison and E. M. Clossut will be associated. H. H. Hensley, vice president and general manager of the company, has already moved to McAllen and will be in direct charge of the line.

Selection of a site for field storage tanks and the primary pumping unit will be made at Samfordyce shortly, Murchison announced. Two 10,000-barrel tanks and four 5,000-barrel tanks, a total of 40,000 barrels of field storage, will be built at the field.

Dalhart To Carry Drilling Forward

DALHART, July 10 — Dalhart business men have raised $3,000 to continue drilling on the Warner oil test, eight mile southwest of the city.

Eben D. Warner, Amarillo, drilled the well to contract depth and stopped but he offered the community free use of all equipment and casing if it would pay fuel and labor costs. In addition he gives all royalty rights in six sections offsetting the well, the rights to be prorated among the donors of the fund.

The $3,000 will carry the well down another 300 to 500 feet, it was said. Elevation at the well site is 4,044 feet but drill depth was not disclosed.

Chesterfields "go to town"

They Satisfy

—that's just the 1935 way of saying what Chesterfields have been saying for years ...

Chesterfields do about everything a cigarette ought to do.

Chesterfields have TASTE—yes plenty of it. But not too strong.

And Chesterfields are MILD—but they're not insipid or flat.
