BETTER GOVERNMENT FOR LESS MONEY.

Home rule power for Texas counties is offered in a pending constitutional amendment by Representative Walter Beck of Fort Worth.

The plan would let the people of counties organize their government under the broad powers now held by cities. They could, by vote, adopt the manager plan of county government. They could, by vote of both rural and city populations, combine city and county government. The proposed amendment authorizes, but does not compel, the people of counties to adopt the economy-efficiency plan.

Mr. Beck is authority for the assertion that the home rule plan, in operation in the larger city counties of Texas would save each year as much money as the entire state ad valorem property tax for all Texas, at its 35-cent maximum rate.

The constitutional amendment, to be adopted, must be submitted by the legislature; must be adopted by a vote of the people; then counties making use of it must draft charters and adopt them. It will take approximately four years to put the system into effect.

County government is cumbersome, inefficient, too costly for its results, overlaid with fee abuses, slowed up by lost motion, archaic and outgrown.

Mr. Beck's plan offer the people a carefully-thought-out plan—one that is in successful operation elsewhere—to get better local government service at lower cost.

The people deserve a chance to say whether they want to try it.

The amendment ought to be submitted by the legislature.

Mr. Beck is from one of the four largest counties. He has proposed, as a starting move, that the plan should be made available to counties of over 150,000 population. He has said that if the counties of smaller size want the same privilege, and indicate a demand for it, he will assist in lowering the population limit.

Proportionately, his plan promises greater savings per dollar of costs, to the well-developed counties, the growing counties, ranging down to 40,000 population, possibly smaller.

The plan is somewhat complex, made so by safeguards against every form of abuse that could be thought of. Restrictions are imposed in the constitutional amendment against city domination of unwilling rural areas, against compulsory inclusion of rural areas into city limits; against discrimination against different cities in the same county; against perpetuating a county political machine or putting it into power over city affairs. Schools and state courts are left untouched.

The constitutional amendment ought to be submitted. It ought to have a low enough population limit to give people of the middle-rank counties the right to avail themselves of its benefits.

Home rule for cities applies to cities of 5000 population and over. The people are wholly in favor of such a system for cities even as small as 5000. The home rule extension to counties should be spread at least down to counties of 40,000 population, having them present home rule cities.

TWO VERY IMPORTANT SENATE MEASURES.

Two very important senate measures by Sen. W. A. Williamson were reported favorably by committees. One, acted upon favorably by the highway and motor traffic committee, provides for adding 150 men to the state highway patrol. The present force of state patrolmen consists of 50 men and the bill broadens the police power of the patrol. Now how is it possible for 50 patrolmen to cover 21,000 miles of Texas highways?

Those who use the highways know the value of the 50 men. They are hand-picked by experts. They meet and face drastic requirements before appointment comes. They render valuable service to the people. They are vigilant protectors of life and property. Since the organization of the state highway patrol its members, individually and collectively, have won enviable reputation for their conduct, efficiency and agents of the law.

Texas is an empire state. Its highway system, or rather its mileage, is expanding and expanding fast. From the Gulf to the foothills of the Rockies and from the upper boundaries to the Rio Grande river patrol service should be given the people and the force should be sufficiently large to cover the state. Another bill, approved by the committee on constitutional amendments, would give the right to vote and hold office to officers and enlisted men of the national guard and various military reserve organizations. Also to retire officers and enlisted men of the army, navy, marine corps or national guard.

Why should a wearer of the uniform of his country be penalized? Why should he be disfranchised? Why should he be declared ineligible to cast a ballot or fill an office?

OTHER OPINIONS

IS THE SMALL TOWN MERCHANT LOSING OUT?
Of late a great many Texas edi-ters have been asking that question. They ask it in all seriousness: they are genuinely alarmed about the survival of the small town.

Is It Coming to This?

To the small town editor, who sees his townsmen purchasing too much and too often from nearby cities, it is a serious matter. Everybody seems to take out; nobody seems to put in — and that's a dangerous condition, whether it be in a crossroads village or a city where seventeen railroads and ninety-six steamship lines rub elbows.

As a matter of fact, no far-sighted city endorses any movement which threatens the prosperity and progress of the small towns which det its hinterland. The big city is the most dependent and helpless of all political subdivisions. Its arteries are rooted in the towns and villages which surround it, and when these towns and villages are ill-nourished, the city, too, is pretty certain to wither and decay.

The greatest enemy of the small town is not the nearby city; it is the small town citizen who hasn't learned that the only hundred-percent dollar is the dollar spent at home. Moreover, strange as it may seem, the worst offender frequently is the small-town merchant who neglects to practice what he preaches.

For an apparent saving of a few cents the thousand pieces, there are an astonishing number of small-town merchants who buy letter-heads and envelopes from the outside printers of distant cities. Does that dollar come home to roost? It does not. Does the out-of-town printer's employee spend his share of that dollar with the home-town merchants? He does not. Does the out-of-town printer himself contribute to the home-town improvement program. He does not. Does he bank his profit with the home-town bank? Again, he does not.

If home-town people would develop a sense of home-town loyalty, all this talk of the 'small town losing out' would be the emptiest sort of prattle. There never was a time when so much opportunity for development and growth was offered enterprising communities. Texas' only glass factory is located in a relatively small town, as are her two great sugar refineries; in point of fact high tension lines for the transmission of electric power have wiped out the small town's disadvantages and emphasized its attractions.

The only thing that can kill a good, small town is the indifference of its citizens.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma.

C. J. Baxter, editor of the Nauvagus, (Conn.) News, says:

"Persons who help the unemployed funds or employing men or women to do work for them at home are not only public benefactors, but are performing a worth while and very helpful service. Incidentally, they are giving a splendid illustration of the meaning of the Golden Rule, for if they were in the position of the unemployed they would appreciate the generosity of others in giving them the opportunity to earn some money with which to support themselves and their dependents.

"Many able-bodied men are out of work today through no fault of their own. A great many of them are the bread winners of their families. They need money with which to purchase the necessities of life, such as food, clothing and fuel. They need it badly. Rather than be made the recipients of charity, they would like to earn enough to pay for what they need in order to keep body and soul together. Work given them at this time with just and reasonable compensation for the same, is worth more than can be expressed in words.

"We can all be sympathetic with the unemployed, but our sympathy will not provide them with bread to eat or clothing or fuel to keep them warm. We can help them by giving them work, either around our own homes or through the agency of an employment fund to which we can contribute.

"Many of us have odd jobs to be done. Why not hire someone who is unemployed to do the work? Why not establish a community employment fund and keep enough money in it to furnish a goodly number of men with work for at least a few days a week? It is being done in many places. It can be done everywhere if those who are working and who are blessed with this world's goods will but hearken to the call of brotherly love, and do it."

In the Political Arena

By HUGH N. FITZGERALD

Republicans control the lame duck house—which will pass out of existence March 4—by a large majority. President Hoover vetoed the veterans loan bill. His message contained 3,500 words. It contained a lot of vetoed. The republican house returned the out-of-town plank. It overrode the Hoover veto by a vote of 328 to 79. In other words the president took it on the nose and retired gracefully to the shades and shadows of the privacy of the White House. It was as complete a "nose blow" as any president has received in 80 years. Only 70 members of the lame duck congress remained loyal to their president and followed his leadership and advice.

Lawmakers make laws. President and governors make recommendations. It is their prerogative to veto bills and then again it is the prerogative of the lawmakers to hit the executive a resounding thwack if they have the necessary votes to override the veto power. Will President Hoover be renominated by his party in 1932 or will Calvin Coolidge score a comeback and make it very interesting for the democrats next year?

This is not a prediction, a prophesy, a reflection or a political boost for an individual. Many eminent financiers, speaking of bankers, headed by Andrew W. Mellon, declared against a bonus for the veterans. They said it would knock the sills from under the financial structure of the United States. Owen D. Young likewise appeared before the congressional committees. He bluntly stated that a bonus advance nearing the billion dollar mark could be voted and handled without undermining the aforesaid "sills." Now newspaper scribes who mingle with the people in their favorite haunts have made the discovery that Owen D. Young, who has said that he is not and will not be a candidate for the democratic presidential nomination has a powerful grip on the American legions. This is not fiction. It is a fact and for this reason it is entered in the record in order that that record may be kept straight.

Kansas is known as the Sunflower state. In bygone years it was known as a "Bleeding Kansas." Now the republican section is bleeding again. That is the congressional representatives from Kansas with one exception, refused to enter the republican caucus called to manufacture an organization slate for the new house. There are six Kansas republican representatives. Five, after their refusal gave out this statement: "We are republicans and believe in party organization and party responsibility and expect to continue in that attitude. More than

Russian Working Class Lifted to Power by Soviet in Industrialization War

By EUGENE LYONS
United Press Staff Correspondent
MOSCOW, March 2.—The working class has been lifted to power by Russian revolution. The whole Bolshevik state is run in its name and dedicated to its service. The very word "rabitshi"—workingmen—rings in Soviet ears like a title of nobility.

The power and the glory, however, are largely collective things. The worker, as an individual, has for the time being lost what is normally his fundamental right, the right to choose his own job and place of employment.

He has become part of a labor army which is maneuvered by the highest organs of the Communist party, as required by the great war for industrializing this country.

Present Mobilization
Masses of workers are thrown where necessary to reinforce a weak sector of the economic front, shifted to new positions or pressed to exceptional exertions to meet the exigencies of the Five-Year plan. At this writing, for instance, mobilization of all former transport workers is under way. They are being torn out of accustomed jobs and assigned to service on the railroads. It has all the outward appearance of a military conscription, leaving the recruit no choice but to register and accept service providing penalties for evaders.

As far as possible the government seeks to give men and women the work which they desire and for which they are especially qualified. It would be stupid not to do so. But the need of the state is the determining factor. If, ways, the individual has a choice between the work assigned and starvation.

Considerations
This system must be viewed from the Soviet angle, against the background of a people only recently freed from an old autocracy and ing for its projected future. The hard work, the shortage of food and goods, a hundred privations and limitations upon human freedom—these are accepted as an investment for the near future. Whether the investment is safe and profitable time will show. In the interim this point of view makes hardship more bearable. It provides a reasonable explanation for current discomforts.

Talk to an intelligent worker here and he will not conceal his troubles. He is more than likely to exonerate them. But in the end he will probably say what one said to me recently:

"At least we in the Soviet Union have something to look forward to. We suffer for a purpose. What little there is in the country is what have your unemployed in America to look forward to? They can hug their precious freedom of labor to an empty stomach and watch their luckier countrymen living in plenty."
