BANKING SHOWS IMPROVEMENT SAYS SURVEY

AUSTIN, Sept. 19.—The general banking situation continued to improve throughout August, Dr. J. C. Dohly pointed out in his monthly survey of the financial situation, prepared for the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

Continue Chary

"Despite the general improvement in the banking situation, however, commercial banks continued throughout August to be very chary with new lending. Total loans of the reporting member banks decreased almost continuously from $1,092,000,000 on July 27 to $1,076,000,000 on August 31, a net decline of $16,000,000.

ACTS TO REDUCE NOISE

NORTH BEND, Neb., Sept. 19.—The North Bend City Council took steps to insure sound sleep of the townsmen when they passed a resolution asking the Union Pacific to instruct engineers to "lay off the whistle" when they went through town.

Chapters in the mysterious disappearance of Colonel Raymond Robins, who vanished while en route from New York to Washington for a conference with President Hoover at the White House, are sketched here. Leaving his summer home in Maine, Colonel Robins went to his New York club and left there for the capital, only to be swallowed by oblivion.

Colonel Robins, 59, with a career filled with adventure and mystery, has been prominent in America public life for a generation.

Robins "struck it rich" as a prospector in the Alaskan gold rush of 1898, accumulating a fortune sufficient for life. Upon his return he took up social betterment work in Chicago in 1902, later served as a member of the Chicago board of education, actively supported Theodore Roosevelt's campaign for the presidency in 1912, ran for the U. S. Senate from Illinois in 1914, returned to the Republican party to support Hughes for president in 1916 and was rewarded by being made a member of the Republican national executive committee in the campaigns of 1920 and 1924.

COUNTY TAX RATE SET AT ONE DOLLAR

The total county tax rate for this year will be $1 it was announced today. This rate was set by the commissioners court late Saturday under the terms of the bill passed by the special session of the legislature which last week enacted a measure to lift county bonds expended on state highways from the ad valorem tax and pay them out of state gasoline tax funds.

The court estimated that about two-thirds of Eastland county's total outstanding issue of approximately $3,150,000 would be relieved. The exact amount cannot be determined until it is finally passed upon by the state committee set up to determine what bonds come within the purview of the relief act. That committee is composed of the state highway engineer, state comptroller and state treasurer.

AUTO THEFTS COST AMERICA $100,000 A YEAR SURVEY SHOWS

Why theft, rings, joy-riding youths and penniless persons in need of transportation are costing American motorists perhaps $100,000,000 per year in stolen automobiles and the amount is increasing, a United Press survey of police records in 35 major cities revealed today.

Chicago with 35,000 machines stolen last year at $10,000,000 loss leads all cities in that compilation. Some 30,000 of the stolen cars were recovered but 90 per cent had been stripped.

Lieutenant Charles Rader, in charge of the auto theft bureau of the Dallas police department, said thefts in his city were decreasing and pointed out that carelessness of motorists led to many robberies.

Rader, who stepped from civilian life into the police department and who is a member of the police band, is recognized as one of the foremost officers in this branch of service in the southwest.

Summing up causes for auto thefts, Rader said "negligence" of motorists was responsible for a large percentage of the thefts.

He explained many persons leave keys in their cars when they park the machine thinking they will be gone but for a few minutes. Instead, he said, they are gone for 15 minutes to a half hour and are surprised when their automobile is missing.

Majority of thieves in the southwest, in Rader's opinion are old-timer professional auto thieves. With the exception of expensive automobiles, most cars stolen, he said, are stripped and their parts sold.

Theft of an automobile in Texas, Rader explained, constitutes ordinarily three law violations.

The theft of the machine itself is the first violation, changing motor or license numbers and forgery of ownership papers for the sale constitute other law violations. A federal statute is violated when the car is transported out of the state.

New York had only 12,153 autos stolen in 1931, a decrease of 4.5 per cent from 1930, but many cities reported more machines stolen in the first eight months of 1932 than during the same period last year.

COURT HOLDS EXCLUSION IS ILLEGAL

Judge Geo. L. Davenport, of 91st district court, today ordered Cisco high school re-instated in the Interscholastic league for the football season of 1932.

Judge's Opinion

In his opinion Judge Davenport upheld the authority of the district committee under the rules of the league to order forfeiture of games in which a man found ineligible had played and, in the opinion of the board, that penalty is not sufficient, to recommend to the state committee that the school be suspended from the league for a period of from one to three years, and transmit its findings of fact.

He said it then becomes the duty of the district committee to determine the guilt or innocence of the school and, if found guilty, to administer adequate punishment.

Police drives, however, have lowered the auto theft rate in several cities. Cleveland had only 2,409 cars stolen during the first eight months of this year against 3,311 last year. St. Louis had 2,440 stolen this year against 3,083 in the same period of 1931.

Fort Worth reported 1,059 stolen this year against 1,576 last year. Indianapolis where auto thefts have been declining three years reported 1,308 against 1,768 stolen and 95 per cent recovery both last year and this.

Memphis reported 511 stolen so far this year against 761 stolen in the same period last year. Authorities credited the reduction to a new radio patrol. Kansas City where 2,282 cars were stolen last year reported 1,244 stolen during the first eight months of 1932 against 1,645 for the same period last year.

In San Francisco there was a decline for the same period from 3,161 to 2,843. Pittsburgh where 6,000 cars were stolen last year had only 2,127 stolen the first eight months of this year and credited a radio patrol with the reduction.

Detroit reported a drop of from 4,985 to 4,009 for the period with most cars stolen for their accessories.

Harrisburg had a drop of 2,879 to 2,411 and Philadelphia police "recovered" 3,655 cars of which only 2,647 had been reported stolen.

Organized auto thefts rings, large and small, were blamed for many of the thefts in Chicago and other metropolitan centers. Cleveland police blamed joyriders of most thefts there and Sgt. W. G. Sterrett of the Oklahoma City police laid many thefts to transients in need of transportation.

Police everywhere reported small cars, Fords and Chevrolets, were favorites with thieves. San Francisco police recovered many machines stolen at distant points and identification marks removed.

ROAD BOND RELIEF.

The special session of the legislature has accomplished the main relief motive of its call—enactment of the bill to relieve counties of bonded indebtedness incurred in the construction of highways now a part of the state system. The bill diverts one-fourth of the state gasoline tax or one cent to reimburse counties for current remittances upon their bonded indebtedness. The counties will not be re-imposed for money paid out in past years. This means that the state will assume in the neighborhood of $80,000,000 in county bonds which will be paid out of the gasoline tax, the logical source of payment.

There is yet to be determined the question of the constitutionality or unconstitutionality of the bill. However, its sponsors argue that the contention that the state cannot assume debts made by counties is provided against by a formula of simply re-imposing the counties for their payments instead of directly transferring the bonded indebtedness to the state. Actually the debt has been transferred in the sense that the tax-payers of the counties do not have to dig up in ad valorem taxes the money to pay the bill.

The effect is that Eastland county tax-payers this year will be saved the appreciable sum of about $170,000—representing a decrease of 55 cents in the county tax rate. The county rate is now $1 on the $100 valuation, so fixed by the county commissioners court in a session Saturday. With a state rate of 69 cents—five cents less than last year—the total state and county tax rate which the citizens of this county will be required to pay covering 1932 levies is only $1.69, the lowest rate since the formative years of the county.

This is the most effective piece of relief work that has been accomplished in taxation in the state and the legislature and Gov. Sterling deserve the commendation of the citizens for their splendid achievement.

TRADE EXTENSION.

Saturday's rodeo, the first of a series contemplated by Cisco merchants as a part of their fall trade extension program was in good hands as the success which the event attained testifies. The folks came as expected and they got a good show. Financially the program was equally successful, thanks to the cooperation of the merchants who were called upon to pay the least that they have paid for any trade extension program. No merchant contributed over $5 and a surplus was left in the treasury after all expenses were paid, Chairman P. L. Ullom reported. This means that the next rodeo will not require an average contribution even as large as the first.

There were some disappointments, some criticisms, of course. But these were such as to offer opportunity for improving the program next time. The larger fact is that Cisco can still attract large crowds and that it has not lost a certain strategic position for the development of a market center.

With this fact before us it behoves us to bend every effort toward increasing the success of the first program by correcting the mistakes that were made. Mr. Ullom and his committee have provided a splendid pattern and the able work that they have done should not be wasted by a refusal to follow it up with a continuation of the campaign.

He has suggested that the merchants smoker assemble again this week so that the organization for the next program may be started earlier. The chief difficulty encountered in arranging Saturday's event was the limited time. The fact that the rodeo was presented after only a week of preparation is a remarkable tribute to the work of the committee.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—The economy law with its salary cut, elimination of vacations with pay and its unequal burdens threatened in many instances appears thus far to have had two observable effects on 650,000 federal employees involved:

1. It has depressed their morale and
2. Increased their efficiency.

The average federal worker is likely to be in a low state of mind these days for reasons which are by no means confined to the fact that he or she has had a salary cut.

For one thing, the government workers resent all the criticism and the wisecracks that have been directed against them since it first became imperative to cut federal expenses. Although living along on a relatively low salary scale, they have been painted as a group of largely unnecessary drones, working on easy jobs and fattening off the populace.

to Washington and most postal workers here only had 15 days all along.

The old theory was that states would be represented proportionately in the civil service here and that the workers should be allowed time to get to their homes, but travel is easier now, most government employees lose contact with their old home and become Washingtonians and the appointment system has broken down.

BUT the government employe has come at last to realize that the mere fact that he works for the government is not complete protection against ups and downs such as happen to other workers. He is still by all odds relatively secure from large scale unemployment, but he can lose his job and will do so more frequently unless there is a change in the present trend.

Whenever normal conditions return the federal service is likely to lose some of its best people, who have stayed on partly because their jobs seemed so safe.

But the economy wave probably has increased the efficiency of the service for the very good reason that the employes now realize that if any wholesale firing begins it will be the efficient ones who will stay. The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce already has decided that if it must resort to administrative furloughs to keep within appropriations it will do so on a basis of efficiency ratings.

The Middlewoman

But that should be no reason for handicapping the next committee.

In promoting these programs there is one fact that should be borne in mind by the business men. When that fact is accepted at face value the difficulties of organizing these Saturday afternoon attractions will be minimized by a unanimous cooperation. It is simply that these entertainments are not presented as money-making schemes and that they will not return instant profits to the sponsors. On the contrary their purpose is promotional. They are aimed at increasing the radius of that section the normal drift of which is toward Cisco. The benefits of the campaign will be slow, but if it is prosecuted earnestly with the thought of service foremost those benefits will be sure. Ours is a problem of enhancing the prestige of Cisco as a market center and such a problem is not solved by one move, but gradually overcome by a consistent purpose expressed in cooperative action.

Our merchants may not have profited one dollar from Saturday's program—indeed, they may have lost money—but that does not mean that the program was not beneficial.

McDonald Observatory Will Make Texas Leading School in Astronomical Research

AUSTIN, Sept. 19. — Texas University, through its affiliation with Chicago University and the forthcoming erection of a $375,000 observatory, is expected to become one of the leading schools of the world in astronomical research.

The observatory, to be known as the W. J. McDonald Astronomical observatory, is to be erected by funds left in a will by W. J. McDonald of Paris, Texas, who died in 1926.

It will be built somewhere in Texas, as provided in the will. Optical tests already have been made in the region of Austin, El Paso, Fredericksburg, the Davis mountains, San Angelo, and Amarillo. These tests were made by Dr. C. T. Evey of the Yerkes observatory staff and are now being studied. Further tests probably will be made.

The McDonald observatory will be operated in conjunction with the Yerkes observatory of Chicago University, one of the largest and most famous in the world. Both will be under supervision of Dr. Otto Struve, president director of the Yerkes observatory.

An 80-inch concave mirror will be installed in the McDonald observatory giving it the second largest reflecting telescope in the world, second only to the 100-inch telescope in the Mt. Wilson observatory in California.

Novel Features. The McDonald telescope will be as powerful as the Mt. Wilson reflector for photography of faint nebulae and distant universes. Dr. Struve said. A number of novel features will be embodied in its design, he said, which will make it the most powerful in the world for certain kinds of work.

The work of the observatory will deal with the newer phases of astronomy — astrophysics — dealing particularly with physical nature of astronomical bodies as distinguished from astrometry dealing with the motions, distances and dimensions of these bodies.

This study will comprise the chemical composition of the atmosphere of stars, properties of matter, the study of distant universes, involving a test of the Einstein theory, and the study of the composition of planets, nebulae and comets.

Plans for the joint undertaking by the two universities were completed recently and the proposed program heralded as one of the greatest scientific undertakings of the year.

Both schools will share in the maintenance of the observatory, once it is erected, and in the cost of individuals can maintain their 'prosperity' standard of living and incur indebtedness in anticipation of the return of their previous earnings and income. Governmental activities may be carried on on the same basis, public works undertaken and indebtedness incurred in anticipation of the return of the larger public revenue of prosperous days.

"When a semi-permanent depression exists and entirely different public and private policy should be pursued. When a private individual's income has been more or less permanently curtailed, he must curtail his living expenses and cease borrowing because his future income gives no assurance of equaling that of the past. So with public activities, a semi-permanent depression necessitates curtailment of public expenses, strict economy, and refraining from increasing the public indebtedness.

"The sooner these economic principals are recognized the quicker will our present economic depression disappear. Inaugurating non-productive public undertakings, increasing taxes and enlarging the costs of government is a definite way of helping to prolong the present economic depression."

PARIS STYLES

By MARY KNIGHT
United Press Staff Correspondent.

PARIS, Sept. 19. — Now that all the new fall and winter clothes have been shown here, the important thing to note is the particular items buyers have chosen for the "folks back home."

Worth has been one of the favorites with the buyers and they have bought not only the elegant type of evening clothes, but also sport suits, coats and afternoon ensembles.

Velvet, of course, begins and ends the list of popular materials. The lovely green velvet evening cape with the distinguished and unusual draping in the back has been the choice of a number of buyers at Worth's. Among other things soon to be copied in America is a pearly brown velvet evening dress with a narrow band of sable outlining the back decollete and accompanied by a little brown jacket.

A long red velvet evening coat trimmed with bands of silver fox also will be seen in the United States and other countries, and a black chiffon frock for formal occasions trimmed with diamonds.

clips has been bought along with a white wool lace gown for dancing or dining on state occasions.

COWBOYS GRIND FOR BUFFALOES NEXT FRIDAY

ABILENE, Sept. 19. —Sharpening their spurs for the West Texas Buffalo, when they meet next Friday, the Simmons University Cowboys wound up their first week of training here Saturday. Coach Les Cranfill has been sending his men through two workouts daily in an effort to put a smooth combination on the field against the Teachers.

Twenty eight men have reported to the Cowboys coach. This includes all the eligibles hoped for except Richard Coody, an end, who had not shown up by the end of the week, and Oran Doolin, lettered tackle, who is out definitely. Of those in camp, 14 letter men, one is a junior college graduate and the others are from last year's varsity squad or the freshman team.

The list of letter men includes Fitzgerald (captain), and Koonce, tackles; Huestis and Jim Neely ends; J. B. Neely, Bentley, Spraberry, and Wransky, guards; Bryon, Fee, McCollum, Creighton, Andrus, and Murphy, backs. Former squad men are Cope, Seed, centers; Fatterson, guard; McLeod, tackle; Mill, end; Thompson, fullback. Recruits from last year's freshmen: Varner and Grubbs, ends; Ramsey, and Flynn, tackles; Ardis, guard; Junell, center; Routh, back. Hillsboro Junior College furnished the only new man in Odell Winters, an end.

Without preliminaries, Coach Cranfill sent his men into intensive work on the dummy, passing, and signal drills during the week. Although the Cowboys will rehearse only a dozen plays before going to Canyon, they hope to have those working in time for the first game.

From present indications, Cranfill will have a fast, deceptive team this year which will employ passing to great advantage. The coach is still having trouble, however, trying to replace the two defensive towers of last year, George Gollightly, center, and Steve Marshall, fullback.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE

United States Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, says: "Economic depressions are either temporary or of a semi-permanent character."

"The depression through which we are now passing has continued for nearly three years in a steady downward movement. It cannot be called temporary. It has all the earmarks of a semi-permanent depression. The method of dealing with a permanent depression should be entirely different from a temporary depression.

CALL of the WEST

BY R. G. MONTGOMERY

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Stan Ball, an agent for cattle interests, faces Asper Delo in his office in the city. Asper is accused by the cattle men of infringing on their range with his timber cutting. Ball accuses Delo of crooked work at his Three Rivers camp. He accuses Delo of having men shot who try to check up on him. Ball says he is going to make a check himself. Delo retorts that he will personally see that Ball does not.

Standing before the office building Stan Ball sees kidnapers slip a girl into a car. He catches the car and saves Dona Delo, Asper's daughter. When he learns who she is she slips away after telling her he is Stanley Black.

Dudley Winters, in love with Dona, agrees to get Asper Delo back off his wild trip to Three Rivers if she will marry him. She gives him some encouragement.

Dona goes with Dudley. They stop at Seth Doby's place. Doby refuses to help Dona but says Asper has been there and that he was ready for a killing.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER IV

Dudley had been reconnoitering and had found out all about Seth Doby's hotel and the attached scattering of houses and log cabins. He returned to Dona who was sitting on the worn steps looking out into the white moonlight. Dud had discovered one thing that elated him because it fitted the plan he had in mind.

"I have sallied forth and return with news," he greeted Dona.

"What news?"

"It is a short 20 miles from the spot where you sit to Three Rivers," Dudley paused accusingly.

"The rest of the way is mountain road. You don't know log roads so you won't understand until tomorrow."

"It would have been wonderful by moonlight," he urged.

"I was tired and I didn't want to tackle Dad till I was rested," Dona refused to tell the real reason why she had put up with Seth Doby. The truth was she had expected help from the old rancher, help that he had politely refused.

Dudley figured he had made a point and hurried on. "There are hundreds of horses by actual count and six mud huts."

"Dobey you mean?"

"Six 'dobe' huts," Dudley corrected himself, "two log cabins and a house where a parson lives."

Dona laughed softly. "You mean Sam Dean. He is a sort of evangelist of the plains."

"Well, anyway he marries all the folks who are married out here," Dudley persisted.

"Did you find Seth Doby's garden?" Dona asked.

"My mouth was open to ask you to stroll there with me right now," Dudley caught her arm.

They walked through the sand down past the corrals and came to a grove of cottonwoods. Seth Doby had reclaimed a bit of the dry land from the foothills and had watered it. Under the trees there was green grass and flowers. Shrubs grew in dense clumps and gave off fragrance that made Dona's heart quicken. Mountain laurel, red willow, black birch and a host of her old friends were there to greet her.

"I think I shall stay this time," she said with a sigh as she sat down cross-legged on the grass.

Dudley sprawled at her feet and propped his chin on his elbows. "After we corral your Dad, what according to Doby may be a job, we can spend our honeymoon here."

Dona sunk a heel into the soft earth. "I'm worried about Dad, I'm afraid we won't be able to handle him." There was a catch in her voice.

"Looks as though there is only one way," Dudley sat up beside Dona. "What is that?" she asked eagerly.

"It sounds melodramatic but, confound it, this whole thing is a bit colorful," Dudley began.

"It would be worth anything I possess to keep Dad out of a scrape," Dona's red lips parted softly in the patchy moonlight and her eyes shone. "Now you can see why I put up with the city. For five years I've been able to keep Dad away from trouble. He had to do his fighting over long distance telephone."

Dudley captured her hand and held it tight. "There is just one way and you have to listen to me until I've planned it all."

Dona nodded but her lips closed suddenly.

"Your Dad is a good sport. He's a man who can't be told what to do but he will do the right thing. Now all you have to do is marry me tonight." He did not try to draw her into his arms but waited watching the color play in her satin cheeks.

"But Dad, it isn't fair for you to ask that! Remember our bargain."

"I know it looks as though I wanted to make a sure thing of it but it's the only plan that is bound to work."

"Why?" Dona's voice was low.

"We'll come in with a 'just married' set of smiles. Your Dad likes me and he'll be pleased. He won't go out and shoot someone to celebrate his only daughter's marriage—not your Dad," Dudley bent closer. "Can't you see, darling, that it is sure to work?"

CISCO AMERICAN and ROUNDER

Dudley sprang at her feet and propped his chin on his elbows. "After we corral your Dad, what according to Doby may be a job, we can spend our honeymoon here."

Dona sunk a heel into the soft earth. "I'm worried about Dad, I'm afraid we won't be able to handle him." There was a catch in her voice.

"Looks as though there is only one way," Dudley sat up beside Dona. "What is that?" she asked eagerly.

"It sounds melodramatic but, confound it, this whole thing is a bit colorful," Dudley began.

"It would be worth anything I possess to keep Dad out of a scrape," Dona's red lips parted softly in the patchy moonlight and her eyes shone. "Now you can see why I put up with the city. For five years I've been able to keep Dad away from trouble. He had to do his fighting over long distance telephone."

Dudley captured her hand and held it tight. "There is just one way and you have to listen to me until I've planned it all."

Dona nodded but her lips closed suddenly.

"Your Dad is a good sport. He's a man who can't be told what to do but he will do the right thing. Now all you have to do is marry me tonight." He did not try to draw her into his arms but waited watching the color play in her satin cheeks.

"But Dad, it isn't fair for you to ask that! Remember our bargain."

"I know it looks as though I wanted to make a sure thing of it but it's the only plan that is bound to work."

"Why?" Dona's voice was low.

"We'll come in with a 'just married' set of smiles. Your Dad likes me and he'll be pleased. He won't go out and shoot someone to celebrate his only daughter's marriage—not your Dad," Dudley bent closer. "Can't you see, darling, that it is sure to work?"

Dona remained silent, thinking of many things. Suddenly she was sure. Her head was a whirl of racing thoughts. The plan was almost sure to work but could she do it? Did she love Dudley Winters? Many times she had thought she did and again she was not sure.

"It isn't as if you were not going to do it anyway, dear. I love you madly and I believe you love me," Dudley burst out, unable to control himself any longer.

"I'm just not sure," Dona's voice was small and fltering. "Oh, Dud, if I only knew! Does anyone ever know?"

"You're just worried, dear. 'Til make it my full-time job to make you love me." Unable to fight back the surge of emotion that swept over him he caught her in his arms.

Then Dona remembered Seth Doby's words. "Sweetie Delo means to get his man this time." With an effort she arose. Instantly he was beside her and had captured both her hands.

"You must marry me, darling!" His voice was husky.

Dona tilted her face upward and her cheeks shone white and free from color. Quietly she answered, "I will marry you tonight, Dud."

A dark shadow had moved across the patch of moonlight and halted behind a squawberry bush just as Dudley made his plea. When Dona answered the shadow shrank back and was blotted out by the blackness of the clump of bushes.

"I'll run and tell the parson," Dudley's voice shook.

"We haven't any license," Dona's voice spoke a doubt that had leaped into her mind unbidden.

Dudley waved a white paper. "I got one to use when I won our little bet. Got it last night." He hesitated to see how she would take this.

"Where will we be married? Why

Low Prices Boom Coco Castile Sales

Always an outstanding bargain, Kirk's Coco Castile, at new low prices, is now featured by its makers as the greatest soap value in America.

Once for aunce, the cake is the same — still half again larger than any other of the three leading toilet soaps. In quality it's still the same 100 per cent Pure Coco Castile that established Kirk's as one of the finest toilet soaps — for hands, shampoo or bath. But the price has now been reduced to a point where the consumer actually can buy five cakes for what she used to pay for three!

Men who have been in the soap business all their lives say that never in their memory have they seen such a value. Proving again that it pays both dealer and consumer to buy from America's largest soap makers, Procter & Gamble!

All this is surely good news for the dealer; and to make it complete, the delighted users of this rich-lathering soap are being told of this opportunity in a big-time way. For Procter & Gamble are announcing this price reduction with stable ads in brilliant black and white display. Bold headlines, a full inch in height, flash the message. "Once for aunce, quality for quality, never has any standard toilet soap been priced so low." And business flashes into the dealer's store—to stay.

While the of this price announcement is stimulating sales to a very marked extent, not for one moment do Procter & Gamble intend to check the steady flow of advertisements which have drawn thousands of new users to Kirk's Coco Castile.

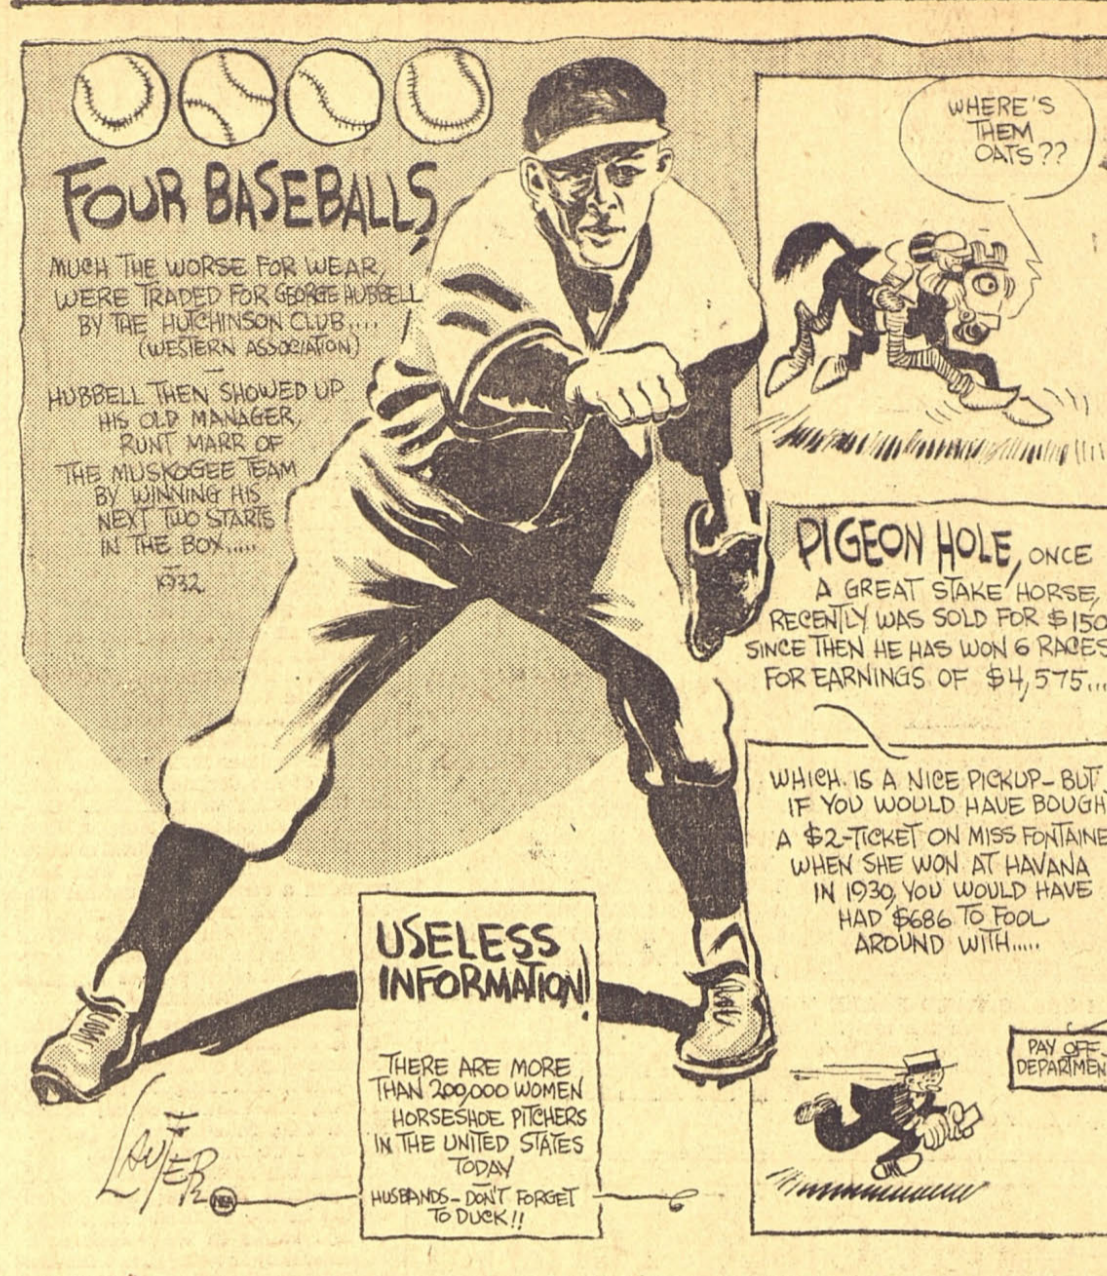

In their campaign already prepared for fall insertion in leading Midwestern newspapers each advertisement features a very real situation in everyday life — illustrated with human-interest photographs. Headlines are as compelling as the photographs themselves. Copy tells the message of Kirk's superiority in ending body odor.

Not one of the millions subject to body odor — or anxious to avoid risk of such offense — need trust to a corrective less reliable than Kirk's or to a soap which substitutes a heavy perfume or medicinal scent. Now, for a few pennies a cake, these bathers may have Kirk's — the marvelous castile bath and toilet soap which makes oceans of lather even in cold, hard water. Penetrating lather that goes deep into the pores, removes every trace of dirt, city film, then rinses off in a flash.

To get full benefit of the splendid business inspired by this new low price and its accompanying powerful advertising campaign, dealers are urged to display the effective window cards and posters which Procter & Gamble have prepared to help spread the news.

Exams for Naval Appointments Set

Competitive examinations for boys desiring to enter the United States Naval academy at Annapolis will be held at various towns in the 17th congressional district Saturday, October 22, Cong. Thomas L. Blanton announced.

His announcement: "I have arranged with the United States Civil Service commission to hold for me a competitive examination at Abilene, Sweetwater, Brownwood, Coleman, Eastland, Lampasas, Stamford, Mineral Wells, San Saba, and Breckenridge, on Saturday, October 22, 1932. I will permit all boys in my district desiring to enter the United States Naval academy at Annapolis to compete in this examination, and the four boys making the highest grades will be appointed by me as the Principal, First, Second and Third Alternates for admission to the United States Naval academy at Annapolis on July 1, 1933. State to Demand Death for Hall

PECOS, Sept. 19. — A crowded court room was on hand today to hear the demands of state's attorneys that Jack Hall, west Texas cowboy be given the death penalty for the killing of Tom C. Barnsley, ranchman.

Defense attorneys moved late Saturday to submit the case to the jury without argument, but prosecutors would not agree. All jurors had been qualified on the death penalty question.

Tear Bombs Hurlled In Ft. Worth Jail

FORT WORTH, Sept. 19. — Tear gas bombs were hurled into prison cells by Sheriff Red Wright today to quell a riot of 27 prisoners confined in the federal section of the county jail.

Objection to a new rule limiting visiting time to 10 minutes for each prisoner caused the outbreak, Sheriff Wright believes.

The riot began when prisoners fired a supper table. Long sections of plank were first ripped from the table and the sticks used to shatter every window in reach of the cell blocks.

Sheriff Wright advised the prisoners to drop their clubs and surrender. Catcalls answered his advice.

The tear gas attack followed. Then the prisoners, with smarting eyes, fled out slowly, hands above their heads. Damage to the jail was estimated at $300.

HOUSTON, Sept. 19. — Bloodhounds were out on the trail of a negro who today entered the suburban home of Mrs. J. Kalmien, slugged her while she slept, bound her with ropes and left after ransacking the house of clothing.

Her husband who was milking cows was unaware of the attack until his wife staggered into the barn having freed herself. At a hospital she was said to have suffered concussion of the brain.

EVERY PERSON IN THE U.S.A. COULD GO RIDING IN AUTOMOBILES AT THE SAME TIME— WITHOUT BEING CROWDED.

The BIRD OF WASHINGTON
NAMED BY THE GREAT NATURALIST, AUDUBON, IN HONOR OF GEORGE WASHINGTON, WAS ONLY A YOUNG BALD EAGLE! AUDUBON DID NOT KNOW THAT YOUNG EAGLES ARE LARGER THAN THEIR PARENTS, AND HE WISHED TO HONOR THE GREAT GENERAL BY NAMING THE LARGEST EAGLE AFTER HIM.

THE YOUNG BALD EAGLE is larger than its parents, and the female is larger than the male. The eagle does not acquire the white plumage of the adults until it is about three years old. Until then it wears a dark brown or dark gray color, and is frequently taken for a separate species altogether. While in this immature state the birds often put their elders to flight.

REACTION IS CAUSED BY MAINE VOTE

In its weekly review of business and financial conditions The Wall Street Journal says:

A reaction in security prices, which had been in the making for some time, was precipitated early last week by the outcome of the election in the republican stronghold of Maine, where democrats elected a governor and two of three members of congress. The market setback in the first three days of the week was the most severe since the recovery in prices got under way early in July, and only signs of recuperative power.

The recession in stocks was accompanied by lower prices for more speculative bonds, but the highest grade issues remained on a fairly even keel. Commodities sagged off much of the week, but had a firmer tone in the latter part of the seven-day period.

Business news, was moderately favorable in tenor throughout the week. Railroad carloadings for individual carriers for the most recent week, September 10, recorded a narrowing of the decline from the total for the similar week of 1931. Carloadings, since early August, have been better, on a comparative basis, than earlier in the year, and have recorded a considerable upturn over the extremely low levels reached in July. The upturn in traffic will be reflected in the August earnings reports, which already have begun to make their appearance.

Improvement in the textile industry is continuing, but an extension depends largely on retail buying. Retail trade, according to the weekly reviews, has shown distinct acceleration due, in substantial part, to favorable weather conditions.

There was further improvement in the general banking situation reflected in the deposits in mutual savings banks in New York as of September 1, showing a net increase of about 67,500,000 over the preceding year. Withdrawals in August, while they exceeded deposits for the month, were the smallest in five months.

The steel industry showed little evidence of an improving demand during the week, and hopes that business would improve "after Labor Day" had to be postponed temporarily. At Youngstown, steel mill operations tapered somewhat. Reports from that center indicated consumers were in no rush for deliveries, and schedules were revised downward slightly at blast and open hearth furnaces.

Leaders in the steel industry remained hopeful. Realizing that improvement must get well under way in industries closely related to consuming lines, they remained confident that eventually this improvement would spread to capital goods, such as steel. The gradual increases in car-loadings and the prospects that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation may aid railroads in financing equipment purchases offered some promise of business. In addition, fairly encouraging reports from the motor centers indicated that demand from that source might be stepped up within a month. In the construction field, principal hopes rested on projects to be financed by the government. An early release on the latter would provide a basis for improved operations.

The week's range of the Dow-Jones averages follows:
30 Industrials—High, $72.33; low, $65.88; close, $67.10.
20 Railroads — High, $34.22; low, $29.71; close, $32.08.
20 Utilities — High, $32.24; low, $28.80; close, $29.49.
40 Bonds — High, $81.62; low, $80.78; close, $80.78.

REVIVAL OPENS SUNDAY WITH LARGE CROWDS

Opening to a large congregation, the revival at the First Methodist church drew an even larger crowd for the second service at 7:30 Sunday evening. Rev. Ray N. Johnson, of Mineral Wells, began his series of messages Sunday morning with the subject "The Need of a Revival."

Sunday evening the eloquent young evangelist, who delivers his messages with a convincing energy, preached upon the theme "Is Christ a Failure?"

Three new members were received at the morning service.

This morning at the 10 o'clock service the evangelist's subject was "The Dynamo of a Revival." Tonight he will preach upon the subject "Saved to Serve."

Singing begins each evening at 7:30 under the direction of J. T. Elliott.

Services will be held each weekday morning at 10 o'clock, Saturday's excluded.

The public is cordially invited to attend these services.

TEXAS BAND OF 100 PIECES TO BE FORMED

DALLAS, Sept. 19.—Organization of the Texas All-State band to have a membership of 100 musicians from all parts of Texas who are experienced in both band and orchestral work was announced here yesterday by W. A. McDaniel, co-founder of the Dallas band, and prominent in musical circles.

McDaniel said when the organization is completed there will be a concert band instrumentation with a sufficient double for a proper instrumentation of an 85-piece symphony orchestra.

Explaining the membership will come from towns and cities in all sections of the state, McDaniel said it would be a "Texas institution for the people of Texas." It will have a dual purpose, he added, and that of rendering free service to Texans as a medium of publicity and of entertainment.

It is planned to make two state tours yearly with special performances at fairs, conventions and centennials and other statewide gatherings.

"A centennial like the Chicago World fair," said McDaniel, "where the band could visit for an indefinite period of time playing concerts under eminent national and international guests conductors would be of wonderful value to Texas."

The plan includes formation of a mixed vocal chorus which would be assembled for a statewide gathering such as the Texas centennial in 1936, McDaniel said.

Financing.
McDaniel said an association is being formed for the purpose of financing the group through an underwriting plan of citizen membership. Such an organization, he explained, is being set up for a period of five years largely for the purpose of completing and financing for the Texas centennial in 1936. Selection of a board of directors and an executive committee will be made from each locality where there is membership in the organization.
The organization will consist of a concert band of 100 and an orchestra of 85 pieces, a double vocal quartet and a saxophone band of 40 and a 20 piece drum corp.
McDaniel has already received a certificate of trademark for the organization. A charter for the association of citizens aiding the organization of the band has been applied for from the secretary of state, Mrs. Jane McCallum.

They Satisfied in '17
and you can't Beat em Today

THIS picture will bring back memories to a lot of people of the days when the boys went marching away with flags flying and bands playing.
Chesterfields were very popular with those men who went overseas. They were "rookies" then. They're "old vets" today. And that milder, satisfying Chesterfield flavor is still their steady choice... after fifteen years!

It was mildness that first attracted smokers to Chesterfield. And it's mildness and better taste that is winning new friends for Chesterfield today... all over the country.
Next time you're short of cigarettes, ask for Chesterfields. They satisfied in '17, and you can't beat 'em today.
