Gov. Sterling Protests Standard's Cut in Crude Price

SAYS ACTION WOULD UPSET PRORATION

AUSTIN, March 5.—Gov. Ross Sterling today telegraphed President Hoover and John Rockefeller, Jr., protesting against a cut in crude oil prices by the Standard Oil company of Indiana.

The cut at this time Gov. Sterling former head of the Humble Oil and Refining company, said it likely to upset the uniform program of oil proration and conservation now being worked out by Texas, Kansas and Oklahoma legislatures.

Effective this morning at 7 o'clock in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, the Stanoline Pipe Line company announced reductions in crude oil ranging from 22 to 40 cents. Crude below 29 degree to 65 cents for crude oil of 40 degrees and above.

The standard runs no oil in this section but handles crude in counties in the Wichita Falls area. The prevailing price for oil of 40 degrees at this time is $1.07. The cut announced by the Standard would represent a reduction of about 38 cents a barrel on oil of the Cisco area.

No other purchasing companies had announced reductions meeting the new standard prices at noon today so far as the Daily News was able to learn.

Kitchen Short Cuts to Economy Revealed

Interest in the Daily News Free Cooking school, which opened Monday and closes Friday afternoon, continues to increase among the women of Cisco. The crowd at the building directly across the street from the Cisco Banking company, which the Continental Oil company permitted the Daily News to use for the school, was the largest yesterday that has attended previous lectures by Miss Rada Sue Garrett, home economics expert conducting the school.

RADA SUE GARRETT

About 30 chairs were secured from the Laguna hotel but still many ladies were forced to stand. More seating has been secured for today, yet an overflow is expected. The economic department of the high school has been invited for today's session. Many prizes are being given each day by local merchants.

In cooking meats, she said, it is better to use no water at all. Never, she declared, is it necessary to float roasts in water.

In cooking macaroni, she said, boiling water should be used for the best effects. Vegetables, excepting dried beans, are better cooked if boiling water is poured over them after they have been started.

Another useful kitchen article advised by Miss Garrett is a rubber plate scraper. This utensil, she said, is very useful in scraping food from utensils.

"It has been said," declared Miss Garrett, "that the kitchen sink is

8 MORE FARM LOAN CHECKS ARE RECEIVED

Eight more checks for federal farm relief loans in Eastland county were received this morning by the county committee. The loans are for farmers in the Rising Star, Nimrod and Carbu communities and total $1,033.24, or an average of $129.15 each.

Those receiving the loans are: J. L. Black, W. O. Hamilton and J. M. Thurman, of Carbu; J. W. Turnell, S. W. Wilkerson, M. M. Baldwin and J. B. Glidewell, of Rising Star and J. F. Sampson, of Nimrod.

Accompanying the checks was a letter setting forth revised regulations with respect to borrowing from the federal government. These regulations provide that a family may borrow a maximum of $75 for the purpose of feeding cows, chickens and hogs to be used for the production of food for farm families. This sum will be distributed in the following manner:

BILL PROVIDES PENALTY FOR POSSESSION

AUSTIN, March 5.—Possessors of liquor will run the risk of a jail sentence under a new prohibition enforcement law offered the Texas house of representatives today by Rep. B. J. Forbes, of Weatherford, and Rep. Harry Graves, of Georgetown.

The present law punishes only possession for the purposes of sale. The proposed new law would punish every possession but that of prescription liquor, sacramental, scientific or medicinal. That the liquor was so possessed is made an acceptable defense in prosecution. Penalties for possession in the bill are made fines of from $25 to $1,000, a jail sentence not more than one year.

The Women's Study club met Monday Feb. 23 in the home of Mrs. Louie Williams with Mrs. J. N. Williams as hostess.

The president opened the meeting by reading the score card for club report of the district meeting held at Big Spring April 15, 16 and 17 Mrs. Cook pointed out the ways in which the club might score. Being unable to subscribe the one hundred dollars to the permanent headquarters fund, our club cannot expect to be a runner up in the club report but in the other items we hope to score 100 per cent. Mrs. Cook is making a most capable president and the club is looking forward to the next year's work expecting to do much good work under her able leadership. "Old Man Hard Times" interfered somewhat with our aims and ambitions for this year but we felt the lull in activities turned our thoughts inward and brought about a closer unity within the club. And in spite of dire prophecies a woman's study club seems to be a permanent thing.

The following were appointed for the programme committee for the year of 1931-1932: Messames W. H. Norred, J. N. Williams, and F. P. Shackelford.

Why we spend $2,000,000 to put CAMEL cigarettes in the new HUMIDOR PACK

WE have been in the tobacco business a long time down here at Winston-Salem and we take a lot of pride in the quality of the cigarettes we make.

While we have spent a good many million dollars advertising Camels, we've always held to the old fashioned idea that the thing that really counts is what we put into our cigarette and not what we say about it.

If we know anything about tobacco, and we think we do, Camels contain the choicest Turkish and the mellowest, ripest domestic leaves that money can buy.

In fact we have every reason to be proud of the quality of Camels as they come from the factory, but the remark of an old friend of ours from Denver some time ago emphasized a point that has been the problem of the cigarette industry for years.

As he inhaled the smoke from a Camel we gave him in our offices one morning, he sighed with very evident enjoyment and then asked jokingly, "What is this, a special blend reserved for Camel executives?"

"Certainly not," we told him. "This package of Camels was bought at the corner store this morning."

"Well," he said, "I've been a dyed in the wool Camel smoker for a good many years, but upon my soul I never got a cigarette as good as this in Denver. If you would give the rest of the world the kind of Camels you sell here in Winston-Salem, you ought to have all the cigarette business there is."

THAT statement simply emphasized again the cigarette industry's most important problem. The more we thought about it, the surer we were that he was dead right, and that somehow, something must be done.

Denver wasn't getting a fair break. Neither in fact was any other town. The only people who really knew how good Camels could be, were the folks right here in Winston-Salem.

That was due to a factor no cigarette manufacturer had ever been able to control.

Naturally there is no difference whatever in the quality of the tobacco in Camels, whether you buy them in Winston-Salem, Denver or Timbuctoo. But up to now there has been a very real difference in the condition of the cigarettes by the time they reached the smoker.

The flavor and mildness of fine tobacco depend upon the retention of its natural, not added, moisture content which is prime at about ten per cent.

In spite of our great pains always to make sure Camels left the factory with just the right amount of natural moisture, no cigarette package had ever yet been designed that could prevent that precious moisture from drying out.

THERE are three things about a cigarette that can sting the tongue and unkindly burn the throat.

- (1) Cheap tobaccos.
- (2) Particles of peppery dust left in the tobacco because of inefficient cleaning methods.
- (3) A parched dry condition of the tobacco due to loss of natural moisture by overheating or evaporation.

Always certain of the quality of our tobaccos we had already made Camel a "dustless" cigarette by the use of a specially designed vacuum cleaning apparatus exclusive with our factory.

Now, if we could perfect a package that would actually act as a humidior and retain the natural moisture content, then Yuma, Arizona, could enjoy Camels as much as we do here at Winston-Salem.

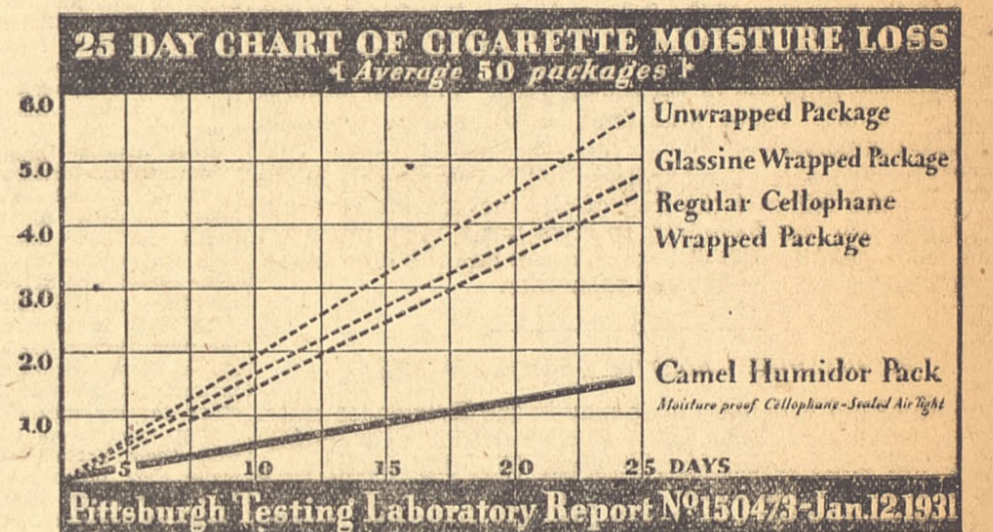

We knew what we wanted. We tried many things. We asked the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory to help us.

After many experiments and humidity tests covering all methods of packing cigarettes came the detailed report of which this is the net:

- (A) No existing cigarette package, including those wrapped in glassine paper or ordinary cellophane, gives anything like adequate protection against evaporation.
- (B) All cigarettes so packed tend to dry out rapidly from the day they are released from the factory.
- (C) Only a waterproof material with a specially devised air-tight seal could give the desired protection. (D) This measure, while costly, could be relied on to keep Camels in prime condition for at least three months in any climate.

If you have a technical bent, the graph below made by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory will show you the exact results of their exhaustive study.

Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory chart above graphically shows you that only the Camel Humidor Pack delivers cigarettes to you in prime condition

YOU may be sure we gave this report a lot of careful study. We checked it and re-checked it and then we went ahead. We tried this device and that. At last we met success. The air-tight wrapping involved the designing of special processes, special machines.

That costs a lot of money, more than $2,000,000 the first year, but after you have tried Camels packed this modern new way we are sure you will agree it is a fine investment.

For some time now every Camel that has left our factory has gone out in this new Humidor Pack.

We have said nothing about it until now, to make sure your dealer would be able to supply you when the good news came out.

Camel smokers of course have already discovered that their favorite cigarette is better and milder now than ever before.

If you aren't a Camel smoker, try them just to see what a difference there really is between harsh, dried out tobacco and a properly conditioned cigarette.

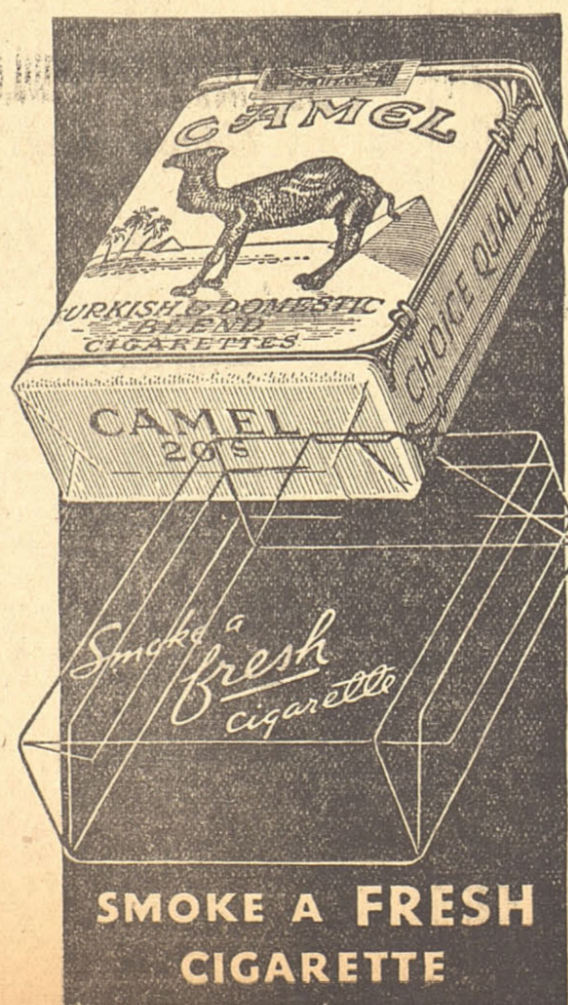

You can feel the difference, you can hear the difference and you certainly can taste the difference.

Of course we're prejudiced.

We always have believed that Camel is the world's best cigarette.

Now we know it.

Just treat yourself to Camels in the new Humidor Pack and see if you don't agree.

GOVERNOR MURRAY AND HIS PLAN.

Governor William H. Murray of Oklahoma and Ross S. Sterling of Texas, joined by representatives of the governors of New Mexico and Kansas, shot a "hot" message to President Hoover that he "request major companies to limit their exports in an effort to stabilize the oil industry. We are dealing with a great emergency in the oil situation now existing and appeal to you as president to urge an immediate agreement by these importers with the section of the various federal authorities." Copies of the message were sent to the heads of the giants of the oil industry. An advisory committee was appointed by the two governors and the representatives of the two governors and it was resolved that the committee "immediately take such action as may be necessary to recommend and sponsor such necessary legislation for all oil producing states as may be necessary effectually to conserve to these states their natural resources, for the benefit of the public and prosperity, such legislation to be as nearly uniform as practicable."

Now the Murray plan would bar from business in the mid-continent oil area states domestic and foreign corporations importing oil from other countries. A republican house smashed the program of the independents. It refused to put a ban on imports. It forced an early adjournment of congress with the oil bills left as unfinished business for the new congress to tackle in December, 1931. Foreign crude is on the free list. There is no limit as to imports. There is no ban on imports.

"Wherever there is oil there is hell," according to an old geologist who followed the flag of Dohoney on his invasion of Mexico. He may have been in error but it is an immortal cliché wherever there is oil there is a row and the lawmakers, national and state, are kept on their toes.

EDSEL FORD AND THE SHORT WEEK.

Edsel Ford is doing a little play in the Everglades state. He was interviewed and said he believed that all manufacturers will come to the shorter week (five-day week) as a means of meeting problems arising from unemployment. These are his words: "Industry has demonstrated it can more than supply the demands which naturally will leave a surplus of labor and at present nothing appears on the immediate horizon which can absorb this surplus." There is another surplus that must be absorbed. This is the machine age away down on the farm.

Machinery annually creates a large surplus of farm population and adds to the number of the unemployed. Now how will it be possible to absorb the surplus idlers down on the farm? They continue to drift to the cities and the towns. Absorption must come. It is either "back to the farm" to toil for a living by supplying the wants of the table from the soil or a continuous army of unemployed in the centers of population.

BRIGHT SPOTS IN THE TEXAS SUN.

Texas has been pronounced the whitest spot on or in the map of America. Now a general optimistic trend is denoted in the monthly business review of the Federal Reserve bank of Dallas. Livestock have wintered well and are improving steadily. All the drouthy spots have been soaked, snow has covered the wheat fields of the West and Northwest and the cattle ranges of the upper country as far south as the Big Bend boundary line of Texas. With prospects for excellent pasturage, the review says that livestock should take on flesh rapidly during the succeeding weeks. There is one drawback—the low prices obtained for agricultural and livestock products. To combat the effects of the low prices the review pointedly says "farmers are showing a greater disposition for raising their living at home and to practice greater diversification as well as to reduce the cost of production wherever possible."

The plain English of this is that the folks "down on the farm" are going to do their own work this season. It is announced that land preparation is more advanced than usual, planting operations are being commenced early and growing crops generally are in good to excellent condition.

Speaking of trade, it is said the department state sales reflected the usual seasonal recession from the previous month and the decline from a year ago was approximately the same as in December but the gain was less than the usual seasonal expansion and the comparison with a year ago was slightly more unfavorable than in the previous months. Merchants continued to restrict purchases to actual requirements and collections have shown little or no improvement. Nationally speaking, Julius Barnes has reported to his chief, the president of the United States, that the trend is upward in the business as well as the manufacturing world. Building activities continue brisk under the skies of Texas and the outlook in this field of endeavor is said to be encouraging.

Take the bright side of the situation and permit the dark side to care for itself. Seasons of prosperity come and go. Lean years follow fat years. Americans have their fat years. Now they have been given a touch of the lean year. Depressions come and go. After a season of depression comes business revival and a fair share of prosperity for those who think and work and hustle and "never say die."

OTHER OPINIONS

THIS CRAZY WORLD

Becoming a cynic is as easy as rolling down a hill. All you have to do is to shut your eyes tight to one set of facts and open them wide to another set. Magnify the evil about you and minimize the good; focus your eyes on the faults and foibles of your neighbors, brood often and long on the wrongs done society, not forgetting to regard as hypocrites the great souls who suffered in order to make our rugged way a little smoother; imply ulterior motives to the poor deluded folks who say they believe in their fellows; and do not fail to exercise yourself daily with the hammer, fit emblem of the chronic knocker. Pursue months and you will become an accomplished cynic, a proficient misanthrope, pessimist of a purple hue.

Fully as easy as the road to cynicism is the way leading to that "fool's paradise" where a Pollyanna optimism supplies the rarefied air and provides the cloudless skies. To shut out the drab and sordid facts of life, to ignore the designs and divisings of wicked men, to refuse to see peril in organized evil is to be "forever blowing bubbles, pretty bubbles in the air," and to jeopardize the hard-won achievements in the long fight for freedom and justice. Of the two extremes the ardent optimist or the morbid cynic most of us prefer to act on the conclusions of the latter, though we would rather "inter" with the former. As medicine, optimism is the more palatable to the taste, cynicism is a nasty dose, but more likely to prove efficacious.

To look the world squarely in the face, seeing things as they are and taking into account both good and evil is not easy. No portion of the world is wholly good or wholly bad. Everywhere society is an admixture with right dominant in some portions and wrong entrenched in others. A "spotty" world is not a safe world, and each generation is flung a challenge to rid society of the plague spots which threaten its destruction. Every mother's son of us is born when the times are out of joint and born to set them right. It is both a single-handed fight and a mass movement. This crazy world can never be set right until its citizenship goes about the job on a global scale with no nation or race as a mere looker on, but each and all active participants in the bloodless battle of peace.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma.

We are told that Nero fiddled while Rome burned. It is extraordinary what prominence has been given to this musical performance and what unqualified blame has been directed at Nero.

But we are not acquainted with all the circumstances accompanying Nero's much maligned musical show.

It is possible that the Romans were passing through a financial crisis such as is now affecting many sections of the country. Rome may have been well insured and the people resigned to see their homes and shops burn up to the tune of the violin.

All this is merely speculation. We must accept the modern opinion of Nero's performances as an instance of callous disregard of other people's misfortunes. Many merchants today are letting their business be destroyed while they listen to the tune of hard times and spend their time dreaming and talking hard times, and on account of this they and their neighbors suffer. In this day and time if business men would continuously advertise their merchandise or service, advertising would be the music that would build business for them and hard times thoughts would be forgotten and everybody would be more prosperous.

SOME FOLKS VALUE THEIR AUTOMOBILES MORE THAN THEIR HEALTH

At least it seems so. It is strange, but true, that many men who have a spark plug miss fire, or some other trivial thing go wrong with a car will take it to a garage, ask for the master mechanic or an expert. He is told to find the trouble and fix it. He demands service and gets it. And because the garage is on a "cash basis" he pays his bill and goes on his way.

This happens every day and hundreds of the same men have a physician's bill of long standing. Why is it that so many people will pay the plumber promptly for fixing a broken pipe—yet they allow their physician to go unpaid for months after he has fixed a broken arm or leg?

Why is it that men who will pay a lawyer a substantial sum for making out a paper will allow their physician who diagnoses and prescribes for their illness so that they can be physically fit to keep busy to go unpaid for months?

Treat your physician fairly. He serves when you most need service. He comes when the bravest are worried and frightened, he comes at any hour regardless of the inconvenience. He comes day or night. He leaves his meals, a warm bed, a family gathering; he leaves them because he is serving an ideal. It is the physician who renders the greatest service. It is your physician who is first entitled to your consideration. Pay him promptly—if you can't pay cash at least pay the first of each month.

Every physician is entitled to fair play. The man you expect to rush to you in time of need is not the man to place last on the list when you are paying your bills. Why not send your physician a check today?

QUALIFICATION FOR LEADER OF CHURCH TOLD

On account of the illness of Rev. Moore, of Eastland, the local minister, J. Porter Wilhite, did the preaching in the special meeting of the Church of Christ on last evening, taking the subject that he was to discuss by Mr. Moore, "The Officers of the Church." In his remarks, Elder Wilhite said that the qualifications of an elder, one of the officers, was also a qualification for any real Christian, and was set so high by the Lord that we may continue to press onward and upward, never reaching complete perfection until we reach the other side.

"It would shock the world and deprive the church to have a toper at the head of the church as an officer, but he has as much right to drink as any other Christian," said the speaker. Neither should he be greedy of filthy lucre, or covetous, having no dirty dollars in his pocket. Instead of being a lover of money he, as an officer, should be a lover of men, and go to more trouble and spend more time for the soul of some individual than he would for money, because Jesus said the soul was worth more than the whole world. The officers should be dignified gentlemen, who are always willing to be very considerate of the other fellow's condition. Neither should he be fractious, or easy to get angry, because anger blinds the eye, and thrones reason, converting us into merciless tyrants. He should be sober and rational, chaste, courteous and polite, because there is no place more befitting true gentlemen manners than the church. Just, holy, and blameless, are three virtues that are bound on the officers of the church that set the mark very high, which only shows that the elder, like the Lords day, is God's model man, at least supposed to be.

"Too, the elder should be given to hospitality. So generous and genuine should be his hospitality that the brethren would be delighted to pay him a visit, that they might be entertained and taught the ways of a Christian. There is a very little real hospitality in this age of the world it seems, but the elder is supposed to keep up this true virtue of Christianity, and when I say the elder, I apply it to myself," said the speaker. The elder, or bishop, is supposed to be vigilant. Always on the alert to discover and avoid dangers, and provide safety for the flock, over which he is an overseer. The only way for him to be able to do that is to study, and always be on hand at every meeting of the church. The church door should never be open without his presence. In other words, he should always be there to see that every thing goes right, because he is absolutely responsible to God for the welfare of the local congregation. A sluggish elder can not cope with the wide awake enemies of the church, so be vigilant. You can tell a man by the company he keeps, so an elder is supposed to be a lover of good men, and those he loves, he associates with. His life being modeled after that of the Christ, he finds his affinity in the life of other good men. Another qualification of the elder is that he be apt to teach. To be a teacher he should be well posted, therefore he should study diligently. The church is a school, and the elders are the teachers, being able to educate others on the doctrine as well as practical Christianity, then they should be well spoken of out of the church as well as in it. A fellow may not like your religion, but he can find no objection to your life, and therefore you are well spoken of. "The Work of the Church" is the subject for tonight, and Rev. Nichol, of Ranger is to be the speaker.

Drought Relief by Red Cross Greater Than Given in Any Previous Disaster

SHADED PORTION SHOWS WHERE RED CROSS IS GIVING DROUGHT RELIEF

This map, as of January 31, shows that the Red Cross is giving drought relief in 735 counties in twenty states.

DROUGHT brought to the American Red Cross a larger relief job than the Mississippi flood of 1927. Three times as many states are affected. The latest tabulation shows more than 800,000 persons being cared for by the Red Cross, as against 600,000 in the largest previous domestic disaster. Thousands of volunteers are aiding in the present emergency, and upon them rests much of the work for local relief. With 175 representatives in the field giving supervision, the American Red Cross reports that every one of its 735 Chapters extending aid in as many counties of 20 affected states, is giving an excellent account of itself.

President Hoover recently called upon all of the citizens of the nation to contribute to a ten million dollar relief fund to care for these men, women and children who are victims of the unprecedented drought.

Helping them to help themselves is one of the major efforts of the Red Cross. As a part of this plan, distribution of two million packets of garden seed given by the Red Cross is getting under way in Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama and will follow later in other drought areas. Garden plots will be planted up to one-quarter acre in size, and will do much to thwart malnutrition and prevent disease. Many are the stories of distress due to the drought stricken crops, which have robbed the larder of its normal winter food supply, and the barn of its feed for stock, which have reached the Red Cross. As a result, the Society has started to feed the children in hundreds of rural schools. A hot, thick beef stew, with vegetables, buttered bread and milk constitute this noon-day meal to prevent malnutrition.

Thousands of families receive their food orders each week from the Red Cross. Their wants are passed upon by committees of men and women in their own communities, who issue to them orders upon the stores they normally patronize.

In addition, more than 130 carloads of fresh fruits, vegetables and other edibles have been donated to the Red Cross by individuals all over the country, and these have been distributed in the drought areas, along with hundreds of bales of clothing.

The States where the Red Cross is giving aid are Alabama, Arkansas, Illinois, Georgia, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia, Missouri, Montana, North Dakota, Oklahoma and Texas.

MAD MARRIAGE

A Gripping New Serial of Jilted Love

Watch for It

Begins Tomorrow in THE CISCO DAILY NEWS

QUALITY OF 1932 COTTON CROP FIGURED

IN STRANGE LOVE MIXUP

AUSTIN, March 5. — Nearly two years ahead of time, the prospective quality of the 1932 Texas cotton crop is being estimated by inspectors for the certification division of the state department of agriculture.

While the results of analysis now being made in the division could not be regarded as a substitute gauge of the 1932 quality, they will indicate that quality indirectly, for they show what quality the certified cotton breeder may expect in 1931, and from the 1931 breeders' crops will come a good portion of the planting seed for the 1932 farm crop.

Armed with a tiny comb, and with samples of cotton taken from the breeders' fields last year, the inspectors are combing these samples to determine staple length and uniformity. Their findings will be compared with the growing cotton in the breeders' fields next season; if marked variation is found, the inspector will know the cotton is not running true to form, and corrective steps can be taken in order that seed from the faulty cotton may not be sold to the farmer.

These samples, taken from the fields set aside by the breeders for their own planting seed, also are tested for lint percent and lint index. All these analysis, combined with field inspections made of the growing cotton last season and compared to the previous record of the breeder, furnish the division fairly accurate data concerning the potentialities of each breeder's seed.

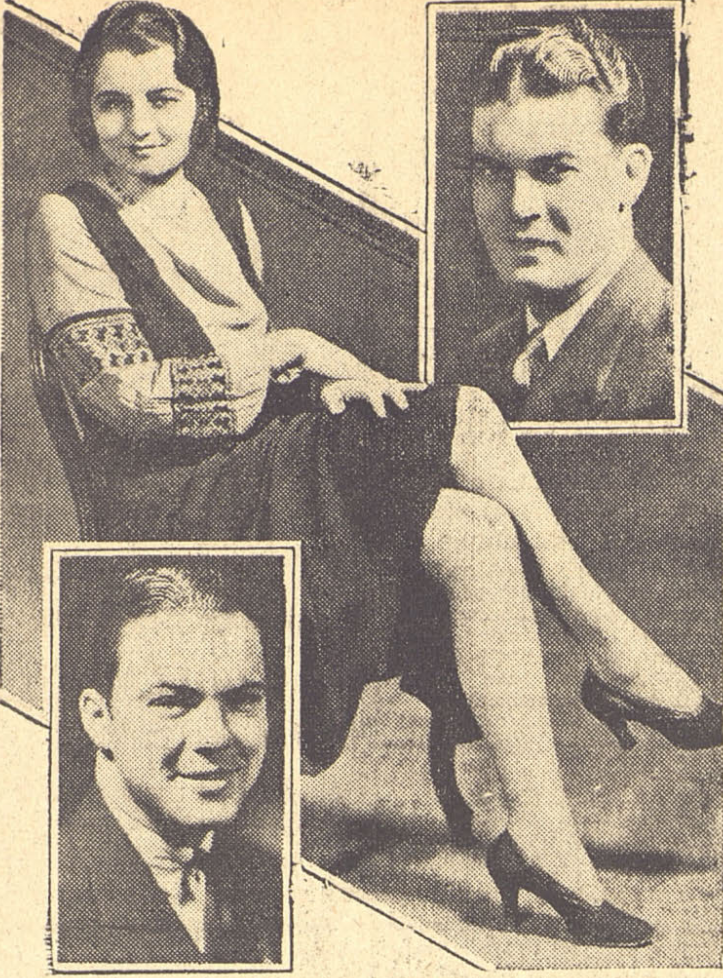

The division does not attempt to compare one breeder's seed with that of another, since such comparisons should take into account soil and climate as well as seed stock. Tests of this nature are made by the Experiments Stations, with which the division cooperates.

The only concern of the certification division is to determine whether the cotton breeder measures up to the standards fixed by the state plant board.

According to R. V. Miller, chief of the division, the bright red tag which is affixed to every bag of certified seed has come to be known not only in Texas but in other states and foreign countries as a guaranty of cotton seed purity.

Farmers Told to Shelter Cotton
Austin, March 5. — Shelter your cotton from the rain and build a durable shed with the savings, cotton farmers are urged by J. E. McDonald, state commissioner of agriculture.

Deductions of five dollars or more per bale made by buyers against wet cotton might easily be avoided by putting the bales under shelter instead of leaving them in the fields to rot, the commissioner said.

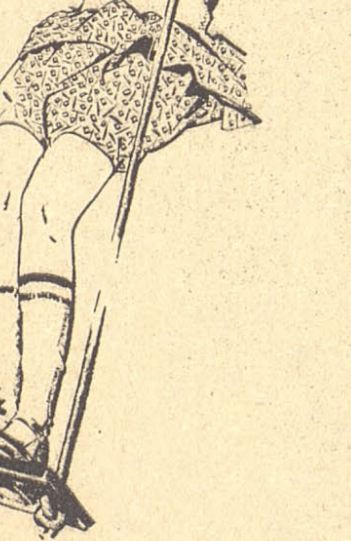

Here are the principal characters in one of the most dramatic stories of tangled lives and loves you ever read. Gypsy McBride, above, was heart-broken because Alan Crosby, lower left, the man she loved, had cast her aside. So Gypsy married James Wallace, upper right, an utter stranger, the day after she met him. You'll hear more about these three in "Mad Marriage," a gripping new serial novel, which starts tomorrow in The Cisco Daily News.

FINALLY RIDES TRAIN
ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 5.—Joe Banks, a "red cap" here for 16 years has at last taken a ride on a railroad, after meeting 1,113,000 trains without ever riding on one. He took a trip to Jefferson City and visited the capitol and state penitentiary.

BETTER BRAN FLAKES

Better for children

CHILDREN'S eyes sparkle with delight when they see Kellogg's PEP Bran Flakes. There's something in the peppy, snappy flavor of Kellogg's PEP Bran Flakes that makes them first choice with the young folks every time.

Better for grown-ups

Kellogg's PEP Bran Flakes are as healthful as they are good. They contain just enough bran to be mildly laxative. Their rich whole-wheat nourishment makes them practically a perfect food with milk or cream.

Enjoy them often. Serve them to the children—after school, at supper, as a bedtime snack. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Door Too Big for "Heavy" to Leave

PHILADELPHIA, March 5.—Listen to this story about a man who hasn't been outside of his home for 11 years because he's too big to get through the door. He's only 27, but he weighs 701 pounds.

His name is Joe Raggio and his one joy in life is food. "I live to eat," declared the champion fat man of the Quaker City. "In fact I love it."

And so it seems for outside of reading or playing a bit of poker, he hasn't another interest in the world but food. Joe really enjoys spaghetti. He only eats four pounds at a meal, he says, and stops then because they won't give him any more. Next on the menu is "dogs." Now Joe, when he is really hungry, eats four or five pounds of frankfurters at a sitting. Then with a loaf of bread and eight cups of black coffee to wash it down, he says he's able to "carry on" for at least another three or four hours.

He wears h-m-made shoes; that is he calls them shoes, but they're just slabs of wood with a canvas strap to hold them on. His widowed mother makes his shirts when she has time. Joe's circumference—78 inches—is ten inches greater than his height, which is 5 feet, 8 inches.

MINERAL BERYL FOUND.
RENO, March 5.—Deposits of the mineral beryl have been found in Nevada, according to J. A. Felt, director of the Nevada bureau of mines. Beryl is the chief source of the metal beryllium which has recently been the subject of widespread comment.

Haskell — Several changes recently made in equipment at city pumping plant.

Crowell — Construction on Board county's new jail progressing at rapid rate.

BOTH BULLDOG GRID MENTORS ARE RE-ELECTED

RANGER, March 5.—Eck Curtis and Tricky Ward will direct the athletic destinies of the Ranger Bulldogs for the next year.

The two popular coaches were re-elected by the school board at a session Tuesday night. In 1928, the regime of Curtis and Ward in Ranger high school athletics began. Curtis, former star quarterback of the Abilene Christian college team, came here from Anson where his Tigers each year were recognized as among the strongest Class B teams in the state and capable of holding their own with the "A" teams. One year, he piloted Anson to the unofficial Class B championship of Texas, defeating Marlin in the final game. Marlin was coached by Dewey Mayhew, low the mentor of the Abilene Eagles.

Ward came to Ranger upon graduating from Texas Christian university where he starred as a tackle and an end. His duties here were those of coach of Ranger Junior college and he produced a strong eleven. However the scant number of boys available caused football to be given up and Ward then took over the task of coaching the Bulldog line.

FOR GINGER'S SAKE

CHAPTER XLII
 "Why, they're a regular gang, aren't they?" Ginger cried. "Benito's gang. Isn't low getting tough?"
 But they explained that it was no gang, the Benito had been waiting to talk to over with Ginger. He said it was a good job, and he liked it, and if Miss Ginger was willing he'd cook her spaghetti for life!
 "Oh, Phil!" teased Ginger, "however did you get the idea that maybe I was bored?"
 Almost with consciousness itself return the memory that Cotton was the wife of Speed.
 "And I hope," she said slyly, settling herself more comfortably with Bard's arm "that you do not feel so very badly about that."
 "I don't feel badly about it at all. The only thing I regret is that my portrait painting has been so interrupted. I'm in a great hurry now to get enough money for you to get married on."
 "Perhaps," she suggested brightly, "I'll be willing to lend you some of the ransom money. It was really you who saved it for her."
 "Bard," she said at last, with a sigh, "I have something to tell you. You're going to be disappointed in me, I know. But you may as well have the truth before you begin saving money."
 "It sounds very terrible," he said, smiling.
 "It is terrible. You see, it's like this. I'm not really what you think I am at all."
 "I think you are the sweetest."
 "Yes, but listen. I'm not really sophisticated and smart and worldly as I've been letting on. Not a bit. I'm—really—I'm just the same old parsonage Ginger that I always was. You know, Bard, you can't outgrow things when you get to be my age. I'm sore of ashamed of it, in a way, but on the whole it's comfortable, too."
 "What do you mean, Ginger?"
 "Why, being old-fashioned like I am. You know, Bard, I still say my prayers. Yes, really. Not before people—but I do. And believe me, when I get in a jam I say them in earnest! Every time I half came to in that boat I was just praying my head off. Don't tell others. How Eddy Jackson would laugh."
 Bard's eyes were misty. He caressed her hand, pressed it to his lips. He did not speak.
 "And the way I run preachers," she continued ruefully. "It's all put on. Really, I still think preachers are of the going—nice ones, like like father. And Bard, don't tell this, but I don't like to see Cotton smoke. I'd much rather she didn't. But don't ever give me away, will you?"
 "Is that all of the confession?"
 She sighed a little. "It seemed no more than fair to tell you," she said regretfully. "But I knew you would be disappointed in me."
 "But Ginger," he said laughing, "you know—to tell you the truth—I suspected it long time ago."
 Ginger was wordlessly amazed.
 "You often gave yourself away," he went on. "Just little things that would crop out now and then."
 "Oh, dear," she said. "What a trump I must be!"
 Bard stood up. "Guess I'd better get at those portraits," he said. "Every hour I lay off work now is just so many days I haven't got you."
 Ginger brightened. "You mean you—you are going to stick to it?"
 "Parsonage and all?"
 "Parsonage and all," he declared firmly.
 But when it came to breaking the news to Eddy Jackson—dear, faithful Eddy Jackson!—tried and true friend through the harrowing vicissitudes of so many years—her happiness clouded a little. She sent every one else away and had him come, alone, and sit beside her on the bed.
 "Eddy," she said, burrowing her head into the silken cushions and reaching feverishly for his hands—those kind hands that had steadied her troubled steps through so many, many ways! "Eddy, it's like this," she began. "You know how Bard is, don't you?"
 "No," said Eddy. "How is he?"
 "He's all right," she said, slightly disconcerted. "I mean you know how his disposition is."
 "It's a pretty rotten sometimes, I think," said Eddy critically.
 "I mean, he is careless," said Ginger more firmly. "He's just an artist, and really, in some ways, he hasn't got so very much sense. He would just go on painting portrait after portrait—and pay for the paints and canvasses himself—and never ask anybody for a cent of money. If I wasn't right there to nudge him. He's just got to have somebody to take care of him and remind him of things he forgets—like getting the money. Don't you see how it is?"

"Well, I don't just see it," admitted Eddy. "But if you say he hasn't got much sense, I suppose he hasn't."
 "That isn't what I mean. Dear me! What I mean is that—dear, dear Eddy!—I hope you won't think for a minute that I love him or anybody half as much as I do you, who have been my friend for so many years—but if somebody doesn't marry him and take care of him, he's going to get himself into some perfectly terrible jam. And I don't think anyone else—really wants to do it—he's such a responsibility. So—I'm afraid—I'll have to."
 To Ginger's utter amazement, Eddy, far from being cast down at the news, burst into hearty laughter.
 "Ginger, you sly little devil," he said. "Don't you think you can go on pulling the wool over my eyes the rest of your life? I've seen through you for years. Yes, you love me all right, after a fashion, the way you love your father, and Ben and Janky, but the way you love this Bard chap is something else again."
 "I—I hope you aren't surprised."
 "Not only am I not surprised," he said, "but I'm darn glad of it. I'm tired out. To tell you the truth, each other pretty well, and we have agreed that as soon as we get you off our hands we'll get married ourselves and take a long rest."
 "You and Pat! You mean my Pat?"
 "Nobody else."
 "And will he do it?"
 "She says so."
 "Will she go and live with you at Pay Dirt?"
 "It's the only place I have to live."
 "Oh, Eddy!" cried Ginger. "That's just gorgeous! Then Bard and I will switch things around at Mill Rush and chuck out the club and go and live there with Pietro to cook for us. And I'll be right on hand to go on managing father and Phil—and I can sort of keep an eye on you and Pat, too. Tell Bard to come, quick!"
 But before he reached the door she called after him. "No, don't interrupt him. He may be working on those portraits."
 But it was not necessary to postpone their plans for the painting of portraits.
 A few weeks later Marker was in possession of news of such tremendous importance that he took the first train to Red Thrush—at his own expense—to deliver it in person.
 It seemed that Mexico had not witnessed the first co-operative efforts of Messrs. Giovanni and Benito. They had been allied long before that in a different sort of business, far more sinister, in their native Italy, where they were listed as political offenders and where "there was a price on their heads." Marker and Holt lost not a moment in picking up Giovanni, making one feather in their professional bonnet since they could not attack much credit, as concerned Benito.
 They had taken the matter up with Italian consuls and representatives of the law in this country, and found that instead of bringing Benito to trial in Iowa—an expensive and unpleasant proceeding at best—he could be deported to Italy as an undesirable alien. And the Italian consul assured them that the government would take care of him at the other end, and would gladly reimburse them for their time and trouble to the extent of that price on their heads, which amounted to no less than $10,000 apiece.

Marker reported the situation in great detail and with evident relish, strongly advising Mrs. Tolliver to relieve herself of the annoyance of prosecution and to accept the consolation of $10,000. He assured her that arrangements had already been made for the bon voyage of Giovanni, who, he was confident, would be deeply grateful for the companionship of his faithful old friend and comrade, Benito.
 Phil professed a complete lack of interest.
 "It's none of my business, one way or the other," she said. "Ask Bard. It is entirely up to him."
 "To me!" ejaculated Bard. "Why, it doesn't make the least difference in the world to me. Whatever you think best, of course."
 "Well, I would you rather have the fun of sending Benito to the pen for life, or $10,000 cash?" Phil wanted to know.
 "It's no fun sending anybody to the pen, as far as I can see. And money is always money! Who would get it?"
 "Oh, stupid!" she cried, laughing. "What do you think Mr. Marker came out here for? Wasn't it you who caught him?"
 Ginger ran across the nudged him, slowly and with purpose. Her face was rapt and shining.
 "Bard," she whispered, "take the money! Art is perfectly wonderful, of course, but—really, it is a little slow—when one's waiting!"

To All Who Suffer Stomach Agony, Gas and Indigestion

Money Back if One Bottle of DARE'S Mentha Pepsin Doesn't Do You More Good Than Anything You Ever Used.

You can be so distressed with gas and fullness and bloated that you think your heart is going to skip a beat.
Your stomach may be so distended that you're breathing is short and you think perhaps you are suffering from indigestion, gas and flatulence. You are dizzy and pray for quick relief—what's to be done?

Just one table-spoonful of DARE'S Mentha Pepsin and in ten minutes the gas disappears, the pressure on the bowels deep and naturally you can get rid of such attacks, altogether? Why have indigestion, flatulence, gas, and other stomach troubles, or any condition that keeps the stomach out of order, not been cured by one bottle with more distress and pain than you can bear? You are suffering from indigestion, gas and flatulence—what's to be done?

Comp. Burnett died for want of a second 10c wax.

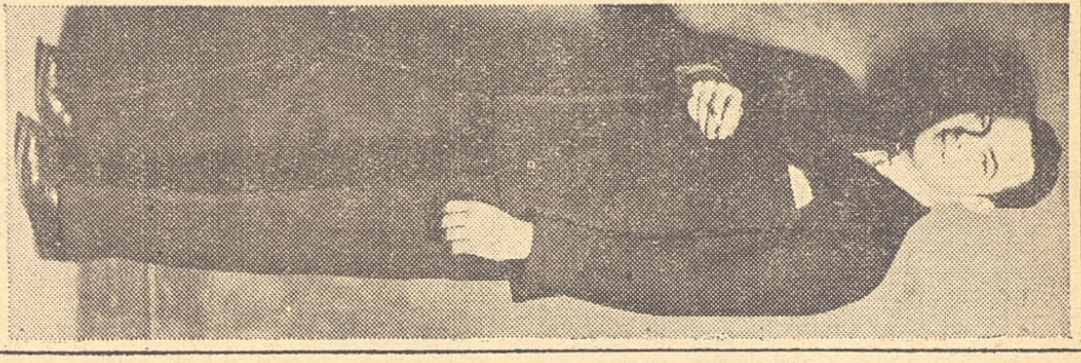

In view of the fact that there has been a great number of people in our city who have been stung by their taxes, and in view of the fact that we have not had such times as we are having now so far as money is concerned, and in view of the fact that the state of Texas has just had the state of Texas for a month of state and county taxes to pay, October 15, 1931, I move that this city commission instruct the attorney who are handling tax matters for the city of Cisco not to file any more tax suits in behalf of the city until after October 15, 1931 and that if it appears that financial conditions are no better than from October 15, 1931, that no more tax suits be filed than what has been filed that same day up and no action taken until after October 15, 1931."

Discussion of the motion brought statements from the mayor and other members of the commission to the effect that such an action would be unfair to the citizens. The policy of the administration, as stated by the mayor, has been to file suits by acquiescent delinquent tax-payers either satisfactory settlement or fail to answer communications in this respect. Mr. Mayor stated that he is desirous of making his position clear and that he is willing to do so, it was declared. A motion by Com. W. J. W. was passed directing that the tax collector be required to submit to the commission a detailed report of all delinquent tax-payers who have not completed their payments within the time specified in the ordinance.

The meeting was held at the home of the mayor yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Facts in regard to the bill in the legislature for repeal of the senate bill No. 31 were laid before the commission by the mayor. This bill provides for the repeal of the ordinance which requires the taxpayer to make what are declared as advance payments.

KITTENS START HOME AFTER LOSING GAME

The Randolph college Kittens lost their game with the Mississippi champions at the Southern Open A. U. tournament at Sherwood last night and are now on their way to a telegram from Coach H. R. Garrett announced this morning.

The game was exceptionally hard fought and exciting. The Kittens, weakened by the absence of two regulars forwards, Howe and Deina Fulford, were sadly handicapped. The bid to win the game was a high one and Tuesday afternoon defeat by a large score.

A crowd, said to be the largest ever attending a meeting of this kind, was present at the Baptist Worker's conference held in Eastland yesterday. Characters from all over the district, including those in Eastland, Shackelford, and Stephens counties, were represented. The First Baptist church had Eastland as its headquarters. The principal speakers were Dr. C. E. Matthews of Fort Worth, Mrs. J. M. Dawson of Waco, and Dr. W. W. Chantrout of Mineral Wells.

At noon the women of the Baptist and children served a delicious lunch and children served a delicious lunch. Among those attending from Cisco were: Mesdames E. J. Wisdom, D. A. W. L. Parsons, E. J.
