Lose Fat Safely and Quickly Kruschen Salts—(a perfect combination of six mineral salts your body should have to function properly) purify your blood of harmful acids, and aid the kidneys and bowels to throw off waste material—the continual formation of which is probably the cause of your fat. In this modern age of living, it's impossible to get these salts from the fancy foods you eat—but don't worry just as long as you have Kruschen Salts. Take a half teaspoon every morning before breakfast in a glass of hot water—little by little that ugly fat disappears, you'll feel better than ever before—more energetic, more healthy, more beautiful, clear skin, sparkling eyes, superb figure which only perfect health can impart. An 85c bottle (lasts 4 weeks) at any progressive drugist in America. Money back if Kruschen doesn't convince you that it is the safest, quickest, easiest way to lose fat. A Hartford woman writes, "I'll tell the world Kruschen Salts is wonderful stuff to reduce." An Ohio woman lost 10 pounds with one bottle.

DO YOU CALL ONE DOCTOR --- AND OWE ANOTHER? No law can force you to trade continuously with any merchant. Neither should you be or can you be compelled to call repeatedly on any one doctor. You have the right to change as frequently as you please or as often as you feel that a change is desirable. But the smallest trick to which we can stoop is to change from one doctor to another to avoid paying a bill. Both doctors know what is going on. Both the one you left and the one you went to know why you changed. They have seen it happen before. Of course honest folks don't do it --- until they have paid the first doctor in full, or at least have honestly told him why they couldn't --- and honest folks have the courage to explain. Honest folks do not resort to tricks or subterfuge. They do not switch doctors to avoid paying. Your physician comes at your call --- day or night. In many instances if he demanded cash, he could get it --- many times his modest fee. But he trusts humanity and hurries to your aid when he is needed. Not for the paltry few dollars. No indeed! It's because of the honor of the profession that he answers the call of the unknown at 2 A. M. Be square, straightforward and courageous with your physician. Pay him promptly if you can. If you cannot --- tell him so frankly. He will remain your friend and may help you when you are in sore need of his aid. If you still owe your physician and can pay him, why not call and do so? Pay him today. You'll both feel better about it. Treat Your Physician Fairly. Pay Your Bill When It Is Due. Copyright, 1925, by E. J. Treffinger.

BADGER NET TEAM DEFEATS A. C. C. SQUAD

Displaying mid-season form, Randolph college's quartet of tennis players fought their way to a tie with the strong A. C. C. team on Wallace courts yesterday afternoon. A week ago the Abilene lads won the dual meet, 4-2, but the return match showed the great improvement made by the Badgers.

Jimmie B. Farmer defeated Maxwell of Abilene 6-8, 6-4, 6-3. Farmer showed his usual steadiness, and was occasionally brilliant at the net. Dickey West Jr., who defeated the Wildcat ace in Abilene last week, ran his string of victories to three consecutive wins when the tall lad rushed Latham for a 6-1, 6-2 win. West was very steady, and his backhand was a deciding factor in his win. Dabney lost to Reynolds, 5-7, 4-6, and Shockey lost a hard fought match to Andy Moore, 8-6, 4-6, 4-6.

West and Farmer gained revenge over the Wildcat pair when they smashed their way to a 6-2, 6-4 win. The A. C. C. team had previously won over Farmer and West, but yesterday the Cisco lads were brilliant in their straight set victory. Dabney and Shockey lost to Moore and Latham, 6-3, 4-6.

The tie with Abilene Christian shows the rapid strides made by the Badger netters. The Wildcats are heavy favorites to win the T. I. A. A. meet, and represent one of the best college teams in Texas. Next week the Badgers encounter the favorite of the Texas conference, the Simmons Cowboys.

System of Socialized Ownership Justifies Soviet to Communists

MOSCOW, March 19. — Private property, except in simple articles of personal use, has been abolished over one-sixth of the earth's habitable surface and a system of socialized ownership and use put in its place. This is the towering single fact about the Soviet Union, which determines, and for Communists, justifies everything else.

It seems too obvious a fact to require mentioning as though in the midst of the French Revolution some one were to discover that the divine rights of kings have been questioned. But 13 years of bitter partisan argument and speculation about this Russian question have buried the obvious under mountains of incidental matter. It seems to me worth while to try to dig it out.

Differences Unlimited.

The differences between the Soviet Union and the surrounding world cannot be enumerated, because they are almost without limit. The cleavage runs right through every department of human affairs. Not merely in economics and politics but in morals, religion, art and culture, in people's personal ambitions and prejudices, the contrast between capitalist and Soviet societies holds true.

In their roots these differences come to the same central fact: the changed relation between humanity and its property. The whole amazing complex of events here—from the inspiring industrial plans to the silliest taboo against anything remotely bourgeois—comes down to a deep hatred of the old system on the one hand, and on the other to a dogged determination to fortify and carry forward the new system.

The cleavage between the two worlds cannot be told in terms of statistics. Whether the Five-Year plan is fulfilled in four or in eight years, will be merely an episode in the larger historical drama. Perhaps that is why economists and observers, who come here for a few weeks or months, however learned and honest, miss some of the essentials.

New Human Values.

In a prolonged residence one begins not only to understand but to feel that the most important, to feel that new human values have emerged from the revolution. The Russian generation which has grown up since 1917 reacts so differently to the simplest things in life that it would be helpless in a capitalist environment, as helpless as an African savage stranded in New York.

I refer to such basic everyday things as money, clothes, sex relations, ambitions entertainment. I do not mean that greed has disappeared but that money as an end in itself, as a test of personal success or social usefulness, has disappeared. I mean that, from the way a man whom you meet in the corridor of an institution is dressed you cannot tell whether he's the president or the humblest clerk; in fact, if he's dapperly dressed he's more likely to be the clerk.

Careerists avaricious for glory or for power there are plenty perhaps more than elsewhere, but the ordinary ambition whose spinning gold is a fat bank account and a flock of servants is unthinkable here.

Pride of Birth.

There is a pride of birth in Russia today as vigorous and as lidiculous as in the court of Nicholas the last. But it is a pride in proletarian or peasant origin. For every emigre lackey who poses as a Russian count in Paris or New York, there are a dozen real counts here posing as well-born sons of blacksmiths or poor peasants.

Without arguing the wisdom or the justice of such basic changes in the values of life, one must admit

But the business of kingship was never the same thereafter. And whatever the ultimate fate of the Russian revolution, the business of private ownership for profit, and everything that is directly or indirectly connected with it, will never be the same thereafter.

Students Aided by New Machine

PITTSBURGH, March 19. — Language students and engineers studying the effects of noise on a city's populace will be benefited by a new invention, the cathode ray oscilloscope according to O. S. Osborn, research engineer and builder of the instrument.

The oscilloscope when attached to a microphone picks up sound waves and translates them on a ribbon of green light crossing a glass plate on the instrument.

Students soon will be able to conquer by means of the oscilloscope, the different languages in half the time it took them formerly, Prof. H. S. Scriber, head of the Greek department at the University of Pittsburgh, said.

In a demonstration before students of the school, Osborn showed the effects different noises have on the ribbon of green light. He snapped his fingers in front of the microphone and the green streak of light danced up and down. He hummed, and the sustained sound drew long zig-zag waves.

The new invention will be useful in detecting causes of noise and determining what parts of a par-

"City Lights" Is Coming to Eastland

Acclaimed his greatest contribution to the screen, Charlie Chaplin's "City Lights" will open an engagement at the Connelley theatre, Eastland, bringing to this city a non-dialogue motion picture production, which, it is believed, will be the forerunner of many more screen offerings introducing action, synchronized with music and sound effects.

More than two years in time have been devoted by Chaplin to the making of "City Lights" and it represents an investment of $1,500,000 of the comedian's own money. All of this is Chaplin's answer to the talking picture and his firm stand for pantomime motion pictures.

Those who have been privileged to view "City Lights" have unhesitatingly agreed that Chaplin was not in error to stick to the silent course in his screen work. It is said that never before has the great comedian extended himself to produce such a comedy masterpiece. "City Lights" will occupy the screen for about one hour and twenty minutes. The story may be termed a romantic comedy, although many of its highlights are brilliantly dramatic, in fact tragic. It is an original idea and was written by Chaplin. He is likewise responsible for the direction.

NEW SOLDER IS STRONGER THAN METALS

PITTSBURGH, March 19. — A solder stronger than the metals it will join, has been developed by Peter Soffel, president of the Pittsburgh Metals Purifying Corporation, after three years of experiments and tests.

Soffel claims the new solder will add to the safety of airplane and Zeppelin construction and increase the demand for general aluminum products.

Tests, Soffel says, have proved that his solder joins aluminum and other "white" metals, more firmly than a single, whole piece.

White metals used in the manufacture of door handles and other parts of automobiles; zinc ware; magnesium and aluminum alloy products can be joined with the new solder as well as can aluminum, it is claimed.

Soffel says he is prepared to place the solder on the market under a trade name.

Burke F. Read, general manager of the company, collaborated with Soffel in the last 12 months of the laboratory work.

The solder is applied with a hot iron, or with an open flame, and requires no acid or fluxes, it is claimed.

Local soldering experts have approved the new solution. Soffel explained, in experiments carried out in local industrial plants.

C. I. T. STUDENTS FAVOR ENGLISH HOUSE SYSTEM

PASADENA, Cal., March 19. — Elimination of social fraternities and a trend toward the English system of "digs" is predicted at the California Institute of Technology with the completion of a $1,000,000 group of four student living houses.

A student committee of three appointed to draw up a comprehensive plan for the future social structure of the institution recommended dissolution of the fraternities after a study of housing and social alignment at more than a score of American and European universities.

The Institute's board has accepted the report and issued the following statement:

"The board wishes to express extreme appreciation of the thoroughness of the investigation, the skill of its formulation, and broadmindedness of the recommendation, and assures the student body of the board's co-operation to the utmost in carrying out the committee's wishes."

Under the new plan, freshmen will be distributed equally among the four houses, each of which accommodates 75 students. Although the enrollment at the institution is limited to 600, approximately half of the students live at home, or in private homes in Pasadena.

Choice of rooms will be given according to seniority, order of choice among men of equal ranking to be decided by casting lots.

The report suggests that coats and ties be worn at dinner which should be followed by the serving of demi-tasse in the lounge rooms.

Provisions of the plan were aimed principally at the creation of a student social grouping which would permit close friendships and intimate exchange of ideas while discouraging the formation of cliques.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

THE LORD SUSTAINS—They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength: they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run and not be weary; and they shall walk and not be faint.—Isaiah 40:31. PRAYER—Father, enable us to be worthy of Thy wonderful promises.

BILLIONS GOING IN AND COMING OUT.

More than four million American citizens had their income tax returns in the mails by midnight March 16. All this will boost the turnover to more than three billion dollars, making it the largest government financial transaction since the World war. Twenty-five years ago the Rip Van Winkles of America came out of their trance when told that a billion dollar congress had adjourned. Well, a ten billion dollar congress adjourned on the night of March 4. Did Rip Van Winkles shudder or rejoice?

This is said to be a four hundred billion dollar country and just before republican prosperity ran up the black flag its national income was a hundred billion dollars a year. There does not appear to be a democratic party in the United States. There is a party of opposition to the republicans but it is more in the nature of an unorganized mob than a compact organization. It resembles the Mexican army in the old days—ten generals to one rank-and-file. It is a headless organization and the donkey hasn't been shod for ten years. A fitting emblem for the skeleton organization that the giants of democracy handed on when they passed.

PROFITING THROUGH SERVICE.

When merchants build new stores, add additional sales space, install new fixtures, improve their show windows, augment their sales forces, replenish their stocks with the best and newest, it is for the public. Of course they are in business for the purpose of making a living, but to make that living they must first give service, so their first objective is always "to serve and please."

"Fair exchange is no robbery" is a business phrase which has been handed down from generation to generation and now seems to have acquired immortality. The laborer exchanges his labor for his wage. The capitalist exchanges his money for his interest. The manufacturer exchanges his products for his cost of production plus profit, the professional man exchanges his services for his fees or his salary, the store keeper exchanges his goods for cost plus service charge. Everybody is in business for himself by being in business for somebody else. Like the public official, the merchant is in business for society and therefore every member of that society is his employer, his boss.

One of the compensations of business is that public recognition and appreciation come to none sooner than to the businessman who really serves. A flourishing trade is synonymous with public trust and confidence. Service must ever precede success in business.

"BIG BILL" PULLS ANOTHER ACE FROM THE HOLE.

Mayor "Big Bill" Thompson of Chicago pulled a Texas ace from the hole in his campaign. He charged Anton J. Cermak, his democratic rival for mayoralty honors, "is being used as a pawn for the international banking ambitions of Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank of Chicago." "Big Bill" is the greatest of all explorers and inventors. He is not a noble experiment. He is a noble example among the research workers of the world. This is his warning to the voters of Chicago. If the democratic nominee wins the election April 7, "If Cermak is elected he would make Traylor the most powerful ally of the King of England, which would be to the detriment of the American people." And this is the "bunk" that has been fed to the people of the second American city by a native-born American whose proudest boast is that his "ancestors were Mayflower passengers." He did not say whether they came in the cabin or the steerage. This is a mighty difference between a gentleman and a boisterous humbug of the "Big Bill" Thompson type. His tribe are found in Texas ever feeding political bunk of one brand or another to the gullible mortals who swallow the pabulum.

LAST OF THE LINCOLNS.

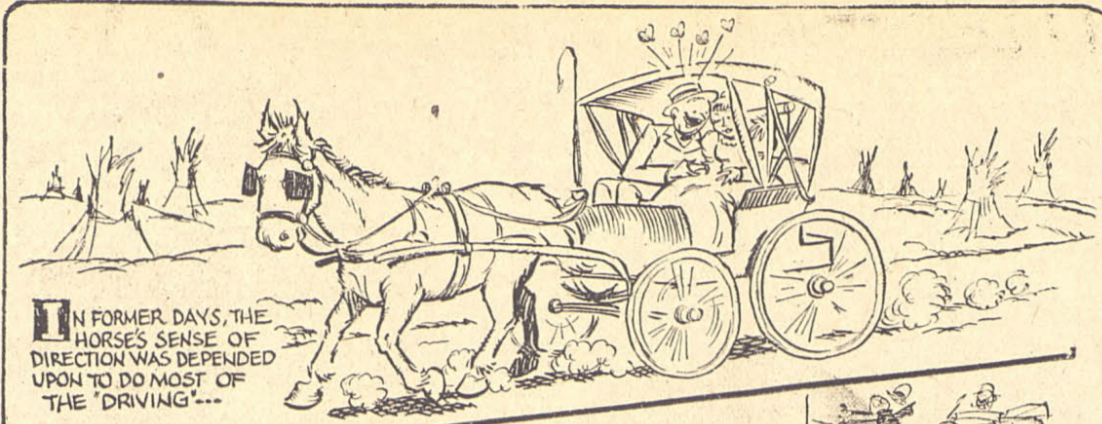

Dr. John E. Lincoln of Virginia passed out of the picture the other day at the age of 75. He was a cousin of Abraham Lincoln, a life long democrat and an ardent advocate of Alfred E. Smith for president in 1928. His father was a fighting democrat. His grandfather was a fighting democrat and the Lincolns of Virginia were not of the class referred to in the South as "pore white trash." Virginia John Lincoln established the Lincoln family in Rockingham county, Va., in about 1760. His great-uncle, Abraham Lincoln, a captain in the revolutionary army, migrated with the Virginia soldiers to take up grant lands in Kentucky and took with him his son, Jonathan Lincoln, father of President Abraham Lincoln. In other words the Virginians of the Lincoln tribe want it distinctly understood that the first Lincolns were aristocrats and never a Lincoln was "of the pore white trash" order of humanity. This takes the bunk as well as the sting out of the biographies of historians or near historians, who have flourished and then faded since the pistol of John Wilkes Booth made Abraham Lincoln the first martyr president and an immortal of history.

A wise husband makes his wife do what she wants to do.

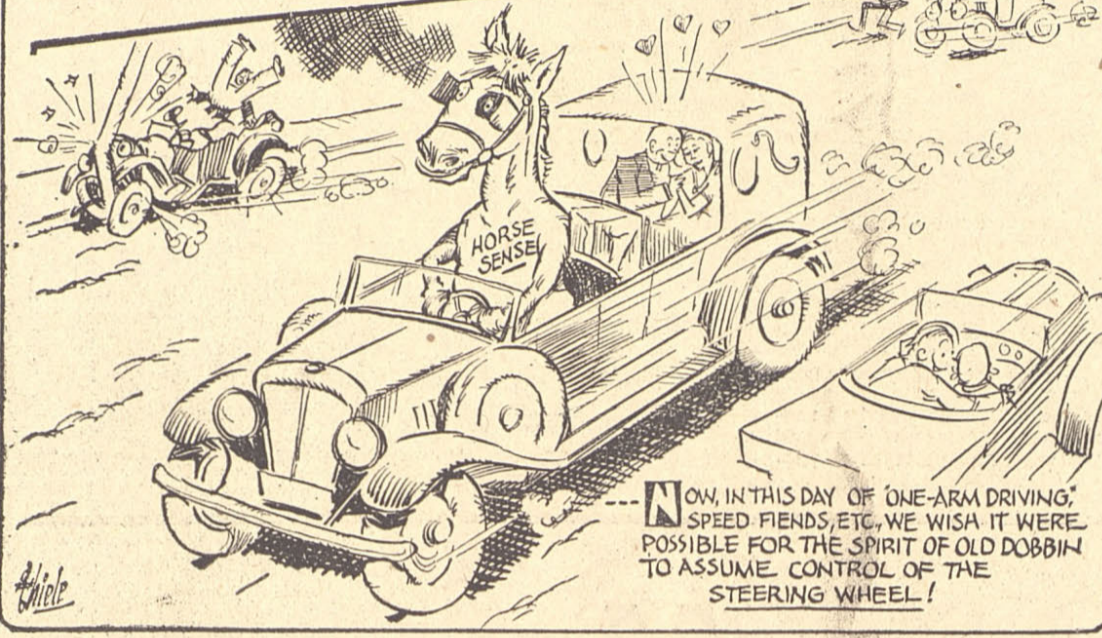

SPEAKING OF A STATE UTILITY COMMISSION.

Governor Sterling is for a public utility commission of three members. Each commissioner would receive a salary of $10,000 a year and it is flatly announced that all expenses of the committee will be borne out of fees collected upon the business. It is figured out that the cost of running the commission would range all the way from $100,000 to $200,000 a year or a levy of one-twentieth to one-tenth of one percent upon a gross business of $200,000,000 a year.

It goes without saying that the lawmakers are tackling the real work of the session, and it is predicted that ere long the harmony dove of peace will fly out the legislative window and the sport will be fast and furious. Preceding lawmakers fished for minnows. Now they have been invited to go after whales.

YET THE LEADER.

Before reaching your final decision as to whether the world is growing better or worse, take note that the American Bible Society has just made the same old annual report. In 1930 the Bible was the best seller of all books.

None can touch it or approach it in sales popularity, a distinction it holds year after year, and the Daily News feels safe in saying it has that distinction here as well as over the nation.

Pessimistic information is plentiful but that is antidotal.

"Do you know," observes the New York Daily Mirror in its column, On Broadway, "that in the post office at Abilene, Texas, there is still a sign on the walls reading: 'Food will win the war!' We are still 'Hooverizing,' are we not?"

Some men never get old enough to know better.

OTHER OPINIONS

FINDING THE WAY

A thought was suggested the other day by a speaker in a meeting of a Brownwood service club that is worth passing along to those who did not hear the brief address. The question under discussion was that which has commanded so much attention recently, the trend of business conditions and the situation that confronts each individual business enterprise. The speaker was a man of many years' experience as a retail merchant.

conditions of the time. There is a way out for them, no doubt, and a way out for me and for every other business man; and we need to be searching constantly for that way because it means the business salvation of the country."

Business and industry has been changing constantly for the past hundred years, but heretofore the changes have become gradually so that the average man or woman could understand them as they occurred, and the more resourceful could foresee them beforehand. That can not be done now; and the quicker the average business man realizes that fact, the earlier will be his discovery of a way out of his difficulties.

To admit that one does not know what to do with a business that has had his best thought and attention for thirty or forty years is not equivalent to confessing a lack of business acumen. To the contrary, it is an evidence of an intelligent understanding of a condition that seems to be universal, and that offers both opportunity and menace, according to the method employed by the individual in his own thought and action. — Brownwood Bulletin.

In the Political Arena

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD

Wherever there is oil there is talk. Wherever there is talk there is more talk. In America there is an over-production of wheat. In America there is an over-production of cotton. In America the Red Cross and other agencies are spending millions to provide shelter and food and clothing for down and outers. In America the government is loaning money to buy seed for the farmers, to buy feed for the livestock and to insure the planting of bumper crops this year. In the United States there is said to be an over-production of oil. Texas is one of the states where over-production is said to exist.

Woodrow Wilson and his congresses placed foreign crude oil on the free list. Republicans captured the government. They have been in full control since 1921. They kept foreign crude on the free list. Indeed since 1929 thousands of American producers have been clamoring for a tariff on foreign crude. A lame duck congress adjourned the other day. Pres. Hoover was against a tariff on importations. He controlled a republican house. A republican house in the dying days of a dying session flatly refused to place an embargo on foreign crude or to agree to an imposition of a tariff on foreign crude.

After the lame ducks and their congress had passed into history the pressure from the oil producing states compelled the president to wobble about. He ordered Sec'y. Wilbur to name a commission to investigate. All this is ancient history. Now he is wobbling again.

Gov. Sterling is for the creation of a state conservation commission to handle oil and gas. Pres. Hoover is for proration at home and hopes to induce the giants of the industry, who control the foreign fields, to place a limited embargo on foreign crude but never a word concerning a tariff on foreign crude.

There is a pretty row on under the big dome. Rail Commissioners Terrell and Smith are defending their position regardless of the post-shetting of the governor. Rail Commissioner Neff is for the Sterling program. Texas lawmakers are "up in the air." Prices of American crude are asking "where do we go from here?"

It is the duty of a governor to recommend. It is the province of lawmakers to enact legislation. All agree that something should be done and all men who read and think know that Pres. Hoover and a republican house throttled the bills for the relief of thousands of producers before the lame ducks gasped their last gasp. But all this of the past is "neither here nor there."

What are we going to do for Texas and Texans? What are the oil states of America going to do for the producers and the consumers? A well defined program would be getting down to brass tacks in order that relief might be afforded to those whose pockets are so deeply touched. Pres. Hoover has been forced to take action despite the record that he has made and in the face of the record the republican house leaders made when they bludgeoned the Capper embargo measure and the Johnson measure calling for a tariff of a dollar a barrel on foreign importations. All the big South American fields and Mexican fields for that matter are controlled by Americans and foreign Dutch Shell companies.

A new congress will assemble in December of this year. It will be a 30-50 congress. That is the senate and the house will show an equal division when it comes to a count of noses on certain economic measures which are uppermost and which are not the administration policies of Pres. Hoover and his advisers. It is said that more than 350,000 barrels for foreign crude were shipped into the United States daily during 1930.

All this called for an editorial in The Breckenridge American. Read it:

"Producers in the new east Texas field are leading the fight now for no proration orders. The east Texans claim their fight is not altogether for the benefit of east Texas but for the entire state. East Texas producers are willing to provide providing importation of foreign crude oil is limited to some extent. Otherwise the east Texans are against proration."

"But west Texas producers can't sit by and allow east Texas to run wide open while the small wells of the section are choked in by proration orders. West Texans will probably get in the fight with east Texas if the state railroad commission will in turn allow east Texans to open their cock valves and let the oil in our wells run free. But will that happen? It should, at least as long as foreign crude oil is imported into the United States in great quantities."

"If the state railroad commission allows the east Texas field to run wide open the fields of west Texas will be practically isolated. Many wells will have to be plugged. How can wells of this territory compete with the flush east Texas field where oil can be purchased for 40 cents a barrel? Who would expect the major companies to purchase 65 cent and 70 cent oil out here when they can get just as good east Texas oil for 40 cents?"

It is up to the governor to recommend. It is up to the lawmakers to enact. It is up to the rail commissioners to set the level best for all fields in all sections of Texas. That is what they are elected and paid to do. And then back to the main issue — or rather the oil in the coconut shell. Pres. Hoover and his house leaders smashed the relief program by refusing to place an embargo on oil. They smashed the tariff idea of a dollar-a-barrel on foreign importation. They denied all the relief demanded by senators of their own party and representatives from republican states. Now they are tight-rope walking and their acrobatic exhibition of concern for Americans who are seeking relief is a right for the political gods and men.

This is the record as it has been written and it is placed before all the people who read and think and who insist that if the republican tariff is a good thing it should be for the protection of Americans and American interests and not for the protection of South American oil fields and those who dominate them. If the republican tariff is not a good thing then take it off the finished products of the makers of things and give the growers of things an equal chance in the markets of the world and a "run for their money" under all skies.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE Shawnee, Oklahoma.

During my visit at San Antonio, Texas, I attended a style show at the Gunter hotel. I must admit at first I felt rather shaky to be seated in the magnificent dining room where at every table were seated the social leaders of San Antonio. However, I glanced around and saw William McIntosh, publisher of the San Antonio Light, seated at a nearby table. He was using his eyes overtime, so I did the same.

An ingenious arrangement has been worked out between the Gunter hotel and one of the leading stylists of the city whereby weekly style shows are held in the Terrace dining room of the hotel each Tuesday during the lunch hour.

Through this arrangement the latest fashion dictates from New York and Paris are brought directly to the social elite of San Antonio and displayed by attractive models. A promenade has been erected for this purpose through the center of the dining room, and music is furnished for the occasion by Herman Waldman and his Brunswick recording orchestra.

The arrangement has proven extremely popular with San Antonio women who are interested in styles. So great has the interest become that it has been necessary to increase the capacity of the dining room to twice its former capacity, and a special menu is provided for this occasion.

Beach pajamas, lounging robes, street suits, afternoon frocks and evening gowns are shown. Also, through the cooperation of other retail merchants, shoes, hose, millinery and dress essentials are shown to complete the ensemble. The weekly style shows have proven

San Antonio's most popular social event. Men and women attend, the women showing an eagerness to acquaint themselves with the styles, the men seeking something they may purchase later for their wives. I am told this is the first city to make such an arrangement, and the event has gained national recognition in newspapers and publications. The affiliation of the city's leading hotel with the newspaper advertising of the stores has made it a wonderful success.

HUMAN SECRETS REVEALED BY PHYSIOGNOMY

By GUY C. HAMILTON
United Press Staff Correspondent

ATLANTA, Ga., March 19. — Intelligence tests are based upon unestablished theories, but in the examination of human physiognomy specialists finally will be able to ascertain the mental and moral characteristics of all human beings, Governor L. G. Hardman of Georgia believes.

So convinced is he that a study of physiognomy particularly of finger prints, will result in the definite determination of character and criminal tendencies that he has recommended legislation and the establishment of a special chair at the state university to study the subject.

For several years he has carried on correspondence and read reports dealing with his theory, and in that time has written scientific works on Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany for their viewpoints.

Believes Theory Proven
Now the governor believes his theory has been proven correct. "I have had the finger prints of ten patients at the state insane asylum sent to an Ohio expert," he said. "The reports definitely establish that there is a relation between the prints and the criminal, or insane characteristics of the patients."

Gives Example
As an example of inaccuracy in describing character, the governor declared that citizens from a Georgia county, gave positive and reliable testimony that a certain man could not have committed a series of criminal attacks in Atlanta. Yet four women positively identified him as their attackers, and it was necessary to allow the electric chair to take its victim. The man had already been convicted.

"An examination of his physical characteristics by one who knew how to interpret, would prevent any doubt about his possession or lack of criminal tendencies," Governor Hardman said.

Now retiring as governor, he has led a busy life as a physician in a northeast Georgia farming section. For decades he practiced medicine and carried on numerous business enterprises. Late in life he was elected governor of the state, and has held that office for four years.

Georgia took a decided step in the psychological examination of criminals during the past year when the Bradberry brothers, two rural youths, were saved from execution for murder by a psychological examination. At the time Dr. A. S. Edwards, head of the department of psychology, visited the boys in jail and declared that they possessed child-like mentalities which kept them from being responsible for their crime. The two killed an aged negro couple.

Works on Cuts for New Books

PARIS, March 19. — Lyn Ward, the 25-year-old American wood-cut artist, considered by critics to be second only to Rockwell Kent in merit, is in Paris working on a book of illustrations for Alec Waugh and a group of cuts to illustrate the "Cloister and the Hearth" for the Limited Edition's club.

Ward was born in Chicago, but his travels have taken him over a wide territory. He is a graduate of Columbia university, where he studied art and then completed a course at the National Academy at Leipzig, Germany. He had always wanted to do book illustrating and felt that wood-cuts were the most satisfactory. The blocks themselves can be put right into the press, which, after all, is the way printing itself originated.

The wood-cut novelist says that he does not write down an outline of his story anywhere but simply starts to cut and his inspirations begin to come. Often he goes back and puts in another cut to carry over an idea but the plot, characters and plan of the book cuts itself out with each block.

Seven months is the average length of time required for his novels. While cutting a story he often works 14 hours a day, never stopping until a thought or an idea has been completed.

Ward is accompanied by his wife, May McWeed, who also is a writer. They expect to remain in Paris until May when they will take a vacation in Canada.

BRECKENRIDGE WILL SPONSOR OIL BELT MEET

BRECKENRIDGE, March 19. — The belief that cities in the Oil Belt district should "get together" more often, not only for economic reasons but for all other purposes that will tend to make this section of the entire state outstanding, prompted the announcement this week that an annual Oil Belt track and field meet will be inaugurated here April 4 — the first meet.

Coach P. E. Shotwell, one of the leaders in sponsoring the athletic meet, and other high school officials, including Superintendent N. S. Holland, are very enthusiastic over the prospects of eventually making the annual meet one of much importance, especially to West Texas as high schools.

Fans were started today to make the first meet a success, especially from the spectators viewpoint. Those in charge of the meet have decided to "play to the spectators" more than usual, hoping to create more interest among the fans in this particular line of sport. Coach Shotwell said he would have all his plans made in order to run the meet in record time in order not to make the affair a draggy one. Events will be arranged to give the fans all the thrills that can come from a good, fast, snappy track meet.

The meet this year will be open primarily to those towns belonging to the Oil Belt Basketball league — Ranger, Cisco, Hestand, Albany, Abilene, Ellaville and Breckenridge. Next year, the meet may be expanded to bring in more teams. Other schools will be included in the competition this year if they ask permission to enter. But, no effort is being made to make the first meet "the biggest in the world."

It is thought that the Oil Belt Track and Field Meet will bring together a great array of high school athletes and with the natural athletic rivalry existing between the schools of the Oil Belt, the sports fan may look forward to the track event with eagerness.

The five big schools — Ranger, Cisco, Eastland, Abilene and Breckenridge—produce annually some of the state's outstanding athletes in football and basketball and it is only because the schools of this section have so few meets and stiff competition that more interest is not taken in track.

Invitations were sent out Tuesday to the Oil Belt schools. Acceptances and entries will be arriving by next week.

By having the Oil Belt event on April 4, coaches will have two weeks after the county meet to get their athletes in shape and then two more weeks after the Oil Belt event to polish off their youths for the district meets.

MAD MARRIAGE

By Laura Lou Brookman

BEGIN HERE TODAY Gypsy McBride, 19-year-old typist, is miserable and lonely when she finds that Alan Crosby, just returned from a year and a half in Paris studying art, no longer cares for her.

She accepts an invitation from her wealthy cousin, Anne Trowbridge, to take the place of another guest at a formal dinner. The party is a bore. She leaves to get her wraps and go home, hears a noise in the next room and opens the door to see a man climbing in the window. He is James Wallace, guest of the Trowbridges, who has entered by the fire escape to avoid the dinner party guests.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XII

It was Anne Trowbridge who exclaimed, "Heavens, Jim! Aren't you going to kiss the bride?" Anne had relented in her disapproval sufficiently to come with Phil to see the couple married.

James Wallace bent his head and dutifully saluted Gypsy's cheek. She heard the magistrate saying something in his hoarse voice about wishing them a "long and happy life." Phil was talking to those crowded days at MacNamara's, to memories of her father, to Alan Crosby. Gypsy laughed and no doubt the others thought the tears in her eyes were tears of happiness.

"You're going to like it where you're going," Anne reassured her. "What's the name of the place? Forest City—that's right. Write to us, darling. We'll be waiting to hear from you!" Of course she would write. Gypsy clung to Anne's arm. This cousin whom she had thought of so casually had suddenly become the last remaining link between the new life and the old.

Phil Trowbridge's big hand fastened itself over Gypsy's in a grip that was almost painful. "Wish you every happiness," he told her grinning. "Deserve it! Think Jim's damned lucky! Nobody's told me I could kiss the bride but I'm certainly going to!" He planted a quick kiss on Gypsy's lips. In the confusion and laughter that followed the girl found herself beyond the train gate, waving one gloved hand at Anne and Phil across the barrier. The colored boy with the baggage was ahead leading the way. Gypsy tried to match her short steps to Wallace's great, striding ones.

"Phil glanced at his watch. 'Plenty of time,' he assured them. 'We'll make it and have 15 minutes to spare.' The car was a sleek dark blue coupe. Gypsy and Anne climbed inside. Wallace was muttering about 'confounded traffic' as he followed them. He had experienced one unfortunate tie-up in New York streets and never forgotten it.

"Darling, you're looking pale," Anne said to Gypsy as they started. "Didn't you sleep well?" Gypsy smiled. She did look tired. "I'm all right," she said. "After I got home last night I packed. And I was up at seven this morning."

"Never mind," Anne reassured her. "Brides are supposed to be pale anyhow. I remember at my wedding."

She chatted on but Gypsy was not listening. Whenever she heard that word "bride" she wanted to turn and look at another person. It seemed impossible that she was the one referred to.

Young Mrs. Trowbridge had done her best to give the hasty marriage conventional touches. She had seen to it that there were flowers for Gypsy—bought by Wallace at a corner florist's shop just before the ceremony. There was a cluster of gardenias pinned to the lapel of Gypsy's suit coat. White flowers, sweet and fragrant, for a bride.

In one old and bulky suit case stowed away in the rear of the car were all of Gypsy's belongings. The suit case was not crowded. Half a dozen dresses comprised the girl's wardrobe. The other things had been so worn she was ashamed to pack them. The old tweed coat, an insult to any trosser, she had given to Mrs. O'Hare to be handed down to her niece. Besides the dresses the suit case contained the few things Gypsy had saved when she disposed of the household possessions after her father's death. A clock that had belonged to her mother. A small, old-fashioned photograph album bound in yellow plush, containing pictures of her grandparents. Her father's copies of "David Copperfield" and "Tristram Shandy."

Gypsy looked like a rather naughty small boy. Anne knew the suit was last season's but she complimented her on its becomingness. There had not even been time to shop for a new hat. Gypsy wore the close-fitting felt she had bought last June and thanked heaven the summer had been so warm that she had given it scarcely any wear. Her blouse was white and the gardenias did a good deal for the entire costume.

Wallace and Trowbridge were talking about the car. Phil boasted about the engine he had covered. Wallace described the roadster he had purchased two months before. He said it could do 90.

"Say, Gypsy," Phil called back over the wheel, "ever drive with this fellow? Know what a speed demon he is?"

"No-no, I haven't."

"Well, believe me, you've got something to look forward to!" Wallace protested. He said it was safer to drive fast than slow. Anyhow, he wasn't reckless, never took chances. What this country needed was a minimum, instead of maximum speed law.

The conversation was cut short as they reached the railway station. Amid a hub-bub of barking taxi horns and snorting vehicles they arrived at the passenger entrance. Three red caps ran forward to get their baggage Wallace helped Anne and Gypsy out and Phil drove away to park the car. He called after them that he would return immediately.

"Made it all right," said Wallace with relief in his voice. The big station clock pointed to 19 minutes of 11.

They waited near the gate until Trowbridge rejoined them. A station attendant, with sorrowous voice, was calling out the departure of a train.

"Not ours," Wallace hastened to assure Gypsy.

The whir and bustle of the great waiting room roused the girl. "Oh, Anne," Gypsy said, "I'm sorry I'm not going to see you any more—"

"You're going to like it where you're going," Anne reassured her. "What's the name of the place? Forest City—that's right. Write to us, darling. We'll be waiting to hear from you!"

Of course she would write. Gypsy clung to Anne's arm. This cousin whom she had thought of so casually had suddenly become the last remaining link between the new life and the old.

A small, old-fashioned photograph album bound in yellow plush, containing pictures of her grandparents. Her father's copies of "David Copperfield" and "Tristram Shandy."

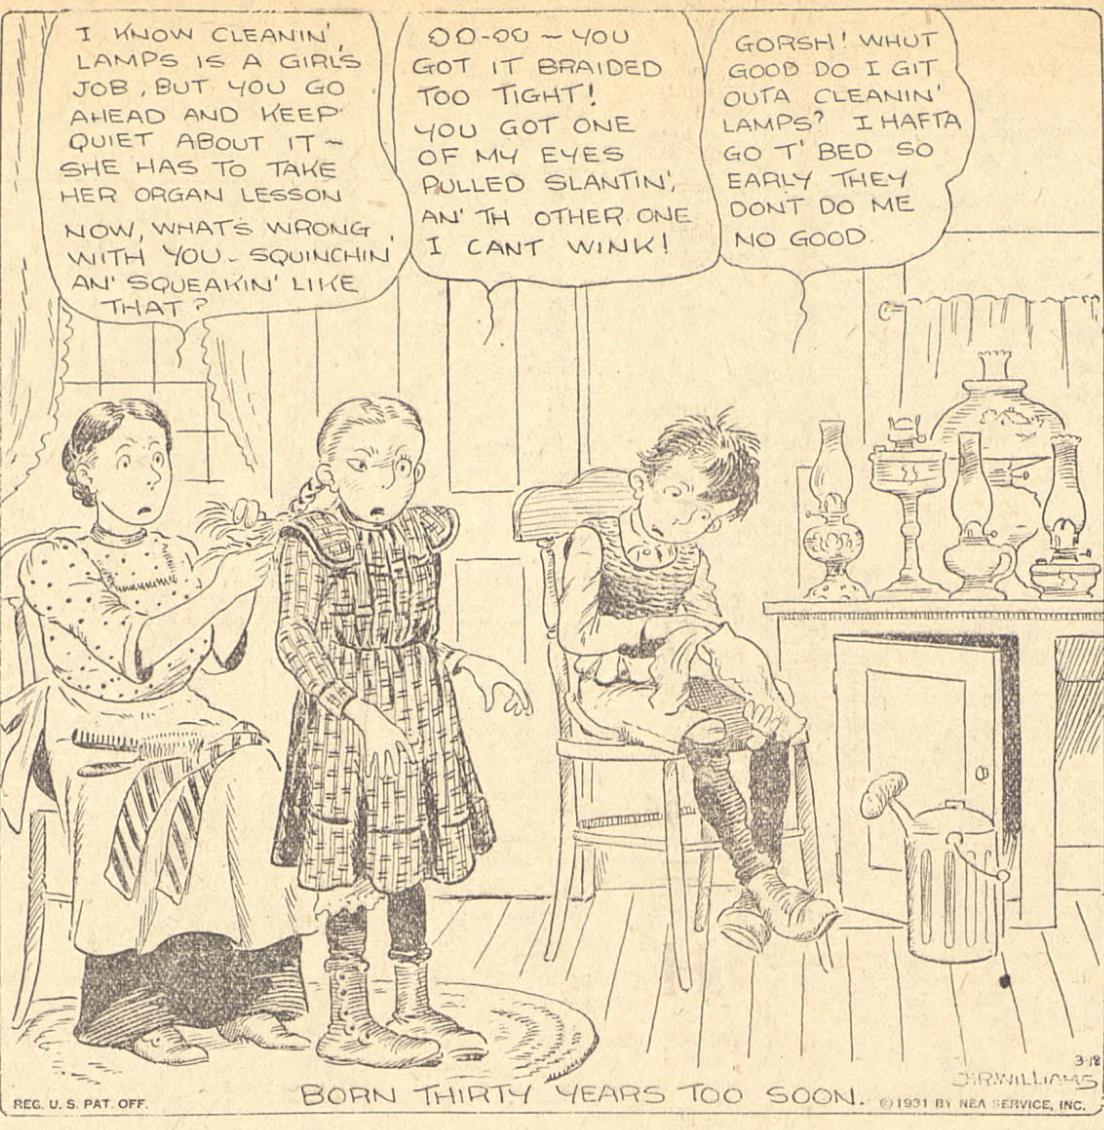

Packing these things had seemed a sacred rite.

Anne's voice broke in on Gypsy's reverie: "I'm so glad the sun is shining," she said. "It's a good omen, you know—means good luck."

"I'm glad too," Gypsy agreed.

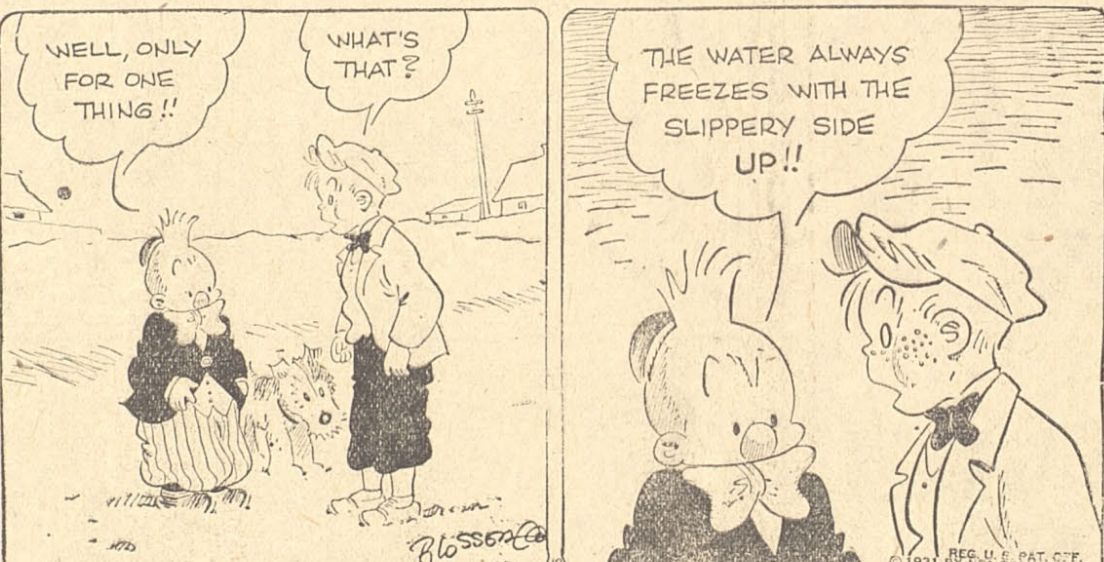

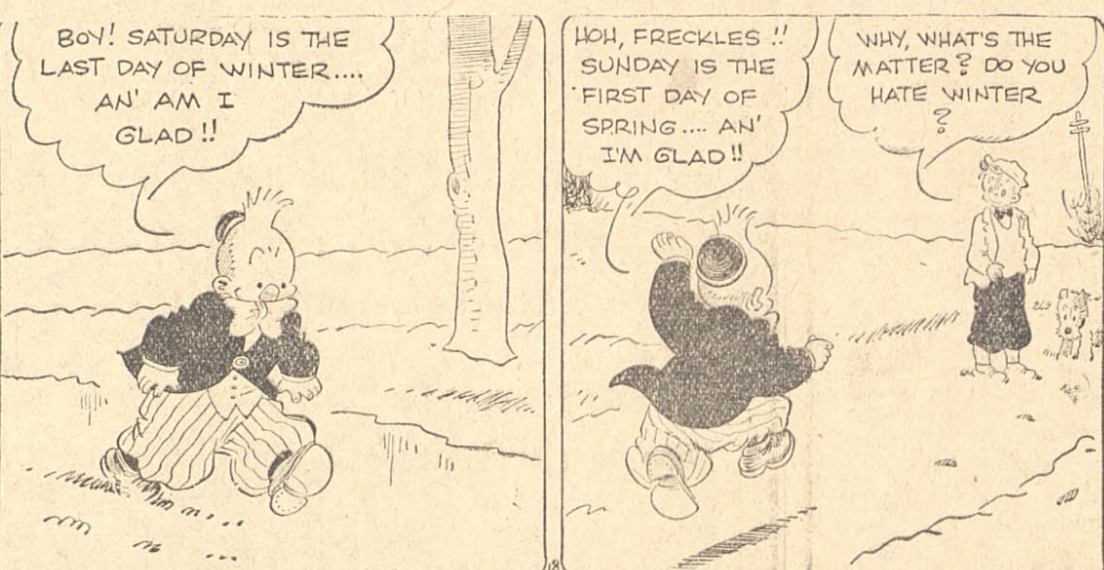

"She wasn't thinking about propitious omens. She was thinking that the last spring suit which was her bridal costume would look much more appropriate so long as the day was warm. The brown suit had been an extravagance, even though Gypsy had bought it late in the season. It had been irresistible because it was exactly the shade to make her brown eyes seem more lustrous and velvety than usual and because it had tiny pockets she could sink both hands into. TEXAS TOPICS

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, March 19. — Lawyers more and more point out that theirs is an official profession, each member of which takes an oath as an officer of the courts, and each of whom is bound by his professional obligations and duties.

The proposal for nominations of judicial officers by the bar, now pending before the legislature, is therefore a proposal only to let office-holders participate in the selection of certain officers.

It would be like saying that only school teachers might elect county superintendents or the state superintendent or the state board of education; or that only public officials could vote in the nomination of a governor.

This is no criticism of the legal fraternity, and no reflection upon the purpose of the bill — the purpose being to relieve judicial officers of political campaigns — but it runs back to a principle that not all members of this profession will subscribe to and but few outside it.

Before this session of the legislature has closed, friends of the round, genial Rep. Phil Sanders of Nacogdoches will organize a club to sponsor his election two years hence as speaker of the next house.

The movement of his friends to bring Rep. Sanders for speaker is based on his service and his arduous work as chairman of the appropriations committee in perfecting and handling the money bills.

A West Texas bid for the speakership also promises in support of Rep. Lee Satterwhite, a former speaker, for another term in the presiding officer's chair.

"I regret that I shall have to veto all the bills creating new courts that you send to my desk," Gov. Sterling's first and only message to the legislature did not say that. Yet it didn't say much else.

With disarming tact the message suggested the legislators, busy under an enormous load of work, might overlook the idea of delaying action on all the new court bills until after it had acted on a judicial redistricting measure.

It suggested if the redistricting of courts is ordered, it ought to remedy the situation without compelling establishment of any new courts at all.

So if the redistricting bill is passed, it is to make the new courts unnecessary. If it isn't the reading is plain that the bills will meet the executive veto.

So far, Gov. Sterling has not vetoed any bill. So far, he hasn't had a cross word with the legislature. It is probable that he will veto bills, in the course of the session, but not that he will have any cross words with the lawmakers about it.

WHICH OF THESE BUTTERFLIES WOULD BE THE MOST CONSPICUOUS TO AN ENEMY? YOU WOULD NATURALLY THINK THE ONE IN THE CONTRASTING COLORS WOULD LOOM UP FAR BRIGHTER THAN THE REST... BUT JUST SQUINT YOUR EYES AND BACK AWAY FROM THE PICTURE. THE SOLID BLACK BUTTERFLY STANDS OUT LONGER THAN THE REMAINING THREE. FROGS DEPOSIT THEIR EGGS IN GREAT GELATINOUS MASSES OF SEVERAL HUNDRED EACH. BARRING MISFORTUNE, EVERY EGG PRODUCES A TINY TADPOLE.

WRITER ASKED TO "COME OUT IN THE OPEN"

To Mr. "A Voter":

In a recent issue of a local paper appeared an article entitled "By His Fruit Ye Shall Know Him," and signed "A Voter" in which the statement was made that one of the candidates for Commissioner in the April election had previously served in that capacity, and that "in next weeks issue of this paper you will be acquainted with his record in that office."

As it happens to be the only announced candidate for Commissioner who has served on the commission before, it is reasonable to assume that the article referred to me. This being true, I want to state that, not only my record as commissioner, but as a citizen as well, is an open book, and I have no objection, whatever, to the people of Cisco, and the world at large, knowing everything about all of my official acts while in the office. However, I have one request to make of Mr. "A Voter." Knowing the tendency of irresponsible, anonymous writers, in their enthusiasm for their candidates in political campaigns, to make extravagant statements which they themselves do not really believe, but would like for the voters to believe, until after the election, at least, I am asking that Mr. "A Voter" come out in the open, acknowledge authorship of his article and assume responsibility for the truthfulness of his statements by signing his correct name to same and acknowledging it before a notary public.

I believe this is a reasonable request, as no man should be willing to publish any statement about a candidate, with a view to influencing the voters, without assuming full responsibility for it, and I am sure the request will be granted. If it is, and there should be anything in the statement that I considered untrue, or unfair, the writer will feel justified in replying to it, and will do so over his sworn signature.

E. P. CRAWFORD.
