MYSTERIOUS BOTTLE IS CAUSE OF CHURCH TRIAL

HOUSTON, Nov. 18.—One of the most sensational church "trials" in the history of Houston, held in the Temple Baptist church, resulted in the withdrawal of fellowship from Fred H. Brown, who accused his pastor, the Rev. E. P. West, with possessing a "mysterious bottle," at the big revival being conducted here by Dr. J. Frank Norris of Fort Worth. Brown made this accusation of West during the progress of an "after meeting" of the revival, while the Rev. Dr. Norris was delivering his sermon.

West made a denial of the charge and requested an apology from Dr. J. B. Leavell, pastor of the First Baptist church, who is sponsoring the Norris revival in Houston. Leavell disclaimed any responsibility for the episode.

POSSIBILITIES OF EXTENSION C. & N. E. REMOTE

Looking to the extension of a railroad line into their county a delegation of Throckmorton and Woodson people held a conference with R. Q. Lee at Breckenridge recently at which inducements were offered that which inducements were offered the Cisco & Northeastern to extend that line to Throckmorton, via Woodson. Mr. Lee, who has been out of town much since the conference was held, was seen this morning and asked about the probable compliance with the petition of the Throckmorton people. He said:

"The extension of the Cisco & Northeastern north, while most desirable, yet I hardly think it possible at this time. Conditions are such that it will be difficult to build a railroad, and I hardly feel that I would care to undertake such a task right now. There is a splendid country that would be developed by an extension of the C. & N. E. into Throckmorton county, both in agricultural and oil territory, but I do not see how I can even encourage those people for any action on the part of the C. & N. E. now."

Since this conference the state papers have been playing up the extension, and featuring the development possibilities that would result from such an extension. Throckmorton county is one of the few counties in Texas that is without railroad connection with the outside world. The county is fertile, and the recent discovery of oil in that county in paying quantities, is pointed to as a profitable field which would develop rapidly after securing a railroad.

Cisco would naturally be interested in the extension of the C. & N. E. into Throckmorton county, and, as Homer Wade, assistant manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, states in the Fort Worth Record today, its ultimate extension to connect with the Denver at Vernon, as it would give Cisco another through rail line.

OIL DISPUTE ENDS FATALLY

LOCKHART, Nov. 18.—John Meirs, 40, is dead today from the culmination of a dispute of two years standing emanating from transactions in the oil fields. His brother-in-law, Robert Beatty, was released on bond. Meirs died forty-eight hours after being shot.

BANDITS LOAD BANK VAULT ON TRUCK, ESCAPE

FORT WORTH, Nov. 18.—Smashing the rear door of the Whit State bank, in Parker county, bandits early today loaded the 800-pound vault on a truck and escaped with $2,700 in cash, and $30,000 in negotiable securities. There are no clues, it was stated today, to the identity of the thieves who took $12,000 of the Piggly Wiggly funds from a private vault of the Texas National bank here Sunday night.

VICTIM OF AIR PLANE ACCIDENT BURIED SUNDAY

The body of Taylor Storer, the aged victim of the airplane accident, who was killed when the passenger plane of W. M. Wilson crashed to the earth a week ago, was buried in the City cemetery here Sunday morning. The funeral was held at the chapel of the Green & Gray undertaking company, at 10:30, with Rev. J. S. Vaughan conducting the services. His nephew, J. W. Switzer and Mrs. Switzer, came over from Dallas, and were the only relatives of deceased here to attend the funeral. A son living at Denver, and another son and two daughters, whose homes are somewhere in the northwest, were unable to be present.

INTERNATIONAL LABOR MOVE IS GOMPERS' DREAM

EL PASO, Nov. 18.—Plans for strengthening the trade union movement all over the world occupied the chief attention of the convention of the American Federation of Labor today in its conference with the labor union chiefs of Mexico, England, Canada and Germany, who with the Americans, are discussing means of co-ordinating to advance the workers throughout the world. Toward this end President Gompers hopes to establish some sort of world-wide labor organization before laying down the leadership he has held for six years. This will probably be the last year he will seek re-election, and feels that his task will be accomplished with the creation of an international labor organization. Labor leaders of the world will probably be called together this winter to formulate this gigantic body.

OUTING ON DYER RANCH

The following composed a pleasant party who spent Sunday afternoon at the Dyer ranch, near Pueblo, when a delicious lunch was served, and squirrel shooting was the diversion: Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Roberts and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Yates and son. The entire afternoon was enjoyed, and it was near nightfall before they returned.

SMUGGLING IN CHINKS BEATS RUM RUNNING

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—In a West Side dive today a story is being told of eleven Chinese human contraband who were trussed up in burlap bags, with weights and hove over the side of a rum runner into New York bay—the latest to meet a similar fate that has claimed scores. A veteran rum runner told the International News Service correspondent that rum running had gotten to be so hazardous that Chinese smuggling is now the big thing, as they are getting from $250 to $1,000 per head and safety, for should they be pursued the Chinese are either hurled overboard or forced to jump and swim.

THREE MILLION WOMEN WILL BE GIVEN BALLOT

ROME, Nov. 18.—Three million women over twenty-five years of age, with the necessary educational requirements, will be enfranchised under the bill which the cabinet is rushing through parliament today, that put into effect immediately Mussolini's change of heart toward women voting.

CHILD DROWNED IN TWO INCHES WATER IN PAIL

The little five months old baby of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Green of Moran was drowned about 4:30 o'clock Monday afternoon in a water bucket in which there was only about two inches of water, it is said. The mother, while busy about her household duties, left the child for a few minutes, and when she returned she was horrified to find that the babe had fallen head first into the bucket, and that life was extinct. A physician was summoned at once, and a pulmotor sent for, but it arrived too late to resuscitate the child. The mother stated she was only out of the room about five minutes.

Green & Gray was called and went to Moran and prepared the body for burial, which will follow the funeral in Moran this afternoon.

SWEETWATER FELICITATES LOBOES AND INVITES CISCO TO PLAY THE WEST TEXAS CHAMP GAME THERE

Sweetwater, Tex., Nov. 18, 1924. Cisco Daily News, Cisco, Texas. Allow Sweetwater, through the Sweetwater Reporter, to congratulate the Cisco Daily News and the people of your community on Cisco's victory over Comanche, and her right to meet Vernon—conqueror of Amarillo—for the West Texas championship. May we offer Sweetwater as the ideally located neutral city in which Waco's opponent for the state championship will be decided. Ideal rail connections will serve both cities, and the throngs of West Texas rooters who should be there. Hospitality is our mayor's middle name, and he is first cousin of everybody in Sweetwater. We can handle the crowds, so come to Sweetwater and bring everything but the jail. We won't have any use for that. Yours for West Texas, SWEETWATER REPORTER.

STEPHENVILLE AND CISCO ARE TO MEET NEXT

A telephone conversation was held with Roy B. Henderson, interscholastic football head, at Austin, soon after the game at Comanche yesterday and he directed that Cisco Loboos play Stephenville next and that Cleburne be matched against Lampasas, class B, winner of the southwestern part of the state. The game must be played on or before Thanksgiving. Arrangements have not been made for this game as yet, but Dr. Scott, Stephenville coach, intimated that Stephenville might consider a cash guarantee to play in Cisco.

PUBLIC HEALTH WILL BE TALKED AT FEDERATION

Mrs. Phillip Pettit, president of the Eastland County Federation of Women's clubs, has issued a call for the next meeting of the federated clubs to be held in Rising Star Saturday afternoon, November 22, the same being the fourth Saturday in this month. SUICIDE AFTER 4TH ADVENTURE IN MATRIMONY

TEMPLE, Nov. 18.—The failure in her fourth matrimonial venture found eighteen-year-old Bessie Pruitt Richards dead at her home near here today. Death was self-inflicted from a borrowed revolver. AT SISTER'S BEDSIDE

Mrs. Morris Simon left Sunday night in response to a message from her sister, Miss Ella Bassitt at Austin, stating that she would go on the operating table this morning. Mrs. Simon will remain until the results of the operation is ascertained.

ANOTHER CISCO CHURCH IS NOW BEING ERRECTED

Cisco is a city of churches, and many edifices which are now the boast of the home city of the oil belt will compare favorably with the church buildings in the large cities. But another is now in the making. The Church of God people, with Rev. T. H. McNeil as their pastor, states that he has discarded all his ministerial duties except his Sunday sermons, and donated his overalls for the purpose of erecting the church building on their lot near the tabernacle. For some time past this congregation has been worshipping at the tabernacle, but the winter is now coming on, and more comfortable quarters are necessary.

"The material has been placed on the lot, and the foundation is laid," said Rev. McNeil. "Work will proceed from now on until the building is complete. One day in the near future I am going to invite all the preachers of every denomination in Cisco to put on their overalls and come and donate one day's work on our church. On this day each minister will be called upon for a short talk. Naturally there will be some kind of refreshments, as preachers, like other folk, work best when fed."

WRESTLERS OF GOOD REP CITY HALL TUESDAY

There will be a wrestling match of more than ordinary interest at the city hall next Thursday night, when Jimmy Patterson of Canada and Ray Zimmer of California meet in a best two of three contest. Patterson, stout man and finished jitsu artist, is known to many Cisco people as a wrestler of high caliber and one in which he participates every match in which he participates. Zimmer has an excellent reputation on the coast and in the east, where he has met most of the good men of his weight. He is a husky one and will undoubtedly carry the fight to Patterson's corner from the start. Both men weigh right at 175 when dressed in wrestling togs. The bout will be under the auspices of Cisco Elks and it is said the admission fee will not be more than 75 cents, the idea being to develop the sport locally through the staging of interesting matches at nominal cost.

REPUBLICANS DECIDE A CONTEST UNNECESSARY

DALLAS, Nov. 18.—The Republican party will not contest Mrs. Ferguson's election, Committee man Creager formally announced today at the close of the G. O. P. parley. In the statement he said the great expense and the causing of public confusion, and the fact that no tribunal was open to them, prompted the decision.

Loboos Win Glorious Victory When They Defeated Comanche Indians By Top-Heavy Score of 30 to 0 Monday

Playing the style of football they played when they triumphed over the Eagles, the Cisco Loboos ran over, through and around the Comanche Indians at Comanche Monday and clinched the district title by the score of 30-0. The largest crowd ever to view a football game in the history of Comanche crowded the park. Eleven Loboos playing in perfect unison soon made it apparent that Comanche was doomed to defeat, and throughout the game the result was never in doubt. The only reason the score was not run up more was due to misplays by the Loboos themselves in the first half.

Every man on the Lobo team acquitted himself with glory. While, as is always the case, several of the men were outstanding men, yet it was the splendid team work of all eleven men that won the game, and it was the smashing work of the line, and the interference of the backfield men that supplied the punch necessary to run up the top-heavy score. The Lobo line again acquitted themselves with glory and dealt a death blow to the famed Indian attack which was doped to carry the Comanche boys to victory. A lineman, Couch, recovered the blocked kick that made possible the first touchdown. Grist another lineman, blocked punts for Comanche that resulted in other Lobo scores. McCord, tackle, really deserved to make two touchdowns. He was deprived of one after he recovered a blocked kick behind the goal line, a ground rule making it a safety, and later he recovered a punt and missed a touchdown by inches only. Couch saved the Loboos from a certain Comanche touchdown by a phenomenal burst of speed by which he pulled down a flying Indian within five yards of a touchdown. The work of Alabrook, Irving and Grist, Lee, McCord and Couch, with Wilson playing end on defense, proved a line in which the Indians could find no weak spot. Alabrook played a magnificent game, holding his zone inviolable to the famed Indian running attack, and he also carried his man out consistently on the attack.

In the backfield Wilson was, of course, the outstanding man. However the splendid interference according him by Morse, Fields and Browne, and later McCrea, had much to do with his success. Wilson was also powerful when running interference for his fellow backs, and in fact the four backfield men gave the best exhibition of team play they have shown during the entire season. Bill Morse was a veritable antelope. Several times he got away with long runs, one for a touchdown. Wilson was the power that carried the ball for yards when yards were needed. Aply following his interference he used every bit of it before breaking into full speed alone. He showed marked judgment in picking holes and displayed a twisting, elusive pace that made him a hard target for Indian tacklers. Without doubt he was the individual offensive star of the game, although he was not striving for individual work.

Spights playing left end on offense and backing up the line on defense, put up the best game he has played this season. He hit hard and carried his man out on offense and was always in his place on defense. In addition he did great work breaking up the passing attack; launched by the Indians. Cecil Couch made perhaps the most brilliant defensive play of the game. Williams, Comanche's end, snared a pass and broke loose from the entire field with nothing between him and a touchdown, but the goal line. The entire Cisco team were distanced. However, "Kokomo", although twenty yards behind Williams, had the nerve to go after him and in a thrilling 80-yard race, overtook the flying Indian and pulled him down when a scant five yards from the goal line. Comanche is still shaking their heads over this run and declaring that it just simply could not happen. Even Pop Boone argued fluently that his eyes had deceived him, declaring that a man just could not run as fast as Couch did. Bill Morse set the example for Couch earlier in the game when he outran Woodward, who was apparently gone for a touchdown, and pulled him down from behind.

The Comanche boys put up the best fight they were capable of. They were handicapped by Mason going out on them in the first half. However, Mason has fallen them in several games during the season, and they should have been prepared for it. "Red" Marshall won the admiration of the entire crowd by his fighting spirit. Never did he give up. Hit hard and downed by several Loboos who broke through his line and got him before he could get started, he yet had the nerve to try again and he came back after every tackle administered him and tried the hard-er on his next attempt. His passing was steady and accurate and he was doing half the work of his team. Woodward at end and Moody at tackle, put up a good game. Dillard at half for Comanche, also let the Loboos know he was in there. However the Indians could not cope with the heavy Loboos. When their attack splintered on the Lobo defense they seemed to lose heart and failed to show the snap they have showed in former games.

All in all it was the same old story. Chapman has developed a machine which was pitted against a team built around a pair of stars. Individuals cannot cope with machines, however brilliant the individual stars may be. The game was a victory for Coach Chapman and his system of football. His team functioned as a machine and they mowed down the Indians.

Cisco was there en masse. Almost as many local fans were in Comanche as were in Ranger. The pep squad did their work well and reflected glory on Cisco. The band also did much to enliven the day. Comanche also had an excellent pep squad, colorfully attired in war paint and Indian feathers. The Comanche band was on hand and did their part in grand manner.

The Comanche people were most hospitable hosts. Seldom is such good sportsmanship displayed as was displayed by those people. Although stung and hurt by the crushing defeat they had the spirit to take their medicine in good nature.

LEE J. CEARLEY APPOINTED FOR MOHLER DEFENSE

When Bob Mohler's case is called in the 88th district court Dec. 1, in addition to his former attorney, he will be represented by Lee J. Cearley of Cisco, who was appointed by Judge Hill this morning to assist T. J. Cunningham, who with B. D. Shropshire, defended Mohler in his first trial, when he was given the death penalty for the murder of Hugh Maples. Cunningham is retained in the case, and Cearley is a court appointee.

STANDARD MEDICAL FEES

The doctors in the national capital have adopted a standard fee scale. Formal action to this effect is taken by the Medical Society of the District of Columbia, in behalf of all its members.

It is not a rigid scale, like that of labor. There is a sliding scale, with a maximum and minimum, for almost every ailment and type of treatment. The minimum fees run from $2 for modest office consultations or medical advice over the telephone to $300 for major operations.

To many of the laity it may appear an unjust and unreasonable way of doing business to charge according to the patient's ability to pay. Yet it probably is as fair a way as could be figured out. A physician deals with human life. The life of a rich man is worth about everything to him. So is the life of a poor man. If the poor man is charged a month's income for a treatment or operation that saves his life, the physician may be justified in charging a rich man a month's income for the same service.

The District of Columbia scale appears to say nothing about services for patients who are so poor that they cannot afford to pay anything. It may be assumed that the doctors concerned will take care of them, as usual, regardless of their financial condition.

The big fact emerging from every national campaign is the unconquerable toughness of this country.

FOREIGN LOANS OVERSUBSCRIBED

American banks paid over their $110,000,000 share in the German loan without turning a hair. Much of that payment, it is said, is being made in gold, but there is no alarm on that score as there would have been a few years ago. The banks are glad to get rid of their gold. A $30,000,000 loan for Sweden has been grabbed up as eagerly as the German loan, being oversubscribed five times.

American subscriptions to European loans this year, so far, have been estimated at over $1,000,000,000, and the end is not yet. American capitalists, who are more numerous than they were before the big war, are crazy to lend money to Europe.

Much of the lending ardor is based, no doubt, on sympathy with various European nationalities and a generous desire to help along their work of reconstruction. But most of the enthusiasm for foreign investment seems to come from belief that the loans are good investments.

THE COMING 1926 YACHT RACE

The Prince of Wales is not the only Englishman who is well liked by the general American public. Although not so swamped with attention and publicity as H. R. H. Sir Thomas Lipton is always welcomed to these shores by everybody who believes in good sport and sportsmanship.

Apparently Sir Thomas does not consider the American cup permanently lost. He announces that he will challenge for the cup with his fifth Shamrock for a race in 1926 if the United States yachting authorities will subscribe to the revised rules presented at a recent conference in England.

Just what those rules comprise is not yet announced. It will be rather generally hoped, however, that any new regulations adopted will provide for the construction of useful vessels instead of highly specialized racing boats unable to cope with winds that are harmless to truly seaworthy craft. Americans who want the cup to be retained by this country would feel prouder of success if it were won under less restricted conditions.

AMERICA'S ENDOWED POET

Robert Frost, regarded by many as the foremost living American poet, leaves Amherst college, where he has been teaching literature, and takes up his residence at the University of Michigan. The circumstances are unusual.

Mr. Frost, it appears, is simply "endowed" by the university. He receives a "fellowship" created especially for him, which will last for life. He has no such arduous duties as he had in Amherst. All his living expenses are paid. He is free to give his full time unhampered to the job of being a poet.

Thus the modern American university takes the place of the rich patron, whose support was considered essential to authors until the last century or two, when it became possible to earn a living by writing, because of the larger market for published works. Will the example spread to other authors, and other branches of art? And if it does, will the poets, musicians, painters, etc., do better work than they have done when wooing the muses painfully, with the wolf at the door?

We shall probably find out, before many years; for the chances are that every rich university will want a genius of some kind to support—for the advertising he brings, if for no other reason.

ARMISTICE DAY AND WORLD PEACE

No subsequent celebration of Armistice Day has equalled in enthusiasm the first spontaneous outburst in 1918 when the actual fighting in the World war came to an end. Yet the day seems to be growing in importance.

It is observed something like Memorial day within our own country, as far as paying tribute and respect to the men and women who lost their lives in the World war, and particularly to the Unknown Soldiers buried in the different allied countries. Its significance is enhanced by the fact that so many different countries observe it. Wherever the day is taken note of at all, two minutes of silence are usually held at 11 o'clock in the morning.

One thing ought to be emphasized about Armistice day. The original day marked not so much joyous outbursts because of a victory won, as joyous outbursts because a terrible war ended. The chief purpose of its continued observance then might well be to promote in every possible way such acts and thoughts as will work ultimately, if slowly, to the achievement of lasting peace.

DINNER STORIES

Of course it won't do to give names, until the official announcement in the society columns has been made, but one young chap has just won himself a charming little heiress and all because of a ready wit. Or, more strictly speaking, he has won the heiress's father.

It happened at one of the dinner dances, when stern papa dragged the young man onto the porch and demanded fiercely:

"Is it my daughter you want, or is it her money?"

"You know very well that I am an amateur athlete," was the prompt reply.

"What in tarnation has that got to do with it?" demanded the stern parent in amazement.

"A great deal, sir. It debars me from taking part in any event, for money."

This is a story told against himself by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. Arriving in Paris, he hailed a cabman to drive him to a hotel.

"Dr. Doyle," said that worthy, "I perceive from your appearance that you have recently been in Constantinople. I have reason to think also that you have been at Buda, and I perceive some indication that you were not far from Milan."

"Wonderful!" answered the creator of Sherlock Holmes. "Five francs for the secret of how you did it."

"I looked at the labels pasted on your trunk," said the cabby.

COTTON STATES WILL INCLUDE KANSAS, SAID

McPherson, Kas., Nov. 18.—McPherson county farmers are planning extensive cotton acreage next year in an effort to find a paying crop for the thousands of acres of wheat land which it will be necessary to rotate in 1925, following this year's bumper crop.

Several small patches of cotton were successfully raised here this year and agricultural experts believe the southern crop will solve in a large measure, the problem of foot rot, very prevalent in this county because of repeated planting of wheat year after year without giving the land a rest. According to Dr. J. W. Fields cotton raised here is as good as that produced on his 1,000 acre farm in Texas.

Diversification and Soil Building Is Hope of Eastland County Farmer Says J.A. Lucas, Who Farms That Way

COMMITTEEMAN DEAN WELCOMES HEAD OF LEGION

BRECKENRIDGE, Nov. 18.—Ben J. Dean, national committeeman of Texas for the American legion, is in El Paso this week to welcome James A. Drain, national legion commander, Nov. 20, on his official visit to Texas. Mr. Dean is accompanied by Mrs. Dean on this trip, when they will be gone about a week. Dean is representing Texas in greeting the commander, who is the guest of the Texas legionnaires during his visit to Texas. The national commander is making a swing around the country inspecting the legion hospitals. After he inspects the hospital at El Paso he will go to Kerrville to inspect the legion hospital there. These are the only two stops he will make in the state. While in El Paso he will make an address before the American Federation of Labor.

LIBERAL DISCOUNT ON HEART BALM JUDGMENT

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Nov. 18.—Miss Olive Harbour, 35 years old, a milliner, has a $30,000 heart balm judgment which she would like to discount for cash. Miss Harbour obtained the judgment by default this week from E. G. Carroll, a furniture dealer, only to discover that Carroll, according to attorneys' judgment proof.

OKLAHOMA PROSPEROUS

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 18.—More farmers have voluntarily paid their taxes this year than ever before in the history of Oklahoma county, according to Ike Bonaparte, chief deputy in the county treasurer's office. Approximately $807,391.98 has been paid to date.

J. A. Lucas says the key which will unlock the treasures of the sandy land districts of Eastland county, and maintain the fertility through the years in spite of the continuous drain of crops year after year, is diversification and crop rotation. No land in the world can stand a continuous crop removal with nothing returned. The only land that can live under a one-crop method is an alluvial soil that has sedimentary deposits continually placed thereon by over flow. The valley of the Nile has withstood a one crop system of grain growing for thousands of years, and has become famed throughout history as the "granary of the world" only because it has overflowed its banks each year from June until November. These annual overflows leave a thick sediment spread over the land bordering its banks when the water has receded.

Mr. Lucas, who is a good farmer in the sandy section of this county south of Cisco, has been able to retain the natural fertility of his soil by crop rotation. He has been building his land for the past several years and now, when the lands of his neighbors show signs of depletion and refuse to grow profitable crops as they used to do, his own land still retains its vigor as a crop producer. The growing of peas and other legumes, following corn, cotton or maize, has not only retained fertility, but has even improved it from what it was when the land was new. When he plants corn or maize, he always alternates with peas in some way. He sometimes plants four rows of his crop and then alternates with a few rows of some kind of a legume. It will depend much upon what the crop is as to what kind of a skip he makes in the rows. In the case of corn, he finds it convenient to plant five rows of corn and then have a few rows of his legume. This depends also upon the condition of the soil on the particular piece of land. If it is badly depleted, he plants most of the land in a rejuvenating crop, but if the soil is in fairly good condition, he has fewer rows of legumes. He always plants peas during the last ploughing of his corn and this leaves his land in a vigorous condition for the next crop, whatever it be. If he plants peanuts, which are fine land builders themselves, he always alternates with some kind of crop that will keep the land from growing this profitable crop because it allows the land to be left bare when the crop has been gathered. The early spring winds then blow away the top soil and thus the land is depleted of its fertility. However, the plan of Mr. Lucas obviates this depletion and the land is not blown away, but is built up by the free nitrogen left in the soil by the action of the roots of the peanuts. He maintains that the thing that makes the retention of soil fertility difficult in this section is the dry summers that prevail. If it were possible to always grow a good cover crop during the late summer and early fall, the problem of soil building would be much simplified. The land would never be left bare to be shorn of its fertility by winds and leaching through the long winter months. He has found, however, that by using rotation of crops and planning wind breaks for crops that leave the ground bare, he can retain the fertility with the balance in his favor.

All crops that drain heavily upon the supply of free nitrogen in the soil should be followed by some kind of legume crop, of which the cow pea or common black eye pea is preferable in this section. This later crop is very profitable since it furnishes both human and stock food and is a sure crop even in the driest of years.

In the cultivation of his orchard he always insures himself pay for his work by planting it in either peanuts or peas. He then grazes these crops with his hogs which fatten on the waste fruit of the orchard and the grazing of the crop. Grazing the crop of peas or peanuts does not lessen the value to the land since their fertility value comes from the roots rather than from the top of the plants. He says it always makes him sad to see an orchard planted in cane or cotton year after year, say that fruit does not do well in this country, and that trees die early. And no wonder! The soil is robbed of its fertility and moisture and the trees are literally choked and starved for lack of food.

He has a good crop this year. He has some cotton, a good patch of corn, several acres of peanuts that will pay most of any crop on his farm, patches of sweet potatoes and other truck. He sells turnips and greens all winter. Green onions are just now getting ready for the market. The meat from four hogs will be put away for use during the coming year. He has never bought a pound of meat since he began for himself. He has enough feed to do two years, should he make a failure next year. His wife has canned vegetables and fruit from their garden and orchard. He trades in Cisco and finds it a good market for his surplus of things raised on the farm.

CLOCK STOPPED DAY

JUDGE SMITH DIED
EL PASO, Nov. 18.—"A faithful attache of the United States district court has refused to work any longer. After watching innumerable trials, witnessing heart-breaking scenes, and seeing men leave the court to begin sentence which may put them behind the bars for the rest of their lives, this attache has decided to work no longer. "A face beaming with good nature always on time, seldom speaking out of turn—the court clock has refused to work any longer. "A peculiar feature is that the clock stopped the day the late Judge William R. Smith died," said court stenographer Roy G. Lassiter. "We sent the old clock to repair shops many times. It would come back and perform its duties for a day or two and then give up the struggle. It looks now as though the government will have to supply us with a new clock."

BISHOP AT BRECKENRIDGE

BRECKENRIDGE, Nov. 18.—Bishop Harry T. Moore of the Dallas diocese of the Episcopal church, preached to a large congregation at St. Andrews church Sunday morning on his official visit to this city. Saturday evening an informal reception was held at the Sager hotel when many came to greet him.

ATTORNEY GENERAL READY TO RULE ON POLICY ORDER
AUSTIN, Nov. 18.—The attorney general's department has completed an opinion on the question of whether San Antonio school board has authority to use public funds for payment of premiums on life insurance policies under the board's group insurance plan of giving insurance to the teachers in the public schools in San Antonio.

The opinion was prepared by Assistant Attorney General C. F. Gibson, but it has not been passed on by conference of the attorney general's staff of assistants, and the holding will not be made public until conference approval has been given.

It is understood that some of the assistants do not concur in the findings and final action probably will not be taken until the return to Austin of Attorney General Keeling, who is in Washington.

The money derived from the bonds will be used to pipe water from the newly completed Lake Scarborough, several miles north of town, and also to lay larger water mains within the city for fire protection.

Wonderful Shoes

for Wonderful Girls

The above is a brand new expression that is now being capitalized by a big shoe concern and is making a red hot hit all over the country. And it started right here in Cisco from the fact that KLEIMAN'S DEPARTMENT STORE was handling the most wonderful line of shoes that had ever been shown in Cisco, and from the further fact that Cisco had the most wonderful girls to be found anywhere. And they were buying these wonderful shoes in preference to all others on account of the style embodied and the quality and fit to be secured.

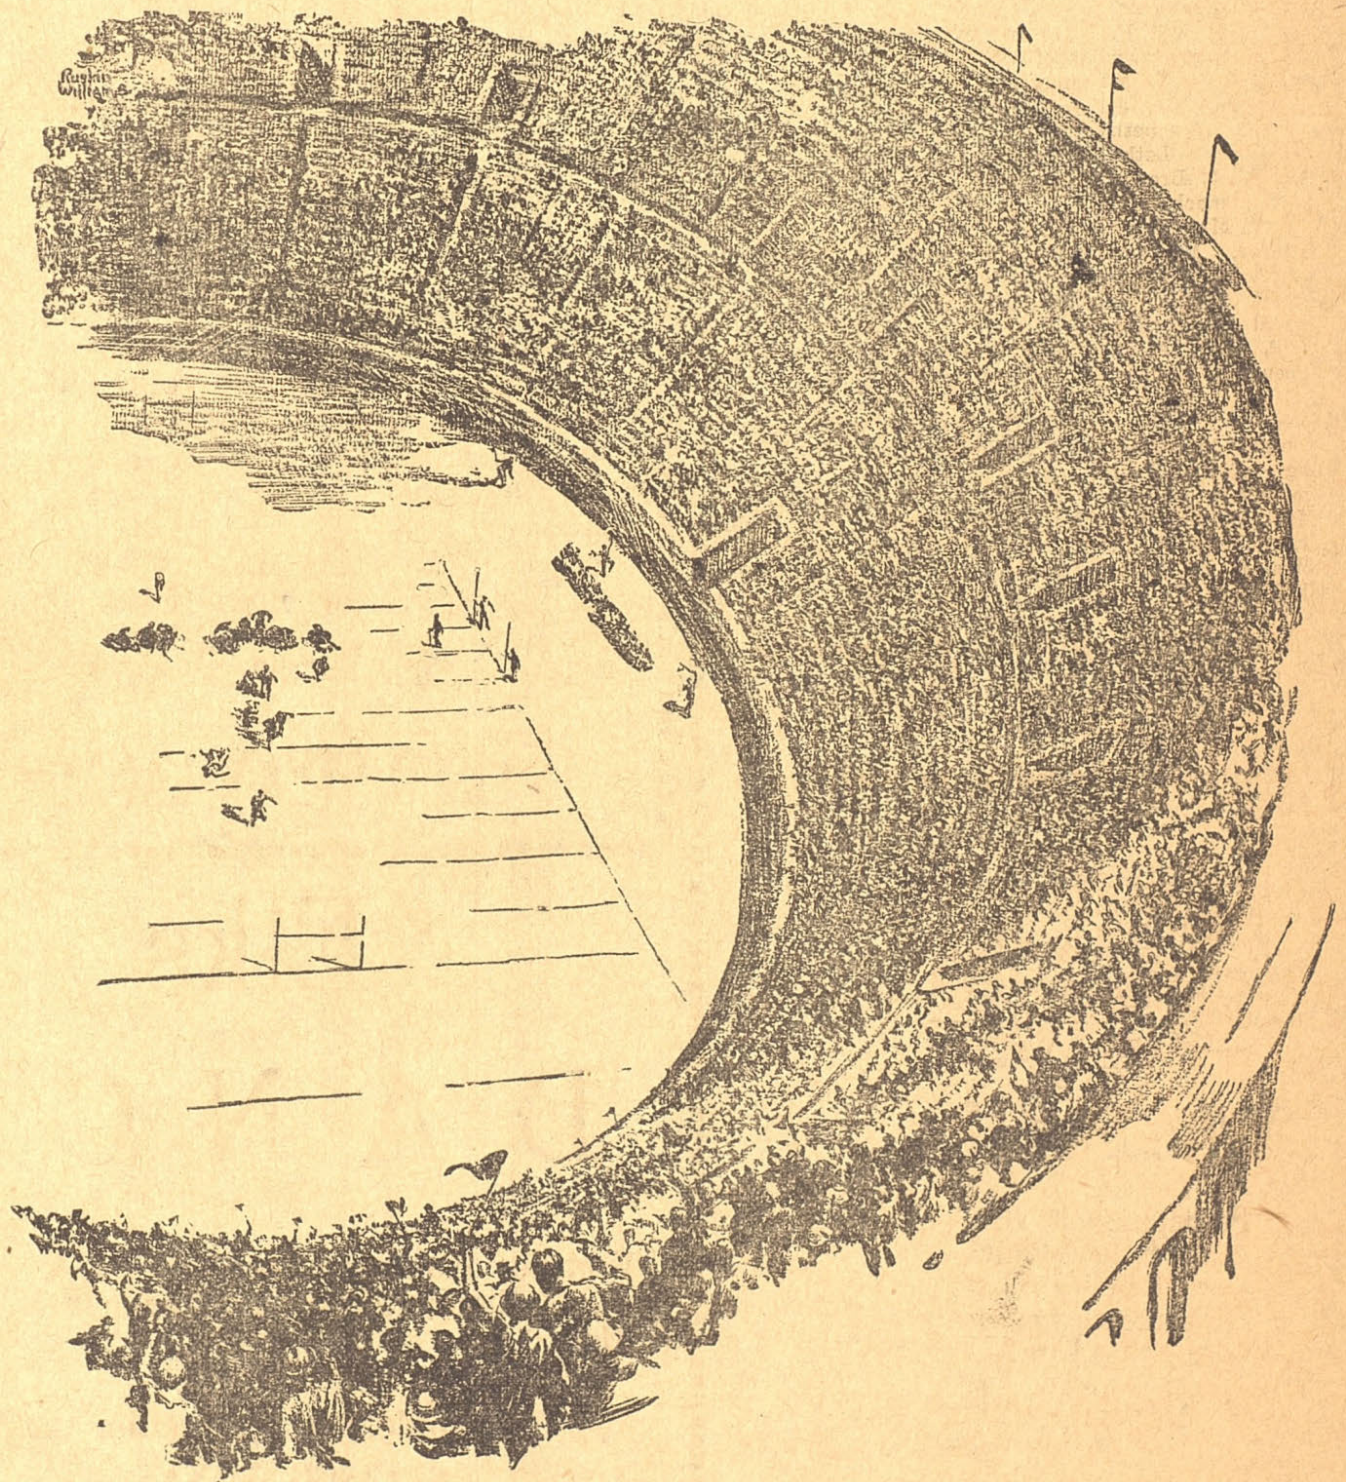

For a long time the most wonderful girls and women of Cisco, and we mean by this, those who cared most for a proper shoe properly fitted, had to go away to Dallas and Fort Worth to secure a shoe embodying the very latest in style, best in quality and properly fitted. Kleiman saw the service that the women of Cisco had been trying to secure. Then the proper shoe was found, and more and more of these wonderful girls have wended their way to this store to find that their shoe troubles were ended.

If you have not yet joined this properly shod group of wonderful girls, be sure to see Kleiman's window display and pick your style, then go inside and be fitted in a scientific manner.

Is This To Be A Gland Age?

In a recent press dispatch, a London physician stated that the Golden Age of man bids fair to be the glandular age, when salivation will be taken in tablet form. He said further that the average man believes that his thoughts, actions and feelings are controlled by his mind. But it is possible to show that mind is itself under the despotic sway of the ductless glands, which generate in the system the chemical fluids on which depend health, happiness and morality.

Henkle also had purchased an automobile from the B. & H. Motor Co., on which there was due a deferred payment. The car had been removed out of the county, and Kuykendall went along to collect the note. Henkle, however, paid both the note and the fine that was due, and the officers came home without the negro, but they brought back the cash.
