COTTON SESSION TO END TUESDAY Murray Proposes Plan to Provide Work for 1,000,000

19 STATES REPRESENTED AT MEETING

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 25.—A plan to provide work for every able bodied man in the middle west was proposed by Gov. M. H. Murray of Oklahoma, at an unemployment conference here today.

"I propose that the government, county, state and federal provide work for the more than 1,000,000 unemployed in this section and then see that those who do not work do not eat," Gov. Murray told the 150 delegates representing 19 states.

The governor proposed building farm to market roads speeding up all federal building projects, shortening hours of those now employed to spread out available work and employment of workers to repair and improve farm and city buildings.

McGANEGAL "TELLS ALL" TO OFFICERS

HOUSTON, Sept. 25.—Barney McGanegal, charged with the murder of John Cherris, Dallas gangster, "told all" to police today in an effort to get revenge on the slayers of his pal, Keggy Jones, who was killed to avenge Cherris' murder.

McGanegal would not say who pulled the trigger but admitted, as did Jack Jones, that he, Jack and Keggy Jones, took Cherris for a ride, threw his body into the Brazos river after shooting him to death. This is the first corroboration of the story told by Jack Jones, also held here for the murder of Cherris.

U. S. URGES PEACEFUL ADJUSTMENT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Forces of public opinion and moral suasion were exerted on Japan and China today by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson in an effort to promote a peaceful adjustment of their Manchurian quarrel.

Stimson sent identical notes to both powers. He urged them to cease hostilities and settle their disputes, which he said the American government views with regret and concern.

Although there has been talk of involving the Kellogg pact or the Nine-Power Pacific treaty to settle the dispute Stimson mentioned neither by name.

He did, however, call attention to the existence of treaties designed to regulate controversies by nations without the resort of use of force.

Meanwhile at Geneva efforts of the League of Nations to settle the dispute were dealt a severe blow when Japan rejected the councils attempt to promote mediation.

KONGKONG, Sept. 25.—Chinese mobs attacked Japanese shops today and kept police responding to continuous calls. Pedestrians were warned to keep off the streets.

ENGINEERS TO MEET BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Sept. 25.—Mining engineers of three states have been invited to attend the annual fall meeting of the coal division of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers here Oct. 9 and 10. West Virginia, Kentucky and Virginia will be represented.

PASTOR GATHERS SURPLUS FARM CROPS TO FEED CHICAGO'S UNEMPLOYED

"Why Should a Single Person Go Hungry in This Land of Plenty, Where Fields Are Running Over With Things to Eat?" Asks Minister Who Has Fed Multitudes.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—A breadline of 2,000 hungry men stood in the gray dawn outside the doors of the Immanuel Baptist church, not long ago.

Dr. Johnston Myers, the 71-year-old pastor, who has fed 8,000,000 people in 46 years surveyed the pinched, discouraged faces as he delivered his best daily sermon—a full meal of bread, meat pie and coffee.

Then he thought of a recent trip to Michigan, where fields of beans were going to waste because they couldn't pay their way to market, where peaches and apples and cherries—dead ripe—fell to the ground to rot.

"Why should a single person go hungry in this land of plenty, where fields are running over with good things to eat?" he asked himself.

That was a month ago, Dr. Myers broadcast a plea to farmers of the surrounding country to cooperate in his plan.

Since then, 5,000 bushels of apples, 100 bushels each of wheat and rye, scores of truckloads of peaches, vegetables and potatoes have been garnered from wastage to fill the mouths of the hungry. Every day more of this overflow from heavy-laden fields comes rolling up in trucks to Immanuel Baptist church to be distributed to the eight food stations in various parts of Chicago.

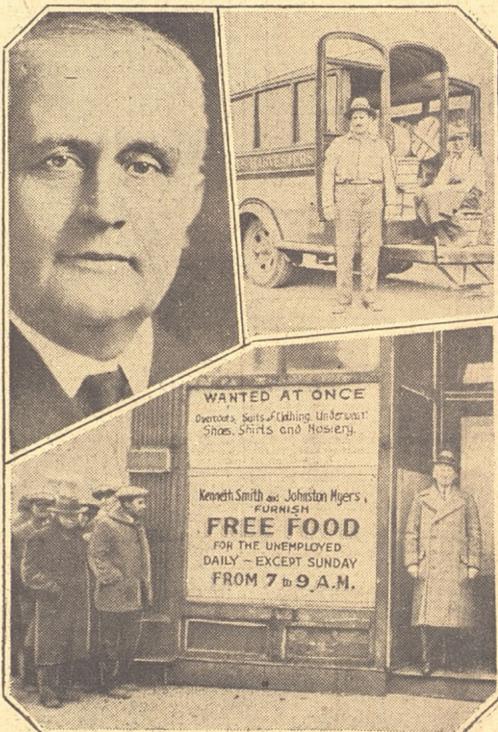

This new source of sustenance has already given revived hope and life to at least 20,000 and the number is growing.

Fifteen trucks, donated by Chicago contractors, bring in the food from the countryside. Many of the farmers make no charge even helping to load the trucks. Others sell their surplus for nearly nothing.

Volunteers pick and load the fruit and vegetables. The unemployed who partake of the pastor's free breakfasts are glad to do the work with meals as their payment. Buildings have been donated as food stations.

No attempt has been made to grind the wheat into flour. More than 25 bushels of grain have been boiled for distribution in banks after it has partly dried. Eaten with salt sugar and milk, this wheat makes a satisfying dish.

"Food stations established throughout the nation by this method of salvaging food that might otherwise be wasted would do an untold amount of good this winter," Dr. Myers declares. "Hungry men can neither seek work nor do the work

Saturday evening, October 3, Mr. Smith promises new diversion in the shape of an old fiddler's contest in which prizes will be offered for the best fiddling. MOTHER OF HUGH WHITE SUCCUMBS

Mrs. W. C. White, of Roswell, N. M., mother of Hugh White of this city, died at her Roswell home yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock (Mountain time) and will be buried tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock (Mountain time).

Mr. White, proprietor of the Southwestern Motor company here, was with his mother when she died, as were the other of her children. The Southwestern Motor company will be closed tomorrow for the funeral.

Mr. White left Cisco about 10 days ago to be with his mother when her long illness became critical. Mrs. White accompanied him and their son, W. C., is leaving today for Roswell.

Mrs. White is survived by her husband, two sons and two daughters. The sons are Hugh, of this city, and O. W. White, of Denver, Colo., and the daughters are Mrs. J. P. Radney, of Roanoke, Alabama, and Mrs. Fred Burkstaller, of Roswell, N. M.

The welcome address was made by Mayor W. E. Tyler, who welcomed the visitors in a happy way and stated that it was a pleasure to eat at a banquet where his guest, who was Dr. Homer Allen, had to foot the bill. The response was made by H. F. Mayes, publisher of the Brownwood Bulletin. Mr. Mayes spoke of the fine pike that was now being surfaced between the two towns and said the road would connect two of the best towns in Texas—Rising Star and Brownwood—and was given generous applause. Several Brownwood and Rising Star citizens made short talks, including E. M. Howard and E. F. Bucy, of this city, D. W. Ross, Dr. Bailey and Dr. Allen, of Brownwood, and Dr. Thos. H. Taylor, president of Howard Payne college, who made the principal address of the evening. Dr. Taylor called attention to the fact that he was born and reared a few miles south of Rising Star and said that he bought his first barlow knife in this city and also his first pair of pants was bought here, laughingly remarking that his folks had to chase him a 1-2 mile to get them on him. Dr. Taylor spoke in his usual humorous style, but got in some splendid thoughts while doing so.

The site for the proposed $165,000 federal building at Big Spring has been secured.

MANY BILLS POSSIBLE OF ENACTMENT

AUSTIN, Sept. 25.—The legislature voted today to end the cotton session Tuesday at 3 p. m.

A movement to quite Monday was pending in the house when word came that the senate had voted to adjourn Tuesday instead.

Tuesday was sought because of a rule prohibiting consideration of any matter not reported upon by committees three days before adjournment.

The delay makes it possible to push through a bill relieving oil men from anti-trust provisions forbidding the organization of an oil marketing association; the Ben Brooks bill, taxing a cent of the state gasoline tax in future to retire county and district road bonds, a bill to permit investment of $3,000,000 of highway funds in general fund warrants; a bill introduced today authorizing injunction against operation of slot machines; a bill to permit oil drilling in the Sabine river bed and numerous corrective bills submitted by the governor yesterday.

The bill permitting transfer of highway funds was passed finally by the house today.

The anti-slot machine bill besides authorizing injunctions provides for destruction of the machine and a penitentiary sentence for operators. Raffles and punchboards are put in the same class.

The bill was offered by Rep. P. L. Anderson, of San Antonio.

FINANCIAL RESPONSIBILITY LAW POPULAR.

North Carolina, following the lead of California and other states, has adopted a Financial Responsibility Law for motorists.

The law, of the familiar pattern, provides that a person failing to satisfy a judgment shall have his license suspended until he gives proof of financial responsibility, either through an insurance policy or a personal corporate surety bond.

This type of law is finding increasing support throughout the nation, and it is noteworthy that demand for unconditional compulsory automobile casualty insurance of the Massachusetts kind, is seldom heard. The experience of the Bay state, with its congested courts, rising accident record, faked claims and increased insurance rates has acted as a warning to other commonwealths.

One can find little fault with the Financial Responsibility Law. Its principal virtue is that it puts the responsibility and cost where it belongs—on those who cause accidents—and does not penalize the careful, responsible driver. The negligent motorist holds the financial sack, as he should.

In all probability it will not be long before an appreciable number of states have similar laws to the benefit of the public at large.

BUSINESS AND COPPER.

Citizens of the mining states will be especially interested in a recent statement by Colonel D. C. Jackling, president of the Utah Copper Company.

"I see no indications of a downward trend, or, for that matter, an upward trend, in business," Mr. Jackling said. "Naturally business men hope for a change toward better conditions.

"Improvement of the German situation would reflect itself everywhere. Copper, like other so-called world commodities, would be benefitted by improvements in the situation. Stabilization of the silver market and improvement of prices for the metal would help everything, including copper, through the reopening of markets."

"The downward trend of copper is reflecting curtailment of production on some properties. It is a natural recession because of low prices, and as long as low prices continue, producers cannot afford to produce more than they can dispose of."

ENEMIES OF PROSPERITY.

There has never been a time when it was more important to keep governmental expense down to reasonable levels than now.

Businesses and individuals are striving to make both ends meet. Authorities, public and private, are working on plans to stimulate industrial activity and thus provide employment for those who are out of work. And rising taxes are one of the principle barriers in the way of success of such plans.

Extravagance and waste on the part of officials are enemies of prosperity and result from "government in business" in competition with its private citizens and taxpayers.

ON TOP OF THE HEAP.

"It's an ill wind that blows no good"—is an old axiom, but apparently as true today as ever.

Whoever would have thought we should be rejoicing over any phase of this depression business? Yet, that is exactly what Dr. Harold J. Knapp, Health Commissioner of Cleveland, is doing; because he finds in that city considerable decline in disease with the general health of the people there greatly improved. His theory is that people eat less in times like these, that their diet contains fewer luxuries and that health is improved by plain food.

Carefully planned meals cost less money. The less one spends for food the more important milk becomes. Milk is all food, no waste. The least amounts of food which can be used with safety are—Every Meal: milk for the children, bread and butter for all; Every Day: cereal, potatoes, green or yellow vegetables, fruit, tomatoes or oranges for children; Two to Four Times a Week: Tomatoes for all, dried beans, peas or peanuts, eggs—especially for children—lean meat, fish, poultry, cheese. Amounts to suit the size of family.

Simple, plain foods these—but they offer protection and bring health at a cost in keeping with a decreased food allowance.

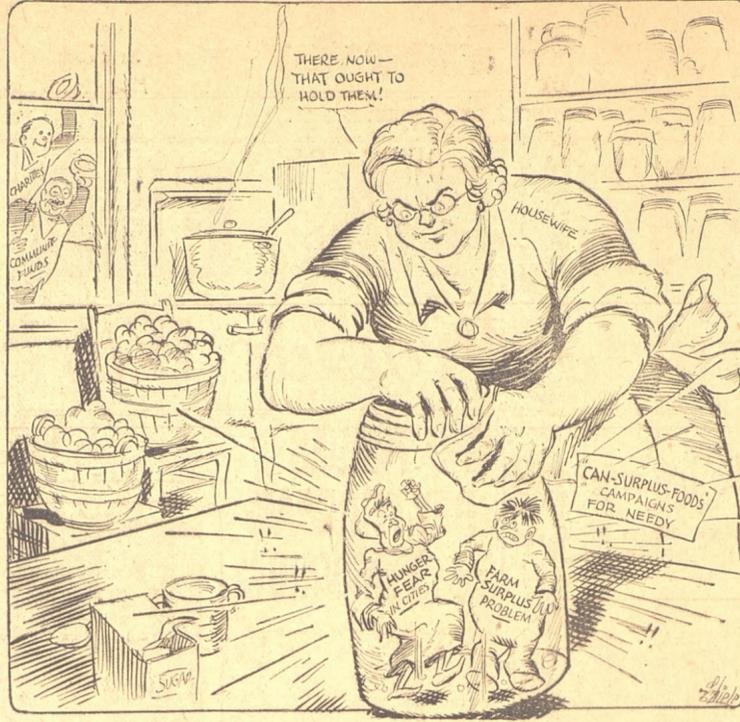

FIRE IN THE FORESTS.

The terrible and destructive fires in the forest areas of many states this year should have focused the public attention on the problem.

Thousands of acres of timber have been devastated—families have been left homeless—human and animal lives have been needlessly destroyed. In at least one state it was necessary to establish martial law in the endangered sections.

Much of the loss is laid to arson—certainly one of the most despicable of all crimes. This we must deal with as best we can through processes of law, and through stricter and more adequate legislation for punishing the offender. But that part of the loss which has resulted from carelessness can only be solved, for our future safety, by the individual. The worker in the woods—the vacationist—the maker of campfires—the smoker—each has been responsible, ideas about present-day problems.

"For one thing, we need old age pensions for men over 65. No man should have to work when he is passed that age. Also, we need unemployment insurance, and a five-day week."

The telephone keeps Dr. Myers busy. "A thousand bushels of apples are on their way from Benton Harbor and the city council there has voted to co-operate with us," he repeated after one call.

"An offer of 300 carloads of potatoes and vegetables," he said again. "And once more, 'I've just had a contribution of $5,000 promised by one man.'"

This is just the latest phase in Dr. Meyer's work for the poor. He operates an employment bureau. There is a room in the church basement with shelves of clothing. A fellow who comes shivering into the church on a winter day goes out with a warm coat.

In the afternoons needy women and children trudge to his church for loaves of bread and pie. More than 600 loaves daily were distributed this summer.

His breadlines are famous. Those who have stood in them and they can be found in every part of the world, vouch for them as the best in any country.

There are no "hand-outs" of bread and coffee. The men, 85 at a time, sit down at tables in the roomy church basement. Thick slices of white bread, butter, platters of meat, steaming pitchers of coffee and slabs of pie. Every man eats as much as he wants.

This is Dr. Meyer's 36th year as pastor of the Immanuel Baptist church. For 10 years prior to his work in Chicago he occupied a pulpit in Cincinnati.

He never has to ask for money to carry on his work. There are hundreds of persons in Chicago who budget an amount for his as regularly as they do for their own food and clothes.

RENO PREFERS BLONDES FOR BET BOOSTERS

RENO, Nev., Sept. 25.—Kiwians and Rotarians in Reno have severe competition in the "booster business."

When any one in "The biggest little city in the world" speaks of a "booster" he is not referring to the chamber of commerce, or the luncheon clubs, but of that organization whose membership is carefully guarded from public scrutiny.

Visitors to Reno, who are strange to the ways of gambling, are impressed by the large number of people who are to be found nightly seated at the various games of chance.

The sang-froid with which these individuals place their bets seldom fails to excite the imagination of the onlooker. Oftentimes when the visitor sees another player having an "unusual streak of good luck," the temptation arises to follow the fortunate operator and possibly make a killing by "stringing along."

Boosters may be either men or women. Blondes are preferred among the latter sex.

Reno gambling houses employ these boosters to promote activity or keep the play going. They work on regular shifts and earn about $4 per day. During the last session of the legislature, boosters in Las Vegas gaming casinos complained that they were working 14 and 15 hours a day and receiving only $2 per day.

The boosters play with the firm's money. If they lose, they are not out of pocket, and their "winnings" must be returned to the house.

HUGE SUMS OF TOURISTS AID TRADE BALANCE

By SAMUEL DASHIELL

United Press Staff Correspondent. PARIS, Sept. 25.—Despite the favorable and unfavorable trade balances figured out by the economic experts, certain economists of the League of Nations have found that economic balances, favorable or unfavorable, cannot be accurately established without a knowledge of the invisible revenue, that is, the tabulations of the millions of dollars spent in various countries by tourists.

As a proof of the fallibility of established economic theories, the Vatican City is cited. It has what could be reported as a strictly unfavorable trade balance, buying almost everything from outside, and selling nothing that can be tabulated on paper. Logically it should be bankrupt, but the reverse of the situation prevails. Vatican City is far from being bankrupt, and its balance is distinctly in its own favor.

Heavy Invisible Balance. Adverse balances of France, Germany and other countries have thus been put under the spotlight by the League economists, and it appears that France has one of the heaviest invisible balances, in the world.

By the same rule, those countries which contribute thousands of tourists to other countries, have an invisible leakage of revenue, which naturally has its effect on that country's financial situation.

The United States contributes more than any other nation to its own unfavorable balance, and is the means of enriching other nations by millions of dollars.

U. S. Unfavorable. A progressive outlay of dollars from 1926 to 1929 is reported from the United States to other countries. In 1926 American tourists spent 623 millions of dollars abroad, while in 1929 they spent 839 millions. Its invisible balance, therefore, was unfavorable, which in 1929 was estimated by the Geneva economists as 659 millions.

France, on the other hand receives most of the foreign tourist money, while her nationals spend comparatively little abroad. France's balance is considered favorable, for in 1926, her receipts from tourists amounted to 259 millions, while in 1929 they amounted to 392 millions of dollars. Her favorable balance in 1926 was estimated at 422 million dollars and in 1929, it was 333 millions.

Although Germany has been the goal of many tourists, her trade balance did not appear favorable. In 1926 32 million dollars were spent by tourists and 45 million dollars in 1929, but her own expenditures in countries abroad exceeded those receipts from foreigners.

After Meals, a Pinch of Black-Draught For Indigestion

"I had a son who had indigestion—he would spit up his food and looked so weak and bad," writes Mrs. Mary Pearson, 247 Beulah St., Atlanta, Ga. "I tried different remedies, but he did not get better. I thought maybe Black-Draught would help him. I gave him a very small dose after meals. Soon I could see an improvement. He quit spitting up his food and complaining of the bad taste in his mouth. He was soon well as anybody." PRA-22

OTHER OPINIONS

WE SALUTE YOU, MR. WATTS.

Wm. H. Watts died the other day at his home in San Francisco. For three years he had been afflicted with that dread disease—cancer. Not one day but he experienced excruciating pain for the dread malady was gnawing at his vitals. He was fully aware he was making a losing fight but he fought on till four days before his death when he lapsed into unconsciousness. He was 72 years old, had built hundreds of miles of railroad, constructed the great Idaho dam and pierced the Rocky Mountains in three different places with immense tunnels.

A year ago he headed the Six Companies, Incorporated, that undertook the biggest job ever attempted on this globe, that of building the great Hoover dam that is to harness the swift flowing Colorado river. The doctors told him that he could never live to see the work completed and advised him to rest and refrain from worry. But he said he believed he could live long enough to outline the work, that he could direct the foundations and then others could carry on. For six months he has directed that gigantic work from his bed in the hospital. Each morning he heard the reports of what had been done the day before and directed what should be done next.

But last week when his conferees called they were told they could not see him, that the end was very near. Four days afterwards he died. But they found in his room full details of how the big job should be finished and these directions will be carried out to the letter. The manuscript showed how laboriously he had worked, the handwriting showing more and more towards the last with what heroic effort he carried on.

Watts had plenty of this world's goods, his reputation as an engineer was secure, he had monuments of his skill in every western state, he was slowly and painfully dying, but he felt he had one more task to do.

It is such men as William H. Watts that have made our nation the greatest in all the world. It will take seven years to complete the dam and yet it will be built as though Watts was on the job. He left full directions, giving thickness of every concrete slab and exactly how the mighty foundations should be laid to hold back those hundreds of miles of turbulent water.

The world salutes Wm. H. Watts, the man of courage who fought to the last ditch.—Marshall News.

GUILTY LIPS

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of "MAD MARRIAGE"

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Pretty Norma Kent, 20-year-old secretary, marries Mark Travers, son of F. M. Travers, millionaire real estate dealer, in spite of the father's threats to disinherit Mark.

The story opens in Marlboro, middle western Missouri. Mark sells his expensive roadster to get money for the honeymoon and he and Norma go to fashionable Blue Springs. After two weeks their money is gone, partly due to Mark's gambling. With $500, borrowed, the couple return to Marlboro. Marks sets out on a round of pleasure seeking instead of hunting work. When their funds dwindle again he and Norma move to a cheap apartment.

Mark gets one job and loses it. Then he becomes a floorwalker in Blossomdale's department store. In spite of poverty the young couple are happy. After a few weeks Mark's father sends for him, offers to take him back into his business organization if Mark will prove he can make good. His first task involves a business trip to France. Norma is to remain at home. She is frightened and begs him not to go but in spite of her protests he departs.

Norma, treated rudely at her father-in-law's home, slips away leaving no trace of her whereabouts. She takes a room in a cheap lodging house and telephones her former roommate, Chris Saunders. When Chris leaves the office in which she works Norma meets her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXII

Chris Saunders twisted the ring on her finger. It was an odd, engraved band set with jade. Chris always wore the ring. She had worn it ever since Norma had known her.

When she looked up all Chris said was, "Well—?"

"He—he didn't say anything," Norma went on hurriedly. "Oh, it was terrible that first night when I knew he recognized me! I tried to tell Mark—I'd tried to tell him before but he wouldn't let me! Mark knows him, Chris. He and Stone are some sort of cousins. Mark didn't guess that I'd ever seen him before though!"

The other girl straightened. Her eyes meeting Norma's quite levelly, were a mask.

"Listen," Chris said, "you've done nothing to be ashamed of. If I were you I'd save my worrying until I had something to worry about. Something real! Don't lose your head, Norma. Tell me what you expect to do during the next four weeks?"

"I haven't thought it all out. I'll have to get a job somewhere I suppose. The money I have won't last. Anyhow I'd rather be doing something—"

Again Chris was absorbed in the ring. "I understand why you ran away last night," she said slowly, "but it might have been better if you'd stayed."

"Oh, I couldn't! Do you think I'd accept anything from people when I know they hate me? I just couldn't do it, Chris. Mark wouldn't want me to stay there if he knew. I made up my mind before he left that I couldn't stay in that house. I couldn't tell him because he was counting on the trip so. If he'd known how I felt about it he wouldn't have gone. I wasn't willing to stand in Mark's way!"

"But don't you see, dear, running away like this is going to make trouble for you. Norma's chin lifted but her lips trembled. "I thought you'd be willing to help me, Chris," she said. "I didn't know you'd feel this way about it!"

"See here, infant, of course I want to help you! I'm just trying to think what's the best thing to do, that's all."

"I won't go back to Mark's father's house. I tell you I won't!"

Chris sighed. "Well," she said, "that settles that!" As I said, I don't blame you much. If you won't go back I think you'd better go to work. Why didn't you come to my place last night instead of going to that rooming place?"

"You know you've no room now, Dorothy's with you."

"Always have room. We can double up."

"No, I don't want you to do that. You see things are different now, Chris. I've got to stand on my own feet. It helps to tell you about things, to talk them over and feel there's one person who understands. Oh, I don't know what I'd do without you! But I'm not going to be one more to impose on your generosity—"

"Silly! Why, that's ridiculous!" "Maybe. Anyway, that's how I feel about it. This place I've moved to is all right. I'll want to see you often, Chris, but I've paid the rent for a week and I think I'll stay there."

"Suit yourself. I suppose you'll come to dinner some time?" "Love to. Tell me about Dorothy. What's she like?"

"Oh, Dorothy's all right. We don't pal around the way you and I did but she's o. k. as a roommate. Say—" Chris' dark eyes flashed with a sudden inspiration. "Why didn't I think of it? Why didn't I think—"

"Think of what? What are you talking about?" "A job for you! Don't know what it pays but it would be a lot better than nothing. Dorothy was telling me about it last night. A girl she knows who works for a literary agent on the same floor we're on is going to quit Saturday. Getting married. I don't even remember the girl's name, though I met her once. Lucille something-or-other. She was going to tell her boss about it today. It's ten to one they haven't hired anyone else yet."

"What's a literary agent? What is a job like it?" "The job wouldn't be hard."

Just regular secretarial work. Stuart is the man's name, Frederick Stuart. People who write articles for magazines and stories send them to him. He finds someone to buy them. Dorothy says he's one of the best in the city."

"Do you think he'd hire me?" "Why not? You're a good secretary. Here—I tell you what I'll do! I'll get Dorothy to go in and see this girl in the morning and if nobody's taken the job I'll call you to come right down. How's that?"

"Fine. Say, that'll be great, Chris! I couldn't very well go to Brooks and Welliver and ask for a recommendation when I left them the way I did—"

"We'll get Lucille to recommend you personally. She'll do that for Dorothy, I'm sure."

Ten minutes later they left the restaurant. Each boarded a different street car. Chris urged Norma to spend the evening with her but the younger girl made excuses.

It was nearly eight o'clock when Norma unlocked the door of her newly rented room. The first flash of the electric light was startling. Everything looked strange and different. Shabby in the glow of yellow lamp light. She closed the door behind her and took off her hat.

Across the room, tacked to the faded wallpaper, Norma saw a calendar. She had not noticed it earlier in the day. The calendar bore the name of a coal company printed in large lettering and beneath this the name of a flirtatious young woman dressed in red. The calendar had evidently been added to the room as a decoration. No one had bothered to remove the November sheet from the pad.

Swiftly Norma crossed the room and tore off the ante-dated leaf. Yesterday had been the second of December. She counted down four weeks. That brought her to the 30th. Four weeks—but it might be five! Painstakingly Norma drew a circle about the numeral 30. It occurred to her for the first time that Mark would be away on Christmas.

For a long time she sat and stared at the calendar. Then she arose, drew a large cross over the date that had just ended. There would be 27 more crosses to draw before she could hope to see Mark again. Twenty-seven more crosses!

From childhood and Sunday school Norma remembered a hymn about crosses. No, she told herself vehemently, it was not sacrilegious to think of such things! Every day away from Mark, every 24 hours represented by a cross upon her calendar, was a literal cross to be borne on her shoulders.

Oh, what good could telling herself to be brave do? What good could anything do?

Norma was 20 years old. She was very much in love, desperately unhappy and lonesome. So, as might have been expected of any young girl in a similar situation, she cried herself to sleep.

Morning when it came was gray and dreary. A unless December day threatening snow which did not fall. Norma did not go out for breakfast. She dallied through the routine of dressing, made her bed and rearranged a bureau drawer.

At 9:45 she was summoned to the telephone. Chris' voice at the other end of the wire said brightly, "Everything's arranged. You're to come down as soon as you can and Dorothy'll take you to Mr. Stuart's office. How soon can you make it?"

"Half an hour, I guess. I'll start right away."

"Step on it! The job's as good as yours now!"

Chris was a dear. For her sake Norma tried to seem more enthusiastic than she felt riding downtown on the street car, later meeting the unknown Dorothy and being led by her to the unknown Frederick Stuart's office.

Half-way down the corridor Dorothy stopped. "Wait a minute!" she said abruptly. "You're not feeling so high this morning, are you? Need a little rouge. Here—let's see what we can do—"

They went into the wash room. From her own vanity case Dorothy produced rouge and a pinkish pad with which to apply it. Five minutes of artful ministrations and Norma emerged, the color in her cheeks notably brightening her appearance.

"It isn't too much," the other girl assured her. "The whole building has artificial light today."

The lettering on the frosted glass before them read, "Frederick J. Stuart, Author's Representative." Dorothy opened the door and they entered.

A slim girl, taller than Norma, with ash blond hair, arose to meet them. "Hello," she smiled at Dorothy. "Is this Miss Travers?"

"Yes. And this is Miss Fenway, Miss Travers. She's come to see about the job."

"Of course, Mr. Stuart's in now. Shall I ask him if he can see you? I know it will be all right."

Norma said she would like the interview at once. The slim girl disappeared. She returned and with a nod invited Norma to enter her employer's office.

Norma passed through the door marked "private." The man at the desk looked up. "Miss Travers?" he asked.

"Yes, sir. I understand you need a secretary and I've come to apply for the position."

5000 Storm Jail in Effort to Lynch "Bluebeard"

A portion of the crowd that gathered outside the Clarksburg, W. Va., jail when 5000 men stormed it in an unsuccessful effort to lynch Harry P. Powers, confessed "Bluebeard slayer" of five, is shown above. At the right, Chief Deputy Sheriff Simeon Bond stands on guard at the jail entrance with sub-machine gun and Deputy Sheriff Clate Bond at his side. This entrance was the deadline as the mob charged and officers were prepared to fire if tear gas bombs failed to check the onrush. Covering and whipping.

said, "Miss Fenway tells me you've had considerable experience. Take dictation, I suppose?"

"Yes, sir. Most of my experience has been in a law office. I've had practice taking letters in shorthand and also on the dictaphone."

"I see. Well, let's have a try at it. Ask Miss Fenway for a notebook."

Norma went for the notebook. For half an hour she took dictation at high speed and afterward transcribed the notes. Her fingers seemed clumsy as she hit the typewriter keys but her shorthand was accurate. It took longer to write the letters than it should have but when finished they were perfect.

Stuart studied the letters carefully. He chewed the end of a cigar that was not lighted. Presently he broke the silence.

"Report for work Monday morning, please, Miss Travers. Nine o'clock."

Norma hesitated. "About the salary—" she began.

"Yes, yes. Of course. Twenty—I was earning $30 on my last job."

"Well, we'll make it $27.50. Raise you after the first of the year if your work's satisfactory. Right?"

The girl nodded. "It's all right."

She left Frederick J. Stuart's office.

In a building six blocks away F. M. Travers shifted to a more comfortable position in his comfortable desk chair. He was holding the French telephone to his ear.

"What's that?" Travers exclaimed. "You've found the girl? Yes, of course I want to go through with it. Take a cab and come over here right away!"

Alien Report Shows Exodus

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—With 40 percent more aliens leaving San Francisco than arriving, figures at Angel Island immigration headquarters up to September 1, whereas entries numbered only 4,732 according to J. R. Schaduel, Angel Island statistician.

Normally, incoming aliens exceed those leaving the country through this port by 100 to 300, Schaduel said. Now each month shows just the opposite balance.

San Francisco, however, showed not quite so heavy an exodus as for the United States as a whole. In July seven aliens left the United States for every three entering. Washington figures disclosed, but in San Francisco the ratio was six to four.

Although deportation is the highest in the nation's history, departures from here were mostly voluntary.

Oriental make up a majority of the aliens checked in and out by the local office of the immigration service.
