AUSTIN, March 30. — A bill calling an election next November 7 to determine Texas' action on repeal of the 18th amendment today carried the approval of the senate state affairs committee. Under the proposal delegates to repeal convention would be elected at large, but rival tickets of the wets and drays would consist of a member from each of the state's 31 senatorial districts.

Delegates on the winning ticket would meet in Austin 45 days after the election to formally cast the state's vote for or against ratification of repeal.

An income tax bill by Rep. Sarah Hughes, of Dallas, today had the approval of the house committee on revenue and taxation. The committee has discarded the sales tax bill advocated by Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson and her husband.

C. OF C. NEEDED FOR BIG TASK SAY CITIZENS

"It would be a calamity if Cisco should do away with the chamber of commerce," said Mrs. J. J. Butts, of Cisco, who said she should close the door on opportunities that will in the future arise to help Cisco and make our city a better place to live.

"During the past few years the value of the chamber of commerce has been conclusively demonstrated. In the future as the times begin to improve it will be increasingly necessary that we have a live, energetic organization through which we can all cooperate in the common benefit."

"Both the band and the zoo are adjuncts of our city that have distinguished it in the past and which we should by all means maintain just as long as we are able to do so. We have come through the worst part of the depression with these splendid institutions intact. Now, just when the opportunity to use them to greater advantage is presenting itself I fail to see the consistency of destroying them. That would be like throwing away the fish after we had caught them."

"Nobody denies the educational value of the band and the zoo, the advertising they give our city and the pleasure they add to our lives. Even if we do not owe such institutions to ourselves we certainly owe them to the hundreds of boys and girls who are growing up here, the most of whom would be without cultural advantages if it were not for those which the city provides."

"When these things cost us so little and when destroying them will not relieve us of a penny of the taxes we pay wouldn't it be poor economy to remove them? Even if we had to pay extra money out of our pockets to maintain them they would be worth many times their cost."

"Let's not measure ourselves by other towns. Let us set a standard for ourselves that is based upon our own ability to do and keep these three fine institutions intact and creditable assets of our little city."

"THERE'S WORK TO BE DONE," SAYS C. P. COLE.
"I regard the activities of a chamber of commerce as very essential to

Caretaker Is Held In Wife's Murder

CORPUS CHRISTI, March 30. — A cemetery caretaker was held for investigation today after his wife, Mrs. A. E. Clark was found in bed with ax wounds which caused her death in a hospital. Clark told officers that just before he entered his house at midnight a Negro brushed past him.

There were three wounds in the woman's head and physicians declared the ax had penetrated her brain in as many places. A blood-stained ax was found in the house.

ALL WOMEN ARE INVITED TO ATTEND FREE COOKING SCHOOL

Every woman in Cisco is invited to attend the four-day free cooking school which the Cisco Daily News will present at the Ideal theater building beginning next Tuesday afternoon at 2:30.

The school will be conducted by Mrs. Martha McDonald, noted home economics expert who will give four lectures bristling with interest for every housewife and every woman concerned with the best preparation of meals and menus.

The site chosen for the school is ideally located. It was secured through the courtesy of K. N. Greer, manager of the Cisco theaters. With an ample stage, and equipment with comfortable seats, the building insures the best opportunity to gain the most from the lectures to be presented. Norvell and Miller will furnish the groceries to be used by Mrs. McDonald in her first lecture Tuesday afternoon. For the lecture the following Wednesday afternoon Gabbart and Scarborough will provide the groceries. Other participants will be announced from time to time.

The Community Natural Gas company is cooperating with the installation of a Roper range and an Automatic hot water heater.

The West Texas Utilities company will install a Frigidaire and other electrical appliances.

The Cisco Dairy association will provide cream and other dairy products to be used in the lectures.

Cisco Attorney Tells How He Will Vote On Proposed Amendments to City Charter

Placing himself on record with respect to his stand on each of the six proposed amendments to the charter of the city of Cisco to be voted on April 4 in the general municipal election, Judge J. D. Barker, Cisco attorney, today gave the Cisco Daily News the following interview:

Several people who are interested in our city have asked me to print my opinion on all the proposed amendments to our city charter to be voted on April 4th.

I have consented to do so, though I know, of course, that I shall encounter some stiff opposition.

Each of the proposed amendments should have careful and separate consideration by the voter.

First Amendment. This pertains to the chamber of commerce. It is well known that in the past years the chamber of commerce has been the little "Tammany Hall" of Cisco—a dandy political machine. I could not endure it then, and if it had not changed its business from politics to helpfulness for all, I would vote against this first amendment. Now I would consider myself exceedingly blind if I did not see and credit it with the good work and service for all during the past few years.

I favor the first amendment.

Second Amendment. The fourth proposed amendment is intended to stop the city commission from employing each other for city jobs. I doubt if the evil effects of the present system are as bad as it has been made to appear. However, in my opinion it is a bad policy and is inimical to good government to allow it to be done. The commission should be the agents of the city, to hire and fire when the work is not properly done. If this amendment is adopted, it will stop much trading among the commissioners, and do away with the hurtful policy of "I tickle you, you tickle me," or, in other words, "I will favor you and your salary, if you will reciprocate."

Yes, this amendment should be adopted. I shall vote for it.

Fifth Amendment. The fifth amendment to be voted on is known as the "recall" amendment. This means that when the city commission is presented with a petition with twenty per cent of the voters names attached, they will be compelled to order an election to replace themselves.

PRESIDENT IS STUDYING OIL RELIEF PLAN

WASHINGTON, March 30.—President Roosevelt today considered recommendations for federal cooperation to put the oil industry on a paying basis.

Texas and California independent producers opposed to federal control organized an "Independent Petroleum Association Opposed to Monopoly."

The majority plan as approved by an oil committee of 15 urged the president to call upon the governors of California, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, and New Mexico to shut down all flush pools from April 1 to the 15th.

The plan also provided by legislation by congress to authorize the president to appoint a personal representative who would cooperate with producing states to adjust production to market demand.

INUNCTION BLOCKS SHUTDOWN PLAN

SHERMAN, March 30.—Plans of the Texas Railroad commission for making a two-hour open flow test of east Texas oil wells today were blocked by a federal injunction.

The proposed test cannot now be made until a three-judge federal court hands down a ruling as to whether such an order by the commission would be valid.

Federal Judge Randolph Bryant so ruled here yesterday in granting an application of the Lucey Petroleum company, Dallas, for an injunction.

Man Charged With Theft of Auto

Charges of the theft of a car were lodged against Tom Jones in justice court here today after he was arrested in Austin earlier in the week in the possession of a car belonging to Mrs. Clara Simpson, of Cisco.

Jones was returned to Cisco from Austin last night by Constable Hicks. The car has been restored to its owner.

Jones and two others, arrested by the city and charged with drunkenness, were transferred to the county jail at Eastland today.

3 SUSPECTS IN ASSAULT HELD; ONE IS SLAIN

HOUSTON, March 30.—Manuel Henry, slain negro, was identified positively today by Miss Adele Torian, 24, as one of a pair of negroes who attacked her and killed her escort here Monday. Miss Torian viewed the negro's body a second time today.

CONROE, March 30.—A tense period filled with hints of mob violence ended today with three Negroes suspected of terrorism in jail and the slain body of a fourth Negro lying on the jail lawn.

The three were arrested in various parts of the surrounding oil field by possees seeking a single fugitive.

In Manuel Henry, Negro slain at Wigginsville by Ranger L. A. Eaves officers believed they had one of the pair who killed William W. Porch, Jr., and brutally assaulted his woman companion at Houston early Monday.

They clung to this belief despite the fact that Miss Adele Torian, 24, the assault victim, came here last night, viewed Henry and said "That looks exactly like him, but I'm not sure."

Throughout the night Henry's body lay uncovered on an iron cot in the jail yard to be viewed by curious throngs.

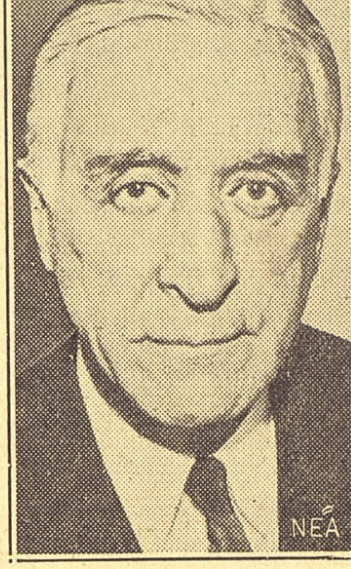

Several hours after the slaying deputies returned to the oil field shack where Henry had been staying and found a flashlight stuffed in the mattress of his bed. One of the attackers had used a flashlight.

Lady Lions Boost "Prosperity Party"

The committees of the Lady Lions "Prosperity Party" at the Laguna roof garden tomorrow night, have everything well in hand, Lady Lion President Mrs. Chas. Jones, has announced.

The party will be brimful of fun and entertainment from start to finish the women say and the small admission fee of 15 cents should fill the hall to overflowing, they think. Several hundred are expected to attend and they may secure tickets at the door, the committees announce.

The entire proceeds will go to pay for community projects, such as providing the band stand and playground equipment for the community park, and other activities undertaken by the Lions club and their assistants, the Lady Lions.

WATCHMAN IS DISARMED AND HELD CAPTIVE

KNOX CITY, Texas, March 30.—A gang of robbers who overpowered Nighthawkman J. H. Finley and held him prisoner while they robbed the Citizens State bank here, escaped before dawn today with $15,000 in cash and currency.

The men disarmed Finley as he left a garage. They took him to the bank building and while one man stood guard, others in the gang broke into the building.

The vault door was opened by burning an arm hole through its steel plates with an acetylene torch. The safe was rolled or pitched to the middle of the vault and a hole large enough for a man's arm was burned in it.

After the money had been removed from the safe the robbers called for the guard to bring Finley into the vault. He was shoved inside and warned not to make an outcry for 15 or 20 minutes.

Finley tore off his blindfold as soon as he heard an automobile motor start. He found telephone lines from the bank building had been cut and went to the home of a deputy sheriff to spread the alarm.

E. O. Jamison, president of the bank, said Finley was unable to estimate the number of men participating in the robbery. He believed the gang numbered three or more men.

20 MILLION IN STATE RELIEF BONDS TALKED

AUSTIN, March 30. — The Texas senate today passed a resolution to send Sen. Walter Woodul, of Houston, to Washington to confer with Reconstruction Finance corporation agents regarding relief funds for Texas. The vote was 19 to 5.

Mention of a $20,000,000 state bond issue for unemployment relief was brought out in debate on the resolution. Woodul and other members of a legislative committee appointed to study means of cooperating with the R. F. C. sent R. F. C. authorities a message favoring such a bond issue. It was brought out, Sen. W. K. Hopkins, Gonzales, defended the committee message, saying that on the strength of it, the R. F. C. had released $1,400,000 for April relief work in this state.

WILL PROSECUTE NEGLIGENT BANKERS.

Atty.-Gen. Homer Cummings has pledged prompt and vigorous prosecution of all cases involving violation of the national banking laws. Work will be undertaken by the department of justice. Department of Justice officials are now going over considerable data furnished by the treasury to determine where violations have taken place. Sec'y. William H. Woodin of the treasury department has let it be known that he will go the limit in cooperation with the department of justice.

Arthur Mullen of Nebraska will not be the successor of Cummings. He was tendered a federal judgeship by the president and declined the job with thanks. Arthur Mullen was the western campaign manager for the Roosevelt forces last year. He was ambitious to be attorney general of the United States. He was not named. A federal judgeship prize did not tempt him. He refused to take the bait at the same time pledging loyal support to the administration as a citizen of the rank and file.

TEXAS FARMERS AND THEIR LOANS.

Texas farmers are facing the future with all the pluck of the pioneer in days of old. Nearly a million dollars in checks to Southwestern farmers were sent out last week by the Dallas regional office of the crop production loan division of the department of agriculture. Loans so far were averaging about $70 each. More than 18,000 checks were mailed to county clerks in Arizona, New Mexico, and Texas for distribution to farmers. Applications received at the Dallas regional office totaled 26,618 as compared with less than 9000 at the corresponding time of the loan season last year.

According to the census of 1930, 67 per cent of the tillers of the soil in Texas were tenants. There are statisticians of the Texas brand who insist that 70 per cent would come nearer to telling the story. Now how will the leasing of marginal lands assist out of the ditch this vast army of tenants—white and Mexican and blacks?

S. M. U. TEACHERS "CUT TO THE BONE."

There is salary slashing all along the line in the educational world. Southern Methodist university faculty members were informed by Pres. C. C. Sealeman that a reduction of 50 per cent would be made in their salary checks for the last three months of this academic year. Their slash approximates 15 per cent of the yearly salary. Moreover, the cut was the first since last year when a general 20 per cent reduction was made in line with an attempt to balance the budget of the university and to live within its income.

AN APPEAL FOR "FORGOTTEN CONVICTS."

Sen. Albert Stone of the Brenham district made the rounds of the prisons and prison farms of Texas. On his return to the capital he declared: "It is easy for a man of means and friends to get out of prison, but for the poor, forgotten man, who has no friends and whose term extends over a period of years, the future is hopeless." Speaking of his research work the senator from a neighboring district said: "I found three men in the prison system who did not even know a person outside the prison walls. Prison officials told me those men were trustworthy and their work good. They have, apparently, been rehabilitated but their sentences are for life or a long period of years and now, after 16 years or more, they are still no nearer freedom than when they came in. I think the law should recognize meritorious work and give the men some kind of an opportunity to gain freedom from their records. Present statutes are insufficient and should be revised."

Do not overlook this paragraph: "It is easy for a man of means and friends to get out of prison but for the poor, forgotten man, who has no friends, and whose term extends over a period of years, the future is hopeless."

All of which is a reminder to the young men of today that the road called Straight never leads to the door of a

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

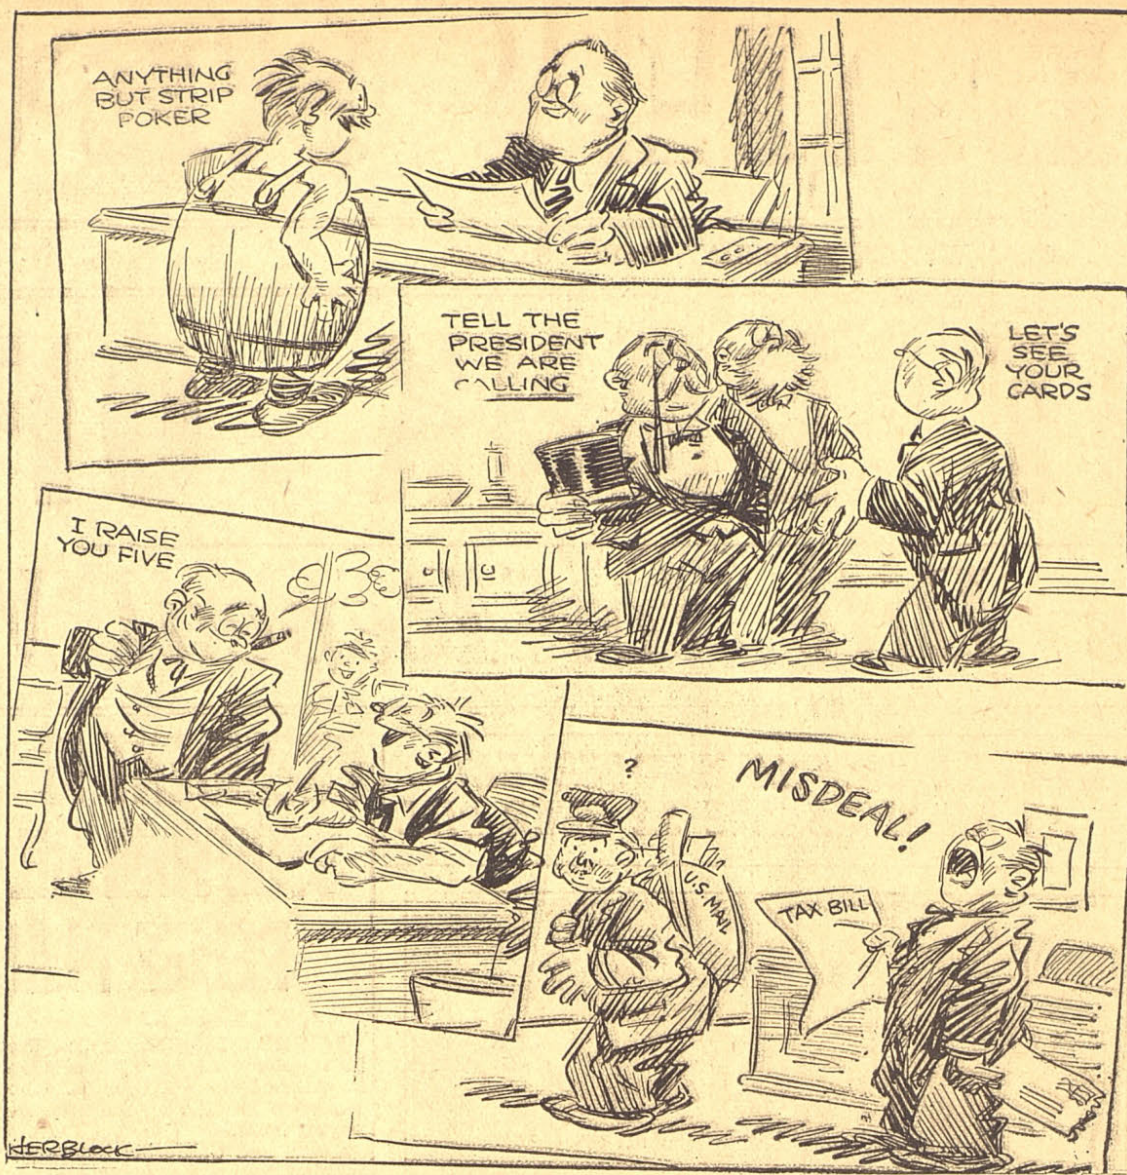

WASHINGTON.—The field of America's foreign relations, as President Roosevelt marches into it, is characterized far more by its complexities and uncertainties than by any optimism among those who have been trying to handle them. Secretary of State Cordell Hull finds himself more than occupied with two major issues: the Japanese invasion of China, with its menace to peace, and the war debt issue with its interrelated world economic conference, which holds some possibilities making for general economic recovery.

Interest has shifted sharply from the war front around Jehol to Europe. Why did Great Britain, suddenly and alone, declare an arms embargo against Japan and China? MANY diplomats here are convinced that Britain, although not caring to defend Japan openly and subscribing to the league's action, has at least served notice that she will not attempt to hinder the Japanese. China, not Japan, needs arms and munitions. Japan has splendid arms factories and has stocked herself with munitions and raw materials. That's why it seems as if England had desired to forestall any coercive measure by the league. Any time the league lays any sort of a sanction against Japan the burden obviously falls on England and the United States. Great Britain seems to want to stand as a neutral. Such change as she has made in her position lately is perhaps traceable to anti-Japanese demands from Australia and New Zealand. Our Far Eastern policy, originally based on acquisition of the Philippines, has lately been marked by Secretary of State Stimson's fervor for the upholding of treaties. Hull, although perhaps likely to be more conciliatory, holds similar views. But the real dominating factor in the policy has been everybody's desire to keep out of war and every move has been carefully weighed against that possibility.

This country wouldn't take any strong action without full British co-operation. The league doubtless will discuss arms and financial embargoes, with small possibility of results. There is almost no support for an embargo in this country, England or France. The war debt situation has become obscured. Roosevelt has made it clear that we would have to get something in exchange for revision of European debts. We might get a Caribbean possession or two from Britain or perhaps a vague promise of currency stabilization.

prison. At times it may be a very rocky or thorny road but those who walk it are never numbered among the forgotten on prison farms or within the walls of the penitentiary.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

"What's the matter with business?" is a question that has been asked so generally and so often that it has become a sort of slogan of the depression. The Wichita, Kansas chamber of commerce, taking heed to this question set out to discover the correct answer in an interesting experiment which is described in an editorial by Chester H. McCall in the February issue of the magazine "Credit and Financial Management."

A copy of the editorial fell into the hands of Carl Lowery, Cisco druggist, who was so enthused with it that he went to the trouble of making typewritten copies of it. The article is so convincing and so searching in its indictment of a "state of mind" contributing to the so-called stagnation of business that I am going to devote this afternoon's column to a reproduction of it.

Here it is: "The trouble is neither lack of currency nor lack of credit but rather the failure to put to effective use this available money and credit. Currency contributes to business progress to the extent that it changes hands and is turned over in profitable business transactions. The one serious question before us, 'What will start the ball rolling?'"

"On a recent trip through Kansas and Oklahoma I learned of an interesting experiment conducted by the Wichita, Kansas Chamber of Commerce. Ten men were given ten dollars each, with the following instructions: 'Go to some Wichita store and make a trifling purchase of fifty cents or less. If the clerk offers to sell you anything else, buy it regardless of what it is and continue to buy whatever is suggested until your ten dollars is gone.' At the end of the day the ten men brought back $94.60 out of the $100 with which they started. Ten Wichita clerks with a golden opportunity to sell one hundred dollars worth of goods, managed to get an average of fifty-four cents apiece. The idea that 'business is rotten and people won't buy' had been drummed into them with such emphasis that they didn't even bother to make a suggestion to the man buying a handkerchief that he might need a new necktie, a new shirt or a new pair of socks.

"This experiment impressed me so much that I decided to try the same thing in New York. I took ten dollars and went to three department stores, two drug stores, one cigar store and one haberdashery. I made eight purchases and had five dollars and seventy cents left out of my ten dollars. Only one drug store clerk suggested another purchase to me and I bought a tube of shaving cream in addition to the razor blades I requested. I observed the clerks carefully. Only one said 'Thank You,' and only two of them could exert enough energy to smile. In one department store I had to wait seventeen minutes to make a thirty-cent purchase.

"Employers and their chief executives are even more to blame for this deplorable condition that employs. Multiply these two incidents two or three million times a week and you have some conception of why the ball doesn't start rolling. It explains why a high percentage of $5,602,000,000 in available currency is idle and useless.

"Suppose, for example, that the timid Wichita clerks had used a little common-sense salesmanship, found in some simple, common-sense expedient such as good consistent servicable salesmanship undaunted by persistent dribble and babble. We have too many cold feet and not enough cool heads. Why look far afield for an answer that seems clearly revealed in the hundred dollar experiment in Wichita? "$94.60— isn't that the answer?"

TEXAS TOPICS

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, March 30.—The complaints filed by a zealous constable two years ago against officials of the game department for serving the famous game dinner to legislators, has placed upon the statute books a law repealing the 10-day limit for storage of game after the close of the hunting season.

Sen. John W. Hornsby offered the bill early this season, and picked it through to final passage. Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson promptly approved it. Now anyone who legally comes into possession of wild game may keep the game as long as he desires after the season.

The house has refused to pass Rep. Lon Alsip's bill to allow the game commission to fix seasons and bag limits to conform to federal regulations.

It should now do something about permitting the thinning out of does in deer country. It is probable the game commission could define zones and make regulations at the time better designed to meet the conditions than the legislature can now, months ahead of the open season; but if control of the hunting seasons and the further confounding of special laws is a prerogative over which the legislature can be jealous, it at least will tackle the problems in the belief it can deal adequately with them.

Rep. Preston L. Anderson was called away to San Antonio by the death of his good friend, Mayor C. M. Chambers. Mr. Anderson was likely to be a candidate for the vacant office as chief executive of one of Texas' major cities.

Mayor Chambers had appeared but a few days ago before a legislative committee in support of the modified sales tax bill bearing his name.

By coincidence there is a "Johnson of Anderson," and an "Anderson of Johnson" in the Texas house. This is confusing in the form of address used in the house. Thus, "the gentleman from Anderson" is Mr. Johnson, and "the gentleman from Johnson" is Mr. Anderson.

Mr. Anderson of Johnson is one of the co-authors of the bill proposing to create a system of junior colleges, and to limit the University of Texas to junior, senior and graduate work.

Newspaper advertising increases business because it tells the public what you have to sell and shows the advantages of having your goods or service.

The man who lives for himself alone and has no consideration for his neighbors doesn't live. He is just fooling himself. He merely exists.

Fujiyama, the eighth wonder of the world

In every corner of the world, both here and overseas, wherever you find joy in life, 'tis always "Luckies Please"

First in character—first in mildness ...first in smoking pleasure

Among smart, cosmopolitan folk, you'll hear of Luckies in many languages—but the meaning is always the same—"Luckies Please!"...For people the world over want a cigarette with Character...and Mildness. Lucky Strike's rich, delightful Character comes from that mellow, balanced blend of fine tobaccos. And—these splendid tobaccos are truly mild! Because every fragrant shred is "Toasted". For these two reasons—Character and Mildness—"Luckies Please!"

because "It's toasted"

February Good Cotton Mill Month

AUSTIN, March 30.—February was a good month for Texas cotton mills, according to reports to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research from 21 mills in the state. Although production and shipments were characterized by declines not so great as normally occur from January to February, and although the totals in each case were higher than in February a year ago, the outstanding feature of the report was the increase in unfilled orders. For four consecutive months, now, unfilled orders at Texas mills have been going up.

A total of 3,990 bales of cotton was used during February as compared with 4,170 bales during February a year ago. The decline from January to February amounted to only 4.3 per cent, whereas the average decline between these two months during the years 1927 and 1932 was 5.6 per cent. Output, at 4,153,000 yards, was practically equal to that for January, although usually there is a decline of 4.3 per cent in production in February; and sales declined only 2.7 per cent from 3,977,000 yards in January to 3,869,000 yards in February, when the average decline in previous years has been 8.5 per cent.

Unfilled orders at the close of February totaled 7,049,000 yards, an increase of 3.9 per cent over the 6,786,000 yards on unfilled orders at the close of January; last year at the close of February, the Texas mills had forward bookings totaling 4,162,000 yards.

"I got up early to put six gallons of whiskey mash on the gasoline stove," the farmer murmured. "I had just started it cooking when something exploded. I just had time to grab Donald (a 2-year-old son) when the whole house was in flames. The others died without awakening from their sleep."

"We had to make whiskey to keep from starving." Those who perished in their sleep were Mr. and Mrs. Nick Smith, Mrs. Roy Smith, wife of the injured man; her three-year-old daughter and a Mrs. Stinemar, daughter of the Smiths.

VOTE SOUGHT ON BEER BILL NEXT MONDAY

AUSTIN, March 30.—A vote on Texas' 3.2 per cent beer bill in the house of representatives will be sought next Monday.

The bills were favorably reported by the house committee on state affairs Monday night after a public hearing marked by criticism of President Roosevelt by Atticus Webb, Dallas, leader of the Texas Anti-Saloon league.

Webb had criticized the constitutionality of congress declaring 3.2 per cent beer non-intoxicating. He was asked what he thought about Roosevelt's signing the beer measure.

"I don't think he knew what it was all about," said Webb. The Anti-Saloon leader was booted when he said "I think the man who voted for repeal because he expects to save taxes is on the same plane with the officer who puts his hand behind his back to get money the bootlegger puts into it."

LEERAY ROAD IS NOW READY TO BE PAVED

All deeds to additional right-of-way for widening the Leeray cut-off road north out of Cisco were turned over to the state highway department Saturday, signaling completion of all conditions incident to the state's designation of the road as a state highway, it was announced. The instruments were taken to Brownwood and handed to Division Highway Engineer P. O. Ellinger by County Comm'r Arch Bint, County Highway Engineer A. F. Taylor and J. E. Spencer, Cisco chamber of commerce secretary.

Mr. Ellinger expressed himself as well pleased with the manner in which the conditions have been carried out and indicated he would ask for the appropriations necessary to construct roadbed and drainage structures at the April meeting of the state highway commission. If this appropriation is set aside work will probably begin by May 1, Mr. Spencer said.

The highway, a nine-mile strip, connects Cisco directly with highway 67 north to Breckenridge, Graham and Wichita Falls. Built as a county road, the highway is in poor condition with a very narrow right-of-way. The state's principal requirement was that this right-of-way be widened to 100 feet.

All Land Secured. Through the efforts of Mr. Bint, Mr. Taylor and the Cisco chamber of commerce all of the additional land necessary to provide this width has been obtained. In addition the 100 foot strip is carried five blocks within the city limits, or within two blocks of the end of brick paving on Sixth street. The state will pave to join with this brick surfacing. Labor for setting back the fences along the route was provided by the local R. F. C. relief organization. This work has been completed. The county took care of the other expenses incident to the purchase of new posts and additional wire while Mr. Bint supervised the work. Mr. Taylor did the necessary engineering. Reconstruction of the road will be done by the maintenance department of the highway commission. A foreman from the Brownwood division office will supervise the work and local labor will be used, Mr. Taylor told the Daily News.

FARM BOARD IS ABOLISHED BY ROOSEVELT

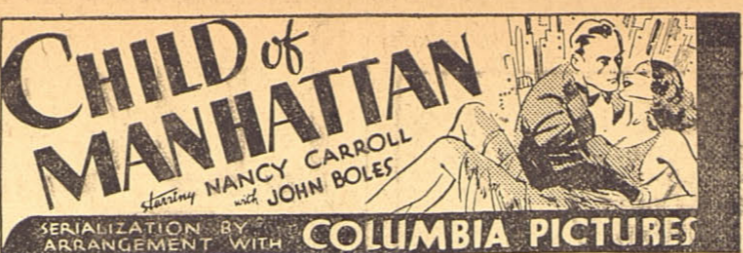

WASHINGTON, March 30.—President Roosevelt Monday issued an executive order which, in effect abolishes the federal farm board and sets up in its place a farm credit administration in which will be centered all of the government's agricultural credit agencies.

Immediate saving of two million dollars and establishment of a "sound and permanent system of cooperative agricultural credit" are contemplated in the order. It was Mr. Roosevelt's first move under the economy act which he signed March 20 after its swift passage through congress.

The order abolishes sections of the federal farm board with regard to further stabilization operations. The president's sweeping reorganization of government credit units will go into effect within 61 days unless congress blocks it within that period.

Cotton Men Demand Tariff Reduction. GALVESTON, March 30.—Telegrams condemning the present American tariff as injurious to the farmer and the country as a whole were sent to Texas congressional representatives last week by members of the Texas Cotton association, holding its annual convention here. Immediate reduction of the tariff was demanded in the message.

MEASLES NORMALIZE BABE. FORT WORTH, March 30.—Physicians now believe that Evelyn Bernice Williams, a two and one-half pound incubator baby, born last June, is a normal girl at last. She now weighs 13 pounds and has the measles.

When little old New York was young, the elder Vanderkill purchased farm land on Manhattan Island without any idea that it would one day bring his family a greater fortune than as though it had been a mine rich in gold ore. But civilization must advance, and New York swallowed up the whole of the island, reached across the river like an octopus, and swallowed the Bronx, Queens, and Brooklyn, not to mention Staten Island, which New Yorkers find hard to associate with the city, whose life is found along Broadway. Broadway around Times Square is comparatively a new development for it was not more than a score and a half of years ago when the White Way was down on Fourteenth Street and in the heart of the Vanderkill farm.

The original Vanderkill had long since gone to rest, and his son had followed him, as had his grand and great grandsons. All that remained of the family were Sophie, a spinster, her nephew Paul, and his daughter. Paul managed the estates, which was a job in itself, but which Paul often neglected to go exploring, or on a protracted vacation, leaving the business of the Vanderkill estates in the hands of the competent and spinsterlike Eggleston, who reminded one of the late Calvin Coolidge both by acts and looks.

The Vanderkill offices were the very finest of the old school type. On one wall were maps of properties, with portions tinted red to show the extent of the holdings. Blue and white thumb tacks revealed vacancies and occupancies. The other walls were decorated with rare old prints of New York in its youth. Miss Sophie, filled with Puritanical indignation, entered the office. "Has my nephew been in today?" she inquired, looking at Eggleston straight in the eye. "No, Miss Sophie."

"Hum! The estate could go to rack and ruin for all Paul cares." Then she became frigid in her indignation. "I suppose I shall have to take this up with you then." "Take what up, Miss Sophie?" "The driving of a poster." "On my way down to Hearns's, Mr. Eggleston, my carriage was detained for about two minutes on Sixth Avenue—Sixth Avenue and Twenty-ninth street."

"I'm awfully sorry, Miss Sophie, but you know what traffic is like today. It don't really see what I can do about it." "While my carriage was detained I looked around and then I saw it. It rights the wrong on it." "What has lights twinkling on it?" Eggleston asked innocently, unable to understand what the spinster was driving at. "The dance hall! It has red and green lights twinkling on it, and pictures of unclothed females plastered all over the front of it. It displayed the torn poster which she had ordered her coachman to rip down. "Now I want you to tell me what is that dance hall on the estate or isn't it?" "Well, you see, Miss Sophie—" "Don't try to put me off."

"It's a dance hall—it's a ballroom." "How do you know it's a ballroom?" "It says so—in lights." Sophie tapped on the poster with emphasis. "Nude women do not display themselves in ballrooms." Eggleston tried painfully to laugh it off. "There aren't any nude women in that dance hall, Miss Sophie."

"In that what?" The spinster was triumphant. "In that ballroom." "Dance hall! Mr. Eggleston, I tell you I won't have it! And if Paul were here I'm sure he would agree with me." The door opened, and Paul, unseen by his aunt, entered. He was lean, bronzed, and in his late thirties. At the sight of Miss Sophie, he attempted to back out, but the expression on Eggleston's face, who had seen him, caused the woman to turn.

"Paul!" she exclaimed. The man turned as though seeing her for the first time. "Why, Aunt Sophie! What brings you back from Newport on a day like this?" "Belinda." Eggleston picked up some papers and left the room. "Belinda? Your Pekinese?" "Yes, I like you." (TO BE CONTINUED)

"Paul!" Sophie was indignant. "Have you no sense of decency?" "Paul!" Sophie exclaimed in surprise. "Eighteen thousand a year," Eggleston replied. "Oh!" Sophie exclaimed in surprise. Vanderkill grimly enjoyed her discomfiture. "Go ahead, Stephen."

"I wouldn't be quite so hasty," Sophie interrupted. "I only want to make sure that the establishment is respectable and steady dance hall, you go over and inspect the place?" "I'll go tonight. What's the place called, Eggleston?" "Was you at a wedding or something?" Madeleine inquired. "When?" Paul asked. "Tonight. The soup and fish—"

"Oh, no—no—no," he interrupted, somewhat embarrassed. "You ain't a waiter, are you?" He smiled. "No, I—I never quite reached that eminence." "You what?" "I—I—I didn't succeed in becoming a waiter."

Madeleine was comforting. "Oh—well, I always say: Be satisfied with what you've got." What's your line?" "I beg your pardon?" "Your line! What do you do for a living?" He looked at her intently for an instant, and then slowly replied, "To tell the truth, right now—nothing."

She was wide-eyed with sympathy. "Out of a job? That's tough! My brother's kid off too." The waiter came up for an order. "Nothing at all, Charlie—we've changed our minds. We're dancing." She rose swiftly and turned to Paul as the waiter left. "You mustn't throw away your money when you're not working. Come on—it costs ten cents a dance here just like you was dancing, besides what you drink. It's just a racket anyway. Tell you what—we'll go back to the reception room. Like we was meetin' all over again, see? We can sit there a long time, and it won't cost you nothing." She beamed happily at this solution. Vanderkill stared, touched by her generosity.

"You'd really do that?" "Sure. I like you." (TO BE CONTINUED)

FEDERAL "BLUE SKY" LAW ON STOCKS SOUGHT

WASHINGTON, March 30.—President Roosevelt placed before congress Wednesday a program for the control of new issues of stocks and bonds as a safeguard for the investing public.

In a special message the president recommended federal supervision of interstate traffic in securities. "In spite of the many state statutes the public in the past has sustained severe losses through practices neither ethical nor honest on the part of many persons and corporations selling securities," he declared. The president said that the present program is "but one step in our broad purpose of protecting investors and depositors."

"What we seek," he said in his 300 word message, "is a return to a clearer understanding of the ancient truth that those who manage banks, corporations and other agencies handling or using other people's money are trustees acting for others."

It was the seventh message Mr. Roosevelt has sent to the special session of congress since it convened three weeks ago. Already three major pieces of legislation have been enacted into law—the emergency banking act, the economy act, and Volstead act modification. "I am relieved and unemployment bills are pending in congress with prospects of early enactment."

COTTON CO-OP HEAD SUPPORTS FARM MEASURE

WASHINGTON, March 30.—The American Cotton Cooperative association has thrown its support behind the administration farm bill and urged the senate to empower President Roosevelt "to give American agriculture a new deal." U. Benton Blalock, president of the association, testified before the senate agriculture committee that the farmer needs "a general agriculture bill flexible enough to handle all basic commodities."

"We have a president in the white house elected under a promise to give American agriculture a new deal," he said. "Give him the machinery as carried in this bill and we believe the president will carry out his promise." Blalock's testimony was the first break in a long chain of opposition testimony before the committee.

WAGNER BILL GIVEN FAVORABLE REPORT. WASHINGTON, March 30.—The senate Tuesday began a major offensive against unemployment. The banking and currency committee voted to report favorably the Wagner $500,000,000 unemployment relief bill with a restriction that not more than 15 per cent of the new funds may be allocated to any one state.

Senate leaders were confident of passing this week that bill and also the administration's measure creating jobs for 250,000 men. The last measure, in its present form, leaves to President Roosevelt to power to fix the wage at which volunteers in the reforestation army will work. Sen. Black, Dem., of Alabama said he would press for action this week also on another relief bill, his five-day, 30-hour week measure.

Beer Bill Author Smiles Delight

One hundred per cent happy over 3.2 per cent beer, Congressman Thomas H. Cullen of New York, author of the beer bill, flashes a delighted smile into the camera as congratulations pour in upon him from all parts of the country.

A lot of people talk as though the present depression is a storm of perpetual darkness and not a passing storm. Of course, no one can say that the days of sunshine are really near, but there are many signs that we have passed the worst and that brighter days will come.

A common fault on the part of many motorists is to make a turn without signaling, or to signal after the car has turned off its course. It is advisable that a driver should look in the rear view mirror in addition to signaling. It will often prevent an accident.

WORLD COTTON DEVELOPMENTS CONSTRUCTIVE

AUSTIN, March 30. — "Recent world cotton developments have been fundamentally constructive," Dr. A. B. Cox, director of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research, said in his monthly cotton analysis. "Mid-season stocks of all cotton including unpicked portions of crops on January 31 was 27,996,000 bales of 478 pounds, according to Cassin of the New York Cotton Exchange. This total compared with 28,783,000 bales on January 31, 1932, and a previous five-year average of 24,300,000 bales. Consumption for the first six months of this cotton year, August 1 to January 31, totaling 12, 035,000 bales, was the highest in three years for the same period. It is highly significant that annual consumption is at a higher rate than production, and that the world carryover on August 1 bids fair to be reduced between a million and a million and a half bales. There is every indication that world cotton acreage will be increased this year but not enough to make a great difference in the crop.

"Spinnings margins tended to decline during February, though the average percentage ratio for February was 176, the same as in January. The average price margin declined from 3.97 d (pence) for January to 3.8 d (pence) for February, and during the last week of February the price margin declined to 3.7 d (pence). This narrowing of margins was due mainly to the advance in the price of raw cotton. Yarn prices actually declined slightly.

Supplies Decrease.

"Supplies of cotton in the United States on March 1 were 13,634,000 bales, compared with 14,337,000 bales last year, a decrease of 703,000 bales.

"During the past seven years, total changes in the supply of cotton in the United States on March 1 equaled 16,024,000 bales. Corresponding changes in the index price amounted to 2,701 points, or 15.96 points for each change of 100,000 bales in supply. On the basis of this ratio, the decrease of 703,000 bales in supply should cause an advance of 112 points in the index price. On the other hand, stocks of American cotton in European ports and afloat to Europe March 1 was 452,000 bales more than on this date last year. The net decrease in the effective supply of cotton in the United States and Europe combined is only 251,000 bales. The net change in price, therefore, is 40 points up in the index price from March a year ago.

"The index price last March was 10.3 cents. The Bureau of Labor Statistics index has gone down from 66 last March to 59.8 at the present. The indicated actual New Orleans spot price, based on supply and price index changes is 6 cents. When this is corrected for the increased spinners margin, the indicated price is 7.17 cents. When the price is calculated on the basis of the relationship between percentage changes in supply and price over the past seven years, the indicated price for New Orleans spot cotton is 6.97 cents. The Bureau of Business Research cotton supply-price chart indicates a price of about 6.45 cents."

Tariffs Hit French Champagne Hard

PARIS, March 29. — There is sufficient surplus champagne in France to give every man, woman and child a magnum a day for 21 days. But even to save an industry, 40,000,000 Frenchmen can't afford to go on a three weeks' spree.

Only thirty American throats, long strangers to authentic champagnes, can save the industry from ruin.

Champagne makers, hemmed in by British, German, Belgian, Norwegian, Portuguese and Brazilian tariffs, gloomily announce that their export trade has dropped from 22,000,000 to 4,000,000 bottles annually.

The storage catacombs of the champagne districts are stocked with millions of surplus bottles. In normal times these would long since have been consumed. Luxury tariffs have practically ended the export trade.

determine if the mayor, or any one of the commissioners, shall be turned out of office.

In my opinion this amendment, if adopted, will be a source of much trouble and agitation. Any aggrieved citizen would have the right to circulate his petition, and bearing in mind human nature, he would most likely get the required percentage of the voters, for it is generally thought that the "outs" are the saviors of our country, while the "ins" are the rascals.

I doubt if there is a man in Cisco who could get four-fifths of the votes as a candidate for any office. But, under this amendment the other one-fifth, or twenty per cent, could get up a "recall" petition and force him to undergo the humiliation of another contest. It has been said that one of America's greatest pastimes is its many elections. We have too many as it is.

It is my further opinion that if this amendment is adopted, no man of ability would offer himself as a candidate for any office, for he would not suffer himself to be made a target for the hate and ignorance that so often manifests itself in elections, and to subject himself and family to the possible humiliation and disgrace of being turned out of office because of the whims, hates and political ambitions of some clerk or clan.

I sincerely hope that this fifth proposed amendment will be defeated.

I shall vote against it.

Sixth Amendment.

This sixth amendment is a vicious little devil in "sheep's clothing." It would be less injurious to our city to dissolve the chamber of commerce, run the band-master out of the city, barbecue the inmates of the zoo, and allow the commissioners to fill all the jobs in town, than to adopt this sixth amendment.

Suppose our citizens are so unimpressed with the innate evil hidden here that they adopt it on April 4th? What could happen? Now please follow me closely. On April 4th, we will elect a mayor and two commissioners. If this sixth proposed amendment is adopted, the mayor will not be allowed a vote excepting in case of a tie; but there cannot be a tie, for we have five commissioners. Therefore, the mayor can have no say in anything that may arise. Now what could happen? There are three old commissioners who hold office for another year. These three could organize (I am not asserting that they would) and have full control of the city's affairs, and the two new members and the mayor would have to sit by and watch the performance.

If we make such a situation possible, why have a six member commission? Why not do away with the mayor and two of the commissioners? Under our present charter, the mayor and two commissioners can prevent the other three from usurping authority. The present plan is a safeguard, for no motion can be carried through the commission without as many as four of the six supporting it.

Yes, this proposed amendment is vicious, and would be dangerous. Any man with sense enough to fill the office of mayor certainly should have some say in the government of the city. If all the mayor proposes to do is to preside over the meetings of the commission, he becomes a worthless molly-coddle and not worth his salt—not even $50.00 per month.

I shall vote against this proposed amendment.

CANDIDATE GIVES RECORD IN UTILITIES

Who is W. J. Parsons? I can possibly explain that better by saying that I am the father of Alberta and Irene Parsons, the two Parsons sisters, that played basket ball here a few years back, in both the high school and Randolph college.

I have spent the largest part of my life in the utility line of service, such as light plants, street railways, ice plants, mines, mills, smelters, and power plants, and I have had better than four years experience in Eastland county with the Arab Gasoline corporation and the Oil Gasoline power plant. I do not think that I am out of place in stating that I am as familiar with utilities as the average man is his road home at night. He may go over that road a thousand times, but when he starts home again some night, he may find a stumbling block, where some log has fallen off a wood wagon that was using that same road that day; but he will be familiar enough with that road to find his way around the stumbling block. In this way I know utilities, and I have had the technical education in figures that goes with this, having finished geometry, trigonometry, elementary mechanics and hydro mechanics, and all other figures necessary in finding out the flow of water in pipes, the flow of gas and steam in pipes, and the flow of electrical energy in wires. So if you feel that my heart is with the best interests of Cisco, I earnestly solicit your vote and influence. Don't stand back on my ability, for it will stand up.

My English is poor, and my spelling is worse, but my figures are nearly always right.

Why not a municipal gas supply for Cisco? I have spoken to Mr. Berry and some of the commissioners about it and they say I CAN'T BE DONE. My idea is that the dread of any job is the biggest thing to that job. After a man takes hold of a job and gets it started, the ways to complete that same job will be unfolded to him. "We can't" never did anything; but the man that says "we can" is the man that goes on and gets things done. There are thousands of dollars owing the city in taxes and the people are unable to pay. Some of these people have trucks and would be glad to pay their back taxes by hauling pipe, others could pay in digging ditches, others by laying pipe, and the cost of the pipe will not be much, and if our money plays out when we only have gas hooked up to a couple of hundred homes, stop for a few months, get the revenue from these homes for the few months, then hook up two hundred more homes, and in the course of a couple of years we can have gas all over town at fifty cents per thousand.

Elect me mayor of our town and I will do all in my power to show this light to the commissioners and we will have Cisco gas for Cisco people.

The following letter shows my ability to do what I say I will do, if I can convince the commissioners:

Eastland, Texas March 28, 1933.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Mr. W. J. Parsons has worked for this company for a period of three and one half years on construction work of gasoline plants, gas pumping and water pumping stations.

His work during this period was very satisfactory.

(Signed) F. DWYER
Superintendent
ARAB GASOLINE CORP.

2,477 CARS OF STOCK SHIPPED IN FEBRUARY

AUSTIN, March 30. — Interstate rail shipments of cattle calves, hogs and sheep from Texas totaled 2,477 cars in February compared with 2,290 cars during the corresponding month last year, an increase of 8 per cent, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. Cattle shipments of 1,508 cars were slightly less than the 1,525 cars of February, 1932, and shipments of sheep to out-of-state points, 305 cars, were materially under the 367 cars a year ago. On the other hand shipments of calves for February of the current year, 324 cars, showed a marked increase over the 223 cars during that month last year; and hog shipments of 340 cars were nearly twice as great as the 175 cars a year ago. More than 20 carloads of sheep were shipped to Michigan and 4 cars to Ohio.

For January and February combined interstate rail shipments of all classes of livestock totaled 5,590 cars against 5,081 for the same two months last year a gain of almost 10 per cent. For cattle, the figures were 3,214 cars against 3,376 cars last year; calves 942 and 984; hogs 631 and 343; and sheep 803 and 778.

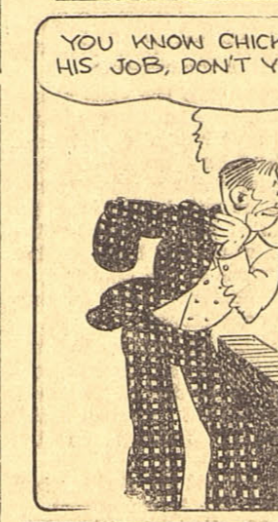

Receipts of livestock from other states totaled 354 cars against 556 cars February, 1932, and consisted mainly of cattle and hogs. The bulk of the cattle came from Oklahoma and New Mexico and of the hogs from Oklahoma, Kansas City, and Omaha.

Not much change occurred in the average price of cattle and hogs from January to February, but the price tendency was slightly upward. The average price of lambs, however, was lower in February than in January which was the inverse of a year ago.

One I Love

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

When JANET HILL learns a ROSE CARLIE has been breaking engagements with her to meet BETTY KENDALL, a society girl, she tells him their marriage is off. Janet is 23, pretty and secretary to the HAMILTONS, advertising manager of Every Home Magazine.

JEFF loves Rolf and cannot forget him. JEFF GRANT, young engineer who lives at the same rooming house as Janet, appears one night just in time to save her from a holdup man. Janet becomes interested in the SILVANI family, almost destitute. JEFF helps provide food and clothing for them and later they find a job for PAT SILVANI, the father.

JEFF and Janet become close friends. He asks her to help him select a gift for a girl and they buy a purse. When Janet sees in newspaper headlines that Rolf has eloped with Betty Kendall she tells Jeff about her broken engagement and says she will never care for anyone else.

JEFF tells Janet he is leaving the magazine. The staff is to be reorganized and he will be in charge. Janet tells her sister, MRS. CURTIS, needs a social secretary and that she has recommended Janet. She goes to see Mrs. Curtis.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXIV

THE maid in the smart gray uniform who opened the door said, "Yes, Mrs. Curtis is expecting you. Won't you come in?"

Janet was ushered into a sunlit living room and then the maid disappeared. It was a large room with green walls hung with a great many pictures. The heavy, wine-colored curtains at the windows dropped to the floor and the sunlight, falling on the carpet, gave it a pattern of light and darkness. There seemed to be a good deal of furniture and yet somehow the room was not crowded. There were bookshelves between the windows and there was a fireplace with a mirror above the mantle. It was a pleasant room. Cheerful. Colorful. Comfortable.

Janet sank into a chair to wait. She had never seen a room like this before. She had never been in such a large, imposing house, either. Janet sat up very straight, feeling a trifle self-conscious.

Then she heard footsteps and a woman with gray hair appeared in the doorway.

"I am Mrs. Curtis," she said. "And you are Miss Hill? How do you do?"

Mrs. Curtis moved forward. She was slightly less than medium height, a stout little woman with the pink and white complexion that often goes with stoutness. She had a round face and a double chin. Impossible to imagine anyone more in contrast to Bruce Hamilton's sparse, rangy figure and yet there was something that was alike about them.

Janet arose. "Yes, I'm Miss Hill," she said. "Mr. Hamilton told me you're looking for a secretary."

The woman motioned Janet back into her chair and sank into one facing it.

"Yes," she said, nodding. "It's my brother's idea. I've never had a secretary but since my daughter was married I've been alone here. Perhaps too much alone! My brother tells me you're very efficient."

Only Mrs. Curtis was little and plump and ineffectual while Bruce Hamilton was big and brusque and dictatorial. Janet found herself quite suddenly agreeing with Hamilton that his sister did need someone to manage her affairs.

She smiled. "I've been at the Every Home office for over two years," she said. "The work here would be different, I imagine, but I'd try to do it just as you wanted me to."

That seemed to be all there was to it. Janet sat for 10 or 15 minutes longer and listened while Mrs. Curtis talked rather vaguely about the duties she wanted her secretary to take over. She didn't ask questions about Janet's past experience. She didn't even say definitely that Janet was hired for the position but seemed to assume that was understood.

"When would you want me to come to work?" the girl asked.

"No, Janet, Monday too soon?"

No, Janet said, it wasn't too soon. Hamilton had arranged that she was to be free at the end of the week.

"About the salary—" Janet began hesitatingly.

Mrs. Curtis gave a little exclamation. "I'd forgotten all about that!" she said. "Dear me! Dear me! Well, of course, you're to live here in the house and there'll be no expenses of any sort. Would $30 a week be satisfactory to begin with?"

Janet computed rapidly. Thirty dollars a week with no living expenses was considerably more than she had been earning at the Every Home office. Why, it was almost equal to $50!

"That will be satisfactory," she said. "And I'll be ready to go to work Monday morning."

There was a light sound beside her and Janet turned. A huge yellow Persian cat wearing a blue ribbon about its neck stood eying her. The cat arched its neck inquisitively.

"Oh, there's Buster!" Mrs. Curtis exclaimed. "He always comes to see who's here. Buster, come say how-do-you-do to Miss Hill!"

The cat, instead of showing any signs of friendliness, remained planted where it was.

"It's a beautiful creature," Janet said admiringly. This was the animal, of course, of which Hamilton had spoken. It was plain to be seen that Buster was a favored member of the household.

"I've had him since he was a kitten," Mrs. Curtis explained. "He's three years old now and such an intelligent cat—"

did. Would it mean going to parties and meeting a lot of swell society people? Janet laughed and said no, she was quite sure it didn't. Pauline Hayden urged Janet to call her up occasionally and she promised that she would.

It was a busy week and the days flew by. At the office Hamilton was trying to wind up outstanding accounts, to get work done that would make it easier for his successor to take the reins. He had innumerable conferences with the business manager. He would let correspondence wait or sandwich it in between appointments and then Janet would have to work until nearly six transcribing her notes.

Mrs. Snyder regretted losing a steady roomer. "One who was always ready with the rent money and no trouble at all," but she took the news of Janet's departure philosophically. She had never, she said, been one to tell others how to manage their own affairs. And if some day Janet wanted to come back she'd be more than welcome.

MOLLIE LAMBERT was more outspoken. Mollie was frankly envious when Janet told her about the beautiful home in which she was to live. "Gosh, what a break!" she exclaimed. "But I guess you deserve it. Maybe you'll invite me out some time, will you?"

"Why, of course I will!"

Mollie eyed the other girl. "That'll be swell. You know what I bet, Janet? I bet you'll meet some rich fellow out there and he'll fall in love with you. That's what'll happen. He'll fall in love with you and you'll get married."

"Mollie!" Janet exclaimed. "Don't be silly! Why how could anything like that happen?"

"Why couldn't it, I'd like to know?"

"Just because it couldn't. I'm going to Mrs. Curtis to work! I'm not going to meet any young men, rich or otherwise."

"Well, if you don't you're a terrible dumbbell. That's all I've got to say. Boy—don't I wish I was in your shoes! Social secretary, huh? I've read about 'em in books, and one time I saw a picture with a girl like that in it. Kay Francis played the part. Say—did she have a swell time?"

Janet laughed. "But this isn't the movies, Mollie. Listen, would you like to have my cooking dishes? There aren't so many but I can't use them and I might as well give them away."

"Sure I would! Say, I hope Mrs. Snyder doesn't rent that room of yours to an old cross-patch like the woman on the top floor. Always howling if anybody makes the slightest noise! Sure I'll be glad to have the dishes. I'll come in and get them whenever you want me to." Janet promised to let her know and hurried away to get at her packing.

In all the bustle of extra work at the office and busy evenings at home there was one person to whom she forgot to tell the news. She remembered Thursday evening as she stepped off the car and saw a familiar figure ahead. Janet ran forward. "Hello, Jeff!" she called.

The figure turned. "Oh—Janet! I was thinking about you. What do you say you're up to?"

The girl's voice was regretful. "I'm sorry," she said. "But I'm afraid I can't. I'm going away—"

Jeff Grant stood still. "Going away?" he repeated. "What do you mean?"

TEXAS YIELDS 40 PER CENT OF NATION'S OIL

AUSTIN, March 30 — There is no question that Texas will have to be increasingly concerned with the changing market demands for the various fuel and energy resources which it possesses in such great abundance, declared Elmer H. Johnson, economic geographer in the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research, in his monthly analysis of the petroleum situation. Texas has risen from a small producer of petroleum in 1900, or even in 1910, to the current position of furnishing more than 40 per cent of the nation's output and 25 per cent of the world's output, he pointed out.

"There was presented last month before the annual meeting of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers a long-range forecast on the consumption of petroleum and natural gas in the United States," Mr. Johnson said. He summarized some of the figures presented, "not in the belief that they may prove correct, but because these figures present judgments concerning mile posts in long range planning, as applied to the future consumption of the nation's energy resources."

"In the period 1901-1905 coal furnished 88.7 per cent of the annual supply of mechanical energy used in the United States; petroleum furnished 6.1 per cent, natural gas 3.2 per cent, and water power 2.1 per cent," he continued.

"During the period 1926-1930, coal furnished 62.7 per cent of total energy; petroleum 33.4 per cent; natural gas, 7 per cent; and water power 7.1 per cent."

Increases 147 Per Cent

"In the intervening period, the total amount of mechanical energy consumed in this country had increased by 147 per cent. Therefore, the actual increase of the amounts of petroleum and natural gas consumed if producing mechanical energy was of considerable magnitude."

"It is forecasted that the mechanical energy utilized in the United States in 1950 will be 61 per cent greater than in 1930, and that of this increased quantity in 1950, a total of 14,500 trillions of B. T. U. S. petroleum and natural gas will contribute 45.2 per cent whereas coal will contribute only 45.6 per cent and water power 8.1 per cent.

"The net result indicated is that in the coming twenty years, the output of coal will increase little if at all whereas the outlet for petroleum and natural gas will be considerably increased—a forecasted increase of more than 65 per cent.

"It is of interest, too, to note that exports of petroleum products declined 20,000,000 barrels in 1932—although imports of these commodities also fell off substantially. However, exports of petroleum products in January, 1933, were considerably above those of December, 1932. During the first nine months of 1932, exports of lubricating oils from Texas increased somewhat over the figure for the first nine months of 1931. During the same period, gasoline exports from Texas decreased by 2,000,000 barrels.

"Exports of carbon black in 1932 were the highest ever recorded—and a large share of the carbon black produced in the United States comes from Texas.

"During January, gasoline sales in Texas totaled 56,254,000 gallons, according to taxes paid to the State Comptroller. Last year in January, gasoline sales totaled 55,289,000 gallons and during December, 55,231,000 gallons were sold."
