WORK STARTS ON NEW FILLING STATION HERE

Mr. Edwin Neeb has men at work this week laying the foundation for his new brick filling station, which is going up on the corner directly across the street east of the Guaranty State Bank. The brick is now on the ground. The station when complete will be modern and up-to-date in every respect. It will be constructed on "regular city style." Work is progressing nicely, we are pleased to report.

LOCAL FIELDS CONTINUE TO SHOW ACTIVITY

The local fields have not developed anything of a sensational nature this week, yet operators are still hammering away, with the usual run of business. The Pennant Oil & Gas Co. et al are drilling at 2160 feet on their Strickland No. 1. Phillips Petroleum Co. and T. B. Slick have fishing job on their Nanna D Newton No. 2. Gillette & Dozier on the Prater No. 1, have shut down for orders. The C. O. Moore well east of town, the recent sensation, is holding up good, and flowing regularly. Several oil men in town this week from different parts of the state and Oklahoma, for the purpose of closing up drilling contracts. Considerable activity is promised in the near future.

COTTON NOW COMING IN RAPIDLY REPORT SHOWS

1500 bales were ginned here up to noon Wednesday. The Review is informed. Pickers are busy pulling the fleecy staple. There probably has been twice as many bales marketed here as has been ginned here, as this is known to be one of the very best markets in the state.

Mr and Mrs. Tom Butler have a new girl in their home, who arrived last Sunday week.

CROSS PLAINS SENDS CITIZENS WITH BIG BAND

Led by their Municipal Band of twenty pieces, Cross Plains citizens paraded through the streets of the city Wednesday morning, there being over thirty cars in the line of march.

The band rendered music during the parade and the visitors were loudly applauded as they moved through the streets in their cars. The Cross Plains band was organized during June of this year and is one of the best musical organizations in this part of the State.

On the rear of each car there was a banner with the inscription, "A Small City, Cross Plains, with a big Future." The parade by the Cross Plains citizens was the feature event downtown during Wednesday morning and was viewed by thousands of persons who lined the streets. Following the parade the Cross Plains residents went to the Fair Grounds and attended the automobile races Wednesday afternoon and also took in the other events.

A concert was given by the Cross Plains band in front of The Reporter just before noon Wednesday. A large crowd gathered on the sidewalk the time the band was playing. Two selections were rendered and the band made a big hit with every one who heard them play.

The band is directed by A. L. Layton and is made up of the following: Harold Reed, Cy Sanders, Clyde Teague, Ollie Dennis and Ernest Davidson, Trombones; Ben Garner and Porter Henderson, Baritone; Raymond Cross and Ernest Smith, Alto Saxophones; Earl Dennis, Bass Drum; C. N. Harris, Snare drum; N. C. Mitchell, Macon Freeman, Jim McGowan, Louis Helms, and Troy Crockett, Clarinets; Glenn Adams and Dr. E. L. Thomson, C Melody Saxophone; Leon Smith and Gerald Robertson, Alto Saxophone; J. D. Conlee, Tenor Saxophone; A. L. Layton, J. W. Joyce, Claud Harrell, Jack Scott, Bill Jones and A. C. Dodson, Jr., Cornets.—Abilene Reporter.

SUBSCRIPTION CAMPAIGN POSTPONED; FOLKS TOO BUSY

The Review's subscription contest has been postponed, as the people in this section are too busy just at this season to engage in special work. A number had entered as contestants and had secured a large number of subscriptions, but satisfactory arrangements have been made with them, and it is agreeable with all to have the contest later, if deemed advisable. A number of popular young ladies from neighboring communities, some who reside on the farm, were anxious to get in the contest, but this is a very busy season on the farm, and in order to give all an equal showing, it was decided to wait for a more suitable time. This decision was reached after a conference with contestants and others who were interested. When we deem it the opportune time to launch the contest, we will very likely put it on a much larger scale than was planned this time.

The reduced subscription rate will continue in force until Saturday, October 22nd, as has been previously announced, and all are urged to take advantage of this reduction. Send the paper to your people or a friend who are interested in Cross Plains happenings—and don't forget to attend to your own subscription. The home paper is your friend; support it.

Oscar Goldrick and Mr. Wilson, well known oil operators of Tulsa, Okla., were here this week looking after their interests.

MANY EXTRA PAPERS ARE MAILED OUT THIS WEEK

With this issue we are mailing out about 150 additional papers. They will go over the different sections of the community and state. More people will read the Review this week, however it is already widely read. For instance it goes to one home here, and after all have read it, it is then mailed to a relative in East Texas, and after he reads it, he passes it on to another neighboring family, who have kindred living here. There are many similar incidents. There are many other than regular subscribers who read the Review each week.

PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS A serious health menace has arisen in Cross Plains by the existence of vast mosquitoes in all sections of town and

WHEREAS The mosquito has been found to be the sole source of infection for Dengue fever and a carrier of malarial and typhoid and reports now stating these diseases are prevalent in many places causing much suffering and loss of life.

NOW THEREFORE

By powers vested by law I hereby proclaim an immediate emergency and call upon all citizens and property owners to immediately remove all weeds, grass, trash, tin cans etc. that may harbor these insects about their premises and to immediately apply a small quantity of kerosene or crude oil to the surface of all cisterns or other containers of water that may serve as a breeding place for these insects to the end that our citizenship may escape the ravages of these diseases and human life and comfort be preserved.

Attest: Dr. W. R. Lindley, City Health Physician.
Signed: F. M. Gwin, Mayor.

40 DIE IN WYOMING WRECK HORROR

PASSENGERS BURIED UNDER DEBRIS AS TRAIN GOES INTO STREAM.

PLUNGE TO DESTRUCTION

Hundreds Visit Scene of Wreck and See Imprisoned Victims, Unable to Give Aid.

Casper, Wyo.—Upward of two score persons perished when Chicago & Quincy passenger train No. 30 broke through a small bridge spanning Coal Creek, 1 1/2 miles east of Casper, Wyo., rescue workers estimated, although only three bodies have actually been found.

The plunge of the engine, baggage car, smoker, chair car and one Pullman coach through the bridge, weakened by the lashing current of the usually placid little stream caused by recent heavy rains, imprisoned the occupants of these cars who had little opportunity to escape.

Rescue parties were hampered by snow and rain which started shortly after the wreck and has continued unabated while workmen stand helplessly on the banks of the raging little stream whose foaming and partly submerged cars with their grim burden to settle still deeper into the creek bed.

The crack Casper-Denver train hurtling through the storm at reduced speed is believed by railroad men to have started its plunge to destruction as the engine hit the first span of the bridge. The baggage coach apparently slid into the current on top of the engine and was crushed like an egg shell.

The smoker, where greatest loss of life is believed to have occurred, was completely submerged. One end of the chair car was lifted out of the water by resting on the smoker, and this helped to save those in this car. One Pullman coach came to rest on the bank of the stream with one end in the water. Four men in the Pullman smoker are reported to have been caught in this death trap.

SCIENTIST TO RISK BECOMING A MANIAC

Dr. Albert Schneider to Test Power of "Kaapi" of African Savages.

Berkeley, Cal.—Facing possible death, or else the chance of becoming a homicidal maniac from the effects of "kaapi," a mysterious African drug, which causes savages to lose all sense of fear or pain.

Just what effect "kaapi" will have on a civilized white man is unknown and there is fear that it may cause the death of Dr. Schneider, who previously has taken hashish and other drugs in order to test their effect and write about them for science.

Savages of the jungle have been observed taking "kaapi" after which they go into a rage and attack each other violently, apparently suffering no pain and having no sentiment of fear.

Dr. H. H. Rusby of New York introduced "kaapi" before a pharmaceutical convention at Asheville, N. C., Sept. 7. Dr. Schneider says of it: "Tremendous possibilities lie in the study of kaapi. I consider it worth while, for the sake of science, to study this myself. No civilized man has yet taken kaapi. Dr. Rusby has watched savages take it and noted its marvelous effect."

Dr. Rusby will supply Dr. Schneider with several doses of the drug, which is taken in the form of tea. Feeds Pigs on Home-Grown Stuff McKinney, Texas.—E. H. GERMAN REPUBLIC FACING REBELLION

Allies Keeping in Touch With Situation as Reinforcements Go to Munich

Berlin.—Faced by potential rebellion on two fronts, the young German Republic is struggling to keep the upper hand over threatened Fascist and separatist revolutions.

Adolf Hitler's gray-shirted Fascist legions are mobilizing in Bavaria. The separatist followers of Herr Smeets are plotting for a Rhine Republic. Berlin is ringed by the protecting guns of Federal garrisons.

Swift on the news of the creation of a dictatorship in Bavaria and the proclamation of martial law throughout the Southern State, the Berlin Government declared a limited state of seige throughout all Germany.

Minister of Defense Gessler has been granted wide powers making him virtually a dictator for the entire nation. Federal circles semi-officially intimate that Herr Von Kahr assumed the Bavarian dictatorship to maintain order and suppress the revolutionary Fascist movement backed by Hitler and Field Marshal Von Ludendorff.

They believe Von Kahr is loyal to the Federal Government and will suppress revolutionary or separatist movements.

SOLONS EXPLAIN TO OKLAHOMA'S PEOPLE

Sixty-Seven Sign Application to Enjoin Adjutant General

Oklahoma City, Ok.—In a formal statement addressed to the people of Oklahoma, the House members detailed their attempt to assemble and their action in taking the case to court.

"We, as members of the Legislature, propose and purpose to be governed by the laws of our country as enacted by the highest court of our State," the statement said.

"We could not enter combat with the armed forces of this State, and were forced to leave the capital or have innocent blood shed. From that time until now, we have not been permitted to caucus or hold any session, and have been followed and guarded by armed officers and gunmen and by military orders under the direction of Gov. Walton.

"We have assembled because we believe that the charges of corruption and law violation and law violation against officers of this State should be investigated, and if the charges are found to be true, that impeachment charges should be filed.

"We attempted, as representatives, to meet, imbued with the hope of clarifying conditions existing in the State, and determine the truth or falsity of all the charges against certain State officials, to the end that peace, harmony and tranquility might obtain again in this free State.

"It is our purpose and shall be our purpose, should the Supreme Court adjudge us the right to convene, to approach the investigation as legislators, in an unbiased and unprejudiced manner, and to fulfill the trust imposed upon us when we were elected by the sovereign voters of Oklahoma to represent them in matters of this character.

"Each member signing the call feels he has done his full duty and having implicit confidence in the courts of our State, holds himself in readiness to reconvene in case the holdings of the court justify."

Sixty-seven members of the Oklahoma House of Representatives signed the application for a temporary injunction restraining Adjutant General B. H. Markham and all members of the Oklahoma National Guard from interfering with meetings of the House.

Aid of Wheat Growers Asked Washington.—Request was made of President Coolidge by a delegation of a dozen farmers and bankers from the Minneapolis Federal Reserve District that a special session of Congress be called to enact legislation for relief of wheat growers through revival of the United States Grain Corporation. The delegation further asked that a reduction in freight rates on wheat and flour be made, but said after their conference that the President had made no promise other than that he would consider their request.

George Jackson Appeals Austin, Texas.—Appeal has been filed in the Court of Criminal Appeals in the case of George Jackson, from Brazos County, convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to four years.

Bulgarian Government Wins Sofia.—It is officially announced that Bulgarian troops captured the town of Berkovitsa after a sharp struggle. The Communists who were holding the town lost heavily. The success of the Government forces at Berkovitsa left the way open for them to the city of Ferdinand. The Government issued a proclamation assuring the public of the collapse of the Communist movement and the early restoration of order.

PITCHED BATTLE IN DALLAS COUNTY JAIL

Battle on Sixth Floor Follows Attempt of Prisoners to Commandeer Elevator

Dallas, Texas.—One officer and one prisoner are dead and another prisoner may die as the result of a pitched battle between Deputy Sheriffs and two prisoners on the sixth floor of the Dallas County jail when C. E. Gaines and Pete Welk attempted to break prison. The prisoners used pistols which they had received from unknown sources.

Willis Champion, 48 years old, 2001 Cross street, Southeast Dallas, Deputy Sheriff and assistant night jailer, died at Baylor Hospital. He was shot in the abdomen and through the right knee. Champion was attacked by Gaines and Welk when he brought in a prisoner.

C. E. (Emmett) Gaines, 36 years old, was instantly killed. He had been sentenced to death following trial in Judge C. A. Pippen's Criminal District Court on charges of participating in the Jackson Street Substation Postoffice robbery in Dallas nearly three years ago. During the battle a bullet struck him in the left side of the head. He also was shot through a leg.

Pete Welk, about 30 years old, sentenced to forty years in the penitentiary following trial in Judge C. A. Pippen's court on charges of complicity in a shooting near Garland last winter when Deputy Sheriff Tom Wood was fatally shot while raiding a whisky still, received shotgun wounds in his breast, neck and scalp. Dr. G. A. Spivey, Assistant County Health Officer, after an examination, said he believes Welk may recover. Welk for several hours lay inert and apparently unconscious. When spoken to he would at times open his eyes but not speak. Prisoners said he smoked a cigarette but continued to be silent. He was still alive on his cell cot at an early hour Thursday morning.

Ozle Davis, a negro trusty prisoner, who is an elevator operator in the jail, and who had just taken Champion and an incoming prisoner to the floor on which the battle occurred, showed wonderful presence of mind by running his car back to the office floor and reported the attack on the jailer. A number of deputies, armed with shotguns and pistols, were immediately lifted to the sixth floor and began exchanging shots with Welk and Gaines, who had already mortally wounded Champion. In a moment both the prisoners had been shot down.

Wildest excitement was created among the many other prisoners on that floor, reports of the battle quickly spread over the city, and in a few moments a crowd of several hundred people and dozens of cars appeared in front of the jail.

An investigation which is expected to reveal the identity of the driver of a large automobile which was seen rapidly leaving the vicinity of the Criminal Courts building shortly after the shooting started, and which is expected to reveal how the prisoners managed to obtain possession of the pistols they used, was launched by Sheriff Dan Harston and District Attorney Shelby S. Cox following the shooting.

"I will pay a reward of $500 in cash to any person who will give me information as to how those pistols were smuggled into the county jail," Sheriff Harston said.

VON KAHR ORDERED TO PRESERVE PEACE

Fascist Leaders Indorse Dictatorship—Beginning of Coup Forecast

Munich.—Dr. von Kahr, former Premier, has been appointed General Commission for Bavaria, with full power to proclaim an exceptional state and adopt any other military or police measures to protect Munich against insurrection from reactionary or radical sources. The appointment follows upon the activities of the Hitler guards or other so-called patriotic leagues, who are mobilizing for a general review on Friday.

This official action is viewed as a purely local precautionary measure, and is in no wise aimed at the central government. The rumor that an exceptional state has been proclaimed is officially denied, although it is announced that Von Kahr has full authority to take such a step if the situation in Bavaria demands it.

Buried Under Seed is Smeothered Brownsville, Texas.—R. Quintanilla, employe of an oil mill, was smothered to death when he opened a cotton seed chute and was buried under the seed.

Ruling on State Auto Law Made Austin, Texas.—The statute providing that motor cars in passing each other on the highways shall slow down their speed to fifteen miles an hour is construed in an opinion by Assistant Attorney General Bruce W. Bryant to apply only to motor vehicles which are going in opposite directions, the object of the law being to inhibit vehicles when meeting each other from going at such rate of speed as to endanger the lives of the occupants of the vehicles.

This does not include the normals and other educational institutions, which have their separate governing boards.

Governor Pat Neff has left Austin to spend a week on an inspection of the State prison at Huntsville and all of the State farms. The Governor will gather information as to the financial condition of the prison system and general conditions of the convicts, especially as regards their health and enforcement of discipline.

The open season for killing ducks, geese, brandt and snipe in the North Texas zone begins Oct. 16 and closes Jan. 15, according to an opinion given by the Attorney General's Department. It will be unlawful to hunt this kind of game in the North Texas zone during any other period. In the South Texas zone the open season begins Nov. 1 and closes Jan. 31. This is in conformity with both the State and Federal laws.

Citizens of Austin having made the required bond pledging payment of any excess over the appropriation made by the State for the purchase of additional land for the University of Texas Campus, the University land acquisition board will at once resume its work of carrying out the program for enlarging the campus.

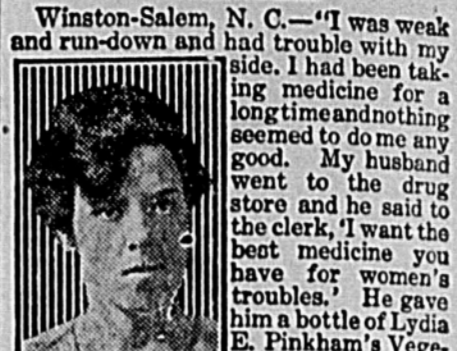

Hearing on application of Texas shippers, for authority to designate routes of cattle and other livestock and freight shipments, will be held by the state railroad commission on November 13. Rates are now subject to regulated routes promulgated by commission. Under the proposed plan, expense of shipments would be reduced.

The oil portrait of former Gov. James E. Ferguson has been placed in the "Hall of Governors" in the Texas Capitol, and there were no ceremonies incident thereto. The picture is the first to be hung in the rotunda on the third floor of the Capitol, space on the walls of the first and second floors having been exhausted.

State School Superintendent S. M. N. Marrs will confer with officials of State textbook depositories at Dallas in an effort to arrange some workable plan for getting textbooks to public schools, he has announced. Agreement already has been perfected with depositories whereby textbooks will be shipped direct to school districts at the same price furnished the State, Mr. Marrs said. All State texts are tied up in the book controversy over contracts, awarded last December.

DENSLEY HOWARD

SYNOPSIS.—Returning to her home in a small town, Milton Center, from a visit to New York, the widowed mother of ten-year-old Ann Byrne announces her wedding to Hudson Cortland, socially and politically prominent. Her husband has not been told about Ann, and the new wife fears he will be displeased. With Ann, Mrs. Cortland returns to New York, to the house of Hendricks Cortland, her husband's brother, with whom the latter is living. Hudson practically refuses to have anything to do with Ann, and the child is glad to be adopted by the Cortlands. Ann's mother and stepfather are lost at sea. Ann fills a gap in Hendricks Cortland's life as the adopted daughter of the Cortlands. The Civil War breaks out. A tentative engagement between young Hennessey and Ann is understood. The young man enlisting in War hospitals are established in New York, and Ann takes up the work of cheering the wounded back from the front. With her guardian, Ann visits Hennessey in his encampment on the outskirts of Washington and meets noted people.

The secretary spoke another name, and Ann and her guardian were swept on. "That's over," Mr. Cortland sighed, relieved. The rooms were becoming more crowded, and Mr. Cortland soon declared it was time to go back to the hotel.

The following day there was a great review of the troops by General McClellan. Mr. Cortland and his ward drove out to the field east of the Capitol in an open carriage. When the review was over and Hendricks was free to join them, he found Ann chatting, with smiling eyes and lips, with a slim young horseman in civilian dress. As he approached he resentfully observed that they were talking in French, and he marvelled at Ann's ease in the foreign language. He approached sulkily and greeted her with an air of stern proprietorship. The young Frenchman lifted a supercilious eyebrow at his manner with so lovely a lady.

"How do you do, Hendricks?" the girl said demurely. "I want to present you to the Duc de Chartres." As Hendricks faced his first look in the flesh, he was seized by a paralyzing embarrassment that took the form of making him appear sulkier than before. He cast resentfully about in his small French vocabulary for words that would impress the elegant young officer. As it happened, however, he said, "Monsieur—" and halted, for the lack of verbs.

"It is my cousin," Ann murmured, as though no warmer he bound them. "Ah—your cousin!" Realizing Hendricks' embarrassment, the young stranger spoke in careful English. "I congratulate you, Monsieur." "Thank you," Hendricks blurted out. "Is it because I am her cousin—or because I am going to marry her?" "So?" inquired the Frenchman. "In every way, then, I offer you my felicitations!" He did not linger after that.

When they rode on several of the officers received permission to go with them, and Hendricks was crowded away from his coveted place by Ann's side. They came across the colonel, making the rounds of his outpost, and he begged well-known Mr. Cortland, the pretty girl and the group of brilliant young staff officers to come back to his tent for refreshment before returning to Washington.

"Try our camp fare," he urged. "It is rough, but it is what your army fights on." Ann accepted at once, eager to sample the soldiers' rations, but when, after some delay, the collation was prepared, it proved to be a rather elaborate luncheon, served with champagne from a box under the colonel's camp bedstead!

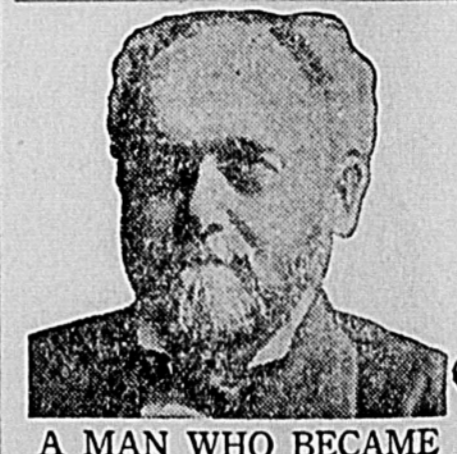

When they had finished they had to hurry back to Washington, lest Lieutenant Hennessey should overstay his leave. The escort of young officers parted from them regretfully at the gates of the Lee mansion, and Ann and Mr. Cortland and Hendricks trotted steadily on. They had little opportunity for conversation until the bridge was reached, when they pulled the horses down to a walk. Then Hendricks spoke, with an air of one who unburdens himself of something he has long had on his mind.

"Ann, I'm not sure I shall allow you to go on with this hospital work. I don't half like it." Ann was frankly aghast. Was this what it meant to become engaged, she wondered? Must she submit to Hendricks' judgment—she who so seldom agreed with him?

"I wouldn't stop working in the hospitals, even if Uncle told me to," she said, with heightened color. Mr. Cortland hastened to intervene. "In that case, my dear, I shan't interfere. . . . But I think you are wrong in this, Hendricks. . . . I entirely approve of her work. It is his sanction."

At this important support the boy allowed the subject to drop, but he relapsed into gloom again, and did not emerge when he left them, on the outskirts of town. At the hotel Ann learned that there was to be a reception that evening at the White House.

"Couldn't we get invitations?" she demanded of Mr. Cortland. He laughed. "We wouldn't need any, my child. The whole world is free to walk in." "Then we will go? We needn't stay long, Uncle, but I must see the President." "That's a good reason for going, I'll admit," he allowed, yielding with a sigh. The crowd was extraordinarily varied. Congressmen from agricultural districts, bearing timid rural wives on their arms, clumped in, in thick boots. Elegant young men from the foreign embassies sauntered through the throng, detached and amused at this spectacle of democracy, generals in gala uniform stood importantly about, fashionable creatures, dressed like Ann, in their best, maneuvered their vast skirts skillfully, shrewd-eyed gentlemen, who were in Washington angling for contracts, lay in wait for

A MAN WHO BECAME FAMOUS

Doctor R. V. Pierce, whose picture appears above, was not only a successful physician, but also a profound student of the medicinal qualities of Nature's remedies, roots and herbs, and by close observation of the methods used by the Indians, he discovered their greatest quality, especially for weakness of women, and after careful preparation succeeded in giving to the world a remedy which has been used by women with the best results for half a century. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is still in great demand, while many other so-called "cure-alls" have come and gone. The reason for its phenomenal success is because of its absolute purity, and Dr. Pierce's high standing as an honored citizen of Buffalo is a guarantee of all that is claimed for the Favorite Prescription as a regulator for the peculiar to women.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued.

The captain caught the words, and answered, "Yes," he drawled, "I reckon I'm a good Union man, all right. . . . I had a right smart start in business in Chattanooga, a home there, and all that, and now my family's been turned out of course. They're in Chicago, my wife and two little girls, in a boarding house. An' here I am, in a blue uniform, fightin' fr the North, against my own brothers an' my wife's father. . . . Yes, I reckon I've earned a right to be considered a good Union man. I've paid the price."

Ann looked at him with shining eyes, in the embarrassed silence which followed his outburst. When they rode on several of the officers received permission to go with them, and Hendricks was crowded away from his coveted place by Ann's side.

"They came across the colonel, making the rounds of his outpost, and he begged to know Mr. Cortlandt, the pretty girl and the group of brilliant young staff officers to come back to his tent for refreshment before returning to Washington. senators and cabinet members, and plain people of the inconspicuous walks of life rubbed elbows with the rich and great. The President stood at the door of the second parlor, with a secretary beside him who gave him the names of his callers. Ann's first impression was of his extraordinary height, for he towered over the people about him, and then the amazing charm of his face caught her: tragic, humorous, distinguished and kindly, she adored him, at first sight. He was obviously bored at the tiresome ceremony of handshaking. When Mr. Cortlandt turned up in line, however, his face brightened amazingly. "My dear friend," he said, "what a horrible occasion for you!" He laughed, and became another man from the care-worn host of a moment before.

Mr. Cortlandt presented Ann, and the President shook her hand warmly, looking deeply into her ardent eyes, with the penetrating glance of a man who is a rapid judge of character. "You'll find Mrs. Lincoln over yonder," he said. "I wish I could take you to her."

The secretary spoke another name, and Ann and her guardian were swept on. "That's over," Mr. Cortlandt sighed, relieved. The rooms were becoming more crowded, and Mr. Cortlandt soon declared it was time to go back to the hotel.

"How do you do, Hendricks?" the girl said demurely. "I want to present you to the Duc de Chartres." As Hendricks faced his first Zerk in the flesh, he was seized by a paralyzing embarrassment that took the form of making him appear sulkier than before. He cast resentfully about in his small French vocabulary for words that would impress the elegant young officer. As it happened, however, he said, "Monseigneur—and halted, for the lack of verbs.

"It is my cousin," Ann murmured, as though no warmer tie bound them. "Ah—your cousin!" Realizing Hendricks' embarrassment, the young stranger spoke in careful English. "I congratulate you, Monsieur."

"Thank you," Hendricks blurted out. "Is it because I am her cousin—or because I am going to marry her?" "So?" inquired the Frenchman. "In every way, then, I offer you my felicitations!" He did not linger after that.

Ann was frankly aghast. Was this what it meant to become engaged, she wondered. Must she submit to Hendricks' judgment—she who so seldom agreed with him?

At this important support the boy allowed the subject to drop, but he relapsed into gloom again, and did not emerge when he left them, on the outskirts of town.

below it, the cords of his throat showed pitifully. His face was very white, under its grimace of travel; he might easily have been dead as he lay there, and Ann put out a frightened hand and pushed the fair hair back from his wasted temples. Her touch roused the man, and suddenly his eyes opened wide for a moment. They seemed enormous, in his dead-white face, and they were deliciously, penetratingly, blue. His lips parted, and drew down in the ghost of a cynical smile.

"I never felt softer ones," he murmured. Ann retreated swiftly, but the nameless patient had already lapsed back into unconsciousness. All day she had him in her mind, as she went about her round of duties; it was extraordinary how often she contrived to pass the cot where he lay. Shortly after noon he revived again, and a little brandy was put between his passive lips. A second spoonful stirred him to something resembling a vitality. He fixed his eyes on Ann's and said amiably:

"You'll have me as drunk as a lord if you give me much of that on an empty stomach."

"I'll get you something to eat," she volunteered, eagerly. The man frowned impatiently. "It is easier not," he murmured. "I'll feed you," Ann offered. She commandeered a bowl of soup from a passing nurse.

Her patient obviously did not want the soup, and equally obviously, disliked to say so, in the face of Ann's eager helplessness.

When she finally desisted, and the man lay flat again, exhausted by the little effort of lifting his head, he said, politely, "Thank you. . . . I wish I felt the way you look."

"The way I look?" she repeated encouragingly. She wanted him to talk. The soup was having its effect, and there was more strength in his voice as he said, "Do you mind telling me where I am?"

"You are in an army hospital in New York." "New York? . . . It goes to prove what I have always said—the place has no atmosphere. . . . Put me in Paris, dying, and I'd know—and hate to die! . . . Or Florence—there'd be something there to whisper to my spirit, and keep me happy to the verge. . . . Well—this is my own, my native land!"

"I wish you would tell me your name." "Densley Howard." "Oh!" There was a startled note in Ann's exclamation, but after her first instinctive movement she did not draw back. "We are neighbors," she said. "We've met in the streets."

Howard smiled in his turn, polite, but wary. "Remember," he said, "the red-haired little devil who used to shy stones at my horse, when the governor's wasn't looking!" He closed his eyes on that quite definitely, and almost immediately he was asleep.

Ann stood gazing gravely down on him. He didn't, she reflected, look bad. She remembered vague but persistent rumors of mysterious deeds. . . . He was, in the language of the square, "wild." . . . She wondered. . . . He didn't look wild—she thought he had a look of almost boyish sweetness.

The next morning the newcomer palled her weakly, as she would have passed his cot with only a shy smile. "I haven't been brought up to say good-morning!" he demanded gayly.

Ann paused, while she solemnly selected a carnation pink from the handful she carried. "I brought you this," she said, smiling tentatively as she went to lay her flower on the table beside his bed.

Unexpectedly, he caught her fingers, and she could feel that his were ominously hot. "Thank you," he said. When she would have withdrawn her hand, he drew it to his lips and kissed it.

The girl's eyes widened and she caught her fingers away from the giant attentions of an entire mess; she went, with the utmost docility, to stroll in the moonlight, but it seemed to the boy that she was strangely quiet, following so closely upon her animation at the table. He adroitly drew her to a place where the trees grew thick. On the verge of the black shade the girl paused, with a little laugh that trembled.

"Come on!" Hendricks urged impatiently. "It is pretty here!" He seized her hands and pulled her forward. "I haven't seen you all day," he complained.

"There hasn't been time," Ann said listlessly. Suddenly Hendricks flung his arm around her, and crushed her to him; all his day's despondency flared into a sudden gust of passion that surprised him as much as it did the girl. She tried to push him away, but in an instant his lips found hers and he was kissing her fiercely. When he let her go they were both breathless.

"Oh!" gasped Ann. "How rough you are!" Panic seized him. "I am sorry," he said humbly. "Really, Ann. . . . I didn't mean to."

They went back to the camp at once, so quickly that Hendricks had only an impression of Ann's flying draperies, and just ahead of him, her profile, cut keen and black against the moonlight. When he reviewed that five minutes, after his uncle had taken the girl back to town, he could not remember that she had spoken at all, but he recalled vividly, with a hot flush of resentment, how she had leaped a tiny brook, rather than take his hand. He told himself, as he settled down to sleep that night, that the next day he would get leave of absence and make it up with her, but when he reached Washington, at noon he found that Ann and her uncle had already left for New York.

Late in February Hendricks obtained a second leave of absence in order to come to New York, and only Mr. Cortlandt's decided refusal to countenance it kept Mrs. Rensselaer from clamoring for a hasty wedding while her son was at home. Ann received the news of his arrival with the proper amount of pleasure.

Howard smiled in his turn, polite, but wary. "Remember," he said, "the red-haired little devil who used to shy stones at my horse, when the governor's wasn't looking!" He closed his eyes on that quite definitely, and almost immediately he was asleep.

Ann stood gazing gravely down on him. He didn't, she reflected, look bad. She remembered vague but persistent rumors of mysterious deeds. . . . He was, in the language of the square, "wild." . . . She wondered. . . . He didn't look wild—she thought he had a look of almost boyish sweetness.

commanded. "Let us get at the bottom of this. . . . It can't be." "But it is." Her valiant smile was dreary.

"I saw him at Fairfax Court-House." "You never told me! How did he look?" "He looked—stupid." "Oh, that isn't fair! He is a very good officer."

"Yes—good as the devil! Roars out his orders at his men so that they shake in their shoes! Frowns like a regular Zeus if anything crosses him. . . . But, Ann—you must believe me—the would never know why life is fair. The tenderness had come back into his eyes, as for a profound moment they held hers.

"But—is life fair?" she asked confusedly. "There seems to me to be so much pain—so much unhappiness."

"In the official list of men who have gloriously fallen the name of Hendricks Rensselaer appears."

THE STATE OF TEXAS

To The Sheriff or any Constable of Callahan County—
Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to summon Carl Curly Covington and R. L. Smallwood by making publication of this citation once each week for four consecutive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not, then in the nearest county where a newspaper is published, to appear at the next regular term of the Justice Court of Precinct No 6 of Callahan County, Texas to be holden in the office of the Justice of the Peace of said Precinct in Cross Plains, Texas, on the second Friday in October 1923, the same being the 12th day of Oct. 1923, then and there to answer a suit filed in said court on the 19th day of Sept. 1923, said suit numbered 320 on the docket of said court, wherein the First Guaranty State Bank a private corporation of Cross Plains Callahan County, Texas, is plaintiff, and Curly Covington and R. L. Smallwood are defendants, plaintiff's demand being as follows: Suit upon one certain promissory note for the sum of $178.00 dated April 25th 1923, and due sixty days after date with 10 per cent interest from maturity and providing for 10 per cent attorneys fees for collection after maturity if placed in the hands of an attorney for collection, said note having been placed in the hands of Virgil Hart an attorney for collection on the 19th day of Sept. 1923 and also for foreclosure of chattle mortgage executed by the said defendants Curly Covington and R. L. Smallwood on one Ford automobile Engine No. 6241063, License No. 811364 Calif Lock steering wheel B235459 touring car. Plaintiff alleges that said note is long past due and that defendants though often requested have failed, refused and still fail and refuse to pay said note or any part thereof, wherein it prays for judgment against defendants for the amount of said note with interest, attorneys fees and all costs of suit and for foreclosure of its chattle mortgage and for order of sale to sell said car and apply the proceeds arising therefrom to the payment of said note, the surplus if any to be paid over to defendants and if said car shall not sell for enough to pay said note, interest, attorneys fees and cost that it have execution for the balance remaining unpaid.

Herein fail not but have you before said court on the said first day of the next term thereof, this writ, with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand this 19th day of Sept. 1923.

GERMANY ABANDONS PASSIVE RESISTENCE

An Ugly Tone is Manifest in Dispatches from Provincial Germany

London.—The recoil of the People's party, of which Chancellor Stresemann is the leader, against the Government's decision to abandon passive resistance has been so violent that several members of the party already have announced their withdrawal from its councils.

Berlin.—Chancellor Stresemann announced that the Government had decided to abandon passive resistance immediately and unconditionally.

In his statement the Chancellor announced that the Government had decided to abandon the policy of passive resistance in the Ruhr and Rhineland and had ordered resumption of activities in all lines at once.

Three hundred representative spokesmen from the Ruhr and Rhineland discussed passive resistance with Chancellor Stresemann for five hours, then unanimously agreed that further opposition to the Franco-Belgian occupation was futile and that passive resistance as such must be abandoned.

Berlin.—Word of the abandonment of passive resistance came to a Nation in the throes of increasing internal disorders.

"We have good eyesight. Our hearing is our next best sense and smelling comes third. We really only use this sense in feeding and in recognizing our young."

"Some say it is a strange way of knowing one's children, but then it does for us so why should we overtax our brains and think of other ways?"

"It would be foolish," said Mrs. Ostrich. "But I hope in time people will stop saying I hide my head in the sand when I'm frightened."

"I fall down and have my head quite close to the sand—but I don't hide it. People have thought it was hidden because by head and the sand are so much alike in color."

"And the story has been passed along. And going to keep it going. I may have a small brain, but I know enough to know that my body isn't safe just because my head might be hidden—and so I don't hide my head."

"Oh, well, I'm above getting mad even if I'm gossiped about."

"That is very wise of you," said Billie Brownie, "for I must admit that while I know it is foolish, I feel a little hurt at anything said about me that is not kind."

"You are far more sensible, Mrs. Ostrich."

CROWDED JAVA

Women Carrying Rice: Java.

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.

While the Netherlands are celebrating the silver jubilee of their ruler and the peace and well-being of the kingdom in war-torn Europe, one may well turn half around the world to the beautiful island of Java, queen of Dutch possessions, which has contributed so heavily to the country's prosperity.

Distance does Java an injustice. The Westerner, seeing on his map this slender island lying off the southeastern point of Asia, might well compare it to our own Long Island which it resembles in shape. But Java is a giant, equalling in area the entire state of New York.

Volcano-made in the first place, and constantly being remade by them, Java has more volcanoes than any area of its size in the world.

Java is fifth in size of the Dutch islands; it is probably best known, and for good reason. Enthusiastic observers have called it "the garden spot of the world."

Java, with its 50,000 square miles of area, has a population of about 35,000,000—one-third that of the United States which is 70 times as large.

The deep rich soil of this favored island supports a vegetation which, in luxuriance and variety, is unsurpassed by that of any other region of similar area, and ever since the Dutch established their first settlement on the island, in 1595, a golden harvest of agricultural products has been yearly garnered to swell the granaries of the colonists and the revenues of the home government.

To the visiting American perhaps one of the most noticeable features about Java is the distinctly paternal character of the Dutch colonial administration.

On landing at Batavia, one must report directly to the chief of police to obtain permits to travel on the island. Before these are granted, full answers must be given as to names, nationality, occupation, age and purpose in visiting Java.

Here is a little arithmetic problem. It has puzzled lots of folks. Can you do it? A girl has 20 cents with which she is to buy 20 pencils. The pencils are of three prices; one-quarter cent each, one-half cent each, and four cents each. How many of each will she get for her even 20 cents?

THIS BUNGALOW IS IDEAL HOME

"Neat as a Pin" No Idle Phrase in Describing This Design.
CONSTRUCTION LINES RIGHT
Thoroughly Pleasing and High-Grade Home, Whose Outward Appearance and Inside Arrangement Leave Nothing to Be Desired.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

"As neat as a pin" is no idle phrase when used in describing this attractive bungalow. The whole outward appearance gives the observer that impression, and the construction lines of it are beyond criticism.
This is a frame bungalow, which would lend itself to stucco or brick treatment, as well. In this case our broad white Colonial siding gives the utmost impression of cleanliness and comfort. The well-chosen patterned door, the patterned windows, the lattice pergola over the terrace, the neat boxwood shrubs in their containers—all combine to make a pleasing whole.
We enter the living room from the terrace and find it a nicely proportioned room, 15 feet by 12 feet, with fireplace flanked by bookcases. These are naturally built in, and may be gilded or not, depending upon local conditions. Personally, we like to see books exposed to easy reach, and not kept behind glass; but a gilded bookcase is an essential in a city, or in a locality where there is much moisture or considerable dust-laden atmosphere.

Right off the living room is the dining room, the same size. Its three windows give the impression of a bay, and make it a very well-lit room. We continue on to the kitchen, 12 feet by 12 feet, with a sink right by the double window, and handy cupboarding at either side. The refrigerator is in one corner, since there is no pantry, and has an outside larder door. Right off the kitchen is the rear porch, 6 feet by 11 feet 6 inches, which could be screened and glassed at small expense, making a fine addition to the kitchen worker's comfort on days when the roof was preferable to the outside.
There are two bedrooms, each 12 feet by 11 feet, and they are reached through the dining room in a way which gives them absolute privacy. We first have a small hall, with a clothes closet immediately adjoining the dining room door, and suitable for table linens, etc.; then we have another closet in the bathroom. At either end of the hall we have the bedrooms, each with its clothes closet also. Both of these rooms have two windows, so placed as to give you an opportunity to arrange the bed and other furniture most advantageously.
The furnishings of a bungalow of this description can make or mar the general effect given by the outside appearance. Within, simplicity should be the keynote, and whether the wall covering is kalsomine, or paint, or wall paper, the use of subdued neutral tints is preferable. Of course, there are very cheerful chintz-patterned flowered papers, which always fill the requirements of a bedroom; we need not neglect these. But it is a safe rule to dress the living and dining room walls in a subdued tint which will be pleasant and not too obtrusive. Some folks like grays and grayish blues; others like warmer colors, such as cream, buff, ecru and the tawpes which are now so popular. Against this subdued wall the furniture will appear to good advantage and will not crowd. If it is well chosen. In a bungalow like this one would never be far wrong in choosing good pieces at random; a Windsor chair, some replicas of the maple furniture favored by the early New Englanders, a nicely-carved spinet desk or cabinet, a wrought iron electric lamp or two, with candleabra luminaires attached to the walls. The floor could be of maple, oak or linoleum; the rugs need not be orientals, but in well-chosen domestic patterns which coincide well with the decorative scheme. The well-dressed home costs nothing but a little thought.

GOOD ROADS

Good Road Around Home Is of Much Importance
Since this is the day of automobiles and trucks on the farm, the question of a good road around the home place is of vital importance, writes G. R. Farmer, in The Farm and Ranch. The county or state funds cannot build a gravel road to every farmhouse. That would be impracticable. Therefore, the farmer must look around for an economical way to do it himself. When we think of the many creeks, with beds and beds of gravel waiting to be utilized into a good road, we wonder why there are no more good gravel roads around every farm.

The work can be done entirely during wet and muddy weather if necessary, and in this way the farmer can have good roads by putting in work on it at times when he could not be doing work in the field. Of course, it could not be expected to build any great length of road in one or two days, unless the farmer has considerable help. But by first grading up the road, or a part of it, during one wet spell, finishing the next one, and then putting the gravel from the creek bed on it each succeeding rain thereafter, until the road is up in first-class condition, a lot may be accomplished.
Even though the gravel supply might not be enough to build the required length of road, one needs only to wait until the next rain, and when the water has receded, he will find a new gravel bed waiting for him.
To figure the saving a good gravel road would be to each farm would be an impossibility, for its good will go on so long as the farm is operated, and the road is kept up, which can be done very easily by filling in each weak place with more gravel from the creek, as it is needed.
So economical is this kind of road, that wherever there is a creek with gravel beds, there is no excuse for the live, progressive farmer not having a gravel road all around his farm. By co-operation among the farmers, a gravel road can be extended to the county or state highways, or to the next closest town. However, that is a question that would bring in other points, and this is an article to apply to the individual farmer who would like to have a good gravel road for his own use on and around his farm.
It will be the means of his being able to do hauling in muddy weather, when it would be impossible to do it, did he not have a gravel road, and this alone will be worth much in dollars and cents in the course of a year in getting products or machinery under shelter when the weather requires it.
As this is an opportunity to have a good road with no investment except work, every farmer should give it serious consideration, and make arrangements to work on the suggestion.

Successful Road Repair Ideas Tried in Kansas

Salvaging old pavements is an important factor in the work of the highway engineer, and various methods have been adopted in the different localities. In Kansas, C. W. Boulson, city engineer of Iola, has worked out a method of salvaging concrete pavements by resurfacing with asphalt. In 1912 the city of Iola laid a six-inch concrete pavement on East Jackson avenue in the residential section. After being subjected to traffic for six months the pavement began to show signs of disintegration. Transverse and longitudinal cracks developed and where these cracks crossed traffic gradually wore holes in the pavement.
According to Mr. Boulson, the cracking was not due to faulty material or workmanship, but to expansion and contraction with temperature changes. It was decided that the most economical procedure was to overhaul the old concrete pavement and to use it as a foundation for a pavement of asphaltic concrete. All loose material was removed from the old pavement and all weak spots were cut out. Holes which penetrated to the entire depth of the old pavement, or nearly so, were filled with new concrete. Pot-holes and large holes which did not extend to the sub-surface were filled with asphaltic binder. Finally, an asphaltic concrete surface two inches thick was laid and the street immediately opened to traffic. The rejuvenated pavement has given excellent service.

Essential to Profitable Farming

The Utility Express Truck $550 Chassis Only f. o. b. Flint, Mich.
Fits any Standard Truck Body
No business can succeed unless its product is profitably sold. Most farms have a fine production department but no sales department. They grow crops and stock bought by buyers who set the price.
One of the chief reasons for this unprofitable situation is the average farmer's poor facilities for moving his crops or stock to the place where he can sell at the best advantage. Because of the time and expense of horse delivery millions of dollars worth of produce spoils annually on American farms. The saving of this waste would, in many cases, change a losing farm to a money-maker.
This low-priced, high-grade, reliable truck was designed as a money-saver and money-maker for farmers and business houses needing fast low-cost haulage of heavy or bulky goods. It fits any standard type of ton truck body. Ask any Chevrolet dealer for price of the style of body you require.

However, that is a question that would bring in other points, and this is an article to apply to the individual farmer who would like to have a good gravel road for his own use on and around his farm.
It will be the means of his being able to do hauling in muddy weather, when it would be impossible to do it, did he not have a gravel road, and this alone will be worth much in dollars and cents in the course of a year in getting products or machinery under shelter when the weather requires it.
As this is an opportunity to have a good road with no investment except work, every farmer should give it serious consideration, and make arrangements to work on the suggestion.

Successful Road Repair Ideas Tried in Kansas

Salvaging old pavements is an important factor in the work of the highway engineer, and various methods have been adopted in the different localities. In Kansas, C. W. Boulson, city engineer of Iola, has worked out a method of salvaging concrete pavements by resurfacing with asphalt. In 1912 the city of Iola laid a six-inch concrete pavement on East Jackson avenue in the residential section. After being subjected to traffic for six months the pavement began to show signs of disintegration. Transverse and longitudinal cracks developed and where these cracks crossed traffic gradually wore holes in the pavement.
According to Mr. Boulson, the cracking was not due to faulty material or workmanship, but to expansion and contraction with temperature changes. It was decided that the most economical procedure was to overhaul the old concrete pavement and to use it as a foundation for a pavement of asphaltic concrete. All loose material was removed from the old pavement and all weak spots were cut out. Holes which penetrated to the entire depth of the old pavement, or nearly so, were filled with new concrete. Pot-holes and large holes which did not extend to the sub-surface were filled with asphaltic binder. Finally, an asphaltic concrete surface two inches thick was laid and the street immediately opened to traffic. The rejuvenated pavement has given excellent service.

GOOD ROADS

Good Road Around Home Is of Much Importance
Since this is the day of automobiles and trucks on the farm, the question of a good road around the home place is of vital importance, writes G. R. Farmer, in The Farm and Ranch. The county or state funds cannot build a gravel road to every farmhouse. That would be impracticable. Therefore, the farmer must look around for an economical way to do it himself. When we think of the many creeks, with beds and beds of gravel waiting to be utilized into a good road, we wonder why there are no more good gravel roads around every farm.

$44,000,000 CASH IS RAISED BY BAPTISTS

FUND MAKES POSSIBLE LARGE
ADVANCE IN MISSIONS, EDUCA-TION AND BENEVOLENCES

IMPROVE CHURCH FINANCES

Dr. O. E. Bryan Will Direct South-wide Effort to Put All Local Churches on a Budget
Basis

Up to May 1, 1923, the Baptist churches of the South had paid in cash the sum of $44,000,000.70 on the 75 Million Campaign, the five-year program for extending the general missionary, educational and benevolent work of the denomination. It is announced by the general headquarters of that movement.

This sum was contributed by the various states of the Southern Baptist Convention as follows: Alabama,
$1,800,687.35; Arkansas, $1,331,899.65;

DR. O. E. BRYAN
Budget and Stewardship Director
for Southern Baptists

District of Columbia, $202,583.15;
Florida, $732,213.96; Georgia, $4,018, 008.93; Illinois, $329,087.87; Kentucky,
$4,937,270.93; Louisiana, $1,144,398.79;
Maryland, $656,589.25; Mississippi,
$2,329,293.67; Missouri, $1,822,353.65;
New Mexico, $217,828.33; North Carolina, $3,670,998.83; Oklahoma, $1, 113,781.19; South Carolina, $3,516, 853.19; Tennessee, $2,953,050.09; Texas, $6,468,098.42; Virginia, $4,925,225.
34; Specials: Louisiana, $11,035,117;
New Mexico, $419,729.18; Oklahoma,
$59,000.00; Illinois, $191,175.11; Home
Board Specials, $15,340.00; Foreign Board Specials, $86,103.00; raised by local churches on foreign fields and expended by them there, $1,063,390.68.

Large Results Achieved
These larger resources have made possible large advances in every department of work fostered by Southern Baptists, indicating the growth in the homeland during the campaign period. It is announced that there has been a gain of 57 district associations, 881 active ministers, 3,065 local churches, 3,287 Sunday schools with 459,223 pupils, 8,658 Baptist Young People's Unions with 253,917 members and 7,094 Woman's Missionary Union organizations. During this time there have been 762,830 persons baptized into the local Baptist churches, $45,465,118 has been invested in local church property, and the increase in offerings to missions and benevolences has been more than $28,000,000 over the corresponding period preceding the Campaign.

Among the many gains on foreign mission fields are included 34,344
baptisms, 286 churches, 1,800 mission stations, 39 houses of worship, 53,666 members, 687 Sunday schools with 31,292 pupils, the sending out of 275
new American missionaries, the appointment of 2,029 native workers, entry into six new foreign countries and the larger equipment for all forms of work on sixteen fields.

Workers of the Home Mission Board have baptized 173,602 persons during the Campaign period, have received 277,963 persons into the membership of the churches, enlisted 11, 772 young persons in definite forms of Christian service, built or improved 1,872 church houses, organized 925 churches and 2,898 Sunday schools.

Stabilize Church Finances
To reach the original goal it will be necessary for Southern Baptists to raise $31,000,000 additional for the Campaign program by the end of that movement in 1924. In the hope of bringing the churches of the denomination to a better system of finances and the church members to a fuller realization of their obligation to support religious work, the Campaign Commission has employed Dr. O. E.
Bryan of Atlanta, superintendent of evangelism and enlistment of the Home Mission Board, as stewardship and church budget director.

Dr. Bryan has assumed his new duties and working through the various state offices and the agencies of the district associations he is seek-

HORSE RACES TO BE BIG COTTON PALACE FEATURE

Some of Finest and Speediest Horse
Flesh in Country to Compete
For Big Prizes

Waco, Texas.—The announcement by Chairman Ralph Mc-Lendon of the 1923 Cotton Palace that horse racing will again be featured at the exposition this year for the first time since 1917, is good news to the many horse racing fans of the Southwest, as well as others who have never experienced the thrill of "seeing the ponies go,"
but who will be enabled to view
this exciting sport for the first time.

Horse racing is still the king
of all dirt track speed events,
as is proven by the great interest taken in this diversion in Kentucky and England where this is the chief of all forms of sport.

Six years ago the last horse
race on the Cotton Palace oval was held at the exposition in the fall of 1917, and attracted greater crowds than had ever before witnessed a race in Texas. This year, 1923, will be even greater in horse racing than 1917, or any previous year in which the animals have been brought to Waco, because the finest of all horse flesh will be brought to the great exposition
from October 20 to November 4, and attending crowds will have the privilege of witnessing races equal to the great derbies which have made the English sport world noted.

The handsome purses offered this year at the greatest Cotton Palace which has ever yet been staged, have already attracted many of the fastest steeds of the southwest, and notices that others will be entered are coming in daily to the racing headquarters.

The horse races will be but another thrill of the many features which, combined will make up the greatest exposition this part of the country has yet witnessed.

LIVESTOCK SHOW GREATLY ENLARGED

This Department of Cotton Palace
Offering Handsome Premiums;
Dates Oct. 20 to No. 4

Waco, Texas.—Again the Cotton Palace scores favor with the farmers and livestock men.
The announcement now comes from Chairman F. E. Goodman of the livestock show for the 1923 exposition, that all premiums for prize winning stock at the Cotton Palace will be one-third larger this year than they have ever been at any time in the previous history of the exposition.

Mr. Goodman has already received information from many of the largest stock breeders in the United States, to the effect that they will be well represented at the livestock show this year. Texas is the center of the greatest livestock
raising country of the world,
and Waco is the center of Texas; and the assurance is given that in the Cotton Palace exposition grounds, more particularly the livestock buildings, will be centered the choice of the premium blooded animals
of the southwest.

The most noted hogs, cattle,
sheep, goats, and other livestock, of all the famous lines
in the world, will be on exhibition from October 20 to November 4 at the Cotton Palace grounds. The large amounts which are given to the prize winners should interest all livestock breeders and farmers if they have blooded animals for show purposes, and the distinction going with the winner of a prize at this, one of the greatest livestock shows of the southwest, is an added feature for advertising and selling purposes, invaluable to the breeder of fancy stock.

Look Out for the spider!

Mark Twain's Answer

Mark Twain in his early days was editor of a Mississippi newspaper.
A superstitious subscriber wrote him saying that he had found a spider in his paper, and asked whether that was a sign of good or bad luck. The humorist wrote this answer and printed it:

"Old Subscriber: Finding a spider in your paper was neither good nor bad luck for you. The spider was merely looking over our paper to see which merchant is not advertising, so that he can go to that store, spin his web across the door, and live a life of undisturbed peace ever afterwards."

SCHOOL CHILDREN OF TEXAS TO BE STATE FAIR GUESTS OCT. 19

Annual Custom Observed—School Children Admitted Free on Children's Day—Teachers as Chaperones

Here's good news for Texas school children!

They are to be guests of the State Fair of Texas, at Dallas on Children's Day, Friday, Oct. 19.

As is the annual custom the formal invitation will soon be issued,
but advance notice has already been given school heads throughout the State, so that the youngsters may be apprised in advance and make their plans accordingly.

State Fair officials urge that superintendents, principals and teachers in city and rural schools make up and forward lists of the number of tickets they will require for their charges, in order that the tickets may be mailed well in advance, and everything be ready for the youngsters to lose no time gaining admission to the Fair grounds as soon as they arrive.

This year's State Fair of Texas, Oct. 13-23, will be the best ever from the standpoint of educational value and Fair officials are hoping that the attendance of embryo good citizens of Texas will break all previous records.

NOTED JUDGES TO PASS ON CATTLE AT STATE FAIR

Best Known Men in Livestock World
Will Pin on Ribbons at Dallas,
Oct. 13-28

Men known to the live stock industry the country over, will preside as judges at the State Fair Live Stock Show, Oct. 13-28 this year at Dallas, and every indication is that the 1923 live stock exhibition will surpass any that has gone before.

It has long been the policy of the State Fair of Texas to engage the very best talent in America to place
the awards in all departments, so that a ribbon won at the great Texas Exposition will have the utmost value to exhibitors.

J. E. Boog-Scott, general superintendent of the live stock department, is highly enthused over prospects
for this year's exhibition of cattle, sheep, horses, etc., and says the dairy cattle department will equal if it does not surpass the national show at Minneapolis later in the fall. Mr. Boog-Scott attended the Missouri State Fair at Sedalia, opening on Aug. 18, where he met a number of well known breeders who will also show at the State Fair of Texas.

The list of judges for the Texas exposition is as follows:

Short-horns—Wm. H. Pew, Ravenna, Ohio.
Herefords—Byron Engle, Sheridan,
Mo.
Aberdeen-Angus—J. D. Blackwell,
Fayette, Mo.
Red Polled—Jno. C. Burns, Fort Worth, Texas.
Jerseys—C. H. Staples, Louisiana
State University, Baton Rouge, La.
Holsteins—Ayrshire, Gurnsey, Brown,
Swiss—W. H. Stindlish, Lyons, Ohio.
Horses and Steers—W. J. Kennedy,
Sioux City, Iowa.
Swine—Prof. L. A. Weaver, Columbia, Mo.
Sheep—Robert F. Miller, Davis,
Calif.
Goats—Bob Davis, Rio Frio, Tex.
Jacks and Mules—H. T. Hineman, Dighton, Kans.

Premiums in the cattle department of the State Fair of Texas total more than $30,000, and each year during the last decade has seen the cattle department with largely increased entries.

NO ROOM FOR CROOKS IN DALLAS DURING FAIR POLICE SAY

There'll be no room for crooks, pickpockets or other petty criminals in Dallas during the State Fair of Texas, Oct. 13-28. Neither will there be any room for the "big fish" of the criminal pond, according to police department officials.

Chief of Police Louis W. Brown and Chief of Detectives Gunning are already at work on plans for police-ing the city during the progress of the thirty-seventh annual exposition.
The same basic plans as obtained during the 1922 State Fair, when Dallas was remarkably clear of the unwanted gentry, will obtain, according to Police Commissioner Louis
W. Turley.

It will be remembered that newspapers all over Texas had high praise for the policing of the city during the 1922 Fair, with particular tribute paid to Captain Frank Scott and his men, who were in charge of things
at the Fair grounds.

As was the case last year, Fort Worth, Houston, San Antonio, Waco, Beaumont, Galveston, and even Memphis and Chicago, will send officers to Dallas to aid the local department in keeping things clean during the coming State Fair.

YOUNG MAN ACCIDENTLY SHOT IN FOOT SATURDAY

Euell Vestal and Clifford Hightower were endeavoring to shoot a hawk Saturday morning near town,
and both young men were maneuvering for position when the gun in the hands of Hightower was accidentally discharged, the shot taking effect in Vestal's foot. The gun was loaded with number 4 shot, and the flesh was severely lacerated and part of the flesh on one side of his foot was shot away. After the unfortunate accident, the boys removed his shoe and seeing what had been done, they made their way to town where Dr.
Lindley dressed the wound. It will be some time before the healing powers will complete their work, howev-center, but rather side swiped. Had it hit center, he probably would be
