COOLIDGE CONFIDENT ON COLOGNE STATUS

THINKS SATISFACTORY ARRANGEMENT ON EVACUATION WILL BE REACHED.

HAS NO OFFICIAL INTEREST

America, However, Concerned Over Matter as One Affecting Welfare of Europe.

Washington.—President Coolidge is confident that a satisfactory arrangement will be reached by the allied nations and Germany with respect to evacuation of the Cologne bridgehead.

This confidence on the part of the President is based on the ability shown by the European Governments within recent months to reach agreements affecting their own welfare, beginning with the arrangement to submit the reparations problem to a committee of experts, the general adoption of the report of that committee and the willingness to begin payments under the Dawes plan.

The American Government has no official interest in the question of the Cologne evacuation and consequently no action by the United States is required or contemplated on the matter. The United States, however, has a general interest in anything affecting the welfare of Europe and, accordingly, officials in Washington will give attention in an unofficial way to the action to be taken by the council of Ambassadors at its meeting in Paris and to the forthcoming final reports of the military control commission concerning the status of German disarmaments.

GEORGE E. CHRISTIAN AND L. C. SUTTON APPOINTED

George E. Christian and L. C. Sutton to Be on Attorney General's Staff.

Austin, Texas.—Appointment of George E. Christian and L. C. Sutton as Assistant Attorney General and authorization of the statement that L. C. Sutton at present a member of Attorney General W. A. Keeling's staff of assistants, would be retained, have been made by Attorney General W. A. Keeling, several days ago. Mr. Keeling announced the appointment of Wright Morrow of Austin as a member of his official family. Mr. Christian was for five years District Attorney of the Thirty-Third Judicial District. He is a grandson of the late A. R. Johnson of Burnet and was an officer in the 34th Machine Gun Battalion, Ninth Division, which served overseas during the World War. Mr. Christian graduated from the law department of the University of Texas, class of 1910.

Friends of Mr. Sutton are congratulating him upon his retention as an Assistant Attorney General and Attorney General Keeling as well as other members of the department are outspoken in laudits to Mr. Sutton for the service he has rendered the State during his long connection with the State's legal department. Mr. Sutton is a recognized authority on election problems, they point out, and has satisfactorily handled many intricate questions on that subject presented to the department. In addition to writing opinions on the numerous inquiries for construction of election laws, Mr. Sutton has advised on many other equally important matters, and took a leading part in representing the State in the Mayfield election controversy and the attack made on the eligibility of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson to hold the office of Governor of Texas.

Blind "See" First Moving Picture.

New York.—Twelve hundred blind men, women and children sat in a darkened theatre and "saw" their first motion picture. The reading of an atmospheric narrative, with rhythmic arrangement, together with special lighting enabled the audience to see the story as it was unrolled on the screen. The company which intends to make similar arrangements will be arranged to hold audience.

(©. 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

Our country's prosperity was built up by industry and thrift. Our forbears had a lust for work and accomplishment. Instead of this, our youth of today are seeking easy ways of subsistence, when there is no such thing as an easy way, except at the expense of their own and our country's future.—Theodore N. Vail.

SEASONABLE MEATS

Chicken prepared and served in various ways is always a most delightful dish. Stuffed and roasted it can hardly be equalled, while smothered, fricassee and baked in milk are all most appetizing. Smothered chicken is split down the back, and roasted whole with much basting, then served with a cream gravy.

Chicken fricassee with a mushroom or cream gravy with dumplings is one way to extend the chicken flavor and serve two or three more than can be served with roasted fowl.

Capon is heavier than ordinary chicken and a much more delicate flavor; this when stuffed with an oyster dressing is chicken par excellence.

A well-made rabbit stew or a rabbit pie is a tasty dish; when the season for game is open, they are usually plentiful.

A whole baked ham or a crown roast of pork are both popular meats at this season. A saddle of venison, or a few venison steaks are considered by those who are fortunate enough to have them, as rare tidbits.

The following are a few stuffings which are a little out of the ordinary:

Sweet Potato Stuffing.

—Take two cupfuls of mashed sweet potato, two cupfuls of chopped apple, one cupful of soft bread crumbs, one-fourth of a cupful of melted butter, one teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper, and a teaspoonful of poultry dressing.

Celery Stuffing.

—Take one-half of a bunch of celery, two tablespoonfuls of butter, two eggs, one pint of bread crumbs, salt and pepper to taste. Chop the celery, add the crumbs squeezed dry from cold water, mix all the ingredients, add celery salt and the eggs lightly beaten.

WOMAN SO ILL WASHED DISHES SITTING DOWN

Mrs. Ashcroft's Remarkable Recovery After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Covington, Ky.—"I was so weak and nervous I could hardly do my housework as I could not stand because of the bearing-down pains in my back and abdomen. I sat down most of the time and did what I could do in that way—as washing dishes, etc. One day a book describing Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines was put in my mail-box. I saw how the Vegetable Compound had helped others so I gave it a trial. I had to take about a dozen bottles before I gained my strength but I certainly praise this medicine. Then I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood medicine for poor blood. I was cold all the time. I would be so cold I could hardly sit still and in the palms of my hands there would be drops of sweat. I also used the Sanative Wash and I recommend it also. You may publish this letter and I will gladly answer letters from women and advise my neighbors about these medicines."—Mrs. HARRY ASHCROFT, 632 Beech Avenue, Covington, Kentucky.

Paradoxical Corsica

Repairing Nets on the Ajaccio Key.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

Corsica, the scented isle just south of the Riviera, is, like every other country, a land of contrasts. But more than most, it is the land of paradox. Behind the striking beauty of the island, concealed beneath the commonplace exteriors of the people, there is a mystery, a contrary quality which first escapes observation and later intrudes everywhere. Probably nowhere is a generalization more likely to be true and false at the same time.

One goes to Corsica, as did Boswell's friend, expecting to find every bandit a menace. He remains to find the man with the gun the most unromantic of mortals. Melodrama heroes have accomplished more with the glitter of a silver spoon held reverently than the most Tartarinesque of Corsicans attempt when loaded to the belt. Yet personal encounter between natives is still a commonplace.

Corsica, where women go safely one by night and gendarmes travel pairs by day, where there are no bridges and no roads, where one expects the visitor to pay a tribute to "Kalliste" (Most beautiful) and few can name the mountains in whose shadow they were born!

Banditry is still a byword and thievery is abhorred. The innkeepers boast of what grand things they would do if there were more tourists, and neglect the few they have. The sun gives the land its charm; and the snow, its beauty and health. The roads are blocked by horses, mules and donkeys, few of them laden, and the automobile, even for the single traveler, offers the cheapest means of transportation. The perfume of the quills and the smells of the streets are alike indescribable.

Animals, made roommates, are treated cruelly, and children, seldom at home, are generally allowed to do as they please.

Life is somber and death is still the supreme event to those whose motonous days are as tenaciously clinging to as in happier and less lovely lands.

The mountain sides are terraced in infinite labor and the most fertile plains are left untilled. The sea around and mariners are few. Sailors that they are, the Corsicans claim kinship with Columbus, and indomitable fighters, they ignore Napoleon. Sacred personages, pictured on many walls, are profaned on the lips of male lips.

The donkeys and pigs feed on chestnuts of such quality that few in rich lands could afford, and every third seems underfed.

Life Is Lived There.

As one looks back on Corsica the confetti-strewn Corso in the long for the simple, unadorned, paradoxical paradise to the so comfortless, yet so compelling charm. With however little success life in Corsica is lived, it is real.

single village are really divided among several hamlets, included under one name but scattered about the hillside in a fashion which reveals separatist tendencies even in town affairs.

By following the coast we shall see most of the larger villages of the island and by so much lose sight of the true Corsican, who looks down in a real as well as a figurative sense on those who live in what to him are crowded cities.

Scenery, Not Costumes.

Nowhere has nature so quenched it over her subjects. The people add nothing to the scene. Certainly they do not give it its interest. From the attractive widow's weeds of the Cours Napoleon or the Place St. Nicolas to the somber costume with green-black headshaw which frames the sallow, wrinkled faces of the old woman of the interior, costume never flares forth with lambent color as it does in Sardania, in India, or on the Dominican coast. The men wear brown corduroy and bright enough to add pigment to the picture.

But the Corsicans are humble folk. They gladly subordinate themselves to the scenery, saying that the land is so beautiful that it needs no polychrome costumes to make it attractive. And when one sees with what indifferent success the townfolk do wear colors, he quickly reconciles himself to the somber garb which stands out so modestly against the beauty of the land itself.

Countless tiny terraces, where crops grow at such cost of labor as one finds among the Ifugaos of the Philippines or among the Chinese, testify to the fact that the Corsican is not truly glovenly. A certain thrift and foresight are habitual with him.

When the Greeks, no amateurs in beauty, called Corsica "Kalliste"—Most Beautiful—they referred to rugged coasts where blood-red rocks plunge deep into the sea, where a soft haze carries the succession of loveliness across wide plains, between tall mountains, to some distant snow-clad peak, all opalescent under the soft glow of departing day, where cascades pour their shower of pearls against rock cliffs as black as ebony.

Corsica is interesting because it is Corsica. With all its discomforts, the laggard land is worth a visit because it is laggard. Such unspoiled spots are so few in the modern world that one can tolerate petty inconveniences for the sake of knowing a people who have been little affected by modernism.

Napoleon's Town.

Ajaccio is Napoleon's home town. One is never allowed to forget that. But he did Corsica the great dishonor of quitting her shores, and few Corsicans seem to care much about him. Today Napoleon is to Ajaccio what Fujiyama is to Japan, and the to Wa-

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

At this joyful season our thoughts revert gratefully to those whose courtesy, good will and loyalty have made possible our progress. We extend our heartiest wishes for your happiness throughout the New Year.

The Model SELLS FOR LESS

Social Event

The Misses Ruby Henderson, Mary Moragne, Vernie Crabb and Gyrlee Lewis entertained thirty-four of their friends at a Progressive Dinner Party Friday evening.

In response to invitations the guests gathered at the Chamber of Commerce at seven o'clock where they were served with the first course consisting of scalloped potatoes, saltines and celery. At the second course Miss Mary Henderson asked the guests to follow her to the Moragne home where they were served the second course consisting of a delicious salad. At the conclusion of the second course the guests were taken to the home of Miss Vernie Crabb and Miss Gyrlee Lewis where they were entertained with the third course consisting of roast potatoes, creamed peas, hot chocolate and coffee.

At the band hall the tables were decorated with narcissus and poinsettias, at the Moragne home with Christmas decorations and at the Crabb home with mistletoe, a small Xmas tree and lighted with shaded candles.

The guests were: Mesdames, R. B. McGowen, Glenn Adams, Ern Davidson; the Misses Catherine and Christine McGowen, Pauline Bond, Veda Forbes, Carrie Gaines, Mamy Bowdoin, Lena Stutts, Elizabeth Hart, Syble Barr, Mamy Copping, Faustine Butler, Gyrlee Lewis, Mary Moragne, Ruby Henderson and Vernie Crabb; Messrs R. Lesson for January 4

CHRIST'S TRIUMPHAL ENTRY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:29-44.
GOLDEN TEXT—"Blessed be the King that cometh in the name of the Lord"—Luke 19:38.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A Great Crowd Praising Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Triumphal Entry.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Making Christ Our King.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Kingship of Christ.

The title given this lesson is somewhat misleading. Strictly speaking, this was far from a triumphal entry. It was rather the official presentation of the King of the Jewish nation. Back of the cry, "hosanna," the awful word, "crucify" was uttered by the same persons who cried "hosanna." Though they were utterly blind to the fact, God was about to carry out His plan of hosanna, which means "save now," through the crucifixion of the Son of God.

I. The Presentation (vv. 29-34).
1. Sending the Disciples for the Ass (vv. 29-31). He told them just where to go to find it and told them how to answer the inquiry of the one who owned it. This shows how perfectly the Lord knows all our ways. He knows our whereabouts by day and night. He even knows our thoughts. He uses unlikely means and insignificant things in the accomplishment of His purpose.

2. The Fulfillment of Prophecy (Matt. 21:4, 5). Some five hundred years before Zechariah had predicted this event. Christ's entry into Jerusalem was an exact fulfillment of this prediction. This is highly instructive to those who would understand the prophecies as yet unfulfilled. Since the prediction of his first coming was literally fulfilled, we can be assured that the prophecy of His second coming will be likewise fulfilled. The first is established beyond a doubt. The second we should as heartily believe. The prediction of Zechariah 14:3-11 will be just as literally fulfilled as that of Zechariah 9:9.

3. Obedience of the Disciples (vv. 32-34). Though the request may have seemed strange, and even unreasonable, they fully obeyed. The true disciple will render glad obedience to the Lord no matter how strange commands may seem. Obedience that only which seems reasonable is not obedience at all. May we say that we are real disciples!

II. The Entry of the King (vv. 35-38).

1. The Disciples Set Jesus on the Ass (v. 35). This act of their garments upon the ass, setting Jesus upon it showed they recognized Him as the King (II Kings 9:13).

2. Acclaimed as King by the Disciples (vv. 36-38). Some of their garments in the way. Others having no garments to spare, they tore their branches of trees and strung them on their asses. His way, which was not acceptable to Him. They did so for all the mighty works He had seen and cried out to the King that cometh in the name of the Lord.

III. The Critical Question (vv. 39, 40).

Although swept along in the demonstration of the multitude, it is prudent to ask the disciples, as suggested, to be interpreted by the fact that Jesus was not only fittingly and Jesus replied that if he had seen her that very night, a graceful, gray-eyed slip of a girl, the sweetest little maid in all of the world known to him—and of how he, brutal in the surge of love for her, had swept her into his arms, crushed her to him, forced upon her laughing lips the kiss of his own.

"My G—d," he said within himself, "I was mad. It would be a good thing if I got Quinnton tonight—and he got me. Two of a kind," he told himself sneeringly.

As he made his way down the ill-lighted street, his hat drawn over his eyes now, Bud Lee for a moment lost sight of the rows of rude shanties, the drowsing, saddle-ponies, the street-lamps, and saw only the vision of a girl. A girl clean and pure, a girl who, as he had seen her last, was a fairylike creature born of music and soft laughter and starlight, a maid indescribably sweet. In the harshness of the mood which gripped him, she seemed to him superlatively adorable; the softness of her eyes at the moment before he had kissed her haunted him. As he strode on seeking Quinnton, who had spoken evil of her, he carried her with him in his heart.

... but this is... I don't want... start over, I don't want to come... the sort of thing we knew... the only thing in the world I do want... is right here. And I don't see that... it would do any good for you to go... stirring up any memories about the... old Lee that was shot 'somewhere in... France.'

When Farris had to go and claim... a dance, Lee watched him with eyes... soft with affection. Then he, too, left... the room and went back to the outer... door, to his old spot, looking for Ju... dith.

"The only thing I want is right... here," he repeated softly.

He watched Farris join Marcia and... Judith. He noted the eager excite... ment in Marcia's eyes, saw her turn... impulsively to Farris. The artist shook... his head and left them, ostensibly go... ing in search of his partner. Marcia... was speaking excitedly to Judith. Lee... frowned.

Once more that night he held Judith... in his arms. He meant to make... amends for his brusque way with her... before. But again the magic of her... presence was like a glorious mist, shutting... them in together, shutting all... of the world out. They spoke little... and the music had its will with them. Judith... did not know that she sighed... as the dance ended. She seemed mov... ing in a dream as Lee led her through... the door. They were out in the court... yard, the stars shining leftily down... on them. In the subdued light here he... stood still, looking down into her... pleasure-flushed face. Again the in... sistent tremor shot down his blood.

Here in this tender light she looked... to him the masterpiece of God striv... ing for the perfect in a woman's form. Her... gown, gently stirred by the warm... breeze, seemed a part of her, elusive, alive, feminine. The milk-white of... bare throat and shoulder and rounded... arm, the rise and fall of her breast, the... soft lure of her eyes, the tender... smile upon her lips, drew him slowly... closer, closer to her. She lifted her... face a little, raising her eyes until... they shone straight into his.

"Judith," he said very quietly, very... gravely, making her wonder at the... tone and the words to follow: "You... have had your way with me tonight. Do... you understand all that means? And... now—I am going to have my way... with you!"

He caught her in his arms, crushed... her to him, kissed her. Then he let... her go and stood, stern-faced, watch... ing her.

For a moment he thought that the... hand at her side was rising to strike... him full in the face. But he did not... move.

Had such been Judith's intention, suddenly... it changed.

"So," she cried softly, "this is the... sort of fine gentleman into which a... dress-suit has made Bud Lee, horse... man! For so great an honor... come into Rocky Bend from lumber... camps, mines and cow outfits a crowd... of men whose blood ran red and tur... bulent, seeking a game of cards, a... 'whirl at the wheel,' a night of drink... ing or any other amusement which... fate might vouchsafe them. Good men... and bad, they were all hard men and... quick. Otherwise they would not... have come into Rocky Bend at all.

Lee and Carson riding out of the... darkness into the dim light of the first... morning street-lamps, passed swiftly... through the rows of weather-boarded... houses headed toward the Golden

... ready, Bud. Ain't lost... gun, have you?"

Lee shook his head and stepped into... the room. At the long bar were three... or four men drinking. Quinnton was... not among them. There were other... men at the round tables, playing draw... solo, stud horse. One glance showed... that Quinnton was not in the room. But... there were other rooms at the rear... for those desiring privacy. Lee, nod... ding this way and that to friends who... accosted him, made his way straight... to the bar.

"Hello, Sandy," he said quietly.

Sandy Weaver, the bartender, looked... at him curiously. A short, heavy, blond... man was Sandy Weaver, who ran a fair... house and gave his attention strictly to... his own business. Save when asked by a... friend to do him a favor, such a favor as... to keep an eye on another man.

"Hello, Bud," returned Sandy, put... ting out a red hand. All expression of... interest had fled from his placid face. "Come... in right away, eh? Hello Carson. Have... somethin'; on me, you know."

Lee shook his head.

"Not tonight, Sandy," he said. "Thanks... just the same."

"Me," grinned Carson. "I'll go you, Sandy. Same... thing—you know."

Sandy shoved out whisky-bottle and... glass. Then he turned grave eyes to Lee.

"One of these fellers can tend bar... while we talk if you want, Bud," he offered.

"You say Quinnton has been talk... ing?" asked Lee.

"Yes. Considerable. All afternoon... an evening, I guess. I didn't hear him... until I called you up."

"Then," continued the man from Blue... Lake ranch, "I don't see any call for you... and me to whisper, Sandy. What did he say?"

"Said you was a liar, Bud. An' a... skeerd-of-your-life d--n bluff."

A faint, shadowy smile touched... Lee's eyes.

"Just joshing, Sandy. But that wasn't... all, was it?"

"No," said Sandy, wiping his bar... carefully. "There was the other word, Bud. An'—say, Billy, tell him what... Quinnton had to say down to the Jail... bird."

Lee turned his eyes to Billy Young. Young, a... cattleman from the Up and Down range, shifted... his belt and looked uncomfortable.

"D--n if I do!" he blurted out. "It ain't... none of my funeral. An' if you ask me, I don't like the sound of that kind... of talk in my mouth. Maybe I can find my way... to church of a Sunday for staggerin' with red-eye, but I ain't... ever drug a nice girl's name into a barroom."

"So," said Lee very quietly, "that's... it, is it?"

"Yes," said Sandy Weaver slowly, "that's... it, Bud. Us boys knowed of Luke Sanford an' liked him. Some of us... even knowed his girl. All of us know the... sort she is. When Quinnton started his... talk—oh, it's a song an' dance about you an' her... all gone in some d--n cabin, trying to crawl... out'n the looks of things by accusin' Quinnton... of tryin' to shoot you up!—well, folks jus'... laughed at him. More recent, somebody must... have took him serious an' smashed him in the... mouth. He looks like it. But," and Sandy... shrugged his thick shoulders elaborately, "if... it's up to anybody it's up to you."

As their horses' hoofs hammered... the winding road for the forty miles... into Rocky Bend the two riders were... for the most part silent. All of the... explanation which Lee had to give, or... cared to give, was summed up in the... brief words: "Quinnton's in town."

To Judith, Lee had said that night... they fought together at the Upper End... that he had recognized Quinnton's... voice; "I played poker with that voice... not four months ago." That he had... had ample reason to remember the... man as well, he had not gone on to... mention. But Carson knew.

Carson had sat at Lee's left hand... that night, across the table from Chris... Quinnton, and had seen the look of... naked hatred in two pairs of eyes... when Lee had risen to his feet and... coolly branded Quinnton as a crook... and a card sharp. For a little the... two men had glared at each other, their... muscles corded and ready, their eyes... alert and suspicious, their hands close... to their pockets. Then Quinnton had... sneered in that evil voice of his: "You... got the drop on me this time. Look... out for the next." He, too, had risen... and with Lee's eyes hard upon him... had gone out of the room. And Carson... had been disappointed in a fight. But... now—now that Bud Lee in this mood... was going straight to Rocky Bend... and Quinnton, Carson filled his... deep lungs with a sigh of satisfaction. Life... had grown dull here of late; there... wasn't a fresh scar on his battered... body.

Though the railroad had at last... slipped through it, Rocky Bend was... still a bad little town and proud of... its badness. To the northeast lay the... big timber tracts into which the Western... Lumber company was tearing its... destructive way; only nine miles due... west were the Rock Creek mines, run... ning full blast; on the other sides it... was surrounded by cattle ranges, where... a lusty brood of young untamed devils... were constrained to give themselves... soberly to their work during the... long, dusty days. But at night, always... on a Saturday evening, there came... into Rocky Bend from lumber camps, mines... and cow outfits a crowd of men whose... blood ran red and turbulent, seeking a... game of cards, a "whirl at the wheel," a... night of drinking or any other amusement... which fate might vouchsafe them. Good... men and bad, they were all hard men... and quick. Otherwise they would not... have come into Rocky Bend at all.

Friday was clear and cool, but the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Vestal in Eastland county, was quite a contrast.

Though clear were the minds and spirits of all present, it was made warm by the warm greetings and handclaps together with the cheerful fires burning in the large fire places.

By the noon hour about forty guests had gathered and after much exchanging of greetings in keeping with the holiday season, dinner was announced and upon entering the spacious dining room, a table groaning under the burden of eats of every description, was the first object to meet the eye, from which every one feasted, for such it was, real feast.

The purpose of this gathering was to pay honor to the happy union of Miss Eva Hargrove, only daughter of Mrs. Emma Hargrove, and Mr. Euell Vestal only son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Vestal, on the 25th day of December, 1924, at Cisco, Texas, being accompanied by Miss Loma Irvin and Mr. Ben Atwood, Elder Holmes performing the sacred rites which bound them as one.

Both parties are of prominent families and have the congratulations of all who know them.

Contributed by Mina Montgomery.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Presbyterian Church met in their monthly executive meeting and elected the following who will serve as officers for the year 1925.

President, Miss Ara Eager; Vice President, Miss Vernie Crabb; Rec Secretary, Miss Virgie Eager; Cor. Secretary, Mrs. Jim Barr; Treasurer, Carl Eager; Chairman Program Committee, Chas. Hemphill; Chairman Publicity Committee, Seaborn Collins; Chairman Missionary Committee, Mrs. Chas. F. Hemphill; Chairman Quiet Hour Committee, Luther Leach; Chairman Social Committee, Mrs. Tom Bryant.

Brigner-Swan

W. N. Brigner and Miss Winnie Swan were married Dec. 24, at Coleman. They will make their home at Cottonwood, where Mr. Brigner is teaching school. Both contracting parties have many friends who will join in wishing them success.

Miss Elizabeth Hart is leaving this week for Abilene where she will enter Simmons College.

her, Mrs. Lee Swan who has been in Brown field for several months, has returned home,

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bryant took their youngest son, Tom Jr. to Dallas this week for examination and treatment of his eyes. Finding his condition not as serious as feared, they returned home this week.

THE CAR TO BUY

--is the car that DOES NOT change models, designs or styles every few months. WHY? Because the purchaser is the loser. You then want a new one and yours is an old model. Therefore you get disgusted and take a loss, in order to keep up with your neighbor. The car to buy is the one that is already a success, the one you could find a buyer for in case of sickness or misfortune and not lose all you have paid on it.

Most cars are bought on a credit basis, so buy the car that will be worth something when it is paid out. The Ford is a success already and is a big majority of the peoples' car. More Fords made and sold in one day than most cars cars in thirty days.
