BAIRD PRINTER HELD FOR MURDER

CHARGE YOUTH WITH SLAYING OF MOTHER AT HOME WEDNESDAY

Floyd Pretz, 20 year old Baird printer, was billed with murder Tuesday by a forty-second district court grand jury recalled to investigate the fatal shooting of the young man's mother at her home in Baird Wednesday night of last week.

District Attorney J. R. Black said Pretz, who is being held without bail, would probably be arraigned Friday morning. The court term ends Saturday.

Stories Conflict Mrs. Pretz died instantly at her home Wednesday night of last week, after having been shot with a .22 calibre rifle. The bullet hit her behind the right ear. Funeral services were held Friday and interment was made in the Ross cemetery at Baird.

Pretz first said that his mother was handling the gun to him, when it accidentally discharged. Officers doubted the truth of the statement because of circumstances surrounding the shooting. The young man was taken into custody following the funeral and questioned roundly. Later he issued a statement that he did shoot his mother but that it was accidental. Officers were still dissatisfied with the youth's explanation of how the shooting occurred and held him from further grilling. Late Saturday, Pretz admitted that he shot his mother and that it was not accidental, however, as yet no motive has been announced.

Injured Buffs Meet Rising Star Thursday

M'MILLAN, LACKEY WON'T PLAY; GAME CALLED FOR 2:30

If history repeats itself, and there are hundreds who swear the old adage is true, Cross Plains high school Buffaloes are in for a bad time when they tangle with the Rising Star Wildcats Thursday afternoon in the traditional turkey day grudge game on the local field. Kick-off is set for two o'clock.

Last year the high scoring, hard running Buffaloes, featuring Childs, Hall, Flahie and others were strong favorites to overwhelm the Wildcats until injuries besieged the locals and they went into the Rising Star game without the services of several stellar performers.

Injuries Hurt Locals There is little doubt either in Rising Star or Cross Plains that the Buffaloes could not defeat the Wildcats decisively if they were able to put mid-season strength on the field. But such is not the case, and the huge advantage that Cross Plains enjoyed three weeks ago is now narrowed to the width of a tea-cup piece.

Too, Rising Star school officials are especially desirous of evening the all-time conference victories between the two schools, which now lists the Wildcats only three victories against six for Cross Plains. Frequent reminding of this fact is expected to send a "fried" Wildcat eleven on the field today.

Huckaby To Back Field An absence of backs will force coach "Beans" Morris to shift Ab Huckaby, plucky guard, to the back field. It will be Huckaby's first appearance in the secondary.

Weights of the starting line-ups, as given out by coach Bodie Hunter and Morris yesterday, show the two teams to be of about equal size. Hunter, however, will have at his command a wealth of reserve material, whereas Morris will have to use substitutes sparingly.

Coleman Wins First Game In History From Crippled Buffaloes Friday Night

Lead by the brilliant line plunges of Captain Billy Murray, fullback, Coleman high school Friday night defeated the Cross Plains high Buffaloes, 7 to 0, in a district 25-B contest.

The score came in the fourth period when McMurtry hurried over right tackle for one yard and the pay dirt. He also made the extra point by crashing the line. The touchdown came as the result of a 95 yard march that began in the latter part of the third period. Only once was the march halted and that was for a five yard penalty.

Cross Plains threatened several times throughout the first half but was unable to cross the goal line, one effort being halted on the four yard line inches short of a first down. During the game Coleman made 16 first downs while Cross Plains was making eight.

Pierce, right half, and J. Ford, fullback, made most of the Buffaloes gains. Coleman completed five passes and falled on two while Cross Plains completed three and falled on two. Coleman was penalized eight times for 60 yards and Cross Plains twice for ten.

H. Barclay, Cross Plains left end, Watkins, Coleman center, and Bohannon, Coleman left end, were outstanding in line play.

The victory was Coleman's first in history over Cross Plains. Had the herd had the services of Jack McMillan, elusive, halfback, it would have been a much different story, believe local fans who saw the game.

Putnam Man Will Serve Cottonwood Methodist Church

Cottonwood Methodist church, heretofore a part of the Pioneer charge in the Cisco district, has been transferred to the Abilene district and will be a part of the Putnam charge. Rev. J. Morris Bailey, who served as pastor at Putnam last year, will serve the Cottonwood church this year in connection with his duties at Putnam. The Putnam church becomes a three fourth time appointment, and the Cottonwood church is quarter time.

The Rev. Mr. Bailey told the Review Wednesday afternoon that preaching services will be held regularly each fourth Sunday at the Cottonwood church. He urged that a large representation of the membership be present Sunday morning for his first sermon. In view of the fact that there will be no conflict with any of the other Cottonwood churches, the Rev. Mr. Bailey invited members of other denominations, as well as members of no church at all, to attend the Methodist services.

Sunday school will be held every Sunday at 10 o'clock and the Women's Missionary Society meets each Tuesday afternoon at two.

Senior Class To Present Play In Auditorium 9th.

Take a hundred thrills, a hundred chills, a hundred laughs and a hundred surprises; mix them all together into two hours of continuous entertainment and you have the "Haunted Chair", a three act comedy drama, to be presented by members of the senior class in Cross Plains high school auditorium Friday night, December ninth.

The excitement begins when Liza and Lazy Lee, ebony-lured servants in the "lonely Baxter mansion on Long Island, discover, at midnight, the body of their master cold in death. Murder! and what a night for murder! The wind howls the rain beats down in torrents, hooded spectres prowl, mysterious ghoul stalk, and the investigating detective vanishes into thin air. Just when you think you have solved the mystery another surprise awaits you. And Laughs! Liza and Lazy, played by Louise Graves and Teddy Walker, will see that your sensibilities are continually tickled. Gil-oolley, a dumb but likeable detective played by Junior Ford brings some breezy comedy into the play with Patti Sue Coburn and Doris Nell Gray helping him in hot water. Others in the cast are Granvel Pierce, Harold Barclay, Bernadine Rone, Ida Mae Hudson, Dessie L. Huntington, Colvin Lackey, Frenchie Bennett.

The author has made use of many years of experience to contract a play that appeals to all, so "The Haunted Chair" promises to be a treat to the whole community.

Amateur Hour
In former days we went to church to hear the pastor tell of golden streets of heaven or sulphur pits of hell. But now at home we twist a dial on polished radios and listen to the amateurs of Major Edward Bowes. I wonder if beyond the skies before a dazzling throne, St. Peter is the master of an astral microphone. I wonder when he calls on me to face that angel throng if I shall hear All right! All right! Of I'll get the song.

—Ruth Averitte in Salute to Dawn.

I discovered Ruth Averitte as a poet one night when I played hooky from church and heard the above amusing bit of whimsy on a broadcast. Then I learned of her newly published book of poems called "Salute to Dawn", which contains not only rhymes as delightful as the above but many poems of beauty and authenticity. Mrs. Averitte, a prominent club woman of Fort Worth, is a native Texan who has received two degrees from our state university. Her most recent achievement is the current publication of "Let's Review a Book," which has had commendation from critics all over the country. My opinion is that any person who intends ever to read another book should wait to begin it until after reading this guide and critical analysis of reading by Mrs. Averitte. His appreciation and understanding of literature will be forever enriched. Certainly no one who wishes to speak or write about books should be without it for the chapters devoted especially to the art of reviewing are invaluable. Mrs. Averitte writes with such charm and delightful sense of humor that the reader is almost unaware that he is being led into an acquisition of future pleasure and profit. The Tardy Company has published both "Salute to Dawn" and "Let's Review a Book."

The hardest working men in our town works from daylight 'till dark trying to keep out of work!

Recently I have had occasion to familiarize myself with the names of a great many newspapers. Some of these are so appropriately and uniquely named that I shall never again be able to think of the town without thinking at once of its newspaper. Arizona heads the list with "The Tombstone Epitaph"; but Texas has "The Pecos Wheel," "The Mesquite Mesquiter," "The Comanche Chief," and the Beville Bee-Picayune. These have set me wondering why no West Pointer, Seymour Light, Marathon Runner, Leaky Pail, Goose Creek Gander, nor Okra Gumbo? Now you name one!

Our Cousin Sim was not thankful for much on Thanksgiving Day. Poor Sim is an unhappy man for wherever he is he wishes he were somewhere else and when he gets there he wants to be back where he just left. When he has a job it isn't as good as the last one he had nor the one he hopes to get next. He doesn't care much for the girls he is going with now but his old one who married somebody else was the dream of his heart and the new one he sees going around the corner he tries to date as soon as he meets her. A certain man who thinks his initials occur too often in this column composed these lines about Cousin Sim . . . he hadn't seen the rhyme at the top of this page either.

When Cousin Sim has passed away if he reached Paradise, He will regret that he's in Heaven And not placed otherwise!

It is not only in November that we should set aside a day for thankfulness. Each day holds some moment when the heart should glow a little warmer because we live and have our being in these United States. Even the most wretched among us may hold high the imperishable flame of his spirit and spare a throb of compassion for those less fortunate. We, as individuals, have our various troubles; many of us go about speaking harsh words of the government; all of us mutter and grumble about taxes; most of us worry constantly about how to make financial ends meet. But after all it is our privilege that we can dispense our President; we can anathematize prevailing conditions; we can say "I shall," or "I shall not" to any man . . . and yet come home to our peaceful firesides and laugh around us those whom we love best. Pity those who cannot.

money for my dad when he needed it to save his said. "Now I'm going to little talk with him on my get stared. "If you want them beans?" the counterman. Tinnie had already raced door.

The two henchmen jumped out from the bathroom, and rushed to intercept the boy in the hall. But as they reached the doorway Donovan cried out a command to halt. "Don't chase him!" he told them. "Let him go."

He had too many schemes in his mind at the moment to risk any conversation with the police even if it meant surrendering some of the profits he had accumulated, when he tricked Tinnie into throwing the race.

Back in Roger's apartment a visitor was being entertained. Doc Godfrey, confidential emissary of Donovan, had come to offer five thousand dollars for the Pookah, with instructions to go as much higher as necessary.

Roger was not quite as easily sold as Doc Godfrey had anticipated. He refused five thousand dollars, and when Doc went to six, the youngster was still obstinate.

Finally Doc turned on his heel, faced the boy and said in a tone of finality: "I'll tell you what. I'll make it seventy-five hundred. That's more than you could get anywhere else."

"I think I'll wait for the public auction," answered Roger firmly. He glanced at Wilkins, the trainer. Doc was becoming angry. He had no intention of leaving but he must make better headway than this. He pretended to start for the door, then paused.

"Listen," he cried. "The top at the auction would be five grand. I'm giving you seventy-five hundred. I'll give you ten per cent of what he makes in the race besides."

Roger was wavering now. Doc could see that. "Take it or leave it," he added. He pulled an agreement from his pocket, and jotted down the figure. "Well, I suppose it's all right," said Roger. He took the fountain pen that was offered him. He had just made the first strokes of his name on the paper when a commotion was heard at the door.

In rushed Tinnie, wild-eyed and excited. "Roger!" he cried. "I got a thousand bucks! We're all set!"

Roger leaped up, and grasped his arm. He too was now surcharged with excitement. "I've changed my mind," he said turning to Doc. "The Pookah isn't for sale."

"You can't do that!" screamed Doc. "You can go to jail for backing out on a deal like that!"

"Yeah?" countered Tinnie, re-alleged medical attendant. "Well, you can go to jail for making believe you're a doctor."

"Listen, you little punk!" blustered the other. "You know what you done! You queried a deal for your own father!"

"Well, you tell the old man I owe him a grand and if he wants to get even, bet on the Pookah tomorrow."

He threw the coat he had been carrying in Godfrey's face. The latter, crimson with rage, rushed from the room.

Hop Skit had been installed as favorite to win the American Cup. The jockey was Dink Read. Donovan and his clique had had confidential dealings with him before. This time their combined bankrolls were on the favorite, and they made sure that Dink knew it. He was warned that he must win, no matter how.

The Donovan group knew that the Pookah would be the most dangerous contender. He had been under-riden before, and Tinnie now was ready to give his last ounce of energy toward putting the Calverton steed home in front.

But suppose Tinnie could be kept from riding?

The jockeys were rapidly changing from street clothes to purple, yellow and black silks. Tinnie, fingering the Calverton colors, felt a sharp stab of pain at the thought of how he had betrayed his greatest benefactor, Sir Peter. Coupled with this was a determination to partially atone by riding the finest race of his career.

"Another one of them grandstand finishes today, Big Shot?" questioned Dink Read, passing by. "You'll be able to watch me come home without turnin' round," answered Tinnie, a steely glint in his eye.

The telephone in the room rang. A valet answered. He turned and tapped Tinnie on the shoulder. "Report to the judges stand right away," he ordered.

THANKSGIVING DAY MATINEE THURSDAY

Steve Bordie was willing to take a chance to win and so is Ralph Bellamy. The adventurous spirit of this bond actor who plays the title role of Universal's "The Crime of Dr. Hallett," coming to the Liberty Theatre as a special Thanksgiving matinee for one day only Thursday, has had much to do with his success on stage and screen.

He has scored some of his big guest hits in roles which were considered risky to fill. His present part as Dr. Hallett exposed him to the danger of handling active cholera and tropical fever germs in this tale of elemental love and hate set loose in the Sumatran jungle. He was willing to run that risk however, because the role appealed to him by its portrayal of the human side of a heroic scientist.

Cornelius Elliott, of Abilene Christian college was in town over the week end.

Honor Beloved Atwell Couple Sunday On Their Golden Wedding Anniversary

Members of the immediate family in attendance Sunday included: Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Brashear, prominent Atwell resident, were honored by their children, relatives, neighbors and friends Sunday, on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Brashear were married November 22, 1888, in Coryell county. They moved to this county in 1910 and have resided here continuously since. They are the parents of 14 children, 11 of whom are living. All were present at the festivities Sunday except Mrs. C. K. Mercer, of Kilgore. Evidencing the affection in which they are held, neighbors and friends began arriving early Sunday morning bringing tokens of love and admiration. A high spot of the gala occasion was a banquet luncheon spread at noon. It was necessary to serve the meal in the open to accommodate the 185 people present. One of the most beautiful delicacies was a mammoth wedding cake, elaborately decorated.

County Agent's Column

Here is another soil-building story: From 2 acres of land on which a crop of cowpeas had been turned under in 1935, J. O. Connel of Denton reports that he harvested 175 pounds of lint cotton per acre. Theyield of cotton on similar land that had no crop of peas turned under was 55 pounds per acre.

The acreage of farm land on which terrace lines had been laid off went over the 4000 acre mark last week. To be exact, lines have been laid off on 4140 acres of Calhoun County farms. Lines were laid off on the following farms that are waiting for county road machinery that will be used in the construction of terraces: Jesse McIntosh, Denton, 40 acres; Mrs. L. Harris, Olin, 60 acres; Mark Burnham, Olin, 60 acres; and C. H. Young, Eula, 40 acres. Ralph Fuller's terraces, one mile east of Clyde, have already been put up.

Fruit tree pruning demonstrations are planned at Clyde, Midway, Iona, Cottonwood, Atwell, and Cross Plains in January of 1937. Meeting places for the demonstrations will be announced later.

Quincy Loven is building a self-feeder that will be used to fatten shoats for home use and for market. Corn and barley will be the main feed, supplemented with one pound per day of a mixture of equal parts of cottonseed meal and tankage.

The Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, which will be in force in 1939 if farmers vote for quotas and Congress leaves it alone, contain many good features which, according to Congressman Marvin Jones, are being over-looked by Congressmen. Jones lists them as follows:

1. Freight rate provision which authorizes the Secretary to intervene for the purpose of correcting

Couple Well Known Here Celebrates 50th Wedding Anniversary At Home In Jayton

One of Jayton's most beloved pioneer couples, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Kennedy, were observing their Golden Wedding anniversary recently. The couple is well known in Cross Plains.

Missouri Imogene Holdridge and Charles Sidney Kennedy were married at Sikesville, in Clay county, Alabama, November 4, 1888. Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy moved to Texas December 5, 1892, and settled at Cottonwood, Callahan county. The last 10 of the 24 years they resided at Cottonwood, Kennedy was engaged in the mercantile business. From Cottonwood, they moved to Peacock, Stonewall county, where they lived until 1916, moving thence to Lockney, Texas and back to Jayton in December 1917. For 10 years Kennedy was in the mercantile business in Jayton, retiring in 1929.

Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy have played prominent parts in the building of Jayton. Mrs. Kennedy's love of flowers and beautiful shrubs, have been exemplified by her beautiful yard and flower gardens. Both were very active in church and civic affairs for many years. Kennedy was stricken with paralysis several years ago, but never-theless took to his wheel chair and continued to garden and follow his hobby of woodworking.

Children, most of whom, if not all, were present for the anniversary are Mrs. W. H. Norred, Putnam; Mrs. O. W. Coats, Lubbock; A. B. Kennedy, Lockney; Mrs. J. R. Tarver, Plainview; Geo. C. Kennedy, Aspermont; D. Kennedy, Jayton; Margaret Kennedy, Plainview.

VILLAGE IS SOLD TO PAY OPERATOR'S WAGES. The entire Duffrin county village of Bowling Green has been sold at auction to pay the back wages of a telephone operator.

Most of the village, including a private telephone line linking 400 farms, was owned by Henry Edgar who died last year, leaving no will. Miss Phyllis Maltby had worked as the village switchboard operator for six years without being paid, and she claimed $600 in back wages.

So it was decided to sell the village to satisfy her claim. Bidding at the auction was slow, and the auctioneer was barely able to raise the $600. Among the objects sold was an old horse for $25, an old table for $1, a box of odds and ends for 10 cents, a blacksmith shop and a few old, vacant houses and lots.
