Polio Fatal To 12 Year Old Daughter Of Hick Edingtons

Coming as a shock to this community last week was the death of Bobbie Nell Edington, 12 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. (Hick) Edington, in an Abilene hospital Thursday morning at four o'clock.

Funeral services were conducted from the First Baptist Church here Friday afternoon at 2:30 with Rev. J. W. Chapman, pastor, officiating. Burial was made in the Cross Plains cemetery.

Bobbie Nell, a seventh grade student in the local school, was stricken ill Monday, however, she was believed at first to have only a touch of influenza. Her condition failed to improve and she was taken to the Hendrick Memorial hospital in Abilene Wednesday night. She died several hours later, of what physicians diagnosed as bulbar polio.

News of the untimely passing of the popular little girl cast a spell over the entire community and at school children openly wept. Classes were dismissed at two o'clock Friday afternoon for the funeral services. The auditorium of the Baptist church was crowded far beyond capacity and throngs stood outside.

Born January 22, 1938, Bobbie Nell was at the time of her death 12 years, seven months and 29 days of age.

Survivors include the parents, a sister, Sue, four, the maternal grandmother, Mrs. W. C. Klutts, and the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jody Edington of Burkett, as well as a great host of kinsmen.

Palbearers at the funeral and interment services were: Fred W. Stacy, Fred Cutbirth, Harold Garrett, Otis McKinney, Lloyd Bryan, Alvie Cavanaugh and Lloyd Rich. Arrangements were in charge of Higginbotham's funeral home.

Large Crowd Will Follow Buffaloes To Bangs For Game

With two non-conference games behind them and still undefeated, Cross Plains high school Buffaloes journey to Bangs Friday night for their first taste of the championship campaign.

Coaches Frank Rundell and Paul Huntington point out that several of their stalwarts sustained injuries last Friday night in the six to nothing conquest of De Leon and may be somewhat slowed by the hurts.

Donald Beeler, dependable wingman, received a deep laceration about the eye but is expected to start Friday night's game. Freddy Stacy was cut about the mouth and no less than a half dozen others were limping Monday afternoon with bruises acquired in the De Leon game.

The Bangs Dragons have served notice that they intend to avenge the 19 to seven lacing handed them by the Cross Plains aggregation last year, and a hard fought contest is anticipated.

Several hundred fans are expected to follow the Buffaloes to Bangs for the game.

Buffaloes Delight Big Home Crowd In Defeating De Leon

Before a crowd of 1,200 in the season's first home game, Cross Plains high school Buffaloes defeated the De Leon Bearcats here Friday night six to nothing. The lone touchdown came in the third period when Jim Cade, elusive Bison back, skirted into the open and ran 51 yards to pay dirt. A key block thrown by Ted Sessions removed the last Bearcat defender and paved the road for Cade's triumphant sprint.

The teams fought on virtually equal terms with the visitors having the best of the situation in the first half and Cross Plains commanding the show in the last. De Leon made eight first downs to Cross Plains' five, but trailed in yardage gained rushing 100 against 137 for coach Frank Rundell's charges.

Frequent fumbles beset the De Leon offense and seven times they lost possession of the ball to alert Buffalo gridders. James Barr, back, led in the recoveries, scooping up two of the visitors' miscues. Cross Plains lost ownership of the ball on fumbles three times and had two kicks blocked.

De Leon often ran from spread formations and threw the ball about with abandon. Of 18 passes attempted, they completed but five for an aggregate of 41 yards. Two were intercepted. Cross Plains threw only once, and this effort failed to connect.

The Cross Plains line turned in a splendid performance after the first few minutes. Howard Lee Neeb, Vernon Phillips, and Freddy Tatom crashed into the De Leon secondary repeatedly, spilling Bearcat ball carriers. At ends, Donald Beeler and Bobby Oliver were particularly outstanding. Gerald Foster, Ervis Coggin and Dwayne Adams manned the guard slots most of the night, showing improved proficiency.

Coaches Rundell and Paul Huntington substituted their backs frequently, giving all the leather loggers game experience, however, Cade and Freddy Stacy proved the most consistent gainers. Much improvement since the Aspermont game was noted in the backfield ball handling, indicating that the herd may become adept at these maneuvers before the season's end.

Fans were particularly appreciative of improvement shown in blocking, frequently shouting out the names of youths who contributed to the offensive effort with significant blocks. Tackling of the team as a whole also seemed better.

For the visitors D. Stacy in the backfield was most outstanding, rolling up more than half the yardage gained by the visitors. He was also a stalwart on the defense and it was while he was out of the game in the third period that the Buffaloes pushed over their winning tally.

Seventeen members of the Quarterback Club met in the high school building here Monday night. 10 men were named to serve for the next two weeks in transporting football players to their homes each afternoon after practice sessions.

The football team has two sets of playing jerseys this year.

Next meeting of the Quarterback Club will be held Monday night, October ninth, at which time several important matters are to be discussed. Plans are to have a football film shown at that time.

Few Errors Made By Army In War Casualty Reports

Washington, Sept. 20—Although 8,957 United States casualties have been reported officially since beginning of the Korean war, only three cases of reporting wrong names have been uncovered, a spokesman said. The total number of casualties reported up to September sixth include killed, wounded, missing and captured. The Army, which normally has the largest casualty list, said casualty reporting is difficult, but feels that it has devised a pretty good system over its long years of experience. In spite of all precautions, the Army said, errors sometimes occur. Although service numbers are used to identify all personnel, some service numbers can be so nearly alike that clerks make errors. The Army said sometimes it is not the first to notify next of kin. In some cases, a spokesman said, news correspondents use the names of men wounded in action before the Army has time to verify names of the wounded. However, the services have made no complaint about the use of names of men a correspondent sees wounded in action. In other cases a wounded soldier, or one of his buddies, telephones or writes to the next of kin. An airmail letter usually will reach the soldier's family before an Army report is verified, the Army said. A military spokesman said no record was kept of the errors in reporting World War II casualties, but an officer in charge of notifications at the time said the percentage of wrong notifications was very low. There were 1,006,993 Americans killed, wounded, died of wounds, missing and captured during World War II.

Vernon Huntington With U. S. Navy In Shelling Of Korea

B. B. Huntington this week received a letter from his son, W. V. Huntington, who is with United States Naval forces in Korean waters. The letter told of the navy's part in the recent landings in Korea, and the Review has been privileged to reproduce portions.

"After 10 years and two months I can finally say I've seen the navy in action. I was, and still am, a participant in one of the, to quote General MacArthur, "one of the greatest feats ever accomplished by the navy". In other words my ship was in on the invasion of Inchon. I must say from all indications we really did a good job. We first started shelling on September 13 and continued for about four hours. This was the day three of our destroyers were hit.

"On the second day we were bombarded for about four hours but there was no return of fire. On the fifteenth, D-Day, we started shelling early in the morning and along about 3:20 everything in the bay cut loose for 20 minutes solid. It was just one continuous explosion over there on the beach. Within 15 seconds after we stopped the first marines landed. 180 Koreans surrendered immediately and others were killed or ran inland. I know for sure nothing could have lived on that beach unless it was far underground.

The Marines made about five miles the first day and yesterday and today soldiers are going ashore. I don't know where Uncle Sam got all the men and ships but they are here and I am glad. Maybe they can wind this thing up in a hurry.

"We had a couple of good scares, one the first day when all hell broke loose from the beach, however, my ship was out of range but the little destroyers were right in there hugging the coast. Three of them were hit. We first got the report that all of them had been hit but later found that it was only three. None of them were sufficiently damaged to withdraw and all stayed right in there throwing everything they had at the Reds. One officer was killed when a shell hit the control room, and two other men were wounded. The wounded and the dead man were brought aboard our ship and the deceased was buried at sea.

"Two enemy planes came over this morning. One dropped a couple of bombs close to the cruiser operating with us, and then proceeded to make a strafing run on an English vessel. It won't ever make another though. Those English don't play.

"Heard a few minutes ago that the USS Missouri is out here. She is a ship that can really send a hunk of steel a long way and the missile is twice as large as any we can throw.

"Guess this is about all there is to say for now. Best wishes to you and all my friends in Cross Plains".

Drunken Drivers In Texas May Be Given Severe Punishment

Austin, Sept. 20—A legislative committee announced that it is considering a measure to strengthen laws on drunken drivers with suspension of licenses of DWI offenders for one year.

Rep. Cecil Storey of Longview, chairman of a committee to revise the state's criminal code, said he does not "take to the idea of large fines for drunken driving. I think confinement and deprivation of the right to operate a car would be better for the public."

However, Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., director of the Department of Public Safety, said he felt present penalties were adequate. He pointed out that penalties for drunken driving under Texas laws are the same as those in the Uniform Motor Vehicle Code adopted by 33 states.

"It seems," Garrison said, "that our courts are somewhat reluctant to assess the maximum penalties provided, and we do not believe that they would be receptive to handling cases at all in the event the penalties would be made more severe."

More Personnel Needed

However, the state law enforcement chief said that "additional personnel in the driver's license division and in the highway patrol coupled with the development of public demand for the courts to assess heavier penalties, would be most helpful."

Garrison reported that for the first seven months of 1950, 7,022 convictions were registered in Texas on charges of driving while intoxicated.

He said that 4,024 arrests were made by the highway patrol, resulting in 3,662 convictions. In 67 per cent of the cases, the minimum fine of $50 and costs was assessed, in 25 per cent more than the minimum fine was assessed.

Masterpiece Left By Soldier Killed In Korea Fighting

Pfc. John McCormick is dead. But the ideas he died for in Korea will live forever in a letter which he sent his two small daughters.

The girls—one three and the other six year old—are too young to understand now. But Joan and Rose Marie McCormick will treasure the words written by their father in a Korean foxhole under a premonition of death.

The letter, scrawled on a piece of not-paper McCormick carried in his helmet, arrived recently, a few days after the family received official notice of McCormick's death.

McCormick, 23, was a veteran of World War II, serving as a paratrooper in the European theatre. Mrs. L. E. Sheel, with whom his wife, Mary, 27, is living, said McCormick re-enlisted because "he felt that the Army was where he was needed most."

Mrs. McCormick is employed as a seamstress in a Philadelphia clothing plant. Rose Marie is boarding at a private school. Joan is living with a friend.

Addressed to "Dear Joannie and Rose Marie," the letter said:

"This is Daddy. I want you to listen and pay attention while Mummie reads this to you. Just try to make believe I was there, talking to you . . .

"If I have to go help God, you'll know that the last thought I had on this earth was for the two of you and Mummie," the 28 year old McCormick wrote in a Korean foxhole.

"There are a lot of bad men in 'the world,' he wrote, "and if they were allowed to do what they wanted to do, little girls like you wouldn't be allowed to go to church on Sunday or be able to go to the school you wanted to.

"So I have to help fight these men and keep them from coming where you and Mummie live. It might take a long while, and maybe Daddy will have to go help God up in Heaven.

"And if I do, I always want you both to be good for Mummie, because she is the best Mummie in the whole wide world.

"The reason I am where I am today is because I am fighting for what I think is right. That's one thing I always want both of you to remember. If your conscience tells you something is right, always stand up for it."

Then McCormick reminded his little girls of all their mother had done for them, and asked them to go to church each Sunday and pray for him.

"All my love and kisses," he concluded. "Be good and God bless you, Daddy."

SECTION 2. Any person violating any of the provisions of this Ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined in any sum not to exceed two hundred dollars ($200.00) and each violation thereof shall be and is hereby declared to be a distinct and separate offense and punishable as such.

SECTION 3. The fact that traffic on the streets of the City of Cross Plains has greatly increased with the growth of the City's population, and the fact that existing ordinance of said City do not afford an adequate and comprehensive regulation and control of the traffic in zones where schools, etc. may be located, create the necessity for this ordinance to be passed and become effective upon its first reading and publication as provided by the general laws of Texas, and it is so ordained. Passed and Approved this 11th day of September, 1950.

Newly elected officers of Better Texas Pastures, Incorporated, receive files of the organization from Governor Allan Shivers, far right, who recently proclaimed a pasture decade for Texas and appointed a state wide pasture committee which formed the new club. The officers are, left to right, E. L. Boston of Angleton, Treasurer; Dr. Bruce McMillan of Overton, Secretary; Tommie Brooks of Camp San Saba, Vice-chairman; Clyde W. Voyles of Austin, Chairman; and Governor Shivers. Purpose of the newly organized group is to assist all agricultural efforts in improving Texas pastures.

Texas' Share Of U. S. School Lunch Money Is $3,706,887

The Agriculture Department has apportioned $64,625,000 among the states and territories to help feed about 8,000,000 children under the national school lunch program. Texas will get $3,706,887.

The lunch program is run under an $83,500,000 congressional appropriation.

Seventeen and a quarter million dollars of the fund is reserved for department purchases and distribution to the states of foods needed to meet specific nutritional requirements of school children. The rest is an outright grant to the states and territories.

Under the program, the federal government reimburses participating schools somewhat for money they spend on local purchases to provide nutritional and inexpensive lunches for children. States put up $1.50 for each dollar the government offers.

Last year more than 1,200,000,000 noontime meals were served to about 8,000,000 youngsters attending 50,000 participating schools. State allotments include: Alabama $2,305,118; Arkansas,

$1,557,877; Florida, $1,161,420; Georgia, $2,235,599; Illinois, $2,222,085; Indiana, $1,497,999; Kansas, $765,617; Kentucky, $2,089,947; Louisiana, $1,667,922; Mississippi, $2,047,084; Missouri, $1,508,764; North Carolina, $2,834,138; Ohio, $2,956,920; Oklahoma, $1,378,853; South Carolina, $1,701,715; Tennessee, $2,145,078; Virginia, $1,595,583.
