

Easter Rains Cover The Trade Territory; .40 Received Here

Fine rains which started about 9:00 a.m. Easter Sunday morning, with a heavy drizzle and wound up late in the afternoon with a heavy shower, measured from .40 to nearly an inch of moisture in this area.

Here in town the early morning drizzle amounted to approximately .10 inch with the evening shower measuring about .30. Some communities in this area reported nearly an inch of moisture during the afternoon.

While the precipitation was hard on the new Easter bonnets there seemed to be nothing but smiles on the faces of the girls in these parts and everyone had the same comment to make . . . "Isn't this a beautiful Easter Sunday?"

This area was fortunate in escaping the high wind and hail which accompanied the rain in many parts of north Central Texas. The moisture will be of untold benefit on grain crops and pastures and will aid in bringing up feed crops which have been planted recently.

Postmaster Reports All Post Office Boxes Taken

Postmaster F. R. Anderson, the past week, reported all post office boxes rented and stated that this is the first time since the present equipment was installed that all the small boxes have been rented.

Considering this and the fact that it is virtually impossible to rent a house or apartment here, proves that Cross Plains has been holding its own in the matter of population and possibly gaining despite the prolonged drought that has held sway over this area for over two years.

There has been some admitted loss in rural population the past year, but the city figures have remained about normal and part of this can be attributed to the oil drilling program which has carried on here the past two years. Many local farmers have obtained employment in the oil fields, too, making it possible for them to weather their crop failures.

THE BAYOU PHILOSOPHER SAYS EINSTEIN'S NEW THEORY MAY BE FINE FOR ALBERT, BUT NOT HIM

Editor's note: The Bayou Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on the Bayou is in pretty deep water this week, but he probably lands in the shallows before his letter ends.

Dear editor:

I read in a copy of a newspaper which was wrapped around some vegetable plants my neighbor gave me yesterday, I guess it was a pretty nice gesture and I appreciate it, but given me some plants to set out is about as neighborly as giving a man who asked for some firewood an ax, as I say, I read in this paper where Albert Einstein has come up with a new theory of the universe.

As I understand the matter, he has a new formula which explains the universe, but nobody understands the formula and as far as I'm concerned I believe I'd just as soon be baffled by the universe as baffled by a formula about the universe. If you can't understand what any women are naggin about, it doesn't make much difference which woman is doin the naggin. If I'm gonna lose a crop, I'd just as soon lose it from lack of work as lose it from insects or a hail storm.

Man has learned a whole lot about the universe in the last few hundred years, but it's mostly in the line of gadgets. I doubt if Halenkov, the new Russian dictator, has the mental capacity to make an atom bomb, but the trouble is he has the political capacity to drop one. It seems to me if we allowed only the people capable of makin atom bombs to use em, we might all be safer off. On the other hand, you could carry this theory too far in other directions. While it would suit me all right to have only the people capable of buildin tractors run em, I'm afraid some of my more energetic neighbors wouldn't like it. While it seems to me the least the man who invented the hoe could do is swing it himself exclusively or the man who invented the lawn mower could do it himself, there are people who persist in hornin in on hoe swingin and lawn mowin themselves.

Einstein may be able to figure out a formula that'll explain the universe satisfactorily to him, but I intend to keep on being baffled myself. It's easier, you can do it in the shade, and you'll have a whole lot more company.

I've got a formula for runnin this farm more efficiently, but when it comes to a choice between workin or stayin baffled, I'll stay baffled.

Yours faithfully,

J. A.

Signposts Point Out the Pathway of the Alcoholic

By An Alcoholic
(Second of a Series)

Any person, who having one drink, can't predict with absolute certainty what his behavior is going to be is a problem drinker. If one drink invariably leads to countless more and behavior becomes harmful to self and others, such a person should stop drinking completely. If he cannot stop, in view of the record, he is an alcoholic.

To all people who live close to someone who drinks too much it is sound advice to be informed about alcoholism and the known signals which usually appear to warn of threatening alcoholism.

It is generally agreed that emotional conflicts play an important part in the development of alcoholism. An emotionally unstable person is a poor prospect to handle alcohol successfully or moderately. And such a person is likely to find in alcohol the answer to his sober inability to deal with reality. Some of these basic emotional disorders which generally stem from childhood are:

1. Childishness or infantillism. A person becomes adult in mind and body, but remains an infant emotionally. When disappointed, he acts like a baby.
2. An extremely sensitive nervous system which reacts quickly and severely to alcohol.
3. Feelings of inferiority—that one is not liked or loved, or is not wanted.
4. Feelings of fear and guilt possibly finding root in childhood.
5. Feelings of superiority growing out of a pampered childhood—all getting and no giving. Apt to become an adult who feels the world owes him a living.

6. Despondency—feeling that life has no meaning. Once alcohol becomes a necessity for such people, the emotional troubles become greater and greater, and the need for more alcohol equally great.

Why some people become alcoholics while others do not is still a major unsolved mystery to science. However, medical research over the past 10 years has given us much valuable information.

From the thousands of medical case histories of recovered alcoholics it has been found that there are certain uniform trademarks which crop up in the drinker's behavior which can be used as guides in spotting possible alcoholics.

When occasional drinking begins to progress into periods of drunkenness, it is time for concern. Once in awhile a person may choose to get drunk—to blow off steam. However, the next day he usually writes off his foolishness, suffers out the hangover, and does no more drinking for a spell.

Nevertheless, increasing drunkenness is no longer social drinking and may indicate the presence of inner mental conflicts and need for alcohol.

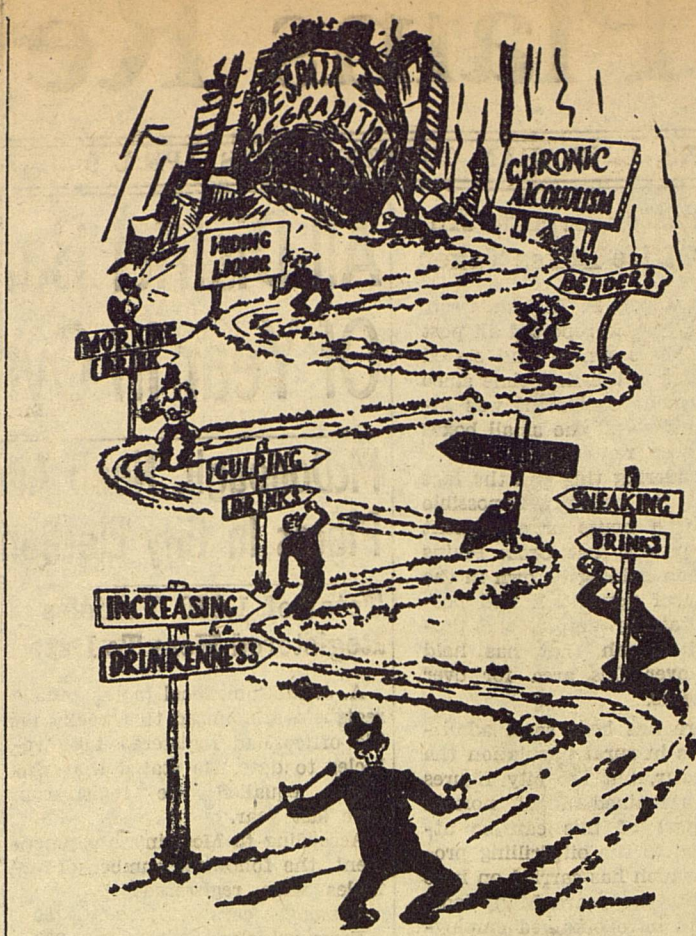

Big-shot exhibitions by people who can ill afford them cannot be considered under the heading of good judgment. The sober, worried, thrifty, insecure person who goes on a rampage when drinking is, through alcohol, seeking to be someone other than himself.

Sneaking drinks reveals a dangerous need for alcohol. Such a person has to be sure he has enough to remain keyed-up to a particular state of mind which cannot be provided without alcohol.

Gulping drinks would not be for taste or enjoyment. A quick "kick" or lift is the objective with this type of drinker.

When a person gets drunk and suffers from so-called blackouts, when he does not remember where he has been, or what he has said or done, it is clear that he has lost control over alcohol—at least on that occasion. Blackouts should be regarded as on the fringe of alcoholism.

If one drinks more than he intends every time he takes a drink, control is gone. When he drinks at the wrong time and can't carry out his routine duties and responsibilities, he has lost control over the occasion for drinking. This type is one in need of immediate help if he cannot stop the drinking. Saying he can stop without stopping is of little help, of course.

The next level of fall finds the problem drinker discovering that a drink or two in the morning will remove the hangover from the night before. It's not long before the need for scattered drinks throughout the day sets in to interfere with the working schedule. This is the threshold of real trouble.

The drinker soon suffers from painful feelings of guilt. He begins to feel sorry for himself and withdraws from those close to him. More drinking becomes the formula for relief. It isn't long before he is a solitary drinker—drowning his sorrows in his own company—which he doesn't like either. He drinks to forget, but never can forget to drink.

Occasionally the victim will try to change his drinking ways. Some pressure finds its mark and he tries to control the drinking by stopping for a spell. Perhaps, he feels that a few bottles of beer at home, and then only in the company of others, will be the answer. As the victim's condition gets worse, he will show a marked disregard for moral and ethical codes. His promises may come in quantity without quality, and his good intentions are a dime a dozen in abundance. The whole structure of his personality soon falls apart.

Through all this confusion and chaos, the alcoholic will deeply resent any criticism of his drinking, particularly from his family. His lies will increase as his reliability decreases. His moods will swing violently—even when not drinking.

Resentments, fears, etc., flood the lives of all alcoholics. When they can't get what they want when they want it, it's usually a quick retreat for the bottle. Resentments are the cause of more benders than any other fingle factors.

Early detection and prompt, proper treatment is the answer. Prevention of alcoholism means the sparing of misery for millions. But, everyone must realize that the alcoholic is a sick person and treat him as such.

Your Senator Reports

(Senator Lyndon B. Johnson, writing from Washington, gives a weekly report on happenings in the National Capitol as they affect Texas and Texans.)

The Senate took up last Wednesday the legislation resoring Texas' title to every foot of land she had as an independent Republic and which we retained when we entered the United States.

This is the so-called Holland Bill, of which Senator Price Daniel and I are cosponsors. Senator Daniel and I worked together very closely to get this bill out of committee. Senator Johnson Forty Senators are co-sponsors of this bill and it has the support of the Administration. The House passed similar legislation last week.

Texas' historical boundaries will be restored.

I understand that bills are to be introduced in the Senate and House to reorganize the Farm Credit Administration and make it an independent agency. I have not yet sent copies of the proposed bills, but the principal involved seems sound. The legislation would bring control and participation in all functions of the agency down to local levels within the 12 agricultural credit districts throughout the country. I think the agency should also be permitted to make economic emergency loans for any agricultural purpose, as well as for the disaster type loans now authorized.

Secretary of Agriculture Benson called a grain sorghum industry conference here Tuesday of last week. Purpose was to review the present grain sorghum situation and to consider measures to help stabilize prices and production. Invised from Texas were B. J. Gist of Abilene; Jack N. Greenman of Fort Worth, and Bob Yeager and Mark Triplett, both of Amarillo.

The FSA reorganization bill, main effect of which so far as Texans are concerned will be to make Oveta Culp Hobby of Houston the first Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, sailed through the Senate last week. Nobody registered a negative vote.

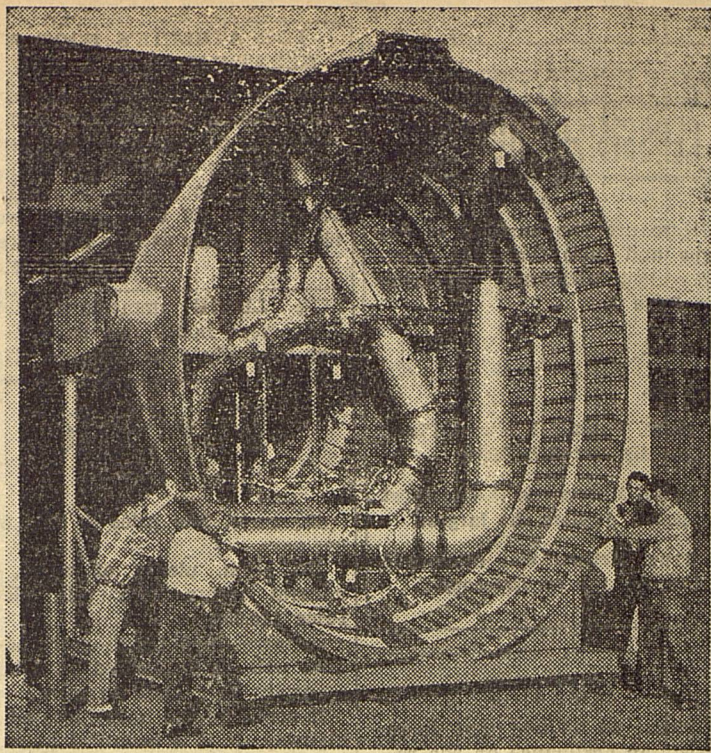

Remember the "Enola Gay"? It's the B-29 from which the atomic bomb was dropped on Hiroshima nearly eight years ago. This plane, which is now the property of the National Air Museum, is in moth balls at Pyote Air Force Base. The Air Force informs me that the famous plane will be on display at Pyote Air Force Base on May 16 for an Armed Forces Day open House celebration.

I have given Senator William Langer, Chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary, additional information on the work load in the Eastern District of Texas, which has only one Federal Judge. I am pressing for action on my bill to provide an additional judgeship in this district.

The 1953 Texas Cancer Crusade is now under way, with Arch S. Underwood, Lubbock, as Chairman. Financial goal is $600,000. Every day over 600 Americans died of cancer . . . John S. Clark, El Paso, has been named project manager for a $100,000,000 subcontract for electrical work on the Atomic Energy Commission's new gaseous diffusion plant in Ohio . . . Mrs. H. H. Welner, Seguin, Democratic National Committeewoman, was a welcome visitor at the office. Mrs. Weinert attended my luncheon for Col. Royal N. Baker, McKinney's jet air ace.

In this Holy Week, a time of resurrection and hope, all our prayers are for an end to the fighting in Korea—and for lasting peace in the world.

GIANT PLANE DE-ICER

Los Angeles—Enough heat to warm a dozen six-room homes is produced in this aircraft tail stub assembly, shown being trundled out of the Chrysler Motors California Plant at Los Angeles for shipment to the Long Beach, Calif., Plant of Douglas Aircraft. The two heaters in this section of the Douglas Globemaster C-124 transport plane de-ice the tail surfaces and warm the interior of the giant craft, which has a capacity of 200 fully equipped troops or 75,000 pounds of cargo. Chrysler Corporation's Los Angeles Plant makes wing, tail and fuselage assemblies which go to Douglas for final assembly.

Also, please note that Saturday, April 18, 1953, has been designated as Clean-up Day for the City of Cross Plains and it will greatly facilitate the work if you will have your garbage and rubbish rounded up adjacent to the street or alley so that it can be picked up conveniently.

Q—To train under the Korean GI Bill, I understand that I need at least 90 days military service, unless I was discharged sooner for a disability. Must all the 90 days have occurred after the Korean fighting began?

A—Not necessarily. You could qualify provided any part of the required 90 days of your military service took place after June 27, 1950, the date of the outbreak of hostilities in Korea.

Q—I'm a World War I veteran, and my U. S. Government Life Insurance permanent policy has just lapsed, through oversight on my part. When I reinstate, must I pay interest on the premiums in arrears?

A—You won't be required to pay interest if you reinstate within three months from the due date of the premium in default. If you wait longer than that, 4% interest compounded annually must be paid on the premiums in arrears. Q—What is the deadline for getting a GI loan?

A—For World War II veterans the deadline is July 25, 1957. For veterans eligible under the Korean GI Bill, the deadline is 10 years after the end of the current emergency period—a date not yet set.

Highlights and Sidelights FROM Your State CAPITOL

By Vern Sanford
Texas Press Association

Austin, Tex.—Behind closed doors went senators and representatives trying to agree on the Legislature's big money bill.

A guard kept out reporters, one of whom recalled, somewhat bitterly, that a House committee had recommended passage of a resolution condemning the federal government for doing business behind closed doors. The Senate had already passed such a resolution. Senator Ottis Lock and Representative Max Smith explained that it is customary for conference committees to meet privately. These men, chairmen of the Senate and House appropriations committee, said the conferees were trying to get together on policy.

Both the Senate and House have passed appropriations bills, but they differ in amount. The Senate bill is about six million dollars higher.

Action on other spending bills was held up until the house finally passed the big one, which is for general government expense.

That was a ruling of House Speaker Reuben Senterfitt, the case in point being a move to change a teachers pay raise bill from the appropriations committee to the public lands and buildings committee.

The motion failed, but the appropriations committee set a hearing on three bills to hike teachers salaries. Under Senterfitt's ruling it is proper to hold the hearings, but no action can be taken on these or any other spending measures until the general appropriations bill is finally passed.

One of the teacher bills would boost all teachers' salaries $600 a year, another would give them $240, and the third sets up a sliding scale giving lower bracket teachers $504 additional and less for the higher paid pedagogues.

Opposition developed quickly to a tax bill that would raise $84 million a year in new money. Earle Cabell, Dallas business man, told the legislature he feared higher taxes would retard the growth and prosperity of the state.

Favoring the bill were a group of West Texans who insisted that more money is needed for schools, roads and other purposes.

Committee hearings will be held twice weekly for three weeks so that all may express their opinions on this measure.

Representatives George S. Berry of Lubbock is author of the tax bill, which levies on manufacture of lumber and lime; mining of coal, lignite, asphaltic limestone, gypsum, salt, gravel, sand, shell, clay, limestone, granite, marble, sandstone, asphalt and Fuller's earth; oil production; beer; gross receipts of chemical manufacturers; refining of gasoline; and imports.

The state health officer has a clean bill of health.

Charges against Dr. George W. Cox were dismissed by the state board of health, and the board elected him to serve another two year term.

Senator J. T. Rutherford of Odessa had charged Dr. Cox with irregularities, but the board, after holding an investigation, found that the state health officer and his associates were innocent of "any misconduct or misappropriation of moneys or materials."

Dr. O. B. Kiel of Wichita Falls, chairman of the board, said members had "a great deal of faith and confidence in Dr. Cox."

Texas officials expressed gratification when the national house of representatives passed a bill returning ownership of the tidelands to Texas.

Governor Allan Shivers, Land Commissioner Bascom Giles, and Attorney General John Ben Shepherd comprised the Texas School land board, which would administer the vast area.

They all expressed the wish that Congress will give Texas a part of the revenue from all of the continental shelf. The present bill puts Texas' boundary at three leagues out in the Gulf of Mexico.

Congress last year passed legislation returning ownership of the tidelands to the states, but the measure was vetoed by President Truman.

The tidelands are particularly valuable because they are rich in oil.

Senator George Moffett's proposed constitutional amendment to get money for needed state office buildings was passed by the senate without a dissenting vote.

The funds would come from the surplus in the Confederate pension fund.

A property tax of two cents per $100 valuation now raises about a million and a quarter dollars a year for the pension fund, which now has a surplus of $4,604,163.

Only two veterans of the Confederate Army are now alive in Texas, but there are 525 widows of Confederate veterans. Returns from the property tax are more than enough to pay the pensions.

The House of Representatives has passed a bill which would permit the state to issue revenue bonds for constructing state buildings and retire the bonds with money the state now spends in rent for office space.

The state now owns land near the capitol where the new office buildings could be located.

The Senate also approved a proposed constitutional amendment that would give four-year terms of office to precinct, county, and district officials, except members of the House of Representatives.

In the house there is a similar proposal which includes the representatives in the four-year term of office. Several senators have expressed their opposition to this aspect of the resolution.

Those who favor the change reason that local officials usually serve two terms anyway, and that running for office every two years takes time and costs money.

"Lascivious and misleading" book covers would be barred from the newsstands under the terms of a bill passed by the Senate and sent to the house.

There are teeth in the bill, too. Publishers, jobbers, and retailers who handle the books with the sexy covers would be subject to a fine of $1,000, or a jail sentence of six months, or both.

The question of what to do about water is still getting serious study. There are eight bills in the house. They deal with various aspects of the subject, such as appropriation and use of public water and pollution. One bill, by Representative Joe Kilgore, creates a water resources committee which would make a four-year survey of the Texas water situation, making reports to the governor and the legislature every six months.

Watermelons are an uncertain and perishable crop, grown and marketed at more than average risk. Overproduction and unfavorable weather during the growing season can reduce income. On clear, hot days watermelons sell fast, but with cool, wet days the market drops off.

There are ways to reduce the risk of growing and marketing watermelons. One is to rotate the crop to avoid disease. Another is to fertilize heavily. Your county agent will probably suggest something around 200 to 400 pounds of 5-10-5 or some similar fertilizer. Small size watermelons are more popular for keeping in refrigerators, and your county agent can suggest other ways to reduce the risk.

TIDELANDS:

The House of Representatives has again passed the Tidelands Bill by an overwhelming majority. Those of us who have worked on this legislation for several years hope that the issue is going to be settled with the President's signature, although it is not all that we hoped it would be.

The House voted 285 to 108 to restore to the States Tidelands within their "historical boundaries." For all States, other than Texas and a part of Florida, this means three miles. For Texas, it means 10 1/2 miles into the Gulf of Mexico.

The Bill as passed, and the one which will likely be laid before the President, is not as strong a Bill as was passed by the House of Representatives last year. It is, however, all we could get. The measure, as brought to the Floor from the Committee, provided that the States would have taxing powers on oil produced outside the historic boundaries. The State, under the Bill as drafted, would also have been allowed to apply its conservation laws and police authority seaward to the edge of the Continental Shelf. This provision was stricken out by an Amendment offered by a Member of Congress from New York. From all indications, this will be the measure placed on the President's desk, and there is no doubt that he will approve it when it reaches him.

RUSSIAN PEACE MOVES:

The American people are so desirous of peace that we are inclined to become somewhat gullible toward overtures of cooperation from the Soviet Union. Within the last several days, a number of gestures have been made by the Russians which ordinarily might suggest a changing attitude. However, our hopes should not soar too high. In the past, we have seen numerous other overtures of this nature which we thought were genuine, only to go as sour as a two-day old bucket of milk in the sunshine. We need to keep our eyes on the music and not begin playing the flyspecks instead. In other words, we can listen without complete skepticism, but in the meantime, keep our powder dry.

BIG GOVERNMENT:

On Thursday, April 2, in a speech on the Floor of the House of Representatives, I had this to say: "If the press correctly reports the conference called by President Eisenhower with the mayors of big cities and certain local governmental leaders, he evidently must be rather disappointed, because they told him that they wanted the paternalistic attitude of the Federal Government continued. What does that mean? It means we will continue to have big government, and big government will get bigger. There is no other result, and the big city mayors and these local government leaders still want the Federal Government to help in various projects which cost millions of dollars. Those millions can only be obtained by high taxes and the tax dollar has a way of losing its value from the time it is collected from the taxpayer until it is returned to pay for some local service. If local government would use that dollar without its round trip to Washington, more value would be received.

Of course, we all realize we have Federal assistance for highways, for harbors, for airports, and for a lot of those things which affect national defense, but local governments usually get as much from the Federal Government as they can, yet they want taxes and expenses reduced. The two just do not go together. So until the big city mayors and the local government leaders decide and agree that they should assume their own responsibility and pay for it, we are going to have big government.

I was gratified to see that the distinguished majority leader, Mr. Halleck, has introduced the bill, H. R. 4406, in line with the President's recommendation that a very careful study be given to the matter of Federal-State-local government relationships. Until this is done; until our philosophies change and until greater dependence on ourselves is asserted, we will have big and bigger Government in Washington.

I doubt if the attitude of the mayors of the big cities is encouraging to President Eisenhower. It seems to me the basic fact to remember is that our freedom would be very limited if the United States were governed by only one national authority. In large measure, freedom is the product of local control over local affairs. The principle is established that the Federal Government assumes certain authority and control over that to which it contributes."

So the People May Know

The clerk of each county must publish annually a financial report showing how much money has been spent out of each of the county's funds and the balance in each fund. It must reveal the county's indebtedness and give other details, outlined by state law as follows:

"Art. 1609. County Finances—publication of financial report of county by county clerk.

"Immediately after the first regular term of said court in each year said clerk shall publish once in some weekly newspaper published in his county, or if there is no paper published therein, then by posting four copies of such exhibit, one in each commissioner's precinct, one of which shall be at the courthouse door, the other three at public places in such precincts, an exhibit showing the aggregate amount paid out of each fund for the four preceding quarters, and the balance to the credit or debit of each fund; also the amount of indebtedness of said county, with their respective dates of accrual, and to whom and for what due; also the amount to the debit or credit of each officer or other persons with whom an account is kept. The cost for publishing the same shall be paid by order of said court out of the general fund of the county."

Another provision of the law is that the county treasurer must publish a financial report after it has been inspected by the commissioners. The law says:

"Art. 1636. County finances—publication of notice of county treasurer's reports after inspection by the commissioners' court.

"... Prior to the adjournment of each regular term of the court, the county judge and each commissioner shall make affidavit that the requirements of this article have been in all things fully complied with by them at said term of said court, and that the cash and other assets mentioned in said county treasurer's quarterly report made by said treasurer to said court, and held by him for the county, have been fully inspected and counted by them giving the amount of said money and other assets in his hands. Such affidavits shall be filed with the county clerk and recorded in the minutes of said court the term of which the same were filed; and the same shall be published in some newspaper published in the county, for one time."

Publication of county financial reports is required to give the citizens information as to how their county government is being operated and how their tax money is being spent.

Planting Time For Summer Pasture Near

College Station.—Recent rains in most sections of the state have greatly increased the chances for successfully getting the temporary summer pastures started. E. M. Trew, associate agronomist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, points out many reasons why livestock producers should use such pastures.

First, he says, the summer growing perennial grasses went into the winter season in a weakened condition and will be slow to start this spring. They need a rest at the beginning of the growing season in order to allow for the rebuilding of their root system. If they are grazed too early this spring, warns Trew, they will be weak, low producers throughout the entire growing season.

He recommends a six weeks rest for the perennial grasses at the start of the spring growing season and the use of temporary pastures to take up the slack. Ten too, he adds, the temporary pastures will provide grazing during the summer months when perennial pastures do not normally furnish much grazing.

If forage production from either the temporary pastures exceed requirements, Trew says, the surplus should be used for hay or silage.

The specialist says Madrid or Hubam sweetclovers can be planted up to April 15 in the areas of the state north of Temple. They may be planted on clean land; overseeded in small grains or over-seeded in Johnsongrass. Sudan may be planted anywhere in the state as soon as the danger from frost is past. Sweet, Common or Tift are varieties which are well-adapted but in the humid areas sweet sudan does best, says Trew. In the areas of the state where adapted, lespedeza can be planted. Trew recommends at least one acre of temporary summer pasture for each animal unit on the farm.

Planting cowpeas with sudan increases the total yield from the pasture and improves the quality of the crop—either grazing, hay or silage—because the legume increases the protein and mineral content, says Trew. Staggered plantings will extend the grazing season and improve the quality of pastures especially when rotation grazing is practiced. Temporary fences can be used to divide the pastures into small areas which can be grazed off in a hurry and this is a recommended method for keeping the pasture growth tender and nutritious.

Trew points out that when the plants in the pasture begin to get coarse, mowing will force out new growth and thus increase production. Strips, he adds, mowed in the pasture, with plants left on the ground, will provide the dry roughage needed by the livestock.

To get the most from any pasture, Trew recommends the liberal use of fertilizer. He suggests that soil tests be used as the basis for determining fertilizer needs. Some fertilizer should be applied ahead of planting and since pasture grasses need lots of nitrogen, side-dressings of nitrogen should be applied after each time pastures are grazed down or mowed. The nitrogen will increase plant growth and the amount of protein in the plants.

Finally, says Trew, temporary pastures will furnish lots of good grazing, if properly managed, and by making rest periods possible for the permanent pastures, will make these permanent pastures better. Good management means staggered plantings, rotation grazing, mowing to keep new growth coming and to supply dry roughage, planting a minimum of one acre for each animal unit and using liberal amounts of fertilizers before planting and side-dressing with nitrogen.

Local county agents can supply a great deal of information that will help insure the success of the pasture program.

State Health Officer Comments On Danger Of Rheumatic Fever

Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, commenting on the seriousness of rheumatic fever, today declared that this disease is recognized as one of the greatest killers among young people. Between the ages of 10 and 15, rheumatic fever causes more deaths than any other disease, the State Health Officer said, and in persons between the ages of 15 and 24, is outranked only by tuberculosis.

Dr. Cox stressed the fact that deaths in childhood from rheumatic fever have not decreased in a satisfactory manner during the past decade, and warned the parents of children to pay particular attention to the care and treatment of such predisposing diseases as tonsillitis and other upper respiratory infections.

"The diagnosis in this disease is not always easy," Dr. Cox stated. "Any child with suspicious symptoms should be under the prolonged supervision of a physician since along with a general involvement of the body, the heart is practically always involved. The symptoms consist only of pallor, loss of weight, easy fatigue, unusual sweating, loss of appetite, and sometime fleeting muscular pain, and a little joint stiffness and a rapid beating of the heart. The more severe cases may show repeated nose bleeds, extreme nervousness, stiffness and pain in the joints, swelling of the joints, fever and pain over the heart."

According to Dr. Cox the majority of children who experience rheumatic fever suffer more than one attack and each may last months or even at times one to three years. The final result depends on the amount of heart damage incurred. Closely supervised bed rest throughout the entire period of infection is essential in order to minimize this danger.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Harrison of Kent spent the Easter holidays with her aunt, Mrs. Charles Taylor.
