THIRTY MILE ROAD TO BE OPENED WEST TO OPLIN, WITH WORK BEGUN

The County is going to open up a new road, leading west on practically a direct line, to connect with Oplin 30 miles west. This will be one of the most important developments for Cross Plains and south Callahan County, and will be fully appreciated by all.

Geo. Clifton, commissioner of this precinct, informs a Review representative that he has a crew of men now at work staking out and clearing the road way, which will be 60 feet wide. It is planned to complete this new road this summer. There will be several bridges to build on the roadway fenced, cleared and graded, which will represent quite an expenditure of labor, but when finished will represent one of our most important assets in this part of the county. Such an outlet west has long been needed, and an effort to get this road was launched two years ago, but just recently was approved by the court.

While we have referred to this grant as a "road" it is planned to eventually make it a highway to accommodate much of the travel from east to west, but it is being opened primarily for the benefit of the people residing in this part of the country who have occasion to travel between Cross Plains and Oplin frequently. The citizens of south Callahan will welcome the opening of this west road—and will begin now to look forward with joyful anticipation to the day when the road is formally opened.

MARKERS PLACED ON HIGHWAY 23 HERE

The state highway department has painted markers or signs on highway 23 passing through Cross Plains, which will be a big advantage to tourist and the traveling public. In the past many travelers have been confused in trying to stay on the highway because no signs were in evidence to guide them. The motoring public has learned to watch for highway markers in passing through the country, not being familiar with roads, and especially is this true in passing through cities and towns, where every street looks like a highway.

REV. J. T. FERGUSON TO ASSIST IN REVIVAL

Rev. J. T. Ferguson of Desdemona will be here Sunday to assist in the community-wide revival which is being sponsored by the local Methodist Church, Sunday night Rev. Ferguson will preach from this subject: "God's Love for a Lost World."

He is known for his outstanding ability and his earnestness in reaching the heart interest of the people. Cross Plains is indeed fortunate to have this opportunity of hearing this great gospel messenger in this series of sermons, and no doubt his coming will be a great blessing to all who hear him, and the community will enjoy a spiritual uplifting that will last through the years to come.

TOM BRYANT TO DRILL WILDCAT SOON

Tom Bryant has leased 1,383 acres about five miles north east of town, including Geo. Click, Jesse Dyson, Samuel Dameron and D. H. Yeiser surveys. At this writing the location for the well has not been made, but drilling is expected to start in a few days.

The progress of this wildcat will be watched with much interest, as it is planned to drill to the Pioneer sand, it is stated. Bradstreet is drilling at 850 feet on his Waller No. 5 west of town. The Humble Oil and Gas Co. on Hall ranch have plugged their deep test at 3,800 feet, the Review is informed.

If plans materialize, several new locations will be made in the next few days, and will be reported next week.

LIONS ENROLL 74 MEMBERS TO DATE

The Lions Club met at luncheon again Tuesday at noon—the regular luncheon hour, at the Presbyterian church, and enjoyed a profitable and pleasant hour. Judge Harrell, president, reported a charter membership of 74 and it was predicted that the membership would reach 100 within two weeks. A number of visitors were present. Several short but interesting talks were made. Next Tuesday the luncheon will be given at the Baptist church.

SENIOR DAY

On March 2, the Seniors left the drudgeries of scholastic life to enjoy a day in the great open spaces, in company with Mrs. Gwin, Mrs. Wagner and Mr. Daniel.

They arrived at their destination, near the Gillan school house, at about eleven o'clock, and immediately engaged themselves in various physical activities. Spanish leap frog was one of the main features.

When every one was nearly exhausted, a very delectable repast was served from the back of the truck. After a satisfactory supply of rations was eaten, an expedition, led by Browne Baum, started out to play back-out. Many extraordinary and death-defying feats were accomplished by the athletic group, and the males could hardly out-do the opposite and supposedly weaker sex.

After consuming the remaining delicacies, the undignified Seniors started home, probably suffering from fatigue and over usage of dormant muscles, but with a stronger feeling of undertaking and co-operation existing among them—Contributed.

BAPTIST CHURCH DEDICATED SUN. MAR. 4

Dedication of the First Baptist Church was witnessed by a large and attentive audience Sunday, March 4th. Rev. Hunt, pastor, preached the dedicatory sermon. Special songs were rendered, and it proved to be a very interesting program.

On Thursday night of last week a packed house heard the negro missionaries from Liberia, Africa. Standing room was at a premium, and all seemed to enjoy the program very much, as the negro, wife and adopted girl, were all interesting talkers and recited interesting experiences among their people. Their talks were impressive and touched the heart strings of the audience by their well rendered program.

A large number stated that they were there just through curiosity, but they got more than that out of the service, they declared afterwards. The negroes were well educated, and the woman paid a high tribute to the American people in fluent and elegant words—and they carried weight because of the earnest and forceful manner in which she spoke. It was a real treat. People got a glimpse of the negro race from a different angle than that in which it is usually pictured. The little girl adopted out of the jungles was interesting. She too spoke with much earnestness and quoted more scripture than most laymen could quote. They are returning to Africa in April to continue their work in the mission field.

BEAUTY CONTEST

W. A. Huckaby, tail twister of the Lions Club, has decided on a beauty contest next Tuesday at luncheon. A nice cake is being prepared by Lioness, Mrs. Huckaby, which will be presented to the winner, and the lucky Lion is expected to cut the cake and divide with the judges, who will decide the beauty contest. This contest is expected to be interesting as several will no doubt be candidates for the honor.

GAGE—REID

Mr. Homer Reid and Miss Emma Gage accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Smith, motored to Eastland Saturday afternoon, March 3, and were quietly married.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gage of Nimrod.

The groom is a prosperous young farmer of Cleveland, Ark. They left Sunday for Cleveland where they will make their home.

SAFE AND CONVENIENT

In olden times people secretly buried their money, but banking has added to the safety and convenience of business transaction. You may deposit your money with us where it is safe, and have the convenience of a checking account—plus a personal service we are pleased to render. So, why carry your money on your person or hide it away at home, when you may have this service, which it is our pleasure to give each depositor.

Philosopher's Death
Socrates, the famous Greek philosopher, in 39 B. C. was accused of impiety (the introduction of new gods) and of corrupting the youth. He defended himself in a famous speech which enraged rather than conciliated his judges. He was condemned and drank hemlock in his prison surrounded by his disciples.

Well to Remember
"Fame is a bubble," quoted the Wise Guy. "Nevertheless it is just as well to let somebody else do your blowing for you," suggested the Simple Mug.

The BABY

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?
If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good.

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or constipation; or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria.
The doctor often tells you to do just that; and always says Fletcher's. Other preparations may be just as pure, just as free from dangerous drugs, but why experiment? Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold!

THE RETURN OF ANTHONY TRENT

STORY FROM THE START

Anthony Trent returns to New York after nearly four years' absence. Once known as the master criminal, Trent is going straight. The purser accuses Trent of jumping overboard from the Poitania at Liverpool, but is disappointed when Trent shows no surprise. He learns his friend, Capt. Frank Sutton, is in Sing Sing. At New York Trent is started to find somebody occupying his house. The stranger is Sutton Campbell, the brother of his best friend, who is serving ten years in prison. Trent is asked by Campbell Sutton to force Payson Grant to a written confession, having crookedly obtained all of Captain Sutton's possessions and later married his wife. Trent, after long hesitation, consents. Trent starts on a campaign to accomplish the downfall of Payson Grant. He learns from an old friend Clarke, that Captain Sutton has escaped from Sing Sing.

"It must have happened while I was crossing," he said slowly. "I have seen no reference to it in any of the papers. How did he make his break?"
"Brains, my boy," said Clarke. "I didn't think his conventional sort had it in him. He decided to go on a hunger strike. He asked permission to see the Head Nut of a society of bugs who live on one fruit meal a day. The Exalted Supreme Nut came to Sing Sing to explain his theories. Sutton could not believe that a man would be strong on such a diet. He got the Chief Knight of Nutdom to strip and show that he had blood and sinew and muscle. Then your pal Sutton, upper-cut him, got into his abandoned clothes, passed out in them and escaped."

"Sutton did that?" Trent laughed. "It was the type of exploit he enjoyed. Two weeks' start is pretty useful."
"They'll get him," Clarke declared. "They'll get him because they'll know where to look for him. He's after Payson Grant, and Grant isn't sleeping well at night, believe me. Sutton's watching his opportunity."
"Know anything about his brother Campbell?"
"Not a thing. Do you?"
"Slightly. He's a college professor type, with a nasty little mining way of talking, and a nose that stands away from baby, yellow cheeks at an impossible angle. Trent reflected. "And yet there is something—I suppose it's a family trait—that reminds me of his brother. I'm going to see him tonight." Trent's face was grim. "I think I shall tell him I'm through."

Trent could not leave without a long talk with Mrs. Sauer, and he did not reach his apartment until dusk, but it had been a profitable afternoon. The fragrance of his special brand of cigar greeted him. Campbell Sutton looked up from a book. "Did you bring an evening paper?" he asked.
"No," said Trent. "I have been too much occupied to think of it. I went through that interesting pile of stone which the world calls Sing Sing."
Campbell Sutton put his book down. "After what I told you?"
"In spite of it. You will find that I do not take orders readily. Your brother was glad to see me. He sent his love to you. He apologized for my manners, and said you were one of those uncomfortable creatures who meant well."

Campbell Sutton considered the matter before answering. "Of course you didn't see my brother," he said. "He isn't there."
"He will be before long. According to the Evening World he has been arrested in Wilmington."
Although Trent's keen eyes were on the other's face there was no alarm or anxiety to be seen. Instead Campbell Sutton smiled.
"That I will never believe," he said. "My brother is hidden where none will dream of seeking him, and it is nowhere near any of the Wilmingtons."
"Why did you deceive me?"
"I felt I had to. Regard it as a precautionary measure, Mr. Trent. Captain Sutton depends wholly on your courage and energy. Do not let him suffer for excess of caution on his brother's part."
"Where is he?" Trent asked.
"For the moment I dare not tell you." Campbell Sutton meditated a little. "Perhaps when you have made your plans a meeting may be arranged. I will bring it about."
"If he isn't captured meanwhile," Trent answered.
"That wouldn't relieve you of your adventures."

"I wasn't thinking of that," Trent said. "The police will look for him at Deal Beach if Grant is still there. The vendetta idea, you understand?"
"They will look in vain." Campbell Sutton retorted. "That is the last place he would choose. My brother did not escape with the idea of murdering Payson Grant. Frank knows very well that by himself he has no chance to force Payson to confess the embezzlement charge was false. He knows that Payson will never admit to him that the revolver found on Frank was deliberately placed there by him or his hirelings."

"And he thinks I shall be able to discover proofs of an organized conspiracy?" Trent said, a little bitterness in his tone.
"Not exactly that. You are needed for subtler work than that. My brother thinks a man of your unusual abilities should be able to get Payson Grant into such a position that a full confession could be forced from him."

"It will be the hardest job I've ever tackled."

Campbell Sutton smiled a little as he glanced at Anthony Trent. Gone was the look of smoldering anger from that keen face. He was looking slightly of the unwelcome task thrust upon him in the contemplation of its fascinating dangers. The old adventurous spirit was awakening. Anthony Trent versus Payson Grant et al. For the first time the incident held intriguing possibilities.

"I think I shall go down to Deal for a few days," he asserted. "I'm still a member of the golf club, so it may not be going as a stranger. I will run across Grant there as you tell me he plays."
"It won't be easy to meet him," Campbell Sutton declared. "He is essentially a snob. To enter his house as a guest you would have either to be one of his old friends or one of his new acquaintances. You cannot be any of the old crowd. One of the reasons Mrs. Grant married Payson is that he is better adapted for social climbing than my brother. To get into her good graces you would need to be well introduced. This social struggle is a professional sport with all the little underhand tricks that creep into professional games."
"I've seen it played more than you imagine," Trent returned. "and I know more prominent members of high society than your friend Payson Grant does. It happened that when I was in England I fell by accident into what was the top-hole set. I met dukes and marquises, earls and cabinet ministers. I met Americans whose names had been household words to me, and found them all, marquises and millionaires, some of the nicest men I'd ever struck."

Anthony Trent mentioned the names of families which plainly impressed his listener.
"It seems incredible," Campbell Sutton murmured. "I'm sure my brother had no idea you were a society man."
"I'm not," said Trent promptly. "I tell you it was all unpremeditated. I've never had social ambitions. When our ambassador told me there were prominent Americans gnashing their teeth because I—who wasn't even in the Social Register—was mixing with the titled throng and actually staying in an earl's castle, I was amused."
"I'd like to hear about it," said Campbell Sutton.
"That you most certainly will not do," Trent said decisively, his face hardening. Nothing could have induced him to tell this man, whose personality jarred upon him, of those entrancing days so remote and alien. Trent felt himself safe and had known supreme happiness. There were memories which came thronging, fragrant, tender and too sacred to share. He felt, in that moment, he had said more than he need.

"If He Isn't Captured Meanwhile," Trent Answered.

"If he isn't captured meanwhile," Trent answered.

Set Little Brother in the Straight Path

A young Washingtonian gave an exemplification of a different sort of Christianity recently—one that was reminiscent of religion as it used to be applied. Perhaps the youth of nations was no different from the youth of a man. I believe there is a theory to that effect.
Anyway, this small boy was left in charge of his smaller brother while his parents went to the theater. When they came home they discovered a tear-stained Jimmie in bed and a sorrowful Bobby watching over him.

"Why, Bob," asked the mother, "what is the matter?"
"I hit Jimmie," replied Robert.
"You hit Jimmie!" cried the horrified mother.

"If what you claim is borne out by facts, it would make a meeting with Payson Grant less difficult than I imagined."

"I am making no claims," Trent said coldly.
"Mrs. Grant is always on the lookout for clever and entertaining men. I have never looked upon you as possessing social talents, but there's no reason why you should not."
"Thanks," Trent said acidly.
Campbell Sutton was smiling. An idea had amused him.

"If you should be recognized by any of your former victims while a guest of the Grants, you would wound them incurably."
"You are certainly kind and thoughtful," Trent exclaimed.

The idea was disquieting. The adventure seemed to be growing in difficulty. It would be an ironic ending if, in the moment of victory, as yet highly problematic, this man de-nounced him. Trent did not think he had a normally minded man to deal with. Perhaps Campbell Sutton guessed of what he was thinking.

"I wish I dare tell you everything," said Sutton. He looked at the other man and seemed as though about to impart some hidden thing.
"I am not anxious to know more than I do," Trent said, rising to his feet.

"Some day you will understand," said Campbell Sutton. His aggressive manner was gone. "My experience with men has not allowed me to take anyone on trust."

Although Trent was up at half-past seven next morning Campbell Sutton had finished his breakfast and was reading the papers his host had brought in the previous evening.

At half-past eight the buzzer in the passage rang three times.
"If you don't want to be seen," Trent said, coming into the front room, "you'd better go aft."
"Who is it?" the other demanded, betraying visible agitation.

"How do I know?" Trent snapped. "I don't claim second sight."
"You can't know till you've opened the door," Sutton whispered, "and then it may be too late."

"I don't open the door till I know," Trent told him.
Long ago he had made a little peep hole through which a view of visitors could be obtained. He sighed with relief when he beheld only David More.

"It's a friend," he said, "but you'd better not be seen."
More handed his report to his employer, but would not sit down, as he was in a hurry.

Trent sat down in the chair so recently vacated by Campbell Sutton and read More's reports. His attempts to get information at Sutton's former office had resulted only in finding that all the old staff was dismissed. Those who remained were Grant men, convinced their employer was in the right.

Trent read the document through twice. Those who knew him well might have judged that what he had perceived had awakened him to anger. His mouth was a thin line and his eyes had no longer any good humor about them.

He put the envelope in his pocket and then set about what seemed a curious and unnecessary rearrangement of the furniture, dragging back the comfortable chairs so that the center of the room was left bare but for a Royal Bolkhara rug of unusual size.

Campbell Sutton came in just as he had finished.
"What are you doing?" he asked in astonishment.
"I'm setting the stage," Trent explained.

"For what purpose?"
"I think you'll regard it as a tragedy."
"I don't know what you mean."
"You will," said Trent, coming closer. "It's simply this: I was willing for two reasons to run the risk attendant on helping your brother. One was that you threatened to denounce me to the police if I did not; the other was because I liked Sutton and owed him a great deal."

Those two reasons still exist," Sutton reminded him.
"But you don't," Trent had a dangerous, sneering laugh. "Put up your hands, man, for I'm going to hit you. Captain Sutton never had a brother or sister, and you're nothing but a d-d fake."

Lesson for March 11

JESUS FEEDS THE MULTITUDE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 6:31-44.
GOLDEN TEXT—I am the bread of life; he that cometh to Me shall never hunger, and he that believeth on Me shall never thirst.
PRIMARY TOPIC—An Unusual Meal.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Hungry Crowd Fed.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Meeting Every-Day Needs.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus' Compassion for Human Need.

1. Jesus' Invitation to the Weary Disciples (vv. 31, 32).
The apostles had just returned from an evangelistic tour in Galilee with a report of what they had done and taught. Their ministry occasioned no little stir. Besides, Jesus Himself continued to preach. As a result of their combined ministry, the commotion was so great that there was no opportunity for resting or eating. In such a time of need Jesus invited His disciples to retire from the crowd and rest. In order to do this they departed privately by ship for a desert place. Periods of withdrawal from the crowd in fellowship with the Lord are necessary after evangelistic campaigns. They serve a double purpose.

1. To get the eyes of the ministers off themselves and their work.
2. To prevent dependency for their failures.

11. Jesus Teaching the ignorant Multitude (vv. 33, 34).
1. Thronged by the people (v. 33).
The wonderful words and works of the Lord and His disciples brought the multitudes to them. To escape the throng they took their departure for a desert place (v. 32). Seeing the Lord and His disciples depart, the people from the surrounding cities anticipated their landing place, and, proceeding thither, welcomed the ship upon its arrival.

2. The Lord moved with compassion (v. 34).
Instead of becoming irritated by the intrusion of the crowd His heart was moved with pity. His personal interests were forgotten as the needs of the shepherdless sheep pressed upon His notice, therefore He began to teach them many things. Jesus is now the same compassionate Savior, touched with the feelings of our infirmities (Heb. 4:15).

111. Jesus Feeding the Hungry Multitude (vv. 35-44).
1. Conference with the disciples (vv. 35-38).
(1) The disciples request that the multitude be sent to the surrounding villages to buy bread (v. 36). According to Matthew, Christ made the proposition that the multitude be fed (Matt. 14:16). (2) Jesus commands them to feed the multitude (v. 37). (3) The disciples' perplexity (v. 37). They began to calculate as to the amount of provisions required. They asked the Lord whether they should go and buy two hundred pennyworth of bread. Their perplexity was due to the fact that they were depending upon their own resources instead of Christ. To be face to face with the humanly impossible has a threefold benefit. (a) It makes us realize our dependence upon Christ; (b) Drives us to Him for help in our need; (c) Leads us to give Him the glory for the results. Though our ability to reach, preach or to give, be meager, when coupled with the Lord's ability, it is equal to any demand.

2. Jesus' method in feeding the multitudes (vv. 39-44).
(1) The Lord's part. This was to issue instructions as to the method of procedure and to create the provision. Though they had but five loaves and two fishes He so increased them that the need of the hungry multitude was met.

(2) The disciples' part. They were to have the people sit down in companies so as to facilitate distribution. They then took that which the Master had blessed and distributed it to the people. The disciples' responsibility was not for the creation of the provision, but for its distribution to the people. (3) The people's part. Their part was not to create, nor distribute, but obediently to sit down and partake of the provision. Even after the bread had been blessed by the Lord and distributed by the disciples, they would have famished with hunger had they not partaken of the food. Unless the people receive Jesus Christ and the salvation which He has provided they shall eternally starve. The Lord has done His part. The disciples are under solemn obligation to do their part and the final responsibility rests upon the people.

Obedience
Obedience is the secret. Not slavish obedience, but sympathetic, loving, eager obedience. May the law of holiness be to me welcome as the light, sweet as the flowers, more to be desired than much fine gold!—W. L. Watkinson.

TO THE VOTERS OF CALLAHAN COUNTY

Elsewhere in the issue of this paper you will find my announcement for the office of District Clerk of the 42nd Judicial District of which Callahan County is a part.

Practically all my life has been spent in this county, having resided the greater part of the time in Putnam and Clyde. I feel that I am qualified to fill this important position in a creditable manner and assure each and every voter of the county that I shall certainly appreciate an investigation on your part of my character and qualifications should you favor me with your vote and influence in the July primary. I shall certainly feel very grateful to you.

yours very truly,
Mrs. Callie (Pyeatt) Marshall.

The American Legion Auxiliary met last Thursday evening, March 1st, at the home of Mrs. W. A. Huckaby. Among those present were: Mrs. Hardy of Breckenridge, chairman of the 17th District. Mrs. Hardy made a very interesting talk, in the interest and of the duties of the Auxiliary. Also received two new members, Mrs. Jas. Underwood and Fannie Mae Slaughter, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Slaughter. Meeting days were set for the first and third Thursday of each month. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Luke Westerman, Thursday evening at 3 p. m. March 15th, and every member is cordially invited to be present.

After the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. Huckaby, and was enjoyed by all.—Auxiliary.

TO THE VOTERS OF CALLAHAN COUNTY

W. C. White authorizes the Review to announce his candidacy for reelection to the office of County Judge, subject to the July primary.

Judge White has served the County efficiently and has demonstrated his ability to direct the affairs of that office in a commendable manner. He asks that you give his candidacy due consideration, and will appreciate your support.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP

The partnership of Moon & Clapp has been dissolved. I have retired from the business, and will not be responsible for any accounts made in the name of Moon & Clapp.—W. D. Clapp. 52p

YES, IT PAYS!

One of the biggest advertisers carrying regular ads in the Review, stated to a reporter last week that "It sure pays to advertise." He should know; he has tried it, and the results have been very satisfactory.

Misses Evelyn Stacy and Bobby Daum Yeager visited in Burkett Saturday and Sunday.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our thanks and deep appreciation to our friends and neighbors who were so kind and thoughtful during the illness and death of our little girl, Mattie Lee. May God richly bless each of you. We shall never forget your kindness.
Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Peavy.

Ollie Dennis and family of Abilene, Herman Reiger and family of Mexia, Mrs. Leo Tyler and children of Clyde, and Mrs. Frank Williams and daughter of Cisco, visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Adams here past week end.

Dr. R. C. Hoover was called Wednesday to Carlsbad, N. M., to do an emergency operation.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pierce and daughter, Ethel of Deer Plains, and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Montgomery and little daughter, Lucile of Burnt Branch, ate birthday dinner with B. A. Pierce and family, Sunday being Grandpa Pierce's seventy-sixth birthday, the cake bore seventy-six lighted candles.

Mrs. A. J. Mathis of the Kemper Hotel placed an ad in the Review this week to run regular, and she states that she has advertised in nearly every medium but the Review, and she is going to try that now.

Good meals at Kemper Hotel, 50c, and Short Order Breakfast.

FOR SALE—A dining room suite, consisting of round extension table, 6 chairs and buffet. Inquire at Review Office.

FOR RENT—6-room house, with sleeping porch, bath and all modern conveniences. See Martin Neeb, at Feed Store.

AN ORDINANCE

An Ordinance declaring the running at large of Turkeys, Geese, Ducks, Guinea or Chickens within the corporate limits of the City of Cross Plains, a nuisance, making it unlawful for the owner or keeper of any such fowls to permit the same to run at large within said corporate limits and prescribing a penalty for the violation of the same and deeming an emergency.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Cross Plains, Callahan County, Texas.

Sec. 1. FOWLS RUNNING AT LARGE PROHIBITED: That the running at large of ducks, geese, turkeys, guineas or chickens, within the corporate limits of the City of Cross Plains, is hereby declared to be a nuisance; and it shall be unlawful for the owner or keeper to permit the same to run at large within said corporate limits.

Sec. 2. RUNNING AT LARGE DEFINED: Any fowl of the kinds named in the preceding section, found or being loose upon the public streets, alleys, parks or other public property, or trespassing upon the land of any person, company or firm other than the owner or keeper of such fowls, shall be deemed to be running at large. But this ordinance shall not be construed so as to prohibit keeping by any person, firm or corporation within said corporate limits of any of the fowls mentioned, provided the same be securely kept within a safe enclosure so as to prevent the same from doing any damage to public or private property, or from being or becoming a nuisance.

Sec. 3. PENALTY AND ENFORCEMENT: Any person violating any of the provisions of Section 1 of this ordinance shall upon conviction thereof, be fined in any sum not exceeding $5.00 for each fowl so permitted to run at large.

Sec. 4. CONFLICTING PROVISION REPEALED: All ordinances and parts of ordinances in conflict with any of the provisions of this ordinance are hereby repealed in so far as the same are in such conflict.

Sec. 5. PUBLICATION: There being no ordinance prohibiting the running at large of fowls, this ordinance shall be published for one week in the Cross Plains Review, the same being a newspaper published weekly and having a general circulation in said City.

Sec. 6. The fact that the city of Cross Plains is in urgent need of the foregoing ordinance to protect the gardens and flowers in the yards of its citizens and thereby encourage beautiful yards, creates an emergency and an imperative public necessity that the rule requiring ordinances to be read at more than one meeting of the city council be suspended, and it is so ordained, and this ordinance shall take effect and be enforced from and after its passage and approval.

Passed this 6th day of March, 1928, and approved this 6th day of March, 1928.

(Signed) J. W. Westerman, Mayor.
Attest:—Chas. F. Hemphill, Sec'y.

POLITICAL WINDS

Will the democrats at the Houston Convention nominate Al Smith of New York for presidency and Jesse Jones of Houston for vice-president? Well, it looks like that may happen. It is figured that Jones would pull the south and especially the Texas vote which Smith could not control so well. But Al Smith can't be elected according to the belief of many political observers who are familiar with every angle of the situation. Yet it seems that the democrats had just as well nominate him now and get it over with. Perhaps when he is overwhelmingly defeated, he will get out of the way and give the democrats a chance in 1932.

INTEREST MANIFESTED

Much interest is being manifested by the voters relative to the election of city officials slated for April 3rd. Prospects are that several candidates will be in the race as forces line up for the support of various men. A Mayor and four Aldermen will be elected. Three members of the present council will probably be favored for re-election, including John Westerman, Martin Neet and Chas. Hemphill. The writer will not be in the race for re-election, as has been previously stated, and that will be perfectly satisfactory with the voters. A. C. Dodson is the only member of the present council holding over this year.

We are pleased to note the interest that is being shown and hope that a representative vote will be polled on election day, that the will of the majority may be determined. Let the contest be lively—but friendly.

Got Instrument That Satisfied Whole Family

"An agent was at our house the other day trying to sell us a piano," said the fat plumber.

"Did you buy one?" The thin carpenter naturally asked the question.

"No, because my daughter is the only one in the house who can play a piano."

"I see."

"And then he wanted me to buy a harp."

"I suppose you bought one."

"I did not. None of us can pick a harp."

"Did he try you on anything else?"

"Yes. Next he proposed a cornet, and when I didn't want that he suggested a ukulele."

"And you didn't take any of those?"

"No, but I told him I would come down to the store the next day and pick out something we could all play."

"And did you really do it?"

"I certainly did."

"What did you pick out?"

"A kazoo."—Youngstown Telegram.

Olives

Most olives eaten in America are green olives which have been pickled whole or with the pits removed. In the Mediterranean countries it is customary to eat the ripe fruit cured in salt. Olives in this manner constitute a staple part of the laborer's daily diet. It is very rarely that ripe olives are eaten in the United States. The Department of Agriculture has introduced a new variety called the Barouni olive, especially adapted for pickling ripe. It is a native of north Africa and has been grown successfully in California. The original stock of a few trees has expanded until there are now orchards of about 100 acres total area on the Pacific coast.—Pathfinder Magazine.

The "Lost Dauphin" Mystery

SUPPOSED TOMB OF LOUIS XVII IN PARIS Underwood & Underwood

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE other day a group of French Royalists gathered in the Abbey of St. Denis, north of Paris, where lie the Kings of France in their royal tombs. The occasion was the one hundred thirty-fifth anniversary of the execution of Louis XVI which took place during the French revolution and they had gathered there in memory of the Bourbon monarch and his Queen, Marie Antoinette. While they thus honored these two victims of that historic tragedy, they were denied the privilege of paying a similar mark of respect to a third, Louis XVII, the lost Dauphin of France, for the reason that no one knows where lie the remains of that victim of the Reign of Terror. In the cemetery of the church of St. Margaret in the Rue St. Bernard there is a tomb which bears the words "L. XVII, 1785-1795. Attendez et voyez si est dolo'r sicut dolo'r meus." Is this the tomb of the lost Dauphin, as that inscription would indicate and as many Parisians believe? Or would the Bourbonists who wished to honor the memory of this King, who never held the throne which was rightfully his, be compelled to visit a cemetery in the town of Hogsburg, New York, and lay their wreaths upon the gravestone which bears the name of Eleazer Williams with the assurance that they were thus honoring the little lost Dauphin?

Although the fate of the lost Dauphin is one of the unsolved riddles of history, certain definite facts in regard to it have been established by the researches of a recent French historian. According to his account, in August, 1792, the Paris Commune after a dispute with the legislative assembly as to where their royal prisoners were to be quartered, succeeded in getting its own way and decreed that the place of captivity should be the Temple, the palace of the Grand Friar of the Knights Templars. Here were held King Louis XVI, Queen Marie Antoinette, Princess Elizabeth (sister of the King), Princess Marie Therese (daughter of the King and Queen and later the Duchesse d'Angouleme), and the Dauphin, Louis Charles. On January 21, 1793, the king was beheaded; later the Queen and the Princess Elizabeth were also sent under the knife, leaving only the Dauphin and his sister prisoners in the Temple.

Before the Queen was executed, however, the Dauphin had been separated from the rest of his family and held a prisoner by himself in another part of the building where he was placed under the care of Antoine Simon, an ignorant shoemaker, and his wife. Simon was to be the young prince's tutor with the special object of teaching him the democratic ideas of the revolution. All that he taught the boy, however, was to sing indecent songs and to talk the rough language of the lower classes. However he was not cruelly treated, as has so often been charged, and enjoyed considerable liberty within the temple grounds.

On January 19, 1794, Simon suddenly ceased to be the Dauphin's guardian and that night he and his wife left the Temple. It is from this moment that the mystery begins. Heretofore many people had been allowed to see the Dauphin, but from this time on he was kept in close confinement and no one, except the person who attended to his needs, knew anything about the mode of his existence. Within six months the Commune had fallen, but the Temple still held its royal prisoner or, at least, a child who was supposed to be the Dauphin.

The last guardian of the little prisoner, Etienne Alsne, reported that the boy was an imbecile or very much like one and finally on June 8, 1795 this boy died. An autopsy was performed and various persons were shown the corpse. Care was taken to prevent anyone from properly identifying him. Although the boy had been buried as the son of Louis XVI, rumors persisted that the Dauphin was not really dead. It is a plausible theory that the real Prince was taken away from the Temple by Simon and that a substitute was placed there in his stead; that Royalist plotters abducted this substitute in the belief that he was Louis XVII, replacing him with the boy who actually died in the Temple and was buried as the prince, a child who was apparently diseased and an imbecile. If this is true, then the mystery is no nearer solution than ever before, for not long after Simon left the Temple, he was guillotined without revealing what disposition he had made of the real Louis XVII. The Dauphin had simply disappeared and not even the careful researches of this French historian has accounted for his ultimate fate. He is certain that the boy did not die in the Temple but is unable to find any trace of him after his removal by those who hoped to profit thereby but who died before they had the chance to make use of their opportunity.

In the years that followed the disappearance of the real Dauphin and the death of the supposed Prince in the Temple, there came a veritable deluge of claimants to the title of being the real Louis XVII. No less than twenty-five "Lost Dauphins" appeared before French courts from time to time to press their claims and to disturb the peace of mind of the government of France.

The most picturesque perhaps of all the claimants was Charles William Naurendorf, who appeared in Paris in 1833 as the long missing lost Dauphin. He too, had a long list of documents in support of his assumption that he was of royal blood but when the court heard the evidence this "lost Dauphin" was summarily banished from France. He eventually made his home in Delft, Holland, and died in 1845. So strongly did he impress his claims upon a large group of French royalists that he was buried with great ceremony and over his grave in the Delft cemetery was erected a monument bearing these words: "Here reposes Louis XVII, King of France and Navarre, Charles Louis, Duke of Normandie, born in Versailles, March 27, 1785, died in Delft August 10, 1845."

It is a far cry from the palace of Versailles and the Temple in Paris to the little town of Hogsburg, N. Y., and Green Bay, Wis., yet these two American towns have also been concerned in the mystery of the lost Dauphin. Seventy-seven years ago both Europe and America were agog over the assertion of Rev. Eleazer Williams, an Episcopal missionary among the Indians, that he was the son of Louis XVI, and therefore the lost Dauphin of France. Eleazer Williams was the son of a halfbreed Mohawk Indian chief, Thomas Williams, who was descended from Eunice Williams, the famous Deerfield captive, and was one of the family of thirteen halfbreeds by Thomas Williams' Indian wife, Mary Ann Williams. He grew up among the Mohawks at Caughnawaga, Quebec, but was educated in New England and served brilliantly as the head of a corps of scouts and spies for the Americans in the War of 1812. Later he became a missionary among his father's people, first as a Congregationalist and later as an Episcopalian. When they and other Iroquois tribesmen in New York were being hard pressed by the advancing white settlers, he was instrumental in obtaining lands for them in Wisconsin. At some time during his early career he heard the story of the lost Dauphin and having been told that he resembled the Bourbon Prince, he decided to advance his claims to the honor of being that person. Owing to a scrofulous taint in his family, the bruises and injuries, received while he was a child playing with his Indian playmates, left permanent scars which were later in life increased in size by artificial means. These he claimed to have been the result of the shackles and chains with which he was confined in the Temple.

In 1841 the Prince de Joinville, son of the then reigning King Louis Philippe of France, followed his father's example and paid a visit to America. During a trip on the Great Lakes the Prince found awaiting him at Mackinac a clerical-looking gentleman who asked permission to accompany the Prince's party to Green Bay, Wis. This cleric was Eleazer Williams and soon after the departure of the Prince from Green Bay, Williams gave out the astonishing statement that De Joinville had acknowledged that he (Williams) was Louis XVII, and that the Prince had sought him out in the western wilderness to ask him to renounce his claim to the throne of France. A few years later Williams told his story to Rev. J. H. Hanson who wrote an article "Have We a Bourbon Among Us?" which appeared in the February, 1853, number of Putnam's Monthly. When a copy of this magazine was received in England, where the Prince de Joinville was then living as an exile from France, he immediately repudiated the alleged interview and denounced Williams as an impostor. However, a book by Hanson, "The Lost Prince," which gave a detailed account of Williams' life, and which proved to the satisfaction of the author, at least, that the Mohawk halfbreed missionary was indeed the lost Dauphin, gained for him many adherents.

Although Williams steadfastly maintained that he was the lost Dauphin, nothing ever came of his pretensions and he died August 23, 1858, on the St. Regis reservation near Hogsburg, N. Y. Evidently his adherents were not as steadfast in their belief as were those of Naurendorf, for he was buried with Masonic rites simply as "Brother Eleazer Williams," and the plain monument over his grave at Hogsburg bears not the royal crest of the house of Bourbon, but the Masonic emblem, his name, dates of his birth and death.

Perhaps he has had as much right to the title of the lost Dauphin as any other claimant but history has not yet been convinced that any of the claims are convincing.

Watch Girls Gain in Two Weeks Time!

Growing girls and boys need something only Nature can provide. It isn't found in drugs, and it can't be done by diet. Enough fruit would keep the system sweet, but what youngster will eat a quart of apple-sauce every day; or six bananas; or a pound of figs? But all children just love the daily treat of California fig syrup. A rich and fruity syrup that delights the palate, and aids digestion of anything that's eaten. And whets the appetite of children who don't eat enough. Fig syrup for that listless, sluggish, or feverish child! It invigorates a torpid liver; thoroughly cleanses the entire alimentary tract. It will solve childish ills that might otherwise end in stomach disorders or in diarrhea. Try fig syrup! In two weeks you may not recognize the boy or the girl who is now handicapped by constipation or sour bile. Three days will tell that better assimilation and elimination are established. Twenty-four hours will clear the furriest tongue and have bowels in better condition! So much better than tonics of temporary value; or harmful cathartics! Let pure fig syrup take the place of both, but see that you do get the genuine California fig syrup; say "California" when you ask for the generous, sixty-cent bottle.

Secret Injury

A motion picture operator, back from photographing wild animals in Interior Africa, recommends that form of sport on the ground that it does not inflict pain on a lion or elephant concerned. It is relatively safe, too, since taking its picture does not infuriate the animal as a bullet wound does. A lion or elephant having its picture taken seldom attacks, being unable to see the picture.

WHAT A DOCTOR KNOWS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

There IS a way of overcoming the tendency to constipation. And here is how you can PROVE it.

The next time your bowels need any assistance, don't take the first laxative that comes to mind. Take one the druggist can assure you is made with CASCARA. Just as effective as using force, and it's good for the system. Indeed, it helps make good blood. For cascara is nothing but the bark of a tree. The Indians chew this bark, and live to an old age without a day's sickness.

What happens when you cascaraize the bowels? They will usually function well for SEVERAL DAYS. One more dose—no larger, and perhaps smaller than the first—and the bowels function of their own accord for a still longer time. Until you don't feel the need of any aid of any sort for week on-end.

So, the only habit you get from cascara is that of natural and normal regularity. How different from things one must usually repeat on the morrow! Cascara is the ideal laxative; and the familiar little candy cascart is doubtless its ideal form. Children beg for these tasty tablets, and many men and women wouldn't think of taking ANYTHING else for the purpose. And EVERY druggist has them.

Urges War on Weevil

"A yellow peril" among insect pests is taking the place of a "native American" nuisance, according to O. E. Gookins of Ottawa, Kan., in an address before the meeting at Omaha of the American Association of Cereal Chemists. The once troublesome grain weevil, he said, is becoming extinct, but its decline is accompanied by the increase of the rice weevil. The two insects look very much alike, but the rice weevil can easily be distinguished because it can fly. Mr. Gookins recommended granary fumigation as a cheap and sure method of finishing off the granary weevil for good, and for combating the hordes of the rice weevil.

"First Aid—Home Remedy Week" Coming

The National Association of Retail Druggists is urging greater advertising publicity for "First Aid—Home Remedy Week," fixed for March 18-24. This "sales baby," dedicated to the druggists of America by Sterling Products (Incorporated) is seven years old this month. It has scored six successive triumphs, and Secretary Samuel C. Henry, in urging the general adoption of the national slogan, "Fill That Medicine Chest Now," says: "Unpreparedness is seldom, if ever, due to willful neglect, but generally attributable to thoughtlessness or lack of foresight."

With the aid of "Little Johnny Advertising," the sponsors of this national merchandising campaign, which is really a drive against needless suffering, hope to induce householders to be better able to cope with sudden illness and unforeseen accident.

ACCESSORIES ADD COLOR TOUCH; COLLARS MAKE THE SMART COAT

THAT there is a growing appreciation among women of the important role which accessories must play in the art of good dressing, there is no doubt. Else why the more than eager crowding of the fair sex about the various neckwear counters, in the boutonniere sections or in departments and shops which specialize in costume jewelry?

The meticulous care with which many select this or that vainglorious trinket is an outcome of the influence brought to bear by the current mode. Today, to be well dressed, one's costume, because of the harmony of its component parts, must present the appearance of a perfect unit—a picture complete in itself, as it were. This matter of assembling matching accessories has been greatly simplified in late years, in that manufacturers and designers are working together to produce articles of dress and adornment in identical colorings and characteristic stylings.

Especially are intriguing novelties, which add the satisfying color touch to the costume, to be found in neckwear departments. Charming "pin-on" ornaments made of malines and ostrich plumes, of chiffon and the like such as shown in this picture, are obtainable in all the popular colorings. For instance, if one's daytime frock has a vest of flesh-tinted silk, as is that shown in the oval in this picture, it is possible to duplicate the exact shade in a shoulder jabot made of plaited georgette which is elaborated with a rosette of ostrich plumes centered with a made rosebud of the chiffon or crepe. Perhaps the vestee of your afternoon dress is in the popular rose beige or possibly it is pure white—whatever its color it can be beautifully matched with a novelty chiffon and ostrich shoulder ornament.

Some "Pin On" Accessories.

An enlarged view of the handsome origin. The vogue for the coat without fur brings a challenge to the designer to individualize the spring wrap through manipulation of the fabric itself. In answer stylists are directing their genius and imagination toward devising diversified collars which shall give an entirely new expression and individuality to the coat mode.

Most of the newest collars stand erect at the back. Even the narrowest of them show this tendency—a point which is smartly defined by the new-type model in the picture. Note also that there are two shades of cloth involved in the making of this coat, this being a very modish detail in spring wraps.

The fact that many novelties are being introduced in the way of cape coats and others affects the status of the straightline silhouette not at all. Indeed the majority of accompanying coats in tweed and kasha ensembles accent straightness and simplicity. This same tendency to slimmness is stressed also in the majority of separate topcoats.

Perhaps the most popular theme this season is that of the scarf or throw-collar. These are made of the cloth itself, often lined with a contrasting fabric.

Competing with the simple scarf collar is the standing collar, with slots cut at intervals through which a trinket is an outcome of the influence brought to bear by the current mode. It turned out that a loaded pistol given to Frank Williams, a Philadelphia garage employee, to protect his employer's property delayed the protection. Williams placed the pistol on a desk in the office with its muzzle pointing at the door. Then he began his duty of washing cars. There came a blast from the office. A stove had exploded. Running to the scene, Williams was about to enter when his eye fell upon the pistol pointed directly at him, and with flames surrounding it. He ran the other way and called the fire department.

Prescription He Wrote in 1892 is the World's Most Popular Laxative

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

Got Away From Pistol

It turned out that a loaded pistol given to Frank Williams, a Philadelphia garage employee, to protect his employer's property delayed the protection. Williams placed the pistol on a desk in the office with its muzzle pointing at the door. Then he began his duty of washing cars. There came a blast from the office. A stove had exploded. Running to the scene, Williams was about to enter when his eye fell upon the pistol pointed directly at him, and with flames surrounding it. He ran the other way and called the fire department.

Purpose of all religions is to make men better; none should be undervalued.

Spitz Good Sheep Tender

The Pomeranian sheep dog, better known as the Spitz dog, is bred in most countries as a house pet, small and useless. But in its own home on the shores of the Baltic this dog is the local sheep tender. He has a fox-like face and very long hair. In color he ranges over a wide scale, but black or white is most common, and the average weight is about eight pounds. The Spitz stands cold weather much better than warm.

ostrich novelty as worn by the young woman to the right at the top is here presented so that one can observe the exquisiteness of its detail. For this, the georgette is worked into milliner folds, then looped like ribbon. Speaking of ribbon, the latest fad is to tie the boutonniere on one's coat collar with matching ribbon, and a very pretty effect it gives, too.

brood ribbon, a gay scarf or a stream of the cloth is drawn. One of the attractive things about such a collar is the opportunity it presents to wear different scarfs at will.

Many of the stylish standing cloth collars are lined with a contrasting fabric next to the face.

IMPROVING SCHOOL GROUNDS

Trees have been planted all around the school campus, and when they put on growth will represent quite an improvement to the grounds and property. Fifty trees were given by the Auxiliary of the American Legion and the rest were donated by interested parties. The American Legion Auxiliary is to be commended for such a splendid gift to the community, as well as the individuals who contributed trees. The trees are large and will soon be beautiful if properly cared for. This is tree planting time but the season will soon pass and it will be too late—so plant now. Trees grow while you sleep and improve your property.

A. J. Gensley will open a Helpy-Selfy store at Ballinger Saturday, he states. Mrs. Gensley will be in charge of The Toggery here until the stock is sold, the Review is informed.

Jim Underwood, formerly with Higginbotham's grocery department, has accepted a position with the Helpy-Selfy store here, managed by W. A. McGowen and Sons.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bradstreet have moved to Brownwood to make their home. Mrs. Bradstreet who had a piano studio here has turned her class over to Mrs. Frank Ferrell who will continue the teaching.

R. A. Boon and family who have been in Sweetwater for some time, are visiting here. They plan to move to San Angelo soon where Mr. Boon will be connected with a Helpy-Selfy store, to be operated by Geo. Cunningham of this city, it is stated.

Murman McGowen and Geo. Cunningham made a business trip to Fort Worth Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Adams, accompanied by son and grandson, Glen and Olan, motored to Wichita Falls the past week end to see Mrs. Adams' brother, who is critically ill. They returned Sunday.
