HOWARD OPEN HOUSE HUGE SUCCESS

By ERA LEE HANKE
Project Pride

Approximately 200 people locally and from cities throughout the United States attended open house Saturday afternoon at the Howard House on West Highway 36. The event was held as a tribute to Robert E. Howard, fantasy writer and creator of Conan, The Barbarian. Mr. Howard lived in this house from 1919 to 1936 and most of his writings were done here.

The Project Pride organization purchased the Howard House a few years ago and began restoration. As funds have become available, the house has been painted, porch repaired, and roof work done. The fence has been repaired, and inside walls changed to near the original, in an attempt to define Howard's room and workplace. A central cooling system has been installed. Vacant lots south of the house were donated to the organization and will be used for parking. The property just east of the house, known as the "Old Butler House," has been purchased by Project Pride and plans for its use will be announced later.

A Postal Station was set up for Saturday and a special pictorial cancellation was made available by the U.S. Postal Service.

The book, "One Who Walked Alone," by Novalyne Price Ellis was offered for sale. Other items available were copies of the Funeral Notice, death records for both Robert and his mother, and reproductions of the high school newspaper, "The Progress," in which a poem composed by Howard was published. Original manuscripts, property of Project Pride, were available for viewing.

Refreshments were served. In the evening approximately 80 members of Project Pride and guests attended a dinner on the lawn under the shade trees at the Howard House. Jack Scott served as master of ceremonies and introduced a number of out-of-town guests: Mrs. Alla Ray Morris of Ranger, heir to proceeds from Howard works; Glenn and Lou Ann Lord, Pasadena, Literary Agents for Howard Properties; Michael Myers, writer; Charlotte Laughlin of Brownwood Historical Society; Dr. Robert Eubanks of Houston; and Mr. and Mrs. Norris Chambers of Fort Worth.

Dr. Lou Rodenberger, English professor at McMurry University, was guest speaker and gave sketches of a number of well known authors from this area.

At the conclusion of the program, Mr. Scott introduced Catherine and L. Sprague DeCamp of Plano, early promoters of Howard materials. Following the introduction, Mrs. DeCamp presented to Project Pride the following items that had originally belonged to the Howard family: an ink well which had been a gift to Howard from Cecil Lotief, a former Cross Plains businessman and state legislator; a flower vase that had belonged to Mrs. Howard; and a bust of Cleopatra, which was treasured by Robert. These items have been placed in the Howard House.

Project Pride membership is open to the public and anyone interested in the present, past, and future of Cross Plains is invited to join. Meetings are held on the second Tuesdays of the month at the Howard House.

SENIOR CITIZENS STATS

By MARIE HORTON

What a week! Hot and dry; cool and wet. The good Lord sent us the rain we needed so bad. We give thanks to Him for it.

We also enjoyed having Judy Mae from Comanche coming over to take blood pressure readings for us at the Center Friday. We need to tell her just how much we appreciate her.

Tuesday, we had Les Henderson and his lovely wife back for more good music. We do enjoy it so much.

Arnold and Marie Horton and Eunice Pointer enjoyed Aggie, Paul, and Sugar Passmore from Houston. That little Sugar is one very sweet well-behaved dog. She acts more like a small child. They could leave the car door open and tell her to stay and she would obey. He would rattle money and Sugar would speak for it. He dropped a quarter on the floor and she picked it up and took it to her mama. You just can't imagine the way she would mind. She is blind now, but loved so much.

Arnold and Marie Horton were also surprised by a visit from a granddaughter, Angela, and great-grandson, Morgan

David. He is learning to crawl, and we think he is one fine baby.

One of our seniors, Darrell Madison, had to have balloon procedure to correct a blockage to his heart. He will be home Friday. He had another close call and the Lord was good to him again.

We still miss all the ones who are out because of illness or whatever the reason. We want them to hurry back.

We missed Vicky Thursday and Friday, but we hope she had a great time, as she deserves it.

We are thankful for the good number we have and thank you all for coming. That's what makes this Center so good.

Hope to see some of the ones that haven't been here for a while on Monday. So til then, have a good weekend!

NEWS FOR VETERANS

By TOM IVEY
Veterans Service Officer
Callahan County

VA Budget — The President's 1994 VA budget proposal has been sent to the House with at least three surprises.

In spite of his announced plan to trim $1.4 billion from VA's budget over the next four years, President Clinton has proposed $15.6 billion for medical care, an increase of $1 billion over last year. American Legion experts estimate that this is still $1.4 billion short of what VA needs to provide veterans with adequate care.

Another surprise item in the proposal is a provision for an additional 2,500 VA health-care personnel, even though a Clinton plan presented to Congress in February called for deep personnel cuts within VA.

But, most surprising was the recommendation that VA medical and prosthetic research would take a massive reduction to $206 million for the coming fiscal year. The American Legion believes that this is nearly $75 million below what VA needs to continue its quality work in medical research and training. The shortfall could cost VA valuable talent and resources for the future, according to the American Legion.

Hospice Available — Hospice care is available at all VA hospitals for terminally ill veterans. Eligibility includes: Terminal illness with a life expectancy of less than six months; and Agreement between the Veteran, his family or friends that the sole purpose is to keep the patient comfortable, not to cure the disease.

VA hospice care is available in the patient's home 24 hours a day, or a Medicare-eligible patient can receive community-based hospice care or hospice care contracted by VA. For more information contact the Community Services office at the Big Spring VAMC (915) 263-7361 or your Callahan County Veterans Service Office on Mondays and Thursdays (915) 854-1520.

A very successful couple sent their teenage son to an elite private school in the eastern states but after a mere six weeks the boy was sent home with a letter from the chancellor explaining they were sorry but they could not help the boy. Well the father sent back a blistering letter to the chancellor and the school stating: "I sent you our son that you might make a gentleman of him!" In a few days he received a reply — simply a quote of a Chinese proverb: "You cannot carve rotten wood." Well come to think of it, you can't, can you?!

What's the lesson? If we are to have children of character then we must heed the word of their Maker as His word says, "Lo, children are an heritage and reward of the Lord: they are like arrows to a warrior, happy is the man whose quiver is full of them." (Psalm 127:3-5) And realizing their value, and desiring for them to be children of character, we must take time to train them and build character into them — not ship them off to some school to pull a plug from the top of their head to pour it in! We so often forget that children watch examples of character — and follow those examples even better than the words we "preach" to them.

So before the wood decays — to not being carveable — let us etch, carve and burn into their lives, their hearts, the character they need to be, in the image of God, a sturdy chip of character off the old block (parents). And by the way, we must begin with a good "old block!"

Come strive with us in the building of good character — in ourselves and our children. Share in our Vacation Bible School, July 12-16, 9-11 a.m. We really do care about you!

Rain was not the same over this area, ranging from one half to one inch of much needed moisture. It did stop the wheat harvest.

Ivon Odom and Mark Cooley of Stephenville visited Joyce Odom last week. The two men are employed at the John Deere house in that city.

Brad and Michal Watson of Arlington spent the weekend in the Robert Watson home.

Robert and Dorothy Watson drove to Sadler recently to help his uncle enjoy his birthday. His uncle is Wayne Dossey.

Carl and Mable of Conroe, Texas are home with his parents, Gene and Vernie Belle Mauldin. They all attended the Rowden-Bayou Reunion in Abilene Saturday.

Two couples, Bob and Kathy Dye and Gaylan and Penny Bogard of Baird made a trip to Branson, Missouri last week. Cathy reported that there was a lot to see in that place.

Ralph and Ginny Trevey and children, Scott and Jennifer, made a trip to A & M where Jennifer won a trip to show her entry in FHA in sewing. She had won 2nd in the district meet. She did not place at state. The four stopped for a short visit with Joyce Odom on returning to Snyder.

ASCS RULES

Scotty H. Odom, County Executive Director of the Callahan County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, says farm program participants must know whether their land is highly erodible or a wetland, and must comply with the highly erodible land and wetland conservation provisions to be eligible for payments and any other USDA program benefits.

He said producers will lose program benefits if they plant an agricultural crop on highly erodible land without using an approved conservation system; if they plant agricultural commodities on wetlands converted after December 23, 1985; or if they convert a wetland to make agricultural production possible after November 28, 1990.

"The highly erodible land and wetland restrictions apply to all farm program participants and they will be enforced," Odom said. Once a crop is planted in noncompliance of the highly erodible land or wetland requirements, he said it is too late. The producer will be considered ineligible for 1993 benefits.

Beginning January 1, 1995, all conservation systems must be fully applied on highly erodible land for a producer to earn program benefits.

"Producers who still need determinations on whether their land that will be planted to an annually-tilled crop, or designated as conservation uses or acreage conservation reserve, is highly erodible or a wetland, should contact our office or the Callahan County Soil Conservation Service as soon as possible," the ASCS official said.

Eligibility for participation in all programs administered by ASCS is established by law without regard to race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin, marital status, physical or mental handicap, political affiliation, or sponsorship club.

Wait... Watchers!

Over 40% of school children (age 10 to 13) think they are too fat and need to lose weight. The recent study found that the behavior did not vary by age, income, race, grade, public or private school. Kids were already dieting and using vomiting or pills to lose weight. Eating disorders can cause kidney, stomach and bone problems. Parents should watch for sudden changes in weight or behavior, depression or expressions of self-disgust. Love your kids for who they are... not what they weight.

Your better health is our concern.

Mosquito And Tick Problems In Callahan County Area

Due to recent rains and warm weather the mosquito and tick problems are continuing to cause various diseases and illnesses throughout the Callahan County area. An infestation of ticks can cause great discomfort to a dog, contribute to generalized skin problems, create anemia leading to the death of the dog and pose a serious threat by transmitting diseases from infected to non-infected dogs. Also, a severe mosquito problem greatly increases the chance a dog will become infected with heartworms.

Tick-borne diseases have been diagnosed with increasing frequency in the last few years. With the spread of these diseases into new areas, including the infection of humans, the frequency of their diagnosis is expected to continue to increase. Suspicious dogs should be tested so that infected dogs can be treated to eliminate the reservoir of the disease and prevent its spread to other dogs.

Even though we are seeing these new tick-borne problems, the most common complication in our area is severe infestation resulting in anemia and occasionally death. If dogs become infested with ticks they should be dipped, sprayed or powdered as frequently as recommended to kill the ticks. If dogs have access only to a limited area, a tick eradication program should be followed in that area to eliminate ticks that may be harboring the disease organisms. Due to EPA regulations, many of the residue producing solutions have been taken off the market so the retreatment of the animal or premise may be necessary. All label instructions on any dip, spray or powder should be strictly followed for safety and effectiveness.

Mosquitoes are key carriers of heartworm disease. When an infected dog is bitten by a mosquito, blood is carried away which may include tiny, immature forms of heartworms called microfilariae. It takes about three months for these larvae to travel through the tissues of the body to enter the heart. Dozens of these larvae (some of which can actually become up to 14 inches long) become adults within another three months.

Thanks to research and modern preventive medicine there is a lot you can do to avoid heartworm in the first place-or see that it is successfully treated if it hasn't progressed too far.

-A blood test is the only way to detect heartworm disease in its early stages.

-Since it's possible for an infected dog to have adult heartworms without microfilariae, an X-ray examination and other lab tests may be needed to confirm heartworm infection.

-After the disease has progressed, symptoms can include frequent coughing, sluggishness, rapid tiring and finally, labored breathing.

-If caught in time, a series of injections of an organic arsenical drug can be used to kill heartworms. Then another drug can be used to get rid of the microfilariae.

-No vaccine is available for heartworm disease, but we can give you regular doses of a drug which can prevent infective larvae from developing into adult worms.

A little preventative medicine is much better than treating the problem. If the warm, wet weather continues, these parasites may be a threat for several months.

Cancer Information Service

HOUSTON — Whether it's 9 a.m. in El Paso or Oklahoma City, telephones at the Cancer Information Service (CIS) begin ringing each Monday through Friday until it's 4:30 p.m. in Brownsville or Tulsa.

And thanks to National Cancer Institute (NCI) funding, the six CIS telephone lines will ring non-stop into 1997.

The NCI, the federal government's primary cancer research agency, last week (Friday, June 4) awarded The University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer Center a $4.74 million contract to continue operation of this successful public education program based in Houston.

The CIS at M.D. Anderson Cancer Center is one of 19 regional offices located at NCI-designated Comprehensive Cancer Centers, such as M.D. Anderson, and other major hospitals across the U.S. It will serve the 20 million residents of Texas and Oklahoma.

"I am extremely pleased to see that this successful and important program has received the support and

Special Housing For Homeless

Rural residents who are homeless or inadequately-housed families may now have a chance to become homeowners under a plan being adopted by the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA), Bruce R. Bailey, FmHA County Supervisor, said today.

Under the plan, special emphasis will be given to homes that have been in FmHA's inventory at least 18 months. Inventory homes will be offered to public bodies, including housing authorities and non-profit community-based organizations, for rent to the homeless, or in some cases, FmHA will rent directly to the individuals, Mr. Bailey said. In addition, homes which were recently acquired by FmHA into inventory but have not yet been repaired will also be offered for lease to the homeless.

The families who obtain the housing from the public bodies or nonprofit organizations may apply to buy the house at any time during the lease. Those who rent directly from FmHA will pay rent based on their income and will be given the opportunity to buy the house that they rent. Mr. Bailey said that many homeless people work and have incomes, and have the potential to become homeowners.

"By helping people find a decent place to live, we also help eliminate the cost to acknowledgement it so richly deserves," said U.S. Rep. Mike Andrews, D-Houston. "An educational and informative program such as this is one of the vital keys to increasing public understanding of this most feared disease."

The CIS provides access to state-of-the-art cancer information in English and Spanish through its telephone service and community outreach programs.

By dialing 1-800-4-CANCER, callers in the two states are connected automatically to the CIS in Houston. Information specialists answer questions on cancer prevention, detection, diagnosis, treatment, and rehabilitation. NCI publications written in English and Spanish also are mailed free to the caller as a follow-up to the discussion with the information specialist.

To help callers address the physical, financial and emotional challenges by the disease, the CIS maintains a resource directory of more than 3,000 cancer-related services and programs in Texas and Oklahoma.

"One of the great things about the program is that we help callers locate resources for assistance in their own community," said Jo Ann Ward, CIS coordinator. "Cancer is one of the most difficult challenges a person can face in life. We strive to help callers make the ordeal less stressful."

To help residents learn how to prevent cancer or detect the disease early when treatment is most successful, CIS outreach coordinators work with private and public health care agencies and the media to promote educational messages and materials which address specific cancer problems in their geographic region. Special efforts target high-risk populations include African Americans, Hispanics, and Native Americans.

More than 315,000 callers from all backgrounds have called the CIS since its inception at M.D. Anderson 16 years ago. CIS community outreach programs, such as health fairs and community presentations, have reached another 129,000 people since 1976.

Nationwide, the CIS responds to more than 500,000 requests annually for cancer information. The majority of calls to 1-800-4-CANCER come from cancer patients, their family and friends, health care professionals and the general public. The CIS staff uses a variety of resources to respond to inquiries, including NCI's Physician Data Query data base of current information on the early detection and standard treatment of cancer. The data base also provides a nationwide listing of NCI-approved clinical trials that study new ways of treating cancer and may provide patients with more options.

As important as the information is, callers also find support from the information specialists to whom they speak. As one woman from Garland, Texas, wrote in a thank-you letter to the CIS last May, "I want to send you special thanks for your care and concern. It meant a lot to me to have someone LISTEN and give me some calm advice."

Penny Postcards Cost Public Millions

DALLAS/FORT WORTH — The U.S. Postal Inspection Service announced today that it was taking the fight against fraudulent postcards to the streets with an annual twist to an old scam.

In an extraordinary effort to educate potential victims about this perennial scourge, Inspectors mailed more than two hundred thousand postcards to individuals all over the country, offering recipients a "GUARANTEED PRIZE."

This familiar ruse promises that you have definitely won one of several seemingly big-ticket prizes, such as a luxury automobile, vacation cruise, diamond necklace or cash. To claim your free prize, you simply call an 800 or 900 number furnished on the postcard. At this point, you're connected to a high-pressure "yak" (sales agent) who spells out the real deal.

Guess what? Before any prize is awarded, you'll have to pay the promoter a fee of some kind, be it a registration fee or shipping charge. This is the tip-off to the rip-off. The scheme is aimed at separating the prize winner from enough money to cover the worthless vacation certificate or cheap costume jewelry which may or may not be sent in return, plus a nice profit for the operator.

Those who respond to the Inspectors' postcard and call 1-800-448-5656 will get some helpful advice instead:

— Don't pay anything for a "free prize"

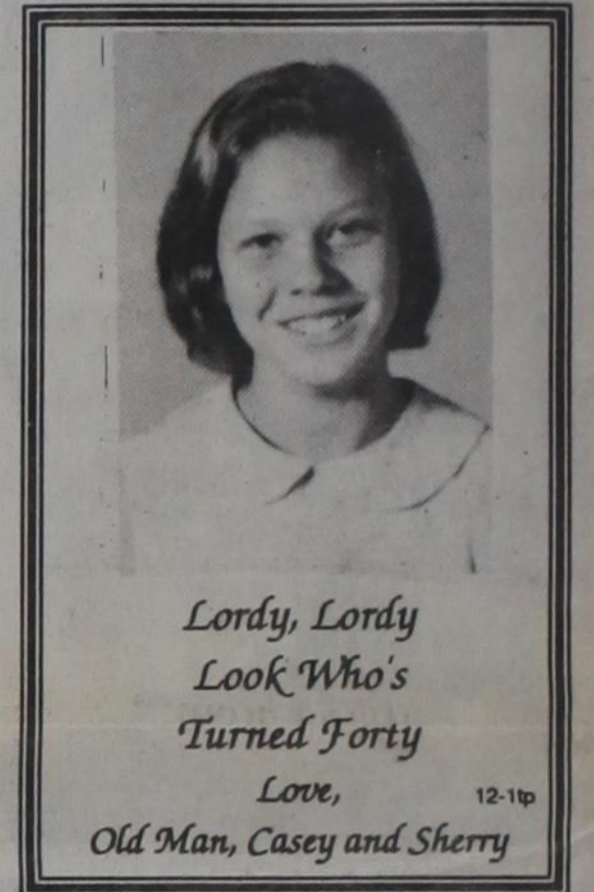

if you don't know what you're getting. (Remember, calling a 900 telephone number costs money.)

— Don't deal with firms or individuals that make high-pressure demands for an answer RIGHT NOW! (Take time to check them out.)

— Don't give out your credit card number to anyone you don't know. (Callers that want a credit card number or expiration date to verify anything about you aren't to be trusted.)

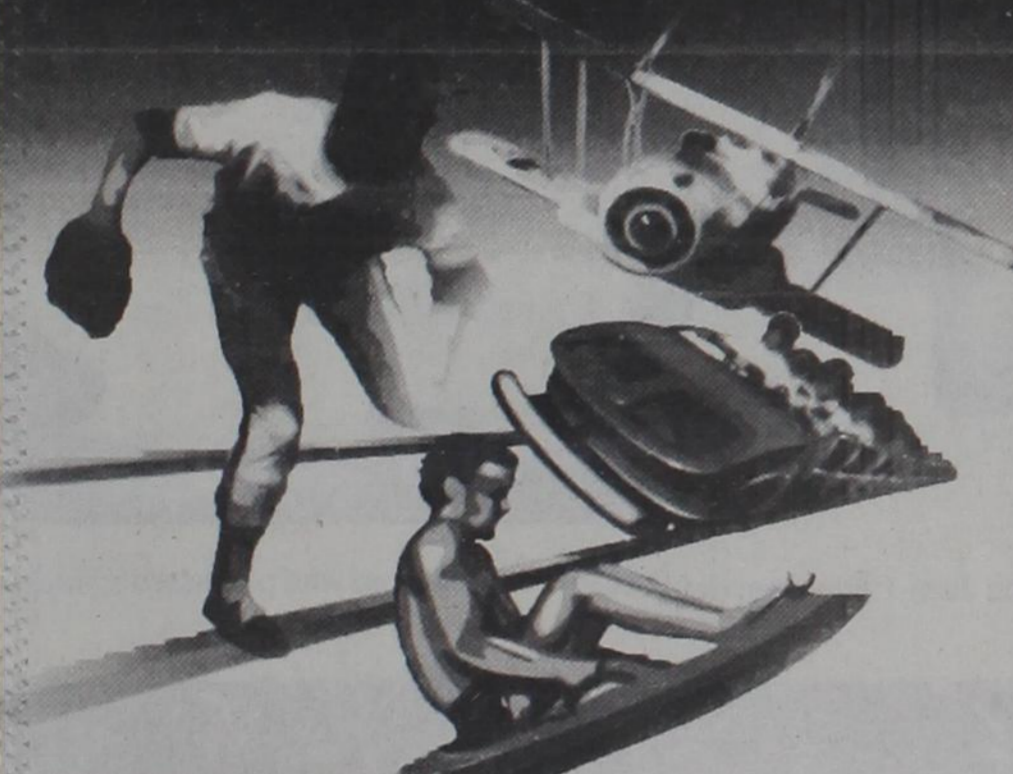

Postal Inspectors are intent on preserving public confidence in the U.S. Mail as a means of accessing the marketplace, and point out that the vast majority of mail order vendors are legitimate. "We want to drive the rotten apple out of the telemarketing barrel, with vigorous law enforcement and a strong dose of public education," says Inspector John Brugger, Headquarters spokesperson for the Postal Inspection Service.

As late as the 1700s, some people in Europe and America believed that lightning could be kept away by ringing church bells.
