West Texas Business Institute Includes Baird As Active Member

Baird will participate in both operations and benefits of the West Texas Institute of Business Research being instituted at Texas Tech. Baird will contribute $25 a year for three years to the cost of the operation and receive the institute's reports and recemmendations. Haf of the $25 will be paid by the Callahan County Luncheon Club and the other half by the First National Bank of Baird.

Operating expenses of the institute have been budgeted at $20,000 a year. Sponsors propose that this budget be met by contributions of West Texas cities for three years. After that it is hoped the state of Texas will finance the project, as it finances a similar bureau maintained by The University of Texas.

It is proposed that the bureau serve 195 cities in 132 counties. At present no organization exists equipped and competent to analyze West Texas business and to keep chambers of commerce, municipal governments, and other responsible agencies informed on business conditions and probabilities. The West Texas Chamber of Commerce has considered such data imperative to the development of the region. The bureau will in no way compete with any business or any other bureau.

The bureau will be headed by a competent director, and staffed by competent personnel. It will be assisted by specialists of Texas Tech school of business administration in statistics, marketing, transportation, financing, costs, taxes, natural resources and industries.

Bob Norrell, president of the First National Bank of Baird, who has been in contact with the movement for some time, said the first reports will probably be made to participating contact with the movement for some time, said the first reports will probably be made to participating contact with the movement for some time, said the first reports will probably be made to participating contact with the movement for some time, said the first reports will probably be made to participating contact with the movement for some time, said the first reports will probably be made to participating contact w

Farm Film Offered By Co-op At Clyde

A motion picture, "Behind The Checkerboard Bag," will be shown free of charge in the com-munity center at Clyde at 8 p. m. Aug. 18, Mel Green, manager of the Callahan County Co-op of Clyde, announced.

of Clyde, announced.

The documentary agricultural film is centered on an American farm much like many of those in this area. It's the story of the effort, the years of research and record keeping, the technological knowledge, the milling facilities, the far-flung sources of fraw materials required to make livestock and poultry feeds that are nutritionally up to the latest advances in this fast-advancing field.

Varying Rain Cools Weather

Rain of varying destiny came to Baird, Clyde, and immediately surrounding territory Sunday and was followed by a considerable drop from the searing temperatures of the past few weeks.

Estimates of rainfall a few miles northwest of Baird ran as high as "six to eight inches." County Agent Gien Green quoted Harry Steen as saying 5.85 inches fell in some sections of Clyde, Rain in Baird varied from one to two inches.

Green said some rain fell around Eula and Denton Valley received a "little." He said the rain did not extend much more than two miles east of Baird.

Both the rain and the cooler weather, the county agent said, will be very helpful to peanuts and to cotton.

Two Callahan County names appear on the ballot that will be used Saturday in the Democratic run-off primary; those of Tom Barton, county chair-man seeking re-election, and B. H. Freeland.

The ballot, greatly shrunken by the vote in the first primary, bears but eight names, and one of those, that of A. M. Alken, Jr., remained because they had been printed when his ill health compelled him to withdraw from the race for lieutenant governor.

The other two contests are between Sen, Price Daniel of Liberty and Ralph Yarbrough of Austin for governor, and Tom Moore of Waco and Will Wilson of Dallas for attorney general.

In the July primary Daniel led his opponent nearly three to one in Liberty county where the senator makes his home. In Yarborough's home county, Travis, Daniel's lead was nearly 5,000. The comparative vote in the two counties was: Liberty, Daniel, 3,424; Yarborough 1,459; Travis county, Daniel 17,172 and Yarborough 12,358.

Blue Comb Slows Laying Of Eggs

Even though the true cause of blue comb disease in poultry is not known, veterinarians can be helpful in prescribing certain medicines and in advising on management and dietary suggestions for keeping losses at a minimum, the American Veterinary Medical Association advised poultry raisers. vised poultry raisers.

Blue comb affects the laying flock by causing a sudden drop in egg production. The name tells one of the first noticeable symptoms, the discoloration or drakening of the bird's comb and wattles.

Other symptoms of the acute form of the disease include, loss of appetite, depression of the bird's activities and whitish scouring. In the less acute form, the symptoms are not so pronounced

Once the disease becomes established in the flock, the association warns that it may resemble fowl cholera or fowl typhoid. A laboratory examination is the best way to confirm the diagnosis and to tell blue comb from these two diseases.

these two diseases.

Since a nutritional disturbance may be a factor in the cause of blue comb, treatment as prescribed by the veterinarian may require changes in the management and feeding program as well as medication.

While most outbreaks occur during July to November, blue comb is not necessarily a summer disease. Outbreaks may occur at any time of the year. The disease is quite widespread, with cases reported from all sections of the country, the association says. tion says.

Record Turkey Crop Expected This Fall

A record turkey crop is expected this fall - about 10 million head more than a year ago. Heaviest increases in farm marketings over a year ago are due in September, placing turkeys at the top of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's plentiful foods list for the month. Rice is another top feature on the list, While this year's crop is estimated to be about 13 percent less than last, carryover supplies are still heavy.

With the drouth forcing more cattle to market than last fall, beef also makes the September plentiful list. Since most of the cattle are off grass, supplies of intermediate and lower grades of beef will be especially heavy.

Broilers and fryers, milk and other dairy products, fresh Bartlett pears, summer vegetables and peanut butter complete the list.

Penalties Announced For Over-Planting

Penalties for farms which remain over-planted in cotton or peanuts have been announced at 17.7 cents per pound of lint cotton, and 8.5 cents per pound on peanuts.

The announcement was made by Barton B. McPherson, county office manager of the ASC in the Callahan County ASC news letter.

Feathers Clue In Hen Culture

Feathers not only protect the body of the chicken but their rate of development give poultry breeders clues which makes possible the breeding of faster maturing birds.

In the early days of poultry breeding, the coloring and color patterns of the feathers were important as a basis of judging and thus were of real economic value in the sale of stock, Ben Wormeli, extension poultry husbandman said. But, he added, records show that the color of the plumage is not related to rate of growth or egg production and receives little consideration from the poultry breeder, except in the case of white birds.

Research has shown that the rate of feathering is clearly received.

Research has shown that the rate of feathering is closely related to the time of sexual maturity, and hence the rate of growth. Breeders use the length of primary and tail feathers at day old and ten days as a basis for selecting for fast feathering which indicates fast growth and early maturity.

This method of selection, said the specialist, has not only helped breeders to get the fast growing, early maturing birds but also to eliminate the bare-backed feather condition which in the past was a serious problem in both broiler and egg producing strains. Present day chicks grow at rapid rate, building feathers, flesh and bones.

Since feathers consist largely of protein and make up frozifour to nine percent of the body weight of chickers and are well balanced growing rations.

To hold feed costs for producing replacement pullets to a minimum, Wormell suggest doing it by eliminating feed wastage rather than by cutting down on the quality of feed fed.
Since many birds in the wellbred flock will commence laying

Lint Production Down Since 1951

Cotton acreage has dropped in the nation 37 percent since 1951 but production by only 3 percent. In Texas, John Mc-Haney, extension economist, reports the acreage of cotton dropped 42 percent during this same period but production only 1 percent.

Production is up because, he said, there is no better income-producing enterprise than cotton for the cotton belt. It is a dependable crop and responsive to improved cultural practices. He predicted that acre yields will continue to increase. Since 1951, yields are up 529 percent. He predicted that acre yields will continue to increase. Since 1951, yields are up 52.9 percent and in Texas 69.9 percent. Too, production in the Far West has increased very rapidly where yields average around 700 lbs. an acre. Other areas making noticeable production increases have been the Mississippi Delta, Lower Rio Grande Valley and the Texas High Plains.

McHaney pointed out that cotton has been planted out that cotton has been planted on the better land and that growers are also using better varieties, cultural methods, following stricter insect control programs, using more fertilizer and irrigation to increase production. Too, he believes, as more and more of the known production technology is applied, yields will continue to rise.

Church To Show

Wesley Picture

The motion picture "John Wesley" will be shown at Clyde Methodist Church Aug. 26 at 7:30 p. m., Rev. Lee Crouch announced.

The feature-length film is in color and was produced by the radio and film commission of the Methodist Church in cooperation with J. Arthur Rank. It bring to the screen for the first time the 18th century evangelist and educator.

John Wesley's rescue from a burning house at the age of five, at the beginning of the film forecasts the life which unfolds in this story of a man of impelling influence upon his contemporaries and upon history.

English clergymen thought his venture in America as a missionary to the Indians in the Georgia colony was a failure, but it was the sind of failure which opened the door to the discovery of a religious certainty he had been seeking.

Furthermore, this discovery, in which John Wesley's felt his in which John Wesley's felt his in which John Wesley's felt his in the rain poured down.

A single tankship load of gaso-wing word for the rain poured down.

Furthermore, this discovery, in which John Wesley felt his "heart strangely warmed," led him to face mobs unafraid, and to ride 250,000 miles on horse-back.

A single tankship load of gaso-line would run your car for five hundred years,
