PIONEER YOUTH IS STRUCK BY CAR

HOME TOWN GOSSIP

Who remembers that shivering, cold morning last Winter when citizens crawled out of bed to find there was no gas, water pipes frozen and temperature standing at 12 degrees below freezing?

Wearing everything but the cedar chest this columnist braved the breeze for town in quest of breakfast, only to find none available. Chilled to the bones we reached the office and called to inquire what to the 'el was wrong with the gas. Mrs. Gray broke in to say she had steaming hot breakfast at the telephone office and we were invited to participate. No feast for royalty ever surpassed that Winter morning meal in lusciousness.

Leo Varner, the handsome Cottonwood athlete, became one of this locality's latest benedicts Sunday afternoon when at Pioneer he was joined in matrimony to the comely Miss Gretchen Bentley.

The newly weds will take up residence in California.

Here's the Gossiper's choice blessing to the couple, with congratulations to Leo and condolence to Gretchen.

Little is seen of Fred Cutbirth about town since his return from historic Old Mexico. He supposedly went there to fish but not yet one tale have we heard from either him or Lamar Henry, cowboy from up about the Baird country.

Phil Anderson will believe anything. He's been the blunt end of a community joke for more than a week and never "caught on."

It happened like this: Phil owns a boat which is prized second to nothing among his possessions. Marion Harvey borrowed the boat to stake out a couple of trot lines in Philpeco lake. Having finished with the boat and desirous of a little fun, Marion came back and said to Phil:

"You know I told my hired hand to get a big rock and carry it down and put it in the boat—the rock was to be used to stake one end of the line in the middle of the lake. Well, that boy picked up a big boulder and carried it out to the pier. Seeing the boat tied below—15 feet down, mind you—he dropped the boulder in. Needless to say, it knocked the bottom out and the boat sank."

Phil swallowed the story and has been lamenting his loss deeply for more than a week, when all of the time his "tub" floats majestically at its mooring.

Didja know: Jesse McAdams is a man with bulldog determination, after smoking cigars 20 years he quit one day and hasn't tasted the weed since; Benton Jones was a school teacher; W. D. Clapp was born in England and is a most interesting man to talk with; the first Chesterfield cigaret advertising ever to appear in the columns of this newspaper will be found in today's issue.

Today's column would not be complete without a revelation of the fact that two sheep ranchers from out about Mertzon are taking no little interest in our little city of late. Investigation discloses that Misses, Margaret Wagner and Elizabeth Tyson are responsible.

Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Reiger and daughters, and Lanier Adams of Gladewater are visiting here this week.

James Williams of Lufkin is visiting his grandmother, Mrs. W. A. McGowen here this week.

Many Attractions Offered At Celebration

RODEO CARNIVAL ORATORS TO BE PICNIC FEATURES

With added attractions being arranged most every day Cross Plains fifty third annual picnic and old settlers reunion to be held August 14 and 15, is expected to offer one of the most diversified programs in recent years.

Prominent speakers, "wet" and "dry" debates, radio musicians, rodeo, carnival and novelty attractions were program certainties yesterday, according to committee-men working on different phases of the celebration.

Peg Moreland, of radio fame, will be here the second day of the picnic and render banjo selections.

A booster trip over the Cross Plains trade territory will be made Tuesday by local business and professional men to advertise the fifty third annual picnic to be held here August 14 and 15, and to formally invite people over the entire area to make this city their shopping center all during the year.

Plans call for the leaving of Cross Plains at eight thirty. The route is tentatively set as follows: Pioneer, Sabanno, Nimrod, Seranton, Atwell, Putnam, Baird, Clyde, Eula, Denton, Opalin, Burkett, Cross Cut and Rising Star. Luncheon will be spread at a grove just West of Clyde.

A special trip will be made to Cottonwood Monday afternoon. Plans are to leave here about six o'clock.

Nat Williams, who has been appointed "Trip Captain" urges that all who can possibly get away to make the trip. It affords us a unique opportunity to take the people of our trade territory that we appreciate their business through the year and to invite new patronage" he said.

The Review was assured in a letter from Crook Advertising Agency at Dallas, Thursday morning.

A rodeo, which is to be staged by H. H. McDermitt and R. B. McGowen, was in the process of formation yesterday morning. There will be a slight charge to this program feature, however, the Review was told. It was pointed out that to stage a show thoroughly interesting to the public, expense necessitated the admission fee.

On the speaking schedule which is being arranged by Paul V. Harpel, local attorney, are J. Bryan Bradbury and Thomas E. Hayden, both of Abilene, who will speak in behalf of the retention of the Dean law which is to be voted on in general election August 24. The "wet" side of the question will probably be upheld by two speakers of statewide prominence from Austin. Their names were not available for publication at press time yesterday. Other state, district and county officials will be invited to speak.

A public address system has been secured to insure hearing for the large crowd which is expected.

Scores of other minor attractions are being considered, according to Ralph Chandler, Fire Chief, who is general chairman of all committees.

The carnival to be here for the two days celebration is the Valley Shows, which is reputed to be one of the cleanest amusement companies of its kind on the road today.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Lotief and family are visiting in Shreveport, Louisiana this week.

Mrs. Haught returned home Sunday from Sealy hospital in Santa Anna.

Church Of Christ Meeting Gets Underway; Initial Service Tonight

TO DO PREACHING

ALBERT SMITH

Cross Plains Church of Christ's annual revival meeting will begin Friday night in the open air tabernacle adjoining the church, with evangelist Albert Smith, of Lubbock, doing the preaching. Lewis C. Norman, principal of the local school, will have charge of the song services.

Elder Smith is reputed to be an outstanding evangelist and a well informed biblical scholar. He has conducted revivals here in the past, all of which have been marked by success.

Services during the meeting will be held twice daily—at three o'clock each afternoon and eight fifteen at night. The revival will continue through the second Sunday of next month, August 11.

"We cordially invite the entire public to each of the services during the revival, good gospel preaching and hymnal singing at every service," said C. S. Martin an Elder of the church to the Review Monday morning.

VAN PELT TO PREACH HERE SUNDAY MORNING

Rev. DeWitt Van Pelt will fill the pulpit at the Baptist church Sunday morning in the absence of the pastor Dr. C. A. Voyles, who is in a revival meeting at Gordon.

There will be no services at the church Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Brooks and family of Breckenridge visited Mr. Brooks' parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Brooks here last week.

JUBILEE ISSUE OF REVIEW COMES OFF PRESS NEXT WEEK

The annual jubilee edition of the Review, heralding the approach of the picnic will be issued next week, August ninth. Advertising copy has already started coming in for the "special" and indications that virtually every local business firm will be represented in the issue. An extra thousand copies will be published for use of advertisers and the Review management in mailing out sample papers.

DELEGATES RETURN FROM F. F. A. MEET

Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Underwood and son and Buster Atwood and Malcolm Steele returned Sunday from Carlsbad Cavern, where they visited after having attended the state F. F. A. convention at Lubbock Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of last week.

400 boys were in attendance at the convention and voted to go to Stephenville for next year's meeting. 300 of the delegates went from Lubbock to Carlsbad, New Mexico, to visit the cavern as guests of the management.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Settle had as their guests this week Mr. Settle's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Settle and step-brother, D. C. Yarbrough and family of Dallas, and Mrs. Settle's sister, Mrs. J. Ruth Jones and son of El Paso.

3 DAYS FESTIVAL AT DELEON WILL BE HELD 7, 8, 9TH

DeLeon, Texas, July 30, 1935.—DeLeon's Eighth Annual Melon-Peach Festival is being held here Wednesday to Friday, August 7—8—9. The celebration is being given in connection with DeLeon's record breaking peach and melon marketing season in which 100,000 bushels of peaches and between 400 and 500 car-loads of watermelons are being moved.

The celebration opens with a street parade at 10:00 Wednesday morning, the parade terminating at the fair grounds where Hon Harry Hines, chairman of the Texas Highway Commission, will deliver an address, commencing at 11:00 a. m. Wednesday evening, 8:00 o'clock, the coronation of "Queen Elberta of the House of Tom Watson" will be staged, the court scene being one of regal splendor. Miss Eugena Gentry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Gentry was chosen queen by popular voting.

Melons and peaches will be judged in the show at 1:00 p. m. Wednesday and cash awards paid to winners. There will be baseball each afternoon, carnival and other entertainment features.

As the crowning feature of the three days entertainment, DeLeon growers will slice and serve free to the thousands of visitors, iced water melon, at 3:30 o'clock Friday afternoon the 9th.

Mrs. Odie Cannon returned home Sunday after a weeks visit with friends and relatives in Abilene.

LOCAL MAN MADE HIWAY DIRECTOR AT ANNUAL MEET

Chas. F. Hemphill, of Cross Plains was made a director in the Highway 36 Association which held its annual meeting at Gatesville last week.

The highway will, when completed, reach from Abilene to the Gulf through thirteen counties including Taylor, Callahan, Eastland, Comanche, Hamilton, Coryell, Bell, Milam, Burleson, Washington, Austin, Fort Bend and Brazoria counties.

The members of the association voted that a representative of each of the counties included should be appointed and that the group would elect officers for the ensuing year. Those appointed by the representatives at the meeting were, Chas. F. Hemphill for Callahan county, Judge H. L. Stewart for Comanche county, H. B. Gordon for Hamilton county, Judge Robert W. Brown for Coryell county, T. S. Wyche for Bell county, John B. Henderson for Milam county, H. G. Womble for Burleson county and E. C. Toby for Brazoria county.

Two of the newly elected board members were not present and others were appointed to vote for them today in the selection of officers. Taylor, Eastland, Washington, Austin, and Fort Bend counties, not being represented.

Mrs. Charlie Childs of San Angelo visited in the home of Mrs. L. W. Westerman over the week end.

Miss Frances Sprawles visited friends and relatives in Fredrick, Oklahoma last week.

ANOTHER PROOF THAT ADVERTISING PAYS!

Will advertising sell anything?

The Review editor's answer is: "No, but it will sell anything that is attractively priced for which there is a desire or a demand"

Last week C. M. Garrett who had paid to have an advertisement run three weeks, called at the Review office and said: "Please stop that ad. you're running for me I've sold the cow shortly after it's first appearance in the Review."

Yes if you have something to sell, rent, or want to buy, advertising will help you so long as you are reasonable in your expectations of the person with whom you will have the opportunity of dealing.

GRETCHEN BENTLEY, LEO VARNER WED

Miss Gretchen Bentley, of Pioneer, and Leo Varner, of Cottonwood, were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at the Pioneer Baptist parsonage with Rev. Russell Dennis, pastor, officiating.

Although the courtship has continued over a period of several years, the marriage came as a complete surprise to friends of couple in Cross Plains, Cottonwood and Pioneer.

Mrs. Varner is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Bentley, of Pioneer. After graduating from high school, she attended Howard Payne College and it was while there the couple became acquainted. For the past two years the bride has taught school at Oak Lawn, in the West part of Callahan county.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Varner, of Cottonwood. He is a graduate of the high school there and has done college work at Simmons University in Abilene and at Howard Payne. He was prominent in athletics in college as well as in high school.

The couple are at present making their home with the bride's parents at Pioneer. They plan to leave, however, within the next two weeks for South Gate, California, where Mr. Varner will be employed with a tire and rubber company.

The wedding ceremony was solemnized at five o'clock in the presence of a number of friends. Shortly after the rites had been completed the couple went to Philpeco country club where they were honored guests at a swimming party and picnic.

WILL RECOVER SAYS PHYSICIANS; HURTS SUSTAINED TUESDAY

Ralph Huntington, 11 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. (Dutch) Huntington, of Pioneer, is recovering normally in a Cisco hospital from injuries sustained Tuesday afternoon, when an automobile collided with his bicycle throwing him into the side of the machine.

A deep gash was cut in the youth's back by the door handle. He was also seriously bruised and flesh crushed from his right arm. Physicians declare the boy is doing splendidly and barring complications will be completely out of danger within a few days.

Ralph with a youthful companion, on another bicycle, was riding along highway 206 just South of the Pioneer school building when the accident occurred. He was off the pavement on the left side of the road and the other boy was far to the right side. When the approaching automobile sounded the horn, Ralph is believed to have thought the car a greater distance to the rear and started to cross to the same side of his friend.

The car, which was driven by a lady tourist from Oklahoma enroute for Fort Worth—the woman was accompanied by her young son—is believed to have struck the "bike" with the left fender.

The lady stopped the automobile and was attending the injured boy when his uncle Jake Huntington drove up. Mr. Huntington put his nephew in his car and rushed him to a Cross Plains doctor's office. A hurried examination was made and the boy placed in an ambulance. 25 minutes after leaving the local physician's office the ambulance stopped in front of the Graham Sanatorium at Cisco, a distance of 35 miles.

The lady tourist, whose name the Review did not learn, followed the injured boy to Cross Plains and then to Cisco where she remained until after a report from the examining physicians Tuesday night.

B'WOOD REGATTA BE HELD AUG. 3-4

Residents of West Texas will have their first opportunity to see big-time outboard motor boat races Saturday and Sunday, August 3 and 4, during the Regatta at Lake Brownwood. The races will be run as feature events of the two day Regatta on Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

Entries have been received by the Regatta Association from Fort Worth, Dallas, Houston and Beaumont racers. Additional entries are being received daily, and officials expect one of the largest fields entered in any of this year's races in Texas. The races will be run under the auspices of the National Outboard Association, with N. O. A. officials in charge.

The one-mile course has been laid out near the dam at Lake Brownwood, and nearby ground has been cleared, affording an excellent view of the races. The races will be run in two heats of five miles each.

Races will be open to four N. C. A. classes, A, B, C & F with prizes of $65.00, $45.00, $25.00 and $15.00 offered in each race. Amateurs and professionals will compete in the same races, amateurs to receive the equivalent of the cash prizes in merchandise or trophies, as they elect. Cash prizes total $800.00.

Special races for local, commercial inboard and outboard will be held Saturday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock. Special freestyle hydroplane race will be held all boats following the N.O.A. regatta.

The two-day program under way at 9:00 o'clock Monday morning, August 3, will include a picnic. (See Boat Race, page 1.)

Work Hard And Forget Congress Is Erath Janitor's Cure For Depression

The only way to make a living is to work, and Congress can't do anything about it, thinks Janitor R. A. Clark, of Stephenville, who paid out his home during the depression, states an Associated Press dispatch dated at Stephenville.

"Nearly all people seem to want to get as much relief and Government money as they can," said Clark. "What they ought to do is to get a job—any kind of job—and go to work. There's plenty of work for people who want to do it. Clark has been janitor of a three-story building at John Tarleton College 15 years and says he doesn't have much education—"just what I got in rural school and by watching the professors here." But he hasn't missed a day at the end of his broom handle in 12 years and this Summer he is being offered more odd jobs than he can get to.

When the janitor's abbreviated salary was slashed a few years ago, he turned spare time into money by caring lawns and doing other odd jobs, and he didn't miss a payment on his home, taking care of the final one about the time increasing relief rolls were sending delegations to Washington. In addition he sent a daughter to an institution for deaf and dumb and cared for two other children and his wife.

Less than a month ago the janitor kept a woman waiting a week before he could tell her whether he would have time to care for her garden during the Summer.

"Jobs are not hard to get," Clark explained. "If you do the work in a way that makes a person profit, he's sure to want you again. There's not any use in such big relief rolls, and there wouldn't be such things if everybody would quit fooling around and go to work."

Clark who reads newspapers thoroughly and can say offhand what is the latest action in Washington doesn't have much faith in Congress and the New Deal.

"Them people," he said, "are just fooling around and don't know what they are doing. I can't understand it all and it's not doing me any good. There's not but one way to make a living and that is to get any kind of job and work."

Items of Interest From COUNTY AGENT'S
OFFICE

By Ross B. Jenkins

When the writer attended A&M College there was a yell known as "Farmers Fight," that brought the boys to their feet whenever it was given. It was, and is still, given to spur the boys on to the goal of winning whatever their objective was. A like call to arms is being sounded by the farmers of the nation today to bring attention to the fight for the continuance of the Agricultural Adjustment Act that is being attacked by the industrial group. The following is clipped from the Dallas Semi-Weekly News of July 26, 1935 is to the point:

Declaring that the AAA processing tax is the farmer's tariff and that agriculture is entitled to protection the same as other industry, Pres. H. G. Lucas, Brownwood, of the Texas Agricultural Association, announced Tuesday through the Dallas office plans of the association to attack the tariffs of industry in court.

At the same time E. L. Corbin, secretary, announced a meeting of the association for August 1, at the LaSalle Hotel, Bryan, at the same time the farmers' short course is in progress at Texas A&M College.

"The manufacturing industry has destroyed the processing tax, which is the farmer's tariff," Mr. Lhd as said in a statement released here. "Now the farmers propose to destroy the tariff. If the processing tax is redistributed of wealth, then the tariff is also and we intend to lay the fight on such redistribution."

"The farmers are plenty mad about the attitude of industry toward them because the processing tax has been one of the main things that kept agriculture going the last two years."

Mr. Corbin said the Texas Agricultural Association, organized in Dallas no December 3, 1933, by fifty independent farmer organizations, now has 1,989 community organizations in 228 counties, with a total membership of 225,000.

"The cotton ginner's have said they will raise money to fight the Bankhead Act," Mr. Corbin said. "With this force of farmers we'll show 'em how it's done. We expect to ask each member for a contribution of $1.00 to the war chest to carry on the fight, and plan to raise $100,000 at least.

"The suits against the processing tax on the ground that it is not for revenue but for redistribution of wealth are just as applicable to the tariff which farmers have paid for generations on the commodities they use," Mr. Lucas statement said. "The protection of 'infant industries' under the tariff is OK in the minds of the processors, but the protection of agriculture under a processing tax is 'all wrong', these same gentlemen say. We propose to take the matter in our own hands and see there is equality for agriculture.

"The processing tax is the first opportunity the farmer ever had to enjoy equality with other groups on the finished products of his own raw materials and now through court action he is losing that benefit.

Manufacturers Not Hurt

"The processing tax has not hurt the manufacturer. For generations farmers have paid the tariffs uncompilingly and their farm supplies and these tariffs carried relatively high percentages when compared to processing taxes, but the latter have been passed to the consumer with increases.

Citiz Tariff Costs

Mr. Corbin cited overall as an example of the relation between the tariff and the processing tax.

"Before the processing tax the retail price of overalls was $1.09 for a pair weighing 2.06 pounds. Now the retail price is $1.59, an increase of 50c. The processing tax is 8c and the increase in farm price of cotton per pair is 5c, or a total increase of 13c per pair as against an increase of 50c in the price charged by the manufacturers and all the while a 38 per cent tariff totaling 60c a pair is charged.

"Farmers have willingly paid the high tariff that business might thrive, and yet the manufacturers object to an 8c processing tax that agriculture might exist."

Pian Orchard and Save Seed Now

It is time to consider the planting of an orchard this Fall. Sites that will be used for such planting should be broken deeply now and allowed to mellow and get in good condition.

Any farmer can plant an orchard cheaply if not in such a hurry so as to have time to grow their own trees. With the great number of seed now available from the canning of peaches, it will be easy to save a sufficient supply for any desirable sized orchard. Peach seeds so intended to be planted should be buried in sand that will remain moist until next January or middle of February when they should be taken up and placed in cold storage where the temperature will be dropped below the freezing point so as to break the rest period. All peaches, lemons, and apples go into a rest and will not come up if planted unless the rest period has been broken by freezing. Some winters are so cold that the rest period is broken and we find many plants coming up around the trees that have shedded fruit the season or so before but should it be a mild winter, such as was experienced the past two years, very few seed will be found to come up. Seed should never be allowed to 'dry out' as the drying tends to weaken the vigor of the embryonic plant before it sprouts.

SCRANTON

By Mrs. W. E. Paires

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Little and sons Durward and James of Abilene visited Mrs. Little's mother, Mrs. L. G. Haislip Wednesday night and Thursday.

Are You Going On Goowill Tour Tuesday? Is Worthwhile

There is perhaps no better opportunity during the year for local merchants to visit the various portions of the Cross Plains trade territory and to personally invite new business, than that offered by making the annual goodwill booster trip over this area next Tuesday.

Should a representative from every local business make the tour and at the various points do a bit of personal solicitation for the town and his respective firm, there is no estimate as to how much local business must be stimulated.

The man who said: "Business goes where it is invited and stays where it is well treated" spoke logically. Let's plan now to make this goodwill trip. It will be most enjoyable as well as profitable.

Another Amendment Upon Which You Must Vote August 24

At present the Legislature can submit proposed changes in the Constitution only at regular sessions—held every two years.

Proposal number four on the ballot for the August 24 election would revise the Constitution to permit the submission of amendments at special sessions. It is pointed out that in emergency cases, particularly on relief matters, that it might be necessary for Texas voters to vote on an emergency measure at a time, when the regular session of the Legislature is quite far distant in the future.

The original purpose of the provision which makes submission possible only at regular sessions was to make the fundamental law hard to amend and change. Two schools of thought are at variance here. The one believing that the Constitution should be easy to change—particularly in emergency cases, and the other that every safeguard should be placed around it to make it difficult to change.

If the proposed amendment is adopted the Legislature in any special session can submit proposed amendments to the voters—provided such amendments are submitted by the Governor for the Legislature's consideration. If the amendment is rejected the present system will obtain; that is, constitutional amendments can be submitted to the people only at the regular sessions of the legislature.

The 44th Legislature submitted thirteen amendments to the voters—seven in August of this year and six in November of 1936. These were all submitted during the regular session. Under the proposed change the 44th might yet submit additional amendments for the voters' consideration.

Another amendment to be voted on August 24 will be explained on this page next week.

The LETTER BOX

Editor the Review Cross Plains, Texas Dear Sir:—

Two years ago the opponents of prohibition promised us that if we would vote for repeal that there would be less drinking, bootlegging would be eliminated, the tax burden would be lightened by revenues from the liquor traffic, the unemployment situation would be relieved, the open saloon would not be permitted to return, and dry States would be protected. Statistics show that these promises have not been fulfilled.

Arrests for drunkenness in the United States has increased 26 percent since repeal. Institutions for the care of alcoholic patients reported an increase of 40 percent during the first year of repeal. The Northwestern Life Insurance Company reports a gain of 77 percent in the number of those reporting the use of intoxicants during the last two years. People killed in the United States as result of drinking drivers has increased 33 percent during the first two years of repeal. These facts prove conclusively that instead of there being less drinking as promised by the repealists, there has actually been an increase in drinking.

The problem of bootlegging has not been eliminated as promised by the advocates of repeal. Mr. Joseph H. Choate, Jr., head of the Federal Alcohol Control Administration, estimates that we are consuming a quantity of bootleg whiskey which cannot be much less, and may be more, than we drank during prohibition.

The tax burden of the people of the United States today, instead of being less, is actually greater than it has ever been before. The repealists promised us that the revenues from spirituous liquors would produce at least two billion dollars per year. Statistics show that the Federal Government has received only one hundred and fifty million dollars per year from this source. Statistics further show that the cost of enforcing the liquor law is greater than the cost of enforcing the prohibition law. Congress recently asked for an additional $3,678,738 for the support of the Coast Guard to prevent rum ships from transporting spirituous liquors into the United States.

The unemployment situation in the United States has not been relieved by repeal, for Government statistics show that there are more people unemployed in the United States today than ever before.

The repealists promised that the saloon would not be permitted to return. Statistics show that there are nearly one half million retail liquor places in the United States and that one-half of these are nothing but open saloons.

The protection promised dry States by the repealists has not only been unfulfilled but has been flagrantly violated as shown by the fact that the Federal Government has issued 1742 licenses to sell hard liquor in the State of Texas, contrary to the laws of this State.

Therefore, the only logical conclusion to be drawn from the above facts is that repeal has failed. In the light of these facts, I earnestly appeal to the voters of the Twenty-Fourth Senatorial District to go to the polls on August 24th and vote to keep our Statute dry.

God's Noblest Work

BY JEFF D. RAY, D. D.

'An honest man is the noblest work of God.'

I am not one of those holding that all the good is in the past but we all know perfectly well that in recent years there has been a shameful decline in debt-paying honesty and in an honor that makes a man live up to a promise. Confessedly the depression has made debt-paying difficult for many and impossible for some of our best, most honest people. But the multitudes are using the depression as a smoke screen. They are inherently dishonest and use the depression as an excuse for not paying debts which with reasonable thrift and economy they could pay and which if they had a true sense of honor and financial integrity they would pay.

A good friend of mine illustrated this spirit the other day by saying in a semijocular way, "People do not expect anybody to pay his debts these times." My reply was, "There is one red-headed old man whom the people expect to pay his debts, who does pay them and who will continue to pay them if he has to sell his shoes." What distresses me is that I find so many people who do not pay their debts and seem to have no sense of shame no mortification on account of it.

It is my opinion, painfully arrived at, that the press, the school, the church, the home, and all character-building institutions are falling down disgracefully in the matter of growing a generation of men and women to whom honor is a slogan ever present and always dominant. I believe in a religion that makes men chivalrous and high-minded and trustworthy. If a man has a religion that does not do that for him he had better examine his foundation for he is certainly building on sinking sand. If your religion does not make you honest in this world, it certainly will not do you any good in the next.

I think we need more preaching on this subject. A good text might come from Shakespeare where he mak-Cassius say, "Now honor is the subject of my story" or from Paul where he said, "Provide things honorable in the sight of all men" or again where he said, "Owe no man anything." The sermon might not sound as pious as some others and it might displease some of the financially loose-jointed parsonages, and it might even embarrass the preacher himself, but I am quite sure it would be pleasing to Almighty God.

For 25 years I have been saying that if a man is wrong on the money question he has in him a germ that renders him unworthy of confidence on any part of the ground. Convince me that a man is not four-square when it comes to the dollar mark and I would not trust him anywhere with anything. Nothing is needed in this country more than a character-transforming revival of old-fashioned debt-paying honesty—an honesty that needs no code to define it and no policeman to enforce it.

Sunday School Lesson

By Rev. Charles E. Dunn

JOSIAH

Lesson for August 4th. 2 Kings 22 and 23.

Golden Text: Matthew 4:10.

Josiah, who was proclaimed king of Judah when he was but a little lad 8 years old, is one of the most attractive figures in the sacred record. "Like unto him," says the Bible historian, "was there no king before him; neither after him arose there any like him." He reminds us of his great-grandfather, the upright Hezekiah. Indeed he can stand comparison with the mighty David.

Josiah is one of the great reformers of history. Under his grandfather Manasseh, an unprincipled rascal, who misruled the people for 55 long years, the moral and religious zeal of Judah had sunk to a very low ebb. His father Amon was equally bad, and lasted only two years coming to an ignoble end through the hand of an assassin. The task facing the new young king was tremendous, but into it he put the energy of ten men. He knew that the nation was in a most critical condition.

The thorough-going reformation of Josiah was inspired by the discovery by Hilkiah, the High Priest of the Book of Instruction, or Deuteronomy, in the temple where it had long gathered dust, its warnings neglected, its laws allowed to become obsolete. The king was so disturbed by the contents of this forgotten volume that he read it publicly to a great assembly, following which both king and people entered into a solemn covenant to act in accord with its provisions. Pagan altars were removed, fakirs were barred; lewd practices stamped out; the Mosaic Law restored. Unfortunately Josiah was slain in an ill-advised battle. With high hopes he went out to meet the powerful Necho, king of Egypt, near Megiddo, and there he fell. But this premature death spared him the pain of watching his beloved country sink into its tragic doom.

If the family will not eat a certain vegetable cooked by one recipe try another that may prove more successful.

The Story of the Constitution by CALEB JOHNSON

THE CONSTITUTION DRAFTED IN SECRET CONVENTION

The delegates who met in Philadelphia on May 25, 1787, chose General George Washington, of the Virginia delegation, as their chairman. Doctor Benjamin Franklin, a delegate from Pennsylvania, had declined because of his advanced years.

The delegates knew before they met that certain things had to be done. They stated those in the Preamble. "To form a more perfect union." It was that or ruin. The alliance under the Articles of Confederation was decidedly imperfect.

"To establish justice." There were no courts in existence that had jurisdiction across state lines. Only the "more perfect union" could "insure domestic tranquility, for states were already making threatening gestures at each other.

"To provide for the common defense." The experience of the Revolution had taught them the necessity of united action in war.

"To promote the general welfare." It must be remembered that the Preamble of the Constitution is merely a statement of purpose and intent. The courts have many times ruled that no powers are granted to the Federal Government under it. Many efforts have been made to construe this declaration of the purpose of promoting the general welfare, as a blanket authorization to the central Government to do whatever, in its judgment, might tend to that end.

That is not the case. The Constitution which came out of four months of deliberation specifically delegated certain powers and strictly limited the Federal Government to those powers. The states did not delegate board authority to Congress to do whatever it pleased, even "to secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity," as the Preamble states the Constitution's purpose, except as the central authority of the "more perfect union" followed the precise rules and obeyed the rigid restrictions imposed in the body of the document.

The sessions of the Convention were held behind closed doors. Every delegate was pledged not to discuss the proceedings with outsiders. All notes, memoranda and documents which might give an inkling of what was going on were carefully guarded. The friction between many of the thirteen newly-liberated nations was so intense, and political animosities ran so high, that the work of the Convention might easily have been ruined by the premature disclosure of its deliberations.

The only official record of the Convention recorded merely the items agreed upon, clause by clause. The only report of the debates was in notes made by the delegates themselves. The Convention was thrown into consternation one day, when James Madison reported that his notes of the previous session were missing. A frantic search of the hall was made. Every member was questioned. The delegates went to bed that night in a state of great anxiety. The next morning, however, Mr. Madison reported that he had found the missing notes, in a pocket of the coat he had worn the day before.

There was great uncertainty as to whether any document which the Convention could draft would serve to hold the states together. Doctor Franklin voiced the apprehension of all the delegates.

MID-SUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM—by A. B. Chapin

The DIVORCE COURT MURDER

By MILTON

Eighth Instalment

SYNOPSIS—Six persons are in an inner office of the law firm of Dawson, McQuire and Locke at Philadelphia. A master hearing in the divorce case of Rowland vs. Rowland is under way. Mrs. Rowland, represented by her lawyer brother, Mr. Willard; Mr. Rowland, the defendant, and his attorney, Mr. Trumbull; the court clerk and Mr. Dawson, the master, are the six persons. There is a new development in the case. After failing to defend himself against the charge of adultery in earlier hearings, Mr. Rowland digs up evidence and asks the court's permission to produce witnesses and resist the suit. Judge Dawson overrules the heated objections of Mr. Willard, and orders Mr. Trumbull to bring in the first witness. Mr. Trumbull has just gone to an outer office to bring the witness.

NOW, GO ON WITH THE STORY

Rankin nodded, in appreciation of the diabolical effectiveness of the late Tom Marshall's measures.

"So, with the divorce goes the management of the estate," he summarized. "But I thought Harvey Willard had means. Both he and your wife inherited from Peter Willard's estate. Why should he need the trusteeship?"

The young man shook his head. "He is not rich any more, and anyhow Adele was willed most of it. Willard's share all disappeared in poor investments and the stock market. And Marshall's will permitted him to spend for his own benefit the thirty per cent he didn't need to transfer to his sister—about fifty thousand annually. I happen to know he shared pressed by creditors. Unless he can obtain plenty of funds before July first, he's a ruined man; they will close in and force him into bankruptcy. Adele is too smart to throw good money after bad and won't lend it to him. Only a prompt divorce decree can save him."

"Still," the detective pointed out, "if your wife intends to marry Campbell shortly, what good will that do him? As her husband he then becomes the Marshal executor and Willard's situation isn't bettered at all."

"Even with temporary control of the estate," Rowland returned, "he might manage to slide out from under." He extinguished his cigarette. "Besides, he had no more idea of Adele's intention in that direction than I had until my spy-ang brought results."

He paused, and after a brief moment for reflection, Rankin acquiesced.

"Yes, I can understand that. Now what did you discover by watching Mrs. Rowland?"

"Two weeks ago I obtained the evidence I needed," Rowland resumed his narrative. It was on the Wednesday evening after the last hearing. I had learned several days before from the chauffeur that Campbell was back in town; and for some evenings I continued my usual watch and trailed them. Then that Wednesday, May twenty-fourth Finley reported he had been dismissed for the evening and also added this significant item: Adele maid had casually informed him that she was instructed to pack an over night bag for her."

"Well, right after supper, I took up my watch by the entrance of the Willard estate. Campbell driving a Cadillac coupe, arrived at eight o'clock, and Adele joined him with her overnight bag. But for the early part of the evening, they did nothing more censorable than on other occasions. First, they went to the Forrest Theater. At eleven o'clock, they visited the Organdy Club on Broad Street, but I didn't dare follow them in. Instead, I parked near Campbell's car looked into it and saw that he too had brought an overnight bag. He and my wife remained in the night club until midnight. And perhaps twenty minutes before they appeared, Mrs. Keith came out of the place by herself and—"

Rankin's interruption was abrupt. "All alone?" he demanded sharply. "She was at the Organdy unescorted?"

"Yes, and it puzzled me too," Rowland replied. "I called her and she explained that she had been to the opera for which Mr. Keith did not care. Because the club was so close by, she went in to see the floor show. I realized, for a married woman in her position, the story didn't ring true. I didn't question her, as it was none of my business and as it was none of my business and beside the point. I was too thankful for her appearance just when I needed a witness to worry about it."

"You were well enough acquainted with Mrs. Keith to enlist her aid in such a personal matter?"

The young man made an apologetic gesture. "I'm afraid I wasn't fair to her and took advantage of her lucky appearance," he explained persuasively. "You see, I asked her to join me, but didn't tell her why I wanted her; I only said it would be an important service to me and urgent. I was excited and that made her curious and desire to help me. It wasn't until we were already trailing my wife and Campbell away from the club, toward city limits, that she fully realized the predicament I placed her in. But it was too late then and she was sporty enough to see it through; for my sake, she agreed to risk the publicity and gossip and give evidence. If I had ever dreamed it would end like this—"

He left the sentence unfinished, compressing his lips with a sigh, shaking his head dolefully. An awkward silence followed until Rankin asked:

"Then you and Mrs. Keith were good friends, Rowland. How long have you known her?"

"I met her two winters ago, at Palm Beach, though, like all Philadelphia society, I had heard of Mortimer Keith. She stayed at the Royal Arms Hotel, were Adele and I were; and because he was too busy to join her, she was a grass widow and needed company. That, her social position and her attractiveness made her welcome with all the young men at the resort. I did my share to entertain her; I rode and visited the casino with her, and several times attended the dog races. Even Adele acted fairly cordially toward her."

"Well, what happened the night here you followed your wife and Campbell?" the detective prompted. "Where did they lead you?"

"Out the Park Drive and left on the Ridge Pike," Rowland said. "We passed through Roxborough and Norristown. At Collegeville we caught up and followed them off to the right, along the narrow country road paralleling Perkiomen Creek. At the end of five miles, they halted finally at a substantial stucco bungalow along the creek. It was then one-thirty."

"Again I drove my car past, about two hundred feet, and parked where a clump of trees fringed the road and hid us from the cottage. Campbell produced a key and unlocked the door; then he turned on the lights. I have inquired about it since and learned it belongs to Nick Alberti, the manager of the Organdy Club, a friend of Campbell's Adele was then cautious enough to pull down all the blinds. Still watching silently in the darkness, Mrs. Keith and I could make out they were drinking in the living room. At two-thirty they started to retire and a half hour later Campbell turned out the lights. I considered I had gathered enough evidence against Adele to enter a defense to her suit—so I retraced the trail with Mrs. Keith back to the city."

The speaker concluded his narrative and fell silent until Rankin asked:

"And at no time did your wife or Campbell see you or become suspicious of your presence?"

"I'm practically certain they never realized they were being followed."

"Then they and Mr. Willard had no idea in advance with whom they had to reckon? Mr. Trumbull felt reasonably sure they hadn't identified Mrs. Keith as your chief witness before she arrived at the hearing this afternoon."

Allen Rowland pondered a moment. "That's right, unless Adele noticed her at the night club," he offered at length, "and she probably didn't; her arrival there that night must have been one of the reasons Mrs. Keith left without waiting for her date."

"Yes, I suppose that's possible," Rankin frowned uncertainly. "And you have no other proofs of your wife's infidelity. Your entire case depended on her?"

"Then you and Mrs. Keith were good friends, Rowland. How long have you known her?"

"I met her two winters ago, at Palm Beach, though, like all Philadelphia society, I had heard of Mortimer Keith. She stayed at the Royal Arms Hotel, were Adele and I were; and because he was too busy to join her, she was a grass widow and needed company. That, her social position and her attractiveness made her welcome with all the young men at the resort. I did my share to entertain her; I rode and visited the casino with her, and several times attended the dog races. Even Adele act-

to account for the manufacturer's appearance. He had never met Mortimer Keith, he said; though, having seen him several times, he had recognized him when he entered the room. He could add no explanation or detail to the secretary's description of the incident.

Concluding his questions on this circumstance Rankin thanked Rowland and dismissed him.

His next step was to examine the dead woman's checkbook. Except for two stubs her accounts seemed in perfect order; her expenditures, with the date, purpose or name of payee and amount, were carefully audited. The sums she spent were comparatively small and far from commensurate. Rankin wondered at her low balance, which never exceeded five thousand dollars, and at present came to less than one.

The two check-stubs which were not identifiable as to purpose however, indicated exceptionally large sums. One check had been drawn about three months ago, and the past Thursday—for two thousand and three hundred dollars, respectively. The only clue to the reason for these withdrawals was the word "personal" written on each stub.

Before the detective could ponder the significance of these entries, a knock interrupted him. At his command, the policeman he had sent to locate Mortimer Keith opened it and entered the room.

"Yes, Cottman?" Rankin greeted him. "You've been gone a long time. Is Mr. Keith with you?"

The officer shook his head. "No, I haven't found him; he isn't in town at all," he replied. "It was too late to visit his offices, so I called at the Aldwich Apartments and learned from his butler, Stanley, that he had gone away—on business, he thought to Washington."

Rankin pursed his lips in disappointment. "Washington? I suppose you discovered what business took him there and communicated with the people he went to see, Cottman?" the detective inquired.

"No, I didn't, although I tried to; that's what took me so long. The secretary said it had something to do with the New Ray Silk Company. Neither he nor the butler had any idea at what hotel Mr. Keith might stop, tonight."

"Hotel? Then he isn't expected back today?"

The policeman shook his head. "No, not until tomorrow," he answered, "when he's completed his business."

"Well, I imagine we can wait and give him a chance to turn up according to schedule," Rankin said, dismissing Cottman.

Johnson did not reply until the officer had gone. "I've taken everybody's fingerprints, Tommy, he said, "but I can't make a detailed report until I've had time to study them—say tomorrow morning."

CROSS PLAINS, TEXAS

Tinkling Bells, and the Clink of Silver

IN A Chinese fairy story one reads about the Emperor's garden, where rare and colorful plants from all over the world were constantly growing.

It was the duty of the honorable head gardener to watch for the most beautiful of the blooms and tie to the stem of each a little silver bell. As the flowers swayed in the breeze, the bells tinkled with sweet music. Thus the courtiers and the distinguished visitors, strolling along the paths, were sure to see the finest specimens.

This was the Emperor's way of saying 'I have something extra fine that you should see: look this way and you'll be repaid.'

In the advertising columns of this paper are similar messages addressed to You. Read them and you will hear the clink of silver. Our merchants are saying, "We have some extra values. We have some specially seasonable articles that you should see. Come to our stores and you will be repaid."

You have nothing to lose when you accept this invitation. In fact, when you fail to do so, you're missing some of the very news for which you bought this paper.

THE REVIEW IS DOING ITS UTMOST TO SERVE THIS COMMUNITY IN AN ACCEPTABLE MANNER AND YOUR ASSISTANCE IS VERY GREATLY APPRECIATED.

Would You Be SAFE OR SORROW

If driving at a fast speed you were forced to make a sudden stop to avoid accident?

Good brakes are essential in emergencies such as this. Hydraulic brakes are the best made, expert tests have revealed. The brakes on Plymouths and Chryslers are hydraulic the same as are used to stop locomotives upon short notice.

Plymouth hydraulic brakes and all steel bodies are your assurance of safety in any motoring emergency.

FANTASTIC COMEDY TO PLAY NEXT WEEK AT LIBERTY THEATER

"Night Life of the Gods", which comes to the screen of the Liberty theater Wednesday and Thursday of next week is reputed to be a fantastic comedy in which a scientist turns men into stone, and statues into men.

First he turns members of his family whom he doesn't like into stone and places them in the garden. Alan Mowbray, the scientist, meets Florine McKinney and both visit the museum, where he brings to life eight Greek gods and goddesses. He takes them to his home for a wild party. The gods soon become nuisances in modern life and the scientist is glad to return them to the museum. They refuse to resume their former poses, so he transforms them back to stone as they are, all bickering.

Finals fadeouts show Mowbray transforming himself and Florine McKinney.
