City Buys Tract For Sewer Disposal

TRACT PURCHASED FOR $30 AN ACRE FROM LOCAL LADY

An adequate sewer disposal, which has been problem number one for the City Water Department for the past two years, was arranged Tuesday night when members of the council in regular session oked the purchase of 25 acres of land from Mrs. Rosa Ridgeway and a right-of-way to the property across a tract of land owned by the B. B. Bond estate.

The 25 acre tract was bought from Mrs. Ridgeway for $750, figuring $30 per acre. $25 was paid for the right-of-way across the land owned by the B. B. Bond estate. City officials have been receiving complaints the past two years as a result of the sewer disposal drainage into Turkey Creek. Purchase of the Ridgeway tract will give sufficient acreage on which to dispose of the water.

Mayor S. P. Collins pointed out to the Review Wednesday morning that the land to be irrigated as it will be, should be ideal for the growing of certain crops. "We have not, however, considered that phase of the property's possibilities," he said.

The council also voted at the meeting Tuesday night to join other business firms in the supporting of a chamber of commerce, and agreed to take memberships for all city employees.

Mr. and Mrs. George T. Lamar of Cisco were visitors here Sunday.

15 BARREL WELL IS DRILLED IN BY ROY ARROWOOD ON MILLER

An extensive drilling campaign is expected to get underway West of Cross Plains, where two shallow producers and a four million foot gasser have been drilled in within the last 10 days.

The last to hit the pay was Roy Arrowood on the Jim Miller place. Arrowood touched the sand at 630 feet. The hole filled several hundred feet with crude almost immediately. Operators yesterday estimated the potentiality of the test at 15 barrels. The oil is accompanied by a half million cubic feet of gas.

Other recent completions in the Company's well on the McDermitt area include the Grassroots oil ranch, where better than four million feet of gas was encountered. No oil, however, was found. Slightly further West the Robin H. Briens trustee has completed a small well on the Owen's ranch. The well is making about two barrels, however, it is believed to be an edge-producer in an entirely new pool.

THERE'S ONLY ONE

By SOPHIE KERR

© Sophie Kerr Underwood, 5001 Kerr Service, SYNOPSIS

Just before she leaves to spend a vacation in France, Anne Vincent tells her adopted daughter, Rachel, that Rachel's mother was beautiful. Elmer Malloy, before her marriage to Rachel's father, who was killed in the World War, Rachel goes to New York, where she is to stay while Anne is in France. After Anne leaves for France, Rachel, bent on seeing her real mother, looks up her number.

Rachel learns the Caynes are not yet in town. Pink takes Rachel to dinner at Tom and Rhoda Steele's where she meets Oliver Land, a shabby genteel young man out of work who suggests that she apply for a job as a photographer's model for advertising illustration. He agrees to introduce her to the head of an agency.

Thinking of Anne, Rachel is disappointed, freely believing her own mother would not have left her alone. She is at first happily with Pink Matthews. Her desire to see Elmer Cayne increases through Oliver Land she meets Louis Vines, is hired as a photographer's model.

On an assignment, R a c h e l meets Curt E l l e n, a young friend of Vines'. At lunch she learns that he is a country newspaper man spending a year in New York. For experience he takes a number of different jobs, plans to return home later to sell the paper his father left. After evading she receives flowers from him. She phones Mrs. Cayne's home but is rebuffed because she will not give her name.

Later Curt reveals that Vines had received an inquiry from a private detective for a girl to go into a rich family and act as lady's maid to check up on some jewelry thefts. Rachel is amazed when she learns the name is Cayne. Without revealing her relationship, she sets Curt to persuade Vines to let her meet Terriss, the detective.

"Nice and kind like a steel trap when it comes to money! And mother's as hard up as I am. Look here, you put the eight dollars under my pillow when you fix my bed to night, will you?"

"What if you used it so bad for?" asked Rachel. "My gracious, you're rich people, I shouldn't think you'd need to borrow anything."

"The door was flung open and Mrs. Cayne stood there. "What are you doing in here?" she said savagely to Rachel. "I sent you to tell Mr. Holbrook to come and see me."

Holbrook broke in glibly: "I asked her to come in and look at the way that dumb-bell Rosie did my new shirts. I wanted her to speak to Rosie. I never see her?"

"Oh, was that all? Where are the shirts?"

"She just put 'em back in the drawer and was going. I'm sorry I kept you waiting, beautiful. Don't be cross. It spoils you." He lunged over her neck and winked at Rachel over her shoulder. "Any way I'm glad you came—what did father say about the school?"

"That's what I wanted to talk to you about—go ahead, Rachel, attend to your work."

Rachel went out, very straight and tall and angry. Her feelings against these two had darkened and increased. "I don't like them!" she thought with all the ruthlessness of youth. "I don't like them!"

"I wish you would, I can't see the stuff's clean any more. My glasses ought to be changed, but I can't seem to get round to it."

Rachel took the salad to the sink, filled a pan with water and turned on the light just above it. "Lena," she said, "I'm going to tell you something because I'd like your advice. Mr. Holbrook just asked me to lend him my wages till he gets his allowance first of the month. I don't think I ought to do it—I mean wouldn't Mr. and Mrs. Cayne be sure if they found it out?"

"Lena's hand rested above the road she was leaving. "Oh, he's begun on you, has he, the little devil? Well, I don't know what this world is coming to. No, don't you let him have a nickel. You'll never get it back if you do. He's had let's see—in the past year or so—his hand over a hundred from me and half as much again from her, and he's never paid back a penny."

"But doesn't he get an allowance?"

"He gets a bigger allowance than your wages or mine neither. He gets plenty! No four of that."

"What does he spend it on, then?"

"The Lord only knows, he's been around playing the Crown Prince. I guess, I told him this summer while we was in the country that I'd not let him have another cent, and he did the same, and he tried it on Yates, then, but Yates was smart, told him he was all tied up in a mortgage and said to Bert and me that he'd lose his job before he'd let that young monster put it over on him. Don't you believe it, for mark my words I'll be a gift and not a loan."

"Why don't you let Mr. Towers speak to Mr. Cayne?"

"How can we, and him so good and kind and trying to do the best for the best and love all this time, hampering him and cutting across his intentions? He's not so much trouble with them both—Bert did threaten the boy he'd tell on him, but we can't do it, we think maybe he'll grow out of it. Lena kids get a wild streak about this time, when their heads've grown up and their wits are still children. See what I mean. I'd cut my hand off for Mr. Cayne, let alone bearing the loss of a hundred dollars. But you stay out of it. Let his ma wheedle the cash for him, she's done it before and she'll do it again."

Rachel dropped the clean bag and whirled it lightly around. "Then

"I'm going to save my eight dollars," she said. "Thank you for telling me. I'll never mention it."

"I know you're not the kind to blab," allowed Lena, handsomely. "I know that from the first."

"It was two days later, in the afternoon, when Lena called Rachel from the laundry where she was doing some of the endless pressing required by Mrs. Cayne. "Look at here," she said, "there's the master's special curly ordered for to-night and blessed if I'm not out of curly powder. Skip out and get it for me, will you, that's a good girl. There's just the one shop that carries the kind I use and they'll never let it here if I phone and they're not feeling so well today. If the mad-dame gets in before you get back I'll explain why you're out."

"I'd love to go," said Rachel. "I need some fresh air."

"The man on the servants' elevator told her her cheeks were like the pink roses of Killarney as she came in, a compliment which Rachel received with pleasure. He was a jolly soul and Rachel liked him. She unlocked the door of the apartment gaily and found Towers and Lena waiting for her, their faces drawn and doubtful. "There's powder to see you in the library," said Towers, "right off. Don't take off your things."

Still clutching the curly powder, Rachel hurried in to Mr. Cayne. He was pacing the floor. "Well, Miss Vincent," he began, "the thief's been at it again. It's a sapphire bracelet this time."

Rachel's lips parted in amazement. "Are you sure? When did you miss it?"

"Right this minute. I came home early because I know Mrs. Cayne would be out and I wanted to check up on her jewelry. I do that every few days now. And the bracelet's gone."

Rachel followed him into Mrs. Cayne's room, watched while he unlocked the safe and took out a worn blue leather bag. "There's powder brush, pink pearl pendant, topaz and emerald chain, moonstone cameo brooch, emerald lapis bracelet and those three rings. The sapphire bracelet was here last Saturday. I haven't looked them over since."

He set the emerald trinkets back in the box and closed the safe. "The bracelet had never felt like a detective, but she followed her instructions. "I'll find out who's been in the house since Saturday and—will you notify Terriss, or shall I?"

As she said this she recalled Holbrook and his need of money, and the fact that she had put out the eight dollars under his pillow as he had asked, nor had he said anything about the omission. She had supposed that he had got the money from his mother, as Lena had said he would. But now—her suspicion came alive.

GAMBLING DEVICES ARE EXPOSED IN LIBRARY

Transparent mirrors, invisible light rays that ring warning bells, disappearing dice tables—all modern tricks by which big-time gamblers house try to cheat the law, are to be seen in "Manhattan Melodrama," new three-star picture which opens Tuesday at Liberty Theatre.

The stars are Clark Gable, William Powell and Myrna Loy, appearing together for the first time. The story deals with a gambler and a district attorney, friends their lives, who love the woman and who, on opposite sides of the law, fight for each in his own way.

Gable portrays a big-time gambler, powerful and dramatic figure of the city's night life. It is his role reminiscent of the one played in "A Free Soul."

The scientific apparatus installed in the studio for the filming of his gambling house scene created wide attention. One of the features is the invisible light when it is broken by the presence of a human body, an automatic alarm is sounded. The device, originally perfected as a burglar alarm system, but is used widely in use by expensive gambling houses to guard against surprise raids.

TAX ASSESSOR TO MAIL STATEMENTS

County Tax Assessor, Collector, Hollingshead, has advised his office will mail out statements this week on 1937 taxes. This is in compliance with many requests for statements on current taxes.

Statements on Current taxes have been before been mailed out in Blahan County, but the practice used today through out the state is a majority of the counties.

The statements give much information in regard to time and payment of taxes, and also has ample space on the reverse side to be used in giving the desired information for poll taxes.

Mr. Hollingshead has requested tax payer to note that the statements do not include poll taxes, but merely the amount of the due on real estate and personal property. Poll taxes are $5 for each person in addition to the amount shown on the statement for property tax.

Poll taxes must be paid by January 31, 1938, and the deadline for payment of 1937 taxes without penalty is also January 31, 1938.

County Agent's Column

Change in Filing Dates for Cotton Sale Certificates Recently an order was issued which stated that all cotton ginned and sold prior to September 15th must have the sales receipts filed with the county agent by September 30th. Realizing that the time given to the county offices was not sufficient to fully inform all the farmers about this move an extension of one month has been given. Any farmer who has not filed his certificates, even though the cotton was sold anytime before Oct. 15, may file the sales certificates by not later than October 30th. Then, all sale certificates made after October 15th must be filed with the county agent within 15 days from the date of sale.

That does not mean that they should be filed on the 15th of each month but within 15 days from the actual date of each sale. A few farmers had neglected to notice the expiration date and thought they were ineligible for cooperation for another year but this new ruling lets everyone in who has ginned cotton any time this season if they will file their sales certificates by the 30th day of this month.

Nitrogen Repays Farm Loans Mr. Murrain Nott, field supervisor for the Farm Credit Administration, reports that all farmers who borrowed money from the Farm Credit Administration under his supervision and insulated their peanuts with nitrogen culture are repaying their loans. He stated that peanuts are making 25 to 100 per cent more where they were inoculated at planting time over that crop not so treated. He further stated that so outstanding have become the results from the past few years with inoculated seed that all growers in his district next year will be required to treat their soils with Nitragin, which is a free nitrogen fixing organism, if they expect to receive a loan from the Government. He is demanding this because he has found that those farmers making this improved practice receive a much greater yield and, therefore, a much increased by spending only a very few cents for the needed culture.

It has been fully determined through extensive experimentation that the soils should be inoculated every year. Soils that have never been inoculated in many instances have no free nitrogen fixing organisms in them. This is often illustrated by pulling up pea vines and finding that they have no nodules on their roots. These little organisms burrow into the roots and store free nitrogen that hovers over every acre of our soils. It has not hurt the plant, yet makes the land much more fertile for the following season.

Winter legumes will hardly do any good at all if the inoculation is not applied to them. Peanuts, peas, garden beans, alfalfa, vetches also should be inoculated when they are planted. If they are not inoculated when they are planted they will not grow. If they were not inoculated when they were planted they would be burned over, brush soils, contain plentiful and potent nitrogen and the other nutrients for plant growth. If you grow plants for a because all the living organisms have been killed by excessive frost drought, such as is common in the state, you are not fixing on our soils. This is one farmers should inoculate every year. The simple and very inexpensive method is to use Nitragin. It is many, many per cent more.

"WAY OUT WEST" MARKS 11th YEAR OF LAUREL AND HARDY AS TEAM

Laurel and Hardy, those past masters of whimsical pantomime and artistic farce, come to the Liberty screen starting at the Saturday night and continuing Sunday and Monday in their latest Hal Roach-M-G-M feature comedy, "Way Out West," with the plot and action along the lines to a degree of the great success which marked their silent films.

Reversion of Laurel and Hardy to their outstanding routine of buffoonery promises to add to their increasing popularity in their eleventh year as the screen's greatest comedy team.

An exceptionally realistic and interesting background is furnished by Laurel and Hardy. All the elements of color and excitement of the wild and woolly West have been fused to provide a splendid production.

LOUISE GRAVES HEADS "GOLDEN RULE GIRLS"

The Baptist 15 and 16 year old girls, or The Golden Rule Girls elected new officers Sunday morning. Louise Graves, secretary; Katherine Hall; treasurer; James Clyde Lane; reporter; Bernadine Rome.

The class has charge of the Junior Department's opening exercises Sunday, October 24. The following program has been arranged: opening prayer, Bernadine Rome; congregational song led by Faye Dell Jackson; Scripture reading, Doris Jean Barr; "Last to the Voice"; Legislative to do; duty and raise revenues for old age assistance, aid to the needy blind, dependent children, and for the teachers' retirement fund.

These are the ones who have watched the legislative session from a distance. Unable to come to Austin, some unable to vote, they have waited patiently for a special session.

It has been the biggest, most powerful lobby Texas has ever witnessed in Austin. It is confidently and complacently awaiting the verdict of "no taxes."

Meanwhile the destiny of our unfortunate people lies in the hands of the Legislature.

The people have been told that I want to lay heavy taxes upon all the people. That is not true. A "bullaboo" against this session has been raised and the cry swollen in volume that we must not levy taxes for the social security program voted by the people.

When did this "bullaboo" first arise. I'll tell you when it was!

After the Legislature voted those appropriations and went home last June, every one knew then that we were going to have another session in September to raise the money to pay the bills. But when I announced six or seven weeks ago that I was going to recommend taxes on the big pipe line companies and others who have been growing pompous and prosperous by draining our natural resources—then the hue and cry started.

When I said that I had recommended these same taxes before, that the program had been settled and that I was going to find out if this special session was to raise the fish taxes, through their mouths, started a campaign of propaganda.

They tried to make real estate owners believe that the people's program would raise the taxes on their property. I had helped to lower those property taxes to the lowest point in over twenty years. They announced a great taxpayers march on Austin.

After visiting friends here this week Mrs. T. C. Clark has returned to her home in Olney.

Mr. and Mrs. Robbie Stephens have been visiting friends here this week.

A large crowd attended community program at high school Wednesday night.

A number of Methodist from here are planning to attend the fourth quarterly conference at Thrifty Sunday.

"THE REST OF THE RECORD" BY JAMES V. ALLRED Governor of Texas

The last week of the special session has rolled around and throughout the State there are sightless eyes, withered hands, and helpless baby arms raised in supplication to the Legislature of Texas. There are others going about the daily classroom duties of educating the youth of the State, bending under the weight of years, and wondering "if" a retirement session will be set up for the teachers.

These are the ones who have watched the legislative session from a distance. Unable to come to Austin, some unable to vote, they have waited patiently for a special session.

It has been the biggest, most powerful lobby Texas has ever witnessed in Austin. It is confidently and complacently awaiting the verdict of "no taxes."

tin. 68 marchers finally rolled into Austin in Cadillacs and limousines, headed by a man whose chamber of commerce organization receives two thousand dollars a year contribution from the sulphur company alone.

The attitude of these people may well be judged by the leader who have chosen in the Senate against taxes for the needy. He is the same man who last year voted for a sales tax upon the poor; and then, when an income tax on the earnings of the rich was proposed, walked the floor and ranted that it would ruin Texas.

I'm not the only chief executive criticized for calling special sessions. When a few days ago President Roosevelt called a special session of Congress to help the farmers he said: "I know that many enemies of democracy will say that it is bad business, bad for the tranquility of the country, to have a special session."

I'm glad the President has called Congress to try to do something for the farmers of the nation; and I have no apologies for calling this special session to help our own needy.

Q. When was Texas without either a civil or military government? A. In May, June and July, 1865, between the time that Gov. Pendleton Murray fled to Mexico and Andrew J. Hamilton became provisional governor, July 25.

Q. What did the constitution of November 3, 1855, make for further colonization of Texas? A. It boldly proclaimed that lands and citizenship awaited all who would come to Texas and assist in the "struggle against tyranny."

Vol. 28 CROSS PLAINS, TEXAS

Home Town Gossip

"Was like old times seeing Ed Priest and 'Doc' Anderson strolling up and down Main over the week end. Welcome back gang, and next time for a longer stay."

Priest is said to have stated just before leaving that the on his next trip to Cross Plains he hoped to bring his bride.

"That might have fooled us once upon a time but in an approaching nuptial, however, coming from Priest it's just so much static. Our guess is that he hasn't even got a sweetie."

Cross Plains gets a double dose of football this week end. Thursday night Scranton Antelopes were to meet Pioneer Panthers under the lights of the local gridiron. And on Friday night, the Bulldogs come on here for a conference clash with coach Bill White's thundering Cross Plains Buffaloes.
