VOTE IS LIGHT TUESDAY

HOME TOWN GOSSIP

What a disappointment last week's Review must have held. This erstwhile column was pushed completely out of the edition by last minute news, which was valued of greater importance.

'Twas the first Review in more than four years to enter the mails without a Gossip column. Oh well! If it doesn't happen any oftener than that, guess there's no kick coming.

Loitering around the election headquarters Tuesday, where balloting was decidedly slow as well as light, the following gleamings of interest were picked up:

Charlie Barr attended the first school ever taught in Callahan county. It was taught by Mrs. John Acock in 1880.

Drew Hill operated the first picture show in Cross Plains. And he opines that the presentations which he offered on the screen in those by-gone days are a "far cry" from the cinema productions now offered to the theater going public.

W. W. Anderson once hauled a load of corn from Fort Worth to Belle Plaine—one time the county seat of this county—and traded it for a wagon-load of hides, which he carried back to Fort Worth and sold for virtually the same amount of money he had paid for the corn.

Have you noticed that "far away look" Pauline Carmichael is possessing of late? Robbie Robinson's moving from these parts may be the reason, however, we wouldn't say for sure.

And now we learn authentically that Harold Randolph, the handsome Sinclair roustabout, is to be transferred to another area. Ah, what stinging pranks fate is playing with another budding romance.

R. Blaine Jordan, local sign painter and artist deluxe, is a more unusual man than one might think merely upon observation. He is credited with four government patents and one joint invention. Now he bursts forth with a cafe menu creation that should merit another government patent and keep him employed for many months to come.

Cross Plains high school Buffaloes got a "tuff" break last week, in the ruling of Floyd Halbert ineligibility and all victories of the herd being charged as defeats. However the lads took their reverse like real sports and are now priming their attack for Albany and Rising Star.

LOTIEF SAYS HE WILL MAKE MONEY BY NOT RAISING HOGS

AUSTIN, Nov. 5—Rep., Cecil Lotief of Cross Plains regaled the House with the reasonings of a non-hog raiser in Hickory, N. C. He directed the clerk to read a communication from which the following excerpts were taken: "A friend of mine in Kentucky has received a government check for $1,000 for not raising hogs. So now I contemplate getting a farm and going into the business of not raising hogs, since not raising hogs appeals to me very strongly. 'I would like to have some ex-

Armistice Will Be Observed In Cross Plains Monday; Most Stores To Close For The Day

25 MERCHANTS SIGN PETITION THURSDAY TO "SHUT UP SHOP"

A number of Cross Plains business concerns announced yesterday that they would be closed Monday, November 12, in observance of Armistice, which comes on Sunday. A petition was circulated and signed by 25 business houses. Filing stations, cafes and drug stores will be open as usual, the Review was informed.

No special program has been arranged here in observance of the day, save perhaps a brief chapel exercise commemorating the occasion in Cross Plains schools.

Among those signing to close for the entire day Monday were: Higginbotham Brothers and Company, Anderson Chevrolet Company, McAdams Motor Company, Neeb Produce Company, City Office, McDonald's Furniture and Grocery, Southwest Gas Company, Tom Bryant's Insurance Company, West Texas Utilities, Cross Plains Lumber Company, Citizens State Bank, Cross Plains Hardware Company, Porter J. Davis Grocery and W. E. Butler and Son Grocery, Cross Plains Review, Jim Settle Tailor Shop, Piggly Wiggly Stores, A&P Tea Company, Liberty Theater, Barr's Bakery, S. C. Barr's Insurance, Ralph Chandler Garage, Cross Plains Variety Store, Bond Brothers General Merchants, J. E. Henkel Second Hand Store.

There were perhaps other signers to the petition, due to the fact that it was still being circulated as the Review went to press.

Grover Henderson Opens Shoe Shop

Grover Henderson, formerly of this place, has opened a shoe repair shop in Brownwood, the Review was informed in a communication yesterday. Mr. Henderson's place is located at 412 Center Avenue.

Mrs. T. C. Kelly and children of Breckenridge are visiting Mrs. Kelly's mother Mrs. V. H. Hart this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Baum and Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Underwood were Cisco visitors Sunday.

Frank Williams of Hamlin is visiting here.

Mrs. E. O. Adams and Athalie and Billie Mac visited in Brownwood Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Euella Brewer of May visited her sister Mrs. W. A. Williams this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Clegg of Breckenridge visited Mr. and Mrs. Ben Garner over the week end.

pert advice on what kind of farm would be best suited for not raising hogs, what strain of hogs it would be best suited for not raising to keep an inventory of the hogs I do not raise. "My friend who got the check for $1,000 got it for not raising 500 hogs. I figure that I might just as easily not raise 1500 or even 2000 hogs. "My friend has been raising hogs for 40 years. The most he ever made in one year was $400. Just think how much of his life he has wasted raising hogs when not raising them would have been much more profitable."

"Kill That Ad, It Secured Results"

"Stop that ad. I've found my fire and tube", said Marion Harvey, to the Review last week. "I've found a buyer for my plow, so kill that ad." remarked Sam Sipes. The above quotations verify that Review want ads get results. Classified ads. cost but 20 cents for 20 words, cash in advance.

"SPOOK" CARNIVAL DRAWS BIG CROWD AT PIONEER FRIDAY

A large crowd attended the Halloween carnival in the Pioneer high school auditorium Friday night, sponsored by the Parent Teachers Association. Excitement was at a peak for sometime, while voting was underway to determine the winner of a beauty contest. Miss Lorraine Woods was declared the victor and was crowned in a beautiful coronation ceremony.

Proceeds from the carnival will be used to pay for new volumes recently added to the school library. Members of the Pioneer P.T.A. asked that all who participated in any way or contributed toward the success of the carnival be extended a "thanks a lot" through the Review.

LOCAL GIRL WEDS RISING STAR MAN

Miss Eva Jo Lackey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. Lackey, of this place, and Leo Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Smith, of Rising Star, were married at Brownwood Friday evening, October 26. The couple is making their home at Pioneer, where the groom is employed with an oil company.

The wedding, although the culmination of an extended romance, came as a complete surprise to friends of the couple in Cross Plains, Pioneer and Rising Star.

W. C. Adams, who has been gravely ill for several weeks, was reported "no better" by attending physicians yesterday at noon.

Mrs. Burnie Harpole has returned home from the Sealy Hospital, at Santa Anna, where she was a medical patient last week.

If a man wants a wife like his mother it means he wants some other woman who will overlook his faults.

The generous talker usually is the kind who would share his last dollar with you if he ever had a dollar.

Scientists say the mosquito has whiskers. Maybe it's the wind blowing through them that makes that buzzing sound.

The world is really making great strides after all. Back in Barnum's time there was only one sucker born each minute.

The law of supply and demand doesn't hold good. Think of all the reformers there are, and how little reform.

People who throw bills in the fire sometimes live to learn that no merchant will continue willing to send them bills forever.

PIONEER PERCHED HALF GAME BACK OF ALBANY LIONS

Pioneer high school's football twins brought the Panther Panthers one step nearer a district championship Friday afternoon, when they accounted for 13 points at the expense of coach Johny Gregg's Rising Star Wildcats. While Pioneer was winning over Rising Star, the loop leading Albany Lions were held to a seven all tie by the Caddo Cougars. The dead-count counts as a half game won and a half lost against Albany and places Pioneer in 77 points of the conference leadership for the first time in history of the school.

Moran, who was scheduled to play at Pioneer today, notified Superintendent L. C. Cash the first of the week that they would forfeit their game, which leaves but one more conference conflict on the Pioneer schedule. That is with Clyde, November 23.

Albany has yet to meet two strong teams, either of which is conceded an outside chance to tie or defeat the Lions. Rising Star will be host to Albany today with a game on the Wildcat gridiron, which promises to command the district spotlight.

In the Rising Star—Pioneer game Friday, Pioneer's counters came in the first and third quarters. Both were made on the same type of play and each on a run of 25 yards by one of the Harris twins. Howard dashed off-tackle and into an open field in the opening chukker for the first touchdown. Hardy spurred off tackle at the beginning of the third quarter for a run virtually duplicating the sprint for the first quarter. An extra point was added from placement.

Pioneer was doing first downs to none for the visitors. Rising Star's areal attack was halted early in the show when Wheeler, left halfback for the Panthers intercepted the first three Wildcat areal attempts. Another was grabbed by Hardy Harris, to virtually bottle the Rising Star offense.

By virtue of all Cross Plains' victories being charged as defeats as a result of the ineligibility of Floyd Halbert, the percentage column was greatly revised last week. The standing of teams at present is as follows.

Teams	W	L	T	Pct
Albany	4	0	1	900
Pioneer	5	1	0	833
Baird	2	2	1	500
Caddo	1	1	2	500
Clyde	1	1	3	500
Putnam	2	2	1	500
Rising Star	1	2	3	417
Moran	1	3	1	300
Cross Plains	0	5	0	000

Mrs. Ben Pierce is visiting her daughter Mrs. Chester Glover, in McCamey, at present.

Roy Carmichael and Bill Weller visited in East Texas over the week end.

Miss Bill Schultz of Rising Star visited Miss Edwina Anderson Saturday.

Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Voyles are visiting in Louisiana this week.

Mrs. L. W. Westerman visited in Fort Worth Monday and Tuesday.

Olan Adams spent Wednesday in Fort Worth.

M. Polshuk of Dallas was a visitor here the first of the week.

Time To Get In On Bargain Bid Short

The Review's twenty fifth annual bargain offer—one third reduction in the subscription price of the paper—will be brought to a close next month.

Increased cost of publishing will necessitate that the management discontinue sending papers to all who are delinquent. This action is not the choice of the management of the Review, however, business reason gives us no alternative.

Pay your subscription today, or at least before the bargain days close. If you are unable to remit the cash come by the office and we will help you to work out some satisfactory arrangement.

Be sure to be on on the Review's big Christmas honor roll, which will include all those who have paid or renewed their subscription during the current subscription campaign.

PIONEER P. T. A. MEETS TUESDAY

Program for the regular meeting of the Pioneer Teachers Association Tuesday, November 13, was announced yesterday as follows: Devotional, Mrs. Floyd Joyce; songs, mother singers; school demonstration, fourth grade; wealth of books for young America, Mrs. Jake Dupree; question and answer "Why do Children Tease", Mrs. V. L. Lowry. Mrs. W. B. Gunn will deliver the national President's message to members of the Pioneer chapter.

HIGGINBOTHAMS TO HAVE SUIT SPECIAL

Announcement was made yesterday morning by W. R. Wagner, acting manager of Higginbothams in the absence of G. R. Neel, who is attending court this week, that a special agent will visit the local store Friday and Saturday showing several hundred numbers in mens Fall and Winter suits.

"The suits are priced to sell and we guarantee to fit any customer", Mr. Wagner stated for publication.

Bill Lowe Host To Magnolia Meeting

W. R. Lowe, of this place, wholesale distributor for Magnolia products at Cross Plains, Pioneer and Rising Star, was host Thursday night to Magnolia dealers of this district at a barbecue at the Phil Pe Co country club. Arrangements to accommodate 50 guests had been made at "press time" yesterday.

The company has a meeting of this nature once each month.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Lowrie, of Silver Valley; Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Lowrie, of Fort Worth; Mr. and Mrs. Netheton and children, of Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Garrett, of Cross Plains and Rev. DeWitt VanPelt had dinner at the C. D. Baird home at Dressy, Sunday.

Art Carmichael of Hamlin was a visitor here Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Lowe were Brownwood visitors Friday.

Miss Lucille Burkett of Coleman was a visitor here Saturday.

Mrs. Edwin Baum, Jr. and Mrs. Jack Scott were visitors in Brownwood Thursday.

Cross Plains Barometer For Texas Trend Shown Here Carries Over Entire State

What is believed to be the lightest general election vote to be polled in Cross Plains in more than a decade was recorded Tuesday, when less than one fifth of the electorate marched to the ballot box and piled up a customary Democratic victory.

CLYDE VICTORIOUS OVER HERD 13-0 FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Playing without the service of five regulars, Cross Plains high school Buffaloes lost to Clyde here Friday afternoon 13 to nothing. The herd's starting line-up, greatly handicapped because of the loss of Floyd Halbert due to ineligibility and the absence of two regular backs as a result of injuries, was the lightest to ever start a game for Cross Plains since football was instituted in the local school system.

Clyde scored in the second quarter after a partially blocked punt gave them possession of the ball on the Buffalo 40 yard stripe and a 21 yard run around end and a completed pass over the goal line. Attempt to pass for the extra point was blocked by John Lackey, a regular guard who played in the backfield Friday afternoon.

The visitors next score came in the third quarter after a series of forward and lateral passes placed the ball inside of the 10 yard line with a first down. Three plunges at the light Buffalo line and a thrust through tackle netted the necessary distance. Clyde added the extra point by drop-kicking.

Jimmie Lusk, at left tackle, was most outstanding in the domestics forward wall, however, virtually the entire squad rose to inspired heights at intervals. Beevo Webb, who went into the game with an injured shoulder was hurt again in the third quarter and is not expected to be able to play for some time. His defensive play before being injured was a high spot of the Clyde contest.

Clyde gave local fans their first exhibition of the famous Notre Dame shift, from which they launched an areal attack that proved to be the deciding factor in the contest.

Cross Plains scored nine first downs to 13 for Clyde. The locals attempted six passes, one of which was complete for 12 yards, two intercepted and three incomplete. Clyde tossed 14 forwards completing six for 84 yards. Cross Plains was penalized 40 yards and Clyde 15.

Billie Gray kicking for the first time for the local aggregation punted beautifully throughout the afternoon, with one exception when his effort was slightly slow and partially blocked by a visiting lineman.

A number of newcomers to the local gridiron—Ross Hagan Hemphill, Billie Gray, Edward Boon, Usrey, Eugene Cross and others whose names are not available, played a good portion of the game and gave fans a sigh of relief in what to expect for next year.

J. T. Cross, in the backfield, turned in a good afternoon of returning punts from the safety position.

REV. DEWITT VAN PELT PAID TRIBUTE IN GIRL'S "EULOGY"

By Helen Johnson We have had Rev. D. Van Pelt as our pastor at the Dressy Methodist Church for the past two years. He has lived in our community for over a year, and we have known no better pastor, friend and neighbor. He may not be back here any more, but I am sure we all will miss him. His part in anything that he could, and all of us can say that. If there is any one in the community who has failed to do our duty, but we have had a members of the Dressy Methodist Church. We may have failed to do our duty, but we have had a good leader. I think that I can speak for the entire church and community when I wish Rev. D. Van Pelt health, happiness and success in his future work.

102 persons voted at the Cross Plains box. The general election strength here is more than 500.

The trend shown in the returns here were the same as results from statewide voting, with one exception; in Cross Plains all proposed amendments to the state constitution were rejected except the last, whereas over the entire state all of the amendments were defeated. Associated Press news dispatches said yesterday.

In Cross Plains only seven straight Republican ballots were cast, according to returns announced by Taylor Bond, election judge.

All Democratic candidates were overwhelmingly elected. The election was one of the quietest in years, authorities declare. The vote on the proposed amendments in Cross Plains were as follows: Number one, 10 for and 63 against; number two, 19, for and 53 against; number three, 17 for and 57 against; number four 25 for and 45 against; number five, 14 for and 53 against; number six, 14 for and 47 against; number seven, 13 for and 47 against; number eight, 44 for and 34 against.

ERWIN CUPID'S AIDE IN "BACHELOR BAIT"

Stuart Erwin takes up the mythical bow and arrow as an aide to Dan Cupid in "Bachelor Bait," new comedy hit coming to the Liberty Theatre. It centers about the hilarious adventures and romantic intrigue in an ultra-modern matrimonial bureau.

This RKO Radio Picture, in which Rochelle Hudson, Pert Kelton, and "Skeets" Gallagher share the spotlight with Erwin, presents the drawing comedy player as the tycoon of a colossal matrimonial enterprise. With a firm hand, he shoots an arrow into any prospective mate's heart for five dollars. One of his arrows backfires, and Erwin finds himself the center of a torrid love triangle.

George Stevens directed "Bachelor Bait."

Methodist Ladies End Study Course

The Womens Missionary Society of the Methodist Church met in regular session, November fifth. The Society finished the study of the book "Japanese Women Speak" by Miss Kawai. The Japanese motif was used in decoration in the assembly room and a Japanese plate and tea were served at the social hour. Twenty two members of the society attended, dressed in Japanese costumes.

Mrs. Edwin Neeb, Mrs. Martin Neeb and Misses Leta and Marie Neeb were visitors in Brownwood Wednesday afternoon.

You can't safely relieve the bowels with any medicine if you can't regulate the dose. To regulate dosage, you should have a liquid laxative. When necessary to repeat, you can gradually reduce the dose. And that is the secret of safe relief from a sluggish, constipated condition at any age.

A liquid laxative can be measured. Its action can be thus controlled. If properly made, of such natural laxative elements as senna and cascara, it forms no habit—even in the youngest child. And such a laxative will help the bowels to help themselves.

SYNOPSIS: Prelude: "Love Lightly." Mrs. Church warned gently Ellen wondered why? Posing for her talented mother, first as a new baby, then a bubbling child, then a charming young girl, Ellen had lived always in a make-believe land of beauty. Of the outside world her knowledge was meager. At 17 years of age, posing in the garden, Ellen at last is learning the story of her mother's broken life, the stolen kiss, marriage—then years of loneliness, waiting for the husband to return Mrs. Church is now telling Ellen of the father—
GO ON WITH THE STORY

When she was opposite a wide door, Ellen gave up the idea she could longer resist. Slipping from the arms that held her, she thrust one slender hand into a large, strong hand that clutched at it, eagerly.

"Let's go!" she said jauntily. At least she tried to say it jauntily.

As she got her cloak from the room in which it was checked, as she powdered her straight little nose, as she carefully reddened her lips, Ellen told herself that this strange emotion she was feeling must be suppressed. She also told herself that she must walk carefully. That she must remember that she didn't even know the young man's name, and that she wasn't even interested in knowing it!

But she'd been twice around the park in a cab with the young man, still nameless, before she remembered that it was Sandy who had taken her to the Six Arts Ball.

And who should, by all rights, have been allowed to take her home from it!

Three times around the park they rode before they began to grow accustomed to the wonder of it all. For it wasn't a petting party, not that! It wasn't the sort of thing that Claire would have referred to as "pash." It was something less easy to understand—and yet far more simple—than a petting party would have been. It was something that couldn't be regulated with a slap, with a sharp word, with a jest!

They had come out of the hotel in which the Six Arts Ball was being held, in a sort of a mist. When they had met in the hallway with everyday coats inconspicuously covering bizarre costumes, they had been almost shy with each other—almost afraid to look each other in the eye.

Climbing into a taxi, they settled back in separate corners. But young man's hand, groping out across the clammy leather seat, found Ellen's hand, clung to it, and finally drew her close.

"I suppose you think I'm crazy," he said.

"Quite crazy," Ellen told him, gently.

"You see," the boy's voice was carefully held in leash, "you see, I'd been watching you all evening, as you danced with all the fat old bunnies in the world. Cold sober, you were—in the whole roomful the only one that was cold sober! Listening to their kidding, and kidding them back, but only with half of you on the job. With the other half of you as far away as if you were in a garden."

Ellen interrupted, and there was a sob in her voice. What incredible chance had prompted him to make that comparison? "Not that!" she said. "Not a garden—"

"And I thought," the boy went on heedless of her interruption, "I've got to get her away from it all. Because she—because I feel that she belongs—to me!"

There was so much emphasis in his use of the two words, "to me," that Ellen jumped. She couldn't help it.

"You haven't been drinking, yourself?" she questioned on a note that she tried to make cynical. "You haven't been—"

The boy answered.

"Don't pull that sort of a line," he told her fiercely, "not now. We're away from the dance floor! This isn't the kind of stuff that I say to just everybody. I'm—I'm telling you! It isn't. This isn't anything to trifle with. This is a serious matter. It's our whole lifetime!"

"What do you know about lifetimes, yours and mine?" she asked. "How do you know you'd trust even one day to a girl like me—a girl who goes to an artists' ball in pants, short velvet pants! Do you know who—that I am? Well, I'm a model by profession. You've been to the movies, you've heard all about models. How do you know I'm what is, technically, called 'nice'? How do you know, in view of my profession, that trifling isn't best for the two of us?"

"How do I know?" he queried huskily. How does anyone know anything at a time like this? I've heard, before, about love at first sight. I've kidded about it. But I didn't know what it meant. I did didn't know that it hit you like a disease." He paused, and then—

"Personally, I don't care right now, whether you're nice," he told Ellen, tensely, "or not nice. I don't even care if you wear your velvet pants on Fifth Avenue, in the middle of the afternoon. I don't care about anything, except that I'm mad for you! I," the boy gulped suddenly to make the words come clear, "I don't actually know whether or not I can trust one short day to you," he said with a sort of desperation, "but I'd take a chance on trusting you with my soul!"

As he spoke his head was bent low over the hands that he was holding, and his lips were pressed hotly against the palms of those hands.

And Ellen, looking down through the darkness at his head, bent above her hands—bearing as through a dream, the whirl of the car's motor—was feeling the same madness, too. Why, the boy was right. He was right! It was love.

But, in the gray darkness, Ellen was going back to her mother. Strange how close her mother was tonight! Closer than she'd been even in those first early moments of grief, three years ago.

"I met him at a costume dance, your father—" So had run her mother's story. "We weren't even introduced—He just came up—We walked away—And he kissed me."

So the story had gone—running almost parallel to the events of this very evening. Perhaps, if she let her own story go along as it had started, it would continue to run parallel with her mother's. But—

And yet Ellen herself wanted to be swept away—she, herself wanted to be a complete conquest. She'd have to fight that desire. To fight it as her mother had told her she must. As her mother hadn't.

With the boy's lips burning against her palms, she made the resolve. With her head bent above his bowed head, Ellen heard herself saying sharply, and aloud—

"It won't get me. It won't spoil my life!"

The bowed head was raised. Blue eyes—deeper blue, because they were wet—sought across the shadows for her own.

"What won't get you?" the boy asked.

Ellen answered.

"You!" she said fiercely. "won't let you get me. I'm not going to fall in love with you. I never fall in love; I can't. Because I have nothing to give, not a thing! I'm sort of a—a spiritual gold-digger, at heart. Oh, I'm nice enough!" she didn't want to make the admission, but she had to! "I've kept away from it all because I don't want to live close enough to any folk so that I'll get to care for them. Because when you care for anyone, that person can hurt you. I won't," her voice had sunk to an odd, hysterical, shrill whisper, "I won't be hurt."

The gray in the sky had lightened. The taxi driver, with a shrug, had started his fourth circuit of the park.

"Of course," he said, "if you'll marry me, I'll take a chance on that! On your not having anything to give, I mean. On your not falling in love. If you'll marry me!" There was assurance in his voice, as well as passion.

"You don't understand," she said at last, in answer to that proposal. "You don't understand at all what I'm trying to say. Men? In my life men are just transients. They'll always be just passers-by!"

The boy's arm was around her, tight. "There's one man," he said, "who won't be transient, or a passerby, in your life."

Ellen repeated again from the formula. She shut her eyes and said over the words that she had said, not so very long ago, to Dick. "After all," she said, and she repeated the words, parrot-like, "after all, what's the advantage of marriage, as it concerns me?"

It was almost light enough now for Ellen to see the hurt look in the boy's eyes. Almost, but not quite. She said fiercely in her soul that he hadn't any right to look so hurt. This attitude that she was taking—surely she felt the pain of it as much as anyone!

And then, too, she was saving him.

"After all," he said slowly, "married to me you wouldn't have to work, you know. Or to worry about financial things. Or—babies—not if you really didn't want 'em. And you could have all the privacy in the world, in the biggest apartment on Park Avenue—married to me, you could. How do you get that way?"

Ellen laughed, although there was no mirth in her,

"You sound," she said, "like a millionaire! How do you get that way?"

In his rumpled Pierrot suit, with his jaw squarer than ever above the dejected ruff, the boy made answer. His tone held a certain bewilderment, a certain diffidence. "I forgot," he said, "that you didn't know my name. Odd, isn't it? To be arguing with a girl, trying to sell her your own especial brand of marriage, when she doesn't know your name. I'm—my name's Brander. Tony Brander. Anthony Brander, and you know what he stood for, was my father. I am a millionaire, you see—I got that way because my father cornered sugar, once!"

Ellen's eyes grew wide. Her mind was a confusion of words. At first the boy's halting speech didn't register. It was still just a slice of unreality. But when the confusion began to clear, she experienced a direct sense of something that was almost aager. What right had he to think that dollars mattered? What earthly right? She wanted to say, "What difference does money, even a million, make? To say, 'I'm crazy about you. We belong together. Take me in your arms.' She wanted to say, "This is real. Money isn't! It's only gold and silver and engraved paper. It's just something you use in shops. You can't use it to buy love!" She wanted to cry, "This is the answer to all the half-baked things I've been telling myself for three years." She wanted to say, foolishly, "So that's the reason you're so sunburned. Palm Beach instead of building roads and digging ditches." She wanted to say, "I love you! Just that—I love you."

But she said instead, very flip-pantly.

"And so you want to be my sugar daddy? That's it!"

All at once the boy's voice was a crescendo of feeling. Almost the taxi driver could have heard what he was saying, through the closed, the taxi driver wasn't extraordinarily interested in this tall Pierrot, in this slim, small page. He was yawning, and wishing for coffee and shatter-proof front window. But wheat cakes and fried eggs.

The boy said—

"I want you to marry me tomorrow. I mean when it's actually morning. I'd be afraid to wait—to marry you in the ordinary way, after an engagement and showers and parties and a bachelor dinner! I'd be afraid to lay plus, because you'd slip out of them. I wouldn't dare take a chance. That's why I want you to marry me, and to do it tomorrow. As soon as possible," his voice,—and much of the boyishness had vanished from it!—broke off. And Ellen, with something akin to desperation, fought for words to say. Not even the boy, laboring as he was under the spell of a vast emotion, would ever reach the depth that Ellen had reached!

It was perhaps the very breathless agony of those depths that made Ellen realize how necessary it was for her to talk. To say she must—that would fill this awful aching gap.

She made what was probably the hardest effort of her life to speak calmly.

"Better take me home, Tony," she said. And, yes, her voice was completely steady. "And then go home, yourself. And think this thing out. You've got to think it out, you know. For if it all seems mad and impossible tonight, it will seem more mad, and more impossible tomorrow. I'm not denying the way you feel, or that it's real to you. But it may be just the way you're feeling now. I know you're not just having fun. I didn't ever mean that. You probably feel just as you do, this minute. I'm sure that you're not giving me a— a buggy ride! If we should happen to see a chapel right now, and a minister in the doorway, I don't doubt you'd take me into the place, and marry me. And I'm she drew away from his swift movement toward her, "I'm afraid I'd let you get away with it."

CLYDE BULLDOGS UPSET BUFFALOES

The Clyde Bulldogs defeated the hitting Buffaloes Friday afternoon by the margin of 13-0. The Buffaloes were crippled considerably by the absence of Captain Hal and five other regulars. There were several men playing their first game of football who did remarkably well considering their lack of experience on the gridiron.

The bulldogs were heavy and powerful although they were unable to plow through that fighting line.

The first counter came in the second period when Clyde completely passed in the left flat zone and second score came in the third period by another completed pass. Perfectly placed drop kick acted for the extra point.

In the last period the Buffaloes had a drive but were halted on ten yard line and the game ended 13-0.

Jimmie Lusk on the line and Lackey in the backfield gave accounts of themselves. Lackey had blocking and line plunging out. Boone and Uesery, playing in line and backfield respectively, were playing their first game of football and they showed signs of good football players in future football team.

The Buffaloes are charged with victories, but the Albany Lions going to take the next defeat of the Buffaloes. For many weeks we have talked about this game.

Why We Should Have Clean-up Days

By Mildred Browning

Remember fifth and sixth are clean-up days. We should have clean-up days to help the appearance of the home and city. The pile of trash and leaves makes some a better place in which to live.

It is our interest to get rid of mosquitoes, both those which bite to annoy us, and those which carry disease. Stagnant water furnishes breeding places for mosquitoes. This is that rain barrels should be emptied and that pools or cans of standing water should be done away with.

A house fly is another pest. It is about on all kind of filth and spreads germs. The fly can be killed only by cleanliness of home and city. If proper care is taken to clean the alleys and in which they breed, the flies are very few.

Wednesday Study Club is doing clean-up days. Take advantage of this opportunity and in the clean-up campaign to keep down disease and beautify our homes and city.

Natic Club To Sell Subscriptions To McCall's

The Public Speaking Class of Cross Plains high school met Monday, November 5, at the eighth grade for the purpose of discussing ways and means to raise funds during new reference material in their work. It was decided to sell subscriptions to McCall's Magazine to raise the necessary funds. New magazines and are to be purchased to build a library in this department. Cooperation of the citizen of our own build up the library in public speaking department.

BILLIE MAC ADAMS IS MEMBER LIONS

Billie Mac Adams is now a full fledged member of the Lions Club. At the first of school the Lions club announced that the Senior boy having the highest average in his high school subjects would be given a membership in the Lions Club for a period of six weeks. At the end of the next six weeks the next senior boy having the highest average in his studies will be given a six weeks membership.

Pep Rally Stirs Students Body

Friday morning on November 3, a pep rally was held in the Cross Plains High School, conducted by the pep squad leaders, Roma Young and Bobbie Lee Westerman.

The study hall was decorated in the school colors, purple and gold. Seats were reserved for the football boys and the pep squad marched in forming a "B" for Buffaloes around them. The rally started off with a "Bang" with a yell from the pep squad and "Duff Buff Buffaloes" sung by the whole student body.

Bobbie Lee illustrated her talk with a small iron Buffalo, Roma doing the same with a small glass bulldog. Then a bulldog pup was brought in and a football player was asked to tie it up in the same manner that they intended to tie up those Clyde Bulldogs. Jimmie Lusk was the brave Buffalo who volunteered.

Coach Osburn made a short but interesting talk. Also, a few of the football boys gave their opinion of the game. The teachers and several pep squad members expressed their sentiments of the ability of the Buffaloes to conquer the Bulldogs. Many songs and yells followed this.

It seemed that more spirit and feeling was aroused in the whole group than has been felt this year. Everyone is behind the Buffaloes, and has a determination to hold up his chin and fight for old Cross Plains High until the last whistle is blown.

School Carnival Is Great Success

The Halloween Carnival, sponsored by the teachers, the Wednesday Study Club, and the Senior Club, and the Senior Class, was an event not to be easily forgotten by those who attended. A crowd estimated at 800 thoroughly enjoyed itself even though it was a night of witches and goblins.

A play "It can't be done," directed by Miss Price, Speech director, was an attraction that many people were forced to miss because of lack of seats.

A Country Store was staged in the gymnasium where articles, donated by the firms in town, were sold to the highest bidder.

A net profit of $125 was made. The proceeds will go toward putting a hardwood floor in the gym. The Lions Club gave $75 for this purpose. Let's all help in the more than worthwhile project.

Chapel Programs

Due to so many students being unable to attend the play "It Can't Be Done," which was presented last Wednesday evening in the High School auditorium, it was presented again to the student body last Wednesday morning.

The main characters in the play were, Ruth Barr, Mary Billingsly, Jimmie Lusk, and Jay Mayes. A chorus of six boys and six girls sang between acts.

CHORAL CLUB IS ORGANIZED

About thirty students of high school, sponsored by Miss Nelson, met Monday to organize a Choral Club. They elected Marie McVella as President, Roma Young, Vice President, Rosalea Cutbirth, Secretary and Treasurer, and Lettie Harlow, Reporter. The Club meets every Monday and Wednesday of each week. We have a number of new songs for this year's program and are planning on ordering more. We have started off with a glorious future in front of us and if the students will cooperate with us, we hope to make it most successful Choral Club ever organized in Cross Plains high school.

The Dramatic Club

A Dramatic Club was organized with Miss Navolyn Price as its instructor. Jimmie Lusk was elected President, Jimmie Settle, Vice President, Bobbie Lee Westerman, Secretary, Jay Mayes, Treasurer, and Helen Gray, Reporter.

The organization began at once on a play. The play "Not Quite Such a Goose," was chosen. Harry Carmichael is to be the student director. Bobbie Lee Westerman is to play the part of Mrs. Bell, Jimmie Settle is to be Albert, her son Roma Young is to be Sylvia, Scott Smith is Phillip, her lover and Rosalea is Hazel a girl friend.

The next meeting of the Dramatic Club will be Wednesday afternoon in the auditorium.

WHO'S WHO

Class President

Jimmie Lusk is the President of the Senior class. This is his second year as president of the class.

Jimmie was born in Cisco, Texas, August 21, 1918, and started to school at the age of 7 at Sabanno, Texas. There were very few happenings of any importance in his early life. When he entered high school at Cross Plains, he immediately took a liking to football and now is a three year letter man for the Buffaloes. He is very outstanding for his rough and tumble game of football. Although Jimmie is a tough man on the football field he is very likable and is easy to make friends with.

After Jimmie finishes High school he plans to attend A&M College and later become a football coach. His favorite sport is football.

Mozelle Atwood is president of the Freshman class. This is her first time to be president of her class. Mozelle was born near Cross Plains, August 16, 1920, where she has lived ever since.

After finishing high school, she wishes to attend any good college (or get married) where she might prepare herself for the teaching of expressing. While in school Mozelle has been very active in sports and is a honor student. Her favorite sport is swimming.

HINTS TO THE BOOKLOVER

The high school library has added thirty one new and interesting books to its collection. This is indeed good news to those book-loving students who are forever coming up the library saying as the librarian brings them a certain book, "I have read that one, isn't there a new one in".

They may read now for quite a while and not be able to say they have read all the good books in the library.

For the first time in this section, there is a market for green cotton stalks according to an announcement in a Stephenville paper which carried an advertisement from a feed dealer stating that he would pay $6.00 per ton for cotton stalks, provided they were cut while the leaves were green. The stalks need not be baled.

The purchaser said that he would grind the stalks and use them for cow feed.

Recently a neighboring paper carried an advertisement from a feed dealer offering to buy mesquite beans.

DALLAS, Nov. 1 — Southern Methodist University co-eds wept freely and male students blinked filling eyes Wednesday at the grave of Peruna, pony mascot of S.M.U.

The tiny horse, 28 inches high and little longer, was killed Tuesday night by an automobile when he slipped his halter at the football stadium and wandered on the highway.

More than 1,500 students and faculty members stood bareheaded while the university band played "Peruna", snappy pep tune, in slow tempo. The campus flag was at half-mast as the mascot's body was lowered into the grave.

Notes From COUNTY AGENTS OFFICE

At a meeting held in the office of the county agent in Baird Wednesday morning by Messrs T. B. Wood and R. J. Bush of Texas A&M Extension Service, and attended by a large number of farmers and committeemen of Callahan, it was learned how the vote is to be taken. Every cotton man is to be given the chance to state whether he wants government leadership and control of industry until the upward swing will warrant more cotton or will farmers be allowed to create the chaos they did create prior to the time the A.A.A. came to their rescue. Of course, it is well known that the voluntary contract signers will support the measure as they have already signed a two year contract and the defeat of the Bankhead would not release them but would let the non-signer raise all the crop he wished at the expense of the signer. Many cotton men think the 90% who signed the contracts will stay with them and probably gain others.

The Bankhead Act protected the smaller farmer. It did it by the following means. For example: in 1928 cotton was at a fair price so farmers planted 100 acres, 1929 was the same until the depression set so he planted the same acreage, in during the fall, 1930, due to lower prices, farmers planted only 75 acres as the field would make more in grain, 1931 was still worse with lower prices so only 50 acres was planted, and in 1932, 5 cent cotton caused farmers to plant but 40 acres. He was a small producer. He was not hurting the market. His five year average was 73 acres. He reduced in 1934, 35 contract 40% from this average which permitted him 44 acres to plant which was 4 acres more than the 1932 crop and let him draw an adjustment rental and parity payment on 29 acres. He got more than double the price for the cotton grown on the 44 acres besides the benefit payments. He was benefited more than 200%.

The producer that was hurt was who had been increasing year by year. Change the above figures around and let the years of 1931 and 32 be the years he grew 100 acres, then he is cut to 44 acres which is 66 below his past two year average and he is furious. But that is the type of farmer who brought on the surplus and the one who should be reduced, voluntarily if he will, forcibly if he refuses to cooperate. The time of "each man for himself and the devil for all of us" does not bode well for the masses and does not promote permanent prosper.

Peanut Information

Due to the many inquiries coming to the county agent's office relative to the peanut processing tax, the letter below will answer many questions and is therefore made public.

Washington, D. C. October 20, 1934.

Mr. Ross B. Jenkins County Agent Baird, Texas Dear Mr. Jenkins:

We have your letter of October 21 asking for additional information regarding the peanut adjustment program. Copies of the press releases which have been issued are enclosed.

No minimum prices for peanuts are established under the program. However, payments offer nut oil manufacturers tend to establish the prices indicated in the press releases. We understand that at due to weather condition in Texas, much of the crop has a rather low meat content. Consequently, average prices for farmers stock peanuts in that state would tend to be lower than prices indicated in our press release, as the prices refer to peanuts of normal sound meat content.

Peanut growers are not required to withhold any part of the crop from market. They may sell the crop to shellers in the usual way or to oil millers. The pain which is described in detail in the release of October 10th enables oil millers to include the prices they pay the farmers' for stock peanuts the amount the payments offered to these millers in connection with the crushing of peanuts. Each grower who signs and carries out an adjustment contract will be entitled to receive payments for diverting up to 20% of his crop into use as oil or as livestock feed. These payments would be in addition to the benefit payments made in return for acreage reduction made in 1935. The amount of the benefit will be measured by the quantity of peanuts produced in 1934, except that additional provision will be included to provide equitable payments to growers whose yields are unusually low.

The processing tax on peanuts is required to be paid on the first processing of all peanuts other than those used in manufacture of oil. Usually the first processing is done by the sheller, in which case he is required to pay the tax. The prices which you state is being paid in your county would seem rather low in view of the present price of oil and peanut meal and the rates of payments offered to oil millers (48 to 68 cents.)

Very truly yours, Signed H. B. Boyd, Acting in charge of Peanut Program.

The Editor's Mail

Cross Plains, Texas Nov. 7, 1934

Mr. Jack Scott Editor Cross Plains Review, Cross Plains, Texas Dear Editor:

I was present at the Farm Meeting last Tuesday night at the school house in Cross Plains, at which Mr. Ross B. Jenkins presided. I was astounded at the attitude taken by Mr. Jenkins toward those who dared to oppose the Bankhead Bill. He ridiculed them and set them down as political opportunists. It seems to me that a political job holder is in a sorry position to criticize any unofficial citizen, for the stand he might take on any government policy, when said job depends on that policy being maintained. I would feel myself an unworthy citizen of this country if I failed to raise my voice against some of the policies of the government as propounded by Mr. Jenkins, at this meeting.

Mr. Jenkins said that the government of the United States would favor those who signed up for the crop regulation plans.

Mr. Jenkins said that the government of The United States would not loan money to those who did not sign.

Mr. Jenkins said that only those who signed would be sent cards on the doll of the Bankhead Bill, that is to be taken soon.

Mr. Jenkins had selected three key men in this community to assist him in carrying out the government's program, and the only specific instructions that he gave them publicly was to stop this propaganda in this community.

The four propositions above, it seems to me, strike directly at the heart of this nation. They reach into the very vitals, and with the deadly poisonous hand of destruction seek to disembowel this Government of its most sacred prerogatives; life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness for all of its citizens. When you consider that the farmers are now doing all of their farming thru and by virtue of the permission of the Government, you will readily see that the above discrimination would mean destruction. I can see no difference in cutting the peoples heads off if they oppose the government policies, as Hitler does in Germany, and this one which would surely destroy those that opposed the government's policies.

If the power of discriminating against individuals in this country is to be placed in the hands of government agents, there is no vestige of hope left, no one will be safe from destruction. Under those conditions a citizen dare not speak his mind, he dare not refuse to sign, whatsoever that agent might ask him to sign, and he dares not vote against the wishes of the agent, if he does he will surely be destroyed.

Sincerely, Cleve Callaway

COTTONWOOD SCHOOL NEWS

Editors: Ollis Williams Myrel Forbes

We are sorry to state that Clayton (Weedy) Joy has been very sick for the past two weeks. He is very much missed by the entire school, especially the basketball team, as he is one of our outstanding men. Here's hoping for his speedy recovery.

The play, "Son John", will be staged Friday night, Nov. 9 with no admission, at the high school gym. Everyone is cordially invited.

Why is it that Truman Moore is always making eyes at M. B. and sticking his tongue out at W.C. James Stewart was absent from school several days lastweek on a very sad mission. He attended the funeral of his brother at Elk City, Okla.

Buster Coker has returned to school after a months vacation. The Cottonwood High School Cagers defeated the Commercial team Saturday night by a score of 28 to 18.

Strahan and D. Hargrove tied for high point honor, with ten points each, while M. Hargrove made eight for the Commercial. The high school's defense was clicking fine and most of the out-siders points were made back of the defense.

Leta Mae and Lizzie Oneal gave a party Monday night. There were about twenty five guests present. Everyone reported a nice time.

Mr. Bragg: can some one tell me the meaning of rumor? Junior Ivy: yes, sir, it means some one who sleeps where he does not live.

Fifth and sixth grade wrote the Light Crust Dough Boys wishing to join the Save Your Own Life Club.

M. P. Wilcoxon stated to M.C. Monday morning that he was two thirds the way married. He said he had his own consent, and the dollar and seventy five cents. W. wonder if this was a hint for M.C. to bring up the other third.

Those on the 5th grade honor roll are: Loyd L. Ruth Jo. Blanton, Freeland, Bobbie Purvis, and those on the sixth are: Buster Woody and Richard Purvis.

Ralph Stewart who has been attending school at Seminole, Okla. entered the 6th grade here Monday.

Everyone is wondering who Durward Varner went with Saturday night.

James Strahan's favorite color seems to be Gray, as he has been visiting one in Burkett every Sunday night.
