6 CANDIDATES FOR CITY OFFICES

HOME TOWN GOSSIP

Oak Lewis, well aware of the fact that stories of catching a 14 pound fish are almost always stamped as another "sportsman's yarn", brought living evidence of his ability as a Nimrod home Wednesday night. Yes sir, he had a 14 pound yellow catfish in the back of his car to verify the statement.

The catch was made on the Colorado river, with a bank hook Mr. Lewis stated. Now the only possibility of the honors not being his, is that Mrs. Lewis might have been the one who did the catching, but being a model wife allowed her husband to advertise and acclaim his ability as a fisherman.

Looks as if this column is going to have to publish a picture of Bill Cross and his obituary. Less than a month ago two different men (both strangers) asked him if Bob Young were his son. And then again this week a fellow walked into the Sanitary Shop, confronted Walter Westerman, took a look and then exclaimed, "Say are you Bill Cross?"

All parties concerned are claiming slander.

At last! there is a ticket in the making for the city council of our fair little city. Indications were for a while that Cross Plains might not have an official family. Mayor S. P. Collins will seek reelection, as will Councilmen, Ben Pierce, R. E. Wilson and J. C. Garrett. Willis Brown has been nominated for the place vacated by Charlie Hemphill.

Ladies watch your husbands and girls take a firm grip on your sweetie for Saturday night. A troupe of Hollywoodians, who double for the big spots of the silver screen such as Mae West, Joan Crawford, Greta Garbo and Jean Harlow are booked for a personal appearance in the Taylor County capitol that evening.

With the troupe is the 'double'—or pinch-hitter—for the famous Sally Rand. And if she does that fan dance you've all heard so much about—oh my!

Any man having business in Abilene the latter part of the week should be accompanied by his lady.

Cross Plains will be host next week to the annual Callahan County track and field meet. More than 500 boys and girls from nearby schools will be here to compete in the various events.

The occasion of entertaining school students from all parts of the county affords a great opportunity to Cross Plains. A good impression made in the minds of the boys and girls here next week will be worth thousands of dollars to the future of Cross Plains.

Let's all do everything within our power to make the kids enjoy their stay here and make them want to come back next year. They will be the men and women of tomorrow and the impression that is made in their minds of Cross Plains next week may last a lifetime. Do your part to make their stay enjoyable.

Wonder why Marie (Shorty) Neeb flatly refuses to eat in a cafeteria—Paul V. Harrell never got in politics—'Snip' Caton always rates such good looking girls—So many towns in this vicinity have names beginning with the letter 'C'—The Cross Plains picnic is not held on July 4th anymore.

Son Is Born To Mr. And Mrs. C. A. Lotief

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil A. Lotief are parents of a ten and three fourths pound baby boy born Friday morning. The child has been named Cecil A. Lotief, Jr.

CITY READY FOR TRACK MEET NEXT WEEK

500 CONTESTANTS ALREADY ENTERED IN ANNUAL EVENTS

With plans carefully laid Cross Plains stands in readiness to entertain the annual Callahan County interscholastic league track and field meet here Friday and Saturday of next week. More than 500 entries have already been made in the various contests.

Preliminary contests held here last week end gave Cross Plains and Oplin a tie for the leadership in the campaign for the all-around championship, and place Baird, Putnam and Rowden in a deadlock for second honors.

Points on the all-around championship, which Cross Plains has won for the past three successive years, stand at present:

Cross Plains	25
Oplin	25
Baird	15
Putnam	15
Rowden	15
Cottonwood	10
Deer Plains	10
Midway	10
Union	5
Enterprise	5

In the tallying of points each school competes according to its size and scholastic standing. There will be four divisions and a loving cup will be awarded the winner of each by Cross Plains sportsmen.

"We have made extensive preparation and hope that the meet held here next week end will be the most successful in the history of Callahan County track meets", said Nat Williams, Superintendent of Cross Plains schools and Director General of the event.

In the events held here last week end results were as follow: Class A high school Junior boys; track and field, Cross Plains, first; Baird, second, and Putnam, third.

Class B high school Junior boys; track and field Union, first; Cottonwood, second, and Oplin third.

Ward school Junior boys track and field; Putnam, first; Cross Plains, second and Baird third.

Rural school Junior boys track and field; Rowden, first; Deer Plains, second and Enterprise third.

Class B school Senior boys track and field; Oplin, first; Midway, second and Union third.

In the track and field competition at the meet proper here Friday and Saturday of next week, events will be run off at the old base ball park, in the West part of town. Literary events will be held in Cross Plains high school building.

Judges for all contests have been secured from nearby colleges and schools disinterested in the outcome of the meet.

COLLINS, GARRETT, PIERCE AND WILSON UP FOR REELECTION

The first week in April will bring two trips to the ballot box for citizens of this place. Tuesday, April 3, a city election is carded at which time a Mayor and four Aldermen are to be chosen. Saturday, April 7, a school trustee election is scheduled for the purpose of naming three members to the local board.

LATE NEWS FLASH
The Review learned authentic ally shortly before 'press time' Thursday that Jesse McAdams, local automobile dealer, would be a candidate for Mayor in the city election April third. In an interview with Mr. McAdams he said, "If elected Mayor there will be no secret sessions of the City Council and the entire citizenship of Cross Plains will be welcome to attend any and all meetings. I intend to do all within my power to promote harmony between the people of Cross Plains and shall strive to that end if elected Mayor."
Mr. McAdams is a former member of the city council, his term having expired in April 1933.

At least one candidate for each of the city offices was assured last night when a petition nominating Mayor S. P. Collins, Councilmen Ben Pierce, J. C. Garrett and R. E. Wilson, all for the other Council place, was submitted to S. M. Buatt, City Clerk.

There may be other candidates in the race for the city posts, however, no more names had been filed at the city office Thursday at noon. To place a candidate's name on the ticket a petition bearing the signature of 10 qualified voters must be filed with the City Clerk 10 days before election time.

The city election is to be held in the city office Tuesday, April third.

The school trustee election scheduled for April seventh is to be held in the Anderson Chevrolet Building. At that time three board members are to be chosen. The terms of W. B. Baldwin, Arthur Mitchell and B. I. Marshall will expire at that time. No nominations for any of the trustee places had been made yesterday. Several candidates were being boomed, however, for the respective places.

Ninth Installment

THE STORY SO FAR

Nancy Gordon trades herself in marriage for fifteen thousand dollars—the price of her family honor—and the freedom of her brother, Roddy who stole, for a woman, that amount from the bank in which he works. Desperately in love with young Page Roemer, nevertheless agrees to a secret elopement with Dr. Richard Morgan, and with the money he loans her prevents Roddy's arrest. Dr. Morgan is loved by Helena Haddon, a sophisticated young married woman, but he adores Nancy and hopes to win her after marriage. In Washington they are married. Nancy is Richard's bride—and afraid of him.

"I don't call him a decent man now, Sarah; I thought he was. It's not decent, it's not honest to take advantage of a wild girl beside herself with grief about her brother. I'd—well, I'll tell him what I think of him!"

"Nancy did it herself, Papa." "Nancy had lost her mind—he's a doctor and he hadn't!"

"He's in love with her; when a man's in love—" The door opened abruptly and Amanda's round black head came in. "Doctah Morgan ter see yo', suh."

Mr. Gordon's eye gleamed. "Tell him to come in here, Mandy." Mrs. Gordon half rose from her seat. She wanted to run, but if she did—? She had never seen her husband like this before and she had swift and horrid visions of murder and sudden death. She cast a startled glance at his drawn face and stopped crying.

The hall door opened quietly for Richard Morgan. There was a moment of terrible silence. At a glance he took in the situation. Perhaps his own heart-searching had prepared him for it. He glanced at Mrs. Gordon but he faced her husband. He spoke apparently with some effort.

"I see that Nancy has told you, sir, that we were married yesterday in Washington."

"My daughter has told me that you bought and paid for her—yes! What I want to know is—how you dared to take advantage of a young girl in such distress as she was? How did you dare to marry her?"

"I married her because I loved her, Mr. Gordon. I've asked her to marry me before. I've loved her for a long time. That was my only reason."

"Fiddlesticks!" roared Mr. Gordon. "How can you love a girl and let her do a thing like that? She doesn't love you—she told me she hated you—"

"Oh, Papa!" protested his wife don't!

Richard Morgan said nothing; he turned deathly white. Mr. Gordon stared at him like an infuriated buffalo about to charge.

"Do you happen to know why she wanted that money?" he demanded fiercely.

Mrs. Gordon half rose from her chair. "Oh, Papa, don't—don't tell!" Her husband ignored her. So did Richard.

"She didn't tell me, I didn't ask—I don't want to know."

Mr. Gordon stopped long enough to loosen his collar button, and then went on furiously.

"I'll tell you all about it. My son's in the Greenough Trust Company in New York. You know it? He's got the get-rich quick fever and he picked up a handful, fifteen thousand dollars—and spent it in five months. He's a promising boy at spending—"

"William Gordon, I'll leave you if you don't stop!" his wife wailed.

"You hush up, Mother, it's the truth, isn't it? Well, he took it and he was in danger of going to jail. He came here instead—ran away and came home, and we're all broken up. You see, we've always loved the boy"—Mr. Gordon choked a little—"he and Nancy, as kids, were as thick as peas. It broke her up altogether. She wanted to save her brother, to give him another chance. She went out like a madwoman and went to you. And you—by the Lord

Harry, sir, I'd like you to explain yourself. How dared you take a gift like that—at her word—and tie her up! You're—you're—"

He didn't finish. Mrs. Gordon's trembling hand was over his mouth. "He's crazy, Richard!" she sobbed, clinging to her husband. "I'm sure he's going to have a stroke!"

Richard turned and looked at Mrs. Gordon and then at her husband, and his look was astonishingly full of light and beauty. "I trusted to the power of my own love for Nancy—I thought I could make her love me, if once she was my wife. I think so still."

Mr. Gordon still started at him. He began to understand that this man loved Nancy deeply, irrevocably, but it did not stop his heartburn and shame.

"You'll get it back—every cent," he said, "you cannot put me under this obligation. I won't endure it."

Richard's mouth shut hard. He did not answer this, he ignored it. "You say that Nancy told you she hated me?" he said slowly, turning to Mr. Gordon.

Mr. Gordon nodded. Richard's shoulders seemed to square themselves like those of a man who had resisted a heavy blow.

"I've already put it up to her," he said, with forced quietness. "I've told her we needn't announce it if she wishes a quiet release. Of course, I—" he was speechless a moment and then added:

"I've loved her ever since she was a child, I think. I'll put it all up to her again, I—" words were seemingly difficult—"may I see her now?"

Mr. Gordon rose and went to the door, opened it, and called up the stairs.

There was no answer. Mrs. Gordon stumbled out of her rocker. "I'll go up, Papa, she—perhaps she doesn't hear you."

"Nancy Virginia," bawled her father.

The kitchen door opened and Amanda's black face appeared. She was showing the whites of her eyes prodigiously; she had heard all the racket and knew as much as they did.

"Miss Nancy ain't in, suh. She done gone down ter de river. She was cryin'."

"Oh, Papa, you—you broke her heart!" wailed Mrs. Gordon, careless of Amanda's ears, "she's—she's gone to kill herself!"

Mr. Gordon's flushed face grew pale, his eyes started.

"I—" he snatched his hat off the rack in the hall and made for the door.

But Richard Morgan was before him. Without a word to either of them, he flung the door open and started down the garden path.

Nancy fled from the house when her husband entered. Her father had painted a convincing picture. She saw herself a brazen creature, offering to marry a man for a price—without excuse.

Where the river was little wider than a stream a heavy log spanned it, laid from boulder to boulder at the ford. Nancy crossed on it. She had gone that way a thousand times with Roddy. It was one of their childish feats. Nancy sat down, took off her hat and let the spring wind blow her soft hair about.

At her feet, in a sunny nook, bloomed the first wild violets. She looked down at them in dull misery. Page always picked the first violets for her; no doubt there were some folded into the letter she had in her handbag. She had found it in her room.

Now she remembered, took it out and opened it. She was right, the first wild violets of the season fell out of it. She looked at them vacantly. It was a moment before she began to read.

"Dear Nancy Virginia: Why couldn't you come down to see me? That headache wasn't excuse enough—I think you know what I had to say then, and I can't wait any longer. I must say it now. Nancy Virginia, will you marry me? I'm coming tonight for my answer."

To-night? She looked at the date; he had written it the day she was in her lap and she sat and stared at it for a while. Then, very slowly, she picked up the dropping little violets and kissed them. She sat there for a long time without moving; then, the wind blowing from that direction she heard her father's voice and Amanda's in their garden and, nearer at hand, the crackling of twigs. In an instant she divined the situation, they were looking for her, her father, and her husband! This might be Richard himself in the brush across the river!

She rose, trembling, and ran up the path. She knew her way here as no one else knew it. She slipped behind some cedars, climbed a steep rock, and came out, by a short cut, on the main street, below MacDougall's drugstore. She crossed Main Street and went down Meadow Lane.

At the end of it was an old orchard, no one would find her there! She only wanted to be alone.

She strayed along under the bare trees of the old orchard. The short turf was soft and green and gave under her feet. The wind was wonderfully fresh and keen, and it was the only thing that revived her. She felt alive when it blew in her face. But she did not know what to do. What could she do? She had married Richard Morgan and—according to her father—even Richard would despise her for it. It was true then what her father said, he did not want her!

She went on wandering under the trees, sure that they could not find her there. She wanted to hide, oh hide so that no one would ever find her! Least of all Richard. Yet, all the while, she felt his ring hard and cold on her finger. It felt heavy there, but she dare not take it off.

In the lonely orchard Nancy's face burned with shame. She had asked him for fifteen thousand dollars. She had set a price on herself!

The sun had set long ago and a mist was rising over the meadows. It ran along the edges in circling wreaths like smoke. Nancy shivered.

Nancy hurried on. Another half hour brought her face to face with the old courthouse, deserted now and dark. On the opposite side of the street were some small old-fashioned houses given up to lawyers and their clerks. In one of these Page Roemer had his rooms. He lived there, in two rooms behind his law office, and the windows were lighted now.

Was Page getting ready to go for his answer? A wave of emotion swept over her, an intense longing for sympathy, for kindness. Page loved her! The temptation was too keen to resist the longing to see him, to speak to him, to tell him her troubles. Perhaps he would hate her, too, then, and it would make it easier for him.

She turned, went into the narrow hall and ascended the stairs. The door at the top stood open and she stopped, leaning against it, and looking into the room beyond, herself unseen. It was an office, plainly and simply furnished. As she looked, the inner door opened and Page Roemer came in, went to his desk and sat down, taking up his telephone.

She could see him plainly; he was already dressed, and he had some of the wild violets on his coat. The light from the green shaded lamp fell on the handsome arch of his young head. He was younger than Richard Morgan, better looking, more pliable, and gifted with a grace of manner.

What would he think of her? What of her coming here at this hour? The wave of emotion that had borne her up the stairs to his threshold, swept back upon her and submerged her. She turned softly, felt for the banisters with a groping gesture and tried to escape unseen. But he had just hung up the receiver and in the ensuing stillness, he heard the rustle of her garments. He turned quickly, trying to look out of the lighted room into the dim hall beyond. She had to cross his vision to reach the head of the stairs and he saw a woman where, as a rule, no one but men appeared at this hour. His curiosity took him to the door.

Page took a step forward and turned up the old fashioned gasjet in the hall. As he did so she turned her head away, but he had already recognized her.

"Nancy! Good heavens, Nancy!" he cried, "what is it?"

He caught her in his arms and lifted her like a child, carrying her into his office.

But she disengaged herself, pushing him off with both hands, her white lips shaking.

"Don't touch me," she cried wildly, "don't touch me!"

He stood dumfounded, looking at her, almost as pale as she was.

MEDICAL ADVICE

If you want to

- ... relieve constipation safely
- ... regulate the dose to suit your exact need
- ... avoid danger of bowel strain

—use a liquid laxative

Can constipation be safely relieved? "Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" declare thousands who have followed their advice and know. You are not apt to cure your constipation with salts, pills, and tablets, or any habit-forming cathartic. But you can relieve this condition just by gentle regulation with a suitable liquid laxative.

Why Hospitals Use a liquid laxative

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can be controlled. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later Will not irritate kidneys. The right liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement, with no discomfort at the time, or afterward. The wrong cathartic may keep you constipated as long as you keep on using it!

In buying any laxative, read the label. If it contains a doubtful drug, don't take it. If you don't know what is in it, don't chance it. The contents of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is stated plainly on the label; fresh herbs, pure pepsin, active senna.

Its very taste tells you Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is wholesome. A delightful taste, and de-lightful action. Safe for expectant mothers, and children. Drug stores have it, ready for use, in big bottles.

When You Discuss Electrical Appliances . . .

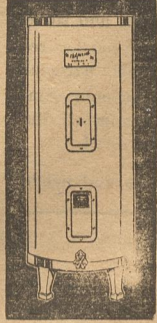

What are the most important operations of your home?

Modern homemakers all agree on these!

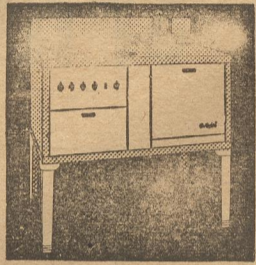

REFRIGERATION . . . You need con-

WATER HEATING . . . You need hot water many times each day.

COOKERY . . . Nothing so important. This inexpensive "Electric Cook" is worth immediate investigation.

LAUNDRY . . . Very necessary—but dreaded each week. Enjoy a "happy" washday by installing a combination washer and iron.

THESE WILLING, INEXPENSIVE SERVANTS—the electric range, refrigerator, water heater, and washer and iron—will improve your home by doing your work better, and save time, health, money and clothes.

Do you know that your increased use of Electric Service is billed on a surprisingly low rate schedule . . . and operating costs amount to but a few pennies a week?

Don't Give Up

By Lillian Pickett

Why sit around with a frown on your face,

Isn't there another to take his place? You are young, your life not half spent,

Why worry over one till you're old and bent? Don't give up when the ship goes down.

Grab a spar and refuse to drown; That's the trouble with people today, They just give up and fade away.

Don't give up, just laugh and pray, And if your lover cares she'll return someday.

So don't give up and always frown, Just laugh at trouble and don't go down.

EDITORIAL WHAT'S NEXT?

By Norris Chambers

What's next in the way of scientific development? Practically everyone knows that the largest telescope in the world is only 100 inches in diameter, but that with this one it is possible to bring the moon within a few miles of the earth, figuratively.

This "big berth" telescope is mounted at Mt. Wilson Observatory, and when it was constructed it was considered the greatest scientific marvel of all times, of course with the exception of the radio, airplane, etc. And it was, but now a 200 inch glass is being constructed. This giant telescope will be mounted in the Davis Mountains. It is said by the great scientists that this is the largest possible telescope of this type which can be produced.

But there is a scientist in Canada who has hit upon a new system of bringing the heavenly bodies nearer. It is already an established fact that his discovery will revolutionize astronomy. He has taken a photo-electric cell, connected it with amplifying vacuum tubes, and run it through a television set.

In this manner, the light from the stars to be observed is thrown upon the photo electric cell. By this step, the light is changed into electrical energy. The electrical energy. The electrical energy is then run through several high voltage amplifying tubes. This has a tendency to magnify, or amplify, the current millions of times. Then, by the same process, the current is hanged back to light. As it has been amplified, the light is also amplified, and the magnification is so great, that the most distant star will be portrayed on the plate of the television machine, magnified million and millions of times.

This telescope, according to the inventor, will be equal to a glass telescope with a 2000 inch mirror. Can you conceive of anything this gigantic? And the largest telescope now is only 100 in.—a 200 in. one being constructed.

We might ask again, what will selence finally evolve? We have written records of the human race as far back as the time of Christ, and from that time they are thought to be fairly correct. We have improved this much in two thousand years, for at that time man was hardly above the apes. And judging the future by the past, and trusting that all will be well, what will the science of the future develop—it is above our imagination, just as the development of today is above the imagination of those who lived so long ago.

Yes, indeed, this is a wonderful age in which we are living; and it should be still more wonderful in the future.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Erwin Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary On Farm, At Sabanno Where They Settled Forty Eight Years Ago

The reenactment of their marriage ceremony of 50 years ago was the high spot of a golden wedding anniversary celebration by Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Erwin, of Sabanno, Sunday, March fourth. Rev. S. P. Collins, Cross Plains pastor, read the rites—a replica of those said in Parker County a half century before—when Miss Elen Wampler became the bride of Mr. Erwin.

Friends gathered from miles around Sunday afternoon to pay respects to the pioneer couple, so publically esteemed throughout this section and to wish them many more happy returns of the occasion. At noon the Erwin family and their children were guests at a bountiful dinner at the old family home.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Erwin were married February 28, 1884 in Parker County, Texas. Two years later the couple moved to the same farm in Eastland County, where they observed their golden wedding anniversary

Sunday, March fourth.

Mr. and Mrs. Erwin have eight children, all of whom are living and have families of their own. All of their decendants—save 10—were present at the family reunion and fiftieth wedding anniversary. Those present included: Mrs. Laura McCoy, of Breckenridge; Mrs. Ed Little and their six children, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Little, of San Angelo; Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Goodrum and four children, of Rotan; Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Minnex and little son, of Tyler; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Erwin and two boys, of Parks; Miss Lorena Erwin, of Cisco; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Erwin and three children, Mr. and Mrs. Finis Erwin and three children, the latter two couples reside on farms near their parental home-stead. These, the honored couple and the minister, composed the personnel of the wedding feast.

Aside from the friends and neighhors, who came from several counties to extend congratulations, there were also letters and messages of cheer and sincerest wishes for many 'happy returns' to the beloved couple.

Youth Will Be Served

Difference in opinion has always prompted good legislation. It is a fundamental of democracy. Our difference in opinion with the City Council is expressed this week for that purpose, and not to criticize an able body of men.

We are told that a skating rink has been forbidden from setting up within the city limits, and that the rink has gone to Rising Star as a result. Now we are not a skater and have had the rollers strapped to our feet more than two or three times. Neither do we have ambitions or intentions of taking up the pastime. But in the name of fairness and justice, to not only the skating rink owners but to the city of Cross Plains and the merchants of this place, we feel duty bound to air the question and if possible show the City Fathers where they have erred to the best advantages of our.

In the first place there is no city ordinance against a skating rink, so long as the rink is located on private property and in not a fire hazard or a public nuisance. So, how in Heavens name, could the City Council forbid the skating rink coming here as long as private lots could be secured for its location. It is impossible to reason that it could have been declared either a public nuisance or a fire hazard before it was even erected.

In this day and age youth will be served of the amusement which it enjoys most, regardless of where it must go to find it. If Cross Plains is to legislate against the amusements of its youth, don't expect youth to take much stock in community advancement and public spiritedness. If Cross Plains will not allow a skating ring within its boundaries, then they will go to Rising Star or elsewhere. And that, dear friends, if precisely what they are doing.

If you are prejudice, you may say "Let them go". Well, that is a rather serious attitude to assume if you expect Cross Plains to grow and keep abreast adjacent cities and towns. Every time a party of skaters leaves Cross Plains they take a certain amount of money out of here, which nine out of ten times will never drift this way again. Too, if the rink were located here, think how much outside business it might attract; not only for the skating rink but for cafes, filling stations, drug stores and the like.

Yes, youth will be served and the towns that realize this are taking steps to serve them. If you think their pastimes are

FOR WOMEN ONLY

The menopause, I mean. Since this comes to all females who pass the median line in life, I am talking to at least half the adult population in our homes.

From intimate observation of many hundreds of cases, I have learned, first, no two women pass through this change in exactly the same manner, or with the same symptoms. Second, the management must fit the individual case; no remedy is used as a routine. That should kill the patent nostrum for "female trouble."

The menopause in the normal woman is a physiological process, not a disease. But in case of the woman who has other lesions to combat, then comes the need of the wise physician's counsel.

Severe and exhausting hemorrhages at the menopause, those that increase each month in severity and produce anaemia and weakness, should cause the doctor to look carefully for fibroid tumor of the uterus. In a certain number of cases, the X-ray acts happily, if in intelligent hands; if it is tried and fails, I have found that surgical measures are less pleasing than if the X-ray were not used. The best way is, remove the tumor as soon as possible.

For the distressing "hot-flashes," the most reliable remedy is REST. The wife who carries on her housework through this kind of a season is a heroine indeed—and a martyr. It is real suffering. By rest, I mean cut out 75 per cent of the work; stop scrubbing, lifting, making beds, and such; or, go to bed and stay till the horrible flushes are better,—they will cease in time.

Your doctor must advise you. Let the ready-made alone.

wrong and say we will not allow them to participate in them here, you merely encourage and stimulate their interest in the forbidden amusement. Youth can be lead almost anywhere, but driven nowhere.

Why not let them have a skating rink in Cross Plains if they want it. It certainly could be no more a violation of city ordinances than the medicine show which ran for two weeks here last Spring, or the sock and tie peddlers which dispense their wares on vacant lots in Cross Plains during the Fall of the year—a direct and unfair competition with tax paying, law abiding Cross Plains merchants.

Merely because we are interested in the growth, development and advancement of Cross Plains, do we mention the above. It is with no thought of creating antagonism. We feel, however, that in the future our City Fathers will receive greater endorsement and cooperation by not entirely overlooking the point of view that the youth the city takes in regard to matters of this kind.

A Noted Educator Passes On

In the passing of Dr. J. W. Hunt, president of McMurry College at Abilene, Monday night Methodism lost one of its most illustrious leaders and West Texas a citizen of real distinction.

From cowboy to frontier editor, from circuit rider to pastor and thence to the presidency of a college of which he was founder, Dr. Hunt's career was richly colored with public service and sacrificial devotion to the cause he loved. His passing has left an unbridged gap in religious circles, it has also left a monument of a useful life that will survive as long as time itself. Aside from the palatial buildings on McMurry campus which stand as silent sentinals in tribute to his memory, there are thousands of boys and girls throughout Texas whose lives were enriched by the efforts of this man and shall ever be devoted to his teachings.

Yes, all West Texas will feel the blow of Dr. Hunt's passing, yet his life should be an inspiration to youth everywhere to strive to fill the vacancy he left behind.

NEW YORK

While the bars of New York hotels are crowded at cocktail hour every afternoon Clifford Lewis of the Lewis Hotel Training Schools, at Washington, D. C., tells me that the increased hotel business started in September—long before repeal. He attributes a large part of the increase to confidence in the present administration together with a "devil may care" escape from the long depression. GET UP NIGHTS!
USE BUCHU AND GIN
Make This 25c Test

It is as valuable to the bladder as castor oil to the bowels. Flushes out impurities and excess acids which cause the irritation resulting in getting up nights, burning, frequent desire, leg pains and backache. On account of the alcohol in gin use juniper oil from which gin is made. Ask for Bukets, the bladder laxative also containing buchu leaves, etc. After four days if not pleased your druggist will return your 25c. You are bound to asleep better after this flushing. Guaranteed by Smiths Drug Store.
