BUS CRASH NEAR CISCO FATAL TO 4

HOME TOWN GOSSIP

"Cupid Calls on Cottonwood", might be termed as the text for the pastor's opening remarks this morning. Two local couples were joined in wedlock the past week end and will make their home in that historic little community.

Miss Dixie Davis and Norman (Red) Coffey were married Saturday evening at the Baptist parsonage, as predicted in last week's issue of this 'neighborly noise'.

The other couple in the spotlight of society this week because of their nuptial Saturday, also, is Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Hargrove. They were married by the Rev. S. R. Respass, at Cottonwood.

Here's our proverbial blessing to each of the newly created families, "May the Lord bless all that He has created", along with the wish that each may enjoy many years of happy marital life and be a consistent reader of this department, a loyal exponent of Democracy and exposé of local chatter.

And speaking of romances, weddings and the things which go with them; we are reminded that Lewis Norman and Miss Mildred Billingsly have but seven days more of single life.

Their fatal leap is scheduled for Saturday of next week—June second.

And incidentally, "Goober" Keyes, of Albany, was in town Wednesday for an interview with his former teaching companion—Norman, the groom-to-be—seeking information as to the method of his success.

"Goober", it is believed, has been having some little difficulty in persuading, or convincing, his "party in question."

My, my! the girl must not be a football fan.

Today's Review—whether you have noticed it or not—is largely different from last week's paper, or any ever published heretofore. An enlarged sheet is now in use, giving seven columns to the page, instead of six.

Today's issue is machine folded, the first edition of the Review ever to have that service. Frankly, the Review boys—under the supervision of E. L. (Doc) Thomas, press machinist deluxe, have done a lot of work endeavoring to improve your paper. We hope you like it.

And incidentally, we invite your attention to the editorial page, a new comic strip, "Keeping Up With The Jones", makes its initial appearance today. The strip is drawn by an artist of national reputation.

LIONS WILL ELECT OFFICERS TUESDAY

Cross Plains Lions Club will elect officers for the ensuing year at the next regular weekly luncheon of the group Tuesday. The meeting will be held in the dining hall of the Presbyterian church.

Candidates for President of the club are George R. Neel and Dr. J. H. McGowen. For first Vice-President, J. G. Perry and Arlie Brown are candidates. For second Vice-President, W. R. Lowe and Don McCall. For third Vice-President, J. L. Settle and T. D. Little. For Secretary and Treasurer, A. W. Burkett and C. F. Hemphill. For Lion Tamer, Nat Williams and J. A. Caton. For Tail Twister, J. E. Henkel and W. A. Beavers. Candidates for directors, two of which are to be elected, are; Jesse McAdams, C. A. Lotief, F. R. Anderson and C. W. Barr.

Intermittent Rains Revive Growing Crops

BETTER PRICE SEEN AS RESULT OF LONG MIDDLEWEST DROUGHT

Intermittent rains which blanketed the Cross Plains territory this week were of unestimatable value to growing crops throughout this area. Fields and pasture lands, which were beginning to show effects of sultry days appear revived.

Farmers interviewed by the Review Wednesday afternoon said that they were very optimistic about the chance for a bumper yield of all small grains. "I'm not concerned about the yield its price that's worrying me," a veteran planter of this section said to the Review editor.

With extensive droughts reported in the middle West and throughout the grain belt, local buyers are predicting a better price for wheat and oats grown in this area this year than was prevalent last year. Quite a number of farmers are repairing implements preparatory to harvesting. One local firm reported that 2,000 pounds of binder twine was sold Saturday.

BROWNWOOD GOLFERS COME TO PHIL PE CO FOR MATCH SUNDAY

Brownwood Country Club golfers will invade Phil Pe Co course Sunday afternoon, for a contest with the league leading locals. "Brownwood is expected to bring 30 players", said Marion Harvey, Secretary of the local club to the Review yesterday.

Comparative dope favors local mashie toasters to triumph over the Brown County team. Phil Pe Co won a decisive victory over the DeLeon-Dublin club which got the better end of an engagement with Brownwood.

At present the local club has an undisputed leadership of the Heart of Texas Golf Association with 1,000 percent.

LOCAL COUPLE WED SATURDAY EVENING

Miss Dixie Davis, daughter of C. T. Davis of this place, and Norman Coffey, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Coffey, of Cottonwood, were united in marriage at the Baptist parsonage here Saturday evening, with Dr. C. A. Voyles officiating in the ring ceremony.

The marriage vows were taken in the presence of only a few close friends of the couple. Miss Helen Bosworth was maid of honor and Elton Ray was attendant to the groom. Others present were: Miss Gretchen Bentley, Leo Varner and Ernest Davis, brother of the bride.

The couple is well known in Cross Plains, both having resided in this locality virtually all of their life. They will make their home at Cottonwood, where the groom is associated with his father and brothers in a general mercantile and automotive business.

ALL CALLAHAN COTTON CONTRACTS APPROVED

County Agent Ross B. Jenkins told the Review in a telephone conversation late Thursday that all cotton contracts for Callahan county had been approved by the state board and that they would be forwarded to Washington immediately. The contracts call for approximately $118,000.00 being paid local farmers by the federal government.

Throng Crowds H.S. Auditorium For Baccalaureate Sermon Sunday Morn

Cross Plains high school auditorium was crowded to capacity Sunday morning, when Dr. C. A. Voyles, local minister, delivered the baccalaureate sermon to high school seniors, who tonight will receive diplomas of graduation from the local institution.

The text of Dr. Voyles' address was, "The Christian Philosophy of Life".

To the graduates he said:

"I congratulate you young people upon this occasion. It marks an epoch in your lives. It is both an achievement and the beginning of a new sphere of life. My purpose this morning is to tell you the way to attain the greatest happiness in life.

"The age in which Jesus lived is far different from our age yet the same great fundamental principles of life guide men through every period. When we learn to govern our lives by these laws we will attain the supreme guest of life,—happiness.

"There is a false philosophy of life as well as a true and often men are led astray by the tinsel of life. Five ideas of the present day are to be avoided, namely,—the magnifying of the achievement of man which results in the ruling out of the providence of God in the ordinary affairs of life. God has not relinquished his hand upon the course of the affairs of men and we do well to acknowledge him in all our ways.

"Then there is the tendency to divide life up into segments and thus forget that life is a unity and that men are to be judged by the entire span of life's actions and achievements. We cannot say this is mystical, my business or my religious life for they are intermingled and effect each the other.

"Men often emphasize the superficial virtues of life instead of the fundamental ones. Thrift, economy and affability cannot replace faith, hope and love. Too much emphasis is being placed today upon the lighter and more temporary truths of life to the neglect of the eternal verities of character.

"Modern psychology is stressing self expression to the neglect of the cardinal doctrine of self restraint. The result has been our present day lawlessness and the breaking down of respect for the walls that have sheltered our republic and given strength to the church. The Psalmist said, "Blessed is the man that walketh not—that standeth not—that sitteth not. We must build negative walls behind which to grow the great elements of character.

"False ideas of democracy are abroad in the land today. We cannot regiment in the ordinary affairs of life with out at the same time devitalizing human individuality. It is a mistake to standardize when we need to vitalize life. Democracy may level down as well as level up.

"Jesus taught that men ought to cultivate qualities of courage that would endure persecution. There ought to be a spirit of meek-

JUNE 30 MARKS END OF DELINQUENT TAX LEGAL GRACE PERIOD

George H. Sheppard, Comptroller of Public Accounts, in a letter to W. J. Evans, Callahan County Tax Collector, last week advised that after July first all delinquent taxes not paid will have the customary penalties added. For instance: 30 percent will be added to unpaid taxes for 1930; 24 percent will be added for 1931 and 18 percent for 1932.

Mr. Sheppard's letter to Evans follows:

"You will recall that from time to time since 1930, the Legislature has been suspending interest and penalties on delinquent taxes. Last May, the last measure of this kind was enacted, which provided which became delinquent on July first, 1933, (later they included a two percent penalty on all added the split tax payments, first, 1933), if paid by December 30, 1933, and four percent penalty, if paid by March 31, 1934; and six percent penalty if paid by June 30, 1934. After this June 30, 1934, expiration date, the old law prescribing 10 percent penalties and six percent interest per year, will again be in force.

"This means that on and after July first, 1934, this year, the penalty and interest you will be required to charge will not be six percent, but will include six percent per annum from the date the

ALL CALLAHAN COTTON CONTRACTS APPROVED

County Agent Ross B. Jenkins told the Review in a telephone conversation late Thursday that all cotton contracts for Callahan county had been approved by the state board and that they would be forwarded to Washington immediately. The contracts call for approximately $118,000.00 being paid local farmers by the federal government.

Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Lindley, of Carrizo Springs and formerly of this place, visited Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Anderson here first of this week.

EARLY RESIDENT IS LAID TO REST HERE THURSDAY AFTERN'ON

Obe McClain, 80, long time resident of this locality, was laid to rest in the Cross Plains cemetery Thursday afternoon. Funeral services were conducted from the Presbyterian church here, with Rev. S. P. Collins, pastor, officiating.

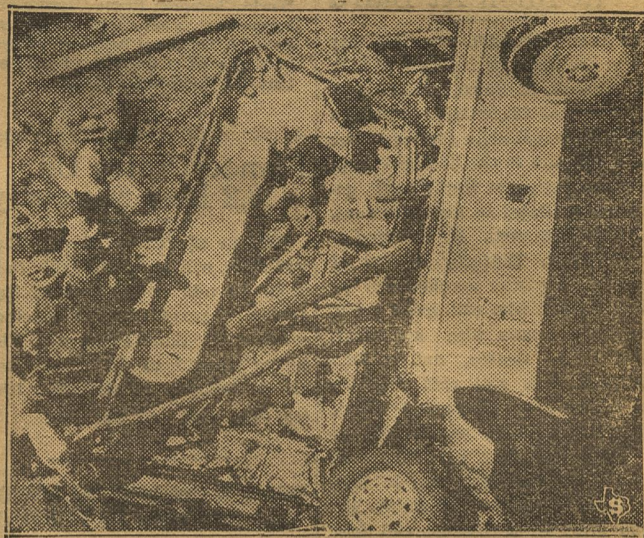

Mr. McClain succumbed Thursday morning at his home nine miles Northeast of Cross Plains after an illness of several days. He is survived by his widow and one brother.

Pall bearers at the funeral service Thursday afternoon were neighbors and life long friends to the deceased. A host of friends gathered at the church to pay last respects to Mr. McClain, who was a resident of this section for a number of years.

Higginbotham Undertakers were in charge of funeral arrangements.

Mrs. J. H. McGowen is at the home of her parents in Clyde after undergoing a tonsilectomy operation first of the week.

Bus That Plunged Four To Deaths

CURRY GIVES VIEWS ON CURRENT ISSUES IN OPENING "RACE"

Ed Curry of Pioneer, candidate for representative of the 107th Floterial district, made up of Eastland and Callahan counties, was in the city Monday and gave The Review the following statement setting forth his views and an idea of what he expects to work for if sent to the legislature.

In making my announcement for Representative of the 107th Floterial District, will say that I have been a resident of the district for fifty years. Have a wife and children. I am a Democrat of the true Southern type, my father having served for four years as a Captain in the Confederate Army and who now lives at the age of 95. I have been engaged in most every industry in this section; farming, cow punching, stock raising, gin business, merchandising, school teaching, and in late years have been an independent oil producer; but I have made the last round-up in this business until the monopoly is stopped. These experiences should and have acquainted me with the needs of the people. Here is a brief outline of some of the things I will try to do and the principles for which I stand.

I—My one principle is justice. Justice demands the restoration of an honest and economical government "of the people, by the people and for the people." Economy demands the elimination of many bureaus, commissions and a shifting as well as a reduction of taxes. Economy also demands a reduction of salaries in many cases. If I am elected I shall strive to this end. Justice will be furthered by the passage of the following legislation:

BAN IS PLACED ON 3.2 BEER IN CLYDE PRECINCT BY COURT

There will be no more 3.2 beer dispensaries under permit in precinct 5 in Callahan county—the western portion of the county including Clyde—until the courts reverse their present stand.

On application of District Attorney J. R. Black, Judge M. S. Long of the 42nd district court last week issued an injunction restraining J. H. Carpenter, Callahan county judge, from issuing any more permits for sale of "legal" brew in the precinct. Judge Long held the restraining order will be effective until he rules otherwise.

No Sale at 1-A Stand

The action specially barred issuance of a permit by Judge Carpenter to Allen Phillely, proprietor of an establishment in the northwestern corner of Callahan county, on high way 1-A Phillely's place is about eight miles from Abilene, at the junction of Taylor, Callahan Jones and Shackelford counties and is a mile or so nearer Abilene than the beer dispensaries in Shackelford county.

District Attorney Black based his plea for the injunction on his plea for the injunction on the ground that the precinct legally is dry until it votes, as a precinct, to sanction sale of 3.2 Callahan county as a whole recently voted for beer, but precinct 5 was overwhelmingly dry. The state contended that the precinct retains its prohibition status until it takes action.

Until the court order is rescinded, issuance of beer permits for the Clyde precinct is halted. One permit, that for the Elmdale club, had been issued before Black sought the restraining order; and it is not not affected under the recent action.

COTTONWOOD COUPLE WED SATURDAY NIGHT

Miss Martha Archer and Melvin Hargrove, both of Cottonwood, were united in marriage Saturday evening at Cottonwood with Rev. S. R. Respass, Baptist pastor of that place, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. S. E. Wilcoxon and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Hargrove. Both are prominent young people in the Cottonwood community. They will make their home there.

STEERING BREAK IS CAUSE OF ACCIDENT SATURDAY AFTERN'ON

Four people are dead and three more injured as a result of a motor-bus accident between Putnam and Cisco Saturday. The vehicle crashed through the concrete railing at the railroad overpass—three miles West of Cisco—and plunged 40 feet to the ground below. The accident was caused by a break in the steering gear of the steering arm dropping, the pavement and leaving the driver no control over the machine.

Three were killed instantly. They were Mrs. Ethel Boyce, 19 year old wife of a Range farmer; her two month old baby girl, who was found clutched in the mothers arms; and Mrs. J. Hilton, 67, of Abilene. Ernie Golden, 27 year old sailor, bound for his home in Mena, Arkansas, succumbed a few hours after the accident in a Cisco hospital.

Seven persons—six passengers and the driver—were aboard the ill-fated stage when it neared Cisco at noon, running approximately 10 miles per hour. Edward T. Swindle, of Angelo, probably is the most seriously hurt of the survivors, but his injuries are not considered critical; Mrs. G. W. Peacock, Corsicana, and the driver, R. Turnbow, a veteran of seven years with the company, suffered cuts and bruises and from shock. All were in the hospital.

There were no witnesses to the crashes of the machine as it ripped through the guard of concrete and as it nosedived to ravine below the viaduct was heard for several hundred yards.

"The noise was terrific, like a sudden smashing of a house," said Bob Keyes, on whose land the bus hit like a huge over-ripe watermelon burst by a giant hand. Keyes, a Cisco resident, was talking with his tenant, E. S. Martin, his house less than 200 yards from the scene when the tragedy occurred.

"There were two crashes," said Mr. Keyes. "We saw the bus come up the highway, heard the brakes grinding twice. Then there was a loud bam," and seconds later the most terrific smash I believe I have ever heard.

Alex Thate Brings Home 49 Pounds Of Fish; A 12 Pounder

And these fish did not get away.

Alex Thate returned from the Colorado River Thursday afternoon with a string of fish that caused scores of local citizens to eye them enviously. The largest of the string weighed 14 pounds and was a yellow catfish. On the string were eight fish, which together weighed 49 pounds.

Big Crowd Here For Trades Day Monday

Trades Day in Cross Plains Monday was marked by unusually good attendance and more than average trading. A feature of the day was a rodeo in the afternoon, which possessed spirited action and an amplexness of thrills.

Third Monday of each month will be regular Trades Day in Cross Plains. Plans are going forward to make the event one of anticipation to every person who has anything to 'swap'.

RY GIVES VIEWS ON CURRENT ISSUES IN OPENING "RACE"

2—I favor exempting small homesteads of all taxes for the protection of the home, the very foundation of our Nation.

3—I favor reducing registration fee of automobiles to actual cost of tags plus 25 cents to tax collector on one family car and one business car; but I favor a reasonable fee on service trucks and buses, this fee to be on a graduated scale so as to discourage monopolistic tendencies.

4—I favor a law that will close the doors of the Legislature to the paid lobbyists.

5—I favor an old age pension.

6—I favor a lower legal rate of interest to correspond with the rates of a majority of the states.

7—I favor a revision of the election law so as to remove the disfranchisement feature; in other words I am not in favor of taking a poor man's citizenship away from him because he does not have $75 to pay his poll tax to vote.

8—I favor an amendment to the corporation law providing that the state gauge everybody's oil by state employed gaugers.

9—I favor laws that will raise the standard of free text books and to readjust our grades so as to fit the new condition brought about by admitting 6-year-old scholastics.

10—I favor the control of Public Utilities, Chain stores, as well as all other monopolistic concerns. I was instrumental in getting a bill introduced in the legislature in 1931 that was designed to control same. It is as certain as the law of gravity and as simple as the A. B. C.'s. The original anti-monopoly bill would protect the small man in every line; farming, stock raising, wage working, oil producing, oil refining, small meat packer, small miller, and I am sure that I have this proposed law worked out in every detail. As this anti-monopoly bill is of paramount importance and the one matter which I have uppermost in my mind and the passage of which shall be my major task I will here give a brief outline of this bill which provides that it shall be unlawful for individuals, firms or corporations to buy or sell any and all raw materials or the finished products of same at different prices, except as to grade, quality or freight would be a factor.

This law would not mean that every one be compelled to buy and sell at the same price, but it would mean that each individual or corporation must buy and sell uniformly all over the state at the price which they themselves ask for offer for any commodity whatever bought and sold in this state. It has no price fixing element. This law would throw the monopolistic bars down and the little man will again step to his divine and constitutional rights and "great rejoicing will be here, through out the land of liberty."

The practice that this proposed law prohibits is the very thing which has destroyed the little man in every line of endeavor. In the course of my business experience I have learned how the monopolies made paupers out of us all. My business experience is also why I am in this race, as I saw how the monopolies worked their scheme. Knowledge of this scheme enabled me to frame the proposed bill briefly explained above, which when passed and enforced will mean the death knell of the monopoly.

Then it is my purpose to set about getting this anti-monopoly law rule, or principle to operating in our land so as to stop this unholy scheme by which they have reduced this nation of one time prosperous people to poverty. Fear me and support me, and I will fight your battle and mine to the last ditch. My fighting blood has been aroused by this injustice and I have a will that cannot be swayed from the interests of the people by the low down infamous lobbyists, who have enslaved us by lies and the millions of money at their disposal for this purpose. They will not take their rotten money. It is bloodstained money, wrested from the hands of millions of innocent children, old gray haired mothers and fathers, bent with age and drudgery. Fellow citizens a bank robber is a gentleman as compared to this crowd of heartless scoundrels, who are the perpetrators of this crime of monopoly against the millions of innocent and helpless. If honesty, sincerity, and determination coupled with common sense are legislative qualifications, send me to the legislature and I will raise the banner of justice and die by it, if need be. Think with me, and work with me by going to the polls on the 28th day of July and vote for the man who will fight for the cause of justice. My slogan is: Friend of People, Enemy to Monopoly.

Sees War Ahead

NEW YORK . . . H. G. Wells (above), English historian of ability, upon arrival in the U. S., was of the opinion that the world faces another war, "maybe by 1940". "It's not the newspapers but big business behind the cause," says Wells.

"THE MASQUERADER" COMING TO LIBERTY FIRST OF THE WEEK

Two men who so closely resembled each other that one stepped into the fighting political career, and love of the other man's wife provide the famous dual roles of "The Masquerader" for Ronald Colman at the Liberty Theater, here, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Involved in the puzzled affections and loves of Colman's two roles are Elissa Landi and Juliette Compton and a big cast headed by David Torrence, Helen Jerome Eddy, Creighton Hale and Halliwell Hobbes.

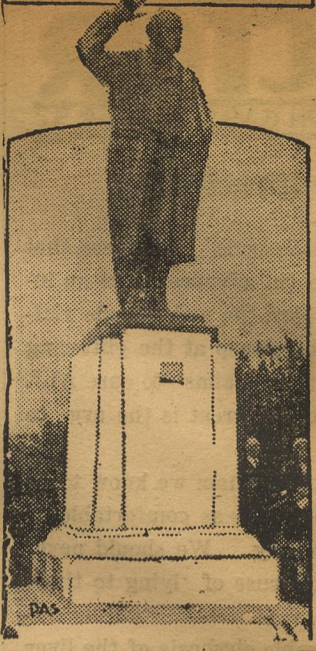

As a background for Colman and the strange human problem of "The Masquerader," Samuel Goldwyn has provided a production that gives new life and a bright modern touch to the famous English melodrama. Political, turmoil, riot and the threat of revolution, financial and government crises taken from today's headlines are the storm clouds that drive one man from his position at the helm of state and from the love of his wife to drugs and debauchery. Pride of family, patriotism and love of adventure and fight summon his unknown young cousin to the rescue.

His two roles give Colman an opportunity to contrast drunkenness and sobriety, sanity and fitness, with debauchery and depravity. Unlike "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" and other famous dual roles of the stage and screen, "The Masquerader" offers Colman no important help in the way of makeup.

Other bookings for next week at the Liberty are: Friday and Saturday (now showing) Ken Maynard, in Strawberry Roan, also another chapter of the serial Mystery Squadron.

Wednesday and Thursday "Sing and Like It", featuring Zasu Pitts and hosts of other screen celebrities will be shown at the Liberty.

GETHESEME GARDENS IS TEXT FOR SUNDAY

Dr. C. A. Voyles will occupy his pulpit at the Baptist Church at both hours Sunday. At the morning service he will speak on "Building the Church." This will be a practical discussion of ways and means of maintaining modern church life. The entire membership is urged to be present.

At the evening hour he will take for his theme, "When we come to our Getheseme." All who have suffered reverses or sorrow are especially invited to be present at this service.

Dr. Voyles stated that the forty acres had been planted in peanuts the past week. The proceeds of this crop is to be used to apply on the liquidation of the church debt.

"When we reached the bus, the driver was pulling himself out and there were cries and groans from the passengers. The head of one woman (Mrs. Peacock), could be seen. Turnbow, even with his face streaming in blood, to charge with unusual presence of mind. He asked Martin to go for help, and he and I tried to reach the passengers.

"All the time cars were whizzing by overhead, the drivers unable to see the wreck and not knowing what had happened. The ambulance came, but while we waited we heard up the head of the woman whose leg was pinned beneath the wreckage. The bus which had been hanging with its wheels in the air, was prized open with ties from a railroad over there," said Key pointing to the railway dump of a few feet from the scene.

"We took the woman out first and she fainted as we put her in a cot. A mother, dead, and a baby, also dead, were next. We had to lift the little girl out of her arms before we could move the other."

The dead and injured were carried on cots up the steep incline of rocky and shrub-covered, to the entrance to the Keyes place, where the ambulances had been forced to wait, and were conveyed to funeral home or the sanitarium.

"I just don't know what happened, a large sandy-haired Irishman, told a reporter. After the passengers had been cared for and had telephoned his Fort Worth headquarters of the accident, had allowed himself to be put to bed. His right eye was hidden in a bandage on a forehead gash. Other cuts had been swathed.

Have You Seen the Frigidaire '34?

End your refrigeration worries the modern electrical way! The safe preservation of foods, according to food chemists and medical authorities, require a temperature below 50 degrees . . . constantly maintained.

Modern Electrical Refrigeration assures this necessary low temperature . . . automatically. When the temperature in your Electric Refrigerator rises to 50 degrees, the freezing unit is automatically turned on . . . when it has been brought down to the correct level, the unit automatically switches off.

Moderate first cost and low operating expense are added considerations suggesting the immediate purchase of a new model Frigidaire.

The Frigidaire '34 operates quietly and with amazingly small amount of current, has automatic ice tray release, automatic defrosting and many other important features.

This is the "Electrical Age. A Frigidaire will be another step to your All-Electric Kitchen."

Your increased use of electric service is billed on a surprisingly low rate schedule and adds only a small amount to your total bill.

The Family DOCTOR

by JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

Stay Clear of The Miracle Man

The meanest thing in human shape is the hyena that holds out inducements for a fee (in advance) cure an inoperable case of disease. I have seen the unfortunate victims of cancer, hopelessly afflicted, grasp at the glittering lure of the heartless impostor who claims to cure ALL cancers. Such sufferers will bite, so great is the urge to ease—it is indeed pitiful.

What shall we do with the invalid whom we know to be helpless? Just one thing—make him as comfortable as possible to the end; that is our duty. We should never lend ourselves to the contemptible ruse of lying to those on the brink of eternity.

I have had the man with incurable cirrhosis of the liver ask me "doctor, when are you going to get me out of this?" and I tell him, "my dear sir, you are far past the stage of being cured?" Not a bit of it. I would simply say, this is a case when we must do our very best, and let thorough understanding be our guide; that's the best anybody can do."

And I try to impress upon all my sufferers that, it is given to mankind to know precisely what will happen and when.

I have seen the old "botanical doctor" agree to cure an inoperable cancer of the breast with poultices made from tree bark—and he sagely counseled that the bark must be scraped upward the top of the shrub!

We must have the incurables. It is the lot of all to die when the time comes. It is our duty, so far as in our power to protect and guard the welfare of the stricken one to the last.

It is none the less a duty to fight the scoundrels who would rob the incurable victim.

FRED CUTBIRTH SUSTAINS INJURED LEG IN RUN AWAY

Fred Cutbirth was slightly injured Wednesday afternoon, when a team ran away with a binder on which he was riding. He was carried to a Santa Anna hospital Thursday night. Ex-ray pictures revealed no breaks, however, his leg was badly bruised and several ligaments injured.

The hospitals of New York were virtually besieged this winter by a lot of actors who wanted to visit the surgical amphitheatres to observe the exact bearing of all the players in the very real job of performing operations. The siege was brought on, of course by such plays as Men in White and Yellow Jack—two of the most successful of the season—There are some surgical amphitheatres where the observers sit in a circular mezzanine around the glass dome directly above the operating table—They can observe the minute work of the surgeon with the aid of binoculars.

Mr. Jenkins told the Review that he looked for checks to farmers to start arriving in about 35 days.

HAMMETT GOES WELL IN TOURNAMENT AT RANGER PAST WEEK

J. T. Hammett, ace golfer of the Phil Pe Co country club, was eliminated in the semi-finals of the Ranger Country Club golf tournament the past week end after having disposed of one of the most highly touted linksmen of West Texas, in the person of Gib Faircloth.

Hammett lost to Jimmie Smith, who was defeated in the semi-finals only by sub-par shooting.

Wayne Middleton, Bill Tunnell and Jack Embry, of the local club, also played in the Ranger tournament.

So many false 'stories' had been told about the capture of Bonnie Parker and Clyde Barrow, colorful desperados of the Southwest, that when they were really slain Wednesday, most all local citizens merely laughed at the report, saying, "I've heard that one."

But anyway the couple whose names blazed in headlines across the nation's papers, have met the fate they full well was haunting their pathway.

And by the way, did you know that Bonnie Parker resided in Callahan County in her childhood. However, we seldom hear anyone bragging about it.

Mrs. S. P. Long, Mrs. Frank McGary, Mrs. Lois Davidson, son, and Mrs. Chase Adams visited in Brownwood, Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. "Shortie" Wilson, formerly of this place and now of Los Angeles, California, are visiting his mother, Mrs. Lee Champion, at Cottonwood.

Fred Heyser visited friends in Cross Plains the first of this week.

4-H Club Work Progressing In Callahan Declares County Agent Ross B. Jenkins

By Ross B. Jenkins

In all the bustle and rush of the past months to get the cotton contracts in shape to go to Washington for payment, there has been a group of boys in this county that were interested in doing something for themselves. To them cotton was only a means to get school clothes and daily food. They were in the mood for something that they could do. Recognizing this human element and wishing to help guide them down roads of profitable endeavor, the teachers in many of the schools, helped the county agent to organize 4-H Clubs and make a start to developing in agricultural pursuits. The club boys at Lanham, Lone Oak, Union, and Cottonwood have undertaken to either grow onions, grain, sorghums, or feed out a calf. The Cottonwood club is more nearly all raising onions. The Lone Oak club is raising State Certified pure grain sorghum seed. The Lanham and Union clubs are raising onions also.

Last week, we had the pleasure of having George W. Barnes, Cattle Specialist from the Extension Service of A&M College, to be with us all one day and talk and advise with the boys about feeding a calf for the Fat Stock show to be held at Fort Worth next Spring. As a result we have some six or more boys already lined up with their calf chosen to go on feed to try for feeding honors. These boys visited the Dyer, Williams, and Barton. Correct conformation was pointed out to the boys and some were picked.

Due to the many schools closing that day, many boys who wish to feed for the show were not able to meet Barnes. We wish any boy interested in feeding a calf in Callahan county would drop us a line and we will be glad to help him pick his calf and outline the feeding practice that will be necessary to "finish" the calf. We intend to have a show for these feeders in next Fall. Now boys have a chance to do something. Let's do it.

RELIEF WORKERS CONVENE AT BAIRD

BAIRD, May 23.—Four officials from Austin headquarters were in Baird Wednesday to conduct the bi-monthly meeting of social welfare workers, held at the district courtroom there. H. E. Driskell of Eastland, chairman, was in charge. The Austin officials in attendance were W. B. Orr, assistant director of rural rehabilitation; J. M. Martin, supervisor of sustenance farming; Harold West, district field supervisor, and W. A. Gaither, district project engineer.

Ninety-six workers from the nine counties in this district were present. Counties are Taylor, Callahan, Jones, Eastland, Palo Pinto, Shackelford, Comanche, Parker, and Stephens.

Next session will be June 23 in Mineral Wells. E. E. Cook, Callahan county administrator, and his co-workers were hosts for the meeting and a luncheon, served at noon in the Methodist church basement. The luncheon was tendered by merchants of the county, and prepared by women employed in the relief office.

A HOME INSTITUTION

When you buy AN AUTOMATIC REFRIGERATOR you want "the facts..."

Here they are!

WE BELIEVE that the New Air-Cooled Electrolux is the very best of all automatic refrigerators. And we want to tell you why.

Electrolux operates upon a different principle than the others . . . a simpler, more efficient principle. A tiny gas flame circulates a simple refrigerant. Ordinary air cools it. For that reason it costs less to operate, has no moving parts to wear and need costly repairing, is permanently silent, and gives constant steady cold.

Only Electrolux can offer you all those things. In addition, the new Air-Cooled Electrolux has the modern conveniences that women appreciate so much.

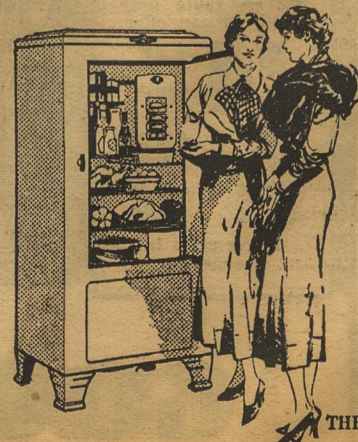

Here are a few of them: Temperature regulator. Split shelf. New gleaming white Newton finish. Trigger tray release. And many others.

You buy more than a kitchen appliance when you buy an automatic refrigerator. You buy fuller protection for foods . . . new pleasure in preparing salads and desserts.

Please consider this an invitation to come in and see the New Air-Cooled Electrolux. We know you'll appreciate it more after actually examining it.

And remember. Your own gas company stands back of Electrolux—promptly and willingly services every one it sells.

QUICK FACTS

- Permanently silent
- Has no moving parts
- Frees you from costly repairs
- Costs less to operate
- Temperature regulator
- Non-stop defrosting
- Ample food space
- Plenty of ice cubes

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington, May 25 (Autocaster) Curiously enough, the most interesting political event under discussion in Washington at this writing is nothing that the Administration or Congress or anyone else had anything to do with. It is the drought in the wheat and corn belts.

The drought is political in its effects, because it has apparently done what the Administration has been attempting to do by political methods; that is, reduce the supply of grain to avert a surplus and raise the price. Instead of operating through the political machinery of the AAA, Nature took a hand and brought about a crop shortage by the old reliable short-cut method. Physical evidence of the drought was brought to President Roosevelt by the air route. The dust storm which darkened the sun on the Atlantic Coast, with grains of grit from North Dakota and the rest of the prairie states forming a cloud over the East, left plenty of dirt on the roof and porticoes of the White House itself.

Two Views of Dust Cloud

There are two ways of looking at this dust cloud and what it may signify politically. To one group of political thinkers it is the "cloud no bigger than a man's hand," such as Elijah saw of old. To those so

County Agent Explains Cream Buying Plan; Effective June 1

By Ross Jenkins

Following our announcement of two weeks ago, we continue the item of a change in cream grading and price change in buying of cream after June first. All cream will be bought on grade and there will be a 2-cent premium paid for No. 1 cream over No. 2 cream. No. 3 cream will not be bought at all.

All county agents will assist creamery men in explaining to farmers the necessary steps to produce No. 1 cream.

Cream grades set forth by the State Department of Agriculture are: No. 1 cream, sour, is slightly sour, clean to the taste and free from objectionable odors and flavors and containing not less than 25% butterfat, and shall be free from all extraneous and deleterious matter. No. 2 cream is too sour to grade No. 1 and may contain slightly off flavors and orders and shall be reasonably free from extraneous and deleterious matters No. 3 cream shall be any cream which will not qualify as No. 1 or No. 2 grade, and which consists of all cream containing oil, yeast, musty, onion or any similar flavor of foreign fats and scrap butter that would render it unfit for human consumption.

It has been our lot for many years to eat in restaurants and other eating houses and knew that any butter we ate was manufactured from cream that in many instances was almost rotten. Since we still will eat at such places and for the benefit of those who will always eat there we are proud that the State Department of Agriculture has mustered the courage to stop the dumping upon the helpless public just any old kind of filthy rotten cream and expect human beings to consume it as country raised butter.

Many people have about quit eating butter made from creameries because of the knowledge of how the cream has been handled.

mind, it signifies the beginning of the end of the Agricultural Administration program. To be sure, the wish is doubtless in great measure the father of the thought, but those who do not like the principle of the AAA are not all of them, by any means, the President's political enemies. Many of them think it was a program wished on him by enthusiasts. These people believe that the President now, after a year in office and experience with every known variety of planners, schemers and meddlers, to say nothing of the trickery, chicanery and skulduggery of national politics as it is played here, is not so inclined to listen to uplifters or nation-savers or other folk who have sure-fire remedies for all that ails us.

The folk who talk that way are perfectly willing to agree that the United States was producing much more wheat and corn than we could find a market for in the present restricted state of world commerce. They are in agreement in principle with the theorem that marginal lands ought to be taken out of cultivation, so as to reduce the annual surplus to reasonable bounds. And they are all glad to see a chance for the farmer to get more for his product. They just don't like some of the means adopted by the AAA to bring those desirable ends about.

How people Reason

There are other enthusiasts here who think the drought is another piece of "Roosevelt luck," which has come to be an everyday expression at the capital. They say, in effect: "Look! The President was trying to raise the price of wheat and corn and wasn't getting away with it. His gold policy didn't do the trick, and he's been hunting everywhere for some other way to do it, when along comes Old Man Drought and does it for him. That's pure Roosevelt luck, for it won't be long now before everybody will forget that it was the drought that did it. They'll give Roosevelt all the credit, because it happened in the Administration.

There may be something in that. Human nature is funny. If it likes a man—and everybody likes Mr. Roosevelt—it will give him credit for everything good and put all the blame for whatever is bad on someone it doesn't like, like Mr. Hoover or Wall Street or the Japanese Menace or something.

Flaw in Argument

But the Washington observers—and there are some pretty wise ones among them—point out the flaw in that line of argument this way:

"Grant that the drought has done what the AAA has so far failed to do; that is, it has put up the price of wheat. It sure did that. Wheat jumps from 79 cents in Chicago on May 1 to 93 cents on May 11. And grant furthermore, that is just what the Administration has been trying to accomplish.

"But did the drought pay the farmers any bonuses or benefit payments? Not a cent. Do they get anything for not raising the wheat that the drought killed? Nary a dollar. Under the Administration's plans they may not have got much higher prices for their wheat, at least not as much as they thought they ought to have had, or believed that they had been promised. But under the AAA they don't have to raise wheat to get paid; they only have to cease raising it by contract and agreement with the Government. Under the drought they have ceased raising it, all right, but they haven't any contract with the elements, at least none that they can collect on.

At Harvest Time

"And will that make the farmers sore? Whole states have been feeling prosperous with the flow of Government money coming in as benefit payments to the farmers. Now, it seems likely, the drought will have the effect of changing all that. They will have to wait till harvest time for their money, and they will have to grow and deliver actual wheat to get it. Even though it comes to a lot more per bushel, we opine they won't like it.

"Human nature being what it is, indignation at having the flow of easy money stopped always more than overbalances any gratitude for having had a whack at the easy money while it was running free."

There you have both sides of the picture. It is too soon to judge between the two possible effects the drought may have on the President's political fortunes.

The Story So Far

Nancy Gordon, loving Page Roemer, sells herself in marriage to Dr. Richard Morgan for fifteen thousand dollars, the amount her brother Roddy stole to give to a woman. Helena Haddon, sophisticated married woman, in love with Richard, does her best to make Nancy, although she knows nothing of the secret marriage. Mr. Gordon sells his home to repay Richard. Nancy permits Page to continue making love to her, but when she finds that he wants her to run away with him she recoils from him in horror, taking shelter in the hotel of a poor woman whose baby is dying. Nancy realizes that Richard is the best man after all, and sends for him. Although he saves the baby's life, he repudiates the help of his wife. Helena, finding that they have spent the night together in the miserable hotel, spreads the scandal about town. Angie Fuller, Roddy's childhood sweetheart, and niece of Major Lomax, tries to stop the scandal. Just then Roddy returns home—drunk. His mother believes him crazy and sends for Dr. Morgan, who takes Roddy home with him. Nancy goes to Richard's to see her brother. "Rod," she says "have you been doing it again—stealing?"

Now Go On With The Story

Her lips were dry. "Sealing?" "No!" he snapped, then his hands clenched on the edge of the bed and he choked back a sob. "She took that money—the money I stole to save her old father from jail—and bought a trousseau—and got married—and went to Europe!" He staggered to his feet, shaking his fist at space. "Went to Europe!" he shouted, "her old father was all a blooming lie—she went to Europe with the man she'd been engaged to for two years!"

Nancy, sitting alone on the edge of the bed now, gasped with relief. "I'm so glad," she cried, so glad!

Roddy stopped in his furious outburst to glare at her.

"Money! She wanted money!" he raved, "a woman who uses a man's love for her—to get money—" he stopped, choking, "there nothing bad enough for a woman like that!" he cried, "nothing!"

"I've got nothing to live for," Roddy went on, "the world's rotten—I'm twenty three and I've drained life to the dregs! I've thrown up my job, sis, I couldn't face it any longer—I'd lied enough for her. I resigned."

"Rod, you didn't—you didn't owe anything, did you?"

"No! Not a damn cent—what do I want with money? The whole world's like a rotten apple, the inside's ready to come out! I went on a spree, Nance, the biggest spree I ever had in my life. I drank up all I had. I—" he sank down in a chair opposite and rested his head on his clenched fists—I'm a darned loafer. I ought to be shot. I've disgraced you all. I've stolen. I'm out of work. Why don't you shoot me, Nance?"

His sister did not answer him; she was choked with her own misery. It had been no use, no use in the world; she had not saved Roddy, she had not saved Roddy, she had only made him worse!

"Oh, Roddy!" she gasped, oh, Roddy, I wish I were dead!"

Roddy stared at her, his jaw dropping; suddenly the selfishness of his own anguish was penetrated. Nancy's forlorn cry went to his heart.

"Nancy, I'm a rotter!" he groaned, "I'm no good on earth!"

"Neither am I!" Nancy's voice was mothered, "I'm—I'm just as bad! It's my fault—I—I've made everything worse!—I—it's all gone for nothing!" she cried.

"It hasn't listen!" he came over and seized her by the shoulder, almost shaking her, "it hasn't gone for nothing—if you mean that confounded money? I paid it all in—they never said a word about it; I've thought, sometimes, that old Beaver knew—but he's only watched me, that's all. And now—well, they don't need to worry about me any more—I quit."

"Roddy, we thought you'd try to make good!"

He crimsoned with shame. It seemed to take the night tragedy out of it.

Nancy, watching him, saw how he felt. She got up slowly from her seat on his bed and went to him. "Come home soon, Roddy", she whispered, "please come home, we all love you—all of us! Don't hurt us any more!"

Nancy shut the door softly and went downstairs.

Richard was standing with his back to his own door when she came down.

"Thank you for Roddy," she said with stiff lips, "please send him home."

Nancy, said Richard hoarsely, "you're unhappy, I see it. I won't hold you against your will. You can get a divorce. I—you want it, don't you?"

She turned her face away, refusing to look at him.

"The sooner the better!" she cried.

The task of telling Mr. Gordon about Roddy fell to Nancy; her mother would not face it.

Mr. Gordon's face worked.

"Give him another chance, Papa, Poor Rod."

Mr. Gordon passed his other hand over his face, then he let it fall heavily on his daughter's shoulder.

"My poor girl! You ruined your life for that—that young scoundrel!"

She did not trust herself to look at him.

"Nancy Virginia," her father said at last, slowly, "I won't have this secret kept any longer—you've got to get a divorce, I'll—make that fellow give it to you!"

Nancy rose slowly to her feet. "He says I can have it," she told him, moving away from him. "He doesn't want me, that's all," she added with a little gasp.

She ran upstairs and shut herself in her own room. Dropping on the edge of the bed, she stared out of the window with unseeing eyes. In her pocket was a letter from Page Roemer; in it he sued for forgiveness—pleading his love.

"Forgive me, trust me, I only want to serve you."

Nancy tore it in little pieces just as Page Roemer had torn her love for him in little pieces and trampled it in the mire—when he asked her to run away with him.

Roddy, tramping in the wet meadow grass, had gotten to the bottom of his misery. "Pretty white to treat a poor devil like me so well!" he mused bitterly, with that rush of friendship for Richard that comes to a man at the end of his tether. No one had told him that he owed his freedom to Richard.

Roddy, in the rush of his friendship and gratitude to Richard, did not know how much he owed. He was tramping up and down the river meadow in the dusk when he came suddenly upon old Major Lomax.

"Eh, there!" he shouted. Roddy stumbled. He knew the voice and it brought a rush of memory.

"It's only Rod Gordon, Major," he said in a choked voice.

The old man set down his lantern and held out his hand.

"Come and shake hands then, sir," he said sharply, "drat it, I thought I'd caught my chicken thief!"

Red in the face, Roddy came up and shook hands. The old man swung the lantern in his face.

"Been drinking?" he asked grimly. "You look fishy, but come in—Angie hears your voice."

Roddy wanted to escape. Then he looked up and saw the girl in the lighted doorway. Before he knew it, he was holding her soft cool hands in his.

"Come in, come in," said the major testily, "I'm playing chess. Angie can talk if you've a mind to."

The major hanging his lantern on a hook by the door, surveyed him. "Beaver says you've given up, he remarked sharply, "going to turn into a foot-pad, young man or a toe-dancer which?"

"Uncle Robert!" gasped Angie.

Roddy swallowed hard. "I'm going to work here, he answered thickly, I'm looking for a job near home this time—I'm done with New York."

"New York's done with you," corted with Haddon, but you and rected the major grimly, "I'll give you a job," he said flatly, "got one in the insurance office now—twenty dollars a week to start—and no fooling. Take it, Rod?"

Roddy gasped. "I'd—I'd like to think about it, sir."

The major laughed shortly. Then he heard their maid-of-all-work admitting a visitor.

"There's Haddon! Did you set out the chess table, Angie? All right, then, you take this young firebrand in hand and talk sense to him." He started down the firebrand in hand and talk sense hall to meet Haddon, but threw a word back over his shoulder, "Better take it, Rod, unless—you want to jockey for Polestar."

Roddy said nothing.

"Won't you sit down, Rod?"

He swung around and found her, sitting in her corner, just as she used to sit.

"Angie, I'm not fit to lace your boots!" he cried impetuously.

She was startled, "I'm so sorry uncle was rude—" she faltered "please don't mind it, Roddy. He—he means to be kind."

"No one could be dreadful enough to me, said Roddy flinging himself on a low stool at her feet.

She was shocked, but her heart began to beat in her throat. He was always impetuous. He had come back to tell her—he was sorry then!

"I've done awful things," he went on, in a passion of self abnegation, "do you remember—when I was here last? I didn't come to see you."

"Yes, I know. I saw you go by—I thought you'd forgotten."

"I had," said Roddy, "I was ashamed to remember. I'm a rotter, Angie. I'd been stealing to help a bad woman out of trouble."

The girl shrank back into her corner. It was a long while before she could speak. "I—can't believe it, Roddy, you're—why, you're a Gordon!"

He turned crimson. She had touched the tenderest spot about him.

"I stole fifteen thousand dollars from the trust company, Angie. I ought to be in jail," he went on, pouring it all but in a molten stream of passionate regret and repentance. "My sister helped me. Nancy borrowed the money and kept me out of jail! A girl, Angie! I'm a lout—I let her do it."

Angie's quick gasp escaped him. He was too much wrapped up in himself to perceive that he had given a key to mystery. Richard had money—could Nancy have gone to him?

"I—I'm so glad you didn't go to jail!" she gasped, and then: Roddy ought to have gone. We ought to pay for what we do—ourselves."

He caught her hand and held it feverishly; he had forgotten his hatred of the sex.

"You don't despise me—for it?" he asked huskily.

She shook her head. Then, suddenly, without warning, she burst into tears. Her tears melted Roddy; he felt a rush of self pity as great as her pity for him.

"Oh, Roddy!" sighed the girl meltingly, and before she knew it her soft fingers touched his brown hair with shy fondness. "Oh, Rod, there was a woman, you said—"

"I hate her!" he vowed, "I was a fool, Angie. She fooled me. She begged for help for her old father—oh, a touching story and she said she'd return it—I thought I could myself. Then I found out she was married," he blazed.

Angie dried her tears angrily. "She ought to have gone to jail!"

"That's what Nance thinks," he admitted a little sheepishly then, abruptly, he kissed Angie's hand.

"Roddy, you're going to work here? You'll—" she hesitated—"you'll take Uncle Robert's offer?"

He rose slowly and began to walk up and down, with the same picturesque melancholy. "I think I—I'll asked Richard, you see Richard took me in drunk—and took care of me," Roddy's voice choked "pretty white, wasn't it? I'm grateful to Richard."

"Grateful?" Angie sprang up, her face crimson, "you've no reason to be grateful to Richard Morgan!" she cried impetuously, "no reason in the world!"

Roddy caught the chance in her tone, and he saw the anger in her face. He stood still, with a shock of surprise.

"What do you mean, Angie?"

"Don't be grateful to that man!" she answered furiously, "that's all—I can't tell you why, but—let him alone, Rod!"

"Richard Morgan? Why? I don't understand—tell me, Angie."

She drew back at that, she saw the look on his face and suddenly remembered. If she told Nancy's brother the story that was going the rounds, the story that linked Nancy's name with Morgan's, Roddy would go to Richard and demand satisfaction. He would have to go—and it would mean death. The girl began to tremble; she had been a fool, what did she say?

Our Schools, Your And Mine

At this particular season of the year there are scores of schools throughout this section, completing successful terms and closing their doors for the annual Summer "recess".

Pondering the achievements of these many schools and the part they play each year in educating the youth of the land, which is a perpetuate of our present civilization, one is reminded of those who maintain the schools and the debt of gratitude that is done them.

Tax payers, as well as teachers and students, play a vital part in the school systems of Texas. Without them there would be no means of support for the places of learning. With this thought paramount in our minds, we should all strive to support those who help us to maintain our schools.

It has been estimated that one dollar spent three times each day in a community for one year, makes enough profit for those through whose hands it passes to employ a school teacher for one term. If these figures be correct—and they are approximately if not exactly—think of what schools the Cross Plains trade territory might have if every citizen in this area supported and bought only from home institutions. The very best advantages available would be at the disposal of the youth of this locality, schools would be even more attractive and likewise even more effective.

A dollar spent at a Mail Order House has little—if any—chance of ever benefiting the schools of this locality. Instead it tends to help larger institutions in the cities, giving the children there an even greater advantage over their rural cousins.

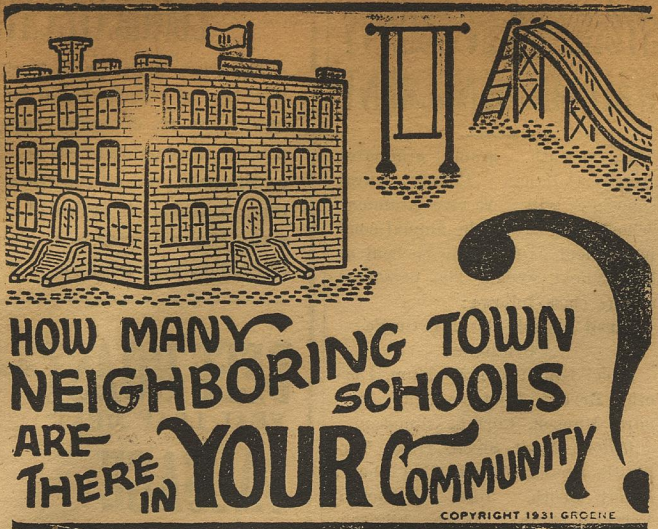

Should every family of the Cross Plains trade territory resolve to patronize 100 percent locally operated stores, our school systems would have no more financial worries. For taxes could—and would—be paid at the desired time. Maybe this is merely an ideal, but let us strive toward it and note the improvement in our schools.

Proper Respect For The Flag

Within the next two months there will be three occasions where patriotic observances demand the flag of the United States should be displayed. They are Memorial Day on May 30, National Flag Day on June 14 and July fourth.

In view of these approaching occasions, it seems fitting that a few facts concerning how the United States flag should be respected, be published herein.

When not in use the flag should be kept neatly folded or rolled. When being hoisted it should not be allowed to touch the ground, deck or floor nor should it be allowed to trail in the water.

Display the flag only from sunrise to sunset. When displayed on a staff, hoist the flag to the top. Halfmast is a sign of public mourning, and, when a flag is displayed upside down, it is a sign of distress.

In hoisting the flag to halfmast, the first hoist it to the top of the staff and then lower it. On Memorial Day fly the flag at halfmast until noon, and at full staff for the remainder of the day.

In a parade the flag of the United States should be on the marching right.

When displayed on crossed staffs it should be on the flag's or the observer's left.

Displayed in a group or cluster, it should be in the center and fly the highest. Displayed with other flags on the same staff, it should be at the top.

When flags of two or more nations are displayed, all should be flown from separate staffs at the same height.

When not flown from a staff, hang the flag with the stripes running up and down with the stars on the flag's right. Never drape the flag nor loop it.

When used to cover a casket, the flag should be placed stars, is at the head and over so that the union, or field of the left shoulder.

Never use the flag for advertising purposes.

Do not display the flag on a float in a parade except from a staff.

Old and wornout flags should be withdrawn from use and burned in private.

THE BOOK

... the first line of which reads, "The Holy Bible," and which contains Four Great Treasures

by BRUCE BARTON

Isaiah's Superb Optimism

ISAIAH, called upon to save Jerusalem from the Assyrian Army, wasted no time rubbing in his reproaches, but spoke with a voice which put new courage into the king and all his forces.

Therefore thus saith the Lord concerning the king of Assyria. He shall not come into this city, nor shoot an arrow there, nor come before it with shields, nor cast a bank against it.

By the way that he came, by the same shall he return, and shall not come into this city, saith the Lord.

Then the angel of the Lord went forth, and smote in the camp of the Assyrians a hundred and fourscore and five thousand: and when they arose early in the morning behold, they were all dead corpses.

Whom the Lord of hosts shall bless, saying, Blessed be Egypt my people, and Assyria the work of my hands, and Israel mine inheritance.

This is precisely as if, while we were still at war with Germany, having Great Britain as our nearest ally, we had said: "Some day the war will be over and the Divine plan will include and need us all. The United States is to be one of three powers in the future glory of the world, and the other two are to be Great Britain and Germany.

Isaiah had to be a pessimist as to the immediate future, but his superb optimism is shown all through his work, and comes to it worthiest expression in the poem with which his own book of sermons ends.

Strengthen ye the weak hands, and confirm the feeble knees. Say to them that are of a fearful heart, Be strong, fear not: behold, your God will come.

Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped:

Then shall the lame man leap as an hart: for in the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the desert.

And the parched ground shall become a pool, and the thirsty land springs of water.

While Isaiah denounced both Assyria and Egypt, and urged Jerusalem to avoid entangling alliances with either of them, he had a conception of international relations which is amazingly modern in the best sense of the word. In that day shall there be a highway out of Egypt to Assyria, and the Egyptians shall serve with the Assyrians. In that day shall Israel be the third with Egypt and with Assyria, even a blessing in the midst of the land:

NEW YORK

A magazine article appeared recently with the title, "How to Play the Market." The summary of the article was: Don't!

A friend was describing preparations for a dinner party. One of the invited guests was a huge hulk of a man who required some special consideration. "His idea of a roast turkey," said my friend, "is a single portion."

Walking in Greenwich Village we came across this sign: Noyes School of Rhythm—It has nothing to do with drummers, but is a dancing school.

Poor old Broadway—where the bright lights shine at night! One of the things that makes it tawdry, jewelry auctioneers who use loud speakers and drone on and on in a rasping, monotonous tone. In spite of it, there are always the curious and the credulous who stop and listen.

We seem bound to be different in New York—Repeal is a fact. Yes. Sit down at a restaurant table and you can order any drink you like. But eat lunch sitting at a counter five feet away and you can't have a drop—Go into a liquor store, ask for beer and the answer is, "we're not allowed to sell it."

Chicago has New York beat for peculiar liquor legislation. You can have anything you like to drink even though you sit on a high stool at a lunch counter. But if you lower a foot to the standing position while drinking, you can be arrested for a misdemeanor.

Whiskey and Soda live up at the Bronx Zoo. And they're the first of their kind that ever arrived alive in the United States. They've bears from Tibet—odd looking youngsters that only weighed 30 pounds when they got here. And they only got here alive because one of the ship's crew invented a diet that they would eat en route. When they refused the prescribed menu they were fed scrambled eggs, raw and cooked vegetables, a lot of marmalade, milk and oatmeal. Some day they'll weigh from 350 to 400 pounds each!

There's a company in New York that specializes in neutralizing the effect of stench bombs. It's called the Bombatement Company. Every trade organization in town has its name on the emergency list. The founder started work after he had one of those evil smelling bombs thrown into the store that he used to operate.

Baseball Is Here Again

Crimson Trail Of Barrow And Bonnie Ended As Notorious Couple Meets Death Wednesday

A crimson, blood stained trail across the Southwest came to an abrupt ending Wednesday morning near a small Louisiana town, 50 miles from Shreveport, as Clyde Barrow, Texas desperado number one, and his equally famous sweetheart Bonnie Parker—a former Callahan County girl—met death in a trap laid by a posse composed of old time Texan rangers and country peace officers.

The colorful couple met death as they had lived, sensationally and together as their small sedan sped down a Louisiana highway at 80 miles an hour. At a summons to halt from officers, Barrow reached for a weapon and gave his stolen automobile an extra gust of speed in the same movement. His draw was slow, however, and a barrage of bullets from ambush riddled the bodies of both Barrow and Bonnie, causing almost instantaneous death. The car careened to the roadside, crashing in a ditch.

50 shots struck the bandits before they could raise their guns and they died as the automobile came to a rest against an earthen embankment at the side of the road.

Bonnie And Clyde Believed To Have Passed 'This Way'

Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker are reported to have passed through Cross Plains on several occasions, in their wild elusive rides across the Southwest. They were last believed to have been seen here on the night of April 26. Deputy Sheriff W. A. Peterson working with Coleman officers was unable to verify the report however, although he pursued the automobile reported to have carried Bonnie and Clyde.

Dying, Barrow kicked open the door of the car and attempted to fire at officers but death overtook him before he could pull the trigger. He died with a gun in his hands without saying a word.

Bonnie, hard and straight-shooting, died with her head between her knees with amachine gun across her lap. She already had been crippled by gunfire in previous skirmishes with officers but she attempted to the end to shoot down officers of the law, whom she despised. When she died, she clutched a package of blood soaked cigarets in her left hand. Fingers of her right hand, the trigger hand which was her proud boast, were shot away by the officers bullets.

The trail of the bandit pair was ended through the cunning of Frank Hammer who with three Texans had tailed the notorious man and woman over a half dozen States for 15,000 miles. He was rewarded for his search through a ruse accomplished by the aid of a relative of an ex-convict on the promise that the convict, who had broken prison, would be given consideration by the law.

Barrow and Parker were led to believe they were among friends but their trust led them to their deaths. They were taken completely by surprise and were unable to use the many guns and pistols which they carried in the car at arm's length.

Captain Hamer and B. M. Gault had been commissioned by the Texas Highway Patrol to the sole job of finding Barrow, to avenge the cold blooded killing of two highway patrolmen near Grapevine, Texas, a few weeks ago.

The patrolmen had seen a parked motorcar and, as was customary, had gone to offer assistance. The men were shot from their motorcycles. They never had a chance.

Barrow and Bonnie had a chance. A man stepped out into the road and ordered them to halt. Clyde reached for his gun, but he didn't reach fast enough.

Bonnie Leaves Evidence She Was Poet As Well As Texas Most Noted Gun Moll

Bonnie Parker, gun-moll of Clyde Barrow, killed with him in Louisiana, in her spare time between escapes from officers wrote poetry. She made herself and her consort the subject of some of them. One of the latest follows:

By BONNIE PARKER
You have read the story of Jesse James,
Of how he lived and died.
If you still are in need of something to read,
Here's the story of Bonnie and Clyde.
Now Bonnie and Clyde are the Barrow gang,
I'm sure you all have read.
How they rob and steal,
And how, those who squeal,
Are usually found dying or dead.
There are lots of untruths to their writeups,
They are not so merciless as that;
They hate all the laws,
The stool pigeons, spotters and rats,
They class them as cold-blooded killers.
They say they are heartless and mean,
But I say this with pride

That I once knew Clyde
When he was honest and upright and clean.
But the law fooled around,
Kept tracking him down
And locking him up in a cell,
Till he said to me,
"I will never be free,
"So I will meet a few of them in hell."
This road was so dimly lighted
There was no highway signs to guide,
But they made up their minds
If the roads were all blind
They wouldn't give up till they died.
From heartbreaks some people have suffered,
From weariness some people have died,
But take it all in all,
Our troubles are small.
When we get like Bonnie and Clyde,
Some day will go down together,
And they will bury them side by side.
To a few it means grief,
To the law it's relief,
But it is death to Bonnie and Clyde.

Why Doctors Favor a Liquid Laxative

A doctor will tell you that the careful choice of laxatives is a common cause of chronic constipation. Any hospital offers evidence of the harm done by harsh laxatives that drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and even affect the liver and kidneys.

Fortunately, the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be controlled. It forms no habit; you needn't take a "double dose" a day or two later.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the average person's bowels regular as clockwork in a few weeks' time. Why not try it? Some pill or tablet may be more convenient to carry, but there is little "convenience" in any cathartic which is taken so frequently, you must carry it with you, wherever you go!

Its very taste tells you Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is wholesome. A delightful taste, and delightful action, safe for expectant mothers, and children. All druggists, ready for use, in big bottles. Member N. R. A.

CONGRATULATIONS, SCHOOLS

The Cross Plains trade territory is fortunate indeed for the high type of schools within its boundaries. This week as the institutions are dismissing for Summer vacation, we wish to offer a work of congratulations to each of them: Teachers, Graduates, Students, and all concerned for their success during the past term. This store is dedicated to the cooperation of schools in this area. May next year be as successful as the one now closing, and if possible, even more so.
