Confederate Captain Past 100 Years of Age Will Speak To Bible Class Sunday Morning

"I've passed 100 years and am feeling fine," said Captain William Henry Bristol who is visiting in the home of his grand-daughter, Mrs. J. L. Settle, here this week.

Alert and keenly interested in affairs of the hour, the centenarian readily accepted an invitation to speak to the downtown Bible class which meets in the Liberty Theatre building Sunday morning.

Asked if the reconstruction days after the war compared with the depression from which America has just emerged, Captain Bristol said:

President Dons Pan American Garb

Deighted with his gifts, President Roosevelt, author of the "good neighbor" theme of the Pan American Exposition in Dallas, is pictured as he calls his aides to view the hand-woven sereape in the design of the official flag of the Exposition, and the sombrero presented to him by Governor James V. Alfred (rear) at Texas A. & M. College. The Governor is honorary director general of the fair, which opens June 12

TIE GAME FRIDAY ENDS 6 WEEKS OF SPRING TRAINING

Six weeks of Spring football training was culminated at Williams Field Friday afternoon, when the graduating Buffaloes gridmen battled their "hold-over" team to a 12 all deadlock.

The boys of the future tallied first in the initial quarter, after the exes had been forced to punt. A series of running plays featuring a new backfield combination advanced the leather to the exes' 15 yard stripe, from where the younger and lighter gridgers scored on a single wing back reverse.

The game was uneventful until in the third chucker when J. T. Cross intercepted a pass and sprinted 60 yards into pay dirt to the score. The exes scored again early in the fourth when they marched down the field for another tally, in a drive of which Billy Gray was the mainstay.

J. H. Childs and Loyd Flahee collaborated in a 60 yard drive a few minutes later to score for the "hold-overs" and tie the count.

FORMER CITIZEN IS LAID TO REST HERE FRIDAY; MAY 14TH

Funeral services for Mrs. W. R. Wright, 70, former resident of this city, were held at the Methodist church Friday morning with Ep. O. P. Clark, pastor of the 81, Paul Methodist church at Abilene officiating.

Mrs. Wright was born in Virginia, April 16, 1867. She moved from there to Kentucky, then to Texas where she married W. R. Wright. They moved to Cross Plains from Denton after their marriage and lived here for a number of years.

Mrs. Wright is survived by her husband, Rev. W. R. Wright, one son, Rev. Cal. C. Wright, presiding elder in the Vernon district, one daughter, Mrs. Bob Cross, Spur, one sister, Mrs. Annie Russell, Winchell, and one brother, Judge W. R. Ely of Abilene.

EARLY DAY OFFICER IS BURIED TWO YEARS TO HOUR AFTER WIFE

T. R. Deans, 87, affectionately known as "Uncle Tom", died at his home in Rising Star Sunday night after an illness of but a few days. He was an uncle of Ike and John Kendrick of Cross Plains.

Funeral services were held Monday morning at 10 o'clock, two years to the day and hour, later than that of Mrs. Deans who expired in 1935. Interment was made in the Rising Star cemetery.

Mr. Deans, an early day Texas Ranger and Eastland county peace officer, is survived by one son, Jimmy Deans of Rising Star, and two daughters, Mrs. Frank Betts, Los Angeles, California, and Mrs. Glenn Brady of Washington, Pennsylvania. All were present for the funeral and interment services.

As officer of the law, Mr. Deans helped to dissolve the famous Barker-Whitney gang of outlaws, which molested this section, in the eighties.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Stewart and daughter, of Midland, visited in the home of Mrs. Stewart's sister, Mrs. W. D. Smith, here this week.

BRADY BEATS LOCAL GOLF TEAM 13 TO 7 SUNDAY AFTERNOON

HOME TOWN GOSSIP

After two weeks of leisurely loitering about Texas resorts there's more inviting than getting into the harness of producing a paper for one of the finest communities on the face of the globe. Really a person can't appreciate the home town until he's absent from the familiar for a spell.

Before wading into matters of moment it is fitting that few be said of the staff that did the publication of the Review during our vacation. Miss Nell McDermitt did such a job of news-writing that it's to take some downright hard to maintain her enviable ability as a business getter and the advertising columns chuck-full of attractively displayed ads. These Adams at the homey such pains with his work that he made not a single mistake in his copy.

Such things moved nicely during absence; so nice that the raise we had been intending for the stockholders must be forgotten.

... coming over Texas we entered many former citizens of thriving little city. All were doing well in a financial way.

... standing on the Galveston pier to watch President Roosevelt in parade, we saw Mrs. Bargin. She and Fred now live in Dickinson, 20 miles from here, where he is sales manager lumber concern.

... all former citizens we ran one was more interested in the old home town than Mrs. Stanley Clark, who lives at Lancaster, just out of town. She wanted to know every one from who is playing the organ church to why Jim McMillan is Nightwatchman.

... old friend we are unable to find Miss Mary Massa, at Antonio. Made two trips by office in the Frost National but it was closed both times. Failed to locate Aubra Dodson, Miss Wagner in the capitol.

... of the most interesting things on the little excursion was when to guard secret service to the president.

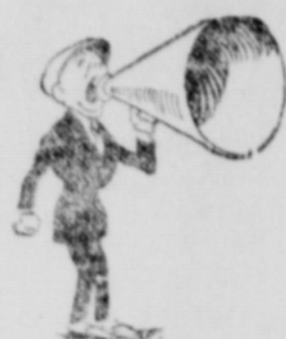

... For the parade in Galveston from Fort Crockett were lined up along the route, and as the president approached the soldiers on their backs on the chief of staff he had passed. Husky men stood on either side of the car. At the station where Roosevelt stopped 15 minutes to be presented to and address the crowd, no was left unreturned to insure protection. All houses in the city were searched for guns and ammunition and occupants of the were allowed to have no arms until after the ceremony concluded.

... such, they don't intend to let the President to be disturbed on occurrence of an event such as his inauguration.

... much for our little outing to the business of this column. At Tatum and Miss Dalry recently tripped to Hymen's and are entitled to our congratulations. Darcy and very best wishes for all sailing upon marital seas. Barr and Miss Ruth will recite their marriage here Sunday at noon.

BEAUTY'S DAUGHTER

By Kathleen Norris

As from winter sky was low on the world when morning came with sunrise; Vicky, waking at seven, shivered wearily down against her warm blankets. It would be good to stay in bed on such a morning—what morning was this, anyway? Good heavens, this was Christmas eve—with everything to

Then she remembered, and the dark morning seemed darker, her bones, her head, her whole being seemed to ache with the necessity of coming back to consciousness. Ah, if she could only slip away, and go on from sleep to death, beautiful, warm, friendly death.

She lay thinking, her throat thick, her head confused, her heart and mind in confusion. Quentin, Quentin, and Serena Morrison.

Victoria suddenly felt that she was suffocating, strangling. She slipped off the blankets, reached for the heavy wrapper even while she groped with her feet for her lined slippers.

"Error!" she muttered, going to the window, shutting it with a swift gesture. The garden under a fine frosting of white, the bricks of the walks as white as the leaf pile under the oaks, she splashed her face with cold water, brushed her hair, looked at her reflection in the mirror.

For a while she went down stairs, to sit holding her coffee cup at the level of her mouth, an elbow resting on the table, her eyes far away. She could eat nothing but she managed a few swallows of coffee; managed a question to the maid:

"Did the doctor have his breakfast, Anna?"

"No, ma'am. He had a cup of coffee standing in the kitchen, he wouldn't sit down. He had an eight o'clock at the Dante."

"Did he say anything about dinner?"

"He said he'd have Miss Conroy telephone."

All the Keates were to come down tomorrow to have Christmas dinner with all the Hardestys. This was Christmas eve. Half-festive, unendurable, empty, Christmas eve and Christmas day must somehow be endured.

She mounted the two flights of stairs to her mother's room. Magda always stayed in bed in the mornings; this morning she had a fire and was cozily ensconced in her pillows, with her light burning, and her breakfast tray on her knees.

"You look tired," Magda said, with a glance.

"I started tripping the Christmas tree right before last," Victoria said. "I had to get some more things for it in town yesterday."

She stopped, remembering Marsh's and the white shawl. The sick reluctance to believe it all too possession of her again.

"Quentin gone?"

"He went early—I didn't see him."

Weak misery blotted out all other emotions and she turned desperately toward the wrapping and tying of presents, the heaping of bundles, the fastening of trimmings on the tree that stood in lone cold state in the downstairs drawing room.

It was cold in the drawing room; Victoria worked in a sweater; left half the trimming undone. There was no heart in it today. Christmas had always been a wildly festive time in the Hardesty family—even the dreadful first Christmas when Quentin and Vicky and Gwen had all been ill. It would be no such holiday tomorrow. It would never seem Christmas again.

"Oh, my God!" Vicky said, standing still in the middle of the room, putting her hands that were sore from wires and string and tinsel, that were cold and dirty, tightly over her eyes. "My God, what shall I do!"

Well, and what had to be done now? With the rest of the tree's trimming Nurse must help; it was too much to do alone in this cold room. Victoria went out to the kitchen and asked Claus, the old German gardener, who was brooding himself some coffee on the laundry stove, to look at the drawing room radiators. Company tomorrow.

Then upstairs again to find beds made, and the children dressed and circulating about with their usual uproarious activity. Beds, crays railway trains, and blackboards were all in evidence. The question of stockings arose; when were they going to hang the stockings?

"The holes of the nicks we had last year are all here!" Susan said excitedly, in interested investigation at the hearth.

"Everything all right?" Vicky put down the coffee cup and stood up, and no bloodly toward her. A moment she was flung in a passion of tears, and all this—to have it all years when she was that she and enough—to have it all day down on a Sunday Daddy was a strain.

The garden was the window lay bleak and under a fine frosting of white, delicate powdering of frost covering the bricks of the walks and the leafy pile on the oaks. She splashed her face with cold water, brushed her hair, looked at a ghostly vision in the mirror.

"The holes of the nails we had last year are all here!" Susan said excitedly, in interested investigation at the hearth.

"Mother," the gentle twin said, at her knee, "if we hanged them now might they be filled by supper?"

"Oh, no, darling, because Christmas isn't until tomorrow!" The nursery door opened; Gita shyly insinuated herself into the room, closed the door again. "Amah's sick, and M'ma said I could come over," she said. Victoria's face paled, but there was no one to see.

longer only Victoria Hardisty. In a moment she was back. "It's here. Wait Claus to bring it in?" "Well, but won't that mean that you've no car?" "I don't need it. I'm not going out. I was downtown this morning."

"Everything all right?" Vicky put down the telephone. She stood up, and somehow moved blindly toward her bed. In another moment she was flung upon it, in a passion of tears. To have to end all this—to have to end the happy years when she had felt so sure that she and the children were enough—to have next Christmas day dawn on a nursery to which Daddy was a stranger.

"What's the matter, Vicky?" Magda asked, late in the afternoon, when Vicky, from sheer inability to do anything more was lying idle on the couch near the fire in the upstairs sitting room.

"Matter?" Vicky responded brightly. "Too much Christmas!" "Yes, but it isn't that," she said, after a pause. "You were crying this morning. What's the matter?" Vicky turned raised eyebrows toward her in innocent surprise.

"What is it?" persisted Magda. "It's nothing—really." A silence. The older woman shrugged. "All right," Magda said then. "It's nothing."

"It's only," Vicky began deliberately, in a thick voice that cleared as she went on—"It's only that I think Quentin and I are going to be divorced."

Their eyes met fully; both women looked back at the fire. "Feel that way about it?" Magda said mildly. Victoria looked up quickly.

"You know why?" she demanded in surprise. "I suppose so," Magda said reluctantly and uncomfortably. She jerked her head in the general direction of the Morrison house.

"Don't take it so seriously, Vicky," her mother urged, after a silence in which she had obviously been casting about for something to say. "Seriously?" Vicky blew her nose, wiped her eyes, spoke in a calmer and quite determined voice.

"I'm not going to make any fuss," she said. "But if that's what Quentin wants, I won't stand in his way."

"Oh, but you can't ever be sure, Quentin doesn't seem to me like a man who'd go very far in anything he is with the children," Magda argued.

"I know," Vicky's eyes watered. "That's what makes it so ghastly," she said in a whisper. "What have you seen, Mother?" she asked, after a pause.

"Oh, well, that he liked her," Magda answered somewhat cautiously. "And certainly that she was after him!" she added with more confidence.

"Well, she's got him!" Vicky said grimly. "Vicky," her mother presently began placatingly, in real uneasiness, "you wouldn't break up a home like this just because Quentin happened to look at another woman?"

"What else can a woman do when everything she's ever loved and trusted—" Vicky stopped abruptly, choked by the tears that rose in her throat. "After all, one has some pride!" she added, in a lower tone. "Oh, it's all so horrible," she said bitterly, half aloud. "It's all such a nightmare!"

"She'd marry him, like a shot," Magda predicted. "She's got a divorce and a big settlement from Spencer Morrison, an then she'd marry Quentin."

"She knows Quentin is going to be the biggest of them all," Magda went on. "How old is he, Vicky?" "Forty-five—nearly forty-five."

"Ah, well," Magda said, "that's the time they get them!" Victoria did not question this cryptic comment; she was not listening.

"It's like a death," Vicky said. "It's worse than a death!" "Oh, Lord, no, it isn't, Vicky. It happens all the time."

"But it never seemed as if it would happen to me," Vicky fell into brooding thought. "I end everything—everything that I ever built into my life," she said. "And perhaps I'm wrong. Perhaps men like the sort of women who go right on in marriage and have their own affairs! Perhaps a home and children and a woman who loves him aren't enough."

"Oh, I wouldn't say that!" Magda said soothingly. "But something in her completely false tone made Vicky laugh suddenly.

"But you think that, don't you, Mother?" she asked, looking up for haggard cheeks suddenly scarlet.

"Well, yes—and no," Magda said pondering. "I think most men would like a mother-wife and a—show-off wife," she formulated it slowly. "They love home first, and to find a big steak ready, and a fire, and kids all washed and fresh and ready to be shushed off to bed, and someone to love them in a quiet sort of way. And then they like another woman to flutter them, and meet them places, and be admired."

Vicky considered this, a faint scowl between her heavy brows. "And what would a man think of a wife who felt that way?"

"Oh, well, you can't go by that, Vicky!" Magda assured her hastily. "No, you can't go by anything," Vicky lifelessly agreed.

"In the old days, you see, it was harder for 'em!" Magda presently observed, as if thinking aloud. "Harder for wives?" "No, harder for the other women."

"How'd you mean harder?" "Well, before there was so much divorce," Magda offered simply. "A woman had to be a man's mistress then, and that wasn't so good. Other women wouldn't speak to her, and the man himself got pretty sick of it after a while. Then he came back to his wife."

"If she was a spineless fool," supplied Vicky. "She didn't have much choice. That's the way things were." "That isn't the way things are now! Women have changed all that at least. God knows it's not fair, even now, that men can do what they do, and I get away with it! But at least a woman doesn't have to make a doormat of herself!"

All you tell 'em is that Daddy is going to be away for a while, and that you feel happy about it." "Oh, my God," Victoria prayed in an agonized whisper, as the full sense of her own helplessness and of the desperate nature of the situation strengthened in her heart.

Daddy going to be away for a while—no Quentin to come into her room from the dressing room in the early morning, when spring light was widening over the wet garden, and a wood fire was snapping! No tired doctor for whom to call at the office so proudly, so lovingly, in the late afternoons, and drive home to warmth and fire and heartening dinner. No picnic on the scimitar shore of Half Moon Bay, with Quentin's big figure recumbent and asleep on the sand, and small forms, barelegged to the hip, digging and running in the level warm rush of waves!

"Feel happy about it!" she echoed bitterly. And in despair she added: "I shall never feel happy again! There's nothing I can do. Whatever I do is wrong!" "I never will."

"Funny thing," Magda mused, as her daughter's bitter laugh died away into silence and the room was still. "If a woman—I mean the wife, now—could only keep her mouth shut and wait, she'd win out every time."

"You mean kiss a man, and be kind to him, and keep his house comfortable, and let him go off to the other woman whenever he likes?" Victoria asked, in a proud, quick voice.

"Yep. About that." "You mean knowing that he was unfaithful, knowing that he despised her and wanted to get away from her, knowing that another woman was reveling in his compliments and presents—in the love that belonged to her, to keep it up for weeks—?" The indignant summary halted: Victoria, her cheeks scarlet, was looking a challenge. Her hands and rumpled her hair. "You make me laugh," she muttered scornfully.

"As far as the children go, if a man is successful and makes money," Magda said, "they just soon find good reasons for getting back to him. He takes one to Europe, or he gives another a car—they don't take sides. You never resent anything I did, poor did!"

"Yes, but that was my mother!" "I know. But I was the one who got out—I threw Keith Herrenden over. You know, Vicky, it's an awful mistake to bring children into a quarrel, because they don't understand and it just sears them."

"I certainly couldn't bring them into this!" Victoria protested almost indignantly. "Well, I didn't suppose you would."

"You see, she wants something that you've got," Magda offered mildly. "Well, she can have it!" "So that if I wanted to run around with—well, say Dr. Bledsoe, Quentin would presumably wait for me, and bear everything, and then forget it as if it had never been?"

"But you're not that sort," Magda reminded her. "Yes, and a strange man something for a woman!" Vicky put in hotly, triumphantly.

"So that if I wanted to run around with—well, say Dr. Bledsoe, Quentin would presumably wait for me, and bear everything, and then forget it as if it had never been?" "But you're not that sort," Magda reminded her.

proposed an Amendment to the Constitution of the State of Texas to be known as Section 20 of Article VIII, providing that no property of any kind shall be assessed for ad valorem taxes at a greater value than its fair cash market value; and giving the Legislature power to provide that the State and all governmental or political subdivisions or taxing districts may allow a discount for payment of ad valorem taxes before the date when they would otherwise become delinquent; and providing that this Amendment shall become effective January 1, 1939; providing for an election on the question of adoption or rejection of this Amendment; providing for the proclamation and publication thereof; and making an appropriation therefor; and prescribing the form of ballot.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF TEXAS:

Section 1. That the Constitution of the State of Texas be amended by adding a new Section to Article VIII to be known as Section 20 and to read as follows:

Section 20. No property of any kind in this state shall ever be assessed for ad valorem taxes at a greater value than its fair cash market value nor shall any Board of Equalization of any governmental or political subdivision or taxing district within the State fix the value of any property for tax purposes at more than its fair cash market value; provided that in order to encourage the prompt payment of taxes, the Legislature shall have the power to provide that the taxpayer shall be allowed by the State and all governmental and political subdivisions and taxing districts of the State a three per cent (3%) discount on ad valorem taxes due the State or due any governmental or political subdivision or taxing district of the State if such taxes are paid ninety (90) days before the date when they would otherwise become delinquent; and the taxpayer shall be allowed a two per cent (2%) discount on said taxes if paid sixty (60) days before said taxes would become delinquent and the taxpayer shall be allowed a one per cent (1%) discount if said taxes are paid thirty (30) days before they would otherwise become delinquent. This amendment shall be effective January 1, 1939. The Legislature shall pass necessary laws for the proper administration of this Section."

Section 2. The foregoing Constitutional Amendment shall be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of this State at a special election to be held throughout the State of Texas on the 23rd day of August, 1937, at which election all voters favoring the proposed Amendment shall write or have printed on their ballots the following words:

"FOR the Amendment to the State Constitution providing that property shall never be assessed for taxes at more than its fair cash market value, and providing that in order to encourage the prompt payment of ad valorem taxes, the Legislature shall have the power to permit a discount for the payment of same before they become delinquent."

Those voters opposing said proposed Amendment shall write or have printed on their ballots the following words:

"AGAINST the Amendment to the State Constitution providing that property shall never be assessed for taxes at more than its fair cash market value, and providing that in order to encourage the prompt payment of ad valorem taxes, the Legislature shall have the power to permit a discount for the payment of same before they become delinquent."

If it appears from the returns of said election that a majority of the votes cast are in favor of said Amendment, the same shall become a part of the State Constitution.

Section 3. The Governor of the State of Texas shall issue the necessary proclamation for said election and shall have the same published as required by the Constitution for Amendments thereto.

Section 4. The sum of Eight Thousand Dollars ($8,000), or so much thereof as may be necessary is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the Treasury of the State, not otherwise appropriated, to pay the expenses of such publication and election.

House Joint Resolution
H. J. No. 26-A

proposing an amendment to Article III of the Constitution of the State of Texas by adopting a new Section to be known as Section 5d, which shall provide that the Legislature shall have the power to provide limitations and restrictions as may be deemed by the Legislature expedient for assistance to destitute children and for the payment of same not to exceed Eight Dollars ($8) for one child or Twelve Dollars ($12) for the children of any one family per month; further providing that the Legislature may impose such restrictions and regulations as to it may seem expedient, providing that the amount to be expended out of State funds in any one year for such assistance shall not exceed the sum of One Million, Five Hundred Thousand Dollars ($1,500,000); and providing that the Legislature shall have the authority to accept from the Government of the United States financial aid for assistance to destitute children; providing for an election on the question of adoption or rejection of this amendment and making an appropriation therefor; providing for the proclamation and publication thereof; and prescribing the form of ballot.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF TEXAS:

Section 1. That Article III of the Constitution of the State of Texas be amended by adding thereto a Section to be known as Section 5d, which shall read as follows:

"Section 5d. Subject to the limitations and restrictions herein contained, and such other limitations, restrictions, and regulations as may be provided by law, the Legislature shall have the power to provide for assistance to destitute children under the age of fourteen (14) years; such assistance shall not exceed Eight Dollars ($8) per month for one child nor more than Twelve Dollars ($12) per month for such children of any one family; provided that the amount to be expended for such assistance out of State funds shall never exceed the sum of One Million, Five Hundred Thousand Dollars ($1,500,000) per year. The Legislature may impose residential restrictions and such other restrictions, limitations, and regulations as to it may seem expedient.

"The Legislature shall have the authority to accept from the Government of the United States financial assistance to destitute children as that Government may offer not inconsistent with the restrictions herein above provided."

Section 2. The foregoing Constitutional Amendment shall be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of this State at an election to be held throughout the State on the fourth Monday in August, 1937, at which election all voters favoring the proposed Amendment shall write or have printed on their ballots the following words:

"FOR the Amendment to the State Constitution providing for assistance to destitute children under the age of fourteen (14) years not to exceed Eight Dollars ($8) per month for one child nor more than Twelve Dollars ($12) per month for such children of any one family, and providing for acceptance from the Government of the United States of America financial assistance for such payment."

Those voters opposing said proposed Amendment shall write or have printed on their ballots the following words:

"AGAINST the Amendment to the State Constitution providing for assistance to destitute children under the age of fourteen (14) years not to exceed Eight Dollars ($8) per month for one child nor more than Twelve Dollars ($12) per month for such children of any one family, and providing for acceptance from the Government of the United States of America financial assistance for such payment."

If it appears from the returns of said election that a majority of the votes cast are in favor of said Amendment, the same shall become a part of the State Constitution.

Section 3. The Governor of the State of Texas shall issue the necessary proclamation for said election and shall have the same published as required by the Constitution for Amendments thereto.

Section 4. The sum of Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000), or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the Treasury of the State, not otherwise appropriated, to pay the expenses of such publication and election.

Walter F. Woodul Lands County Agent Work

The Honorable Walter F. Woodul, Lieutenant Governor and President, Senate of Texas, wrote the county agent a very nice letter this week commending the Extension work as is being carried on in the county. His letter follows:

Lieutenant Governor's Office
Austin, Texas
May 14, 1937

Mr. R. B. Jenkins, Baird, Texas:

I have just read with a great deal of satisfaction and pleasure the report of Texas Extension work for 1936.

When I read of the terracing work, improvement in homes, and the advancement generally fostered by you and the Extension Department I cannot help but feel that Texas is rapidly progressing. Our agricultural interest is the main interest of Texas.

I cannot refrain from letting you know that I am one of the many watching your work of progress and applauding your efforts and success.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) Walter F. Woodul,
Lieutenant Governor

Feeders Day At Big Spring
May 28th

J. H. Greene, manager of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce invites all interested cattle feeders to be guests on May 28th at Big Spring. His letter follows:

Chamber of Commerce
Big Spring, Texas
May 14, 1937

Mr. R. B. Jenkins, County Agent, Baird, Texas:

Dear Mr. Jenkins:

The Annual Feeders Day meeting will be held at the United States Experiment Station, Big Spring, Texas, Friday May 28th.

This meeting comes at the close of this year's feeding experiments and is held for the purpose of discussing the results of the test and also to give those who are interested in feeding work an opportunity to observe the results obtained from feeding West Texas cattle, West Texas feeds.

The morning part of the meeting will be devoted to inspection of the cattle and having them appraised by a representative of the stock yards.

After lunch a short program will be held at which time the results of the test will be discussed by representatives of Texas A&M College.

Other problems of interest to the cattlemen will be discussed at this time.

Lunch will be served at the noon hour, come and bring your friends.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) J. H. Greene, Manager.

Wild Life Conservation Area Started

At a meeting of about 30 farmers and ranchers at Baird Saturday it was decided to form a wild life conservation area or game preserve as suggested by the Texas A&M Extension Service.

These promoters will be marked by appropriate markers showing such land in these areas and it is hoped that the land owners all over the county will join the movement. Among the first signers to request a demonstration area be declared were Messrs. Tom Windham, H. A. McWhorter, H. W. Caldwell, Lucie K. Whitehead Estate, Ed Davis, B. F. McCaw, Chas. D. Straley, Ovid E. Walls and S. N. Foster. These men pooled some 30,000 acres of land and many others have been talking about the movement but have had no opportunity to form a cooperative conservation area.

Since these will run on for probably a number of years anyone wishing to join at any time this year will be welcomed.

These men hope to be able to build up our dwindling supply of birds and improve the numbers and quality of fish.

Demonstrations will be carried on with farm ponds and also with streams in the way of promoting better fishing which will include construction of dams, setting of vegetation, stocking and protection. The work with birds will be to provide measures to increase their feeding grounds, increase the number and afford protection both from being shot and eradication of natural enemies.

Farm And Ranch Sign Up Greater Than In 1936

The farm and ranch sign up closed May 15th with a total of 742 work sheets and ranch applications for inspection made. The largest average ever signed up under any of the government programs is included this year because of the inclusion of the ranches. Six hundred eight work sheets were signed on farms and one hundred thirty-four ranches were signed.

4-H Boy To Make Peanut Experiment

Lerna Dale Scott of the Denton 4-H Club is going to plant five acres to peanuts. On three acres he will treat the seed with ultragin which cause a fixation of free nitrogen to the soil which increases the yield from 10 to 50 per cent over untreated seed. On one acre he will treat the seed with Ceresan to see if peanut are bothered with any of the fungus diseases killed by this chemical. On the fifth acre he will plant peanuts with no treatment of any kind. This experiment will be watched closely by the county agent and boys who are growing peanuts. This is the first experiment of this nature the county agent has heard of and hopes that others will do this kind of experimental testing.

Roy Kendrick Made President Callahan Agr. Assn.

At a meeting of members of the Texas Agricultural Association, Callahan County Chapter, Mr. Roy Kendrick of Denton was named permanent president for the county. He has been serving as temporary chairman for the past three months. Mr. Earl C. Hays of Clyde was elected vice-president and Ed Davis of Adair was elected secretary-treasurer. Mr. Kendrick announced that there are now eighty-seven members to the association and reports that men are handing in their $2.00 membership fee most every day.

Mr. Ed Davis requested this column announce that any persons he had not seen who intended to become a member of the association could either hand the fee to him or leave it at the county agent's office where he would pick up and give due credit each Saturday. He pointed out that members in this Association not only were helping the other farmers of the state to maintain a man now in Washington on the committee that is drawing the new permanent agricultural law but also would entitle each member to two farm magazines that are worth the price of membership for either of them.

DOE CAN BE DANGEROUS

The general public may not believe it, but the most dangerous of animals can be a gentle doe. So discovered Johnny Weissmuller, during the filming of "Tarzan Escapes," opening Sunday at the Liberty Theatre. A doe used in the picture became a mother. Since then she has been a savage defender of the tiny deer, and almost impossible to approach. Weissmuller, who used to pet her, was chased across the "back lot" by his erstwhile friend.

DRESSY

Dressy school closed a very successful term last Friday with a number of the student body, quite a number of the patrons attended. Also, we appreciated the presence of the Misses Lola B. McKinney, Corina Lee and Adon Miller, former students of the Dressy school.

The day was enjoyably spent in games, boat-riding and fishing. But probably the most enjoyable feature of the beautiful lunch spread beneath the shade of the beautiful trees of Burkett's splendid grove. It is an ideal place for a picnic.

To our great regret Mrs. R. B. McGowan, our primary teacher, could not be present. We missed her very much as we have indeed, for the three last weeks of school as a result of her illness. We were fortunate, however, to have a very efficient substitute, Miss Helen Johnson, who ably filled her place during the last days of school. Here's wishing Mrs. McGowan a speedy recovery.

Just one other feature yet remains for the closing of the 1936-37 term, namely, the graduating exercises for the 7th grade. This is a County wide affair for all rural school 7th grade graduates. Those from the Dressy school who will be presented diplomas on that occasion by County Supt. Christmas are: Christeen McGee, Mattie Crutchfield and Ernest Warren. These exercises will be held at Baird, May 29th.

We are glad to learn that Miss Clara Nell McDermett has accepted the position as primary teacher for the 1937-38 term.

LOUISE NELSON TO TEACH AT ABILENE

Miss Louise Nelson, teacher of Spanish in Cross Plains high school the past three years, resigned her position yesterday and will accept a post in Abilene high school for the 1937-38 term.

FOOTBALL MEN NEEDED TO CARRY CHINESE DRAGON

Ten husky football heroes from U. S. C. and U. C. L. A. were given their chance to show how much summer training they've done when they were called on to carry the Chinese dragon for expenses in the mystery thriller, "Mad Holiday," showing Thursday at the Liberty Theatre.

THE MAN WHOSE SPEECH SAVED THE COUNTRY'S PATENTS

DR. WILLIAM WOODROW WILSON WAS AN ENGLISH SPEAKER WHO SAVED THE PATENTS OF THE UNITED STATES BY HIS SPEECH AT THE CROSS PLAINS HOTEL AND THEATER LAST WEEK. HE WAS THE ONLY MAN WHOSE SPEECH SAVED THE PATENTS OF THE UNITED STATES BY HIS SPEECH AT THE CROSS PLAINS HOTEL AND THEATER LAST WEEK. CENTENARIAN

"I came to Texas in 1870 and have been a close observer of state affairs ever since. I think Jim Hogg was the greatest governor the lone star state ever had, however, I also think a lot of our present chief executive James V. Alford, and I'm going to drop in and pay him a visit upon my return to Austin later this month."

HEMPHILL

(Continued from page 1) we have its present name—Cross Plains. It was site of Indian camps and wars. Many arrow-heads and other Indian relics which have been found near the present town definitely prove this fact. Now we turn from its romantic history.

GOSSIP

(Continued from page 1) reason: perhaps you know better than we. Cross Plains non-senses: There is a Citizens State Bank at Houston and another at Dickinson; San Antonio has both a Kemper's Cafe and a Motor Inn; City Drug Stores are quite numerous with one each being noted in Lubbock, Seguin and San Antonio; there is a Scott's Dry Cleaning Company in Galveston; a Jordan's Paint Shop in Big Spring; Higginsbottom stores are, as you well know, common as auto trailers; there's a Wilson's Cafe in Cleburne.

FOOTBALL

ATHLETIC STAR ALLEN

Bob Allen, star of the Columbia picture, "Rio Grande Ranger," showing tonight and Saturday at the Liberty Theatre, is a former star halfback of the Dartmouth football team. He was also a member of the boxing and track teams and held the college intercollegiate wrestling championship in 1913. He is also an expert on dirt.

THE CROSS PLAINS REVIEW. Vol. 28. CROSS PLAINS, TEXAS. SET 55TH PIC

HOME TOWN GOSSIP. HEARING WILL BE HELD ON PROPOSAL IN ABILENE JUNE 7. Hearing on a petition asking for an election in the newly created "shoe-string road district" between here and Abilene--to vote on bonds for building highway 36 southeast from Abilene to Cross Plains, has been set for June seventh.

ALTON TO CROSS PLAINS. The Taylor county commissioner's court, in a called session Saturday morning, hearing following presentation of a petition of 60 signers which had been circulated by the highway committee of the Abilene chamber of commerce, Tom K. Epley, who presented the petition, and T. N. Carswell, secretary of the chamber of commerce, met with the court.

PRIZES FOR PHILIPPE'S COUNTRY CLUB'S FIFTH ANNUAL INVITATION GOLF TOURNAMENT. Prizes for Philippe's country club's fifth annual invitation golf tournament to be held June fourth, fifth and sixth, have been ordered and are to be placed on display in the clubhouse possibly late this week. Retail price of the prizes was slightly more than $150. The Review was told by the committee in charge.

THE LARGEST ENTRY LIST IN HISTORY OF THE CLUB IS EXPECTED THIS YEAR, according to Alva Harwell, "We expect at least 25 to enter from the local club and this group added to those expected from adjacent clubs will probably swell the number to a new high," he said.

THE FAIRWAYS AND GROUNDS ARE SAID TO BE IN EXCELLENT CONDITION for the tournament, however, Claude Hammett, secretary and caretaker, plans to add a few finishing touches at the last minute. Philippe's membership is now the largest in history--even more than at the time of its organization. More than 100 members are now in good standing on the club roster.
