SICKNESS takes a Holiday!
Their Health is Protected by Electric Refrigeration
Hospital Obstetrics Supervisor Says: "It's Safest"
Economy in operation and safety from food spoilage are as important in your home as in any hospital! Therefore, it seems amazingly significant that most all hospitals, including Hendrick Memorial Hospital in Abilene (see photos), depend largely on Electric Refrigeration for these two necessary performances. Miss Vera Smith, obstetrics supervisor, says: "We now have eight Frigidaires in use, one of which is in the maternity ward. I know of no better method than electric refrigeration as a means of providing one of many safeguards for the health of these babies." So when buying a refrigerator, please bear in mind that responsible persons, qualified to exert expert choice, everywhere are choosing Electric Refrigeration. Especially is this true in West Texas, where torrid summer heat makes it impossible for other types to maintain 40- to 45-degree temperatures—necessary for complete food protection. Electric service for refrigeration costs as little as 2½ cents a day!

IN THE PICTURE Smiling peacefully are these youngsters tucked by the electric refrigerator which keeps their liquids. One yawns, another blinks his eyes as Nurse Vera Smith makes a routine check. Below: Miss Smith stands at the Frigidair whose silent operation is essential in keeping beyond the baby cribs in the hospital "incubator."
